How to Read and Study the Bible

INTRODUCTION TO THE HCSB STUDY BIBLE

The Christian religion rests fundamentally on the belief that God has chosen to reveal Himself to a human race that is estranged from Him. God has done this not only through miraculous signs, sweeping acts of providence, and the life and works of Jesus Christ, but through 66 writings collectively known as the Bible. These books are taken to be nothing less than authoritative communications from God, given through human authors who were led by the Holy Spirit to write down what God would have us know. Among other things, we learn in the Bible that God is the sovereign Creator of all reality. No corner of the universe is outside His rule. We learn that God is love, that His character is steadfast for eternity, that He is in all ways holy, and that He alone is worthy of praise and glory. We also learn that we are sinners in need of reconciliation with God, and that this reconciliation comes only through faith in God's Son who paid our sin debt on the cross.

Since the Bible conveys such serious matters as these, we must be careful to understand its teachings properly. To misunderstand or misapply the Bible can lead to serious error. Now more than ever, the church is gifted with a multitude of teachers who are equipped to provide tools that help readers comprehend the Bible and apply it to their lives. The HCSB Study Bible represents the work of more than a hundred scholars who have devoted their lives to living and teaching the truths of Scripture. They come from different denominations and diverse backgrounds. Since its release in 2004, readers have recognized the Holman Christian Standard Bible as a multi-denominational effort, reflecting the very best in updated Bible translation scholarship. We have taken the same approach in the HCSB Study Bible. Our contributors reflect a broad sampling of evangelical scholars whose ministries are based at seminaries, colleges, and churches.

The goal of each tool in this study Bible, whether study notes, essays, book introductions, maps, charts, or the online study component (hcsbstudybible.com), is to serve the text of Scripture by bringing to light facts that aid comprehension. As servants to the text, the study tools are designed to keep the focus on Scripture and never on the tools themselves. Practically speaking this approach is demonstrated by the fact that the text of Scripture is never positioned beneath a study tool. The uppermost feature on any given page is the text of Scripture itself. Theologically speaking our text-centric approach is reflected in the fact that each of our contributors honors the Bible as God's inspired and inerrant Word.

Some of the study notes and essays in this study Bible will encourage you and provide answers to questions you have long pondered. Others will surprise you with information you could not have anticipated and prompt you to ask new questions. Still others will challenge you, possibly even provoke you, as you are presented with information that invites you to question your preconceived notions or settled opinions. In all cases our aim is to provide you with tools for engaging God's Word on a deeper level, which leads to life transformation and true knowledge of God. We endeavor to be even-handed on controversial issues. To help achieve this, each note and essay has been pored over by a team of theological editors. In some cases we will adopt positions that are hotly debated, but we always land in a place that is well represented among biblically committed scholars and that seeks to honor the intentions of God's Word.

Our hope is that, in conjunction with other fine study tools that are available, you will use the HCSB Study Bible to deepen your walk with the God who has graciously revealed Himself in the Bible.

FEATURES OF THE HCSB STUDY BIBLE

The HCSB was undertaken as a translation that strongly supports Bible study. In the HCSB Study Bible, the Scripture is primary. All features and tools are designed to help you understand the Scripture and be transformed by it.

Two kinds of HCSB notes enable you to see for yourself how the translation was derived. When translators do their work, they begin with several possible translations that reflect the original language. Alternate translations marked by Or. See some of the options HCSB translators considered. A second kind of note marks literal translations. They are indicated by Lit. HCSB aims to be as literal as possible. Where a literal translation doesn't conform to good English style, HCSB translators find a way to render the expression that optimizes accuracy and readability. The Lit feature enables you to see the literal translation for yourself and compare it with the what the HCSB translators view as the most accurate translation of the sentence or phrase.

Other Features of the HCSB Study Bible

Cross references point to other Bible passages that are related to the text on which you are focusing.

Study notes provide historical, cultural, linguistic, and biblical information that enhances your understanding of a given passage. Words in bold are directly from the Scripture text.

Bullet Points indicate key words for which definitions are provided in the section beginning on p. 2231.

Bolded text in the New Testament are words quoted directly from the Old Testament.

Maps illuminate the Bible text by showing it's geographical context.

Charts organize information in a way that enables the reader to grasp important connections quickly.

Word Studies enable the reader to see a key word and the family of words to which it is related. It also shows a range of expression in which that word functions.

Illustrations recreate architectural structures that were part of the landscape in which the Bible was written. Being able to visualize these structures provides a context in which to read and study passages of Scripture. Both the writer of the passage and many of his first readers knew these structures first hand.

Photos, like Illustrations and Maps, provide visual context known by the biblical writers and many of their first readers. Being able to see the context is a significant aid to comprehension. Both Cyril of Jerusalem (A.D. 315-86) and Jerome (340-420) called the land of the Bible "the Fifth Gospel." Experiencing the land by photos enriches one's reading and understanding of the Bible.

Introductions give overviews of books by providing information on Circumstances of Writing including Author & Background, Message and Purpose, Contribution to the Bible, Structure, and Outline.

Timelines place the book in a chronological framework of biblical events (black font) and events of world history (brown font).

Essays give in-depth coverage to major biblical/theological issues.

ESSAY: HOW TO READ AND STUDY THE BIBLE

George H. Guthrie

The Bible is unique among the books of the world. Its “release date” is centuries old, yet it still dominates the best-seller lists, confronting moderns with messages as fresh as today’s news headlines. At times the Bible is so crystal clear that a child can understand it, yet its difficulties can humble the most learned of scholars. Diverse in theme and literary genres, it conveys a unified story, a message that climaxes in the person and work of Jesus Christ. It was delivered through human writers, yet it truly is God's Word. The Bible can seem as familiar as a walk next door, or as foreign as a distant country.

This article aims to help you hear from God through daily interaction with the Bible. Hearing God in the pages of the Bible takes time and effort; spiritual listening is a skill that we continue to develop all of our lives. Hearing someone well can be challenging when we move across cultural lines, and, in fact, reading the Bible is very much a crosscultural conversation, since God gave His Word in places, times, and circumstances very much removed from our own.

Why Spend Time in the Bible?

Perhaps your past has been marked by starts and stops in reading the Bible, and you are wondering whether you have the discipline to engage the Bible consistently. Well, join the club. Most of us have struggled with the discipline of Bible reading and study. So is it worth giving consistent Bible reading and study another try, or a first try? Most believers know intuitively that it is.

This is God's Word. The God who spoke the world into being has spoken His truth about life through the Bible, so that we might know what He intends for this world and how we might live for His fame. He calls us to be "Word people," people who are countercultural in the ways we approach life. Thus the Bible serves as the foundation for understanding who we are and what we should be doing in this world.

In the next few pages I offer a number of suggestions that you can start applying daily in less time than it takes you to watch a sitcom on TV.

Begin with the Heart In the parable of the seeds and soils (bible.41.4.3), Jesus used a word picture to describe the different levels of receptivity people have toward God's Word. He tells of a farmer broadcasting seed along the edge of a field. Some seeds fall on the hard-packed path beside the field; some fall on rocky ground that has little topsoil; some fall in the weeds; and some fall in fertile soil that offers a good environment for growth. The various places they fall provide images of the human heart as it is confronted with God's Word.

Some people have hearts that are hard-packed, like a frequented footpath. God's Word does not get through to these hearts. Others have shallow hearts that seem open to God's Word. The Word comes and they respond, but the moment things get tough, the pressures of life override the principles of God's Word, and the spiritual life withers. A third type of person engages God's Word at a deeper level, but worries and desire for worldly things squeeze out the Word, choking it from the person's life. Finally, there are those who receive the Word with a heart like a well-tilled field. This is the picture of a person fully receptive to God's Word, and God's Word brings exponential growth to their spiritual life.

Which pattern of response describes the condition of your heart today? Perhaps you have never committed to following Christ as Lord of your life. I encourage you to talk to a Christian or a minister whom you trust and ask them about following Christ as Lord. bible.46.2.14 tells us that a person who is not a Christ-follower cannot engage spiritual truth in a way that is life-changing, so this would be the beginning place for you. Turn to Christ, asking Him to bring His good news to life in you.

Or, perhaps you have committed your life to follow Christ, but your heart is not very receptive to God's Word at this time. You may be plagued by a heart that is consumed with worry or material things. Sin and self-absorption can eat the heart out of your Bible study. Begin your path back to healthy relationship with God by crying out to Him right now, asking Him to forgive you for your hard-heartedness, expressing your desire to hear and live His Word.

Motivations Once our hearts are receptive to the Word, we can hear the motivations offered us in Scripture. Among other motives, we read the Bible . . .

- to experience consistent joy (bible.19.119.111)
- to sort out our thoughts and motivations (bible.58.4.12)
- to guard ourselves from sin and error (bible.49.6.11)
- to know God in a personal relationship (bible.46.1.21)
- to know truth and think clearly about what God says is valuable (bible.61.1.21)
- to be built up as a community with other believers (bible.44.20.32)
- to reject conformity to the world as we renew our minds (bible.45.12.1)
- to experience God's freedom, grace, peace, and hope (bible.43.8.32)
- to live well for God, expressing our love for Him (bible.43.14.23)
- to minister to Christ-followers and to those who have yet to respond to the gospel, experiencing God's approval for work well done (Jos 1:8; 2Tm 2:15; 3:16-17)

12 Practical Suggestions for Reading Well We want to approach our reading of the Bible in a way that will lead to a fulfilling, faithful, and fruitful pattern of life. Below are a dozen suggestions to make your Bible reading more effective and fulfilling.

Read the Bible prayerfully: Engaging the Bible regularly is a spiritual exercise, and you need spiritual power and discernment to do it well. As you begin your Bible reading, ask God for a receptive and disciplined heart, ask Him to speak to you through the Word, and use the passages you read as providing you with thoughts and words you can use as you pray to God.

Read expectantly and joyfully: As you pray over your Bible reading, also read it expecting to hear from God, being joyful and thankful for what you find in the Scriptures. Allow the "music" of the Word to give you joy in your walk with God.

Meditate on what you are reading: To meditate means to mentally "chew" on what we are reading, to think about what the passage means as well as its implications for belief and practice. Just as food chewed and swallowed too quickly gives indigestion, so we will not be able to digest our Bible readings unless we slow down and consider the "meat" we find there.

Read for transformation: The Bible is not meant merely to inform—it is meant to transform us in accordance with God's truth (bible.45.12.1). Therefore, read with expectation that you will hear from the Lord. Be thinking about ways to apply God's truth to your life as you read.

Read with perseverance. Commit yourself to being consistent for the next 10 to 12 weeks, which is about how long it takes to form a long-term habit. As you are faithful with your Bible reading and begin to see it make a difference in your life, you will begin to hunger for your time in the Word.

Be realistic about the goals you set, and have a good plan: If you take just 20 to 30 minutes per day, you can read through the whole Bible in a year. In just 10 to 15 minutes per day, you can read through the whole Bible in two years. The key is not volume but consistency and a clear plan.

Set aside a consistent time and place to read and study the Bible: Make it a time and place that guards you from distractions and allows you to be consistent, missing no more than a handful of times per month. When you do miss a day, just pick back up the next day.

Read with a few good tools at hand: Along with this study Bible, have a good Bible dictionary on hand. These typically provide outlines and message summaries of each book of the Bible, plus quick entries on theological, historical, and cultural elements.

Read with a pen in hand: Underline key passages and make notes in the margins as you read. As the saying goes, the lightest ink is stronger than the strongest memory. If you prefer a keyboard to an ink pen, store your notes on your computer.

Read in light of the immediate context: Not only do we need the "big picture" of the Bible's overarching story, we also need the "little picture" of the immediate context. So read with an awareness of where you are in the development of a particular book.

Do your Bible reading and study as part of a community: It helps if you have family or friends who also are reading the Bible, for they can encourage you and discuss the Bible with you. Become part of a community of Christians, a church, so you can have a place to celebrate what you are learning, to pose questions that come up in your study, and to use your spiritual gifts in ministering to others.

Read in light of the overarching story of the Bible: Reading the Bible is much more meaningful if you read it in light of its overarching story. As you read, notice great interwoven themes such as how creation in Genesis 1-2 relates to creation themes in Psalm 8, Isaiah 65:17-25, John 1, Romans 8:19-22, and Revelation 21. Read book introductions in your study Bible, noting where each book fits in the overall development of God's story. That story can be outlined in three great Acts.

Act 1: God's Plan for All People(bible.1.1.1) Creation: The God of All of Life Fall: Rejecting God's Vision for Life Flood: God Judges and Makes a Covenant to Preserve Life Act 2: God's Covenant People (Genesis 12—Malachi 4:6) (2081-420? B.C.) The People: God Calls a Covenant People (2081 B.C.) Deliverance: God Rescues His People (1446 B.C.) The Sinai Covenant & Law: God Embraces and Instructs His People (1446 B.C.) The Land: God's Place for his People (1406 B.C.) Kings and Prophets: God Shapes a Kingdom People (1050 B.C.) Kings and Prophets: God Divides the Kingdom People (931 B.C.) Kings and Prophets: The Southern Kingdom as God's People (931-586 B.C.) Exile: God Disciplines His People (586-538 B.C.) Return: God Delivers His People Again (538 B.C.) Act 3: God's New Covenant People (Matthew—Revelation) (5 B.C. - ?) Christ's Coming: God's True King Arrives (5 b.c.-a.d. 33) Christ's Ministry: God's True King Manifests His Kingdom (A.D. 29-33)

Christ's Deliverance of His People: God's Work Through Death, Resurrection, and Enthronement of His King (A.D. 33)

Christ's Church: God's People Advance the Kingdom (A.D. 33-?)

Christ's Second Coming and Reign: God's Future for the Kingdom Going Deeper: The Basics of Sound Bible Study Think for a moment about a trip you have taken. You left home, traveled to your destination, and had various memorable experiences. Perhaps you experienced a culture different from your own and found that the greater the cultural differences between home and destination, the greater the effort needed to communicate and to learn in your new environment. Yet you persevered, experienced new people and places, and were enriched by it all.

The Bible is God's Word to us; we are not simply "reading someone else's mail." Yet, Bible study can be like taking a trip to another culture. The language at times seems foreign. You might have difficulty finding your way around the history or the literature. You see new things that are beautiful or even strange. You then gather up what you have gained from your study time and hopefully you grow by the experience.

Since reading the Bible is a crosscultural experience, we need a vehicle that can take us to where we can hear what God is saying to us through those experiences, and I suggest that the right vehicle is a sound process of listening to the text of Scripture. Through a sound process of Bible reading, we see "the sights" God wants us to see. We learn to navigate the unfamiliar territories of biblical history and literature, read the "road signs" that mark the main points to which we must pay attention, and understand the language of the Bible.

After we have lived in the world of the biblical text for a while and become familiar with what is going on there, persevering through challenges and hearing what God wants us to hear, we then "travel back home" to our life contexts, bringing with us changed hearts and minds. The vehicle that can bring us home is discerning the principles and significance of what we have encountered in the Bible and then finding specific ways to apply God's truth to our lives.

Using this word picture, let's look at five main stages for doing a more thorough study of a Bible passage.

Stage 1: Pack Your Bags One of the most important aspects of a trip is what happens before the trip. Preparation and packing can make all the difference.

Choose a Passage: Just as when traveling you need to start out with a destination in mind, when studying the Bible you must first decide what specific passage you will address. Be sure to choose a passage that you can cover well in your designated period of time. For instance, if you are doing a detailed study of a passage from one of Paul's letters, four to seven verses (e.g., 2Co 2:14-17) are plenty to tackle in one session. If you have a longer passage you want to study (e.g., all of Romans 8), break it down into smaller segments and study the whole of the chapter over an extended period of time. Trying to study too large a section all at once will lead to frustration. However, if you are studying a section of biblical narrative, your passage can be longer since narratives do not depend on detailed argumentation.

As you attempt to do Bible study over the coming weeks, you will get a sense of how much ground you can cover in a week's time. Over time you will become more familiar with your tools and processes, allowing you to study more efficiently. But remember, just as you would not want to hurry past important historical sites just to get to the end of a trip, the key in Bible study is not speed but rather an approach that takes you deeper into God's Word and transforms you in the process.

Gather Your Tools: In addition to this study Bible, which includes a variety of features to take you deeper into the Word, it helps to have several types of translation on hand. Some translations are more "formal," following the patterns of the original words as closely as possible, even if the results are not always readily understandable to modern readers. Others are more "functional," trying to communicate the author's meaning even if that means departing from the exact pattern of words in the passage. Still other translations attempt to strike a balance between these two approaches, which is the tactic taken in the HCSB.

A strong Bible dictionary has much to offer, including an outline and introduction to each book of the Bible, plus entries on people, places, culture, theological issues, and key events mentioned in the Bible. It is also helpful to have dictionaries specifically covering the original languages of the Old and New Testaments. These show you the range of possible meanings a given word can have. There are many Bible study software programs available. Some may be had for free on the Internet. While the Internet can be an amazing resource for Bible study, not all Web sites are created equal. Therefore, do your best to assess the quality of the site. You might ask a minister or mature Christian to help you discern a site's trustworthiness. Also, while free Internet sites can be helpful, they often use outdated tools that are public domain. These tools still have value but need to be used in conjunction with tools based on recent study by evangelical scholars.

The best Bible commentaries provide a treasure trove of information, including an introduction to the book, an outline of the book, theological reflection, deep word studies, thoughtful interpretive insights, and application. Ask a trusted Christian or minister to help you evaluate the usefulness, trustworthiness, and accessibility of the commentaries that are available.

Pray: Once you have chosen your passage and gathered your tools, begin your time of study with prayer. You might begin by praying something like this: Lord, thank You for Your Word. I pray that You will give me the discipline to study this passage carefully. Please also give me the discernment to understand the details. Lord, please guide me by Your Spirit and lead me into Your truth. I am committed to applying what I find here, and I pray that You will change me by Your Word, bringing my life in line with Your will and ways of thinking. Thank You for this time.

Stage 2: Read the Maps Maps are vital to navigation—you must know where you are to understand how to get to where you want to go. In Bible study, knowledge of the historical and literary contexts provides orientation. Like maps, they give us the layout of the biblical "neighborhood." The historical context can give us a clearer backdrop in terms of historical events or cultural dynamics of the time, and the literary context can help us understand how these words function, given where the author placed them in the book.

The Broad Historical Context of the Book: In studying the historical context of a book, you want to understand the following facts:

- Who authored the book?
- Who were the original recipients?
- Where were the author and the recipients located?
- When was the book written?
- What is the purpose of the book?

You can find this kind of information in the book introductions in this study Bible. You can also find it in Bible dictionaries, commentaries, and Bible handbooks. The Holman Bible Handbook , for instance, gives general background information on the city of Philippi and the church there, including the following: The Letter to the Philippians was written while the apostle Paul was in prison probably from Rome about A.D. 62, though we cannot know for sure. Other possible locations for the writing of the letter could have been Ephesus or Caesarea (sometime between A.D. 54 and 62).

The Literary Genre: Another aspect of the context of a passage has to do with "genre," or the kind of literature with which we are dealing. The kind of literature of a given passage will determine how we approach the text and what kind of questions we might ask of it. If I pick up a novel, I understand that its purpose is not primarily to communicate historical facts. If, however, I read a book detailing the history of America, the purpose is to communicate and interpret historical facts.

Different parts of the Bible reflect different literary genres and, therefore, are intended to accomplish different purposes and must be interpreted by different rules. Our goal with each is to understand what God intends to communicate through the human author, but to do so we must understand how the author intended his writing to communicate with his original audience.

This brings us to vital questions we must ask of the text. For narrative literature, for instance, we want to ask, "What is the significance of this part of the story? How does it fit into the grand story of God in the Scriptures?" The biblical authors had much material from which to choose, and they chose to include the stories they did for a reason.

Psalms and other poetic literature, on the other hand, often communicate emotions expressed in worship. These might include celebration, thanksgiving, sadness, reflection, or anger. Therefore, an important interpretive key when studying a psalm is to ask, "What is the emotion expressed?" and "How is the emotion being expressed?" The Psalms often use figurative language, for instance.

Finally, proverbs are meant to communicate general guidelines for living. Consider the following passage from Proverbs 4:10-12:

> Listen, my son. Accept my words, and you will live many years. I am teaching you the way of wisdom; I am guiding you on straight paths. When you walk, your steps will not be hindered; when you run, you will not stumble.

Some mistakenly take this passage as a promise that an obedient child will be guaranteed a long life free of impediments. There are many wonderful promises in Scripture that are intended to give comfort and hope to God's people, but neither the human author nor the Divine Author intended for proverbs to be promises. This proverb is saying, in effect, that the best way for a child to live is by seeking out wisdom; this is the path of success in life, and, generally speaking, will lead to a long and effective life.

The Immediate Context of the Passage: By the immediate literary context we mean how the passage under consideration fits into the overall development of the book. Words need a context to have a specific meaning. Think about the English word "hand." It has more than a dozen possible meanings. It can be used for your physical hand, "give him a hand" (meaning either "applause" or "help"), the hand of a clock, etc. Yet, you normally have no trouble following the meaning of the word in specific contexts. Someone might say, "I cut my hand with a knife," and you know they are not talking about the "hand" on a wall clock.

In the same way, the words of the Bible often could be understood to mean different things, but the authors used their words to communicate in specific contexts. So reading a Bible passage in its correct context is foundational for understanding what a given word means. One way to identify the context is to track the themes in a section of Scripture. Write in the margins the main topics covered, and constantly reflect on these as you progress through the passage.

When we consider the immediate context in a narrative passage, we are looking for any aspect of a historical situation indicated by the passage itself. What do we mean by the immediate historical situation? In studying the story of Elijah and the prophets of Baal in 1 Kings 18:1-46, for example, the immediate historical situation has to do with Ahab as king of Israel, a time of punishing drought, Elijah the prophet, and the location of Mount Carmel. The historical situation of the book as a whole, on the other hand, would have to do with when and why 1 Kings was written and the fact that the book spans from the reign of Solomon down through the death of the wicked king Ahab.

Stage 3: Read the Road Signs Carefully When you travel, it is critical that you read the road signs well. As we study the Bible, there are many clues to the author's intentions built right into any given passage. So, one important aspect of Bible study is slowing down and reading the passage carefully.

When you are driving down a road at 65 miles per hour, how many roadside details do you catch? Not many. You might be able to see interesting objects on roadside, but they blur and then fade quickly as you speed by.

Many of us are "drive by" readers of Scripture, never slowing down to explore and enjoy the details of God's Word; consequently there is much that we miss in the process. Choose to slow down and read with care. Read a passage repeatedly if you sense you've yet to catch all the elements. One way to ensure that you are reading slowly enough to catch the details is to underline key phrases or words, or write notes in the margin.

Read the Passage in Several Translations: Doing a comparison of modern English Bible translations can be a helpful way to highlight key interpretive issues in a passage. Why? Because translation, by its nature, requires interpretation. With almost any verse of Scripture, translators have to choose, given the context and grammatical constructions, between various possible word meanings. Therefore, the differences reflected in the various translations represent various interpretations of the passage.

Look for Key Dynamics in the Passage: Now read through your chosen passage again in your main translation. Look for the features listed below and circle, underline, or highlight them, perhaps using different color pens. This exercise will give you a much clearer picture of the passage. Common features to look for include:

- Subject—who or what is the passage focusing on?
- Verb—is it a statement, an exhortation, a question or answer, an action, explanation, or illustration?
- Conjunctions—and, but, or, so, for, both . . . and, neither . . . nor, either . . . or, not only . . . but also
- Time—after, before, when, while, since, until
- Cause—because, since, in order that, so that
- Condition—if, in case, even if, unless
- Concession—although, even though, whereas
- Means—how is the action accomplished?
- Agent—who does the action?
- Result—what is accomplished?
- Purpose—why was the action done?

When reading narrative material, identify the following:

- Introduction and Conclusion—the author often tips off the intended impact of a narrative in his introduction and conclusion
- Setting—details on place, time (historical era and duration of the event), and social situation (who is involved?)
- Character Information—identify the protagonist and antagonist, note prevailing emotions and actions, and pay close attention to dialogue and character descriptions
- Narrative Dynamics—identify the conflict, its escalation, and eventual resolution
- Teaching Forms and Figures of Speech—look for the presence of allusions to or quotations of the Old Testament, plus figures of speech such as hyperbole, simile, metaphor, riddle, pun, parable, object lesson, illustration, parabolic act, paradox, irony, amen formula, and prophecy

Don’t get overwhelmed with searching for these dynamics. Take a few at a time, reading the passage with those dynamics in mind. Then read again, looking for a few more of the dynamics listed above. “Filtering” the passage in this way will give you great insight into the passage. If when reading the passage you see just two or three features that you had not seen before, you are making progress!

Make a Provisional Outline of the Passage: The outline is provisional since you still have a good bit of study to do on the passage. However, it is helpful to make a tentative outline at this point to begin to assess the general structure of the passage.

Stage 4: Learn to Speak Like a Local One of the most interesting aspects of traveling has to do with learning how people in different places use words. For instance, the German phrase "Guten Tag" literally means "good day," yet it is normally used as a greeting only in the afternoon, and thus is equivalent to an English speaker saying, "good afternoon."

To understand the biblical text, we need to have an accurate understanding of how words are used. Word meanings are determined by the contexts in which they are used. When studying a word in the biblical text we want to (a) know the possible meanings for that word in the ancient world, (b) determine, based on the context, which meaning the author most likely intended, and (c) see whether insight on an author's use can be gained by noting how the same word is used elsewhere in the Bible.

Choose Key Words to Study: Identify key words in the passage. These may be terms that are repeated, terms that are unclear or puzzling, or terms that seem to be theologically important.

Consult Word Study Tools: Get at the Hebrew or Greek words behind our English translations by using an exhaustive concordance, Bible software programs, or various types of expository dictionaries. Once you have accessed the range of possible meanings for the Hebrew or Greek word, consider those possible meanings in the context of the passage you are studying. This gives you a look at the various nuances of the Greek or Hebrew word behind the translation you are using, deepening your understanding of what the biblical author might have been trying to say.

This is also an excellent point in your Bible study to consult good commentaries. They will discuss the key words of the passage against the backdrop of literary context, background issues, the author's theology, and other factors.

Consult a Concordance: You can use a concordance to look for other uses of the same Hebrew or Greek term you are studying. Identify places where the word is used similarly to the way it is used in the passage you are studying. Such cross references can provide you with greater understanding of the passage on which you are doing your word studies.

Word studies can be very helpful, but they can also be abused, and there are word study fallacies we want to avoid. A few of the most common fallacies include:

- Cross reference fallacy—Insisting that a word as used in one passage must be used the same way in another passage, simply because the same word is being used.
- Root fallacy—Insisting that a word's true meaning is tied to its root meanings, or the parts of the word. But this is not always how language works.
- Multiple meanings fallacy—Insisting that all the possible meanings of a word occur in a given use in a particular passage. Most of the time, an author had a particular meaning in mind.

Stage 5: Head Home As with any trip, there comes a time to travel home. Bible study is analogous in that applying the Bible to our lives is "bringing it home." We were never meant to read and study the Bible simply to learn a list of facts. Rather, we were meant to experience transformation by the Word (Rm 12:1-2), and transformation takes place as we embrace the Word, applying it to our everyday lives. Commenting on the command to love one's neighbor, James says: What good is it, my brothers, if someone says he has faith but does not have works? Can his faith save him? If a brother or sister is without clothes and lacks daily food and one of you says to them, "Go in peace, keep warm, and eat well," but you don't give them what the body needs, what good is it? In the same way faith, if it doesn't have works, is dead by itself (Jms 2:14-17).

Faith without deeds, without application, is dead. James was addressing those who had disconnected belief in the Christian life from active obedience.

At times the application may be a right belief, the adjusting of one's understanding to fit what God says is true. At other times, application might be to worship God. Often application will involve active obedience that puts into practice what has been learned. But the movement from understanding the Word to its application in obedience is nonnegotiable from the Bible's standpoint.

How then can we apply the things we learn in the Bible to our lives in responsible ways?

Identify the main points and principles of the passage: What truth claims is the Scripture passage making? Identify them. Search for the principles as well. A principle is a "universal truth" that applies in all places at all times.

Identify how these address original and modern contexts: Notice how the principle is applied to the situation dealt with in your passage and think through parallel situations in your life.

Make specific applications to your life: Work at moving beyond vague generalities like, "I need to love people more!" Write down who you need to love and how you need to express love to them. As noted above, applications might be an action to do (e.g., "wash the dishes"). Yet, they could also involve the change of a belief, or even to respond to God's Word by worshiping Him.

A Simple Plan I hope you have enjoyed the "trip" as we have discussed how to read and study the Bible more effectively. Begin your new commitment with a definite reading plan. Commit to taking 15-30 minutes per day, and read through the Bible over the next year or two. Take one or two longer blocks of time per week to study the Bible in greater depth.

Bible reading and study can give us great joy and fulfillment as we open our lives to God's Word. May you be blessed as you pursue being a "Word person" led by the Spirit, transformed by the Scriptures, and effective in advancing God's agendas in the world.

BIBLE READING PLANS

The HCSB Study Bible offers two plans for reading through the Bible. The first plan developed by Heather Collins Grattan is structured to take a person through the Bible in three years. This plan may appeal to busy persons who have a limited amount of time each day to read the Scriptures. Reading a smaller portion each day may enable the person to spend more time reading, studying, and meditating on the passage for the day.

The second plan was developed by the late Robert Murray M'Cheyne. This plan takes the reader to four portions of Scripture each day from various parts of the Bible. Following this plan, a person will read through the Old Testament once and the New Testament twice within a year.

In reading and studying the Bible, we draw on the same knowledge, skills, and competencies we use in reading other documents. However, with the Bible there is an added dimension. The Bible was written by human beings but the ultimate Author who worked through a variety of human authors is God Himself. In what may have been his last written words to Timothy, Paul reminded his protégé that all Scripture is inspired by God. For this reason, John Wesley said that Scripture can only be understood with the help of the Spirit who inspired these 66 books. Therefore, as believers come to read and study Scripture, they need to remember the Author of Scripture and ask for the Spirit's help in understanding what they read.

As you read the Scriptures daily, you will find help in George Guthrie's article, "How to Read and Study the Bible" on pp. xlvii-lv of the HCSB Study Bible.

- Come to the Bible expecting to grow. It is like both milk (1Pt 2:2) and solid food (Hb 5:14) providing nourishment for both the young and those more mature.
- Come to the Bible for understanding and direction. It is like a counselor (Ps 119:24) and provides light for your journey (Ps 119:105,130).
- Come to the Bible for correction and purification. It is like:
- a mirror in which the believer sees himself and the changes that God requires,
- fire and a hammer (Jr 23:29),

- a scalpel by which God performs spiritual surgery on the heart (Hb 4:12),
- water that washes and purifies (Eph 5:26)
- Come to the Bible for pleasure. God's Word is like honey (Ps 19:9; | 119:103).

Come daily to the Bible with these attitudes and expectations, and you will be changed. This is God's multifaceted instrument for conforming you to the image of His Son.

Introduction to the Holman Christian Standard Bible®

The Bible is God's revelation to man. It is the only book that gives us accurate information about God, man's need, and God's provision for that need. It provides us with guidance for life and tells us how to receive eternal life. The Bible can do these things because it is God's inspired Word, inerrant in the original manuscripts.

The Bible describes God's dealings with the ancient Jewish people and the early Christian church. It tells us about the great gift of God's Son, Jesus Christ, who fulfilled Jewish prophecies of the Messiah. It tells us about the salvation He accomplished through His death on the cross, His triumph over death in the resurrection, and His promised return to earth. It is the only book that gives us reliable information about the future, about what will happen to us when we die, and about where history is headed.

Bible translation is both a science and an art. It is a bridge that brings God's Word from the ancient world to the world today. In dependence on God to accomplish this sacred task, Holman Bible Publishers presents the Holman Christian Standard Bible, an English translation of God's Word.

Textual base of the HCSB

The textual base for the New Testament [NT] is the Nestle-Aland Novum Testamentum Graece, 27th edition, and the United Bible Societies' Greek New Testament, 4th corrected edition. The text for the Old Testament [OT] is the Biblia Hebraica Stuttgartensia, 5th edition.

Where there are significant differences among Hebrew [Hb] and Aramaic [Aram] manuscripts of the OT or among Greek [Gk] manuscripts of the NT, the translators have followed what they believe is the original reading and have indicated the main alternative(s) in footnotes. The HCSB uses the traditional verse divisions found in most Protestant Bibles.

Goals of this translation

- to provide English-speaking people across the world with an accurate, readable Bible in contemporary English
- to equip serious Bible students with an accurate translation for personal study, private devotions, and memorization
- to give those who love God's Word a text that has numerous reader helps, is visually attractive on the page, and is appealing when heard
- to affirm the authority of Scripture as God's Word and to champion its absolute truth against social or cultural agendas that would compromise its accuracy
- to continue making improvements to the translation in each printing

The name Holman Christian Standard Bible captures these goals: Holman Bible Publishers presents a Bible translation, for Christian and English-speaking communities, which will be a standard in Bible translations for years to come.

Why is there a need for another English translation of the Bible?

There are several good reasons why Holman Bible publishers invested its resources in a modern language translation of the Bible:

1. Each generation needs a fresh translation of the Bible in its own language.

The Bible is the world's most important book, confronting each individual and each culture with issues that affect life, both now and forever. Since each new generation must be introduced to God's Word in its own language, there will always be a need for new translations such as the HCSB. The majority of Bible translations on the market today are revisions of translations from previous generations. The HCSB is a new translation for today's generation.

1. English, one of the world's greatest languages, is rapidly changing, and Bible translations must keep in step with those changes.

English is the first truly global language in history. It is the language of education, business, medicine, travel, research, and the Internet. More than 1.3 billion people around the world speak or read English as a primary or secondary language. The HCSB seeks to serve many of those people with a translation they can easily use and understand.

English is also the world's most rapidly changing language. The HCSB seeks to reflect recent changes in English by using modern punctuation, formatting, and vocabulary, while avoiding slang, regionalisms, or changes made specifically for the sake of political or social agendas. Modern linguistic and semantic advances have been incorporated into the HCSB, including modern grammar.

1. Rapid advances in biblical research provide new data for Bible translators.

This has been called the "information age," a term that accurately describes the field of biblical research. Never before in history has there been as much information about the Bible as there is today—from archaeological discoveries to analysis of ancient manuscripts to years of study and statistical research on individual Bible books. Translations made as recently as the late 20th century do not reflect many of these advances in biblical research. The HCSB translators have taken into consideration as much of this new data as possible.

1. Advances in computer technology have opened a new door for Bible translation.

The HCSB has used computer technology and telecommunications in its creation perhaps more than any Bible translation in history. Electronic mail was used daily and sometimes hourly for communication and transmission of manuscripts. An advanced Bible software program, Accordance®, was used to create and revise the translation at each step in its production. A developmental copy of the translation itself was used within Accordance to facilitate crosschecking during the translation process—something never done before with a Bible translation.

Translation philosophy of the HCSB

Most discussions of Bible translations speak of two opposite approaches: formal equivalence and dynamic equivalence. Although this terminology is meaningful, Bible translations cannot be neatly sorted into these two categories any more than people can be neatly sorted into two categories according to height or weight. Holman Bible Publishers is convinced there is room for another category of translation philosophy that capitalizes on the strengths of the other two.

1. Formal Equivalence

Often called "word-for-word" (or "literal") translation, the principle of formal equivalence seeks as nearly as possible to preserve the structure of the original language. It seeks to represent each word of the original text with an exact equivalent word in the translation so that the reader can see word for word what the original human author wrote. The merits of this approach include its consistency with the conviction that the Holy Spirit did inspire the very words of Scripture in the original manuscripts. It also provides the English Bible student some access to the structure of the text in the original language. Formal equivalence can achieve accuracy to the degree that English has an exact equivalent for each word and that the grammatical patterns of the original language can be reproduced in understandable English. However, it can sometimes result in awkward, if not incomprehensible, English or in a misunderstanding of the author's intent. The literal rendering of ancient idioms is especially difficult.

1. Dynamic or Functional Equivalence

Often called "thought-for-thought" translation, the principle of dynamic equivalence rejects as misguided the desire to preserve the structure of the original language. It proceeds by distinguishing the meaning of a text from its form and then translating the meaning so that it makes the same impact on modern readers that the ancient text made on its original readers. Strengths of this approach include a high degree of clarity and readability, especially in places where the original is difficult to render word for word. It also acknowledges that accurate and effective translation requires interpretation. However, the meaning of a text cannot always be neatly separated from its form, nor can it always be precisely determined. A biblical author may have intended multiple meanings. In striving for readability, dynamic equivalence also sometimes overlooks some of the less prominent elements of meaning. Furthermore, lack of formal correspondence to the original makes it difficult to verify accuracy and thus can affect the usefulness of the translation for in-depth Bible study.

1. Optimal Equivalence

In practice, translations are seldom if ever purely formal or dynamic but favor one theory of Bible translation or the other to varying degrees. Optimal equivalence as a translation philosophy recognizes that form cannot be neatly separated from meaning and should not be changed (for example, nouns to verbs or third person "they" to second person "you") unless comprehension demands it. The primary goal of translation is to convey the sense of the original with as much clarity as the original text and the translation language permit. Optimal equivalence appreciates the goals of formal equivalence but also recognizes its limitations. Optimal equivalence starts with an exhaustive analysis of the text at every level (word, phrase, clause, sentence, discourse) in the original language to determine its original meaning and intention (or purpose). Then relying on the latest and best language tools and experts, the nearest corresponding semantic and linguistic equivalents are used to convey as much of the information and intention of the original text with as much clarity and readability as possible. This process assures the maximum transfer of both the words and thoughts contained in the original. The HCSB uses optimal equivalence as its translation philosophy. When a literal translation meets these criteria, it is used. When clarity and readability demand an idiomatic translation, the reader can still access the form of the original text by means of a footnote with the abbreviation "Lit."

The gender language policy in Bible translation Some people today ignore the Bible's teachings on distinctive roles of men and women in family and church and have an agenda to eliminate those distinctions in every arena of life. These people have begun a program to engineer the removal of a perceived male bias in the English language. The targets of this program have been such traditional linguistic practices as the generic use of "man" or "men" as well as "he," "him," and "his."

A group of Bible scholars, translators, and other evangelical leaders met in 1997 to respond to this issue as it affects Bible translation. This group produced the "Guidelines for Translation of Gender-Related Language in Scripture"

(adopted May 27, 1997 and revised Sept. 9, 1997). The HCSB was produced in accordance with these guidelines.

The goal of the translators has not been to promote a cultural ideology but to faithfully translate the Bible. While the HCSB avoids using “man” or “he” unnecessarily, the translation does not restructure sentences to avoid them when they are in the text. For example, the translators have not changed “him” to “you” or to “them,” neither have they avoided other masculine words such as “father” or “son” by translating them in generic terms such as “parent” or “child.”

History of the HCSB

After several years of preliminary development, Holman Bible Publishers, the oldest Bible publisher in America, assembled an international, interdenominational team of 100 scholars, editors, stylists, and proofreaders, all of whom were committed to biblical inerrancy. Outside consultants and reviewers contributed valuable suggestions from their areas of expertise. An executive team then edited, polished, and reviewed the final manuscripts.

Traditional features found in the HCSB

In keeping with a long line of Bible publications, the HCSB has retained a number of features found in traditional Bibles:

1. Traditional theological vocabulary (such as justification, sanctification, redemption, etc.) has been retained since such terms have no translation equivalent that adequately communicates their exact meaning.
2. Traditional spellings of names and places found in most Bibles have been used to make the HCSB compatible with most Bible study tools.
3. Some editions of the HCSB will print the words of Christ in red letters to help readers easily locate the spoken words of the Lord Jesus Christ.
4. Nouns and personal pronouns that clearly refer to any person of the Trinity are capitalized.
5. Descriptive headings, printed above each section of Scripture, help readers quickly identify the contents of that section.
6. Two common forms of punctuation are used in the HCSB to help with clarity and ease of reading: an em dash (—) is used to indicate sudden breaks in thought or to help clarify long or difficult sentences. Parentheses are used infrequently to indicate words that are parenthetical in the original languages.

How certain names and terms are translated

1. The names of God

The HCSB OT consistently translates the Hebrew names for God as follows:

HCSB English:	Hebrew original:

God Elohim

Lord YHWH (Yahweh)

Lord	Adonai
Lord God	Adonai Yahweh

Lord of Hosts Yahweh Sabaoth

God Almighty El Shaddai

However, the HCSB OT uses Yahweh, the personal name of God in Hebrew, when a biblical text emphasizes Yahweh as a name: “His name is Yahweh” (Ps 68:4). Yahweh is also used in places of His self-identification as in “I am Yahweh” (Is 42:8). Yahweh is used more often in the HCSB than in most Bible translations because the word Lord in English is a title of God and does not accurately convey to modern readers the emphasis on God’s personal name in the original Hebrew.

1. The uses of Christ and Messiah

The HCSB translates the Greek word Christos (“anointed one”) as either “Christ” or “Messiah” based on its use in different NT contexts. The first use of “Messiah” in each chapter is also marked with a bullet referring readers to the Bullet Note at the back of most editions.

1. Place names

In the original text of the Bible, particularly in the OT, a number of well-known places have names different from the ones familiar to contemporary readers. For example, “the Euphrates” often appears in the original text simply as “the River.” In cases like this, the HCSB uses the modern name, “the Euphrates River,” in the text without a footnote.

1. Substitution of words in sentences

A literal translation of the biblical text sometimes violates standard rules of English grammar, such as the agreement of subject and verb or person and number. In order to conform to standard usage, the HCSB has often made these kinds of grammatical constructions agree in English without footnotes.

In addition, the Greek or Hebrew texts sometimes seem redundant or ambiguous by repeating nouns where modern writing substitutes pronouns or by using pronouns where we would supply nouns for clarity and good style. When a literal translation of the original would make the English unclear, the HCSB sometimes changes a pronoun to its corresponding noun or a noun to its corresponding pronoun without a footnote. For example, Jn 1:42 reads: “And he brought Simon to Jesus . . .” The original Greek of this sentence reads: “And he brought him to Jesus.”

Special formatting features The HCSB has several distinctive formatting features:

1. OT passages quoted in the NT are set in boldface type. OT quotes consisting of two or more lines are block-indented.
2. In dialogue, a new paragraph is used for each new speaker as in most modern publications.
3. Many passages, such as 1Co 13, have been formatted as dynamic prose (separate block-indented lines like poetry) for ease in reading and comprehension. Special block-indented formatting has also been used extensively in both the OT and NT to increase readability and clarity in lists, series, genealogies, and other parallel or repetitive texts.
4. Almost every Bible breaks lines in poetry using automatic typesetting programs with the result that words are haphazardly turned over to the next line. In the HCSB, special attention has been given to break every line in poetry and dynamic prose so that awkward or unsightly word wraps are avoided and complete units of thought turn over to the next line. The result is a Bible page that is much more readable and pleasing to the eye.
5. Certain foreign, geographical, cultural, or ancient words are preceded by a superscripted bullet (• Abba) at their first occurrence in each chapter. These words are listed in alphabetical order at the back of the Bible under the heading HCSB Bullet Notes.
6. Italics are used in the text for a transliteration of Greek and Hebrew words ("Hosanna!" in Jn 12:13) and in footnotes for direct quotations from the biblical text and for words in the original languages (the footnote at Jn 1:1 reads: "The Word (Gk Logos) is a title for Jesus . . .").
7. Since the majority of English readers do not need to have numbers and fractions spelled out in the text, the HCSB uses a similar style to that of modern newspapers in using Arabic numerals for the numbers 10 and above and in fractions, except in a few cases, such as when a number begins a sentence.

Footnotes Footnotes are used to show readers how the original biblical language has been understood in the HCSB.

1. OT Textual Footnotes

OT textual notes show important differences among Hebrew manuscripts and among ancient OT versions, such as the Septuagint and the Vulgate. See the list of abbreviations on page xii for a list of other ancient versions used.

Some OT textual notes (like NT textual notes) give only an alternate textual reading. However, other OT textual notes also give the support for the reading chosen by the editors as well as for the alternate textual reading. For example, the HCSB text of Ps 12:7 reads: You will protect usa from this generation forever.

The textual footnote for this verse reads: a 12:7 Some Hb mss, LXX; other Hb mss read him The textual note in this example means that there are two different readings found in the Hebrew manuscripts: some manuscripts read us and others read him. The HCSB translators chose the reading us, which is also found in the Septuagint (LXX), and placed the other Hebrew reading him in the footnote.

Two other kinds of OT textual notes are:

Alt Hb tradition reads ____	a variation given by scribes in the Hebrew manuscript tradition (known as Kethiv / Qere readings)

Hb uncertain	when it is uncertain what the original Hebrew text was

1. NT Textual Footnotes

NT textual notes indicate significant differences among Greek manuscripts (mss) and are normally indicated in one of three ways:

Other mss read _____

Other mss add _____

Other mss omit _____

In the NT, some textual footnotes that use the word “add” or “omit” also have large square brackets before and after the corresponding verses in the biblical text. Examples of this use of square brackets are Mk 16:9-20, Jn 5:3-4, and Jn 7:53-8:11.

1. Other Kinds of Footnotes

Lit _____	a more literal rendering in English of the Hebrew, Aramaic, or Greek text
Or _____	an alternate or less likely English translation of the same Hebrew, Aramaic, or Greek text =	an abbreviation for “it means” or “it is equivalent to”
Hb, Aram, Gk	the actual Hebrew, Aramaic, or Greek word is given using equivalent English letters

Hb obscure	the existing Hebrew text is especially difficult to translate
emend(ed) to _____	the original Hebrew text is so difficult to translate that competent scholars have conjectured or inferred a restoration of the original text based on the context, probable root meanings of the words, and uses in comparative languages

In some editions of the HCSB, additional footnotes clarify the meaning of certain biblical texts or explain biblical history, persons, customs, places, activities, and measurements. Cross-references are given for parallel passages or passages with similar wording, and in the NT, for passages quoted from the OT.

PLAN OF SALVATION

What do you understand it takes for a person to go to heaven?
Consider how the Bible answers this question: It's a matter of FAITH:
F is for FORGIVENESS

We cannot have eternal life and heaven without God's forgiveness.
—Read Ephesians 1:7a

A is for AVAILABLE Forgiveness is available. It is—• Available for all —Read John 3:16
• But not automatic —Read Matthew 7:21a
I is for IMPOSSIBLE
It is impossible for God to allow sin into heaven.
• Because of who He is: God is loving and just His judgment is against sin —Read James 2:13a
• Because of who we are:
Every person is a sinner —Read Romans 3:23
But how can a sinful person enter heaven, when God allows no sin?
T is for TURN
Turn means to repent.
• Turn from something—sin and self —Read Luke 13:3b
• Turn to Someone; trust Christ only —Read Romans 10:9
H is for HEAVEN
Heaven is eternal life.
• Here —Read John 10:10b
• Hereafter —Read John 14:3
How can a person have God's forgiveness, heaven and eternal life, and Jesus as personal Savior and Lord? By trusting in Christ and asking Him for forgiveness. Take the step of faith described by another meaning of FAITH: Forsaking All, I Trust Him.
Prayer:
Lord Jesus, I know I am a sinner and have displeased You in many ways. I believe You died for my sin and only through faith in Your death and resurrection can I be forgiven.
I want to turn from my sin and ask You to come into my life as my Savior and Lord. From this day on, I will follow You by living a life that pleases You.

Thank You, Lord Jesus, for saving me. Amen.

After you have received Jesus Christ into your life, tell a Christian friend about this important decision you have made. Follow Christ in believer's baptism and church membership. Grow in your faith and enjoy new friends in Christ by becoming part of His church. There, you'll find others who will love and support you.

HCSB Bullet Notes

The HCSB Bullet Notes are one of the unique features of the Holman Christian Standard Bible®. These notes explain frequently used biblical words or terms. These "bullet" words (for example: •abyss) are marked with a bullet only on their first occurrence in a chapter of the biblical text. Other frequently used words, like •gate, are marked with bullets only where the use of the word fits the definitions given below. A few words in footnotes, like •acrostic, also have a bullet.

Abaddon A Hebrew word for either the grave or the realm of the dead

Abba The Aramaic word for father

abyss The bottomless pit or the depths (of the sea); it is the prison for Satan and the demons.

acrostic A device in Hebrew poetry in which each verse begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet advocate The Greek word parakletos means one called alongside to help, counsel, or protect; it is used of the Holy Spirit in Jn and in 1Jn.

Almighty The Hebrew word is El Shaddai; El means God, but the meaning of Shaddai is disputed; traditionally it is translated "Almighty."

Alpha and Omega The first and last letters of the Greek alphabet; it is used to refer to God the Father in Rv 1:8 and 21:6 and to Jesus, God the Son, in Rv 22:13.

Amen The transliteration of a Hebrew word signifying that something is certain, valid, truthful, or faithful; it is often used at the end of biblical songs, hymns, and prayers.

annihilate(d) During periods of war in Canaan and its neighboring countries, this was the destruction of a city, its inhabitants, and their possessions, including livestock.

Arabah The section of the Great Rift in Palestine, extending from the Jordan Valley and the Dead Sea to the Gulf of Aqabah; the Hebrew word can also be translated as "plain," referring to any plain or to any part of the Arabah.

Asaph A musician appointed by David to oversee the music used in worship at the Temple; 12 psalms are attributed to Asaph.

Asherah(s)/Asherah pole(s) A Canaanite fertility goddess who was the mother of the god Baal; also the wooden poles associated with the worship of her Ashtoreth(s) A Canaanite goddess of fertility, love, and war, who was the daughter of Asherah and consort of Baal; the plural form of her name in Hebrew is Ashtaroth.

Asia A Roman province that is now part of modern Turkey; it did not refer to the modern continent of Asia.

asleep A term used in reference to believers who have died atone/atonement A theological term for God's provision to deal with human sin; in the OT, it primarily means purification. In some contexts forgiveness, pardon, expiation, propitiation, or reconciliation is included. The basis of atonement is substitutionary sacrifice offered in faith. The OT sacrifices were types and shadows of the great and final sacrifice of Jesus on the cross.

Baal A fertility god who was the main god of the Canaanite religion and the god of rain and thunderstorms; it is also the Hebrew word meaning "lord," "master," "owner," or "husband."

Beelzebul A term of slander, which was variously interpreted "lord of flies," "lord of dung," or "ruler of demons"

Bread of the Presence Bread that was offered in Yahweh's presence, that is, inside His house, not out on the altar (Lv 24:5-9)

burnt offering(s) Or holocaust; an offering completely burned to ashes; it was used in connection with worship, seeking God's favor, expiating sin, or averting judgment.

cause(s) the downfall of/cause(s) to sin The Greek word skandalizo has a root meaning of snare or trap but has no real English counterpart.

centurion A Roman officer who commanded about 100 soldiers

Cephas The Aramaic word for rock: it is parallel to the Greek word petros from which the English name Peter is derived.

cherub(im) A class of winged angels associated with the throne of God who function as guardians and who prevented Adam and Eve from returning to the garden of Eden chief priest(s) A group of Jewish temple officers that included the high priest, captain of the temple, temple overseers, and treasurers clean When something is clean, it is holy or acceptable to God. When it is unclean, it is unholy (such as an unclean spirit). The term can be used in a ritual sense to apply to moral standards for living.

company Or cohort; a Roman military unit that numbered as many as 600 men completely destroy During periods of war in Canaan and its neighboring countries, this was the destruction of a city, its inhabitants, and their possessions, including livestock.

Counselor The Greek word parakletos means one called alongside to help, counsel, or protect; it is used of the Holy Spirit in Jn and 1Jn.

cubit(s) An OT measurement of distance that equaled about 18 inches

Cush/Cushite The lands of the Nile in southern Egypt, including Nubia and Northern Sudan; also the people who lived in that region

Decapolis Originally, it referred to a federation of 10 Gentile towns east of the Jordan River.

denarius/denarii A small silver Roman coin, which was equal to a day's wage for a common laborer divination An attempt to foresee future events or discover hidden knowledge by means of physical objects such as water, arrows, flying birds, or animal livers drink offering(s) An offering of a specified amount of wine or beer given along with animal sacrifices; it was poured over the sacrifice before it was burned.

engaged Jewish engagement was a binding agreement that could only be broken by divorce.

ephod A vest-like garment extending below the waist and worn under the breastpiece; it was used by both the priests and the high priest.

everyone Literally sons of man or sons of Adam family redeemer A family member who had certain obligations of marriage, redeeming an estate, and punishment of a wrongdoer fear(s) God or the LORD/fear of the Lord No single English word conveys every aspect of the word fear in this phrase. The meaning includes worshipful submission, reverential awe, and obedient respect to the covenant-keeping God of Israel.

firstfruits The agricultural products harvested first and given to God as an offering with more products to come in later harvests; it is also used as a metaphor for the first people to come to faith or for Jesus, the first person to rise from the dead, or for the Spirit who is given to believers as the first portion (or down payment) of our salvation with more to come in eternity.

fellowship sacrifice(s)/or offering(s) An animal offering was given to maintain and strengthen a person's relationship with God. It was not required as a remedy for impurity or sin but was an expression of thanksgiving for various blessings. An important function of this sacrifice was to provide meat for the priests and the participants in the sacrifice; also called the peace offering or the sacrifice of well-being.

gate(s) The center for community discussions, political meetings, and trying of court cases

Gittith Perhaps an instrument, musical term, tune from Gath, or song for the grape harvest

God Almighty The Hebrew word is El Shaddai; El means God, but the meaning of Shaddai is disputed; traditionally it is translated "Almighty."

grain offering(s) An offering given along with animal sacrifices or given by itself; a portion was burnt and the priests and participant ate the remainder.

guilt/guilty The liability to be punished for a fault, a sin, an act, or an omission unless there is forgiveness or atonement; the term normally concerns an objective fact, not a subjective feeling.

Hades The Greek word for the place of the dead; it corresponds to the Hebrew word Sheol.

Hallelujah! Or Praise the LORD!; it literally means Praise Yah! (a shortened form of Yahweh).

headquarters The Latin word Praetorium was used by Greek writers for the residence of the Roman governor; it may also refer to military headquarters, the imperial court, or the emperor's guard.

Hebrew Or Aramaic; the translation of this word is debated since some claim Aramaic was commonly spoken in Palestine during NT times. More recently others claim that Hebrew was the spoken language.

hell/hellfire The Greek word is gehenna; it is the Aramaic term for the Valley of Hinnom on the south side of Jerusalem; formerly, it was a place of human sacrifice, and in NT times, a place for the burning of garbage; it is the place of final judgment for those rejecting Christ.

52-Week Scripture Memory Plan

If you were walking down an old country road at night would you prefer to be carrying a penlight, a flashlight, or a floodlight?

Most of us would choose the floodlight. We want to see the most we can with the hope of avoiding danger. The more light we have, the better off we will be on that dark road. The same is true of God's Word. As we navigate the dark roads of life, we can carry a penlight (10 or so Bible verses), a flashlight (100 or so Bible verses) or a floodlight (1,000 Bible verses). Each verse we memorize will add to the strength of the light we have to guide our steps in this world. We need those words.

Human beings live on words. Words are the fuel that sustains and shapes us as creatures made in God's image. The words we ingest and live by have great consequences in our life on earth and beyond. That's why that cunning serpent in the Garden of Eden focused on God's words to Adam and Eve when he talked with Eve.

"Did God really say, 'You can't eat from any tree in the garden'?", asked the serpent. Up until that moment God's clear word governed the first couple's choices and behavior. The serpent's question had the effect of neutralizing God's word to Adam and Eve. We know the consequences.

Fast forward. Jesus had just been baptized and is about to begin His public ministry. The tempter who came to Eden approached Jesus in the wilderness of Judea with three attractive temptations. With each temptation, Jesus responded with sacred words that had He had memorized and that shaped His thoughts, His affections, and His decision making. We know and are eternally grateful for the consequences.

Dallas Willard, who has written extensively on spiritual disciplines, says that "Bible memorization is absolutely fundamental to spiritual formation. If I had to choose between all the disciplines of the spiritual life, I would choose Bible memorization, because it is a fundamental way of filling our mind with what it needs."

Here is a 52-week plan of Bible memorization. Two Scriptures on the same topic are suggested for each week. The plan begins with some major theological truths. It then takes the participant on a chronological journey ranging from Abraham through the Hebrew prophets. The plan then moves back into a more topical orientation designed to set forth God's way of reconciling human beings to Himself, creating His body (the church), and then guiding believers into an ever-growing likeness of God's Son, Jesus Christ. Each week's passage set is also identified by a Biblical Concept. These 15 Biblical Concepts serve as a tool for categorizing the major truths presented in the Bible. All dated Bible study curriculum developed by LifeWay Christian Resources is built upon these 15 Biblical Concepts. If you are using LifeWay Bible study resources, this 52-Week memory plan supports the lessons you will be studying through the year.

The Origin, Transmission, and Canonization of the Old Testament Books

Jeremy Royal Howard

The term canon is used to describe the list of books approved for inclusion in the Bible. It stems from a Greek word meaning "rod," as in a straight stick that serves as a standard for measuring. Hence, to speak of the biblical canon is to speak of authoritative books, given by God, the teachings of which define correct belief and practice. Obviously, only books inspired by God should be received as canonical. The Bible before you includes 39 books in the Old Testament (OT). Are these the right books? Who wrote them? What were their sources of information? These questions are asked by friends and foes of biblical faith. The present essay will touch on such issues with an aim to bolster Christian confidence in the OT.

Sources for the Earliest Histories Genesis chapters 1-11 are referred to as "primeval history" because they cover events that occurred far back in the shadows of earliest time. Genesis chapters 12-50 are in turn called "patriarchal history" since they recount the lives of Israel's founding fathers from Abraham down to Joseph. From the creation of the world to Joseph's establishment in Egypt, all the events retold in Genesis occurred long before Moses was born. This is significant because the Bible and long-standing Jewish tradition assert that Moses wrote the first five books of the Bible (the Pentateuch). Most likely he composed them between 1440 and 1400 B.C. while he and the Israelites sojourned outside Canaan. Many events in Exodus through Deuteronomy coincided with Moses' lifetime, and so he authored these largely as an eyewitness. But what about Genesis? How did Moses know details about events and people that preceded him by many centuries?

Some suggest Moses knew the ancient histories because God revealed them to him supernaturally. In this scenario, God's inspiration of Moses would include God supplying Moses with historical details about far gone people, places, times, and even conversations—information Moses would not have known had God not told him. This possibility cannot be ruled out in principle since God is capable of working such miracles, but careful analysis reveals the Pentateuch nowhere hints that the historical narratives were given to Moses in this manner. For instance, Genesis never says anything like, "The word of the Lord came to Moses, saying, 'This is the history of Abraham.'" Instead, the Genesis narratives about Abraham and other historical figures read like straightforward accounts that have been handed down in the usual way: through oral and written records, with the oral records presumably originating soon after the events occurred. In this case, we would add that God superintended the transmission of the early oral and written accounts so that Moses received reliable histories worthy of inclusion in Genesis.

That Moses possibly used such sources may seem surprising at first. People often assume the Bible is the product of divine dictation, but it is more accurate to view Bible composition as having involved both supernatural and natural means, with the result that the original Bible manuscripts were fully reliable and stemmed simultaneously from divine inspiration as well as regular human approaches to writing. This model is supported by Luke 1:1-4, where Luke says he did a lot of research before writing his Gospel. A similar example is found in Numbers 21:14, where a quote is lifted from the now lost "Book of the Lord's Wars." From these examples we see that Bible writers were free to draw reliable historical data from nonbiblical sources. Thus it seems Moses was able to write about historical events that occurred long before his birth by drawing upon information found in pre-existing sources, all while God's Spirit inspired him in penning Genesis.

How did these written sources come down to Moses? For the primeval history, it is reasonable to suggest that from earliest times people passed down carefully preserved oral accounts about key events and significant persons. Later, when elementary writing arose, many of these would have been committed to writing. The transfer to written format may have happened earlier than is commonly supposed. Rudimentary alphabets are known to have circulated in the early second millennium B.C., and with the discovery of the Palermo Stone we have solid evidence that the Egyptians wrote detailed historical records (in hieroglyphic text) at least as far back as 2600 B.C., a time that predated Moses by over 1,100 years. The rich details inscribed on the Palermo Stone reach back toward the very dawn of Egypt, naming kings from 3100 B.C. and even earlier. In light of this example it is fitting to suppose that key remembrances of early human history were preserved and passed down to later generations.

That the very earliest writings have not survived to our day is no surprise, for they would have been rare to begin with and would have perished long ago as the acids of time worked their destruction. But they survived long enough to bequeath vital facts to later societies who learned to write the histories in more permanent formats. Some of the greatest modern archeological digs have uncovered ancient nonbiblical texts that resemble the biblical accounts of Noah's flood and the Tower of Babel. These texts date from 1600 B.C. and earlier, and in broad strokes they corroborate Genesis. Their points of departure from Genesis may reflect corruptions that slipped in as cultures pulled farther and farther away from knowledge of God. By contrast, people who kept alive a faith like Noah's preserved the stories uncorrupted, and it is these accounts that came down to men like Moses in later generations.

As for the patriarchal histories, it goes without saying that men such as Abraham would pass down close accounts of their remarkable experiences with God. Once God interrupted Abraham's life and promised to create a nation through him, he knew his life was unique. This heritage was repeatedly confirmed to his descendants as God kept up His habit of revealing Himself and confirming His covenant of blessing. Somewhere down the line Abraham's descendants began writing down these stories. This may have begun most earnestly with Joseph, the son of Israel who became a great political figure in Egypt. Writing was a very old art in Egypt by the time Joseph ascended to power. Having achieved a royal-like status and having married a well-placed Egyptian, Joseph and his family would have had every opportunity to learn the Egyptian writing craft. As a chief bearer of Abraham's lineage, Joseph would have been keen to preserve the family traditions and the link to the one true God.

In the years after Joseph's death, the Hebrews grew in number but came to be suppressed by the Egyptians. This suppression highlighted the need to preserve the histories. One theory holds that one of the Israelite families, possibly the Levites, became the official preservers of the old stories. If so, these materials would have been available to Moses (a Levite) when he became leader of the Hebrews. This inheritance, plus God's commission of Moses and the fact that he was raised and educated in Pharaoh's household, put Moses in a fine position to write an early history of humankind from the Hebrew perspective. A possible exception would be the portions of the creation accounts (Genesis 1-2) that could not stem from human eyewitness testimony. These accounts bear close resemblance to visionary revelations that were later given to prophets such as Isaiah and Ezekiel, as well as John in the book of Revelation. Hence, it is plausible to suggest that God gave Moses a revelatory vision for the first two chapters of Genesis. But in his writings generally, whether he was making use of oral accounts, written histories, or relying on God's Spirit for the unveiling of the creation accounts, Moses often wrote more than he knew. In other words, Moses could not plumb the depths of everything he wrote, for an Author greater than he breathed profundity and prophecy into the works of his pen.

Who Wrote the Books and When?

The OT books do not have copyright dates on them, and few of them explicitly identify their author. Nevertheless, by aid of biblical testimony and Jewish history we know the approximate time at which the books were composed. We also know in many cases who the author was or who was likely to have been chiefly responsible for a book's content. For thousands of years now scholarly people of faith have studied the matter and have concluded that the OT books and their earliest recipients have reliably portrayed the authorship and dates for the sacred writings, yet today critics say the books were written many hundreds of years after the dates and authors traditionally assigned to them. For instance, it is claimed that the Pentateuch was actually written nearly 1,000 years after Moses. In its extreme version, this theory even says men such as Moses and Abraham never existed; they and their histories were allegedly invented by priests who sought to provide hope-inspiring stories during the tough years when the Hebrews were exiled in Babylon in the sixth century B.C.

Such theories are chiefly built on the slim supports of (1) skepticism, which presupposes that God does not exist and/or that the Bible is just a human book, and (2) the occasional anachronisms scattered throughout the early portions of the OT. Skepticism is itself a faith of sorts, for the assertions that God does not exist or did not inspire the Bible if He does exist cannot be proven from the data at hand. Ironically skeptics, who insist we should form beliefs only on the basis of evidence, contradict their own mantra. But what about the anachronisms found in the OT? It is true that the Pentateuch occasionally includes such things as place names or vocabulary that did not belong to the era described. In other words, some of these only came into usage hundreds of years after men like Abraham died. Skeptics take this as proof that the books (and all the stories they contain) originated much later than popularly believed, and that the priests who invented these stories occasionally slipped up and placed contemporary names and words into ancient settings.

But this radical theory is firmly against the evidence. In reality, the early OT books consistently bear the mark of ancient contexts—contexts that suit times long before national Israel arose. For instance, the laws, customs, and political situations described in the Pentateuch fit very naturally with the second millennium B.C. and earlier. This is proven by the discovery of many nonbiblical texts and artifacts from that era. It is unlikely that unethical priests a thousand years or more removed from the historical situations described in the Pentateuch could have gotten things so right. Also, the concerns that dominated the Hebrew mindset during the Babylonian exile are not addressed by the Pentateuch. Hence, how could priests hope to encourage their downtrodden fellow Hebrews in Babylon by inventing stories that bore no semblance to their situation? Further, it is unimaginable that the mass of Hebrews would fall for such a ruse, choose to base their entire worldview on false histories passed off on them by a band of inventive clergymen, and then succeed in selling the hoax to their children for generations to come.

So what should we conclude about the anachronisms? Simply this: in the years after the Pentateuch was written, inevitable changes in place names, vocabulary, and political situations made these old books harder to comprehend. To alleviate this problem, priestly guardians of the sacred oracles updated the texts at key junctures to reflect contemporary word usage and geopolitical situations. Such changes as these (e.g., Jdg 1:10; 1Sm 9:9) would have been undertaken soberly and with great care to preserve the meaning and intention of the holy text. Thus, under strict guidelines the books underwent helpful editing, with the result that the texts remained accessible with the passage of time.

On the whole, however, virtually all the scribes who ever touched the sacred scrolls did so only to read them or copy them word for word. Literary copying was an important skill in the ancient world since there was no means of rapid duplication, such as modern printing presses or photocopiers. Believing that the writings in their care were authoritative and inspired by God, the Hebrew scribes took exceptional care when copying the scrolls.

In conclusion, we can be confident in the traditional beliefs about the date and authorship of the OT books. We can also rest assured that the books were carefully copied and preserved, and that all editorial updates of the books were done in a strictly conservative fashion.

Do We Have the Right Books?

Are the 39 books of our OT really the ones God meant for us to revere? The first step to answering this question is to address the issue of collection: who was it that originally collected the sacred writings together? Solid evidence indicates that the priests undertook this duty. In Deuteronomy 31:24-26, Moses commanded that the book of the law be kept with the ark of the covenant, where the Ten Commandments were stored. This put Moses' writings at the very center of Jewish religious life just as soon as they were complete. Further, in Deuteronomy 4:2 we read the command to preserve the commandments of God faithfully. Taken together, these passages indicate that the priests were to keep charge of God's written revelations, and that these were to be safeguarded against perversion.

Since Moses was the author of the earliest biblical books, and since Moses himself charged the priests with the duties to store and protect God's words, the high value of identifying, collecting, and protecting the sacred writings was established when the Pentateuch originated. When other prophets and holy men arose in Israel subsequent to Moses and were given revelations by God, their teachings (whether written by them or by their close associates) would have been gathered quickly by the community of the faithful. At some later point the books came to be stored at the Jerusalem temple. We know this because in a time of national backsliding the unused books collected dust in the temple's storerooms (2Kg 22:8-13). At a much later time in history the books were still kept in the temple, for Josephus (a reputable Jewish historian) received the Scriptures from his Roman benefactors who had sacked the temple in a.d. 70.

We have seen that the Jews identified, collected, and preserved the sacred writings as a matter of course. Next we must ask if or when they believed the production of sacred writings had ceased. Josephus is helpful for elucidating this matter. He tells us (Against Apion 1.37-43) that the Jews widely recognized that the succession of the prophets ended in the time of Artaxerxes, when Latter Prophets such as Haggai and Malachi fell silent and left no successors. Hence, says Josephus, books written after about 400 B.C. were not regarded as Scripture even if they were valuable on other terms. In 164 B.C. Judas Maccabaeus reconsolidated the Scriptures in the temple after the fires of the Antiochene persecution died out, and it appears that the scrolls were harbored there in a long stretch of safety that did not end until the abovementioned Roman aggressions. There can be no doubt of the identity of the Scriptures held at the temple throughout this time: there were 22 books (or 24, depending on how they were divided and counted), and they were lumped into three major divisions: the Law (Pentateuch), the Prophets, and the Writings. Though we divide them into 39 books rather than 22 or 24, the Protestant OT canon is identical to those books that were safeguarded at the temple before the time of Christ. The two most significant religious bodies in Israel (Pharisees and Sadducees) both accepted this body of books as the canon of Scripture, though one often hears it mistakenly asserted that the Sadducees accepted only the Pentateuch.

What about the books of the Apocrypha? This is a diverse set of books—most of which were written between 200 B.C. and early in the first century a.d.—that treat various aspects of Jewish religious and national life in the Intertestamental period, which ranged from 400 B.C. to the time of Christ. They offer important windows into the Jewish context, and many Jews of that time regarded them as valuable religious literature. However, they were never received as Scripture by mainstream Judaism, and even fringe groups such as the Essenes reckoned them valuable but not scriptural. The books of the Apocrypha were never stored in the temple, a sure sign that they were not thought to be inspired by God.

This is not to say there were no struggles among the Jews about the identity of the canon. In fact, five of the books that were counted as canonical had a hard time winning unilateral acceptance. The books of Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Esther, Song of Songs, and Ezekiel were subjected to scrutiny because they seemed secular in outlook or else promoted teachings that initially seemed inconsistent with the Pentateuch. Jewish leaders debated the merits of these books from time to time, as Christian leaders would do in the centuries to come, but all in all their status in the canon was well established.

Following Jesus' example, early Christians adopted the Jewish consensus on the OT canon. During His ministry Jesus showed that He was in line with the standard Jewish assessment of the canon by quoting from all three divisions of the OT. Furthermore, He demonstrated that the OT included many prophecies and veiled allusions to Himself, the Messiah. Thus, Christians learned to read the Jewish holy books with a view to seeing Jesus in them. In fact, for the first few decades of the church the majority of Christians had little access to the New Testament (NT) writings that were starting to emerge. The OT was the only Bible many of them knew, and they valued it greatly as they read it from a Christ-centered vantage point. Interestingly, they tended to hold the Apocrypha in high esteem as well—higher than most Jews did, in fact. A little background information helps us understand how this situation arose.

Several centuries before Christ the Jews living in Alexandria commissioned a Greek translation of the Hebrew OT. They did this because they increasingly spoke and read Greek rather than Hebrew. Known as the Septuagint, this Greek translation was the Bible of choice for many Jews and early Christians. In addition to the authoritative Holy Scriptures, the Septuagint included Greek translations of some key Jewish apocryphal books. The reason they were added is clear: Jews living in predominantly Greek-speaking areas wanted access to all the important Jewish writings, both canonical and noncanonical. As the early church grew and experienced ever greater tensions with traditional Judaism, Christian and non-Christian Jewish communities were increasingly isolated from one another socially and religiously. For this reason, the Jewish assessment that the Apocrypha was noncanonical was perhaps somewhat lost on many Christians as they picked up the Septuagint and noted that the books of the Apocrypha were included along with the canonical OT books. This is an important fact because Greek was the dominant language of the early church, which means few Christians gave close attention to the Hebrew OT. Thus, every time they took up the OT they took it up in its Greek version, and in doing this they took up the Apocrypha as well. Additionally, early Christians noted that the NT authors most often quoted from the Septuagint, not the Hebrew OT. Finally, many Christians had high regard for the Apocrypha because its books were deemed useful for kindling religious affections. In summary, the early church automatically adopted the Jewish OT canon, most often read the Septuagint version of the OT rather than the Hebrew, and held the Apocrypha to be valuable.

Does this mean the early church took the Apocrypha to be on par with the canonical books? It is best to start by taking note of the NT approach. Jesus never quoted any of the books of the Apocrypha, and neither did His disciples in their writings. While Jude 9 apparently alludes to an event described in a minor noncanonical book, nowhere in the entire NT is any book of the Apocrypha cited. Given the fact that neither Jesus nor His apostles quoted from the Apocrypha, it would be remarkable if early Christians trumped their example and counted these books as Scripture. Nevertheless, the early church developed a custom of giving the Apocrypha a place in religious life, and admittedly some misinformed leaders through the early centuries seemed to think of the Apocrypha as Scripture. The two chief causes of this misidentification are that the books were included in the beloved Septuagint and that they were thought to be genuinely conducive to religious devotions. For such reasons as these the Apocrypha maintained a steady but unofficial presence in the church for well over a millennium.

Even the early Reformers included the Apocrypha in their English and German translations of the Bible, though they set it off in sections that were separate from the canonical OT books and introduced it with a note saying that throughout church history the Apocrypha had not been received as Scripture. Thus the Reformers initially kept alive the old tradition of packing the Apocrypha into the Bible, though as in a seatless balcony reserved for bystanders. As they continued to debate Roman Catholic leaders over the proper bases for doctrinal formation, the Reformers eventually concluded that for the sake of clarity the Apocrypha should be dropped altogether from the Bible. As inheritors of the Reformation movement, Protestant Bibles today exclude the Apocrypha, signifying that while those books may be useful, they are nonbiblical.

Conclusion We have solid reasons for believing that the OT books include only true history and that they were written by men who were appointed by God to deliver Spirit-inspired writings to humanity. Further, it is clear that the Jews of old received these books with awe and a sense of responsibility. Hence, the sacred books were identified, collected, preserved, and transmitted through the generations by men approved for such high tasks. The 39 books of the Protestant OT are assuredly the books God would have us venerate as scriptural. The books of the Apocrypha are valuable (indeed, more valuable than most Protestants realize), but should be consulted for their historical value and not for instruction in doctrine or religious practice.

GENESIS

The Creation

b 5 God called the light “day,” and He called the darkness “night.” Evening came and then morning: the first day.
sn.1.1.6 Evening came and then morning: the second day.
sn.1.1.9 And it was so. 12 The earth produced vegetation: seed-bearing plants according to their kinds and trees bearing fruit with seed in it according to their kinds. And God saw that it was good. 13 Evening came and then morning: the third day.
sn.1.1.14 And God saw that it was good. 19 Evening came and then morning: the fourth day.
sn.1.1.20 23 Evening came and then morning: the fifth day.
24 Then God said, “Let the earth produce living creatures according to their kinds: livestock, creatures that crawl, and the wildlife of the earth according to their kinds.” And it was so. 25 So God made the wildlife of the earth according to their kinds, the livestock according to their kinds, and creatures that crawl on the ground according to their kinds. And God saw that it was good.
sn.1.1.26

sn.1.1.28 Evening came and then morning: the sixth day.

sn.1.2.1 Man and Woman in the Garden

sn.1.2.4

sn.1.2.8

sn.1.2.15 And the man said:

This one, at last, is bone of my bone
and flesh of my flesh;
this one will be called “woman,”
for she was taken from man. fn49

sn.1.2.24 Both the man and his wife were naked, yet felt no shame.

The Temptation and the Fall

3 Now the serpent was the most cunning of all the wild animals that the LORD God had made. He said to the woman, “Did God really say, ‘You can’t eat from any tree in the garden’? ” fn51

2 The woman said to the serpent, “We may eat the fruit from the trees in the garden. sn.1.3.3

sn.1.3.4 Then the eyes of both of them were opened, and they knew they were naked; so they sewed fig leaves together and made loincloths for themselves.

Sin’s Consequences

8 Then the man and his wife heard the sound of the LORD God walking in the garden at the time of the evening breeze, fnY21 So the LORD God called out to the man and said to him, “Where are you? ”

sn.1.3.10 in the garden and I was afraid because I was naked, so I hid.”

sn.1.3.11 Then He asked, “Who told you that you were naked? Did you eat from the tree that I commanded you not to eat from? ”

sn.1.3.12 “The woman You gave to be with me — she gave me some fruit from the tree, and I ate.”

sn.1.3.13 So the LORD God asked the woman, “What is this you have done? ”

And the woman said, “It was the serpent. He deceived me, and I ate.” fn57 sn.1.3.14 Then the LORD God said to the serpent:

Because you have done this,
you are cursed more than any livestock and more than any wild animal.
You will move on your belly and eat dust all the days of your life. fn58

sn.1.3.16 He said to the woman:

I will intensify your labor pains;
you will bear children in anguish. fn60 will be for your husband,
yet he will rule over you.

sn.1.3.17 And He said to Adam, “Because you listened to your wife’s voice and ate from the tree about which I commanded you, ‘Do not eat from it’:

The ground is cursed because of you. fn62
since you were taken from it.
For you are dust,
and you will return to dust.”

sn.1.3.20 The LORD God made clothing out of skins for Adam and his wife, and

He clothed them.
sn.1.3.22

Cain Murders Abel

sn.1.4.1 6 Then the LORD said to Cain, “Why are you furious? fn70
sn.1.4.8
sn.1.4.9 Then the LORD said to Cain, “Where is your brother Abel? ”
“I don’t know,” he replied. “Am I my brother’s guardian? ”
sn.1.4.10
sn.1.4.13
sn.1.4.15 Then Cain went out from the LORD’s presence and lived in the land of Nod, east of Eden.

The Line of Cain

sn.1.4.17 Zillah bore Tubal-cain, who made all kinds of bronze and iron tools. Tubal-cain’s sister was Naamah.

sn.1.4.23 Lamech said to his wives:

Adah and Zillah, hear my voice;
wives of Lamech, pay attention to my words.
For I killed a man for wounding me,
a young man for striking me.
sn.1.4.24 If Cain is to be avenged seven times over,
then for Lamech it will be seventy-seven times!

sn.1.4.25

The Line of Seth

5 These are the family "> A records [a] of the descendants of Adam. On the day that God created man, [B] He made him in the likeness of God; 2 He created them male and female. When they were created, He blessed them and called them man. [C]

3 Adam was 130 years old when he fathered a son in his likeness, according to his image, and named him Seth. 4 Adam lived 800 years after the birth of Seth, and he fathered other sons and daughters. 5 So Adam's life lasted 930 years;
then he died.

6 Seth was 105 years old when he fathered Enosh. 7 Seth lived 807 years after the birth of Enosh, and he fathered other sons and daughters. 8 So Seth's life lasted 912 years; then he died.

9 Enosh was 90 years old when he fathered Kenan. 10 Enosh lived 815 years after the birth of Kenan, and he fathered other sons and daughters. 11 So Enosh's life lasted 905 years; then he died.

12 Kenan was 70 years old when he fathered Mahalalel. 13 Kenan lived 840 years after the birth of Mahalalel, and he fathered other sons and daughters.
14 So Kenan's life lasted 910 years; then he died.

15 Mahalalel was 65 years old when he fathered Jared. 16 Mahalalel lived 830 years after the birth of Jared, and he fathered other sons and daughters. 17 So Mahalalel's life lasted 895 years; then he died.

18 Jared was 162 years old when he fathered Enoch. 19 Jared lived 800 years after the birth of Enoch, and he fathered other sons and daughters. 20 So Jared's life lasted 962 years; then he died.

21 Enoch was 65 years old when he fathered Methuselah. 22 And after the birth of Methuselah, Enoch walked with God [b] 300 years and fathered other sons and daughters. 23 So Enoch's life lasted 365 years. 24 Enoch walked with God;
then he was not there because God took him. [c]

25 Methuselah was 187 years old when he fathered Lamech. 26 Methuselah lived 782 years after the birth of Lamech, and he fathered other sons and daughters. 27 So Methuselah's life lasted 969 years; then he died.

28 Lamech was 182 years old when he fathered a son. 29 And he named him Noah, [d] saying, "This one will bring us relief from the agonizing labor of our hands, caused by the ground the LORD has cursed." [e] 30 Lamech lived 595 years after Noah's birth, and he fathered other sons and daughters. 31 So Lamech's life lasted 777 years; then he died.

32 Noah was 500 years old, and he fathered Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

Chapter 6 [a]

[1]The LORD spoke to Moses: [2] "When someone sins and offends the LORD by deceiving [b] his neighbor in regard to a deposit, [c] a security, [A] or a robbery; [d] or defrauds [e] his neighbor; [3] or finds something lost and lies about it; [f] or swears falsely [g] about any of the sinful things a person may do — [4] once he has sinned [h] and acknowledged his •guilt [i] — he must return what he stole or defrauded, or the deposit entrusted to him, or the lost item he found, [5] or anything else about which he swore falsely. He must make full restitution for it and add a fifth of its value to it. [j] He is to pay it to its owner on the day he acknowledges his guilt. [k] [6] Then he must bring his •restitution offering [l] to the LORD: an unblemished [m] ram from the flock according to your assessment of its value as a restitution offering to the priest. [7] In this way the priest will make •atonement on his behalf before the LORD, and he will be forgiven for anything he may have done to incur guilt." [n]

The Burnt Offering

8 [o] The LORD spoke to Moses: 9 "Command Aaron and his sons: This is the law of the •burnt offering; the burnt offering itself must remain on the altar's hearth all night until morning, while the fire of the altar is kept burning on it. 10
The priest is to put on his linen robe and linen undergarments. [B, p] He is to remove the ashes of the burnt offering the fire has consumed on the altar, and place them beside the altar. 11 Then he must take off his garments, put on other clothes, [q] and bring the ashes outside the camp to a ceremonially •clean place.
12 The fire on the altar is to be kept burning; it must not go out. Every morning the priest will burn wood on the fire. He is to arrange the burnt offering on the fire and burn the fat portions from the •fellowship offerings [r] on it. 13 Fire must be kept burning on the altar continually; it must not go out.

The Grain Offering

14 “Now this is the law of the •grain offering: [s] Aaron’s sons will present it before the LORD in front of the altar. 15 The priest is to remove a handful of fine flour and olive oil from the grain offering, with all the frankincense that is on the offering, and burn its memorial portion on the altar as a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 16 Aaron and his sons may eat the rest of it. [t] It is to be eaten in the form of unleavened bread [u] in a holy place; [v] they are to eat it in the courtyard [w] of the tent of meeting. 17 It must not be baked with yeast; I have assigned it as their portion [x] from My fire offerings. [y] It is especially holy, like the •sin offering [z]
and the restitution offering. 18 Any male among Aaron’s descendants [a] may eat
it. It is a permanent portion [C,] [b] throughout your generations from the fire offerings to the LORD. Anything that touches the offerings will become holy.” [c]

19 The LORD spoke to Moses: 20 “This is the offering that Aaron and his sons must present to the LORD on the day that he is anointed: two quarts [D] of fine flour as a regular [d] grain offering, half of it in the morning and half in the evening. 21 It is to be prepared with oil on a griddle; you are to bring it wellkneaded. You must present it as a grain offering of baked pieces, [E] a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 22 The priest, who is one of Aaron’s sons and will be anointed to take his place, is to prepare it. It must be completely burned as a permanent portion for the LORD. 23 Every grain offering for a priest will be a whole burnt offering; [e] it is not to be eaten.”

The Sin Offering

24 The LORD spoke to Moses: 25 “Tell Aaron and his sons: This is the law of the sin offering. [f] The sin offering is most holy and must be slaughtered before the LORD at the place where the burnt offering is slaughtered. 26 The priest who offers it as a sin offering is to eat it. It must be eaten in a holy place, [g] in the courtyard of the tent of meeting. 27 Anything that touches its flesh will become holy, and if any of its blood spatters on a garment, then you must wash that garment [F] in a holy place. 28 A clay pot in which the sin offering is boiled must be broken; if it is boiled in a bronze vessel, it must be scoured and rinsed with water. 29 Any male among the priests may eat it; it is especially holy. 30 But no sin offering may be eaten if its blood has been brought into the tent of meeting to make atonement in the holy place; it must be burned up.

Entering the Ark

7 Then the LORD said to Noah, “Enter the ark, you and all your household, for I have seen that you alone are righteous before Me in this generation. [a] 2 You are to take with you seven pairs, a male and its female, of all the •clean animals, [b] and two of the animals that are not clean, a male and its female, 3 and seven pairs, male and female, of the birds of the sky — in order to keep •offspring alive on the face of the whole earth. 4 Seven days from now I will make it rain on the earth 40 days and 40 nights, and I will wipe off from the face of the earth
every living thing I have made.” 5 And Noah did everything that the LORD commanded him. [c]

6 Noah was 600 years old when the flood came and water covered the earth.
7 So Noah, his sons, his wife, and his sons’ wives entered the ark because of the waters of the flood. 8 From the clean animals, •unclean animals, birds, and every creature that crawls on the ground, 9 two of each, male and female, entered the ark with Noah, just as God had commanded him. 10 Seven days later the waters of the flood came on the earth.

The Flood

11 In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, on the seventeenth day of the month, on that day all the sources of the watery depths burst open, d the floodgates of the sky were opened, e 12 and the rain fell on the earth 40 days and 40 nights. 13 On that same day Noah along with his sons Shem, Ham, and Japheth, Noah's wife, and his three sons' wives entered the ark with him. 14 They entered it with all the wildlife according to their kinds, all livestock according to their kinds, the creatures that crawl on the earth according to their kinds, all birds, every fowl, and everything with wings according to their kinds. 15 Two of all flesh that has the breath of life in it entered the ark with Noah. 16 Those that entered, male and female of all flesh, entered just as God had commanded him. Then the LORD shut him in.

17 The flood continued for 40 days on the earth; the waters increased and lifted up the ark so that it rose above the earth. 18 The waters surged and increased greatly on the earth, and the ark floated on the surface of the water. 19 Then the waters surged even higher on the earth, and all the high mountains under the whole sky were covered. 20 The mountains were covered as the waters surged above them more than 20 feet. A 21 Every creature perished — those that crawl on the earth, birds, livestock, wildlife, and those that swarm B on the earth, as well as all mankind. 22 Everything with the breath of the spirit of life in its nostrils f — everything on dry land died. f — everything on dry land died. 23
He wiped out every living thing that was on the surface of the ground, from mankind to livestock, to creatures that crawl, to the birds of the sky, and they were wiped off the earth. Only Noah was left, and those that were with him in the ark. g 24 And the waters surged on the earth 150 days.

God’s Covenant with Noah

9 God blessed Noah and his sons and said to them, “Be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth. [a] 2 The fear and terror of you will be in every living creature on the earth, every bird of the sky, every creature that crawls on the ground, and all the fish of the sea. They are placed under your authority. [A] 3 Every living creature will be food for you; [b] as I gave the green plants, I have given you everything. [c] 4 However, you must not eat meat with its lifeblood in it. [d] 5 I will require the life of every animal [e] and every man for your life and your blood. I will require the life of each man’s brother for a man’s life. [f]

6 Whoever sheds man’s blood, his blood will be shed by man, [g]
for God made man in His image. [h]

7 But you, be fruitful and multiply; spread out over the earth and multiply on it.” [i]

8 Then God said to Noah and his sons with him, 9 “Understand that I am confirming My covenant [j] with you and your descendants after you, 10 and with every living creature that is with you — birds, livestock, and all wildlife of the earth that are with you — all the animals of the earth that came out of the ark.
11 I confirm My covenant with you that never again will every creature be wiped out by the waters of a flood; there will never again be a flood to destroy the earth.” [k]

12 And God said, “This is the sign of the covenant [l] I am making between Me and you and every living creature with you, a covenant for all future generations:
13 I have placed My bow in the clouds, [m] and it will be a sign of the covenant between Me and the earth. 14 Whenever I form clouds over the earth and the bow appears in the clouds, 15 I will remember My covenant [n] between Me and you and all the living creatures: [B] water will never again become a flood to destroy every creature. 16 The bow will be in the clouds, and I will look at it and remember the everlasting covenant [o] between God and all the living creatures on [C] earth.” 17 God said to Noah, “This is the sign of the covenant that I have confirmed between Me and every creature on earth.”

Prophecies about Noah’s Family

18 Noah’s sons who came out of the ark were Shem, Ham, and Japheth. Ham was the father of Canaan. 19 These three were Noah’s sons, and from them the whole earth was populated. [p]

20 Noah, a man of the soil, was the first to plant [D] a vineyard. 21 He drank some of the wine, became drunk, and uncovered himself inside his tent. 22 Ham, the father of Canaan, saw his father naked and told his two brothers outside. q 23

Then Shem and Japheth took a cloak and placed it over both their shoulders, and walking backward, they covered their father's nakedness. Their faces were turned away, and they did not see their father naked.
24 When Noah awoke from his drinking and learned what his youngest son had done to him, 25 he said:

Canaan will be cursed. r
He will be the lowest of slaves to his brothers. s

26 He also said:

Praise the LORD, the God of Shem;
Canaan will be t his slave.
27 God will extend u Japheth;
he will dwell in the tents of Shem;
Canaan will be his slave.

28 Now Noah lived 350 years after the flood. 29 So Noah's life lasted 950

The Table of Nations

sn.1.10.1 of Noah’s sons, Shem, Ham, and Japheth. They also had sons after the flood.

sn.1.10.2 5 The coastland peoples spread out into their lands. These are Japheth’s sons by their clans, in their nations. Each group had its own language.

sn.1.10.6 Cush, Egypt, Put, and Canaan. 7 Cush’s sons: Seba, Havilah, Sabtah, Raamah, and Sabteca. And Raamah’s sons: Sheba and Dedan.

sn.1.10.8 and built Nineveh, Rehoboth-ir, Calah, 12 and Resen, between Nineveh and the great city Calah.

13 Mizraim fn153

sn.1.10.15 17 the Hivites, the Arkites, the Sinites, 18 the Arvadites, the Zemarites, and the Hamathites. Afterward the Canaanite clans scattered. 19 The Canaanite border went from Sidon going toward Gerar as far as Gaza, and going toward Sodom, Gomorrah, Admah, and Zeboiim as far as Lasha.

20 These are Ham’s sons, by their clans, according to their languages, in their own lands and their nations.

sn.1.10.21 Arpachshad, Lud, and Aram.

23 Aram’s sons: Uz, Hul, Gether, and Mash.

24 Arpachshad fathered fn159 his brother was named Joktan. 26 And Joktan fathered Almodad, Sheleph, Hazarmaveth, Jerah, 27 Hadoram, Uzal, Diklah, 28 Obal, Abimael, Sheba, 29 Ophir, Havilah, and Jobab. All these were Joktan’s sons. 30 Their settlements extended from Mesha to Sephar, the eastern hill country.

31 These are Shem’s sons by their clans, according to their languages, in their lands and their nations.

32 These are the clans of Noah’s sons, according to their family records, in their nations. The nations on earth spread out from these after the flood. fn162

sn.1.11.1 Let us make a name for ourselves; otherwise, we will be scattered over the face of the whole earth.”

sn.1.11.5 for there the LORD confused the language of the whole earth, and from there the LORD scattered them over the face of the whole earth.

From Shem to Abram

sn.1.11.10 25 After he fathered Terah, Nahor lived 119 years and fathered other sons and daughters. 26 Terah lived 70 years and fathered Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

sn.1.11.27 she did not have a child.

31 Terah took his son Abram, his grandson Lot (Haran’s son), and his daughter-in-law Sarai, his son Abram’s wife, and they set out together from Ur of the Chaldeans fn176 to go to the land of Canaan. But when they came to Haran, they settled there. 32 Terah lived 205 years and died in Haran.

The Call of Abram

sn.1.12.1 The LORD said to Abram:
Go out from your land,
your relatives,
and your father’s house
to the land that I will show you. fn177
sn.1.12.4 .

Abram in Egypt sn.1.12.10 He treated Abram well because of her, and Abram acquired flocks and herds, male and female donkeys, male and female slaves, and camels.

sn.1.12.17 Then Pharaoh gave his men orders about him, and they sent him away with his wife and all he had.

Abram and Lot Separate

sn.1.13.1 5 Now Lot, who was traveling with Abram, also had flocks, herds, and tents. sn.1.13.6

sn.1.13.8 Isn’t the whole land before you? Separate from me: if you go to the left, I will go to the right; if you go to the right, I will go to the left.”

sn.1.13.14 Get up and walk around the land, through its length and width, for I will give it to you.”

18 So Abram moved his tent and went to live near the oaks of Mamre at Hebron, fn203 where he built an altar to the LORD.

Abram Rescues Lot

sn.1.14.1 [8] Then the king of Sodom, the king of Gomorrah, the king of Admah, the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela (that is, Zoar) went out and lined up for battle in the Valley of Siddim [9] against Chedorlaomer king of Elam, Tidal king of Goiim, Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar — four kings against five. sn.1.14.10 and they went on.

sn.1.14.13 He brought back all the goods and also his relative Lot and his goods, as well as the women and the other people.

Melchizedek's Blessing

sn.1.14.17 He blessed him and said:

Abram is blessed by God Most High, Creator fnY74 God Most High who has handed over your enemies to you.

And Abram gave him a tenth of everything. fn228

sn.1.14.21 Then the king of Sodom said to Abram, "Give me the people, but take the possessions for yourself."

sn.1.14.22 except what the servants have eaten. But as for the share of the men who came with me — Aner, Eshcol, and Mamre — they can take their share."

The Abrahamic Covenant

sn.1.15.1 to Abram in a vision:

Do not be afraid, [fn230] your reward will be very great.

sn.1.15.2 my house will be my heir.”

sn.1.15.4

sn.1.15.6

sn.1.15.8 that I will possess it? ”

sn.1.15.9 He said to him, “Bring Me a three-year-old cow, a three-year-old female goat, a three-year-old ram, a turtledove, and a young pigeon.”

sn.1.15.10 fell on Abram, and suddenly great terror and darkness descended on him.

sn.1.15.13

sn.1.15.17 19 the land of the Kenites, Kenizzites, Kadmonites, 20 Hittites, Perizzites, Rephaim, 21 Amorites, Canaanites, Girgashites, and Jebusites.”

Hagar and Ishmael

sn.1.16.1 sn.1.16.6 Abram replied to Sarai, “Here, your slave is in your hands; do whatever you want with her.” Then Sarai mistreated her so much that she ran away from her.

sn.1.16.7 found her by a spring of water in the wilderness, the spring on the way to Shur. 8 He said, “Hagar, slave of Sarai, where have you come from and where are you going? ”

She replied, “I’m running away from my mistress Sarai.”

sn.1.16.9 and they will be too many to count.”

sn.1.16.11 Then the Angel of the LORD said to her:

You have conceived and will have a son.

You will name him Ishmael, fn250

sn.1.16.13 It is located between Kadesh and Bered.

sn.1.16.15 So Hagar gave birth to Abram’s son, and Abram gave the name Ishmael to the son Hagar had. 16 Abram was 86 years old when Hagar bore Ishmael to him.

Covenant Circumcision

sn.1.17.1 I will establish My covenant between Me and you, and I will multiply you greatly.”

sn.1.17.3 and I will be their God.”

sn.1.17.9 This includes a slave born in your house and one purchased with money from any foreigner. The one who is not your offspring, 13 a slave born in your house, as well as one purchased with money, must be circumcised. My covenant will be marked in your flesh as an everlasting covenant. 14 If any male is not circumcised in the flesh of his foreskin, that man will be cut off from his people; he has broken My covenant.”

sn.1.17.15 I will bless her, and she will produce nations; kings of peoples will come from her.”

17 Abraham fell facedown. Then he laughed fn268

sn.1.17.19

sn.1.17.23 Then Abraham took his son Ishmael and all the slaves born in his house or purchased with his money — every male among the members of Abraham’s household — and he circumcised the flesh of their foreskin on that very day, just as God had said to him. 24 Abraham was 99 years old when the flesh of his foreskin was circumcised, 25 and his son Ishmael was 13 years old when the flesh of his foreskin was circumcised. 26 On that same day Abraham and his son Ishmael were circumcised. 27 And all the men of his household — both slaves born in his house and those purchased with money from a foreigner — were circumcised with him.

Abraham’s Three Visitors

sn.1.18.1 This is why you have passed your servant’s way. Later, you can continue on.”

“Yes,” they replied, “do as you have said.”

6 So Abraham hurried into the tent and said to Sarah, “Quick! Knead three measures [fnY96] them as they ate under the tree.

Sarah Laughs

sn.1.18.9 “Where is your wife Sarah? ” they asked him.

“There, in the tent,” he answered.

10 The LORD said, “I will certainly come back to you in about a year’s time, and your wife Sarah will have a son! ” fn276 Now Sarah was listening at the entrance of the tent behind him.

13 But the LORD asked Abraham, “Why did Sarah laugh, saying, ‘Can I really have a baby when I’m old? ’ 14 Is anything impossible for the LORD? fn279 At the appointed time I will come back to you, and in about a year she will have a son.”

15 Sarah denied it. “I did not laugh,” she said, because she was afraid.

But He replied, “No, you did laugh.”

Abraham’s Plea for Sodom sn.1.18.16 to see if what they have done justifies the cry that has come up to Me. If not, I will find out.”

sn.1.18.22

26 The LORD said, “If I find 50 righteous people in the city of Sodom, I will spare the whole place for their sake.” fn287

27 Then Abraham answered, “Since I have ventured to speak to the Lord — even though I am dust and ashes — 28 suppose the 50 righteous lack five. Will you destroy the whole city for lack of five? ”

He replied, “I will not destroy it if I find 45 there.”

29 Then he spoke to Him again, “Suppose 40 are found there? ”

He answered, “I will not do it on account of 40.”

30 Then he said, “Let the Lord not be angry, and I will speak further. Suppose 30 are found there? ”

He answered, “I will not do it if I find 30 there.”

31 Then he said, “Since I have ventured to speak to the Lord, suppose 20 are found there? ”

He replied, “I will not destroy it on account of 20.”

32 Then he said, “Let the Lord not be angry, and I will speak one more time. fn288 Suppose 10 are found there? ”

He answered, “I will not destroy it on account of 10.” sn.1.18.33 When the LORD had finished speaking with Abraham, He departed, and Abraham returned to his place.

The Destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah

sn.1.19.1 . When Lot saw them, he got up to meet them. He bowed with his face to the ground [2] and said, “My lords, turn aside to your servant’s house, wash your feet, and spend the night. Then you can get up early and go on your way.”

“No,” they said. “We would rather spend the night in the square.” [3] But he urged them so strongly that they followed him and went into his house. He prepared a feast and baked unleavened bread for them, and they ate.

sn.1.19.6 to them. However, don’t do anything to these men, because they have come under the protection of my roof.”

sn.1.19.9

[14] So Lot went out and spoke to his sons-in-law, who were going to marry fnY105 But his sons-in-law thought he was joking.

sn.1.19.15 of the city.” [16] But he hesitated. Because of the LORD’s compassion for him, the men grabbed his hand, his wife’s hand, and the hands of his two daughters. Then they brought him out and left him outside the city.

[17] As soon as the angels got them outside, one of them fn296 said, “Run for your lives! Don’t look back and don’t stop anywhere on the plain! Run to the mountains, or you will be swept away! ”

[18] But Lot said to them, “No, my lords fnY107 — please. [19] Your servant has indeed found favor in your sight, and you have shown me great kindness by saving my life. But I can’t run to the mountains; the disaster will overtake me, and I will die. [20] Look, this town is close enough for me to run to. It is a small place. Please let me go there — it’s only a small place, isn’t it? — so that I can survive.”

sn.1.19.27 [28] He looked down toward Sodom and Gomorrah and all the land of the plain, and he saw that smoke was going up from the land like the smoke of a furnace. [29] So it was, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, He remembered Abraham and brought Lot out of the middle of the upheaval when He demolished the cities where Lot had lived.

The Origin of Moab and Ammon sn.1.19.30 Lot departed from Zoar and lived in the mountains along with his two daughters, because he was afraid to live in Zoar. Instead, he and his two daughters lived in a cave. [31] Then the firstborn said to the younger, “Our father is old, and there is no man in the land to sleep with us as is the custom of all the land. 32 Come, let's get our father to drink wine so that we can sleep with him and preserve our father's line." 33 So they got their father to drink wine that night, and the firstborn came and slept with her father; he did not know when she lay down or when she got up.

34 The next day the firstborn said to the younger, "Look, I slept with my father last night. Let's get him to drink wine again tonight so you can go sleep with him and we can preserve our father's line." 35 That night they again got their father to drink wine, and the younger went and slept with him; he did not know when she lay down or when she got up.

36 So both of Lot's daughters became pregnant by their father. 37 The firstborn gave birth to a son and named him Moab. fn302

Sarah Rescued from Abimelech

20 From there Abraham traveled to the region of the •Negev and settled between Kadesh and Shur. While he lived in Gerar, [a] 2 Abraham said about his wife Sarah, "She is my sister." [b] So Abimelech king of Gerar had Sarah brought to him.

3 But God came to Abimelech in a dream by night and said to him, "You are about to die because of the woman you have taken, for she is a married woman." [A]

4 Now Abimelech had not approached her, so he said, "Lord, would You destroy a nation even though it is innocent? 5 Didn't he himself say to me, 'She is my sister'? And she herself said, 'He is my brother.' I did this with a clear conscience [B] and •clean [C] hands."

6 Then God said to him in the dream, "Yes, I know that you did this with a clear conscience. [D] I have also kept you from sinning against Me. Therefore I have not let you touch her. 7 Now return the man's wife, for he is a prophet, [c] and he will pray for you and you will live. But if you do not return her, know that you will certainly die, you and all who are yours."

8 Early in the morning Abimelech got up, called all his servants together, and personally [E] told them all these things, and the men were terrified.

9 Then Abimelech called Abraham in and said to him, "What have you done to us? How did I sin against you that you have brought such enormous •guilt on me and on my kingdom? You have done things to me that should never be done." [d] 10 Abimelech also said to Abraham, "What did you intend when you did this thing? "

11 Abraham replied, "I thought, 'There is absolutely no •fear of God in this place. [e] They will kill me because of my wife.' 12 Besides, she really is my sister, the daughter of my father though not the daughter of my mother, and she became my wife. 13 So when God had me wander from my father's house, [f] I said to her: Show your loyalty to me wherever we go and say about me: 'He's my brother.' " [g]

14 Then Abimelech took sheep and cattle and male and female slaves, gave them to Abraham, and returned his wife Sarah to him. 15 Abimelech said, "Look, my land is before you. [h] Settle wherever you want." [F] 16 And he said to Sarah,
"Look, I am giving your brother 1,000 pieces of silver. It is a verification of your honor [G] to all who are with you. You are fully vindicated."

17 Then Abraham prayed to God, [i] and God healed Abimelech, his wife, and his female slaves so that they could bear children, 18 for the LORD had completely closed all the wombs in Abimelech’s household on account of Sarah, Abraham’s wife.

The Birth of Isaac

21 The LORD came to Sarah as He had said, and the LORD did for Sarah what He had promised. [a] 2 Sarah became pregnant and bore a son to Abraham in his old age, at the appointed time God had told him. [b] 3 Abraham named his son who was born to him — the one Sarah bore to him — Isaac. [c] 4 When his son Isaac was eight days old, Abraham circumcised him, as God had commanded him. [d] 5 Abraham was 100 years old when his son Isaac was born to him. [e] 6 Sarah said, "God has made me laugh, and everyone who hears will laugh with me." [f, g] 7 She also said, "Who would have told Abraham that Sarah would nurse children? Yet I have borne a son for him [h] in his old age."

Hagar and Ishmael Sent Away 8 The child grew and was weaned, and Abraham held a great feast on the day Isaac was weaned. 9 But Sarah saw the son mocking [i] — the one Hagar the Egyptian had borne to Abraham. [j] 10 So she said to Abraham, "Drive out this slave with her son, for the son of this slave will not be a co-heir with my son Isaac! " [k]

11 Now this was a very difficult thing for [A] Abraham because of his son.
12 But God said to Abraham, "Do not be concerned [B] about the boy and your slave. Whatever Sarah says to you, listen to her, because your •offspring will be traced through Isaac. [l] 13 But I will also make a nation of the slave's son [m] because he is your offspring." 14 Early in the morning Abraham got up, took bread and a waterskin, put them on Hagar's shoulders, and sent her and the boy away. [n] She left and wandered in the Wilderness of Beer-sheba. 15 When the water in the skin was gone, she left the boy under one of the bushes. 16 Then she went and sat down nearby, about a bowshot away, for she said, "I can't bear to watch the boy die! " So as she sat nearby, she [o] wept loudly. [p] 17 God heard the voice of the boy, and the [C] angel of God called to Hagar from heaven and said to her, "What's wrong, Hagar? Don't be afraid, for God has heard the voice of the boy from the place where he is. 18 Get up, help the boy up, and support him, for I will make him a great nation." 19 Then God opened her eyes, [q] and she saw a well of water. So she went and filled the waterskin and gave the boy a drink. 20 God was with the boy, and he grew; he settled in the wilderness and became an archer. 21 He settled in the Wilderness of Paran, and his mother got a wife for him from the land of Egypt.

Abraham's Covenant with Abimelech 22 At that time Abimelech, accompanied by Phicol the commander of his army, [r] said to Abraham, "God is with you in everything you do. [s] 23 Swear to me by God here and now, that you will not break an agreement with me or with my children and descendants. As I have been loyal to you, so you will be loyal to me and to the country where you are a foreign resident.”

24 And Abraham said, “I swear it.” 25 But Abraham complained to Abimelech because of the water well that Abimelech’s servants had seized. [t]

26 Abimelech replied, “I don’t know who did this thing. You didn’t report anything to me, so I hadn’t heard about it until today.”

27 Abraham took sheep and cattle [u] and gave them to Abimelech, and the two of them made a covenant. [v] 28 Abraham separated seven ewe lambs from the flock. 29 And Abimelech said to Abraham, “Why have you separated these seven ewe lambs? ”

30 He replied, “You are to accept the seven ewe lambs from my hand so that this act [D] will serve as my witness that I dug this well.” 31 Therefore that place was called Beer-sheba [w, x] because it was there that the two of them swore an oath. 32 After they had made a covenant at Beer-sheba, Abimelech and Phicol, the commander of his army, left and returned to the land of the Philistines.

33 Abraham planted a tamarisk tree in Beer-sheba, and there he called on the name of •Yahweh , the Everlasting God. [y] 34 And Abraham lived as a foreigner in the land of the Philistines for many days.

The Sacrifice of Isaac

sn.1.22.1 and said to him, “Abraham! ”
“Here I am,” he answered.
2 “Take your son,” He said, “your only son Isaac, whom you love, fn341 offering on one of the mountains I will tell you about.”
sn.1.22.3 and the two of them walked on together.
7 Then Isaac spoke to his father Abraham and said, “My father.”
And he replied, “Here I am, my son.”
Isaac said, “The fire and the wood are here, but where is the lamb for the burnt offering? ” 8 Abraham answered, “God Himself will provide fnY121 the lamb for the burnt offering, my son.” Then the two of them walked on together.
sn.1.22.9 on top of the wood. 10 Then Abraham reached out and took the knife to slaughter his son.
sn.1.22.11 But the Angel of the LORD called to him from heaven and said, “Abraham, Abraham! ”
He replied, “Here I am.”
12 Then He said, “Do not lay a hand on the boy or do anything to him. For now I know that you •fear on the LORD’s mountain.”
sn.1.22.15 because you have obeyed My command.”
19 Abraham went back to his young men, and they got up and went together to Beer-sheba. And Abraham settled in Beer-sheba.

Rebekah’s Family
sn.1.22.20 Milcah bore these eight to Nahor, Abraham’s brother. 24 His concubine, whose name was Reumah, also bore Tebah, Gaham, Tahash, and Maacah.

Sarah's Burial

sn.1.23.1) in the land of Canaan, and Abraham went to mourn for Sarah and to weep for her.

5 The Hittites replied to Abraham, fnY128 None of us will withhold from you his burial place for burying your dead.”

sn.1.23.7 Then Abraham rose and bowed down to the Hittites, the people of the land. 8 He said to them, “If you are willing for me to bury my dead, listen to me and ask Ephron son of Zohar on my behalf 9 to give me the cave of Machpelah that belongs to him; it is at the end of his field. Let him give it to me in your presence, for the full price, as a burial place.”

10 Ephron was sitting among the Hittites. So in the presence fnY132 of my people. Bury your dead.”

sn.1.23.12 of the people of the land, “Please listen to me. Let me pay the price of the field. Accept it from me, and let me bury my dead there.”

14 Ephron answered Abraham and said to him, 15 “My lord, listen to me. Land worth 400 •shekels as a burial place.

A Wife for Isaac

sn.1.24.1 [4] but will go to my land and my family to take a wife for my son Isaac.”

[5] The servant said to him, “Suppose the woman is unwilling to follow me to this land? Should I have your son go back to the land you came from? ”

[6] Abraham answered him, “Make sure that you don’t take my son back there. [7] The LORD, the God of heaven, fn371 but don’t let my son go back there.” [9] So the servant placed his hand under his master Abraham’s thigh and swore an oath to him concerning this matter.

sn.1.24.10 The servant took 10 of his master’s camels and departed with all kinds of his master’s goods in hand. Then he set out for Nahor’s town Aram-naharaim. [11] He made the camels kneel beside a well of water outside the town at evening. This was the time when the women went out to draw water.

sn.1.24.12 at the spring where the daughters of the men of the town are coming out to draw water. [14] Let the girl to whom I say, ‘Please lower your water jug so that I may drink,’ and who responds, ‘Drink, and I’ll water your camels also’ — let her be the one You have appointed for Your servant Isaac. By this I will know that You have shown kindness to my master.”

sn.1.24.15 a young woman who had not known a man intimately. She went down to the spring, filled her jug, and came up. [17] Then the servant ran to meet her and said, “Please let me have a little water from your jug.”

[18] She replied, “Drink, my lord.” She quickly lowered her jug to her hand and gave him a drink. [19] When she had finished giving him a drink, she said, “I’ll also draw water for your camels until they have had enough to drink.” fnY137 [20] She quickly emptied her jug into the trough and hurried to the well again to draw water. She drew water for all his camels [21] while the man silently watched her to see whether or not the LORD had made his journey a success.

[22] After the camels had finished drinking, the man took a gold ring weighing half a •shekel “Whose daughter are you? ” he asked. “Please tell me, is there room in your father’s house for us to spend the night? ”

[24] She answered him, “I am the daughter of Bethuel son of Milcah, whom she bore to Nahor.” [25] She also said to him, “We have plenty of straw and feed and a place to spend the night.”

[26] Then the man bowed down, worshiped the LORD, fn380 As for me, the LORD has led me on the journey to the house of my master’s relatives.”

sn.1.24.28 and Laban ran out to the man at the spring. [30] As soon as he had seen the ring and the bracelets on his sister’s wrists, and when he had heard his sister Rebekah’s words — “The man said this to me! ” — he went to the man. He was standing there by the camels at the spring.

31 Laban said, “Come, you who are blessed by the LORD. fn383 Straw and feed were given to the camels, and water was brought to wash his feet and the feet of the men with him.
33 A meal was set before him, but he said, “I will not eat until I have said what I have to say.”
So Laban said, “Please speak.”
sn.1.24.34 will send His angel with you and make your journey a success, and you will take a wife for my son from my family and from my father’s household. 41 Then you will be free from my oath if you go to my family and they do not give her to you — you will be free from my oath.’
42 “Today when I came to the spring, I prayed: LORD, God of my master Abraham, if only You will make my journey successful! 43 I am standing here at a spring. Let the virgin who comes out to draw water, and I say to her: Please let me drink a little water from your jug, 44 and who responds to me, ‘Drink, and I’ll draw water for your camels also’ — let her be the woman the LORD has appointed for my master’s son.
45 “Before I had finished praying silently, fn389 sn.1.24.50 51 Rebekah is here in front of you. Take her and go, and let her be a wife for your master’s son, just as the LORD has spoken.”
52 When Abraham’s servant heard their words, he bowed to the ground before the LORD. 53 Then he brought out objects of silver and gold, and garments, and gave them to Rebekah. He also gave precious gifts to her brother and her mother.
sn.1.24.54 Then he and the men with him ate and drank and spent the night.
When they got up in the morning, he said, “Send me to my master.”
55 But her brother and mother said, “Let the girl stay with us for about 10 days. fnY140 can go.”
56 But he responded to them, “Do not delay me, since the LORD has made my journey a success. Send me away so that I may go to my master.”
57 So they said, “Let’s call the girl and ask her opinion.” fnY142
58 They called Rebekah and said to her, “Will you go with this man? ”
She replied, “I will go.” 59 So they sent away their sister Rebekah with the one who had nursed and raised her, fnY143 and Abraham’s servant and his men.
60 They blessed Rebekah, saying to her:
Our sister, may you become thousands upon ten thousands. fn394 61 Then Rebekah and her female servants got up, mounted the camels, and followed the man. So the servant took Rebekah and left.

sn.1.24.62 in the field, and looking up he saw camels coming. 64 Rebekah looked up, and when she saw Isaac, she got down from her camel 65 and asked the servant, “Who is that man in the field coming to meet us? ”

The servant answered, “It is my master.” So she took her veil and covered herself. 66 Then the servant told Isaac everything he had done.

sn.1.24.67

Offerings to Build the Tabernacle

25 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Tell the Israelites to take an offering for Me.
You are to take My offering from everyone who is willing to give. a 3 This is the offering you are to receive from them: gold, silver, and bronze; 4 blue, purple, and scarlet yarn; fine linen and goat hair; 5 ram skins dyed red b and manatee skins; A acacia wood; 6 oil c for the light; spices for the anointing oil and for the fragrant incense; 7 and onyx B along with other gemstones for mounting on the •ephod and breastpiece. C, d

8 “They are to make a sanctuary e for Me so that I may dwell f among them. 9
You must make it according to all that I show you — the pattern g of the tabernacle as well as the pattern of all its furnishings.

The Ark

10 “They are to make an ark [h] of acacia wood, 45 inches long, 27 inches wide, and 27 inches high. D 11 Overlay it with pure gold; overlay it both inside and out. Also make a gold molding all around it. 12 Cast four gold rings for it and place them on its four feet, two rings on one side and two rings on the other side.
13 Make poles of acacia wood and overlay them with gold. 14 Insert the poles into the rings on the sides of the ark in order to carry the ark with them. 15 The poles are to remain in the rings of the ark; they must not be removed from it. 16
Put the tablets of the •testimony that I will give you into the ark. [i] 17 Make a •mercy seat [j] of pure gold, 45 inches long and 27 inches wide. E 18 Make two •cherubim of gold; make them of hammered work at the two ends of the mercy seat. 19 Make one cherub at one end and one cherub at the other end. At its two ends, make the cherubim of one piece with the mercy seat. 20 The cherubim are to have wings spread out above, covering [k] the mercy seat with their wings, and are to face one another. The faces of the cherubim should be toward the mercy seat. 21 Set the mercy seat on top of the ark and put the testimony that I will give you into the ark. [l] 22 I will meet with you there above the mercy seat, between the two cherubim [m] that are over the ark of the testimony; I will speak with you from there about all that I command you regarding the Israelites.

The Table

23 “You are to construct a table [n] of acacia wood, 36 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 27 inches high. [F] 24 Overlay it with pure gold and make a gold molding all around it. 25 Make a three-inch [G] frame all around it and make a gold molding for it all around its frame. 26 Make four gold rings for it, and attach the rings to the four corners at its four legs. 27 The rings should be next to the frame as holders for the poles to carry the table. 28 Make the poles of acacia wood and overlay them with gold, and the table can be carried by them. 29 You are also to make its plates [o] and cups, as well as its pitchers and bowls for

The Lampstand

31 “You [q] are to make a lampstand [r] out of pure, hammered gold. It is to be made of one piece: its base and shaft, its ornamental cups, and its calyxes [s] and petals. 32 Six branches are to extend from its sides, three branches of the lampstand from one side and three branches of the lampstand from the other side. 33 There are to be three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a calyx and petals, on the first branch, and three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a calyx and petals, on the next branch. It is to be this way for the six branches that extend from the lampstand. 34 There are to be four cups shaped like almond blossoms on the lampstand shaft along with its calyxes and petals. 35 For the six branches that extend from the lampstand, a calyx must be under the first pair of branches from it, a calyx under the second pair of branches

sn.1.26.1 [6] So Isaac settled in Gerar.

Isaac's Deception

sn.1.26.7 Isaac caressing his wife Rebekah.

[9] Abimelech sent for Isaac and said, "So she is really your wife! How could you say, 'She is my sister'? "

Isaac answered him, "Because I thought I might die on account of her."

[10] Then Abimelech said, "What is this you've done to us? One of the people could easily have slept with your wife, and you would have brought •guilt [11] So Abimelech warned all the people with these words: "Whoever harms this man or his wife will certainly die."

Conflicts over Wells
sn.1.26.12

17 So Isaac left there, camped in the Valley of Gerar, and lived there. 18 Isaac reopened the water wells that had been dug in the days of his father Abraham and that the Philistines had stopped up after Abraham died. He gave them the same names his father had given them. 19 Then Isaac's slaves dug in the valley and found a well of spring fnY158 and said, "For now the LORD has made room for us, and we will be fruitful in the land."

The LORD Appears to Isaac sn.1.26.23 I will bless you and multiply your offspring because of My servant Abraham."

25 So he built an altar there, fn448

Covenant with Abimelech sn.1.26.26 27 Isaac said to them, "Why have you come to me? You hated me and sent me away from you."

28 They replied, "We have clearly seen how the LORD has been with you. We think there should be an oath between two parties — between us and you. Let us make a covenant with you: 29 You will not harm us, just as we have not harmed you but have only done what was good to you, sending you away in peace. You are now blessed by the LORD." fn451 sn.1.26.30 to this day.

Esau's Wives
sn.1.26.34

The Stolen Blessing

sn.1.27.1 he called his older son Esau and said to him, “My son.”
And he answered, “Here I am.”
2 He said, “Look, I am old and do not know the day of my death. 3 Take your hunting gear, your quiver and bow, and go out in the field to hunt some game for me. fn459
sn.1.27.5 Now Rebekah was listening to what Isaac said to his son Esau. So while Esau went to the field to hunt some game to bring in, 6 Rebekah said to her son Jacob, “Listen! I heard your father talking with your brother Esau. He said, 7 ‘Bring me the game and make a delicious meal for me to eat so that I can bless you in the LORD’s presence before I die.’ 8 Now obey every order I give you, my son. 9 Go to the flock and bring me two choice young goats, and I will make them into a delicious meal for your father — the kind he loves. 10 Then take it to your father to eat so that he may bless you before he dies.” 11 Jacob answered Rebekah his mother, “Look, my brother Esau is a hairy man, but I am a man with smooth skin. fn461 12 Suppose my father touches me.
Then I will be revealed to him as a deceiver and bring a curse rather than a blessing on myself.” 13 His mother said to him, “Your curse be on me, my son. Just obey me and go get them for me.”
14 So he went and got the goats and brought them to his mother, and his mother made the delicious food his father loved. 15 Then Rebekah took the best clothes of her older son Esau, which were in the house, and had her younger son Jacob wear them. 16 She put the skins of the young goats on his hands and the smooth part of his neck. 17 Then she handed the delicious food and the bread she had made to her son Jacob.
sn.1.27.18 When he came to his father, he said, “My father.”
And he answered, “Here I am. Who are you, my son? ” 19 Jacob replied to his father, “I am Esau, your firstborn. I have done as you told me. Please sit up and eat some of my game so that you may bless me.” 20 But Isaac said to his son, “How did you ever find it so quickly, my son? ”
He replied, “Because the LORD your God worked it out for me.”
21 Then Isaac said to Jacob, “Please come closer so I can touch you, my son.
Are you really my son Esau or not? ”
22 So Jacob came closer to his father Isaac. When he touched him, he said, “The voice is the voice of Jacob, but the hands are the hands of Esau.” 23 He did not recognize him, because his hands were hairy like those of his brother Esau;
so he blessed him. 24 Again he asked, “Are you really my son Esau? ”

And he replied, “I am.”

25 Then he said, “Serve me, and let me eat some of my son’s game so that I can bless you.” Jacob brought it to him, and he ate; he brought him wine, and he drank.

26 Then his father Isaac said to him, “Please come closer and kiss me, my son.” 27 So he came closer and kissed him. When Isaac smelled fnY165 his clothes, he blessed him and said:

Ah, the smell of my son is like the smell of a field that the LORD has blessed.
28 May God give to you —
from the dew of the sky fn462

30 As soon as Isaac had finished blessing Jacob and Jacob had left the presence of his father Isaac, his brother Esau arrived from the hunt. sn.1.27.31 He had also made some delicious food and brought it to his father. Then he said to his father, “Let my father get up and eat some of his son’s game, so that you may bless me.”

32 But his father Isaac said to him, “Who are you? ”

He answered, “I am Esau your firstborn son.”

33 Isaac began to tremble uncontrollably. “Who was it then,” he said, “who hunted game and brought it to me? I ate it all before you came in, and I blessed him. Indeed, he will be blessed! ”

34 When Esau heard his father’s words, he cried out with a loud and bitter cry and said to his father, “Bless me too, my father! ” fn467

35 But he replied, “Your brother came deceitfully and took your blessing.”

36 So he said, “Isn’t he rightly named Jacob? fn468 For he has cheated me twice now. He took my birthright, and look, now he has taken my blessing.”
Then he asked, “Haven’t you saved a blessing for me? ”

37 But Isaac answered Esau: “Look, I have made him a master over you, have given him all of his relatives as his servants, and have sustained him with grain and new wine. What then can I do for you, my son? ”

38 Esau said to his father, “Do you only have one blessing, my father? Bless me too, my father! ” And Esau wept loudly. fnY166

sn.1.27.39 Then his father Isaac answered him:

Look, your dwelling place will be away from the richness of the land, away from the dew of the sky above.

40 You will live by your sword,
and you will serve your brother.
But when you rebel, fnY167
you will break his yoke from your neck.

Esau's Anger

sn.1.27.41 Esau held a grudge against Jacob because of the blessing his father had given him. And Esau determined in his heart: "The days of mourning for my father are approaching; then I will kill my brother Jacob."

42 When the words of her older son Esau were reported to Rebekah, she summoned her younger son Jacob and said to him, "Listen, your brother Esau is consoling himself by planning to kill you. 43 So now, my son, listen to me. Flee at once to my brother Laban in Haran, 44 and stay with him for a few days until your brother's anger subsides — 45 until your brother's rage turns away from you and he forgets what you have done to him. Then I will send for you and bring you back from there. Why should I lose you both in one day? "

46 So Rebekah said to Isaac, "I'm sick of my life because of these Hittite women. fn470

Jacob’s Departure

sn.1.28.1 5 So Isaac sent Jacob to Paddan-aram, to Laban son of Bethuel the Aramean, the brother of Rebekah, the mother of Jacob and Esau.

sn.1.28.6 9 so Esau went to Ishmael and married, in addition to his other wives, Mahalath daughter of Ishmael, Abraham’s son. She was the sister of Nebaioth.

Jacob at Bethel

sn.1.28.10 for I will not leave you until I have done what I have promised you.”

sn.1.28.16 17 He was afraid and said, “What an awesome place this is! This is none other than the house of God. This is the gate of heaven.”

18 Early in the morning Jacob took the stone that was near his head and set it up as a marker. He poured oil on top of it 19 and named the place Bethel, fn484

Jacob Meets Rachel

sn.1.29.1 were gathered there, the shepherds would roll the stone from the opening of the well and water the sheep. The stone was then placed back on the well's opening.

4 Jacob asked the men at the well, "My brothers! Where are you from? "

"We're from Haran," they answered.

5 "Do you know Laban grandson of Nahor? " Jacob asked them.

They answered, "We know him."

6 "Is he well? " Jacob asked.

"Yes," they said, "and here is his daughter Rachel, coming with his sheep."

sn.1.29.7 Then Jacob said, "Look, it is still broad daylight. It's not time for the animals to be gathered. Water the flock, then go out and let them graze."

8 But they replied, "We can't until all the flocks have been gathered and the stone is rolled from the well's opening. Then we will water the sheep."

9 While he was still speaking with them, Rachel came with her father's sheep, for she was a shepherdess. 10 As soon as Jacob saw his uncle Laban's daughter Rachel with his sheep, fnY172 12 He told Rachel that he was her father's relative, Rebekah's son. She ran and told her father.

Jacob Deceived

sn.1.29.13 When Laban heard the news about his sister's son Jacob, he ran to meet him, hugged him, and kissed him. Then he took him to his house, and Jacob told him all that had happened.

14 Laban said to him, "Yes, you are my own flesh and blood." fnY174

After Jacob had stayed with him a month, 15 Laban said to him, "Just because you're my relative, should you work for me for nothing? Tell me what your wages should be."

16 Now Laban had two daughters: the older was named Leah, and the younger was named Rachel. 17 Leah had ordinary fnY175

19 Laban replied, "Better that I give her to you than to some other man. Stay with me." 20 So Jacob worked seven years for Rachel, and they seemed like only a few days to him because of his love for her.

sn.1.29.21 her." 22 So Laban invited all the men of the place to a feast. 23 That evening, Laban took his daughter Leah and gave her to Jacob, and he slept with her. 24 And Laban gave his slave Zilpah to his daughter Leah as her slave.

25 When morning came, there was Leah! So he said to Laban, "What is this you have done to me? Wasn't it for Rachel that I worked for you? Why have you deceived me? "

26 Laban answered, "It is not the custom in this place to give the younger daughter in marriage before the firstborn. 27 Complete this week of wedding celebration, and we will also give you this younger one in return for working yet another seven years for me."

28 And Jacob did just that. He finished the week of celebration, and Laban gave him his daughter Rachel as his wife. 29 And Laban gave his slave Bilhah to his daughter Rachel as her slave. 30 Jacob slept with Rachel also, and indeed, he loved Rachel more than Leah. And he worked for Laban another seven years. fn494

sn.1.29.31 surely my husband will love me now."

33 She conceived again, gave birth to a son, and said, "The LORD heard that I am unloved and has given me this son also." So she named him Simeon. fn500

34 She conceived again, gave birth to a son, and said, "At last, my husband will become attached to me because I have borne three sons for him." Therefore he was named Levi. fn501

35 And she conceived again, gave birth to a son, and said, "This time I will praise the LORD.” Therefore she named him Judah. [fn502] Then Leah stopped having children.

sn.1.30.1 she said to Jacob.
2 Jacob became angry with Rachel and said, “Am I in God’s place, who has withheld children fnY177 from you? ” 3 Then she said, “Here is my slave Bilhah. Go sleep with her, and she’ll bear children for me fnY178 7 Rachel’s slave Bilhah conceived again and bore Jacob a second son. 8 Rachel said, “In my wrestlings with God, fnY179
sn.1.30.9
12 When Leah’s slave Zilpah bore Jacob a second son, 13 Leah said, “I am happy that the women call me happy,” fn510 sn.1.30.14 When he brought them to his mother Leah, Rachel asked, “Please give me some of your son’s mandrakes.” 15 But Leah replied to her, “Isn’t it enough that you have taken my husband?
Now you also want to take my son’s mandrakes? ” “Well,” Rachel said, “you can sleep with him tonight in exchange for your son’s mandrakes.”
16 When Jacob came in from the field that evening, Leah went out to meet him and said, “You must come with me, for I have hired you with my son’s mandrakes.” So Jacob slept with her that night.
17 God listened to Leah, and she conceived and bore Jacob a fifth son. 18 Leah said, “God has rewarded me for giving my slave to my husband,” and she named him Issachar. fn513 19 Then Leah conceived again and bore Jacob a sixth son. 20 “God has given me a good gift,” Leah said. “This time my husband will honor me because I have borne six sons for him,” and she named him Zebulun. fn514 21 Later, Leah bore a daughter and named her Dinah.
sn.1.30.22

Jacob’s Flocks Multiply sn.1.30.25 You know how hard I have worked for you.” 27 But Laban said to him, “If I have found favor in your sight, stay. I have learned by •divination 29 So Jacob said to him, “You know what I have done for you and your herds.
fn521 30 For you had very little before I came, but now your wealth has increased.
The LORD has blessed you because of me. And now, when will I also do something for my own family? ” 31 Laban asked, “What should I give you? ”
And Jacob said, “You don’t need to give me anything. If you do this one thing for me, I will continue to shepherd and keep your flock. 32 Let me go through all your sheep today and remove every sheep that is speckled or spotted, every dark-colored sheep among the lambs, and the spotted and speckled among the female goats. Such will be my wages. 33 In the future when you come to check on my wages, my honesty will testify for me. If I have any female goats that are not speckled or spotted, or any lambs that are not black, they will be considered stolen.”

34 “Good,” said Laban. “Let it be as you have said.”

35 That day Laban removed the streaked and spotted male goats and all the speckled and spotted female goats — every one that had any white on it — and every dark-colored one among the lambs, and he placed his sons in charge of them. 36 He put a three-day journey between himself and Jacob. Jacob, meanwhile, was shepherding the rest of Laban’s flock.

sn.1.30.37 40 Jacob separated the lambs and made the flocks face the streaked and the completely dark sheep in Laban’s flocks. Then he set his own stock apart and didn’t put them with Laban’s sheep.

41 Whenever the stronger of the flock were breeding, Jacob placed the branches in the troughs, in full view of the flocks, and they would breed in front of the branches. 42 As for the weaklings of the flocks, he did not put out the branches. So it turned out that the weak sheep belonged to Laban and the stronger ones to Jacob. 43 And the man became very rich. fnY180

sn.1.31.1 Now Jacob heard what Laban's sons were saying: "Jacob has taken all that was our father's and has built this wealth from what belonged to our father." 2 And Jacob saw from Laban's face that his attitude toward him was not the same.

3 Then the LORD said to him, "Go back to the land of your fathers and to your family, and I will be with you." fn524

sn.1.31.4 9 God has taken away your father's herds and given them to me.

10 "When the flocks were breeding, I saw in a dream that the streaked, spotted, and speckled males were mating with the females. 11 In that dream the Angel of God said to me, 'Jacob! ' and I said, 'Here I am.' 12 And He said, 'Look up and see: all the males that are mating with the flocks are streaked, spotted, and speckled, for I have seen all that Laban has been doing to you. fn527 Get up, leave this land, and return to your native land.' "

14 Then Rachel and Leah answered him, "Do we have any portion or inheritance in our father's household? 15 Are we not regarded by him as outsiders? For he has sold us fn529 and has certainly spent our money. 16 In fact, all the wealth that God has taken away from our father belongs to us and to our children. So do whatever God has said to you."

sn.1.31.17 the hill country of Gilead.

Laban Overtakes Jacob sn.1.31.22

25 When Laban overtook Jacob, Jacob had pitched his tent in the hill country, and Laban and his brothers also pitched their tents in the hill country of Gilead. 26 Then Laban said to Jacob, "What have you done? You have deceived me and taken my daughters away like prisoners of war! 27 Why did you secretly flee from me, deceive me, and not tell me? I would have sent you away with joy and singing, with tambourines and lyres, 28 but you didn't even let me kiss my grandchildren and my daughters. You have acted foolishly. 29 I could do you great harm, but last night the God of your father said to me: 'Watch yourself. Don't say anything to Jacob, either good or bad.' 30 Now you have gone off because you long for your father — but why have you stolen my gods? " fn532 sn.1.31.31 Before our relatives, point out anything that is yours and take it." Jacob did not know that Rachel had stolen the idols.

33 So Laban went into Jacob's tent, then Leah's tent, and then the tents of the two female slaves, but he found nothing. Then he left Leah's tent and entered Rachel's. 34 Now Rachel had taken Laban's household idols, put them in the saddlebag of the camel, and sat on them. Laban searched the whole tent but found nothing.

35 She said to her father, “Sir, don’t be angry that I cannot stand up in your presence; fn534 I am having my period.” So Laban searched, but could not find the household idols.

43 Then Laban answered Jacob, “The daughters are my daughters; the sons, my sons; and the flocks, my flocks! Everything you see is mine! But what can I do today for these daughters of mine or for the children they have borne? sn.1.31.44 Let it be a witness between the two of us.”

45 So Jacob picked out a stone and set it up as a marker. fn537

48 Then Laban said, “This mound is a witness between you and me today.” Therefore the place was called Galeed 49 and also Mizpah, fn539 Laban got up early in the morning, kissed his grandchildren and daughters, and blessed them. Then Laban left to return home.

Preparing to Meet Esau

sn.1.32.1 sn.1.32.3 6 When the messengers returned to Jacob, they said, “We went to your brother Esau; he is coming to meet you — and he has 400 men with him.” fn549

9 Then Jacob said, “God of my father Abraham and God of my father Isaac, fn551

sn.1.32.13 14 200 female goats, 20 male goats, 200 ewes, 20 rams, 15 30 milk camels with their young, 40 cows, 10 bulls, 20 female donkeys, and 10 male donkeys. 16 He entrusted them to his slaves as separate herds and said to them, “Go on ahead of me, and leave some distance between the herds.”

17 And he told the first one: “When my brother Esau meets you and asks, ‘Who do you belong to? Where are you going? And whose animals are these ahead of you? ’ 18 then tell him, ‘They belong to your servant Jacob. They are a gift sent to my lord Esau. And look, he is behind us.’ ”

19 He also told the second one, the third, and everyone who was walking behind the animals, “Say the same thing to Esau when you find him. 20 You are also to say, ‘Look, your servant Jacob is right behind us.’ ” For he thought, “I want to appease Esau with the gift that is going ahead of me. After that, I can face him, and perhaps he will forgive me.”

21 So the gift was sent on ahead of him while he remained in the camp that night. sn.1.32.22 23 He took them and sent them across the stream, along with all his possessions.

Jacob Wrestles with God sn.1.32.24 25 When the man saw that He could not defeat him, He struck Jacob’s hip socket as they wrestled and dislocated his hip. 26 Then He said to Jacob, “Let Me go, for it is daybreak.”

But Jacob said, “I will not let You go unless You bless me.”

27 “What is your name? ” the man asked.

“Jacob,” he replied.

28 “Your name will no longer be Jacob,” fn557 and with men and have prevailed.”

29 Then Jacob asked Him, “Please tell me Your name.”

But He answered, “Why do you ask My name? ” fn560 And He blessed him there.

30 Jacob then named the place Peniel, fn561

Jacob Meets Esau

sn.1.33.1 seven times until he approached his brother.
sn.1.33.4 5 When Esau looked up and saw the women and children, he asked, “Who are these with you? ”

He answered, “The children God has graciously given your servant.” fn566
6 Then the female slaves and their children approached him and bowed down.
7 Leah and her children also approached and bowed down, and then Joseph and Rachel approached and bowed down.

8 So Esau said, “What do you mean by this whole procession fnY187

“To find favor with you, my lord,” fn568 he answered.

9 “I have enough, my brother,” Esau replied. “Keep what you have.”

10 But Jacob said, “No, please! If I have found favor with you, take this gift from my hand. For indeed, I have seen your face, and it is like seeing God’s face, since you have accepted me. 11 Please take my present that was brought to you, because God has been gracious to me and I have everything I need.” So Jacob urged him until he accepted.

sn.1.33.12 Then Esau said, “Let’s move on, and I’ll go ahead of you.”

13 Jacob replied, “My lord knows that the children are weak, and I have nursing sheep and cattle. If they are driven hard for one day, the whole herd will die. 14 Let my lord go ahead of his servant. I will continue on slowly, at a pace suited to the livestock and the children, until I come to my lord at Seir.”

15 Esau said, “Let me leave some of my people with you.”

But he replied, “Why do that? Please indulge me, fnY188

Dinah Defiled

sn.1.34.1 he told his father Hamor.
5 Jacob heard that Shechem had defiled his daughter Dinah, but since his sons were with his livestock in the field, he remained silent until they returned. 6 Meanwhile, Shechem's father Hamor came to speak with Jacob.
7 Jacob's sons returned from the field when they heard about the incident and were deeply grieved and angry. For Shechem had committed an outrage against Israel by raping Jacob's daughter, fn578 and such a thing should not be done.
sn.1.34.8 daughter. Please give her to him as a wife. 9 Intermarry with us; give your daughters to us, and take our daughters for yourselves. 10 Live with us. The land is before you. Settle here, move about, and acquire property in it." 11 Then Shechem said to Dinah's father and brothers, "Grant me this favor, fnY191 and gift; I'll give you whatever you ask me. Just give the girl to be my wife! " sn.1.34.13 16 Then we will give you our daughters, take your daughters for ourselves, live with you, and become one people. 17 But if you will not listen to us and be circumcised, then we will take our daughter and go." 18 Their words seemed good to Hamor and his son Shechem. sn.1.34.19 and spoke to the men there.
21 "These men are peaceful toward us," they said. "Let them live in our land and move about in it, for indeed, the region is large enough for them. Let us take their daughters as our wives and give our daughters to them. 22 But the men will agree to live with us and be one people only on this condition: if all our men are circumcised as they are. 23 Won't their livestock, their possessions, and all their animals become ours? Only let us agree with them, and they will live with us." 24 All the able-bodied men fnY193 Dinah's brothers, took their swords, went into the unsuspecting city, and killed every male. 26 They killed Hamor and his son Shechem with their swords, took Dinah from Shechem's house, and went away. 27 Jacob's other sons came to the slaughter and plundered the city because their sister had been defiled. 28 They took their sheep, cattle, donkeys, and whatever was in the city and in the field. 29 They captured all their possessions, children, and wives and plundered everything in the houses.
sn.1.34.30
31 But they answered, "Should he have treated our sister like a prostitute? "

Return to Bethel

sn.1.35.1 2 So Jacob said to his family and all who were with him, “Get rid of the foreign gods that are among you. fn590
4 Then they gave Jacob all their foreign gods and their earrings, and Jacob hid them under the oak near Shechem. 5 When they set out, a terror from God came over the cities around them, and they did not pursue Jacob’s sons. fn594 because it was there that God had revealed Himself to him when he was fleeing from his

So He named him Israel. 11 God also said to him:

13 Then God withdrew fnY199 from him at the place where He had spoken to him.
14 Jacob set up a marker at the place where He had spoken to him — a stone

Joseph’s Dreams

sn.1.37.1 These are the family records of Jacob.

At 17 years of age, Joseph tended sheep with his brothers. The young man was working with the sons of Bilhah and Zilpah, his father's wives, fn630

3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than his other sons because Joseph was a son born to him in his old age, fn632 for him. 4 When his brothers saw that their father loved him more than all his brothers, they hated him and could not bring themselves to speak peaceably to him.

8 "Are you really going to reign over us? " his brothers asked him. "Are you really going to rule us? " So they hated him even more because of his dream and what he had said.

9 Then he had another dream and told it to his brothers. "Look," he said, "I had another dream, and this time the sun, moon, and 11 stars were bowing down to me."

10 He told his father and brothers, but his father rebuked him. "What kind of dream is this that you have had? " he said. "Are your mother and brothers and I going to come and bow down to the ground before you? " 11 His brothers were jealous of him, fn634

Joseph Sold into Slavery sn.1.37.12 His brothers had gone to pasture their father's flocks at Shechem. 13 Israel said to Joseph, "Your brothers, you know, are pasturing the flocks at Shechem. Get ready. I'm sending you to them."

"I'm ready," Joseph replied.

14 Then Israel said to him, "Go and see how your brothers and the flocks are doing, and bring word back to me." So he sent him from the Valley of Hebron, fn636 and he went to Shechem.

15 A man found him there, wandering in the field, and asked him, "What are you looking for? "

16 "I'm looking for my brothers," Joseph said. "Can you tell me where they are pasturing their flocks? "

17 "They've moved on from here," the man said. "I heard them say, 'Let's go to Dothan.' " fn637 So Joseph set out after his brothers and found them at Dothan.

sn.1.37.18 20 Come on, let's kill him and throw him into one of the pits. We can say that a vicious animal ate him. Then we'll see what becomes of his dreams! "

21 When Reuben heard this, he tried to save him from them. fnY204 22 Reuben also said to them, "Don't shed blood. Throw him into this pit in the wilderness, but don't lay a hand on him" — intending to rescue him from their hands and return him to his father.

23 When Joseph came to his brothers, they stripped off his robe, the robe of many colors that he had on. 24 Then they took him and threw him into the pit.
The pit was empty; there was no water in it.

sn.1.37.25

26 Then Judah said to his brothers, “What do we gain if we kill our brother and cover up his blood? 27 Come, let’s sell him to the Ishmaelites and not lay a hand on him, for he is our brother, our own flesh,” and they agreed. 28 When Midianite fn643

sn.1.37.29 31 So they took Joseph’s robe, slaughtered a young goat, and dipped the robe in its blood. 32 They sent the robe of many colors to their father and said, “We found this. Examine it. Is it your son’s robe or not? ”

33 His father recognized it. “It is my son’s robe,” he said. “A vicious animal has devoured him. Joseph has been torn to pieces! ” fn646 to my son, mourning.”
And his father wept for him.

sn.1.37.36 Meanwhile, the Midianites sold Joseph in Egypt to Potiphar, an officer of Pharaoh and the captain of the guard.

Judah and Tamar

sn.1.38.1 she gave birth to him.
sn.1.38.6 9 But Onan knew that the offspring would not be his, so whenever he slept with his brother's wife, he released his semen on the ground so that he would not produce offspring for his brother. 10 What he did was evil in the LORD's sight, so He put him to death also.
11 Then Judah said to his daughter-in-law Tamar, "Remain a widow in your father's house until my son Shelah grows up." fn653 For he thought, "He might die too, like his brother." So Tamar went to live in her father's house.
sn.1.38.12 which is on the way to Timnah. For she saw that, though Shelah had grown up, she had not been given to him as a wife. 15 When Judah saw her, he thought she was a prostitute, for she had covered her face.
16 He went over to her and said, "Come, let me sleep with you," for he did not know that she was his daughter-in-law. fn656
She said, "What will you give me for sleeping with me? "
17 "I will send you a young goat from my flock," he replied.
But she said, "Only if you leave something with me until you send it."
18 "What should I give you? " he asked.
She answered, "Your signet ring, your cord, and the staff in your hand." So he gave them to her and slept with her, and she got pregnant by him. 19 She got up and left, then removed her veil and put her widow's clothes back on.
sn.1.38.20 When Judah sent the young goat by his friend the Adullamite in order to get back the items he had left with the woman, he could not find her. 21 He asked the men of the place, "Where is the cult prostitute who was beside the road at Enaim? "
"There has been no cult prostitute here," they answered.
22 So the Adullamite returned to Judah, saying, "I couldn't find her, and furthermore, the men of the place said, 'There has been no cult prostitute here.' " 23 Judah replied, "Let her keep the items for herself; otherwise we will become a laughingstock. After all, I did send this young goat, but you couldn't find her."
sn.1.38.24 About three months later Judah was told, "Your daughter-in-law, Tamar, has been acting like a prostitute, and now she is pregnant."
"Bring her out! " Judah said. "Let her be burned to death! " fn657 25 As she was being brought out, she sent her father-in-law this message: "I am pregnant by the man to whom these items belong." And she added, "Examine them. Whose signet ring, cord, and staff are these? " 26 Judah recognized them and said, "She is more in the right fnY209 since I did not give her to my son Shelah." And he did not know her intimately again.

sn.1.38.27

Joseph in Potiphar's House

sn.1.39.1 he did not concern himself with anything except the food he ate.

Now Joseph was well-built and handsome. [fn667] his master's wife looked longingly at Joseph and said, "Sleep with me."

[8] But he refused. "Look," he said to his master's wife, "with me here my master does not concern himself with anything in his house, and he has put all that he owns under my authority. [fnY214]

[19] When his master heard the story his wife told him — "These are the things your slave did to me" — he was furious [20] and had him thrown into prison, [fn669] where the king's prisoners were confined. So Joseph was there in prison.

Joseph Interprets Two Prisoners' Dreams

sn.1.40.1 sn.1.40.5
8 “We had dreams,” they said to him, “but there is no one to interpret them.”

Then Joseph said to them, “Don’t interpretations belong to God? Tell me your dreams.” fn676 sn.1.40.9 So the chief cupbearer told his dream to Joseph: “In my dream there was a vine in front of me. 10 On the vine were three branches. As soon as it budded, its blossoms came out and its clusters ripened into grapes. 11 Pharaoh’s cup was in my hand, and I took the grapes, squeezed them into Pharaoh’s cup, and placed the cup in Pharaoh’s hand.”

12 “This is its interpretation,” fn677

sn.1.40.16 When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was positive, he said to Joseph, “I also had a dream. Three baskets of white bread were on my head. 17 In the top basket were all sorts of baked goods for Pharaoh, but the birds were eating them out of the basket on my head.”

18 “This is its interpretation,” Joseph replied. “The three baskets are three days. 19 In just three days Pharaoh will lift up your head — from off you — and hang you on a tree. fnY223

Joseph Interprets Pharaoh's Dreams

sn.1.41.1 2 when seven healthy-looking, well-fed cows came up from the Nile and began to graze among the reeds. 3 After them, seven other cows, sickly and thin, came up from the Nile and stood beside those cows along the bank of the Nile. 4 The sickly, thin cows ate the healthy, well-fed cows. Then Pharaoh woke up. 5 He fell asleep and dreamed a second time: Seven heads of grain, plump and ripe, came up on one stalk. 6 After them, seven heads of grain, thin and scorched by the east wind, sprouted up. 7 The thin heads of grain swallowed up the seven plump, ripe ones. Then Pharaoh woke up, and it was only a dream.

sn.1.41.8 Pharaoh told them his dreams, but no one could interpret them for him.

9 Then the chief cupbearer said to Pharaoh, “Today I remember my faults. 10 Pharaoh had been angry with his servants, and he put me and the chief baker in the custody of the captain of the guard. 11 He and I had dreams on the same night; each dream had its own meaning. 12 Now a young Hebrew, a slave of the captain of the guards, was with us there. We told him our dreams, he interpreted our dreams for us, and each had its own interpretation. 13 It turned out just the way he interpreted them to us: I was restored to my position, and the other man was hanged.” fn686

14 Then Pharaoh sent for Joseph, and they quickly brought him from the dungeon. fn687

sn.1.41.15

16 “I am not able to,” fn690

sn.1.41.17

sn.1.41.25

28 “It is just as I told Pharaoh: God has shown Pharaoh what He is about to do. 29 Seven fnY227 31 The abundance in the land will not be remembered because of the famine that follows it, for the famine will be very severe. 32 Since the dream was given twice to Pharaoh, it means that the matter has been determined by God, and He will carry it out soon.

sn.1.41.33 “So now, let Pharaoh look for a discerning and wise man and set him over the land of Egypt. 34 Let Pharaoh do this: Let him appoint overseers over the land and take a fifth of the harvest of the land of Egypt during the seven years of abundance. 35 Let them gather all the excess food during these good years that are coming. Under Pharaoh’s authority, store the grain in the cities, so they may preserve it as food. 36 The food will be a reserve for the land during the seven years of famine that will take place in the land of Egypt. Then the country will not be wiped out by the famine.”

Joseph Exalted

sn.1.41.37 the land of Egypt.

Joseph's Administration 46 Joseph was 30 years old when he entered the service of Pharaoh king of Egypt. Joseph left Pharaoh's presence and traveled throughout the land of Egypt.

sn.1.41.47 During the seven years of abundance the land produced outstanding harvests. 48 Joseph gathered all the excess food in the land of Egypt during the seven years and put it in the cities. He put the food in every city from the fields around it. 49 So Joseph stored up grain in such abundance — like the sand of the sea — that he stopped measuring it because it was beyond measure.

50 Two sons were born to Joseph before the years of famine arrived. fn700 bore them to him. 51 Joseph named the firstborn Manasseh, meaning, "God has made me forget all my hardship in my father's house." 52 And the second son he named Ephraim, meaning, "God has made me fruitful in the land of my affliction."

sn.1.41.53

Joseph’s Brothers in Egypt

sn.1.42.1 3 So 10 of Joseph’s brothers went down to buy grain from Egypt. 4 But Jacob did not send Joseph’s brother Benjamin with his brothers, for he thought, “Something might happen to him.”
5 The sons of Israel were among those who came to buy grain, for the famine was in the land of Canaan. sn.1.42.6 7 When Joseph saw his brothers, he recognized them, but he treated them like strangers and spoke harshly to them.
“Where do you come from? ” he asked.
“From the land of Canaan to buy food,” they replied.
8 Although Joseph recognized his brothers, they did not recognize him.
9 Joseph remembered his dreams about them fn705 of the land.”
10 “No, my lord. Your servants have come to buy food,” they said. 11 “We are all sons of one man. We are honest; your servants are not spies.”
12 “No,” he said to them. “You have come to see the weakness of the land.”
13 But they replied, “We, your servants, were 12 brothers, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan. The youngest is now fnY234 with our father, and one is no longer living.”
sn.1.42.14 ‘You are spies! ’ 15 This is how you will be tested: As surely as Pharaoh lives, you will not leave this place unless your youngest brother comes here. 16 Send one from among you to get your brother. The rest of you will be imprisoned so that your words can be tested to see if they are true. If they are not, then as surely as Pharaoh lives, you are spies! ” 17 So Joseph imprisoned them together for three days.
18 On the third day Joseph said to them, “I •fear be confined to the guardhouse, while the rest of you go and take grain to relieve the hunger of your households. 20 Bring your youngest brother to me so that your words can be confirmed; then you won’t die.” And they consented to this.
sn.1.42.21
22 But Reuben replied: “Didn’t I tell you not to harm the boy? fn708 23 They did not realize that Joseph understood them, since there was an interpreter between them. 24 He turned away from them and wept. Then he turned back and spoke to them. He took Simeon from them and had him bound before their eyes. 25 Joseph then gave orders to fill their containers with grain, return each man’s money to his sack, and give them provisions for their journey.
This order was carried out. 26 They loaded the grain on their donkeys and left there.

The Brothers Return Home

sn.1.42.27 At the place where they lodged for the night, one of them opened his sack to get feed for his donkey, and he saw his money there at the top of the bag.
28 He said to his brothers, “My money has been returned! It’s here in my bag.”
Their hearts sank. Trembling, they turned to one another and said, “What is this that God has done to us? ”

29 When they reached their father Jacob in the land of Canaan, they told him all that had happened to them: 30 “The man who is the lord of the country spoke harshly to us and accused us of spying on the country. 31 But we told him: We are honest and not spies. 32 We were 12 brothers, sons of the same fnY238 with our father in the land of Canaan. 33 The man who is the lord of the country said to us, ‘This is how I will know if you are honest: Leave one brother with me, take food to relieve the hunger of your households, and go. 34 Bring back your youngest brother to me, and I will know that you are not spies but honest men. I will then give your brother back to you, and you can trade in the country.’ ”

35 As they began emptying their sacks, there in each man’s sack was his bag of money! When they and their father saw their bags of money, they were afraid.

sn.1.42.36 Their father Jacob said to them, “You have deprived me of my sons.
Joseph is gone and Simeon is gone. Now you want to take Benjamin. Everything happens to me! ”

37 Then Reuben said to his father, “You can kill my two sons if I don’t bring him back to you. Put him in my care, fnY240 and I will return him to you.”

38 But Jacob answered, “My son will not go down with you, for his brother is dead and he alone is left. fn709

Decision to Return to Egypt

sn.1.43.1 [2] When they had used up the grain they had brought back from Egypt, their father said to them, “Go back and buy us some food.”

[3] But Judah said to him, “The man specifically warned us: ‘You will not see me again unless your brother is with you.’ [4] If you will send our brother with us, we will go down and buy food for you. [5] But if you will not send him, we will not go, for the man said to us, ‘You will not see me again unless your brother is with you.’ ” fn712

[6] “Why did you cause me so much trouble? ” Israel asked. “Why did you tell the man that you had another brother? ”

[7] They answered, “The man kept asking about us and our family: ‘Is your father still alive? Do you have another brother? ’ And we answered him accordingly. How could we know that he would say, ‘Bring your brother here’? ”

[8] Then Judah said to his father Israel, “Send the boy with me. We will be on our way so that we may live and not die — neither we, nor you, nor our children. [9] I will be responsible for him. You can hold me personally accountable! fnY241 [10] If we had not wasted time, we could have come back twice by now.”

sn.1.43.11

The Return to Egypt

sn.1.43.15 The men took this gift, double the amount of money, and Benjamin. They made their way down to Egypt and stood before Joseph.

16 When Joseph saw Benjamin with them, he said to his steward, fnY242 "Take the men to my house. Slaughter an animal and prepare it, for they will eat with me at noon." 17 The man did as Joseph had said and brought them to Joseph's house.

18 But the men were afraid because they were taken to Joseph's house. They said, "We have been brought here because of the money that was returned in our bags the first time. They intend to overpower us, seize us, make us slaves, and take our donkeys." 19 So they approached Joseph's steward fnY243 and spoke to him at the doorway of the house.

20 They said, "Sir, we really did come down here the first time only to buy food. 21 When we came to the place where we lodged for the night and opened our bags of grain, each one's money was at the top of his bag! fn716 It was the full amount of our money, and we have brought it back with us. 22 We have brought additional money with us to buy food. We don't know who put our money in the bags."

23 Then the steward said, "May you be well. Don't be afraid. Your God and the God of your father must have put treasure in your bags. I received your money." Then he brought Simeon out to them. 24 The steward brought the men into Joseph's house, gave them water to wash their feet, fn717 Since the men had heard that they were going to eat a meal there, they prepared their gift for Joseph's arrival at noon. 26 When Joseph came home, they brought him the gift they had carried into the house, and they bowed to the ground before him.

27 He asked if they were well, and he said, "How is your elderly father that you told me about? Is he still alive? "

28 They answered, "Your servant our father is well. He is still alive." And they bowed down to honor him.

sn.1.43.29 he said, "Serve the meal."

sn.1.43.32 They drank, and they got drunk with Joseph.

Joseph's Final Test

44 Then Joseph commanded his steward: “Fill the men’s bags with as much food as they can carry, and put each one’s money at the top of his bag.
fn721 Put my cup, the silver one, at the top of the youngest one’s bag, along with his grain money.” So he did as Joseph told him.

sn.1.44.3 What you have done is wrong! ’ ”

6 When he overtook them, he said these words to them. 7 They said to him, “Why does my lord say these things? Your servants could not possibly do such a thing. 8 We even brought back to you from the land of Canaan the money we found at the top of our bags. How could we steal gold and silver from your master’s house? 9 If any of us is fnY244

10 The steward replied, “What you have said is right, but only the one who is found to have it will be my slave, and the rest of you will be blameless.”

11 So each one quickly lowered his sack to the ground and opened it. 12 The steward searched, beginning with the oldest and ending with the youngest, and the cup was found in Benjamin’s sack. 13 Then they tore their clothes, fn725 and each one loaded his donkey and returned to the city.

sn.1.44.14 15 “What is this you have done? ” Joseph said to them. “Didn’t you know that a man like me could uncover the truth by divination? ”

16 “What can we say to my lord? ” Judah replied. “How can we plead? How can we justify ourselves? God has exposed your servants’ iniquity. We are now my lord’s slaves — both we and the one in whose possession the cup was found.”

17 Then Joseph said, “I swear that I will not do this. The man in whose possession the cup was found will be my slave. The rest of you can go in peace to your father.”

Judah’s Plea for Benjamin sn.1.44.18

24 “This is what happened when we went back to your servant my father: We reported your words to him. 25 But our father said, ‘Go again, and buy us some food.’ fn731

sn.1.44.30 33 Now please let your servant remain here as my lord’s slave, in place of the boy. Let him go back with his brothers. 34 For how can I go back to my father without the boy? I could not bear to see the grief that would overwhelm my father.”

Joseph Reveals His Identity

sn.1.45.1 2 But he wept so loudly that the Egyptians heard it, and also Pharaoh’s household heard it. 3 Joseph said to his brothers, “I am Joseph! Is my father still living? ” But they could not answer him because they were terrified in his presence.

4 Then Joseph said to his brothers, “Please, come near me,” and they came near. “I am Joseph, your brother,” he said, “the one you sold into Egypt. fn736 8 Therefore it was not you who sent me here, but God. He has made me a father to Pharaoh, lord of his entire household, and ruler over all the land of Egypt.

14 Then Joseph threw his arms around Benjamin and wept, and Benjamin wept on his shoulder. 15 Joseph kissed each of his brothers as he wept, fnY249 and afterward his brothers talked with him.

The Return for Jacob

sn.1.45.21 23 He sent his father the following: 10 donkeys carrying the best products of Egypt and 10 female donkeys carrying grain, food, and provisions for his father on the journey. 24 So Joseph sent his brothers on their way, and as they were leaving, he said to them, “Don’t argue on the way.”

sn.1.45.25 for he did not believe them. 27 But when they told Jacob all that Joseph had said to them, and when he saw the wagons that Joseph had sent to transport him, the spirit of their father Jacob revived.

28 Then Israel said, “Enough! My son Joseph is still alive. I will go to see him before I die.”

Jacob Leaves for Egypt

46 Israel set out with all that he had and came to Beer-sheba, [a] and he offered sacrifices to the God of his father Isaac. 2 That night God spoke to Israel in a vision: [b] “Jacob, Jacob! ” He said.
And Jacob replied, “Here I am.”
3 God said, “I am God, the God of your father. Do not be afraid to go down to Egypt, for I will make you into a great nation there. [c] 4 I will go down with you to Egypt, and I will also bring you back. [d] Joseph will put his hands on your eyes.” [e, f]
5 Jacob left Beer-sheba. The sons of Israel took their father Jacob in the wagons Pharaoh had sent to carry him, [g] along with their children and their wives. 6 They also took their cattle and possessions they had acquired in the land of Canaan. Then Jacob and all his children went with him to Egypt. [h] 7 His sons and grandsons, his daughters and granddaughters, indeed all his •offspring , he brought with him to Egypt.

Jacob Arrives in Egypt

28 Now Jacob had sent Judah ahead of him to Joseph to prepare for his arrival D at Goshen. x When they came to the land of Goshen, 29 Joseph hitched the horses to his chariot and went up to Goshen to meet his father Israel. Joseph presented himself to him, threw his arms around him, and wept for a long time. y 30 Then Israel said to Joseph, “At last I can die, now that I have seen your face and know you are still alive! ” 31 Joseph said to his brothers and to his father’s household, “I will go up and inform Pharaoh, telling him: My brothers and my father’s household, who were in the land of Canaan, have come to me. z 32 The men are shepherds; they also raise livestock. They have brought their sheep and cattle and all that they have.
33 When Pharaoh addresses you and asks, ‘What is your occupation? ’ 34 you are to say, ‘Your servants, both we and our fathers, have raised livestock E from our youth until now.’ Then you will be allowed to settle in the land of Goshen, since all shepherds are abhorrent to Egyptians.” a

Pharaoh Welcomes Jacob

47 So Joseph went and informed Pharaoh: “My father and my brothers, with their sheep and cattle and all that they own, have come from the land of Canaan and are now in the land of Goshen.” [a] 2 He took five of his brothers and presented them before Pharaoh. [b] 3 Then Pharaoh asked his brothers, “What is your occupation? ”
And they said to Pharaoh, “Your servants, both we and our fathers, are shepherds.” [c] 4 Then they said to Pharaoh, “We have come to live in the land for a while because there is no grazing land for your servants’ sheep, since the famine in the land of Canaan has been severe. [d] So now, please let your servants settle in the land of Goshen.”
5 Then Pharaoh said to Joseph, “Now that your father and brothers have come to you, 6 the land of Egypt is open before you; settle your father and brothers in the best part of the land. [e] They can live in the land of Goshen. If you know of any capable men among them, put them in charge of my livestock.” [f] 7 Joseph then brought his father Jacob and presented him before Pharaoh, and Jacob blessed Pharaoh. 8 Then Pharaoh said to Jacob, “How many years have you lived? ” [A] 9 Jacob said to Pharaoh, “My pilgrimage [g] has lasted 130 years. My years have been few and hard, [h] and they have not surpassed the years of my fathers during their pilgrimages.” [i] 10 So Jacob blessed Pharaoh and departed from Pharaoh’s presence.
11 Then Joseph settled his father and brothers in the land of Egypt and gave them property in the best part of the land, the land of Rameses, [j] as Pharaoh had commanded. 12 And Joseph provided his father, his brothers, and all his father’s household with food for their dependents. [k]

The Land Becomes Pharaoh’s 13 But there was no food in that entire region, for the famine was very severe. The land of Egypt and the land of Canaan were exhausted by the famine. 14 Joseph collected all the money to be found in the land of Egypt and the land of Canaan in exchange for the grain they were purchasing, and he brought the money to Pharaoh’s palace. [l] 15 When the money from the land of Egypt and the land of Canaan was gone, all the Egyptians came to Joseph and said, “Give us food. Why should we die here in front of you? The money is gone! ” 16 But Joseph said, “Give me your livestock. Since the money is gone, I will give you food in exchange for your livestock.” 17 So they brought their livestock to Joseph, and he gave them food in exchange for the horses, the herds of sheep, the herds of cattle, and the donkeys. That year he provided them with food in exchange for all their livestock.

18 When that year was over, they came the next year and said to him, “We cannot hide from our lord that the money is gone and that all our livestock belongs to our lord. There is nothing left for our lord except our bodies and our land. 19 Why should we die here in front of you — both us and our land? Buy us and our land in exchange for food. Then we with our land will become Pharaoh’s slaves. Give us seed so that we can live and not die, and so that the land won’t become desolate.”

20 In this way, Joseph acquired all the land in Egypt for Pharaoh, because every Egyptian sold his field since the famine was so severe for them. The land became Pharaoh’s, 21 and Joseph moved the people to the cities [m] from one end of Egypt to the other. 22 The only land he didn’t acquire was the priests’ portion, for it was given to them by Pharaoh. They lived off [B] the rations Pharaoh had given them; therefore they did not sell their land.

23 Then Joseph said to the people, “Understand today that I have acquired you and your land for Pharaoh. Here is seed for you. Sow it in the land. 24 At harvest, you are to give a fifth of it to Pharaoh, [n] and four-fifths will be yours as seed for the field and as food for yourselves, your households, and your dependents.”

25 And they said, “You have saved our lives. We have found favor in our lord’s eyes and will be Pharaoh’s slaves.” 26 So Joseph made it a law, still in effect today in the land of Egypt, that a fifth of the produce belongs to Pharaoh. Only the priests’ land does not belong to Pharaoh.

Israel Settles in Goshen 27 Israel settled in the land of Egypt, in the region of Goshen. They acquired property in it and became fruitful and very numerous. [o] 28 Now Jacob lived in the land of Egypt 17 years, and his life span was 147 years. 29 When the time drew near for him to die, [p] he called his son Joseph and said to him, “If I have found favor in your eyes, put your hand under my thigh [q] and promise me that you will deal with me in kindness and faithfulness. [r] Do not bury me in Egypt. 30 When I rest with my fathers, carry me away from Egypt and bury me in their burial place.” [s]

Joseph answered, “I will do what you have asked.”

31 And Jacob said, “Swear to me.” So Joseph swore to him. Then Israel bowed in thanks at the head of his bed. [C, t]

Jacob Blesses Ephraim and Manasseh

48 Some time after this, Joseph was told, “Your father is weaker.” So he set out with his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim. 2 When Jacob was told,
“Your son Joseph has come to you,” Israel summoned his strength and sat up in bed.

3 Jacob said to Joseph, “•God Almighty [a] appeared to me at Luz [b] in the land of Canaan and blessed me. 4 He said to me, ‘I will make you fruitful and numerous; I will make many nations come from you, and I will give this land as an eternal possession [c] to your future descendants.’ [d] 5 Your two sons [e] born to you in the land of Egypt before I came to you in Egypt are now mine. [f] Ephraim and Manasseh belong to me just as Reuben and Simeon do. 6 Children born to you after them will be yours and will be recorded under the names of their brothers with regard to their inheritance. 7 When I was returning from Paddan, to my sorrow Rachel died along the way, [g] some distance from Ephrath in the land of Canaan. I buried her there along the way to Ephrath,” (that is, Bethlehem).

8 When Israel saw Joseph’s sons, he said, “Who are these? ”

9 And Joseph said to his father, “They are my sons God has given me here.”

So Jacob said, “Bring them to me and I will bless them.” [h] 10 Now his eyesight was poor because of old age; he could hardly [A] see. [i] Joseph brought them to him, and he kissed and embraced them. [j] 11 Israel said to Joseph, “I never expected to see your face again, but now God has even let me see your •offspring .” 12 Then Joseph took them from his father’s knees and bowed with his face to the ground. [k]

Ephraim’s Greater Blessing

13 Then Joseph took them both — with his right hand Ephraim toward Israel’s left, and with his left hand Manasseh toward Israel’s right — and brought them to Israel. 14 But Israel stretched out his right hand and put it on the head of Ephraim, the younger, and crossing his hands, put his left on Manasseh’s head, although Manasseh was the firstborn. [l] 15 Then he blessed Joseph and said:

The God before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac walked, [m]
the God who has been my shepherd [n] all my life to this day, 16 the Angel who has redeemed me from all harm [o] —
may He bless these boys.
And may they be called by my name and the names of my fathers Abraham and Isaac, [p]
and may they grow to be numerous within the land.

17 When Joseph saw that his father had placed his right hand on Ephraim's head, he thought it was a mistake [B] and took his father's hand to move it from Ephraim's head to Manasseh's. 18 Joseph said to his father, "Not that way, my father! This one is the firstborn. Put your right hand on his head." 19 But his father refused and said, "I know, my son, I know! He too will become a tribe, [C] and he too will be great; nevertheless, his younger brother will be greater than he, and his offspring will become a populous nation." [D] 20 So he blessed them that day with these words:

The nation Israel will invoke blessings by you, saying,
"May God make you like Ephraim and Manasseh," putting Ephraim before Manasseh.

21 Then Israel said to Joseph, "Look, I am about to die, but God will be with you and will bring you back to the land of your fathers. [q] 22 Over and above what I am giving your brothers, I am giving you the one mountain slope [E] that I took from the hand of the Amorites with my sword and bow." [r]

Jacob’s Last Words

49 Then Jacob called his sons and said, “Gather around, and I will tell you what will happen to you in the days to come. [A, a]

2 Come together and listen, sons of Jacob;
listen to your father Israel:

3 Reuben, you are my firstborn, [b]
my strength and the firstfruits of my virility, [c] excelling in prominence, excelling in power.
4 Turbulent as water, you will no longer excel, because you got into your father’s bed [d]
and you defiled it — he [e] got into my bed.

5 Simeon and Levi are brothers;
their knives are vicious weapons. [f]
6 May I never enter their council;
may I never join their assembly.
For in their anger they kill men,
and on a whim they hamstring oxen.
7 Their anger is cursed, for it is strong,
and their fury, for it is cruel!
I will disperse them throughout Jacob and scatter them throughout Israel. [g]

8 Judah, your brothers will praise you. [h]
Your hand will be on the necks of your enemies;
your father’s sons will bow down to you. [i] 9 Judah is a young lion [j] —
my son, you return from the kill.
He crouches; he lies down like a lion
or a lioness — who dares to rouse him?
10 The scepter will not depart from Judah or the staff from between his feet until He whose right it is comes [B, k]
and the obedience of the peoples belongs to Him. [l] 11 He ties his donkey to a vine,
and the colt of his donkey to the choice vine.
He washes his clothes in wine and his robes in the blood of grapes.

12 His eyes are darker than wine, and his teeth are whiter than milk.

13 Zebulun will live by the seashore and will be a harbor for ships, and his territory will be next to Sidon. [m]

14 Issachar is a strong donkey lying down between the saddlebags. [C] 15 He saw that his resting place was good and that the land was pleasant, so he leaned his shoulder to bear a load and became a forced laborer. [n]

16 Dan will judge his people [o]
as one of the tribes of Israel.
17 He will be a snake by the road,
a viper beside the path,
that bites the horses' heels
so that its rider falls backward.

18 I wait for Your salvation, LORD.

19 Gad will be attacked by raiders,
but he will attack their heels. [p]

20 Asher's [q] food will be rich, and he will produce royal delicacies. [r]

21 Naphtali is a doe set free that bears beautiful fawns. [s]

22 Joseph is a fruitful vine, a fruitful vine beside a spring;
its branches [D] climb over the wall. [E] 23 The archers attacked him, shot at him, and were hostile toward him.
24 Yet his bow remained steady, and his strong [F] arms were made agile
by the hands of the Mighty One of Jacob, [t]
by the name of [u] the Shepherd, [v] the Rock of Israel, [w]

25 by the God of your father who helps you, and by the •Almighty who blesses you with blessings of the heavens above, blessings of the deep that lies below,
and blessings of the breasts and the womb.
26 The blessings of your father excel
the blessings of my ancestors G and H the bounty of the eternal hills. I, x May they rest on the head of Joseph,
on the crown of the prince of his brothers.

27 Benjamin is a wolf; he tears his prey.
In the morning he devours the prey,
and in the evening he divides the plunder." y

28 These are the tribes of Israel, 12 in all, and this was what their father said to them. He blessed them, and he blessed each one with a suitable blessing.

Jacob's Burial Instructions

29 Then he commanded them: "I am about to be gathered to my people. z Bury me with my fathers a in the cave in the field of Ephron the Hittite. b 30 The cave is in the field of Machpelah near Mamre, in the land of Canaan. This is the field Abraham purchased from Ephron the Hittite as a burial site. c 31 Abraham and his wife Sarah are buried there, d Isaac and his wife Rebekah are buried there, e and I buried Leah there. f 32 The field and the cave in it were purchased from the Hittites." 33 When Jacob had finished instructing his sons, he drew his feet into the bed and died. He was gathered to his people.

Jacob’s Burial

50 Then Joseph, leaning over his father's face, wept and kissed him. 2 He commanded his servants who were physicians to embalm his father. So they embalmed Israel. 3 They took 40 days to complete this, for embalming takes that long, and the Egyptians mourned for him 70 days. [a]

4 When the days of mourning were over, Joseph said to Pharaoh's household, "If I have found favor with you, please tell [A] Pharaoh that 5 my father made me take an oath, [b] saying, 'I am about to die. You must bury me there in the tomb that I made for myself in the land of Canaan.' [c] Now let me go and bury my father. Then I will return."

6 So Pharaoh said, "Go and bury your father in keeping with your oath."

7 Then Joseph went to bury his father, and all Pharaoh's servants, the elders of his household, and all the elders of the land of Egypt went with him, 8 along with all Joseph's household, his brothers, and his father's household. Only their children, their sheep, and their cattle were left in the land of Goshen. 9 Horses and chariots went up with him; it was a very impressive procession. 10 When they reached the threshing floor of Atad, which is across the Jordan, they lamented and wept loudly, and Joseph mourned seven days for his father. 11 When the Canaanite inhabitants of the land saw the mourning at the threshing floor of Atad, they said, "This is a solemn mourning on the part of the Egyptians." Therefore the place is named Abel-mizraim. [d] It is across the Jordan.

12 So Jacob's sons did for him what he had commanded them. 13 They carried him to the land of Canaan and buried him in the cave at Machpelah in the field near Mamre, which Abraham had purchased as a burial site from Ephron the Hittite. [e] 14 After Joseph buried his father, he returned to Egypt with his brothers and all who had gone with him to bury his father.

Joseph's Kindness

15 When Joseph's brothers saw that their father was dead, they said to one another, "If Joseph is holding a grudge against us, he will certainly repay us for all the suffering we caused him." [f]

16 So they sent this message to Joseph, "Before he died your father gave a command: 17 'Say this to Joseph: Please forgive your brothers' transgression and their sin — the suffering they caused you.' Therefore, please forgive the transgression of the servants of the God of your father." Joseph wept [g] when their message came to him. 18 Then his brothers also came to him, bowed down before him, and said, "We are your slaves! "

19 But Joseph said to them, “Don’t be afraid. Am I in the place of God? [h]
20 You planned evil against me; God planned it for good to bring about the present result — the survival of many people. [i] 21 Therefore don’t be afraid. I will take care of you and your little ones.” [j] And he comforted them and spoke kindly to them. [B]

Joseph’s Death

22 Joseph and his father’s household remained in Egypt. Joseph lived 110 years. 23 He saw Ephraim’s sons to the third generation; [k] the sons of Manasseh’s son Machir were recognized by [C, l] Joseph. [m]

24 Joseph said to his brothers, “I am about to die, [n] but God will certainly come to your aid and bring you up from this land to the land He promised Abraham, [o] Isaac, [p] and Jacob.” [q] 25 So Joseph made the sons of Israel take an oath: “When God comes to your aid, you are to carry my bones up from here.” [r]

26 Joseph died at the age of 110. They embalmed him and placed him in a coffin in Egypt.

GENESIS

Introduction

The book of Genesis is the great book of beginnings in the Bible. True to the meanings of its Hebrew and Greek names (Hb bere'shith, "In Beginning" [based on 1:1]; Gk Geneseos, "Of Birth" [based on 2:4]), Genesis permits us to view the beginning of a multitude of realities that shape our daily existence: the creation of the universe and the planet earth; the origins of plant and animal life; and the origins of human beings, marriage, families, nations, industry, artistic expression, religious ritual, prophecy, sin, law, crime, conflict, punishment, and death.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Since pre-Christian times authorship of the Torah, the five books that include the book of Genesis, has been attributed to Moses, an enormously influential Israelite leader from the second millennium B.C. with an aristocratic Egyptian background. Even though Genesis is technically anonymous, both the Old and New Testaments unanimously recognize Moses as the Torah's author (Jos 8:35; 23:6; 1Kg 2:3; 8:9; 2Kg 14:6; 23:25; 2Ch 23:18; 25:4; 30:16; 34:14; 35:12; Ezr 3:2; 6:18; Neh 8:1; 9:14; Dn 9:11,13; Mal 4:4; Mk 12:19,26; Lk 2:22; 20:28; 24:44; Jn 1:17,45; 7:19; Ac 13:39; 15:21; 28:23; Rm 10:5; 1Co 9:9; Heb 10:28). At the same time, evidence in Genesis suggests that minor editorial changes dating to ancient times have been inserted into the text. Examples include the mention of "Dan" (14:14), a city that was not named until the days of the judges (Jdg 18:29), and the use of a phrase that assumed the existence of Israelite kings (Gn 36:31).

Background: The Torah (a Hebrew term for law) was seen as one unit until at least the second century B.C. Sometime prior to the birth of Christ, the Torah was divided into five separate books, later referred to as the Pentateuch (literally, five vessels). Genesis, the first book of the Torah, provides both the universal history of humankind and the patriarchal history of the nation of Israel. The first section (chaps. 1-11) is a general history commonly called the "primeval history," showing how all humanity descended from one couple and became sinners. The second section (chaps. 12-50) is a more specific history commonly referred to as the "patriarchal history," focusing on the covenant God made with Abraham and his descendants: Isaac, Jacob, and Jacob's 12 sons. Genesis unfolds God's plan to bless and redeem humanity through Abraham's descendants. The book concludes with the events that led to the Israelites being in the land of Egypt.

Message and Purpose Creation: God is the sovereign Lord and Creator of all things. God created everything out of nothing. No pre-existent material existed. He is the Creator, not a craftsman. This indicates that He has infinite power and perfect control over everything. He is separate from the created order, and no part of creation is to be considered an extension of God. All that God created is good, because He is a good and majestic God. God is Lord, maintaining sovereignty and involvement with His creation. God's control over human history is so complete that even the worst of human deeds can be turned to serve His benevolent purposes (50:20).

Human life: Adam and Eve were created in the image of God, unique from the rest of creation, to have fellowship with Him. Humans are a paradox. On the one hand, people are the capstone of all God's creation, created in God's image (1:26-27) and possessing Godlike authority over all the created order within their realm (1:28-29; 9:1-3). On the other hand, they are sinners—beings who have used their God-given resources and abilities in ways that violate God's laws (2:17; 3:6) and hurt other people (3:8-11; 6:5,11-12). Even so, during their lifetime God expects people to follow His laws (4:7), and He blesses those who live according to His ways (6:8-9; 39:2,21). God wants to work through individuals to bring a blessing to every human life (18:18; 22:18; 26:4). Nevertheless, Genesis teaches that because of sin all human beings must die (2:17; 3:19; 5:5,8,11). Since all human life is created in the image of God, there is no person or class of humans superior to others. Humanity was created to live in community. The most fundamental unit of community is the family: a husband and wife (male and female) with children.

Sin: Evil and sin did not originate with God. Adam and Eve were created innocent and with the capacity to make choices. Sin entered the world at a specific place and time in history. Adam and Eve chose freely to disobey God, fell from innocence, and lost their freedom. Their sinful nature has passed to every other human being. Sin resulted in death, both physical and spiritual. Sin has led to a world of pain and struggle.

Covenant: Genesis is a narrative of relationships, and certainly relationships grounded in covenants with God. These covenants provide a unifying principle for understanding the whole of Scripture and define the relationship between God and man. The heart of that relationship is found in the phrase, "They will be My people, and I will be their God" (Jr 32:38; cp. Gn 17:7-8; Ex 6:6-7; Lv 26:12; Dt 4:20; Jr 11:4; Ezk 11:20). God's covenant with Abraham is a major event both in Genesis and throughout the Bible. God called Abraham out of Ur to go to Canaan, promising to make him a great nation which in turn would bless all nations (Gn 12:1-3). God repeats His oath in Genesis 22:18, adding further that it would be through Abraham's seed that all nations would someday be blessed. Paul applies the singular noun "seed" as a reference to Christ (Gl 3:16). It is through Christ, Abraham's prophesied descendant, that the blessings of the Abrahamic Covenant would come to every nation.

Contribution to the Bible Genesis lays the groundwork for everything else we read and experience in Scripture. Through Genesis we understand where we came from, how we got in the fallen state we are in, and the beginnings of God's gracious work on our behalf. Genesis unfolds God's original purpose for humanity.

Genesis provides the foundation from which we understand God's covenant with Israel that was established with the giving of the Law. For the Israelite community, the stories of the origins of humanity, sin, and the covenant relationship with God helped them understand why God gave them the Law.

Structure Genesis is chiefly a narrative. From a narrative standpoint, God is the only true hero of the Bible, and the book of Genesis has the distinct privilege of introducing Him. God is the first subject of a verb in the book and is mentioned more frequently than any other character in the Bible. The content of the first 11 chapters is distinct from the patriarchal stories in chapters 12-50. The primary literary device is the catchphrase "these are the family records." The phrase is broader in meaning than simply "generation," and refers more to a narrative account. This was a common practice in ancient Near East writings. This phrase also serves as a link between the key person in the previous narrative and the one anticipated in the next section. Genesis could be described as historical genealogy, which ties together creation and human history in one continuum.

Study Notes 1:1 This opening verse of the Bible, seven words in the Hebrew, establishes seven key truths upon which the rest of the Bible is based.

First, God exists. The essential first step in pleasing God is recognizing His existence (Heb 11:6). Second, God existed before there was a universe and will exist after the universe perishes (Heb 1:10-12). Third, God is the main character in the Bible. He is the subject of the first verb in the Bible (in fact, He is the subject of more verbs than any other character) and performs a wider variety of activities than any other being in the Bible. Fourth, as Creator God has done what no human being could ever do; in its active form the Hebrew verb bara' , meaning "to create," never has a human subject. Thus bara' signifies a work that is uniquely God's. Fifth, God is mysterious; though the Hebrew word for God is plural, the verb form of which "God" is the subject is singular. This is perhaps a subtle allusion to God's Trinitarian nature: He is three divine persons in one divine essence. Sixth, God is the Creator of heaven and earth. He doesn't just modify pre-existing matter but calls matter into being out of nothing (Ps 33:6,9; Heb 11:3). Seventh, God is not dependent on the universe, but the universe is totally dependent on God (Heb 1:3).

1:2 Bible translations since the time of the Septuagint, the translation of the OT into Greek (ca 175 B.C.), have rendered the first Hebrew verb in this verse as was. However, in an effort to explain the origins of evil and/or find biblical evidence for an old earth, some Bible scholars have suggested that this verb should be translated as "became." Citing evidence in Is 14:12-21 and Ezk 28:12-19, they believe a time gap, possibly a vast one, exists between the first two verses of the Bible, during which Satan led a rebellion in heaven against God. This allows interpreters to suggest that the early earth was formless and empty because Satan's rebellion marred God's good creation. However, the construction of this sentence in the original Hebrew favors the traditional translation ("was" rather than "became").

The sense of verse 2 is that God created the earth "formless and empty" as an unfinished and unfilled state. Working through an orderly process over a period of six days, God formed (days 1-3) and filled (days 4-6) His created handiwork. The "forming" was accomplished by means of three acts of separating or sorting various elements of creation from one another. The "filling" was carried out through five acts of populating the newly created domains. Watery depths, a single word in Hebrew, suggests an original state of creation that was shapeless as liquid water. The Hebrew verb translated was hovering, used also in Dt 32:11, suggests that the Spirit of God was watching over His creation just as a bird watches over its young.

1:3 A foundational teaching of the Bible is that God speaks and does so with universe-changing authority. The command in this verse is just two words in Hebrew.

1:4 Another basic truth of the Bible is that God saw; this means He is fully aware of His creation. Later writers directly declared that God is aware of events occurring throughout the earth (2Ch 16:9; Zch 4:10). The term good, used here for the first of seven times in this chapter to evaluate God's creative work, can be used to express both high quality and moral excellence. The physical universe is a good place because God made it. God found satisfaction in His labor. This first instance where God separated created the twin realms of light and darkness, day and night. God's activity in the material world parallels the role He also performs in the moral universe, that of the righteous Judge distinguishing between those who live in moral light and those who do not (1Th 5:5).

1:5 In ancient Israel, the act of naming an object, place, or person indicated that you held control over it (35:10; 41:45; Nm 32:42; Dt 3:14; Jos 19:47; 2Kg 23:34; 24:17). When God named the light and the darkness, He asserted His lordship and control over all of time. Evening came. In ancient Israelite and modern Jewish tradition, sundown is the transition point from one day to the next.

1:6 Based on a verb that can refer to covering something with a thin sheet of metal (Nm 16:39; Is 40:19), the noun expanse always refers to the vast spread of the open sky.

1:7 God's second act of separation was to divide atmospheric water from terrestrial water. Thus He began the process of giving form to the material world. The clause it was so, found six times in this chapter, emphasizes God's absolute power over creation.

1:8 Sky can refer to the earth's atmospheric envelope (v. 20), outer space (v. 15), or "heaven," the spiritual realm where God lives (Ps 11:4).

1:9 God's third and final act of separation created oceans and continents.

1:10 In His third and final act of naming, God demonstrated His authority over all of the earth. This contrasts with what Israel's polytheistic neighbors believed about the range of divine powers. Their gods were not all-powerful, but instead exercised authority over a limited territory. The God of Genesis 1 holds dominion over everything at all times and in all places.

1:11 In preparation for the rise of animal and human life, God provided an abundant supply of food. The consistent biblical teaching is that "like begets like" (Lk 6:44; Jms 3:12); Gn 1:11-12 establish that principle for plant life. While five of the six days contain at least one act of creation evaluated as good, only the third and sixth days have this statement more than once.

1:14-15 The events of day four complement those of day one, filling the day and night with finished forms of light. The various lights, or "light-giving objects," were worshiped as gods in the cultures that surrounded ancient Israel. In Genesis, however, the sun, moon, and stars are portrayed as servants of God that would fulfill three roles: separating the newly created realms of day and night; marking time so that those who worshiped the Creator could keep their appointed festivals (cp. Lv 23:4,44); and providing light on the earth.

1:20 The fifth day's events complement those of day two, filling the newly formed heavenly domains above and the watery regions below.

1:21 The reuse of the verb created (Hb bara' ; cp. v. 1) emphasizes God's authority over the large sea-creatures. This point was especially significant to the ancient Israelites, whose neighbors worshiped Rahab, a mythical sea monster.

1:22 The first of three blessings God pronounced in the creation narrative occurred when God blessed the water animals and birds. This blessing is similar to the one for persons, but lacks the commands to "subdue" and "rule" (v. 28).

1:26 God's use of plural pronouns (Us . . . Our . . . Our) to refer to Himself has raised many questions (3:22; 11:7; Is 6:8). At least five different suggestions have been put forward to explain them: they may be references to (1) the Trinity, (2) God and His angels, (3) God and creation, (4) God's majesty as expressed by a literary device known as the "plural of majesty," or (5) a polytheistic view of God. Since the Bible teaches elsewhere that there is only one God (Dt 6:4; Mk 12:29; 1Co 8:4), the fifth option is not tenable.

The two Hebrew words translated as image and likeness are often understood as having the same meaning. But some interpreters suggest that "image" refers to the ability to reason, with "likeness" referring to the spiritual dimension. What exactly is the "image" of God? Since the Bible teaches that God is Spirit (Jn 4:24), many commentators believe it refers to the non-material aspects of a person—our moral sensibilities, intellectual abilities, will, and emotions. Based on God's commands in Gn 1:28, others have suggested that it consists of the role humans are to play on earth—their rulership over the planet and its resources, and secondarily the physical, mental, and spiritual abilities that enable them to fulfill that role. The NT teaches that Christians will someday bear the image of Christ (1Co 15:49; 1Jn 3:2).

1:27 The creation of humanity is the crowning event of chapter 1, as shown by the fact that created is repeated three times. The verb "created" (Hb bara') is the same one used in 1:1, referring to a kind of creative activity that only God can do. The term "man" (Hb 'adam) is used elsewhere in the Hebrew Bible to refer to humanity in general, not just males (7:21); all people, both male and female, are created in the image of God (cp. Jms 3:9). People are the only beings that are created in the image of God (Gn 9:3-6). The Bible never lumps people into the category of animals. Instead, it separates the creation of people from all other beings and attributes the most privileged roles in creation to humans alone.

1:28 In this the longest of the five blessings found in the account of creation, God gave humanity five different commands. Implicit in the first three commands is God's blessing on the institutions of marriage and the family. The final two commands, to subdue the earth and rule the animal kingdom, express God's blessing on the use of the planet's renewable and nonrenewable natural resources. Of course, only the wise use of these resources permits people to fulfill God's command to fill the earth. A similar command to the survivors of the flood is shorter, having only the first three verbs in it (9:1).

1:29 After the flood in Noah's day, God issued additional dietary guidelines that expanded humanity's permitted food sources beyond plants and trees to include meats (9:3).

1:30 The Bible does not address the issue of diet for carnivorous and insect-eating animals.

1:31 This is the seventh, final, and most elaborate use of the word good in the account of the seven days of creation.

2:1 This verse serves as a complement to 1:1. Together, the two set the first six days of creation apart from the sacred seventh day.

2:2 This is the first use of the number seven in the Bible, a number that will play an especially significant role in the religious and social life of ancient Israel (4:15; 7:2-4,10; 21:28-31; 29:18-20). On the seventh day God rested, thus setting an example for people—who are made in His image—to follow (Ex 20:8-11; Dt 5:12-14). Though God rested from all His work that He had done, this is not to say that God has abandoned the universe. In the NT Jesus affirmed that God is still at work in the world, even on the Sabbath (Jn 5:16-17).

2:3 This is the only instance during the creation process when God blessed a unit of time. The term holy is applied in the Bible to something set aside for service to God.

2:4 The Hebrew word toledoth, translated here as records, is used 11 times in the book of Genesis to introduce new units of material (5:1; 6:9; 10:1; 11:10,27; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2). Here it introduces a detailed elaboration of some key aspects of the creation account that opens the book of Genesis (1:1-2:3). Special emphasis is placed on the events of day six. Verse 4 includes the first use of God's personal name, rendered in English as the LORD, the most commonly used noun in the OT. The Hebrew spelling is transliterated as "YHWH," a word Jews considered so sacred that they would not permit themselves to pronounce it. Its accurate pronunciation is thus unknown, though common suggestions include "Jehovah" and "Yahweh."

2:6 This source of water, a bountiful blessing that provided moisture for the entire surface of the land in the time of human innocence, later became a source of judgment on humanity's sin (7:11).

2:7 The Hebrew verb translated here as formed is used elsewhere in the Bible to describe the potter's profession (Jr 18:4; Zch 11:13); God acts here as the divine potter, skillfully fashioning man out of the dust from the ground. But the Bible makes it very clear that people are more than just material beings. It was only when God breathed into the man's nostrils the breath of life that Adam became alive. God is Spirit (Jn 4:24); thus, when God breathed into him, Adam and all later human beings became a unique mix of the physical and the spiritual. The Hebrew phrase translated as living being is used elsewhere in Genesis to describe other types of living beings (1:20,24,30; 9:12,15-16). Nevertheless, humans are considered to be in a class by themselves since they alone are made in God's image.

2:8 The location of Eden is unknown; suggestions include Armenia, Iraq, Africa, and Arabia. Changes in geography caused by the flood in Noah's day (7:11) make it unlikely that Eden will ever be discovered. The Hebrew word "Eden" literally means "pleasantness."

2:9 God's concern for beauty is seen in the fact that the trees He caused to grow were pleasing in appearance. The Lord's love of beauty will later be extended to Israel's religion, which will make use of furnishings fashioned by expert craftsmen using expensive materials (Ex 25-40). Of course, God's beautiful created works were also practical, being good for food.

2:10 The abundance of the waters supplied in the garden of Eden is indicated by the fact that it served as the headwaters for four rivers.

2:11 The location of the Pishon river is unknown. A land known as Havilah existed in the region of the Arabian peninsula at a later point in time (1Sm 15:7), but the preflood land may have represented a different locale.

2:13 The locations of the Gihon river and Cush are unknown. A later Cush was located in the region of modern Ethiopia and Sudan (Est 1:1).

2:14 The Tigris and Euphrates rivers, as well as Assyria, probably correspond to geographical features associated with modern Iraq.

2:15 The Hebrew word translated as placed literally means, "caused to rest"; this pre-sin state of rest anticipates the "rest" ("relief"; 5:29) that would again come to humanity because of righteous Noah, as well as the rest that God would again give Israel following its episode of calf worship (Ex 32:1-21; 33:14). As a being created in God's image, Adam, like God, was to be a worker. Without the taint of sin, work was an undiluted blessing. The verb translated here as "work" literally means "serve." Adam's second task in the garden was to watch over it. The verb is used elsewhere to refer to the action of God toward His people (Ps 121:3-4) or the work of a military guard (Sg 5:7).

2:16 The seriousness of God's order is reflected in the fact that it is introduced by a two-verb phrase in Hebrew, rendered simply as commanded in the HCSB. This formula was used frequently to express royal decrees (1Sm 18:22; 2Sm 18:5). God gave Adam both freedom and limits. The God-given freedoms vastly outnumbered the limitations. After all, Adam was free to eat from any tree of the garden except one.

2:17 The only limit God placed on Adam was eating from the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, which apparently imparted divine wisdom (3:22). Eating the forbidden fruit represented Adam's rejection of God as the source of divine wisdom and his choice to pursue wisdom apart from God. God's penalty for disobedience was stated especially forcefully in the original language, with a two-verb construction, "dying you shall die" (you will certainly die). Death would certainly come to Adam and all humanity after him; but the death that God warned about would be more than physical (3:19). Besides severing the cord of life, sin would shatter the harmonious relationship that existed between Adam and his environment (3:17-18), his wife (3:16), and God.

2:18 The theme of God providing for Adam's needs (see note at v. 8) is picked up again here, as God declared that Adam's being alone is not good. God created the man with a need to relate to one as his complement, and now God will meet that need.

2:19 Like man, animals were formed out of the ground, but they did not receive the breath of life from God (v. 7) nor the image of God. By giving names to the animals, Adam showed that he ruled the animals and that he perceived the nature of each animal (see note at 1:5).

2:20 Adam's understanding of the nature of the animals he named only highlighted the differences that existed between him and the rest of God's creatures: no helper was found as his complement.

2:21 At what must have been a moment of loneliness in Adam's life, God stepped in to create one who would perfectly meet Adam's need. Because God took one of his ribs to use as His raw material, the woman would correspond perfectly—though not identically—to Adam. Like Adam, the woman possessed God's image. The fact that she was not taken either from the man's head or his foot may suggest that the woman was not to rule over the man (1Co 11:3), nor the man to oppress the woman (1Pt 3:7).

2:23 Adam's first recorded words express his delight with God's handiwork and his recognition of the unique suitability of God's last recorded creation in the creation accounts. As with no other piece of divine craftsmanship, this one was singularly suited for the man, being bone of his bone and flesh of his flesh. Adam expresses dominion by choosing a name for God's final created being, but the name he chose suggests that he viewed her as his equal. The Hebrew term 'ishshah , woman, identifies her as the feminine complement to 'ish , the man.

2:24 God's timeless design for marriage is declared here. The one flesh relationship certainly involves sexual union, but also includes a husband and wife coming together in spiritual, mental, and emotional harmony.

2:25 Because the devastating effects of sin had not yet ravaged nature or humanity, there was no need for clothing. Adam and Eve could live without the barriers needed to shield them from their environment and each other without a sense of shame. Later, in the time of the patriarchs and kings, clothing was associated with dignity. Accordingly, prisoners of war were not permitted to wear any clothing, slaves wore very little clothing, and higher social classes wore more clothing than anyone else in society.

3:3 The woman's claim that God said, You must not . . . touch the tree, or you will die, goes beyond anything recorded in God's instructions to Adam. Therefore it seems that Adam had given his wife an additional command beyond what God said, or else Eve herself exaggerated the command as Satan tempted her to view God as selfish and overly restrictive. If Adam added to God's command, he almost certainly had a good motive—after all, if Eve never touched the tree, she certainly wouldn't eat its fruit. However, the sad truth is that when people add to the word of God, they create confusion and trouble.

3:4-5 The serpent, recognizing the woman's confusion, found a point of attack. Knowing that the woman would not die by merely touching the fruit, he boldly contradicted what she had reported to be God's command. He then skillfully lied (Jn 8:44) by distorting God's word (Mt 4:6), implying that God had prohibited people from eating the fruit only to keep them from becoming as knowledgeable as He. The woman was now fully deceived (1Tm 2:14).

3:6 Since the woman did not die when she touched the fruit—in contradiction to what she had thought God said (v. 3.)—she ate it. Though Adam was with her at the time, he did nothing to stop her. Perhaps he wanted to eat of it as much as the woman did, but fearing the consequences, used his wife as a "guinea pig" to make sure it would not cause instant death.

3:7 As the serpent had indicated, the eyes of both of them were opened, and they knew, but instead of producing godlike power, the knowledge brought only a sense of human inadequacy, fear, and shame.

3:9 God took the initiative in reaching out to sinful humanity. This pattern—humanity sinning, then God seeking out sinners—becomes the primary theme of the rest of the Bible. Its ultimate expression is found in Jesus Christ, who came to seek and to save people alienated from God because of their sin (Lk 19:10); in Him God once again walked on the earth in search of sinners. The all-knowing God asked Adam, Where are you? for Adam's benefit, to encourage Adam to face his sin.

3:10 When Adam heard God, he was afraid. Rather than walking with God as righteous men of later generations would do (Enoch, 5:22; Noah, 6:9), Adam hid from Him.

3:11 Through the use of two direct questions God brought Adam to accountability for his sin. God does not overlook sin, but He can be gently firm in confronting it.

3:12 Adam answered neither of God's questions. Instead he sought to shift the blame for his sin first to the woman, and then to God.

3:13 The woman passed the blame to the serpent and admitted that prior to eating, she was deceived (1Tm 2:14).

3:14 Though accountability began with God's confrontation of Adam, judgment began with the serpent. Because of the serpent's key role (being used of Satan) in bringing sin into the human experience, it would be permanently consigned to the position of ultimate shame, under the foot. Just as conquered kings were made to lie on the ground under the foot of their conquerors (Jos 10:24), so now the serpent would live under the feet of humanity.

3:15 Hostility between the first woman and the serpent would be passed on to future generations. This verse is known in Christendom as the protoevangelium , or "first good news," because it is the first foretelling of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Using an emphatic Hebrew construction, God announced here that a male descendant—He—would someday deal the serpent (meaning Satan) a fatal blow. The NT writers understood Jesus Christ to have fulfilled this prophecy (Heb 2:14; 1Jn 3:8). In an extended sense, the NT also indicates that God would work through the church—those indwelt by the Spirit of Christ—to destroy the works of the devil (Rm 16:20). The assertion that the snake would only strike his opponent's heel (as opposed to head) suggests that the devil will be defeated in the ensuing struggle (Rv 2:2,7-10).

3:16 Even though the woman had been deceived into eating the forbidden fruit, she was still held accountable for her act. Notably, however, the word "cursed" is not contained in God's words to her (vv. 14,16). Two penalties were imposed; both struck at the heart of a woman's roles in life. More than would have been the case had sin not entered creation, bearing children would add to the sum of anguish in the universe (God said he would intensify, not originate, woman's labor pains). Marriage would also be marred; though the woman's desire would be for her husband, sin would mar God's plan for marriage and create tormenting inequality and subjugation. The latter is a description of the ravaging effect of sin on a husband-wife relationship, not a prescription for abusing one's wife. The NT teaches that marriage should reflect the relationship of Christ with the church (Eph 5:24-25) and be characterized by a husband's understanding of and respect for his wife (1Pt 3:7).

3:17 Because Adam listened to and obeyed his wife's voice in preference to what God commanded (2:17), a curse would strike at the heart of a fundamental relationship in his life as well. Adam's relationship with the ground would now be forever damaged by sin. All the days of his life he would experience painful labor (cp. the woman's labor pains, v. 16) as he worked to bring forth the fruit of the earth.

3:18 Prior to the first couple's sins God is only recorded as having put trees in the garden (2:8-9); now there would also be thorns and thistles. Prior to sin, humanity had only to reach up to get food; now they would have to bend their backs to gather plants of the field.

3:19 The simple plucking of fruit in order to eat food (lit "bread") would now be replaced by backbreaking labor and the sweat of the brow. Working daily in the soil, Adam would be continually reminded that he was dust and that he would return to dust.

3:20 The new name Adam gave his wife emphasizes the woman's life-giving role that counteracts the curse of sin, which is death. Yet the divine order calls for a reciprocity exhibited in male servant leadership and female submission, both of which are modeled in Jesus Himself.

3:21 By making clothing out of skins, the LORD God graciously provided for humanity's need in a way superior to what Adam and Eve had done with fig leaves. The use of animal skins anticipates the OT system of animal sacrifices (Lv 1; 3-7; Nm 15:1-31). In the NT, the apostle Paul spoke of a day when God would clothe His people with immortality (1Co 15:53-54; 2Co 5:4), thus providing the complete undoing of the curse of humanity's sin.

3:22 Because of sin, people now knew good and evil experientially. Since the gift of life was directly tied to obedience, man's sin meant that the penalty of death must be enforced.

3:23 As the Hebrew text ironically expresses it, the LORD God sent Adam from the garden so that he would not send forth ("reach out"; v. 22) his hand for the garden's fruit.

3:24 Following their sin, the first couple went east, a direction associated with departure from God in numerous biblical examples. Other instances of eastward movement in Genesis include Cain's journeys after judgment (4:16), humanity's migration toward Babylon (11:2), and the migration of Keturah's sons (25:6). Cherubim are used as an artistic motif in the tabernacle (Ex 25:18-22; 26:1) and are also mentioned in Ezekiel 10 and 11. The ironies continue as the man who was once commanded to "watch over" the garden (Gn 2:15) is now guarded from the garden.

4:1 Adam and Eve now begin to fulfill God's original command to them, to "be fruitful" and "multiply" (1:28). Eve, whose name means "Life," now becomes the life-giver. Eve knew that the child was more than the result of her and her husband's love; it came into being with the LORD 's help. A wordplay in the Hebrew suggests that the name Cain (qayin) came from the verb "had" (qaniti) in Eve's comment, I have had a male child.

4:2 The name Abel means "Breath"; the term is used elsewhere in the OT to refer to that which passes away quickly and is unsubstantial (Ps 62:10; Ec 1:2).

4:3 Cain's sacrifice marks the first mention of an offering to the LORD in the Bible. The Hebrew term used here suggests a freewill gift given to an authority.

4:5 Ironically, the first recorded offering given to God was also the first one rejected by Him. Since cereal offerings were authorized in the law of Moses, the fact that Cain's offering was of vegetation rather than an animal is not why God did not have regard for it. Cain's furious reaction suggests that the offering was rejected because of sin in his heart, not the nature of his offering. See note at verse 7.

4:7 The Bible makes it clear that God had rejected Cain's offering because of Cain's wicked lifestyle (1Jn 3:12). The animal-like description of sin as crouching is reused in 49:9 to describe a lion. The parallel use of desire in this verse and 3:16 suggests that sin wishes to be as intimate with humanity as a woman is with her husband. The only way to avoid this is to be its master, not its companion.

4:8 In a move that demonstrates premeditation, Cain led Abel to the field and attacked him in a place where there were no human witnesses. Though the blood of animals had been shed prior to this (v. 4), Cain's killing of his brother brought about the first death of a human being. The curse of human death pronounced against Adam (2:17; 3:19) had now been realized.

4:9 God's use of questions with guilty sinners continues here (v. 6; cp. 3:9-13). By claiming he did not know where his brother was, Cain added lying to his sin of murder. God once made Adam a guardian (Hb shamar) of the garden (2:15). Cain now asked if he was to be his brother's guardian (Hb shamar). The Bible's answer to Cain's question is yes (Lv 19:18; Mt 22:39; Gl 5:14).

4:10 Unlike his father Adam (3:12), Cain never confessed his guilt, even though God directly confronted him with his sin. Though Abel never spoke in the preceding narrative, his blood now cried out from the ground.

4:11 God's judgment began with a curse whose wording in the Hebrew parallels the curse placed on the snake. This is particularly fitting since both were liars and murderers (Jn 8:44). It is possible to translate God's statement here as "You are more cursed than the ground." The curse against a murderer is repeated in the law of Moses (Dt 27:24).

4:12 Cain's punishment destroyed his livelihood as a farmer and turned him into a restless wanderer.

4:13 Cain's response has several possible English renderings. The HCSB—which reflects the unrepentant attitude Cain showed earlier—expresses Cain's anguish, but no remorse. The Septuagint and Martin Luther translated it as, "My sin is too great to be forgiven," while early rabbis took it as a question: "Is my sin too great to forgive?" In view of Cain's previous and later actions, the HCSB's translation (my punishment is too great to bear!) seems best.

4:14 Just as his father Adam had been driven out (Hb garash) of the garden, Cain noted that God was banishing (Hb garash) him from the soil. Since he would hide himself (or possibly, "be hidden") from God's protective presence, he feared that other descendants of Adam and Eve (5:4) would kill him to avenge Abel's murder.

4:15 True to His compassionate and forgiving nature (Ex 34:6-7), God made two provisions for Cain in order to protect him despite his sin.

4:16 Cain's departure from the LORD 's presence was both physical and spiritual (Jnh 1:3,10). "Nod" means "Wandering." The land of Nod is never again mentioned in the Bible. Perhaps the phrase simply referred to any location in which Cain resided. The notation that Cain departed to live east of Eden identifies him with other sinners who also moved east (see note at 3:24).

4:17 The parallel tracks of Adam's and Cain's lives—sin, judgment by God, banishment, and eastward movement—continue with the notation that after these things Cain was intimate with his wife (cp. v. 1). In spite of his grave sin, Cain still fulfilled the divine command to be fruitful and multiply (1:28). On the other hand, Cain's efforts to become the builder of a city were one more expression of disobedience to God, for God had ordained Cain to be a wanderer (v. 12). The city of Enoch is not mentioned elsewhere in the Bible, and its location is unknown.

Cain's genealogy in verses 17-24 has similarities with Seth's genealogy (5:3-32). Two of the names in both lines are identical (Enoch, Lamech) and others are similar (Cain/Kenan; Methushael/Methuselah). In addition, the seventh member of both genealogies (Cain's Lamech, Seth's Enoch) are given special emphasis, and both conclude with a person who has three named sons. Notable differences exist as well: Seth's genealogy is longer and contains lifespan details, but it omits any mention of occupations or wives' names.

4:18 Three individuals here—Irad . . . Mehujael, and Methushael—are mentioned in the Bible only in this verse.

4:19 More details are provided in this genealogical section for Lamech, the seventh member of Adam's line through Cain, than for any other. His three named sons made crucial contributions to human culture. However, the description of Lamech's life paints a troubling picture of an individual who lacked respect for marriage or human life. By taking two wives for himself Lamech became the first polygamist, a violation of God's intentions for marriage (2:22; Mk 10:6-8).

4:20 Jabal brought about key advances in the profession of the nomadic herdsmen—those who cared for sheep, goats, and cattle (Hb miqneh). This represents an advance beyond what Abel had done since he is only known to have tended sheep and goats (v. 2; Hb tso'n).

4:21 Jubal advanced civilization in the area of the musical arts, playing a key role in developing two of the most important musical instruments of the ancient world, the lyre and the flute.

4:22 Tubal-cain's metallurgical advances in creating bronze (made by combining copper and tin) and smelting iron would prove crucial for crafting tools and weapons.

4:23 Lamech's so-called "Song of the Sword," the longest recorded speech by a human being to this point in the Bible (21 Hebrew words), represents the dark climax of the Cainite genealogy. His level of retaliation against a man and a young man goes far beyond the biblical limits (Ex 21:23-25), and his boast of killing for vengeance foreshadows the conditions that led to the flood in Noah's day (Gn 6:11).

4:24 Using twisted logic, Lamech seemed to suggest that God would provide him with greater protection than He did Cain since he had killed double the number of men.

4:25 The name Seth (Hb sheth) is a wordplay on the verb translated has given (Hb shath). Once again (v. 1), Eve recognized God as the ultimate source of her offspring. The expectation that Seth would be more righteous than Cain is established by Eve's statement that God gave him to her in place of Abel. In fact, the family line that ultimately produced Jesus is traceable through Seth (Lk 3:38).

4:26 The name Enosh, like the name Adam, means "humanity." In a very real sense Enosh's birth marks a new and brighter beginning for humanity, as people now began to call on the name of Yahweh. Yahweh is God's personal name (Ex 3:15).

5:1 This is the second of eleven toledoth sections in Genesis (2:4; 6:9; 10:1; 11:10,27; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2). The Hebrew term toledoth ("family records") refers to "those who were given birth." Each section contains genealogical information and/or accounts regarding the descendants of the people or things named in the section title.

Only the Sethite genealogy is called the family records of the descendants of Adam, even though Cain's descendants are equally related. The reason for this is undoubtedly the contrasting descendants within the brothers' genealogies; only offspring in Seth's line are noted as being righteous. In this genealogy, emphasis is given to the fact that Adam was created in God's likeness, a characteristic that would be passed along to future generations (v. 3).

5:2 Key themes of chapter 1 are repeated and extended in the Sethite genealogy: (1) God created both male and female, thus making it possible for humanity to fulfill the divine mandate to create offspring; (2) people, though made in God's image, are not God; they were created; (3) humanity has been specially blessed by God; and (4) humanity is under God's authority, as demonstrated by the fact that God assigned them the name man.

5:3 Adam's role in Seth's life both compares and contrasts with God's role with Adam. Whereas God "created" Adam, Adam fathered Seth. Whereas Adam was made in God's image, Seth was made in Adam's image. Like God, Adam named the one he was responsible for bringing into being.

5:4 The phrase fathered other sons and daughters is repeated 10 times in the Sethite genealogy, but it never occurs in the Cainite genealogy. The clear implication is that the line of Seth more faithfully fulfilled God's command to be fruitful and multiply (1:28).

5:5 Only three individuals are said to have lived longer than Adam's 930 years. They are Noah (950), Jared (962) and Methuselah (969). The notation that he died emphasizes the solemn truth of God's curse following Adam's sin (3:19). The fact that it is repeated seven other times in this chapter demonstrates the lasting consequences of Adam's sin.

5:9 The name Kenan (Hb qeynan) is closely linked to Cain (Hb qayin), and may mean "Metalworker."

5:12 The name Mahalalel may mean "One who praises God."

5:18 The name Enoch means "Dedication."

5:21 Enoch, as the seventh member of the Sethite genealogy, is given special emphasis. The name Methuselah may mean either "Man of the Spear" or "Man of Shelah."

5:22 Enoch's life stands in stark contrast to Lamech, the seventh member of Cain's line. Whereas Lamech was notorious for his immorality and violence, Enoch walked with God, much as Adam must have done before his sin in the garden (3:8) and as Noah did later (6:9). The phrase "walked with God" suggests living a life consistent with God's will as well as experiencing fellowship with Him. Perhaps it was Enoch's entrance into parenthood with the birth of Methuselah that inspired him to take his relationship with God seriously. Imagine the level of spiritual maturity Enoch must have attained after 300 years of living wholeheartedly for God! Jude 14 indicates that Enoch was a prophet.

5:24 The description of Enoch's life differs from the others in two remarkable ways. First, his righteousness is highlighted through the double notation that Enoch walked with God. Second, the description of the end of his life is mysterious: he was not there because God took him. The NT confirms the meaning of this phrase: "Enoch was taken away so that he did not experience death" (Heb 11:5). Enoch's experience, like Elijah's later (2Kg 2:11), anticipates an experience reserved for Christians living at the end of time (1Co 15:51-55; 1Th 4:17).

5:27 Methuselah's 969 years marks him as the oldest person in the Bible. Ancient genealogies commonly attribute long life spans to people. While the Bible's numbers are exceptionally large compared to modern life spans, they seem much more credible than those found in the Sumerian king list, which states that one individual reached the age of 72,000!

5:29 The Lamech of the Sethite genealogy (v. 28) stands in sharp contrast to the Lamech of the Cainite genealogy. Both Lamechs are the only individuals in their respective genealogies to have quotations attributed to them, but Cain's Lamech spoke of murder and vengeance (4:23-24), while the Lamech in this chapter spoke words of hope and deliverance. The name Noah means "Rest/Relief." Prophetically, Lamech declared that the son born to him would live up to his name: he would bring . . . relief to humanity from the agonizing labor that had resulted from Adam's sin. The verb "relief" is more commonly translated "comfort."

5:31 A final point of comparison between the Cainite and Sethite Lamechs is the use of sevens. The first Lamech mentioned Cain's sevenfold curse and pronounced a 77-fold curse on anyone who would bring death to him, while Seth's Lamech lived 777 years before death came to him. For the numbers-conscious original audience, the author's inclusion of a figure consisting of three sevens would have trumped the first Cain's numbers, and would have added a sense of completeness and perfection to the portrait of this man's life.

5:32 The mention of Noah at the end of the Sethite genealogy serves as both a conclusion to this section of Genesis and a subtle introduction of the central human character in its next major section. A similar technique will be used in the case of Terah and Abraham (cp. 5:32 and 6:9 with 11:26-27).

6:1-4 The first four verses of this chapter serve as a transition introducing the account of God's greatest act of nature-based judgment on sinful humanity. Positively, these opening verses demonstrate humanity's faithfulness in fulfilling God's command to "multiply on the earth" (1:28). This brief portion of Genesis is one of the most controversial sections of the entire Bible. Major disagreements surround each of these verses. Careful study of the Hebrew text does not end the debates; if anything, it only sharpens them. The controversies are listed below.

6:2 This verse begins to build the case that there was something terribly wrong about the way in which God's command to multiply was being fulfilled. Using language that parallels the sequence leading to humanity's first sin in the garden (3:6), the sons of God first saw something that they thought was good, and then took what they desired for themselves.

Controversy surrounds the phrase "the sons of God." Three different basic positions have been staked out regarding the identity of these "sons." They have been understood as heavenly beings (an ancient Jewish position, still accepted by many today), as kings or men of high social status, and as men from the godly

Favoring their identity as heavenly beings—likely angels—is the fact that elsewhere in the OT the phrase "sons of God" refers only to heavenly creatures (Jb 1:6; 2:1; 38:7) and that the NT refers to fallen angels (2Pt 2:4; Jd 6). Those who accept this view hold that the sin that prompted God's anger in this passage was a violation of Gn 2:24, brought about by sexual relations between human and angelic beings, resulting in the creation of the Nephilim. But this view has its difficulties. For instance, Jesus indicated that angels do not marry (Mt 22:30) and Paul used the phrase "sons of God" to refer to godly people, not angels (Gl 3:26).

The view that the "sons of God" are kings or aristocrats is supported by the fact that the common Hebrew word for God is sometimes applied to persons who have great social power (Ps 82:6-7; Jn 10:34-35). Advocates of this position say that the "daughters of mankind" were people of lower social status. Thus the passage is thought to indicate possible abuse of lower class women by licentious men of privilege. Interpreters who take this view do not necessarily connect the Nephilim with these marriages.

The third position is the most popular view among evangelical Christians. It assumes that the "sons of God" were descendants of godly Seth, while the "daughters of mankind" were descendants of ungodly Cain. Assuming the descendants of both men kept true to the moral examples set by their respective forefathers, the union of these two spiritually incompatible lines was contradictory to God's will (2Co 6:14) and resulted in the total corruption of humanity, represented by the Nephilim.

6:3 The meaning of this verse is one of the most disputed in the Bible: Is it about God shortening humanity's life spans, or about God setting a time for the universal flood? There is no general agreement as to its meaning, and so the various Bible translations reflect translators' differing viewpoints. Accordingly, disagreement exists among translators regarding the reference to Spirit; some understand the Hebrew word to refer to the animating force present in living beings—thus rendering it "spirit" (KJV)—while many others, such as the HCSB, understand it to refer to the Holy Spirit. Closely related to this issue is the appropriate translation of the phrase rendered in the HCSB as remain with. Significant variations include "abide in" (ESV) and "contend with" (NIV). Complicating the issue still further is the Hebrew word basar , which is normally translated "flesh" (KJV) but which can be taken figuratively to refer to that which is corrupt.

6:4 Two major questions arise in this verse: who are the Nephilim and what if anything is the connection of the Nephilim to the sons of God and the daughters of mankind? The word "Nephilim" is actually a transliteration—not a translation—of the Hebrew word; translated, it means "fallen ones," a phrase that could mean morally or physically degraded individuals, or possibly angels who fell from heaven (Is 14:12).

In spite of its literal meaning, many versions (e.g., KJV, NLT) have followed the Septuagint in translating it as "giants," a guess seemingly based on the mention of Nephilim in Nm 13:33. This proposal appears unlikely, however, since no Nephilim would have survived the flood (Gn 7:22-23) and thus could not have lived during the postflood events narrated in Numbers. Plus the Nephilim are never mentioned as one of the groups to be wiped out by the Israelites when they entered Canaan. Their mention in Numbers 13 probably came from the lips of a fear-crazed spy who misinterpreted what he had seen in Canaan.

Were the Nephilim products of the marriages between the sons of God and the daughters of mankind (v. 2)? Possibly, but in the Hebrew text there is no explicit connection between them. Moreover, the fact that they were on the earth . . . in those days, i.e., before and during the sinful unions, leads some to suggest that their origins are elsewhere. Whatever their ancestry, as powerful and famous men they played a significant role in preflood society.

6:5 God, who alone can observe both people's outward actions (Jb 34:21) and their thoughts (1Sm 16:7), saw what was visible—that man's wickedness was widespread—and what was invisible—that every scheme his mind thought of was nothing but evil all the time. The word translated "mind" is literally "heart," reflecting the ancient conception that this organ was the seat of the intellect, emotion, and will.

6:6 For the first time in the Bible, the LORD regretted something that He had made. However, His regret did not stem from something He had done wrong, but rather what humanity was doing wrong. The fact that people had become totally preoccupied with evil grieved Him in His heart, much as Israel's sin would later grieve Him (Ps 78:40-41; Is 63:10).

6:7 Humanity was created to obey, worship, and fellowship with God. However, the magnitude of people's sin had progressively increased from that of eating forbidden fruit (3:6), to murder (4:8), to polygamy and multiple murders (4:23), and finally to worldwide preoccupation with evil (6:6). God's patience had come to an end, and the curse pronounced against Adam would now be amplified in a single catastrophic act. Since humanity was the capstone of God's creation, the elimination of people would take away any need for the ecological support system that sustained them: therefore it was expedient to destroy the animals, creatures that crawl, and birds as well. Even as Adam's sin had caused him to lose the garden of Eden and Cain's sin drove him from the soil, the sins of humanity would now cause them to lose the earth.

6:8 This contrast to the rest of humanity anticipates Noah's contrasting destiny. The word favor means undeserved blessing given by a powerful being to one who is less powerful. Noah did not earn his salvation, but his life did demonstrate that he possessed saving faith (Heb 11:7). A wordplay exists in Hebrew between the words "Noah" and "favor," as both contain the same two consonants but use them in reverse order: n-ch/ch-n.

6:9 The family records of Noah is the third of eleven (Hb) toledoth sections in Genesis (2:4; 5:1; 10:1; 11:10,27; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2).

6:11-12 Within these two verses three different forms of the verb corrupt are used to describe what humanity had done to itself and the world in Noah's day. The Hebrew word translated "corrupt" means "to bring to ruin, to destroy."

6:13 For the first time in the Bible—but by no means the last (18:17; Am 3:7)—God is shown expressing to one person what His intentions were for others. Noah is thus established as a prophet, a role which he would faithfully fulfill (2Pt 2:5). As indicated first in Gn 6:5-7, God would put an end to every creature . . . because of human sin. But judgment would not be limited to people; God would also destroy . . . the earth. Sadly, one of the victims of human sin is the earth on which we live (Lv 26:18-20; Is 24:4-7; Jr 12:11; Hs 4:1-3).

6:14 Because of God's grace (v. 8) and Noah's relationship with God (v. 9), Noah and his family would be saved in an ark, along with the land and air animals. The term "ark" is used only in the Noah account and the story of Moses' early childhood (Ex 2:3); as used in the Bible it refers to a watertight vessel used to preserve human life from impending disaster. Gopher is the transliteration of a Hebrew word whose meaning is unknown; gopher wood may be pine or cypress.

6:15 Noah was to make the ark rectangular and barge-like in shape, six times longer than it was wide, and ten times longer than it was high. These ratios have been used to produce seaworthy craft for centuries. In the Hebrew text the measurements are expressed as "cubits," a cubit being the length from a person's elbow to the end of the fully extended middle finger—about 18 inches. The 450-foot length made the ark the largest ship known to be constructed in ancient times. The ark was to contain an unspecified number of rooms—literally, "nests"—and was to have two layers of pitch, (that is, asphalt or bitumen) painted over the boards.

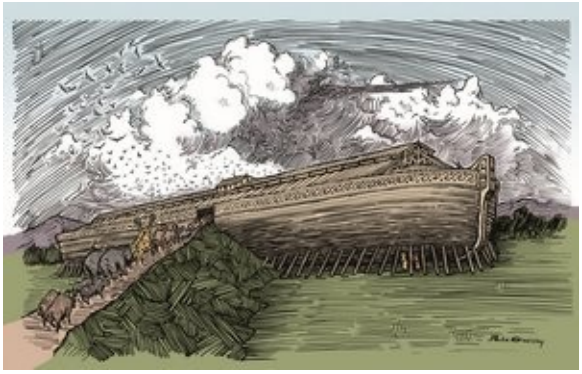
6:16 The Hebrew word translated roof occurs only here, and its meaning is unknown: other possible translations include "window" or "hatch." If the term means "roof," then the text probably indicates that it was to extend 18 inches over the sides of the boat. If the term means “window,” then it refers to an 18-inch high gap separating the four sides of the boat from its roof.

6:17 Only after He commanded Noah to make the ark did God tell him why it was to be built: God was bringing a flood—a term used only in connection with the massive, all-destroying flood in Noah’s day. Everything on earth will die. The biblical language here and elsewhere in Genesis 6-8 most naturally indicates that Noah’s flood covered the entire globe. The apostle Peter seems to affirm this (2Pt 2:5; 3:6). That the flood was global has been the dominant Christian understanding throughout history and remains so today. Defenders of this view offer models to explain the flood’s impact on the geological column. They also tackle questions such as how much water was required to flood the entire globe. If geography today reflects preflood geography, scientists estimate that Earth would have needed four times the current quantity of water for the flood to cover the highest mountains (Gn 7:19-20). In this light some defenders of a global flood have suggested that preflood geography differed from today’s geography. Specifically, they suggest that Earth’s landscape was flatter in the preflood era, thus requiring less water to flood, and that the violent flood created many of today’s geographical and geological features. Others take a different approach, suggesting that pre-and postflood geography is largely the same, that the flood did indeed require a greater quantity of water than is now present on Earth, and that by an unknown mechanism Earth’s quantity of water has greatly diminished after the flood.



A reconstruction of the ark Noah built. The dimensions of the ark made it eminently seaworthy. The vessel in the Epic of Gilgamesh, an account of a flood that has some parallels to Noah’s, is a cube. Such a vessel would have rolled over at the slightest disturbance.

Citing the flexible application of some terms used to describe the flood (e.g., kol ha’arets is rendered as “the whole earth” in 7:3 but legitimately can refer to limited areas of land), the inclusion of details that could indicate a regional flood (e.g., the dove returning with a “plucked olive leaf” in her beak just as soon as the waters subsided despite the fact that low-lying areas where olive trees grow would have been fully submerged for roughly a year, 8:11), and the difficulty of finding traces of a global flood in earth's geological record, some evangelicals conclude that Noah's flood covered only that portion of the earth that was inhabited by humans. In this view the flood destroyed all humans except the persons on Noah's ark, but did not need to cover the whole globe in order to do so.

6:18 The term covenant refers to a binding, formal agreement between two parties—a sort of treaty, pact, or contract.

6:19 God's preservation of Noah meant that the ecological support network of animals would still be needed. Consequently, Noah was to bring into the ark one male and one female of all the living creatures. Representatives of all vulnerable species were to be preserved.

6:20 Noah would not have to go on safaris to collect the various animals. They would come to him so he could keep them alive. On at least three other occasions in the Bible God directed animals to come to people (Ex 16:13; Nm 11:31; 1Kg 17:2-6).

6:22 As other heroic men of the Bible would do in later times—Moses and Aaron (Ex 7:6), Aaron's sons (Lv 8:36), Joshua (Jos 11:9), Gideon (Jdg 6:27), Samuel (1Sm 16:4), David (2Sm 5:25), and Elijah (1Kg 17:5)—Noah did everything that God had commanded him. An undetermined amount of time passed between this verse and the previous verses in this chapter. Certainly the construction of the ark would have been a lengthy endeavor.

7:1 Following the ark's completion, the LORD gave Noah the order to begin the complex process of boarding the craft. Because of Noah's righteous walk with God he and his household would be saved. The concept of sparing many because of the righteousness of a few occurs elsewhere in the Bible (18:24-32).

7:2-3 While one male and one female of every species of air and land animal were to be taken aboard the ark, all the clean animals—both those of the land and among the birds of the sky—were to have seven pairs of males and females onboard. The concept of clean animals is explained elsewhere in the Torah (Lv 11:1-46); essentially, these were animals that were fit for human consumption and could be offered as sacrifices to God. On the meaning of the whole earth, see note at 6:17.

7:4 The advance warning God gives Noah here about the onset of rain was necessary, for it almost certainly would have taken seven days to finish boarding the ark. Loading, securing, and tending to the dietary needs of all the wild animals onboard the three-story barge-like structure was a complicated and dangerous task.

Here rain was the mechanism for the deadly act of judgment that would wipe off from the face of the earth every living thing. Elsewhere in the OT God caused burning sulfur (19:24) and hailstones (Ex 9:18,23) to "rain" from the sky as a mechanism of judgment against sinners. The rains would continue unabated for 40 days and 40 nights. The number 40 played a significant role throughout the OT: Isaac and Esau were 40 when they married (25:20; 26:34), Moses was on Mount Sinai 40 days and nights receiving the law from God (Ex 24:18; 34:28; Dt 9:11,18,25), Israel spent 40 years in the wilderness following their disobedience (Nm 32:13), the Philistines oppressed Israel for 40 years (Jdg 13:1), and several kings and judges ruled over Israel for 40 years (Othniel, Jdg 3:11; Deborah, Jdg 5:31; Gideon, Jdg 8:28; Eli, 1Sm 4:8; David, 2Sm 5:4; Solomon, 1Kg 11:42; Joash, 2Kg 12:1; Saul, Ac 13:21).

7:6 Noah's age at the onset of the flood—600 years—will be used to indicate the duration of the flood (8:13). No other human being after Noah will be said to live to this age. On the scope of the flood, see note at 6:17.

7:10 Seven days later, exactly when God said it would occur, the waters of the flood began.

7:11 Water came from two different sources—one below and one above. Exactly what is meant by all the sources of the watery depths is unknown; the phrase appears to refer to a massive outflow of pressurized water from underground sources that burst out of the ground with devastating effect. No known phenomenon in nature today corresponds to this description.

7:12 Exactly as God had indicated (v. 4), the rain fell on the earth 40 days and 40 nights. God's word to Noah is once again shown to be trustworthy.

7:13-15 The same day that Noah completed the task of loading the ark—that is, the seventh day (v. 10) after God's command was given—Noah and his family entered the ark.

7:16 Shut him in—No details are given to explain how God performed the supernatural act of shutting Noah in. This divine act highlights the truth found elsewhere in the Bible: "Salvation is from the LORD" (Jnh 2:9).

7:19-20 More than 20 feet is literally 22.5 feet or 15 cubits. For more on the scope of Noah's flood, see note at 6:17.

7:21 Through the use of expanded restatement the author brings the detailed account of the flood's destruction to a climax.

7:22 For dramatic effect a second expanded expression of the flood's destructive effects immediately follows the one in the previous verse.

7:23 The overpowering presentation of death is contrasted with Noah's preservation.

7:24 Though the text does not explicitly say so, the total of 150 days seems to include the 40 days of rain (see note at v. 12). The Hebrew word translated as surged emphasizes the power of the waters.

8:1 Remembered does not suggest that God had ever forgotten about Noah; when used of God, "remember" suggests the initiation of a miraculous, saving act of God. Other instances of God "remembering" as the first step in providing divine help for His people include His intervention in the lives of Lot (19:29), Rachel (30:22), and the Israelites in Egypt (Ex 2:24). Using language that reflects God's initial act of creating the universe (Gn 1:2), God caused (Hb) ruach —"Spirit" or wind—to pass over the waters of the earth. Immediately the water began to subside.

A reproduction of tablet eleven of the Epic of Gilgamesh, a Babylonian account of the great flood.

8:2 Following the 150 days of ever-surging waters, a turnabout occurred: all the sources of water (from above and below) stopped and the water began to subside. The initial downpour ended after 40 days and nights (7:12), so presumably the rains that are said to have ceased in the present verse were only sporadic showers.

8:3 Just as the flood had increased upon the earth for 150 days, so it steadily receded from the earth for 150 days, until the levels had decreased significantly.

8:4 Exactly five months after the flood had begun (7:11), the ark came to rest . . . on the mountains of Ararat—modern Turkey or Armenia.

8:6 This is the only mention of a window (Hb hallon) in the ark. Noah opened the window to determine the earth's readiness to receive the ark's cargo of people and animals.

8:7 Rabbis have suggested that Noah first sent out a raven, a ritually unclean bird, because it was expendable. The fact that it went back and forth from the ark means that it could find no suitable habitat.

8:8 Perhaps simultaneous with the release of the raven or soon thereafter, Noah sent out a dove. Since the dove ate seed and insects, it would provide a useful indication of whether the water on the earth's surface had gone down.

8:9 Though the ark was now resting on Ararat (v. 4) and mountaintops were visible (v. 5), the waters had not yet receded enough for the dove to find a resting place for her foot.

8:10-11 When the dove returned to Noah from its second foray with an olive leaf, this confirmed that the lower elevations (where olive trees grow) were now above water. Inspired by this passage, the image of a dove with an olive branch in its mouth has become a universal symbol of peace.

8:12 When Noah sent the dove out a third time and it did not return, it was clear that life-sustaining conditions now existed at the earth's more temperate, lower elevations.

8:13-14 On Noah's six hundred and first birthday he removed the ark's cover and confirmed what the dove had indicated—that the plains beneath the mountain range were drying. Some 57 days (one 29.5-day cycle of the moon plus 27 days) later, the earth was dry.

8:15-16 Perhaps this is the first time that God had spoken to Noah since before the flood; during the entire year of the catastrophic flood there is no record that God communicated directly with the patriarch or his family. What faith Noah demonstrated during that terrifying time in the ark's dark interior!

8:20 Noah's first act following his departure from the ark was to worship God by giving a burnt offering. Since every kind of clean animal and bird—that is, one of every mammal that chewed the cud and possessed split hoofs, as well as one representative of every kind of bird that did not eat carrion—was offered, it must have been an impressive sacrifice.

8:21 Using anthropomorphic language—words that describe God's actions in human terms—the text notes that the LORD smelled the pleasing aroma. The phrase means that God accepted Noah's sacrifice. Elsewhere in the Torah, God's refusal to smell a sacrifice meant His rejection of the offering (Lv 26:31). Acceptable offerings in other parts of the Bible are said to have a pleasing aroma (Ex 29:25; Lv 1:9; 2:2; 3:16; Nm 18:17). Following Noah's sacrifice the Lord made a solemn promise never again to curse the ground as He had done following Adam's sin (Gn 3:17; 5:29). Almost with a sense of resignation, God noted that man's inclination was evil from his youth (Ps 14:1; Rm 3:9,23). Yet in spite of humanity's sinful nature, God's grace and love would prevail: He would never again destroy all life as He had done in Noah's day.

8:22 The terrifying chaos of the flood would give way to the predictable, comforting rhythms of life—the harvest, the seasons, day and night—for as long as the earth endures.

9:1-2 This blessing fortifies the parallels between Noah and Adam (1:28), as both blessings began with the command to be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth. However, in Noah's day the blessing is altered. Mankind is still to take dominion over creation (1:28), but due to the presence of sin, the harmony that existed in the garden of Eden had forever ended; now animals are filled with the fear and terror of humans. Terrorized animals can be dangerous; even so, God placed the animals under people's authority, ensuring that humans would prevail over the animal kingdom.

9:3 The original dietary regulations given to Adam and Eve (1:29) were now expanded. Animal proteins would join green plants within the human diet. The phrase referring to animal food sources can be translated literally as "every creeping/gliding animal" and would normally be understood to refer to smaller animals on land or sea, but it is usually understood here to mean every living creature. Israelites would later be limited to eating only clean animals (Lv 11).

9:4 Though meat would be permissible as food, blood would not. God required Noah and his offspring to drain the lifeblood from any animal before eating it. This guideline would be expanded and clarified in Israel's Sinai law code (Lv 7:26-27; 17:10-14; 19:26; Dt 12:16,24; 15:23). To avoid offending Jewish Christians, first-century Christian Gentiles were also encouraged not to eat blood (Ac 15:20,29).

9:5-6 Because God made man in his image, the taking of a human life by either an animal or another person was not treated like the death of an animal. Every animal and every man who killed another human being was to have its own blood . . . shed by man as a just punishment. This verse establishes that unauthorized taking of a human life is a capital offense and implicitly authorizes properly credentialed authorities to execute murderers. Other verses in the law of Moses reinforced this concept (Ex 20:13; 21:23; Dt 19:21). No such law exists for the killing of animals; the Bible consistently teaches that human beings are of superior worth to animals.

9:7 God's blessing of humanity in Noah's day begins (v. 2) and ends with the command to be fruitful and multiply. This repetition underscores the sacredness and desirability of human reproduction within God's plan.

9:8-11 These verses are the formal conclusion of the covenant first mentioned in 6:18. The initial expression of the covenant unconditionally offered safety in the ark to Noah's family and many classes of animals. In the style of a royal grant or unilateral agreement, this portion of the Noahic covenant unconditionally promises that there will never again be a flood of the same destructive scale as Noah's flood.

9:12-17 Accompanying the covenant was a tangible confirmation of the agreement between God and the earth that would continue for all future generations: God's bow in the clouds represented His promise that He would never again send a flood to destroy every creature. From this point forward the rainbow would have profound significance as an affirmation of God's grace and peace. Elsewhere in the Bible the rainbow is associated with the presence of God or His angelic representative (Ezk 1:28; Rv 4:3; 10:1). This covenant is one of three in the Bible that were accompanied by a sign; the other signs were circumcision (Gn 17:11) and the Sabbath (Ex 31:16-17).

9:18-19 Beginning with repeated material (5:32; 6:10), the writer launches into a new narrative designed to prepare readers for God's judgment on the nation of Canaan. The familiar genealogy is extended with the note that Ham was the father of Canaan. At the same time verse 19 prepares readers for chapter 10.

9:20 The parallels continue between Noah and Adam as Noah is now shown to be a farmer (lit man of the soil [Hb 'adamah]) in the new world prepared for him by God.

9:21 As Adam had sinned through the consumption of fruit (3:6), so Noah drank some of the wine and became drunk. After sin entered the world, shattering innocence, nakedness was associated with shame (cp. 2:25; 3:10). In this case Noah brought the shame on himself through his sinful drunkenness. A minimum of two years must have elapsed between verses 20 and 21 since grapevines must grow that long before they can produce grapes.

9:22 A parent's sin often becomes a child's stumbling block (Ex 34:7). In this case, Ham dishonored his father and thus sinned (Ex 20:12; Dt 5:16) in two ways: First, he dishonored his father by staring at his nakedness (Hab 2:15). Second, he increased both his sin and his father's shame by reporting his father's condition to others. Later, the law stipulated curses for dishonoring a parent (Ex 21:17; Dt 27:16).

9:23 Shem and Japheth demonstrated their nobler natures by reacting to their father's condition far differently from Ham. First, they did not look upon their father's shameful condition. Second, they covered their father's nakedness, thus ending his shame. Their action parallels God's clothing of Adam following Adam's sin (3:21).

9:24-27 When Noah learned what his youngest son had done, he placed the curse on Ham's son, Canaan, who would be the lowest of slaves to his brothers, that is, the slave of the descendants of Shem and Japheth. This curse on Canaan had prophetic implications. In later centuries the Canaanites, the descendants of Canaan, were pressed into slavery by the Israelites (Jos 17:13; Jdg 1:28-35; 1Kg 9:20-21). This curse does not refer to the descendants of Ham who settled in Africa.

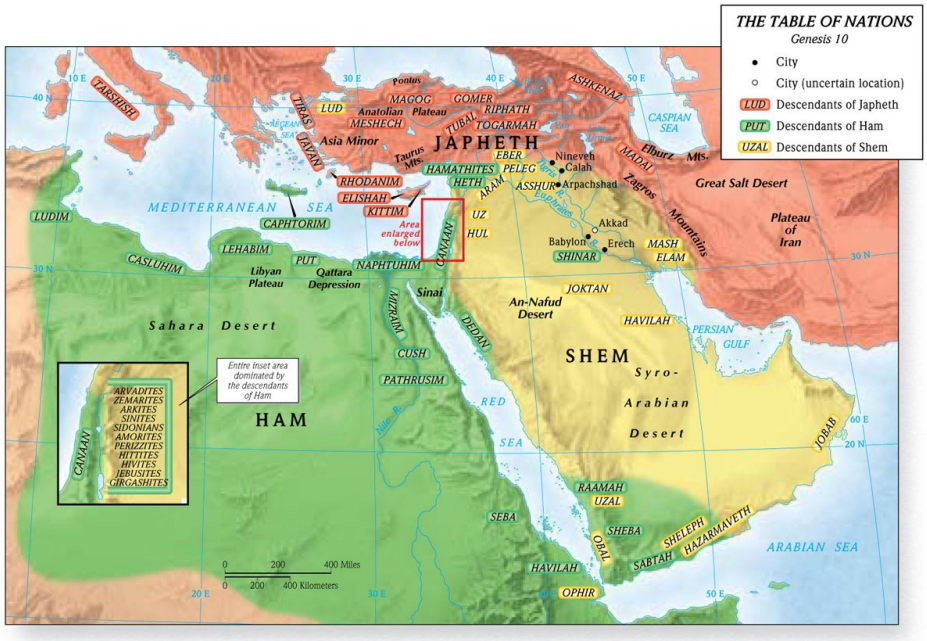
9:28-29 Noah's 950 years mark him as the third-oldest human being in biblical history, behind Methuselah (969 years) and Jared (962 years).

10:1 The family records of Noah's sons is the fourth of eleven (Hb) toledoth sections in Genesis (2:4; 5:1; 6:9; 11:10,27; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2). The purpose of this section is twofold: to show that Noah's sons fulfilled the command to be fruitful, multiply, and spread out over the earth (9:7), and to distinguish the "unchosen" lines of Noah's descendants (the Japhethites and Hamites) from the line that would be both the recipient and the agent of God's special blessing to the rest of humanity (the Shemites). Genesis 10:1-32 list a total of 70 descendants in the family lines of Shem, Ham, and Japheth. Seventy, a multiple of two numbers which suggest completeness (7, the number of days of creation week; 10, the number of fingers), would have suggested to ancient Israelites a satisfying completeness to the quantity of persons and nations that came into being after the flood.



The Table of Nations shows that the Bible is firmly based on historical events. It provides the historical context for understanding Abraham, whose family became a nation through whom God would bless all peoples of the earth.

10:2-5 Fourteen of Japheth's descendants are listed here. Coastland peoples refers to people living in areas reachable by ship, especially in the Mediterranean basin. The fact that each group had its own language suggests that this listing refers to the situation after the Tower of Babylon event (11:1-9).

10:6-7 Thirty of Ham's descendants are included in this list. The geographic or ethnic identifications of most of the names have been lost in history, but they are associated with regions in Africa and Arabia. Havilah probably refers to a different geographic region than the Havilah of 2:11. Three different persons by the name of Seba are listed in Genesis genealogies (v. 28; 25:3); Dedan is also found in 25:3. It is best to understand each of these as different persons, and the founders of different people groups.

10:8-12 Nimrod was the first powerful man on earth, that is, he was successful as an aggressive empire builder. Like many other ancient Egyptian and Mesopotamian kings, he was also famous as a powerful hunter. Nimrod's origins are from Cush, that is, Africa; his empire was Asian, stretching across the Tigris-Euphrates river basin. The order of place names suggests that Nimrod's empire expanded from south to north, and included Babylon and Nineveh, the capital cities of two of Israel's most formidable enemies. Shinar corresponds to the ancient regions of Sumer and Akkad; Erech to ancient Uruk; Calah to Nimrod; Rehoboth-ir may be ancient Asshur.

10:15-20 The most complex portion of the Hamite list is the Canaan branch, with 11 named descendants or people groups. The relative size and detail reinforces the significance of the Canaanites for later Israelite history. This genealogical section indicates that many of the earliest inhabitants of Canaan were non-Semitic peoples.

10:21-31 The genealogy of Shem, portions of which will be repeated in 11:10-17, represents the "chosen" line of Noah's descendants. From Shem's line will come Abraham, the Israelites, and ultimately Jesus. Larger and more complex than the Shemite genealogy in chapter 11 (26 names vs. 12), this presentation differs from the other, mainly in that it includes the "unchosen" branches of Shem's lineage, especially that of Joktan with his 13 sons. The mention of all the sons of Eber brings attention to the point in Shem's line where the "chosen" branch splits from the rest of the family. The word "Hebrew" is often understood to be derived from Eber's name.

Names in the Shemite genealogy that scholars have linked to various people groups or locations include: Elam, modern southwest Iran; Asshur, along the Tigris river in Iraq; Aram, eastern Iraq near the Iranian border; Uz, the Arabian peninsula or Edom; Mash, central Asia Minor. All of the 13 sons of Joktan that can be confidently connected to a location are associated with locations in the Arabian peninsula.

The name Ophir may not be connected with the Ophir mentioned elsewhere in Scripture (1Kg 9:28; Jb 22:24; Ps 45:9) since the latter name appears to be a distant location, possibly in Africa or India. Joktan's Havilah should not be equated with Cush's Havilah, though the two share the same name.

10:21 The phrase Japheth's older brother is difficult in the Hebrew: several other versions (KJV, NKJV, NIV) understand it to mean that Japheth was the older brother.

10:25 A wordplay exists between the name Peleg and the verbal phrase was divided. Both are based on the Hebrew sound sequence p-l-g . Exactly what is meant by "the earth was divided" is uncertain. It may be a reference to the Tower of Babylon event (11:9), a devastating earthquake, a large Mesopotamian canal project, or a political division.

11:1-9 The account of Adam and Eve's sin in the garden of Eden (chap. 3) and the Tower of Babylon share many similarities in plot, vocabulary, and theme. Both show people acting with sinful pride to try to make themselves godlike, and both show God expelling sinners from their homes as punishment for their sin.

11:1 The Tower of Babylon incident occurred earlier than at least some of the events of chapter 10 since the whole earth still had the same language and vocabulary (10:5,20,31).

11:2 The land of Shinar corresponds to ancient Babylonia and includes the region of the cities of Babylon, Erech, Accad, and Calneh (10:10). On "from the east," see textual footnote.

11:3 Unlike the original readers' homeland of Israel, with its extensive quantity of limestone building material, the people of Babylonia used oven-fired bricks. Archaeological excavations have confirmed that ancient inhabitants of the land used asphalt for mortar.

11:4 The people's pride and ambition is expressed in three different ways: (1) the fivefold use of the first-person pronouns—us (twice), ourselves (twice), and we; (2) their desire to build . . . a tower into the sky, thus giving them access to "the heavens," the domain of God; and (3) their attempt at self-glorification—let us make a name for ourselves. Because they did it to avoid being scattered over the face of the whole earth, all their efforts amounted to a rebellion against God and His command to fill the earth (9:1).

11:5 In spite of their best efforts to elevate themselves to God's domain, the Lord still had to come down to look over the city and the tower. Human attempts to achieve glory, which belongs to God alone, always fall pitifully short.

11:6 God's concern that nothing the people might plan to do would be impossible for them does not express a divine fear that humans might someday become as powerful as God. Rather, it conveys dismay that people, unchecked, would undertake extraordinary deeds of evil and defiance.

11:7 On God's reference to Himself as Us, see note at 1:26. Perhaps the most dramatic Hebrew wordplay in the Tower of Babylon episode involves the deliberate reversal of sounds between verses 3 and 7. Human beings created brick—a word which contains the sound sequence l-b-n in Hebrew—to rebel against God. In response God created confusion—a Hebrew word containing n-b-l—to reverse the evil human plot.

11:9 Most English versions refer to "Babel" here, but this is the same Hebrew word translated "Babylon" throughout the OT. The connection between the words Babylon and confused (Hb babel and balal) constitute another of the many wordplays in this chapter. The Lord's action had two positive outcomes: first, because it confused the language of the whole earth, it ended the possibility of large-scale evil ventures; second, it caused humanity to scatter over the face of the whole earth, thus bringing people into compliance with God's command to fill the earth (9:1).

11:10-26 The family records of Shem constitute the fifth of eleven (Hb) toledoth sections in Genesis (2:4; 5:1; 6:9; 10:1; 11:27; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2). Whereas the previous toledoth section ("the family records of Noah's sons," 10:1-11:9) presented Noah's "unchosen" descendants, this one traces the "chosen" offspring.

This genealogical table, which partially repeats information provided in 10:21-25, connects Noah's son Shem to Abram/Abraham. Though this list contains fewer names (12 vs. 26) than the genealogy in chapter 10, it traces out more generations (10 vs. 6) and includes chronological data as well. Its style links it with the genealogy in chapter 5, which also traces the "chosen" line and contains 10 generations. Whereas chapter 5 stretches from Adam to Noah (the preflood world), this table connects Seth to Abram/Abraham (the postflood world).

11:12 Departing from the Hebrew text, both Lk 3:35-36 and the septuagintal version of this verse indicate that Arpachshad's actual son was Cainan. Because the inspired NT author confirms the Septuagint's reading, Cainan should be accepted as Arpachshad's son. Thus it is best to accept Arpachshad as Shelah's father in an indirect sense, and to view the Hebrew version here as a stylized genealogy shaped for thematic purposes. A similar technique appears to have been used by Matthew in his presentation of Jesus' genealogy in Matthew 1.

11:17 Eber lived a total of 464 years. This distinguishes him as the oldest living person in the Bible who was born after the flood.

11:27 The family records of Terah is the sixth of eleven (Hb) toledoth sections in Genesis (2:4; 5:1; 6:9; 10:1; 11:10; 25:12,19; 36:1,9; 37:2). Far more than a simple genealogical table, this section stretches across parts of 15 chapters and includes a rich supply of information about the life of Terah's most famous son, Abram (later called Abraham). In the Hebrew, the spelling of the personal name

Haran differs from the place name Haran (v. 31).

11:29 Nahor's wife . . . Milcah eventually produced eight sons (22:20-23); her most famous son Bethuel became the father-in-law of Abraham's son Isaac (25:20).

11:30 In contrast to Milcah, Sarai (later called Sarah) was unable to conceive. This painful fact is emphasized by the biblical writer restating the fact: she did not have a child. God's provision of an heir for Abraham in spite of Sarah's barrenness is a major theme in the narratives that follow (15:2-4; 17:15-21; 21:10).

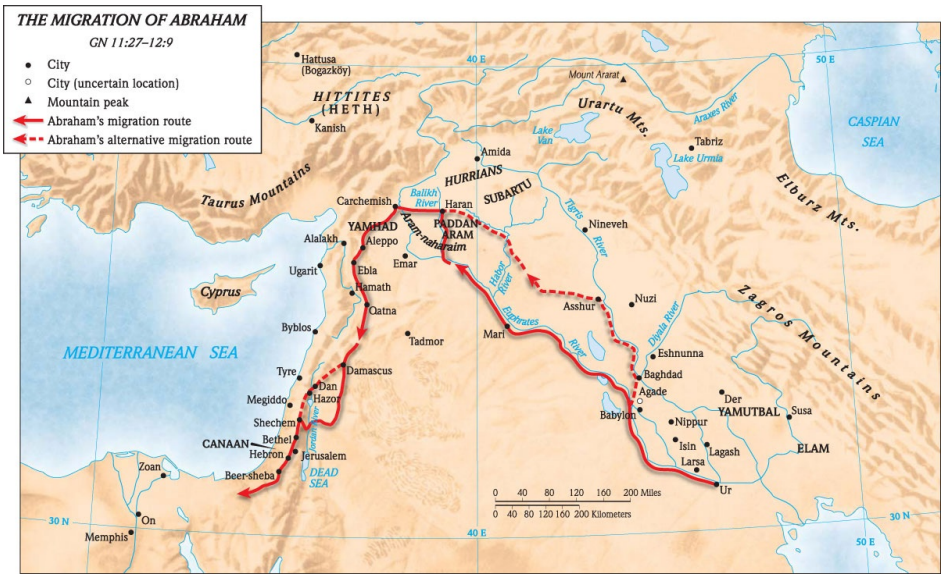
12:1-3 According to Ac 7:2, The LORD spoke to Abram while he was still in Mesopotamia (Gn 11:31). God gave Abram a one-verb command with four aspects to it. Abram was to go out from (1) his land, (2) his relatives, and (3) his father's house, (4) to a land chosen by God. Obedience to God often means leaving one thing in order to receive something else even better.

12:4 Having migrated with his father's household from Ur (11:31), Abram stayed an uncertain amount of time in Haran. Since Terah lived 145 years after the birth of Abram (11:26,32) and Abram was 75 years old when he left Haran, Abram literally fulfilled the command to leave his father's house (v. 1).

12:5 Abram was apparently his nephew Lot's protector since Lot's father had died in Ur (11:28). The group's journey to Canaan was about 450 miles.

12:6 Shechem is in north central Israel on the slope of Mount Ebal. Abram's grandson Jacob would live for a time in this region as well (33:18-19). Later, Abram's great grandson Joseph would be buried there (Jos 24:32). The Canaanites were a distinct cultural group (Gn 15:21), but the term "Canaanite" is also an umbrella term for many different people groups who were living in the region, including the Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Hivites, and Jebusites.

12:7 This is the first of three times Scripture indicates that the Lord physically appeared to Abram (cp. 17:1; 18:1). The Lord's promise to give the land of Canaan to Abram's offspring is the single most repeated affirmation in the Torah. At least 37 references are made to it in the books of Moses. The altar Abram built at Shechem is the first of four he is said to have built; others were set up between Bethel and Ai (v. 8), at Hebron (13:18), and at Mt. Moriah (22:9).



Ur of the Chaldeans (11:28) is usually identified today as Tell el-Muqayyar, 220 miles southeast of Baghdad, Iraq (11:31). Situated on a caravan route, Haran was an important city located on the banks of the Balikh River in northern Mesopotamia, in what is now modern Syria. The place name Haran (meaning "Caravan Route") has a different spelling in the Hebrew than the personal name "Haran" (meaning "Mountaineer").

12:8 As a shepherd, Abram frequently moved to new locations to provide food for his animals. Bethel, modern Beitin, was about 20 miles south of Shechem. This altar is the second of the four that Abram built in the land of Canaan (v. 7). When Abram called on the name of Yahweh here, he identified himself as a true member of the godly line of Seth (4:26). This is the first of three occasions on which Abram is said to do this (13:4; 21:3).

12:9 The Negev is the semidesert region west and south of the Dead Sea. About 50 miles south of Bethel, this area has been inhabited by nomads since ancient times.

12:10 The only river that flowed year-round in Israel was the Jordan, and it was completely below sea level (minus 686 ft. at its highest point, and minus 1300 at its lowest). Canaan relied heavily on rainfall for its drinking water and crops. When there was no rain there was a famine. To avoid the famine, Abram went down to Egypt, the location with the best water supply. This meant abandoning the land God had promised to his descendants.

12:11 Even though Sarai was at least 65 years old at this time (Sarai was 10 years younger than Abram [17:17], and he was at least 75 [v. 4]), she was still considered beautiful. Her desirability was due in part to the fact that she was the most powerful woman in a wealthy clan.

12:13 By telling his wife to say that she was his sister, Abram was technically asking her to be truthful since Sarai was his half sister (20:12).

12:15 Since Abram's group had many people and animals, they had to be given special permission to live and trade in Egypt. Important economic and political contracts in the ancient world were sometimes finalized by the weaker party giving a woman to the leader of the stronger party. The woman would then become part of the leader's harem (this probably explains why Solomon had 700 wives, 1Kg 11:3). Sarai was the most desirable woman in Abram's group, so when Pharaoh's officials . . . praised her to Pharaoh, she was taken to Pharaoh's harem.

12:16 Perhaps because of gifts from Pharaoh, perhaps because of favorable business deals, Abram acquired much wealth. Abram would later use one of the female slaves in his group to produce a son (16:1-4,15).

12:17 If Abram's wife Sarai remained in Egypt as part of Pharaoh's harem, then God's plan to provide Abram with an heir through her would never be fulfilled. To restore Sarai to Abram and bring the founders of the Israelite nation out of Egypt and back to the promised land, the LORD struck Pharaoh and his household with severe plagues. This act foreshadowed what God would do in Moses' day to bring the Israelites out of Egypt again (Ex 12:29), to take them to the promised land.

12:18 Pharaoh connected the plagues with Sarai's entrance into his harem. An investigation revealed that he had been tricked into marrying a woman who was the wife of another man.

12:20 Even as Pharaoh gave . . . orders and sent Abram, the first Israelite, and all he had away, so a later Pharaoh would order the Israelites in Moses' day to leave Egypt (Ex 12:31-32) with all their belongings.

13:1 Having been forced to go out from Egypt, Abram returned to the Negev, the last place he had lived in the promised land (12:9) before his departure to Africa.

13:3 Abram moved northward to Bethel, an area of Canaan with greater rainfall—and thus more vegetation—than the Negev. This move was probably necessary in order to feed the large flocks of Abram and his nephew Lot.

13:4 Abram's physical return to the place where God first spoke to him in the promised land was paralleled by a spiritual recommitment of his life to God. For the first time since he left Canaan for Egypt, Abram called on the name of Yahweh.

13:6 Especially during the dry summer months, the land around Bethel and Ai was too dry for such a large number of flocks and people. To remain in the area, Abram and Lot would have to separate.

13:7 With limited natural resources, quarreling between Abram's and Lot's herdsmen was inevitable.

13:8 Abram defused a tense situation that had soured the relationship between himself and his nephew, and between their herdsmen. Since they were relatives and were surrounded by people groups that had no reason to be friendly to them, it was important that they work out a compromise.

13:9 Abram realized the only way to end the dispute was for them to separate. As senior member and head of the clan, he should have been the one to select the region in which he would live. But Abram graciously handed the choice over to Lot, allowing his nephew to lay claim to the most desirable spot in the whole land.

13:10 Thinking especially of his flocks' need for water and pasture, Lot was particularly interested in the southern end of the Jordan Valley, an area that was well-watered everywhere. So well off was this region before the LORD destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah, two prominent cities located there (19:24-25), that it was reputed to be as lush as the Lord's garden—or the garden of Eden (2:9-10). The name Zoar anticipates the events of 19:20-22; the name of the village at this time was Bela (14:2).

13:11 To the careful reader, Lot's journey eastward has some troubling implications. Other situations in the early chapters of Genesis in which the "east" is mentioned as a destination include those of Adam and Eve following their sin in Eden (3:24), Cain following his judgment (4:16), and sinful humanity prior to the Tower of Babylon incident (11:2).

13:12 Lot apparently lived a transitional existence, living in the cities of the valley while also maintaining a tent camp near Sodom in order to maintain his flocks.

13:13 The evil state of the men of Sodom and how they were sinning greatly against the Lord will be addressed further in 18:20-19:25.

13:14-15 When Abram gave parts of Canaan to Lot in the land-for-peace deal, it threatened to undo God's earlier promise to Abram (12:7), but God's promises could not be thwarted by Abram's actions. In spite of Abram's commitment to Lot, the Lord Himself would give Abram all the land that he could see in every direction. What is more, Canaan would also belong to Abram's offspring forever. Lot's offspring would not be left landless, however. His sons—Moab and Ben-Ammi (19:37-38)—would become the founders of Moab and Ammon, nations east of the land promised to Abram.

13:16 In addition to land, the Lord also promised Abram offspring too numerous to be counted. Since Abram was more than 75 years old and still childless at the time the Lord spoke these words, this divine pledge was particularly amazing.

13:17-18 Perhaps as a test of Abram's faith, the Lord issued two commands.

With them came a reaffirmation of the promise first uttered when Abram arrived in the promised land (12:7). Immediately after God's command to walk around the land, through its length and width, Abram went to live near the oaks of Mamre, a site about two miles north of Hebron. Hebron became the primary residence of Abram and later, his son Isaac (18:1; 23:2; 35:27; 37:14).

14:1 The prosperity of the lower Jordan River Valley attracted not only Lot, but it also got the attention of four Asian kings hundreds of miles to the north and east. While scholars cannot match the names here with the names of the kings found in nonbiblical sources, the following observations have been made: Chedorlaomer = the Elamite name "Kutir" + a deity name; Arioch = the name "Arriwuk/Arriyuk" found at Mari; Tidal = the Hittite name "Tudkhalia." The name Amraphel seems to be a Semitic name. Shinar (Babylonia) is in modern Iraq; Elam is in modern southwest Iran; Ellasar and Goiim are unknown locations.

14:2 The north Asian kings probably waged war against the peoples of the southern Jordan Valley in order to control a trade route (the King's Highway in the area of modern Jordan) as well as the food supply. The food produced there would have been particularly useful for armies marching to Egypt or fighting other nations in the region.

14:3 The Valley of Siddim is mentioned in the Bible only in this narrative.

14:4 For 12 years the five kings of the southern Jordan Valley were subject to (lit "served") Chedorlaomer; that is, they sent a portion of their annual income to him.

14:5-7 Chedorlaomer could not mount an immediate military response to the regional rebellion. But having assembled a coalition of kings by the following spring, he led the troops southward down the King's Highway to subjugate the rebellious city-states. Among those conquered were Ashteroth-karnaim (modern Tell Ashtarah in Syria), Ham . . . Shaveh-kiriathaim (probably near the ancient Moabite city of Kiriathaim, Jr 48:1), and El-paran (in ancient Edom). He then went to En-mishpat . . . Kadesh in the northern Sinai desert and Hazazon-tamar (En-gedi, 2Ch 20:2).

14:10 The battlefield, with its many asphalt pits, proved to be more dangerous than the enemy. The literal reading of the Hebrew text states, "The kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled and fell there"—implying that the two kings fell into the asphalt pits.

14:13 One of the survivors (lit "the escapee") came to Abram's camp, some 17 miles west of the Dead Sea. In that semidesert region Abram had established a treaty with some Amorites who gave him permission to encamp in the shade of the oaks belonging to Mamre.

14:14 When the survivor informed Abram that Lot had been taken prisoner, the elderly clan leader hastily assembled his 318 trained men—his adult male slaves—and headed 120 miles north as far as Dan in pursuit of his nephew's captors. The use of the name "Dan"—and not "Laish"—suggests that this verse was edited to include the updated name sometime during or after the period of the judges (Jdg 18:29).

14:15 Mounting a nighttime surprise attack, Abram gave his outnumbered troops the advantage. Caught off guard, the coalition of invaders fled headlong on a caravan route as far as Hobah to the north of Damascus.

14:16 In their hasty retreat the invaders abandoned the loot and captives they had taken from Canaan.

14:17 The king of Sodom, who apparently survived his fall into the asphalt pit (v. 10), met Abram's triumphant group in the valley of Shaveh, probably located just east of Jerusalem.

14:18 Melchizedek, whose name means "king of righteousness" (Heb 7:2), held two titles: he was king of Salem (literally, "King of Peace")—Salem being another name for nearby Jerusalem—and priest to God Most High. Abram considered Melchizedek, who is the first person in the Bible to be called a priest, to be a priest of Yahweh, since he equated the title "God Most High" with Yahweh (v. 22). The writer of Hebrews drew significant parallels between Melchizedek and Jesus Christ (Heb 5:6; 7:1-28). Jesus is the ultimate king of righteousness and peace, and the ideal high priest who offered up the ultimate sacrifice that sufficed for all time for the sins of the whole world.

14:19 When Melchizedek blessed Abram, he was performing what would become a major traditional function of priests (Nm 6:23; Dt 10:8). Abram was blessed in the name of God Most High (Hb 'el 'elyon), whom he confessed to be Creator of heaven and earth (1:1).

14:20 In a construction that paralleled his blessing to Abram, Melchizedek also "blessed" (give praise to) God Most High because of the saving acts He had performed. The priest subtly reminded Abram that his recent victory was really God's work; God had handed over the enemies to Abram. The first recorded act of tithing took place here as Abram gave the priest a tenth of the booty he had acquired from the Mesopotamian kings. Abram's tithe anticipates Israel's tithe to God (Lv 27:30-32; Nm 18:21-30; Mt 23:23).

14:21 The king of Sodom then ordered Abram to hand over the liberated captives, including citizens of the king's city. As payment for his military efforts, however, the king gave Abram the recaptured possessions, a term which can refer to livestock as well as objects.

14:22-23 With Melchizedek king of Salem, who worshiped God, Abram was cooperative (vv. 18-20); but when the Canaanite king of Sodom told him to take the possessions, he refused. Abram would not let the king diminish God's glory by taking credit for Abram's prosperity.

Paintings from the tomb of Knumhotep found in the noblemen cemetery of Beni-Hasan, a village on the east bank of the Nile River about 130 miles south of Cairo. The paintings date from the Middle Kingdom of Egypt (ca 1099 B.C.) and show a group of 37 Asiatics as they enter Egypt. This painting provides us with an idea of how Abraham might have dressed.

15:1 Abram's role as a prophet (20:7) is shown here. Visions were one of two standard means (the other was dreams) by which the Lord revealed His word to people (Nm 12:6). The only other patriarch who is said to have received a vision was Jacob (Gn 46:2). The vision's content included a command (Do not be afraid), an assurance (I am your shield), and a promise (your reward will be very great). Though Abram turned down a reward from the king of Sodom, the Lord would reward him richly.

15:2-3 Neither God's protection nor His reward seemed important to elderly Abram since all his goods would go to Eliezer of Damascus, a slave born in his house. Engaging in something of a "pity party," Abram made seven references to himself (in the Hb) in the space of 22 Hebrew words and twice utters the complaint that he was childless.

15:4-5 Ignoring Abram's apparent lack of gratitude, the Lord gave Abram one of the great promises of the Bible; the elderly patriarch would produce an heir . . . from his own body. God then made the breathtaking promise that Abram's offspring would be as numerous as the stars.

15:6 Old and childless, Abram believed the Lord, that is, he affirmed that God is dependable. God credited it to him as righteousness, that is, He judged or accounted that Abram measured up to the standard, conformed to the norm. Abram's faith and God's gracious response to it served as a paradigm of the Christian experience in three different NT books (Rm 4:3; Gl 3:6; Jms 2:23).

15:7 For the third time in Abram's life (12:1; 13:14-17) Yahweh addressed the issue of land. Here Yahweh linked His name and His past leadership in Abram's life to the promise of land. He reminded Abram that the same God who had faithfully brought him out of Ur of the Chaldeans would just as surely give him this land to possess.

15:8 Abram, the shrewd businessman who had once dealt with earth's mightiest human—the pharaoh of Egypt (12:14-19)—now negotiated with the Lord God . How can he be assured of God's promise? Verse 9 provides the answer.

15:9 God provided assurance in the form of a solemn commitment ceremony. The cow . . . female goat, and ram were mammals later authorized for sacrifice in the law of Moses; however, this is the only time that three-year-olds—specimens in the prime of their lives—were used. Turtledoves and young pigeons were permitted for certain Israelite sacrifices (Lv 5:7). The ceremony here differs from other sacred rituals in the OT involving animals in that no animal parts were burned.

15:10 In an act unparalleled in the OT, Abram split the animals down the middle, and laid the pieces opposite each other, creating a clear central lane flanked by the carcass portions. The birds, being smaller, were not cut up; probably, one was placed on each site of this lane.

15:12 Since days were reckoned in that culture from sunset to sunset, the events of verses 12-21 occurred at the end of the day that began in verse 1. Abram's deep sleep (Hb tardemah) recalls the one Adam experienced when the Lord created Eve (2:21).

15:13-16 Here the Lord revealed to Abram the prophet (20:7) an outline of the events of Genesis 46 through Exodus 13. Like Abram himself, his promised offspring would live as foreigners (Hb ger ; Gn 23:4, "resident alien"). The land that did not belong to them was Egypt, where they would be enslaved and oppressed (Ex 1:11-14) for approximately 400 years (more precisely, 430 years; Ex 12:40). God would judge the nation they served through a series of ten miraculous plagues (Ex 7:14-12:30), after which they would go out with many possessions (Ex 12:35-36). Though Abram would not live to see these events, he would go to his fathers in peace—die a peaceful death—and be buried at the ripe old age of 175 (25:7). Abram's descendants would return to the land in the fourth generation, that is, after four hundred years in Egypt; in this case, each generation seems to be one hundred years, Abram's age when Isaac was born (21:5).

The Lord also hinted regarding the purpose of the return of Abram's descendants to the promised land. In large part Israel's return to Canaan would bring God's judgment on the iniquity of the Amorites.

15:17 When the sun had set the Lord climaxed the mystery by causing a smoking fire pot and a flaming torch to appear and pass between the divided animals. Both elements symbolized essential aspects of God; the smoke perhaps representing divine inscrutability, and the flame God's power. By going between the divided carcasses, the Lord was solemnly obligating Himself to fulfill the terms of the covenant—symbolically indicating that He would Himself be split asunder if He failed to carry out His promises.

15:18-21 The second explicit covenant in the Bible between God and a person (9:9-17) is established here with Abram, obliging God to provide the patriarch with offspring and a geographic inheritance for them that began in the south with the brook of Egypt (either the Wadi el 'Arish or the Shihor River—the easternmost branch of the Nile in Egypt's delta region) and extended as far north as the Euphrates River. The list of 10 different people groups here is the longest list of Canaan's inhabitants in the Torah. This is the only list to include the Kenites, Kenizzites, and Kadmonites; the Kenites and Kenizzites were probably groups living in the Negev that coexisted peacefully with the Israelites (Nm 32:12; Jdg 1:16). Perhaps the Kadmonites were the same as the Qedemites, a desert-dwelling enemy of Israel (Jdg 6:33).

16:1 The issue of providing an heir from Abram's own body (cp. 15:3-4) reappears. Abram's wife, Sarai, was now 75 years old and well past her childbearing years. However, she did own an Egyptian slave named Hagar, probably acquired when she lived in Egypt (12:16).

16:2-3 Sarai faced a dilemma. On the one hand, the Lord had prevented her —Abram's only wife—from bearing children. On the other hand, the Lord promised that her husband would become a father. To "fix" the problem, she ordered her husband to go to her slave—quite possibly a teenager—and try to build a family through her. Abram, now 85, agreed. Sarai likely intended to use Hagar as a surrogate mother, and then adopt the child as her own. In offering something that was tempting but not appropriate to her husband, Sarai was imitating Eve's fateful actions in the garden of Eden (3:6).

16:4 The young slave girl found herself carrying the child of the most important man in the clan—something Sarai had never done. As a result, Hagar treated her mistress with contempt.

16:5 Sarai, whose inadequacies were highlighted with Hagar's pregnancy, now found her own suffering unbearable. Abram had caused the pregnancy, thus he was responsible for Sarai's slave girl looking down on her. Sarai called on the Lord to hold Abram accountable for her humiliation and pain.

16:6 Though Hagar was now his wife (v. 3), Abram relinquished his rights to her. Hagar was once again no more than Sarai's slave.

16:7-8 Hagar could run away from Sarai, but not from the Angel of the Lord. He found her at a spring on a road leading to Shur and Egypt, where she might have been able to get assistance from passing caravans. Hagar, like many runaways, could say where she was from, but ignored the question of where she was going.

16:9-10 The Angel of the Lord directed Hagar to go back and submit to Sarai. The true source of Hagar's problems was her own bad attitude, not her owner. By obeying the Angel's divine guidance, she and her offspring would receive a tremendous blessing. God's promise to multiply her descendants both paralleled and enhanced the promise given to Abram (15:5).

16:11-12 This is the final and longest of three consecutive speeches by the Angel to Hagar. Hagar is told that she will have a son, the more prestigious gender of offspring for a woman in the ancient Near East to bear. Then she is directed to name her son Ishmael ("God hears"), in recognition of the fact that the Lord . . . heard her cry of affliction. In the climactic final quatrain, character and destiny are presented: the boy will live outside of cultured society like a wild donkey . . . at odds with all his brothers.

16:13-14 In wonder-filled recognition of God's intervention in her life, Hagar gave the Lord the title "The God Who Sees" (or "The God Who Sees Me"). She is thus the only person in the Bible who is said to have renamed Yahweh. The Asian custom of naming/renaming someone was always associated with the possession of authority over the one being named. To rename God would normally be considered blasphemous. Perhaps Hagar's lack of restraint in renaming the Lord was due to the fact that she was quite young and was a spiritually uninformed Egyptian slave.

16:15-16 Exactly as the Angel of the Lord had promised, Hagar gave birth to a son. The fact that Abram, the 86-year-old clan leader, gave the name Ishmael to the son indicates that he allowed the young slave girl to tell him her story, and he believed it.

17:1 Thirteen years after Ishmael's birth, the Lord appeared to Abram for the second time (12:7). In contrast to Hagar naming the Lord (16:13), here the Lord gives Himself a name: "El Shaddai," the meaning of which is unknown, though it is translated as God Almighty, based on a tradition going back more than two thousand years. For more, see note at Ex 6:2-3. In commanding Abram to live in My presence and be blameless, God told Abram to live like Enoch and Noah (Gn 5:24; 6:9).

17:2 As Abram obeyed the Lord, God promised him two things: first, He would establish His covenant with Abram and second, God would multiply the patriarch greatly. Proof that the Lord kept the latter promise is found in Ex 1:7, which speaks of the Israelites' fruitfulness and repeats the phrase found elsewhere in the Torah only here.

17:3 Falling facedown was Abram's sign of respect for a superior.

17:4-8 This section contains the fullest presentation of God's covenant with Abram. Eight different aspects of the covenant are presented in these verses. Most of these promises are not new, but nowhere else are they put together in one place. The new aspect is where God changed the patriarch's name, thus indicating His authority over him: instead of Abram ("Exalted Father"), his new name would be Abraham ("Father of a Multitude").

17:9-14 God now placed one final covenant-related demand on Abraham and his offspring: circumcision. This surgical removal of the foreskin of the penis was typically done with a razor-sharp flint knife (Jos 5:2-3). On newborns it was performed when the boy was eight days old; no form of female circumcision was authorized. This surrender of the first portion of the bodily instrument used to fulfill God's first command to humanity ("Be fruitful and multiply," Gn 1:28) symbolized the individual's willingness to submit all of himself to God and to all of His covenant commands.

The fact that every male among them was to be circumcised had a leveling effect within the Israelite community; whether wealthy or poor, master or slave, all shared a common experience and a common mark. All were equal before God. So vital was the acceptance of the sign on the body that anyone who lacked it was to be cut off from his people because he had broken the covenant.

17:15-16 The Lord decreed that Abraham's wife Sarai was now to receive the name Sarah ("Princess," which is an alternate form of Sarai). This "princess" would be given the privilege of producing nations; kings of peoples would come from her. During the OT period at least four nations came from Sarah's womb: Israel, Judah, Edom, and the Amalekites. Over Israel and Judah collectively a total of 41 kings reigned. Sarah is the only woman in the OT whom the Lord specifically indicated He would bless.

17:19-22 Undaunted by Abraham's well-intended suggestion regarding Ishmael, God reaffirmed that Sarah would bear him a son who, appropriately, would be named Isaac—"He Laughs." With Isaac God would confirm an everlasting covenant—the Abrahamic covenant—that would continue with future offspring. Lesser promises were made for Ishmael. Though no covenant would be established with him, God would bless Ishmael, enabling him to fulfill humanity's basic command to be fruitful and multiply . . . greatly (1:28; 9:1,7). No kings were promised in Ishmael's lineage, but from him would come 12 tribal leaders (25:13-16), and his offspring would become a great nation.

The Lord's amazing final statement named the child not yet conceived, confirmed a binding relationship between God and that son, and then set a date when the boy would be born to 90-year-old Sarah. Dramatically, God then "ascended above" (HCSB, withdrew from) Abraham.

17:23-27 Promptly after the Lord ascended, Abraham circumcised himself and all the males in his household. With the sign of the covenant now on his body, Abraham was qualified to father the covenant child.

18:1 For the third time in Abraham's life the Lord appeared to him (12:7; 17:1). Mamre, near Hebron, was Abraham's preferred abode in Canaan (13:18; 14:13). This divine encounter must have taken place within three months after the events of the previous chapter (see note at 18:9-10).

18:2-8 Abraham is presented as the ideal host. He sees three men—actually God and two angels (19:1)—to whom he eagerly extended greeting and showed proper respect by calling them "my lords" (Hb 'adonai; a term that can refer to God) and bowing to the ground. Then he provided water, rest, and a feast that included bread baked from 21 quarts of flour. Abraham's behavior shows him to be a better host than Lot (19:1-3).

18:9-10 In keeping with western Asian customs still practiced in traditional Muslim culture today, the host's wife was not permitted to be in the presence of male visitors. But since her tent walls were thin and the conversation was interesting, Sarah was listening to every word. During or after the meal the Lord confirmed the promise made in 17:21, that in about a year's time . . . Sarah would already have given birth to a son. This promise was fulfilled (21:1-2).

18:11-15 For the sixth time in the Abraham narratives the writer emphasizes the advanced ages of Abraham and Sarah (12:4; 16:16; 17:1,17,24). Sarah's laughter expressed her skepticism, but the Lord, who heard her laugh and knew her heart, reminded Abraham and Sarah through the use of a rhetorical question that nothing is impossible for the Lord.

18:16-19 The Lord and the two angels—referred to here as the men because of their man-like appearance—headed in the direction of Sodom, Lot's home since 13:12. The exact location of Sodom is unknown, but it, along with Gomorrah and Zoar, were in the area of the Dead Sea. Abraham, the ideal host, accompanied them to see them off. Treating Abraham like a prophet (20:7), the Lord did not want to hide . . . from him what He intended to do to the place where his nephew lived. God gave two reasons for revealing His plans to the patriarch: the fact that Abraham had been chosen to become a great . . . nation through whom all the nations of the earth would be blessed, and the fact that God "knew" (HCSB, chosen—that is, had a personal relationship with) Abraham to establish a people who would keep the way of the Lord.

18:20-21 The Lord would investigate Sodom and Gomorrah for two reasons: the outcry coming from their victims was immense, and the cities' sin was extremely serious. According to Ezk 16:49-50, the sins of Sodom and Gomorrah included self-centered pride, neglect of the poor and needy, and doing unnamed detestable things. According to Gn 19:5-9, one of the "detestable things" was attempted homosexual gang rape. Through His appointed representatives the Lord would experience what justified the cry that had come up to Him.

18:22-32 This passage is one of the three greatest illustrations of petitionary prayer in the OT (cp. Ex 32:11-14; Am 7:1-6). Abraham got the Lord to agree to spare Sodom if six successively smaller totals of righteous people could be found within the city. Clearly evident in the section are Abraham's respect for God (exemplified by him standing before the Lord, v. 22; cp. v. 27), his confidence in God's power and justice (vv. 23,25), and the patriarch's compassionate concern for Lot and the other inhabitants of Sodom. At the same time the Lord's extravagant mercy is seen in His willingness to spare the entire city on account of 10 righteous people who lived there.

18:33 The Lord did not accompany the angels. His destination remains a mysterious part of the narrative.

19:1-3 Lot's position at the gate may indicate that he was accorded a spot of honor with the elders of the city (Pr 31:23). Like Abraham in Genesis 18, Lot also played the role of gracious host to divine beings in human form, though in a lesser way. Whereas Abraham met with three divine guests, including the Lord, Lot met with two angels. Abraham "ran" to greet his guests and prepared a lavish meal; by contrast, Lot only got up to meet them, and prepared a feast that consisted only of unleavened bread.

19:4-5 Though it was the custom to go to bed soon after the evening meal, the ritual was interrupted by the men of the city demanding sex, justifying the immense outcry raised earlier against the city (18:20-21).

19:6-8 Ancient Asian hospitality customs made Lot responsible for his visitors' safety while under the protection of his roof—no matter what the cost. Accordingly, he put himself at risk by facing the mob and warning them that their intentions were evil. Failing in his appeal to their higher moral instincts, Lot then put his family at risk, offering up his two virgin daughters to satisfy the rabble's sexual desires. Lot's daughters would soon get even with their father for his repulsive offer by making him a victim of disgusting sexual misconduct (vv. 32-36).

19:9-11 Enraged because Lot had declared homosexual rape to be evil, the mob condemned him for acting like a judge. Sinners rarely appreciate having a cherished sin condemned.

19:12-14 Parallels exist between Noah and Lot. Both were righteous men (6:9; 2Pt 2:7), both were warned that the Lord was about to destroy entire civilizations for their great sin (6:13), and the families of both were included in God's salvation. Because the outcry against Sodom had been confirmed, the angels, as God's servants (Heb 1:7), had to destroy the place as God had directed. The men who had entered into binding agreements to marry Lot's virgin daughters proved themselves unworthy of salvation because they rejected Lot's message.

Both of Lot's daughters became pregnant (19:36), resulting in the births of Moab, whose name sounds like the Hebrew phrase "From Father," and Ben-ammi, "Son of My People." Moab was father of the Moabites and Ben-ammi was father of the Ammonites. Many of Israel's neighbors who lived to the east, including the Edomites (from the line of Esau), were distant relatives.

19:15-22 Lot and his family apparently disbelieved the angels' warnings as well, because the next morning they were still in the city. The family was literally saved because of the Lord's compassion as the angels grabbed the hands of each family member. Like Abraham (18:23-32), Lot negotiated a deal with God to save his life. As with Abraham, God graciously granted the request and spared a wicked village for the sake of the righteous people in it. Prior to this time Zoar (lit "Small") was named Bela (14:2).

19:23-25 The Lord rained burning sulfur (lit "sulfur and fire"). As in Noah's day, the fatal instrument of judgment against sinners came out of the sky. No natural explanation (e.g., volcano) is suggested, only a supernatural one: it came from the Lord. Perhaps the asphalt pits (14:10) were ignited, adding to the destruction.

19:26 The disobedience of Lot's wife brought about one of the most mysterious deaths in the Bible as she became a pillar of salt—perhaps becoming permanently entombed in one of the many halite formations in this region.

19:27-29 The destruction was so complete that thick smoke like that of a furnace was still billowing up 24 hours later. Nevertheless, Lot had been saved because God remembered Abraham and acted in consideration of His covenantal relationship with him (18:19).

19:30-38 The cave where Lot and his daughters moved to was probably east of the Dead Sea. Isolation and their knowledge of the detestable ways of the men of the region convinced Lot's daughters that there was no man in the land to sleep with them (i.e., to make them pregnant). Consequently, they schemed to "give life to seed from our father" (preserve our father's line).

This passage does not explicitly condemn drunkenness or incest; it doesn't have to. Every Israelite reader would have known these were sins to be avoided, because two of Israel's most troublesome enemies were spawned as a result of Lot's drunken actions.

20:1-2 Abraham traveled from Mamre to Gerar, a Philistine settlement west of the Dead Sea between Kadesh and Shur, perhaps to get farther away from the devastated area where Sodom had been. Then, less than three months after God had promised that Sarah would bear Abraham a son (18:10), the patriarch gave his wife to Abimelech! Abraham had previously told pharaoh that his wife was his sister (12:12-15); later his son would try the same trick (26:7).

20:3-8 God in His mercy intervened to keep His promise regarding Sarah (18:10) from being destroyed by Abraham's foolish act. In addition to warning Abimelech that Sarah was married, the Lord had also created a health crisis in his household, causing all the other women to become temporarily sterile (v. 18). Because Abimelech had acted with a clear conscience and clean hands—despite accepting Sarah into his harem—God would not destroy Gerar's governmental leadership and thus undermine the nation.

Abraham is the first person to be called a prophet in the OT, though Enoch, who lived before him, is called a prophet in the NT (Jd 14). As Abraham's intercession with God had saved Lot's life (Gn 18:23-32; 19:29), so now his prayer for Abimelech would save his life.

21:5 Though Abraham was 100 years old at Isaac's birth, at least four preflood patriarchs had fathered children when they were older than he (5:6,18,25,28).

21:8-10 The Bible does not indicate Isaac's age when he was weaned. In some cultures children receive nourishment from their mother into their fifth year; beyond age two this provides comfort more than nourishment. When the day came for Isaac to be weaned, Abraham held a great feast to assist the child psychologically in taking this step. During the party, however, Ishmael was mocking Isaac. The apostle Paul understood this to mean he was persecuting Isaac (Gl 4:29). "Drive out" (Hb garash) is the same term used to describe the expulsions of Adam and Cain following their sins (3:24; 4:14).

21:11-13 It was a very difficult thing for Abraham (lit "it was very bad in Abraham's eyes") to expel his firstborn son from the household. However, God's guidance and comforting assurances enabled Abraham to do the right thing. Because Ishmael was Abraham's offspring, God would not allow the child to die in the wilderness; instead, God would make him a nation. And though Isaac was not Abraham's firstborn, the patriarch's offspring would be traced through his lineage.

21:14-19 Abraham's love and concern for Hagar and Ishmael are reflected in his diligence—getting up early and giving them provisions. The banished pair wandered in the Wilderness of Beer-sheba, an area some 20 miles west of the southern end of the Dead Sea. When Hagar and Ishmael ran out of water, Ishmael almost died, perhaps of heatstroke. Overwhelmed with grief, Hagar placed him in the shadow of one of the bushes and then went about a bowshot away—just far enough to avoid hearing his voice as he lay dying. Though Hagar may not have known that where there is large vegetation in a desert there is also a high water table, God opened her eyes to the fact that a well of water was nearby. God had providentially directed her wanderings and given her a demonstration of His faithfulness.

21:20-21 Honoring His promises to Abraham (v. 13; 17:20) and Hagar (21:18), God protected Ishmael, who eventually settled in the Wilderness of Paran, west of the Gulf of Aqaba in the northern Sinai Desert. Hagar, who was herself an Egyptian (16:3), got her son an Egyptian wife. Ishmael would produce 12 sons (25:13-15).

21:22-24 Isaac's miraculous birth and the success of Abraham's prayer (20:17) convinced Abimelech that God was with the patriarch in everything. Fearing that Abraham, who had hundreds of trained fighters in his camp (14:14), might mount a successful attack on Gerar, Abimelech and his military commander Phicol asked Abraham to swear that he would never break an agreement of peace with their community. Abraham calmed their fears by making an oath of peace.

21:25-32 Having relieved their worries about war, the patriarch then expressed his own concerns about water rights. Though Abimelech's group had wronged the patriarch, Abraham gave sheep and cattle to Abimelech as part of a formal covenant. This gift, reminiscent of Abimelech's gift to Abraham earlier (20:14), was probably used in part for the animal sacrifices offered up when a covenant was established. Abimelech's acceptance of the additional gift of seven ewe lambs obligated him to recognize that the well that Abraham's men had dug would not be seized. The name Beer-sheba is a wordplay, meaning both "Well of Oath" and "Well of Seven."

21:33-34 In recognition of God's good gifts, including a son who would carry the bloodline forward into the future, Abraham planted a tamarisk tree, a tree with many branches and small leaves, growing 20 to 30 feet high. He also worshiped Yahweh as the Everlasting God (Hb 'el 'olam) in recognition of the perpetuity of God's promises to Abraham.

22:1-2 Abraham's ultimate test of obedience to God is described in 22:1-19, a section known in the Hebrew tradition as the Akedah (lit "the binding," v. 9).

The Hebrew verb nissah , translated as tested, means "to prove the quality of," not "to entice to do wrong." God used this event to affirm the sterling character of Abraham's faith by giving him the incredibly difficult task of sacrificing his son Isaac in the land of Moriah, i.e., the Jerusalem area (2Ch 3:1). Pagans in Canaan during the OT period regularly practiced child sacrifice by making them pass through the fire (2Kg 16:3) to give them as food to their gods (Ezk 23:37). With this command God was asking Abraham to demonstrate that he was as committed to the Lord God as pagans were to their gods.

22:3-4 Confirmation of Abraham's amazing trust in God is found first in the fact that he was up before sunrise (early in the morning) the next day to begin the journey. His diligence in going to the place God had told him about contrasts sharply with Jonah's actions (Jnh 1:3). Traveling from Beer-sheba, it was not until the third day that Abraham reached the Jerusalem area.

22:5-8 Evidence that Abraham believed God could raise Isaac from the dead (Heb 11:17-18) is found in his comment, we'll come back. Abraham carried the most dangerous elements of the sacrifice—the fire and the sacrificial knife—himself, perhaps as a sign of his protective love for Isaac. Ignorant of God's command and surprised that his father would forget the most important element in an animal sacrifice, Isaac asked Abraham where the lamb (Hb seh also means "sheep") was. Abraham's faith-filled response was that God Himself would provide the lamb ("sheep").

22:9-10 Abraham followed the standard procedure for a burnt offering involving a living being. In describing his preparation, the Bible emphasizes only Abraham's systematic acts of obedience, omitting any mention of Abraham's or Isaac's feelings.

22:11-12 Just before the knife was put to Isaac's neck, the Angel of the Lord spared him. The patriarch had passed the test, providing experiential evidence that he feared God more than he loved his only son.

22:13-14 Exactly as Abraham had predicted (v. 8), God had miraculously provided a sheep—and the most prized variety, a ram. To memorialize the event Abraham named that place The Lord Will Provide (Hb yahweh yir'eh).

22:15-18 As the Angel (meaning "Messenger") of the Lord who had the Lord's authority, the divine emissary delivered a second message (v. 12), this one in the first person. Because Abraham had passed the "priorities test" by obeying God and not withholding his only son, the Lord would indeed bless him with offspring, victory, land, and goodwill. Since there is nothing greater, God swears by Himself (cp. Ex 32:13; Is 45:23; Jr 22:5; 49:13). Ironically, since Abraham was willing to accept the loss of his covenant offspring, God would make those offspring as numerous as the stars of the sky and the sand on the seashore. They would possess the fortified city entrance gates—and thus the cities—of their enemies, a promise of both military victory and expanded territory. But more than being feared as conquerors, Abraham's offspring would be recognized as a fountainhead of blessing for all the nations of the earth.

22:20-24 Genesis next presents the offspring of Abraham's brother Nahor through his wife Milcah and his concubine Reumah. This brief section prepares the reader for the events of chapter 24 by introducing Bethuel and identifying him as the father of Rebekah, Isaac's future wife.

23:1-2 Indicative of Sarah's importance is the fact that she is the only woman in the Bible whose age at the time of her death is reported. Kiriath-arba ("City of Four") was the name for the city later known as Hebron.

23:3-6 When a family member died in Abraham's culture, the survivors were obliged to preserve the deceased's bones, ideally in a cave where all other family members could later have their remains preserved. Abraham owned no land in Canaan, so he had to obtain a burial site from the Hittites to bury Sarah. Like the Philistines earlier (21:22), the Hittites recognized that Abraham was God's chosen one among them. Perhaps in order to guarantee the favor of Abraham's God, they offered Abraham the right to use the region's finest burial place.

23:7-11 In the market square at the gate of Kiriath-arba, Abraham showed his respect for the Hittites, placing his head at the level of their feet. The patriarch was wealthy and highly respected, but he played the role of one who was unworthy to speak to the landowner whose property he desired. Accordingly, he asked the Hittites to ask Ephron on his behalf for the right to purchase the cave of Machpelah. Though Abraham was a skilled bargainer (18:23-32), he offered to pay the full price for the property. This gesture signaled respect for the Hittites and the desire to avoid undignified haggling. Matching Abraham's decorum, Ephron the Hittite spoke directly to Abraham and offered to give him not only the cave, but also the field.

23:12-18 With both parties in agreement, Abraham bowed again respectfully and repeated his willingness to pay the full price of the field—even though he did not yet know how much that would be. Four hundred shekels of silver—perhaps the price of eight healthy adult male slaves (Lv 27:3)—may or may not have been a reasonable valuation. Either way, Abraham agreed to the price. The amount represented a weight that in Moses' time equaled 10 pounds; we do not know how much it was at the Hittites' commercial rate. The piece of land was particularly valuable because it contained both a cave and trees.

23:19-20 Following the successful negotiations, Abraham buried his wife Sarah in the cave . . . at Machpelah. Others who would be buried there included Abraham, Isaac, Rebekah, Leah, and Jacob (49:31; 50:13).

24:1-9 Abraham, now 140 years of age, had been blessed by the Lord in everything, but one thing was missing—a worthy wife for his 40-year-old son to insure the continuance of the covenant line. Based on his experience with the inhabitants of Canaan—whether the Sodomites or the Philistines—Abraham did not want Isaac to marry a woman from the daughters of the Canaanites. Instead, she must come from his relatives hundreds of miles away in northwest Mesopotamia. Abraham himself was too old to make the journey back, so he summoned his most trusted servant, perhaps Eliezer (15:2), to fulfill the task. Finding the right wife for Isaac required divine help, so Abraham had his servant take an oath by the Lord, God of heaven and God of earth, and also to place his hand under Abraham's thigh, the bodily zone associated with Abraham's posterity.

This act symbolically underscored the importance of the task for Abraham's future and that of his clan. With great faith and prophetic insight the patriarch promised that God would send His angel before the servant so that he could take a wife for Isaac from the clan. As part of the concern for his posterity, Abraham also warned his servant not to let Isaac abandon the promised land—and with it God's covenant—by going back there himself to Aram-naharaim.

24:10-11 The chief servant and several other slaves (v. 32) took goods reflective of Abraham's wealth, which could be used to pay the bride price for Isaac's wife. The journey from Beer-sheba to Aram-naharaim—located somewhere in northwest Mesopotamia—could have taken a couple of weeks. The town of Nahor could mean that Nahor was the name of the village or that it was Nahor's hometown. Nahor was the name of Abraham's brother and grandfather (11:25-26), thus suggesting that this village was populated by Abraham's relatives.

24:12-14 Being in the ancestral village at the best time and spot to interact with eligible girls, the servant still needed divine help to accomplish his task. He had faith that God had appointed a worthy young woman from this area to marry Isaac and would show kindness to his master. He prayed to the Lord, suggesting a test of hospitality and service. A thirsty camel can drink as much as 30 gallons of water in 15 minutes. Since 10 camels accompanied the servant (v. 10), it is possible that the young woman would have had to draw 300 hundred gallons of water (equal to 2,500 lbs) from the spring to pass the servant's test.

24:15-22 Before the servant finished speaking, God more than answered his prayer (Is 65:24) with the arrival of Rebekah. Not only was she the granddaughter of Abraham's brother Nahor and a virgin, but she was also very beautiful. With courtesy and enthusiasm she passed the servant's test. As a generous reward for her selfless act, the servant gave Rebekah a gold nose ring

24:23-27 The servant received the best possible answers to two more questions: Rebekah was indeed the daughter of Abraham's nephew Bethuel, and the men and their camels could spend the night with her family. Overwhelmed with gratitude, the servant bowed down, worshiped the Lord, and praised Him for His acts of kindness (Hb chesed; "covenant faithfulness") and faithfulness.

24:28-33 The generosity of Abraham's servant generated a response in kind from Rebekah's mother's household. The level of hospitality provided by Rebekah and her family rivals the hospitality Abraham showed his visitors in 18:3-8.

24:34-49 In the longest recorded speech by a slave in the OT (238 words in the Hebrew), Abraham's servant recounted in detail three relevant matters: how the Lord had greatly blessed Abraham, why a young woman was needed from Bethuel's household, and how God had revealed that He had appointed Rebekah for his master's son. Then the servant gave them the opportunity to show kindness and faithfulness to Abraham by permitting Rebekah to accompany him back to his master's household.

24:50-53 When Laban and Bethuel—the ruling adult males in the clan—were presented with evidence that the Lord had spoken and had selected Rebekah for Isaac, they released her to be a wife for Abraham's son. As the bride price the servant then presented gifts to Rebekah . . . her brother, and her mother.

24:54-61 The next morning, Abraham's servant asked Bethuel not to delay the return to Abraham, even though it was customary to spend several days with the wife's family members (Jdg 19:8-10). Rebekah's statement, I will go, expressed her willingness to leave immediately, not her acceptance of the marriage arrangement—that was already settled. As a wedding gift the family gave Rebekah the one who had nursed her, a beloved slave named Deborah (35:8) who attended to her for many years. The clan also gave her a prophetic blessing, commending both fruitfulness and victory for her offspring.

24:62-66 After a journey of hundreds of miles on camelback, the caravan returned to Isaac's home. Rebekah saw Isaac for the first time on the day she married him. As was apparently the custom on the wedding day, Rebekah covered herself with a veil before meeting her husband. Before presenting Rebekah to Isaac, Abraham's servant told Isaac everything he had done and what God had done for him.

24:67 As part of the marital ritual Isaac brought Rebekah into what had been his mother Sarah's tent. This would now become her home, which marked her as the clan matriarch, the most powerful woman in the group. There Isaac and

Rebekah consummated the marriage. Having waited 40 years to marry, Isaac loved his wife deeply, and was finally comforted after his mother's death, which had occurred three years earlier (17:17; 23:1; 25:20).

25:1-4 Probably after Sarah's death Abraham took another wife with concubine status, Keturah. In partial fulfillment of God's promise that he would have descendants as numerous as the stars (15:5; 22:17), Abraham fathered six additional sons.

25:5-6 Abraham was generous to Isaac because Keturah, like Hagar, was a concubine; she and her sons had less status than Sarah and Isaac. Accordingly, Abraham only gave gifts to Keturah's sons, while he gave Isaac everything he owned. Because God had given the land of Canaan only to Isaac's descendants, Abraham sent Keturah's sons eastward to the Arabian peninsula.

25:7-10 Abraham lived some 37 years after Sarah's death and died at the age of 175. The biblical writer's comment that Abraham was gathered to his people hints at the Israelites' early belief in an afterlife. The patriarch's two oldest sons Isaac (now 75; see 21:5) and Ishmael (now 89; see 16:16) took the responsibility of burying their father.

25:12-18 The family records of Abraham's son Ishmael, the seventh of the eleven (Hb) toledoth sections of Genesis (see note at 5:1), complement the family records of Abraham's son Isaac (25:19). The lesser status of Ishmael's family line compared to Isaac's is reflected in the section's relatively small size (7 verses vs. 364 verses) and the notation that Ishmael's mother Hagar was the slave of Isaac's mother Sarah.

Ishmael fathered 12 sons, all of whom became leaders of their clans. Their villages and encampments stretched from Havilah to Shur—the region between the modern Suez canal and the Wadi el-Arish. Later their settlements, the best known of which was Kedar, would extend into the northwest Arabian Peninsula; these would be involved in incense trade. During his 137 years, Ishmael would also father two daughters, Mahalath and Basemath (28:9; 36:3). In keeping with the prophetic word (16:12), Ishmael lived in opposition to all his brothers.

25:19 The family records of Isaac son of Abraham, the eighth of the eleven (Hb) toledoth sections in Genesis (see note at 5:1), extend from 25:19 through 35:29.

25:27-28 The differences between Esau and Jacob, already apparent at birth, became more pronounced as the boys grew up. Esau was a rough-and-tumble hunter and outdoorsman (lit "man of rural regions"); Jacob was quiet and stayed at home (lit "dweller in tents"). The differences between the boys highlighted a division between the parents: Isaac, something of an outdoorsman himself (24:63), loved his rugged son Esau, while Rebekah loved her more domestic son

Jacob, even teaching him how to cook.

25:29-34 Esau's impatient, appetite-driven life contrasted sharply with Jacob's shrewd, calculating character. Esau willingly traded his birthright—the right of the firstborn son to a double portion (or perhaps two-thirds) of the inheritance (Dt 21:17)—for the chance to eat some . . . red stuff. Because of his fateful decision, Esau picked up the alternate name Edom ("Red"), which would be carried by the people group stemming from him (32:3). And because Jacob had made him swear to sell his birthright, the decision could not be undone.

26:1-6 Isaac and his clan experienced the second recorded famine of the Bible (12:10). To avoid the effects of the famine, Isaac sought refuge in the region where his father had once lived (20:1). The Abimelech mentioned here may or may not be the same one with whom Abraham negotiated a treaty (21:27). The name may have been given to each succeeding king within a dynastic family. Isaac must have been tempted to leave the famine-ravaged land and go down to well-watered Egypt as his father had done (12:10), but the Lord warned him not to do this. To inherit the promises of offspring, land, and blessing that God had given Abraham, Isaac had to stay in the land as a foreigner.

26:7-11 Isaac would have had to negotiate with the Philistines to enjoy certain privileges among them. As a result he might have to provide a wife for someone's harem. If the person asked for Rebekah (and she was, after all, the most important female in the clan and a beautiful woman), Isaac might be killed if he refused. Thus Isaac, like Abraham before him (12:13; 20:2), told outsiders that his wife was his sister. Isaac's lie was uncovered when he was caught caressing (lit "laughing/playing with") Rebekah. Abimelech, as the supreme authority in the region, sent for Isaac and demanded an explanation. Isaac patterned his defense after his father's (20:11); he feared he might die on account of his wife.

26:12-22 Because the Lord blessed him, Isaac enjoyed amazing success as a farmer, achieving the highest level of agricultural productivity recorded in the Bible (cp. Mt 13:8). The Philistines viewed Isaac as a rich foreigner with a reputation for trickery, and they wanted him off their land. Isaac complied, moving to the nearby Valley of Gerar, reopening old wells that had been filled with dirt and having his slaves dig three new ones to accommodate his increased herds and flocks without threatening the Philistines. However, as in the days of Abraham (Gn 21:25) the contentious Philistines claimed the rights to the first two wells, giving rise to the names "Esek" (Quarrel) and "Sitnah" (Hostility). When at last the Philistines did not quarrel over a well, Isaac rejoiced and named the well "Rehoboth" (Open Spaces).

26:23-25 Isaac's clan moved about 25 miles southeast to Beer-sheba, where his father had once lived (21:31). There the Lord appeared to Isaac and reassured him at a time when the Philistines were making trouble. The Lord was with Isaac to bless him and multiply his offspring, in keeping with God's promises to Abraham (15:5; 17:2; 22:17). Isaac was the third patriarch to build an altar (besides Noah, 8:20; and Abraham, 12:7-8; 13:18; 22:9).

26:26-29 As with Abraham (21:22-23), God's blessing was clearly present on Isaac's life. The Philistine leaders believed that to oppose Isaac was to invite disaster from God and reprisals from members of Isaac's clan who felt they had been wronged. Thus they wanted to make a covenant with him.

26:30-33 Isaac's preparation of a banquet signified his acceptance of the treaty, which became official the next day when the parties swore an oath of non-aggression. That same day Isaac's slaves reported success in digging a fifth well, this one named Sheba (Hb shiva'h; "Seven"), similar to the Hebrew word for oath (shevua') and confirming Abraham's name for Beer-sheba (21:31).

26:34-35 Esau married at the same age his father had (25:20). His marriages to two pagan Hittites, Judith ("Praise") and Basemath ("Balsam/Spice"), expressed more of his animal-like nature (see note at 25:27-28). Esau's wives made life bitter for Isaac and Rebekah, most likely by being contentious about Jacob's favored status.

27:1-4 Isaac was now over 100 years old (see 25:26; 26:34). Though he would live to 180—at least 20 years beyond this point (35:28)—Isaac may have been sick at the time, since his vision was obviously poor and he was so concerned to bless his older son Esau before he died. The blessing given by a clan patriarch to his heir was of great significance since it formally conferred the right to rule over the clan following the patriarch's death. As with covenant-making (26:28-30), a patriarchal blessing was accompanied by a delicious meal.

27:5-17 Following Near Eastern tradition (18:9-10), Rebekah could not be in the immediate company of males—even family members—who were conducting business. However, she was listening to the men from nearby. After learning of Isaac's intentions for Esau, Rebekah came up with a scheme to overturn the plans. Perhaps she did it because she remembered the decades-old prophecy about Jacob dominating his older brother (25:23).

With this the Bible paints a picture of a troubled family: Rebekah using her son (not "their son") to destroy her husband's plans, and Jacob agreeing to lie to his father and cheat his brother. A curse of an unexpected sort did result for both Jacob and Rebekah: their scheme forced Jacob to leave his father and mother (28:5), and the Bible gives no indication that Rebekah ever saw her favorite son again.

27:18-27a Isaac was blind, but he could still use his other senses in addition to his reasoning. To overcome this, Jacob used at least five different things to deceive his father; goatskins to make his hands seem rough and hairy (v. 23), the cooked goat his mother prepared (v. 25), his brother's clothes in order to smell like Esau (v. 27), alcohol to impair his father's judgment (v. 25), and blatant lies (vv. 19,20,24). Jacob's craftiness paid off since his father blessed him.

27:27b-29 Isaac's blessing included four elements: agricultural prosperity (v. 28)—even as He had done for Isaac (26:12); international respect and success (27:29); a command directing Jacob to be master over the entire clan; and the transference of the protective provision of cursing and blessing that God had once given Jacob's grandfather Abraham (12:3).

27:31-38 Esau apparently had to awaken his blind father, who was confused at first, but began to tremble uncontrollably when he realized he had given someone other than Esau the right to rule the clan. Esau complained that Jacob had now cheated him twice, first gaining the double portion of inheritance (25:31-33), and now the clan's headship. Jacob (Hb ya'aqov), whose name sounds similar to words meaning "deceitfulness" (Hb 'aqevah) and "to supplant/replace" (Hb 'aqav), had lived up to his name. Having lost every desirable blessing, Esau begged his father to find some way to bless him, too.

27:39-40 Isaac's response to Esau was much shorter than Jacob's blessing (21 vs. 34 Hebrew words), and was more of an "anti-blessing." Creating an ironic wordplay with phrases from Jacob's blessing (v. 28), Isaac stated that Esau would live away from the richness of the land and from the dew of the sky. Jacob would "be master" (v. 29), but Esau would serve. Living a life of violence by the sword, Esau's only consolation was that he would someday break Jacob's yoke from his neck.

27:41-46 For a second time in this chapter, Rebekah intervened to change Jacob's destiny. Her latest plan was for Jacob to stay with his uncle Laban in Haran—hundreds of miles away—until Esau's anger subsided. Otherwise, she feared, she would lose both her sons in one day—Jacob by murder, Esau by capital punishment (9:6). The few days, however, turned out to be more than 20 years (31:38)!

28:1-2 As with Abraham in the previous generation, Isaac was concerned that his youngest son not take a wife from the Canaanite women (lit "daughters of Canaan"; cp. 24:3).

28:3-5 Before Jacob's departure Isaac extended to him two major covenant blessings: offspring and land. The blessing of being fruitful was previously given to Adam (1:28), Noah and his sons (9:1,7), Abraham (17:6), and Ishmael (17:20). Isaac invoked it using the name "El Shaddai" (God Almighty), a name first revealed to Abraham (17:1; see note there). The second blessing was possession of the land God gave to Abraham, a blessing that only God could give. Having received these blessings, Jacob left for his mother's ancestral home of Paddan-aram.

28:6-9 When Esau noticed that his father Isaac disapproved of the two Canaanite women he had married (26:34), he did not divorce them. Instead he added to them, taking his cousin Mahalath daughter of Ishmael as a third wife. Mahalath was also known as Basemath (36:3). Mahalath's brother Nebaioth was Ishmael's firstborn son (1Ch 1:29).

28:10-15 Jacob started northward on the approximately 500-mile journey to Haran. At the end of one of his first days he stopped in central Palestine and camped outdoors. That night God appeared to him. Perhaps the stairway (a better translation than "ladder") he dreamed of was a supernatural version of humanity's Tower of Babylon (11:4), with God's angels—and not sinful humans—using it to commute from heaven to earth. In the dream Yahweh transferred to Jacob all the essential elements of the promises given originally to Abraham and Isaac.

Key features from Abraham's era include: the gift of land (12:7; 13:17); the promise of offspring as numerous as the dust of the earth (cp. 13:16); and peoples being blessed through Jacob and his offspring (cp. 12:3; 18:18). As with his father Isaac, God promised He would be with him wherever he went (26:24) and bring him back to the promised land.

28:16-19 No other person in the OT is recorded as anointing a sacred stone; Jacob would do it twice (35:14). Jacob renamed the site Bethel ("House of God"), a name that would be retained throughout Israelite history (Jdg 1:23; Neh 11:31).

28:20-22 Jacob is the only patriarch to make a vow. Though his words can appear selfish, the vow may simply contain a request that God would carry out the implications of the promises made in verse 15. Years later Jacob would confess that God had indeed kept the terms of His promises (35:3).

29:1-6 Jacob arrived at Haran after an unspecified amount of time, stopping at a well just outside the town. The well was covered with a large stone to protect it from unauthorized use and wild animals.

29:7-12 Foreshadowing his exceptional shepherding skills (30:29-30), Jacob instructed the local shepherds on how to do their job properly. The apparent laziness of the shepherds—or weakness—is suggested by their unwillingness to remove the stone from the top of the well.

Jacob's actions contrasted sharply with those of the local shepherds. Inspired by the appearance of Rachel, Jacob rolled the heavy stone from the well's opening all by himself. His act of watering his uncle Laban's sheep is reminiscent of his mother's act of watering Abraham's camels years earlier (24:20). Rachel is the first shepherdess of the Bible (cp. Ex 2:16); the task of shepherding flocks was usually given to men. The first mention in the Bible of a man kissing a woman occurs in Gn 29:11; such actions were not normally performed in public.

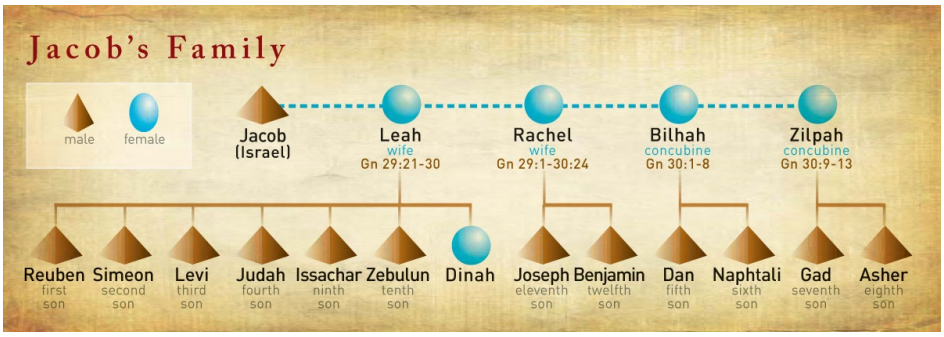
29:13-20 In the ancient Near East, a male kissing another male in greeting signified acceptance of and respect for the other person (27:27; 45:15; Ex 18:7; 1Sm 10:1). Laban called Jacob my own flesh and blood and gave him the right to stay in the home permanently. Jacob was neither a son nor a slave, so it was appropriate to work out a suitable arrangement that compensated Laban for his provisions and Jacob for his labor. It was not appropriate for Jacob to work for nothing, so it was agreed that Jacob would work for seven years for the right to marry Rachel.

This arrangement is reminiscent of a provision in the law of Moses that permitted certain slaves to work seven years for their freedom (Ex 21:2). Men did not buy wives in the strict sense of the word; however, they did customarily pay a bride-price (Gn 34:12; Ex 22:17; 1Sm 18:25) to their future wife's family to compensate them for the care and protection provided to the woman prior to her marriage.

29:21-23 Jacob, now almost 50 years old (25:24-26; 26:34-35; 27:46) after working for Laban seven years, informed Laban that it was time for him to sleep with Rachel. Arranging a weeklong wedding feast, Laban proceeded to cheat the family member who had cheated other people in the past (27:12-25,36). Instead of the expected younger daughter Rachel, Laban gave Leah to Jacob. In the darkness of the evening and with his bride concealed behind a veil (24:65), Jacob did not realize what had been done to him. Accordingly, he slept with Leah.

29:31-35 The Lord, who had seen and provided for Hagar previously in her time of need (16:13-14), now saw that Leah was unloved (lit "hated") and opened her womb. In a society where a woman's prestige depended almost entirely on her success in bearing sons, the Lord gave Leah four sons before she temporarily (31:17) stopped having children. Three themes are present in Leah's remarks: her conviction that God provided these children in response to her affliction and unloved condition, her hope that the births would cause her husband to love her, and her praise to the Lord for what He had done. The explanations connected with each son's name are not linguistic etymologies, but explanations of wordplays.



30:1-8 Rachel's extreme unhappiness created serious tensions in the marriage. Jacob reminded her that it was God, not he, who has withheld children (lit "fruit of a womb") from her. Partial relief came through the practice of surrogate motherhood as Rachel gave Jacob her slave Bilhah so she could bear children "upon [Rachel's] knees" (for me). The phrase suggests that the adoption process involved placing the newborn child on the adopting mother's knees (50:23). When Bilhah gave birth to Dan, Rachel felt that God had vindicated her. When Bilhah conceived again and gave birth to a second son, Rachel, who had frankly struggled in her relationships with God and Leah, felt that she had finally prevailed and won. Accordingly, she named her second adoptive son Naphtali.

30:9-13 Leah, who had once used her fertility to try to win her husband's love, now resorted to the desperate act of giving her slave to Jacob as a surrogate wife to produce additional sons, Gad and Asher. Leah signaled their adoption by being the one who named them.

30:14-21 During the late springtime harvest, Leah's oldest son Reuben found some wild mandrakes. A plant possessing tuberous roots resembling human torsos, the mandrake was thought to enhance one's sexual powers and fertility. Leah, still lonely and desperate for her husband's affection, bartered some of the mandrakes with Jacob's favorite wife Rachel for the right to sleep with Jacob for a night. Because God listened to Leah—and not because of the mandrakes—she conceived and bore a fifth son, Issachar. When Leah bore Jacob a sixth son . . . Zebulun—her last—she gave God the credit. Jacob's only named daughter, Dinah, would play a tragic role in chapter 34.

30:22-24 For the third time in Genesis God is said to have remembered someone (cp. 8:1; 19:21), an event that always indicates the onset of a beneficial act by God. In this case He gave Rachel her firstborn son . . . Joseph, whose name (Hb yoseph) is actually a verb that expressed Rachel's prayerful hopes —"May He [the Lord] add" another son. The Lord would give Rachel her desire, but with bitter results (35:16-19).

30:25-36 Jacob, now with a dozen children and four wives but very little else, demanded release from his responsibilities in Laban's household so he could return to his homeland, where he would be the head of a wealthy clan. Though Jacob was poor, Laban's wealth had increased because the LORD had blessed him through Jacob, just as the Lord had promised (28:14). Laban, who had learned by the forbidden practice of divination (Lv 19:26) that God had blessed him because of Jacob, realized the great advantages of keeping Jacob around, so he offered to pay Jacob whatever wages his son-in-law would name.

Jacob asked for two things: the right to continue to shepherd Laban's flock, and all of Laban's sheep and goats that had rare and unusual markings. Laban readily agreed to the terms and virtually assured Jacob's financial failure by removing from the flocks every animal that possessed the traits Jacob had specified. To guarantee that Jacob could not use them, he drove them a three-day journey—40 to 50 miles—away and put his own sons in charge of them.

30:37-43 Jacob began a six-year effort (31:41) to increase his wealth at Laban's expense. During that time he used at least three different techniques to make the flocks produce sheep and goats he could keep: (1) he separated the strong animals from the weak, using only the strong ones for his breeding purposes; (2) he set . . . peeled branches . . . in the water channels where the sheep bred; and (3) he made the flocks face the streaked and completely dark sheep in Laban's flocks. Though the latter two practices have no scientific value, God Himself (31:7-8,42) and the Angel of the Lord (31:11-12) caused Jacob to become very rich.

31:1-3 Jacob's overwhelming success created deep resentment in Laban's sons; their father's loss meant less inheritance for them. It also changed Laban's attitude to the point where Jacob no longer felt welcome. As the situation deteriorated, the Lord gave Jacob a command and a promise: he was to return to his clan and to the land promised to his grandfather (12:7), armed with the assurance that the Lord would be with him.

31:4-16 Jacob presented Rachel and Leah with three reasons for making a major move away from the only home they had ever known to a land they had never even seen: (1) their father Laban had an unfavorable attitude toward Jacob; (2) Laban was unethical in business, having cheated Jacob and changed his wages 10 times—almost every time a new generation of sheep and goats was born (there would have been about 14 breeding cycles for sheep in six years); and (3) most important of all, the God who had taken their father's herds and given them to Jacob had now ordered him to return to his native . . . land. Rachel and Leah were agreeable to the idea, since their father had treated them like "foreigners" (outsiders).

31:17-21 Jacob now began the journey back to the land of his father Isaac. Though he had left 20 years earlier alone and with no possessions, he now returned with a family and an abundance of property. Even as Jacob "stole the heart of" (deceived) Laban by leaving secretly, his wife Rachel had also stolen her father's household idols (Hb teraphim). The group crossed the Euphrates in what is now Syria, then headed south for Gilead (part of modern Jordan).

31:22-30 Learning of Jacob's secret departure, Laban gathered a posse and set out to catch the group. Laban intended to harm Jacob, probably because he believed Jacob had stolen his household gods, but the God of Jacob's father kept the promise of protection made 20 years earlier (28:15), and warned Laban in a dream not to harm Jacob. Laban was frustrated not only because he had lost his household gods, but because he had no opportunity to kiss his grandchildren and . . . daughters good-bye and send the group off with a joyful celebration.

31:31-35 Jacob was apparently afraid that Laban would treat him as a slave and take his wives away by force (Ex 21:3-4). Ignorant of what his favorite wife Rachel had done, Jacob promised death for the person possessing Laban's household gods. As shrewd and deceptive as her father Laban, Rachel prevented him from checking the saddlebags by claiming she was having her monthly period. During that phase of a woman's monthly cycle, anything she sat on became ceremonially unclean and was not to be touched by others (Lv 15:26).

31:36-43 Jacob unleashed a torrent of pent-up anger at Laban, noting seven ways in which he had helped his fatherin-law and labored selflessly on his behalf. Then Jacob confessed that Yahweh, the God of his grandfather Abraham, alternately known as the Fear of Isaac (the only use of this term in the Bible), saw Jacob's affliction, protected him from financial ruin, and issued a verdict on his behalf. In response, Laban expressed his disgust by insisting that everything Jacob had was rightfully his.

31:44-55 To end the dispute, Laban proposed that he and Jacob make a covenant that would bring peace and a separation between the Israelite (Jacob's) and the Aramean (Laban's) branches of the Terah clan. In classic ancient Near Eastern treaty tradition, the covenant-making event consisted of building a sacred stone and a mound (Jegar-sahadutha, or Galeed ["Mound of Witness"]), the calling of witnesses (the covenant itself, the marker, and the mound), a preliminary ceremonial meal, expression of the covenant terms, invocation of deities that would oversee the covenant (the God of Abraham, and the gods of Nahor), and a concluding ceremonial meal.

32:1-2 For the second time while on a journey, Jacob saw God's angels (cp. 28:12). As before, he named the place where he encountered them. In this case he called it Mahanaim, "Two Camps," probably in recognition of the fact that both people and angels were at the same location.

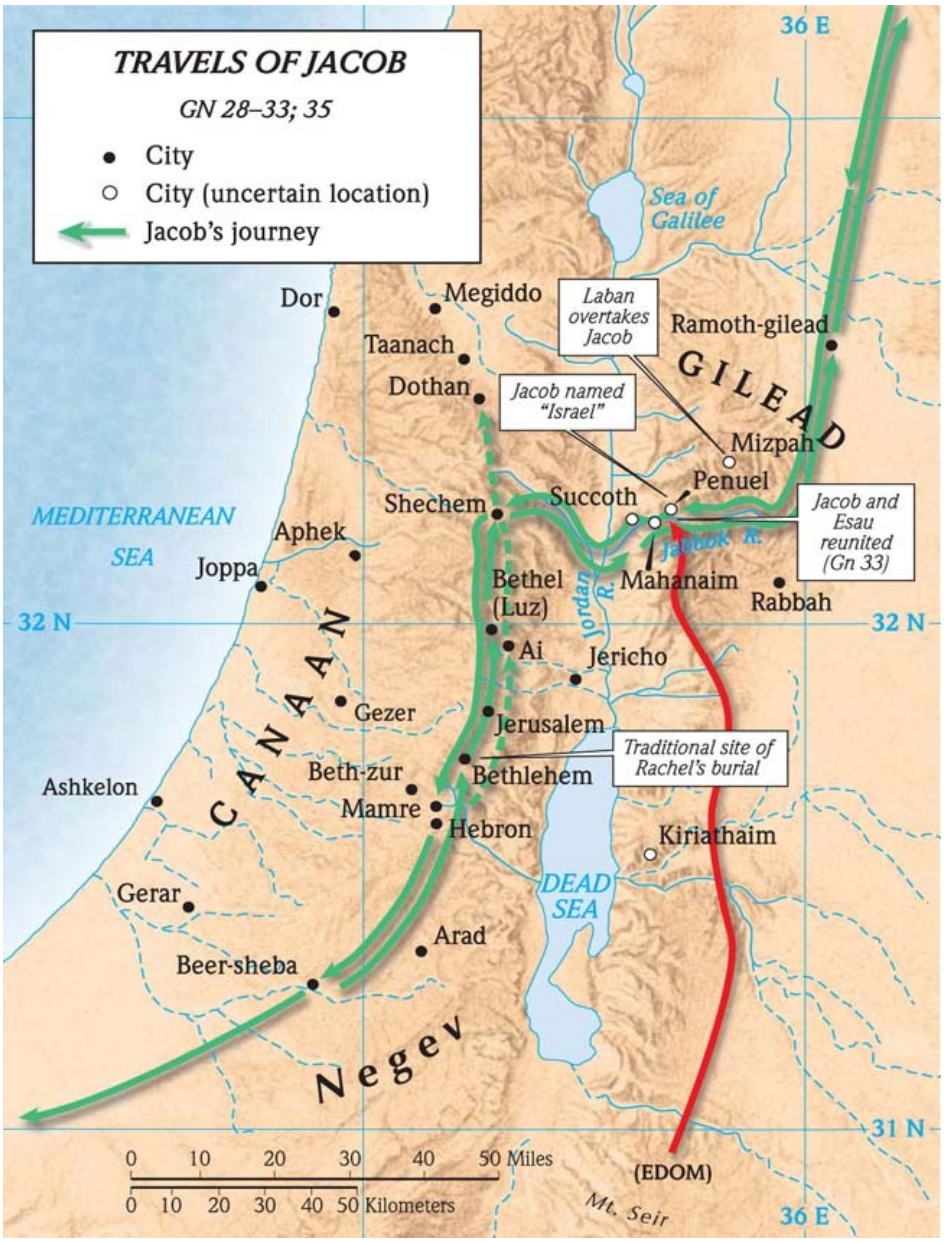
32:3-12 Remembering Esau's death threats from 20 years earlier (27:41-42),

Jacob now made a special effort to gain Esau's favor with the assistance of messengers. The first prong of his strategy was verbal: Jacob had the messengers call Esau lord and himself your servant, thus honoring Esau's position as firstborn—even though he had previously taken Esau's birthright and blessing. Jacob also made sure he was the first to initiate contact between the brothers, in order to seek Esau's favor.

To prepare for the coming confrontation with his brother Jacob did two things: first, he divided his group in two so at least some of his people could escape if necessary; second, he offered a prayer with three elements: an admission that he was unworthy of the many blessings God had given him, a prayer for rescue, and a reminder of God's promises to prosper and multiply Jacob.

32:13-21 Jacob, who had been so adept at taking from others in the past, now arranged to give a generous gift to his brother Esau. Only after Esau had received all the gifts would Jacob meet him.

32:22-23 As a final measure of self-protection that night, Jacob put one more barrier between himself and Esau, moving his family and possessions across the Jabbok, a westward-flowing tributary emptying into the Jordan River 15 miles north of the Dead Sea. Perhaps Jacob believed that Esau would have compassion on his wives and children, and so end his pursuit.



32:24-30 Now Jacob experienced his third and final encounter with God while on a journey (cp. v. 1; 27:12-15). A man, understood by later Israelites to be God or an angel possessing the authority of God (Hs 12:3-4), wrestled with the elderly patriarch until daybreak. The fight ended when the divine being dislocated Jacob's hip. Jacob, injured but still unwilling to release his grip on the being, demanded that He bless him. Asserting His authority over Jacob (see note at Gn 1:5), the man changed Jacob's name to Israel (Hb yisra'el), linking the name with the fact that the patriarch had struggled (Hb sarah) with God (Hb 'el), as well as with men, and had prevailed.

Jacob was the third person to be renamed by God, joining Abraham and Sarah (17:5,15). The patriarch's inferior status is reflected in the fact that, unlike the divine being, who asked for Jacob's name and got it, Jacob was unable to learn the being's name. The renamed man now renamed the place Peniel—or Penuel—lit "the face of God," because he had seen God face to face and yet was spared from death.

33:1-3 Following his transforming encounter with God, Jacob went from hiding behind his wives and children (32:22-23) to boldly taking the lead in protecting his family. In his encounter with Esau and his 400 men, Jacob went on ahead of the group, arranging his family behind him according to their status. In a display of respect unparalleled in the Bible, Jacob bowed down to Esau seven times as he approached.

33:4-11 Even as Jacob had been changed the previous night, it seems that Esau had changed too. Perhaps he had been warned by God not to harm Jacob, even as other adversaries of the patriarchs had been before (20:3-7; 31:24). The once-estranged brothers hugged . . . kissed, and wept together in gracious reunion—a scene that anticipated a reunion between estranged brothers in the next generation (45:14-15). Esau, who had three wives and five sons (36:2-5), inquired about Jacob's family. Each of the mothers approached Esau with their children and respectfully bowed down. The fact that Joseph was the only named son in the group and was mentioned ahead of his mother foreshadows his leading role in later narratives.

Though Esau encouraged Jacob to keep what animals he had earlier sent ahead, Jacob insisted that Esau take the gift as a confirmation that the younger brother had found favor with him.

33:12-15 To compensate Jacob for his generous gift, Esau offered to provide companionship ("let us go"; let's move on), leadership (I'll go ahead), and—with the assistance of his 400 men—protection to Jacob's group for the remainder of the journey. Jacob, who had just escaped from 20 years of oppression from a troublesome relative, respectfully declined the offer, calling his brother my lord, but suggesting that he needed to travel alone.

33:16-17 Esau went south to Seir, a forested mountainous region east of the Dead Sea, while Jacob's group traveled a few miles north to settle at Succoth (Hb for "Temporary Shelters"; stalls), named for the temporary facilities Jacob constructed for his livestock. The Bible does not indicate that Jacob and Esau met again until they buried their father many years later (35:29).

33:18-20 Jacob's journey ended when he arrived safely at Shechem, where his grandfather Abraham had first lived when he entered Canaan (12:6). Jacob intended to live permanently in the land promised to him by God (28:13), so he purchased a section of land in front of Shechem from the sons of Hamor, including his son Shechem, whose name matched the city's name. The price of 100 qesitahs represents an unknown quantity; one suggestion is that a qesitah represented the value of one lamb. True to the seminomadic heritage of his grandfather and father (12:8; 26:25), Jacob lived in a tent. Like Abraham and Isaac before him (12:8; 13:18; 22:9; 26:25), Jacob also set up an altar, naming it God, the God of Israel.

34:1-7 Perhaps Dinah was seeking some female companionship since she was the only daughter in her large family. Shechem, one of the previous owners of the property on which Dinah now lived, saw her, forcefully took her, and then raped ("humbled") her. The fact that he loved her, spoke tenderly to her, and even ordered his father to get that girl for him to take as a wife suggests that Shechem was following Hivite customs in his treatment of Dinah, though what he did should not be done in Israelite society. Jacob delayed responding to Shechem, probably because he knew there was nothing he could do alone.

34:8-12 Hamor, a prince, had the right to negotiate treaties with Jacob, who was now a landowner in the region. Jacob had been trustworthy in past business deals (33:19), so Hamor negotiated in good faith to build closer ties with Jacob and his sons. As a "member of the family" through intermarriage, Jacob would be able to move about with fewer restrictions and acquire additional property.

34:13-18 By answering the Hivite leaders deceitfully, Jacob's older sons proved that they could behave as wickedly toward outsiders as Hamor's son, Shechem, had done. Ironically, a later generation of Hivites would practice deception to join their peoples with the Hebrews (Jos 9:3-15). In an outrageous misuse of the sacred rite of circumcision (Gn 17:9-14), Jacob's sons stated that they could only give their daughters—and their sister Dinah—away in marriage to men who had been circumcised. Men of many different cultures in the biblical world besides the Israelites practiced circumcision, including the Egyptians, Edomites, Moabites, and Ammonites (Jr 9:25-26), and the idea seemed good to Hamor and Shechem as well.

34:19-24 As the future prince over the region, Shechem had great influence over the citizens of the village bearing his name. Meeting with the men at the gate of their city, where people gathered to share news and consider proposals, Shechem and Hamor provided the men with four reasons to establish a treaty with Jacob's sons, ratifying it with circumcision. Shechem convinced all the able-bodied men of the village, and they were circumcised.

34:25-29 While the men of Shechem were still in pain, immobilized and recovering from the removal of their foreskins with flint knives, they were murdered by Simeon and Levi, two of Jacob's four sons who had the same mother (Leah) as Dinah. After killing Shechem, they took Dinah from his house;

she had been brought there after Shechem's circumcision. When Jacob's other adult sons—Joseph was probably not among them—learned of it, they plundered the city, using the excuse that their sister had been defiled. The Hivite children and wives they stole would possibly have been sold to slave traders (37:27-28).

34:30-31 Upon learning of the outrageous actions of Simeon and Levi, Jacob condemned them. Their actions had not only brought death to the Hivites, they had brought trouble on their father as well. Jacob's reputation for being a man of peace (v. 21) had now been destroyed. The clan, now marked as murderers, would have to live in fear that the Canaanites and the Perizzites would attack and kill them. Simeon and Levi would later be cursed by their father (49:5-7) because of their horrific crime. Their only defense was that Shechem had treated their sister like a prostitute—a criminal act, to be sure, but not one that was considered punishable by death in the Torah (Ex 22:16-17; Dt 22:28-29).

35:1-5 In his time of trouble God called Jacob back to Bethel, the spot where he had first met God. There Jacob was to build a more formal altar to God than the marker he had left there 20 years earlier (28:22). God's command in Gn 35:1 represents the only time in Genesis that He ordered an altar be built. The patriarch ordered his family and all who were with him to prepare themselves for an encounter with the living God.

This preparation involved three things: first, getting rid of the foreign gods among them. Laban's household idols (31:19) as well as possible Hivite idols acquired in the raid on Shechem (34:29) were among the items that Jacob buried under the oak near Shechem. Second, the people were to purify themselves, a command that normally involved washing the body and clothing (Ex 19:10; 30:19-21; Lv 16:26), as well as avoidance of sexual contact since seminal emissions created temporary ritual uncleanness (Lv 15:16-18). Purification would especially have been necessary because of Dinah's defilement and the touching of human corpses (Nm 19:11-12). Third, they were to change their clothes (Lv 6:10-11). Having purified themselves, they experienced God's protection on their journey to Bethel. Jacob's sons were marked for death by the Canaanites in the region, but God sent a terror on the nearby inhabitants, and no one pursued the clan.

35:6-8 At Bethel, known to the Canaanites as Luz, Jacob built "El-bethel" (God of Bethel), his second named altar (33:20). Rebekah's nurse Deborah (see 24:59 and note at 24:54-61), a woman who probably was like a beloved second mother to Jacob, died at Bethel. Her death, along with Isaac's in verse 28, marked the passing of a generation.

35:9-15 God's final recorded words to Jacob came as He spoke to him for the second time (cp. v. 1) since the patriarch returned from Paddan-aram. In this proclamation the Lord revealed Himself as God Almighty (Hb "El Shaddai"), a name for God revealed first to Abraham (17:1; see note there) and later known to Isaac (28:3). The 26 Hebrew words in God's speech reaffirm promises previously made to Jacob (cp. 28:13).

At the same time God blessed Jacob with words that enlarged previously given promises. The blessing previously given to Adam, Noah, and Noah's sons (1:28; 9:1)—be fruitful and multiply—was now extended to Jacob. For the first time also it is stated that kings and an assembly of nations would come from the patriarch. After the revelatory words God "went up" (withdrew) from the place. To memorialize the event and bring closure to his vow to make Yahweh his God (28:21), Jacob set up a stone marker, pouring a drink offering on it (2Sm 23:16) and anointing it with oil.

35:16-20 While Jacob's clan was making a 15-mile journey to Ephrath, Rachel—now pregnant with her second child—began to give birth. As her son was being born she apparently began bleeding uncontrollably, an occurrence that kills about 1 out of every 200 mothers in many African nations even today. Before she died she named her son Ben-oni, meaning "Son of My Sorrow." However, to make sure that his wife's dying gift to him would be properly remembered, Jacob renamed the child Benjamin, meaning "Right-hand Son," the most honored son. Jacob also set up a marker at Rachel's burial site in the Bethlehem area. Visitors to Israel today can still visit the traditional site of her grave.

35:21-22 The disgusting character of another of Jacob's sons—this time his firstborn Reuben—was revealed beyond the Tower of Eder, a spot probably situated southwest of Bethlehem. Reuben slept with Bilhah, the mother of his half brothers Dan and Naphtali. By doing this Reuben was asserting his right to take his father's place as leader of the group (2Sm 12:8,11; 16:21-22) and perhaps seeking revenge for Jacob's shunning of his mother Leah. His father learned of it and later cursed Reuben because of it (Gn 49:3-4).

35:23-26 With Benjamin's birth Jacob's set of offspring was now complete. This section lists the patriarch's 12 sons during his time in Paddan-aram and, in Benjamin's case, following his return to Canaan. The sons are listed according to their mothers, not their birth order; the mothers are listed chronologically in the order of their connection with Jacob.

35:27-29 Jacob moved his family to stay with his father Isaac, who was living near the family burial cave at Mamre in the vicinity of Hebron. Isaac would live for many more years, dying at the age of 180 and being buried by Esau and Jacob in the cave of Machpelah (49:31).

36:1-8 The family records of Esau, the ninth and shortest of the eleven (Hb) toledoth sections in Genesis (see note at 5:1), consists only of 36:1-8. This section complements the toledoth section of verses 9-43, which also contains family records of Esau, in that this emphasizes the "Canaan" portion of Esau's life. Esau, whose nickname was Edom (cp. 25:30), moved his family and property to Edom, whose primary feature is the mountains of Seir.

36:9 The family records of Esau, father of the Edomites, the tenth of the (Hb) toledoth sections in Genesis (see note at 5:1), consists of 36:9-43. This section, which repeats the genealogical information of verses 1-5, differs from the previous (Hb) toledoth unit in that it provides five major subsections that focus on historical and genealogical details relevant to Edom.

36:10-14 These verses contain the first of five subsections found in the second Esau (Hb) toledoth, and it expands on verses 4-5. This section supplements previous materials with a listing of six sons born to Adah's son Eliphaz and four sons descending from Basemath's son Reuel. Teman ("South") is the namesake of an important region in southern Edom (Jr 49:20; Ob 9) associated with wisdom (Jr 49:7). Timna was the daughter of Seir the Horite (vv. 20-22); thus, her son Amalek provides an important genealogical link between the Edomites and the Horites.

36:15-19 The second of the four Esau-related subsections contains the chiefs of Esau's sons, listing all of Esau's sons and grandsons in verses 10-14, but adding a seventh son, Korah, to the listing of Eliphaz's sons. The term translated as "chiefs" (Hb 'alluph) refers to the leader of a familial unit or of a geographical region.

36:20-30 The third of the final Esau (Hb) toledoth comprises the sons and chiefs of Seir the Horite, the father of Eliphaz's concubine Timna.

36:31-39 The fourth subsection of the second Esau (Hb) toledoth lists eight consecutive kings who ruled in the land of Edom prior to the days of King Saul, i.e., before 1050 B.C. Its inclusion demonstrates the fulfillment of God's promise to Abraham (17:6). The observation that no kings ruled over the Israelites, a nation that did not yet formally exist, suggests that this list was compiled no earlier than the days of King David. The parallel passage in 1Ch 1:43-50 differs from this only in the spelling of the name Hadar (Hadad) and the name of Hadar's royal city Pau (Pai).

36:40-43 The fifth and final subsection of the second Esau (Hb) toledoth consists of a list of 11 of Esau's chiefs who ruled over various portions of the land of Edom. This list appears in abbreviated form in 1Ch 1:51b-54.

37:1 In contrast to Esau, who left the land promised to Abraham's descendants, Jacob remained in the land of Canaan, demonstrating Jacob's acceptance of God's gift of the land to him and his descendants (35:12).

37:2-4 The family records of Jacob, which extend through the end of the book, constitute the eleventh and last of the (Hb) toledoth sections in Genesis (see note at 5:1). The account begins with a description of 17-year-old Joseph, the central human figure in this section; he is the subject of more than 200 verbs within the narrative framework of the final 14 chapters of Genesis. These opening verses continue the troubled portrait of Jacob's sons begun in chapter 35, as the sons of Bilhah and Zilpah—Dan, Naphtali, Gad, and Asher—misbehaved. Jacob's unequal treatment of his sons (cp. 25:28) aroused great jealousy, so that Joseph's brothers hated him. The robe of many colors probably marked Joseph as Jacob's chosen successor for clan leadership, especially since he was the firstborn of Rachel, the only woman Jacob had ever intended to marry.

37:5-11 Like his father Jacob (28:12-15; 31:10-13), Joseph received two dreams from God during his lifetime. Both portrayed Joseph as gaining a position of supremacy in his family, though the symbols differed greatly. The first dream used an agricultural image (v. 7). The second, more important and wider in scope than the first, was astronomical (vv. 9-10). The pairing of dreams with a shared meaning meant that God would certainly make the events happen (41:32). Ancient interpreters suggested that the moon signified Bilhah since Joseph's mother Rachel was dead at this time (35:19).

37:12-17 Israel (i.e., Jacob) made his teenage son Joseph a supervisor over his brothers. Joseph, who had earlier given a bad report about his older brothers, was once again called upon to report how they were doing. Joseph traveled about 50 miles north to Shechem. Learning that his brothers had moved on, he finally found them at Dothan, some 15 miles farther north.

37:18-24 Joseph's older brothers, all of whom hated him and were violent men (34:27-29) or even murderers (34:25-26), immediately plotted to kill him, calling him "the lord of the dreams" (that dreamer). Being skilled at deception as well (34:13), the brothers also concocted the lie that a vicious animal ate him. They threw him into a dry cistern designed to store water for the flocks.

37:25-28 The fact that Joseph's brothers sat down to eat a meal soon after they disposed of him reveals how brazenly sinful they were. Later Joseph would be free while the brothers were in prison (42:17). But on this day the brothers saw a caravan of Ishmaelites traveling south on the main road leading from Egypt to Damascus. Judah convinced seven of his brothers that it was more profitable to sell Joseph as a slave than to kill him. According to 42:21, Joseph pleaded with his brothers, but to no avail. They sold him for 20 pieces of silver, the standard price for a teenage male slave (Lv 27:5). Midianite is another designation for Ishmaelites in this narrative. Mention of the descendants of Ishmael (21:9-13) and Midian (25:1-6) call to mind the kind of sibling rivalry that is taking place here again.

37:29-35 As the oldest of the brothers, Reuben felt responsible for Joseph's safety. He had not been present when his brothers decided to sell Joseph. He was shocked and dismayed when he discovered what had happened. In a traditional ancient Near Eastern show of grief, he tore his clothes.

Jacob naturally concluded that a vicious animal had torn Joseph to pieces. Joseph had been Jacob's favorite son (v. 4), and Jacob's mother Rachel had recently died tragically. Thus when confronted with this evidence, he refused to be comforted, expressing instead the desire to go down to Sheol—the traditional term for the place of the dead—to be with his son.

37:36 Even as Jacob mourned his son's death, Joseph—very much alive—was taken to Egypt and sold to Potiphar, a prestigious military officer in the court of Pharaoh.

38:1-5 Judah's departure while Jacob grieved may have been motivated by a combination of intense guilt feelings and anger at his brothers. Continuing the dark picture of Jacob's sons begun in chapter 36, Judah rejected the covenant family's marriage tradition (24:3; 28:1) and took the daughter of a Canaanite as a wife. The couple conceived three sons, Er ("Watchful"), Onan ("Strength/Vigorous"), and Shelah ("Drawn Out [from the Womb]").

38:6-11 In keeping with ancient Near Eastern tradition, Judah got a wife for his son Er (24:2-4; Ex 2:21; Jdg 4:1-3). The absence of any ethnic identification for Er's wife Tamar ("Palm Tree") may mean she was not a Canaanite. Because Er was evil in the Lord's sight, the LORD put him to death. God's judgment on sinners is not always immediate but there are cases in both the OT and the NT, and presumably throughout history, when God brings justice swiftly (6:5-7; 19:13; Ac 5:4; 1Co 11:29-31). Er died before fathering any children, and ancient Near Eastern custom required the childless widow's brother-in-law to marry her and produce offspring who would be counted as the dead male's heir (Dt 25:5-6).

Onan, however, realized that the offspring would not be his, so he took a course of action known as onanism (named after Onan's actions here) to prevent conception. Onan's motive was evil in the LORD's sight, and so God killed him also. With two sons having died while married to Tamar, Judah feared that Shelah might die too if he fulfilled the responsibility to his sister-in-law. Consequently Judah sent her away to live in her father's house, with the deceptive excuse that Shelah was not old enough.

38:12-19 Even after Shelah had grown up and was eligible for marriage, Tamar remained a widow. In the meantime, Judah's wife had died. Having been deceived by Judah earlier, Tamar cunningly set about to deceive her fatherin-law (cp. 27:15,27). In order to get Judah to fulfill his family's obligation to produce an heir for Er and remove the stigma of her childlessness, Tamar apparently knew her fatherin-law's immoral character. So she took off her widow's clothes (signs of mourning), veiled her face, positioned herself alone by Enaim ("Two Springs") where she knew Judah would pass, and played the role of a roadside cult prostitute.

Though sexual relations with a daughter-in-law were prohibited in the Israelite law that was written centuries later (Lv 18:15), Judah did not recognize her and so propositioned her. As proof of his willingness to pay once he had money in hand, Judah had to give Tamar his "cylinder seal" (signet ring), among other items. Having achieved her objective by getting pregnant, Tamar returned home and put her widow's clothes back on for the time being.

38:20-23 Keeping his promise, Judah sent Hirah (v. 1) to Tamar with a young goat to get back his possessions. When Hirah returned to Judah without recovering Judah's possessions, Judah recognized he had been outwitted by the prostitute since his credentials represented his honor and were thus more valuable than a young goat. He attempted to minimize the humiliation by giving up on the search and thus telling no one else what had happened.

38:24-26 Three months after the fateful encounter Judah was informed that his daughter-in-law was pregnant. Since she had an obligation to remain chaste and available for marriage to Shelah, Shelah's father ordered that she be burned to death—a penalty that in later times was reserved for depraved sexual sins in the law of Moses (Lv 20:14; 21:9). Before she could be executed, however, Tamar informed her would-be executioners that she was pregnant by the man whose "cylinder seal" (signet ring) she possessed. Confronted by indisputable evidence of his responsibility for Tamar's pregnancy, Judah admitted that she was more . . . right than he; he had wronged her by denying her the right to marry his son Shelah.

As it turned out, his brother actually came out first, earning himself not only the rights of the firstborn but also the name Perez ("Bursting Forth/Breach"). His brother, born belatedly with the scarlet thread still tied to his hand, received the name Zerah ("Dawning/Shining"). Perez would later be mentioned as an ancestor of both David (Ru 4:12,18) and Jesus (Mt 1:3).

39:1 This verse, which retraces details presented in 37:36, returns the storyline to Joseph. The terms Midianites and Ishmaelites are used interchangeably by the writer (37:28,36; see note at 37:25-28).

39:2-6 Because the Lord is God over the whole earth (1Ch 29:11; Ps 47:2; 83:18; 97:9), He was with Joseph even in Egypt. God's active presence in Joseph's life made him successful. Potiphar noticed the teenage Hebrew slave's remarkable effectiveness, and as a result Joseph not only found favor with him, but was put in charge of Potiphar's entire household as well. With Joseph in charge, the Lord's blessing extended to all that Potiphar owned.

39:7-10 In contrast to his brother Judah, who sacrificed his honor for the pleasure of a prostitute (38:15-16), Joseph refused the advances of his master's wife. To commit adultery would have been a great evil and a sin against God (cp. Ex 20:14). Potiphar's wife persisted, telling Joseph day after day to "lie beside her" (go to bed with her).

39:11-15 When the subtle approach failed to seduce Joseph, Potiphar's wife resorted to a more direct method. Finding—or perhaps creating—a situation where none of the household servants except Joseph was in the house, she grabbed Joseph by his garment and ordered him to sleep with her. In a courageous display of godly self-control, Joseph resisted, escaped and ran outside, leaving his garment in her hand. This is the second time that a woman used the personal effects of one of Jacob's sons (cp. Judah, 38:25) to get the upper hand in a situation where they would otherwise have been put to death. Potiphar's wife then lied to the household servants, playing upon the other slaves' jealousy that had been inflamed when Potiphar placed the Hebrew young man over them as their boss. The presence of Joseph's garment seemed like circumstantial evidence for her false claim.

39:16-20 When Potiphar's wife repeated the story to her husband, she framed the lie in a way that placed the blame squarely on him. Her story made Potiphar furious. Without investigating the truth of her claims, Potiphar declared Joseph guilty. But instead of killing him, he had him thrown into prison (lit "the round house"). Why? Ancient Jewish opinion held that Potiphar's wife intervened because she hoped to take advantage of Joseph later. Perhaps this is true. It is also possible that Potiphar already distrusted his wife and thus doubted the truth of her story.

39:21-23 The Lord, who is present in Sheol (Ps 139:8), was also with Joseph in prison. God, who is rich in "faithful love" (kindness; Hb chesed ; see Ex 34:7), demonstrated His love by granting Joseph favor in the eyes of the prison warden. For the third time in his life (cp. v. 4; Gn 37:14), Joseph was given authority over his peers—in this case, all the prisoners who were in the prison. Mirroring Potiphar's level of confidence in Joseph, the warden did not "see anything in his hand" (bother with anything under Joseph's authority) because the Lord caused everything Joseph did to be successful (Hb matsliach ; cp. Ps 1:3 “prospers”).

40:1-4 After Joseph had been imprisoned for a number of years and was now 28 years old (41:1,46), Pharaoh “became furious” (was angry; Hb qatsaph) with two high-ranking officials (Hb saris), the chief cupbearer and the chief baker. Though Potiphar was also a “captain of the guard,” this detention center was apparently located in someone else’s house since it was the same location where Joseph was confined. Because of their high rank, the cupbearer and baker were given certain privileges even in prison: Joseph, as a young Hebrew slave, was assigned as their personal attendant. The officials stayed in prison for “days” (some time).

40:5-8 During their confinement the royal cupbearer and baker each had a dream during the same night—the third and fourth non-Israelites to have dreams with divinely inspired meanings (cp. Abimelech, 20:3; Laban, 31:24). When they awoke the men were distraught (lit their “faces were bad”) because there was no professional Egyptian dream interpreter present. Joseph told them that accurate interpretations belong to God. And since the Lord was with Joseph even in prison (39:2,21,23), the men were directed to tell their dreams to him.

40:9-15 The chief cupbearer, who was an adviser and security officer for Pharaoh, was the first to tell his dream to Joseph. While aspects of the dream seemed to portray something positive—blossoms . . . grapes, placing the cup in Pharaoh’s hand—other aspects were doubtful, particularly the three branches. Joseph explained that the branches represented the next three days, after which Pharaoh would lift the cupbearer’s head (or release him from prison; cp. 2Kg 25:27) and restore him to his position. Confident that the interpretation was accurate, Joseph pleaded for the cupbearer to remember him, mention him to Pharaoh, and arrange to get him out of prison. Joseph’s release was a matter of simple justice since he had done nothing to deserve imprisonment.

40:16-19 Heartened by Joseph’s positive interpretation of the cupbearer’s dream, the chief baker shared his dream. As with the previous dream, this one contained ambiguous elements—particularly the three baskets of white bread and the birds—that needed a clear interpretation. This time the meaning was a dark one: Pharaoh would release the chief baker from prison and hang him on a tree (or possibly “impale” him “on wood”). The birds eating white bread symbolized the birds that would eat the baker’s body.

40:20-22 Consistent with the dreams’ divinely inspired interpretations, the two officials were released from prison three days later, on the festive occasion of Pharaoh’s birthday. The “birthday” could either refer to Pharaoh’s physical birth or to his accession day, the day he became king and thus was believed to have become a son of the Egyptian god Horus. Just as Joseph had foretold, Pharaoh restored the chief cupbearer to his previous position, but hanged the chief baker.

41:1-7 Pharaoh, the most powerful man in the world of his day, was also the Egyptian who received dreams from God that were far-reaching in their implications. His two dreams, both on the same night, had essentially identical plots, though the images were different. Both had 14 items, seven healthy and seven thin and sickly. In both dreams the seven healthy things appeared first, only to be consumed by the afflicted ones. Both were symbolic since they contained features not found in the real world.

41:8-14 These dreams clearly indicated trouble, but exactly what trouble was the question. To unravel the mystery, Pharaoh summoned all the court magicians, who would have received instruction from ancient Egyptian scrolls of dream interpretation; some of these ancient scrolls, dating to the Twelfth Dynasty (1973-1786 B.C.), have been recovered by archaeologists. Pharaoh also summoned all of Egypt's wise men to assist in the critical task of discerning the dreams' meanings. However, no one could interpret the dreams satisfactorily.

The crisis caused the chief cupbearer to remember how Joseph had accurately interpreted two mysterious dreams two years earlier. Desperate for insight into his own dreams, Pharaoh immediately sent for Joseph. Prior to entering the royal court he had to be shaved—probably both his beard and scalp—and he put on clothes made of linen, as was appropriate for the Egyptian court. Joseph's change in appearance mirrored the change that was about to occur in his career.

41:15-16 Fluent in the Egyptian language after 13 years in the land, Joseph listened intently as Pharaoh described his problem. With humility Joseph confessed to Pharaoh that he was unable to interpret the dreams, but confidently added that his God would give Pharaoh the information he desired.

41:17-24 As Pharoah repeated his account of the dreams, he added that the ugly cows still appeared wasted after they had eaten the healthy ones.

41:25-32 Joseph prefaced his interpretation with three important insights: first, Pharaoh actually had only one dream (lit "Pharaoh's dream is one"), though it was given twice using different symbols. Second, the dream's source was the one true God (lit "the God"). Third, it revealed what God was about to do.

41:33-36 Joseph advised Pharaoh to take four steps in preparation for the upcoming 14-year cycle of events in order to create a food reserve for the seven years of famine.

41:37-46 Joseph's insight into the dream, along with his ability to devise such an intelligent plan, convinced Pharaoh that Joseph had God's spirit in him.

Pharaoh gave Joseph the Egyptian name Zaphenath-paneah ("Then God Said, 'Let Him Live'") and a wife of high social status. Asenath ("She Who Belongs to the Goddess Neith") was the daughter of Potiphera, a priest at On (Heliopolis), the prestigious religious center of solar worship in ancient Egypt. Joseph, who was now 30 years old, had been transformed by God in 13 years from an imprisoned foreign slave to the world's second most powerful man. He who had spent years in prison now went throughout the land of Egypt overseeing a project that would save the lives of untold thousands.

41:47-52 In addition to God's blessing on the harvests, God blessed Joseph's personal life with two sons. Manasseh's name reflected the fact that God had helped Joseph forget his hardship both in Egypt and in his father's house, with its sordid background of rape (34:2), murder (34:25-26), incest (35:22), deception (34:13), and betrayal (37:28). Ephraim's name confessed that God had made Joseph fruitful in a land where he had once been treated as a despised felon.

41:53-57 As Joseph, guided by God's revelation, had said, after seven years of abundance famine struck every country in the region, even beyond Egypt's borders. Pharaoh directed the people to go to Joseph, who sold grain to the Egyptians to preserve the lives of his adopted countrymen. However, as other nations learned of Egypt's food supply, the whole affected part of the world also came to Joseph. As it would for thousands of years beyond this point, Egypt proved to be the breadbasket for the Mediterranean world.

42:1-38 In many ways this chapter reuses the elements of chapters 37-38. Members of Jacob's clan go to Egypt, are unjustly accused of a crime they did not commit, one (Simeon) is imprisoned under false pretenses, several of the brothers acquire silver after consigning a brother to live in Egypt, the (supposed) eldest living son of Rachel is forced to go to Egypt, and Jacob is made to grieve over Rachel's son.

42:1-5 News of Egypt's willingness to sell grain to outsiders reached Jacob. Since he was the patriarch and chief decision maker of the clan, it was Jacob's responsibility to look out for the clan's welfare. He had the right to order the rest of the adult males to go down to Egypt to buy grain. In a virtual replay of chapter 37, Jacob sent 10 of Joseph's brothers out to do the family's work, but he spared a son of his beloved late wife Rachel (Benjamin). Jacob's sons joined a stream of others who came to Egypt to buy grain.

42:6-13 Since Joseph was in charge of selling grain to all the people of Egypt, his first responsibility was to meet the needs of his own people. Nevertheless, he did permit sales to non-Egyptians who posed no threat to Egypt. When Joseph's older brothers . . . bowed down before him with their faces to the ground, they fulfilled Joseph's prophetic dreams (37:7,9). Joseph had not seen his brothers for 20 years, yet he recognized them immediately. But the brothers did not recognize him; as a top Egyptian official Joseph had no hair on his head, wore eye makeup and expensive clothing, and spoke fluent Egyptian.

Joseph remembered his dreams about his brothers and their treacherous actions against him, so he devised a test to see if they had changed during the past two decades: he accused them of being spies sent to identify the weakness of the land (lit "the nakedness of the land"). They immediately denied the charges, supporting their claim by telling him they were all sons of one man—members of a single clan, not a large coalition of enemies poised to strike Egypt. Furthermore, it was a relatively small clan, with only 12 brothers (by comparison, Gideon had 70 sons, Jdg 9:2), and one of them was no longer living.

42:14-20 As part of his test Joseph threatened to keep nine of the brothers imprisoned, letting one return to Canaan and come back with their youngest brother Benjamin. To give all 10 of them a small taste of what they had made him experience, Joseph had them imprisoned for three days. After their initial "shock probation" Joseph softened his initial conditions, requiring that only one of them be confined to the guardhouse while the rest returned to Jacob. Before leaving, however, they consented to bring Benjamin back to Egypt. Joseph probably made them do this to make sure they would not do to Benjamin what they had done to him.

42:21-26 The brothers' harsh treatment in Egypt—the land where they had once sent Joseph—as well as the stiff demands placed on them made it plain to them that they were being punished for what they had done to their brother 20 years earlier. Reuben, eldest of the group and the one who had kept Joseph from being killed by his brothers (37:22), interpreted the current events as a divine accounting for Joseph's blood, i.e., his death. Reuben's earlier defense of Joseph and his current rebuke of his brothers may explain why second-born Simeon was detained instead of Reuben.

Joseph, whose heart—but not his outward appearance—had been softened toward his brothers by Reuben's comments, understood the words the brothers spoke in Hebrew, turned away from his brothers, and wept. After dismissing his brothers Joseph compassionately provided them not only with grain for the family, but returned each man's money to his sack and gave them food for their journey. Joseph's act of kindness was probably also meant to test the brothers' character; if they were honest they would return the money.

42:27-35 Joseph's brothers, who had once traded Joseph's life for money, now felt their hearts "depart" (sank) when they received this money from him. Worried that they would be pursued as criminals, they trembled in fear of what

God had done to them. Upon their return home Jacob was greeted by only nine sons. The matter worsened when he was told that the brothers were accused of spying, and the clan could get Simeon back and trade for additional food in Egypt only if the men brought back their youngest brother Benjamin. Everyone became even more afraid when they found bags of money in each man's sack; now all nine brothers could be imprisoned as thieves if they ever returned to Egypt.

42:36-38 Reduced to despair by his sons' report, Jacob responded by saying, everything happens to me! Perhaps Jacob even doubted God's repeated promise to bless him (32:29; 35:9). His adamant refusal to let Benjamin go down with his brothers to Egypt was understandable but irrational, since it meant that the entire clan would die of starvation. Reuben, who had once saved Joseph's life (37:22), now stepped forward to save the clan. He countered his father's fears of losing Benjamin by offering to experience the loss of two of his four sons (Ex 6:14) if anything happened to him in a return trip to Egypt. If Benjamin died, Reuben would experience a proportionately worse fate than his father. However, Reuben's argument had no effect on Jacob; if Jacob's son should die, it would not make him feel better to kill two of his grandchildren as well.

43:1-10 Two years into the famine (cp. 45:6), Jacob's family had used up the grain purchased by the brothers in Egypt. Jacob, as clan head, ordered nine of his sons to go back to Egypt and buy more food. Judah, Jacob's fourth-born but still the most trusted of his older sons (34:30; 35:22), reminded his father that he must send Benjamin to Egypt in order for the family to buy food. In response Jacob, who was known for his deceptions (27:12-27), accused his sons (you [v. 6] is pl.) of causing much trouble by telling the Egyptian the truth. Judah finally convinced his father to let his sons go by using two things. First, his father's own words: they must go so that we may live and not die (cp. 42:2), and second, his willingness to have Jacob hold him personally accountable for Benjamin's well-being.

43:11-14 Jacob realized he had to send Benjamin to Egypt, but to increase the likelihood that his beloved son of Rachel would return safely, he directed his sons to give the Egyptian some of the best products associated with the land of Canaan. Hoping that his sons had not actually stolen the money, Jacob had them return the original money, taking twice as much money as before. Finally, they were to travel with their brother Benjamin, accompanied by a prayer that God Almighty would secure the release of Simeon and Benjamin.

43:15-24 When the men returned to Joseph in Egypt, they were brought to Joseph's own house. They feared they were about to be arrested and made slaves as punishment for taking their original grain money back to Canaan, but

Joseph's steward informed them that he had already received their money. All seemed well as Simeon was brought out of prison to them, and they were given a traditional sign of hospitality—water to wash their feet (18:4; 19:2).

43:25-28 Learning that they were to eat the noon meal—the first meal of the day—with Joseph, the brothers prepared the food gift (v. 11) and then humbly presented it to Joseph (cp. 37:7,9). Then the powerful Egyptian asked them about their elderly father, eliciting a polite response and a second bowing to the ground.

43:29-31 Joseph confirmed the identity of his brother Benjamin, his mother's only other son and therefore his only full brother. Joseph's blessing on Benjamin in the name of God was the first time Joseph blessed one of his brothers. Though Joseph had been filled with emotion in the presence of his brothers earlier (42:24), the sight of Benjamin overwhelmed him. To retain his dignity he quickly went into an inner room to weep. The fact that as an Egyptian official he was wearing eye makeup was probably in part why he washed his face before returning to the room.

43:32-34 Because of racial and cultural prejudice, the meal was served at two different tables. Food was first brought to Joseph and the rest of the Egyptians, who ate at one table, then portions were brought to the table of the Hebrews. As an indication of respect for seniority among these non-Egyptians, the brothers were seated from the firstborn to the youngest—a fact that created astonishment among them since it would have required a detailed knowledge of the family. Perhaps as a further test of the brothers, Benjamin's portion was five times larger than any of the other brothers'. Joseph may have made sure they got intoxicated to loosen the brothers' self-restraint; if they harbored any jealousy or hatred toward Benjamin, Rachel's son, it would be more likely to show.

44:2 Joseph secretly put in place the ultimate test of his older brothers, ordering the steward to put Joseph's ceremonial silver cup . . . at the top of Benjamin's bag. By watching the other brothers' response to Benjamin's trouble, Joseph would be able to observe firsthand the other brothers' true character.

44:3-13 Joseph then ordered his steward to overtake the small caravan. Armed with a scripted accusation regarding the ceremonial cup, the steward confronted the group. Joseph mentions divination as part of the ploy to make the brothers think this is a very valuable cup; there is no evidence that he actually practiced divination. At a later time, divination was officially prohibited for Israelites in the law (Lv 19:26; Dt 18:10).

The brothers responded with disbelief and disavowal to the steward's accusation. Quickly mounting a defense, they first provided evidence of their honesty: they had brought back the money found in their bags after the first journey. Next they proposed a harsh punishment for any of their number caught with the bowl—he must die. Finally, they offered the remaining 10 of their group as lifelong slaves.

Rejecting their excessive offer, the steward indicated that only the guilty party would become his slave. Though the steward gave the innocent brothers permission to return home, they all returned to the city in a show of solidarity with Benjamin.

44:14-17 Jacob's most trusted son, Judah (see note at 43:1-10), spoke for the group. Bowing to the ground before Joseph (cp. 37:7,9), Judah confessed that God had exposed the men's iniquity—a reference to the sins against Joseph more than 20 years earlier (37:18-28). Second, Judah maintained the group's solidarity by indicating that all the brothers, not just Benjamin, would become my lord's slaves. Joseph's immediate rejection of the offer would have added more tension to the situation.

44:18-29 Judah's speech, the longest in the Bible by any of Jacob's sons (218 Hebrew words), marks the turning point in the relationship between Joseph and his brothers. In a display of great humility, Judah referred to Joseph on seven occasions as my lord, and on 12 occasions referred to himself and members of his clan as your servants. After a representation of three contentious conversations—one that the brothers had had with Joseph (vv. 19-23; 42:13-20) and two involving Jacob (vv. 25-29; 42:38; 43:2-7)—Judah said that his father would die of grief if anything happened to Benjamin.

44:30-34 Judah had once separated his father Jacob from a son of Rachel by making Joseph a slave in Egypt (37:26-27). To save the life of the clan he had voluntarily made himself accountable to his father for the well-being of Benjamin, Rachel's only other son besides Joseph (43:8-9). Now Benjamin, like his older brother Joseph, was on the verge of being made a slave in Egypt. Knowing that he would always bear the guilt for sinning against his father if Benjamin did not return home, Judah volunteered to remain in Egypt as Joseph's slave.

45:1-4 Joseph was overwhelmed by Judah's words. Not wishing to lose his dignity before his Egyptian attendants, he ordered everyone but his brothers out of the room. Joseph then released more than 20 years of pent-up emotions, weeping so loudly that the Egyptians outside the room heard it. Joseph's revelation of his true identity—undoubtedly spoken in Hebrew, not Egyptian—so terrified his brothers that they could not answer his question about his father's well-being. Violating protocol, Joseph ordered the brothers to come near to him so he could speak to them more intimately, this time explicitly identifying himself.

45:5-8 These verses stand as the theological high point of the account of Joseph's life (chaps. 37-50) and one of the most eloquent affirmations in the Bible regarding God's sovereignty in human events. With amazing spiritual maturity Joseph confessed that God had worked beyond the foul intentions of his older brothers to accomplish two vital things: to preserve life through Joseph's leadership leading up to and during the seven-year famine, and to establish Israel as a remnant "on the earth" (within the land). The word "remnant" is an important term used to refer to Israel as the people group who would pass along God's blessings throughout the generations (Ezr 9:8; Is 10:20; 28:5; Jr 23:3). Three times Joseph affirmed that it was God—not his brothers—who had sent him to Egypt. Therefore the brothers did not need to be worried or angry with themselves. Indeed, God had made Joseph a father—a top-level adviser—to Pharaoh, and a ruler over all the land of Egypt.

45:9-15 Joseph, who had once presented a plan to Pharaoh to save Egypt, now offered a plan to his brothers to save Israel's clan by moving them to Egypt to live in Goshen during the five more years of famine that were to come. Goshen was a region in the eastern portion of Egypt's Nile Delta and was also known as "the land of Rameses" (47:11). The brothers, who were still having trouble believing that Joseph was not only alive but a ruler in Egypt, watched as Joseph threw his arms around Benjamin and wept. To their amazement, he also kissed each of his brothers who had once plotted to kill him.

45:16-20 Affirming the commands Joseph had given, Pharaoh told him to have his brothers load their animals with food, go on back to Jacob in Canaan, and then return with their families. New to the set of instructions was Pharaoh's provision of wagons from the land of Egypt to transport the weaker members of the clan down to Egypt, the promise that Joseph's family could live in the best of the land of Egypt, and that they would be permitted to eat the richness ("the fat") of the land.

45:21-24 Joseph supplied his brothers with generous provisions for the journey back to Canaan, as well as items for the clan's return to Egypt. The translation of Joseph's final command (Don't argue) is uncertain and may also mean "Don't fear" or "Don't take undue risks."

45:25-28 Jacob experienced a storm of emotion when the group returned from Egypt. Initially he experienced relief, as all 11 brothers came back to him. "His heart went numb" (was stunned) when he was told that Joseph was still alive. Jacob agreed to go to see him before he died. God's promise of blessing to Jacob (32:29; 35:9) had proven true.

46:1-4 Jacob, referred to here by his covenant name Israel, had God speak to him in a vision, the first vision granted to a patriarch since the days of Abraham (15:1). Calling the elderly patriarch's name twice—a practice in the Bible reserved for special revelatory moments (cp. 22:1; Ex 3:4)—God, the God of Jacob's father made four important remarks to Jacob. First, He commanded Jacob not to be afraid to go down to Egypt, because He would go down with him. Second, God affirmed the generations-old promise to make Abraham's family line—represented through Jacob—a great nation, even in Egypt. Third, He promised to bring Israel's descendants back. Finally, God promised that Jacob's beloved son Joseph would put his hands on the patriarch's eyes—i.e., be present at Jacob's death.

46:5-7 Encouraged by God's words, Jacob/Israel left Beer-sheba in one of the wagons Pharaoh had sent for the two-hundred-plus-mile journey.

46:8-27 Not counting Jacob or his four wives, the list of those who went to Egypt contains the names of 71 people descended from Jacob/Israel. Since the list contains 71 descendants, the significance of the numbers 66 and 70 are debated. The total of 66 may be based on the fact that Jacob's daughter Dinah was not included, Er and Onan died before they could come to Egypt (38:7,10), and Manasseh and Ephraim were born in Egypt (41:50-52). Perhaps Dinah was not counted because she produced no children. Acts 7:14, reflecting the Septuagint, states 75 people went to Egypt; this number includes five more of Joseph's descendants: three grandsons and two great-grandsons (Nm 26:29,35-36).

46:28-30 As the group made its way to Goshen, Jacob sent his son Judah ahead to make arrangements for the long-awaited reunion between the clan leader and his most-beloved son. Leaving his duties at the royal court, Joseph traveled by chariot to Goshen to meet his father Israel. The meeting was satisfying to both parties, as Joseph at last threw his arms around his father, hugged him, and wept for a long time. For his part Jacob/Israel satisfied himself that Joseph was still alive, thus extinguishing 20 years of grief. Jacob was now content that he could die in peace, though he would live an additional 17 years in Egypt (47:28).

46:31-34 Joseph now turned his attention to his brothers and the rest of his father's household. Anticipating tensions caused by cultural differences between Egyptians and Hebrews, Joseph informed his brothers of a plan that would guarantee them the right to settle in the land of Goshen. First, he himself would inform Pharaoh that his father's household had arrived and that his family members were shepherds, an occupation considered abhorrent to Egyptians. Then he would arrange for Pharaoh to meet with his family. If Pharoah asked about their occupation, they were to inform him that they and their fathers were men of livestock. Receiving this confirmation, Pharaoh would then issue a land grant to Jacob's clan, permitting them to reside in the eastern Nile Delta.

47:1-6 True to his word, Joseph met with Pharaoh. Joseph then presented only five of his brothers, possibly to prevent the Egyptian leader from thinking the clan would present a numerical threat to the land. As expected, Pharaoh asked Joseph's brothers what their occupation was, probably wanting to make sure the immigrants could make a contribution to Egyptian society and would pose no threat. When he learned that they were shepherds who wanted to settle in the land of Goshen—far away from the centers of Egyptian civilization in Joseph's day—he was pleased. Pharaoh decreed to Joseph that the clan of Jacob was to settle in the land of Goshen, the best part of the land. Seeking to use the immigrants' talents for Egypt's benefit, Pharaoh requested that the most capable men among them care for Pharaoh's own livestock.

47:7-10 The climax of the family's visit to the royal courts of Egypt was the introduction of the clan patriarch to the most powerful man in the world, as Joseph presented Jacob before Pharaoh. Jacob's initial (v. 7) and concluding (v. 10) blessings of Pharaoh fulfilled earlier prophecies (28:14; cp. 12:3; 18:18; 22:18). In the brief ceremonial meeting Pharaoh asked Jacob one question: How many years have you lived? Jacob's response of 130 years marks him as one of the oldest men in postflood history. He would live to age 147 (v. 28), but was surpassed by the years of his fathers Abraham (175 years; 25:7) and Isaac (180 years; 35:28).

47:11-12 The land of Rameses is an alternate name for the land of Goshen and may be the result of a later scribe updating the place names, since the city named Pi-Ramesses (modern Qantir, 65 miles northeast of Cairo) served as Egypt's capital only from 1295-1065 B.C.—much later than the time of Jacob.

47:13-17 Just as the Lord had revealed to Joseph, the famine was so severe that neither Egypt nor Canaan could produce food. However, because of Joseph's wise planning, the people could still purchase the grain he had stored up. But as the famine progressed, the region's inhabitants spent all their money. Joseph therefore authorized a barter system to trade livestock for food.

47:18-22 Consistent with cultures throughout Asia and Africa at that time, the Egyptians asked their government to buy them as slaves once all their resources were exhausted. Slavery was a universal practice in the region, and even impoverished Israelites were permitted to sell themselves as slaves during the OT period (Lv 25:39-43). Such slavery was often temporary, and might be terminated when the debt was paid (Dt 15:12).

Joseph accepted their offer. Members of the Egyptian priesthood were exempted from the land contract since the land was given to them by Pharaoh. The Hebrew text, unlike the Septuagint, suggests that Joseph took the additional step of relocating the people to the cities during the famine; if the Hebrew text represents the accurate reading, perhaps Joseph adopted this policy in order to make the food distribution program more efficient.

47:23-26 Though the citizens gave up ownership of their land, Joseph permitted them to continue working their old fields. The requirement to give a fifth of their produce to Pharaoh was far less than the two-thirds to one-half rate that eighteenth-century B.C. Iraqi farmers paid Hammurabi after expenses. Egypt's citizens gratefully accepted Joseph's program. Joseph's policies produced such a stable society that they remained in effect in the days of the biblical writer hundreds of years later.

47:27 While the Egyptians were losing their possessions, land, and freedom because of the famine, the clan of Israel/Jacob prospered. The contrast at this point between Egypt and Israel could hardly be more complete, though the situation would be reversed later (Ex 1:8-11).

47:28-31 As Jacob's death approached, he called for his son Joseph (cp. 46:4) and made him swear a solemn oath while his hand was under Jacob's thigh, an act that expressed great trust and accompanied only the most serious requests (cp. 24:2-4). Jacob asked that his son not bury him in Egypt, but rather that he be buried in the promised land with his fathers . . . in their burial place near Hebron in the cave at Machpelah (23:19; 25:9; 35:27-29; 50:13).

48:1-7 Joseph, accompanied by his two eldest sons, visited Jacob again. Summoning his strength on this last day of his life, Jacob sat up in bed and spoke with Joseph of how God Almighty (El Shaddai; see note at 17:1) gave a second revelation to him at Bethel, more than 50 years earlier (35:9-12). Recounting God's promise to make him fruitful and numerous, Jacob now became even more fruitful by adopting Manasseh and Ephraim, counting them as his primary heirs (1Ch 5:1). Ephraim and Manasseh would receive the blessings of the first-and second-born, instead of Reuben and Simeon, who had previously dishonored Jacob (Gn 34:25-30).

Any other sons born to Joseph would be recorded under the names of their older brothers, and their inheritance would be split with the sons of Ephraim and Manasseh. All of Jacob's descendants would receive the land of Canaan as an eternal possession. The mention of Rachel references the events associated with Benjamin's birth (35:16-20).

48:9-12 Jacob used his last measure of strength to bless his sons, beginning with the two newly adopted ones. Before blessing them, Jacob kissed and embraced them (cp. 27:26-27). Though his eyesight was poor because of old age (cp. 27:1), God let him see once more not only Joseph but also his offspring.

48:13-16 Joseph presented Ephraim (at his right hand side) and Manasseh (at his left hand side) to Jacob in hopes that Jacob would reach out with his right hand and confer the greater blessing to the elder son, Manasseh, who was standing to Joseph's left. But Jacob crossed his arms and put his right hand . . . on the head of Ephraim, the younger, thus symbolically conferring the greater blessing on him. Jacob then blessed Joseph, but because his two hands were on Joseph's sons, it was they who received the blessing. Calling on the God of his fathers Abraham and Isaac, who had been his shepherd (cp. Ps 23:1; 80:1; Ezk 34:11-12; Jn 10:11) all his life, Jacob's requests on behalf of Ephraim and Manasseh included that they would be called by the names of Jacob, Abraham and Isaac, that is, that they would identify with God's covenant people, not with Egyptian culture and religion.

48:17-20 Frustrated because it seemed that his blind father had made a mistake, Joseph took his father's hand to move it from Ephraim's head. Emboldened by prophetic insight, however, Jacob refused to move his hands, because by God's own hand Ephraim's blessings were ordained to exceed Manasseh's. Manasseh would become a tribe, but his younger brother Ephraim would become something more—a populous nation. Even so, both would be blessed so richly that in the future Israel would invoke blessings by asking God to make someone like Ephraim and Manasseh. The placement of Ephraim's name before Manasseh's foreshadowed his later superiority. Because of Ephraim's leading position in later Israelite history, prophets often referred to the entire northern kingdom of Israel as Ephraim (Is 7:5; Jr 31:20; Ezk 37:16; Hs 5:13; Zch 10:7).

48:21-22 Jacob promised Joseph that God would be with him (39:2,21,23) and would bring him back to the land of his fathers, i.e., Canaan (50:25; Ex 13:19; Jos 24:32; Ac 7:14-16).

49:1-2 As he spoke his dying words, Jacob was essentially blind (48:10), but he retained a clear prophetic insight of the days to come (lit "in the last days"; cp. Nm 24:14; Dt 31:2; Is 2:2).

49:3-27 Jacob's prophetic words to his 12 sons were delivered in three units: those delivered to (1) the sons of Leah (vv. 3-15); (2) the sons of the concubines Bilhah and Zilpah (vv. 16-21); and (3) the sons of Rachel (vv. 22-27).

49:3-4 As the oldest son in a Semitic family Reuben was poised to lead the clan when his father died. However, Reuben lost his rights as firstborn because he had intimate relations with Jacob's wife Bilhah (35:22). Ephraim would take his place.

49:5-7 Simeon and Levi are grouped together because in their anger they conspired together to kill the men of Shechem, even hamstringing the oxen after seizing them (34:25-29). Their out-of-control anger at Dinah's rape (34:2) cost them the full measure of their inheritance. Historically, Simeon's land allotment was shared with Judah (Jos 19:9), and the Levites were never given a region to call their own; they had to live in other tribes' cities (Jos 14:3-4).

49:8-12 Judah, Jacob's fourth-born son received the second-longest of the blessings, behind Joseph's (55 vs. 61 Hebrew words). The scepter and staff—symbols of kingship in ancient Israel—foretold the establishment of the Davidic dynasty as Israel's kings (2Sm 7:8-16). As reflected in the passage, the He and Him of verse 10b have been understood for thousands of years as messianic references (Ezk 21:27) and, for Christians, a prophecy of Jesus' coming.

49:13 Though the territorial allotment of Zebulun, Jacob's tenth-born son, was landlocked (Jos 19:10-16), Jacob's mention of a harbor for ships may refer to the prosperity of the sea trade associated with the Mediterranean coastal city of Sidon. Alternatively, Jacob may have referred to Zebulun's territorial division that was later mentioned in Ezk 48:26.

49:14-15 Jacob's ninth-born son Issachar was prophetically compared to a strong donkey situated between two saddlebags. Though the descendants of Issachar would live in a land that was pleasant (Jos 19:17-22), they would be compelled to do the work of a forced laborer—probably a reference to the oppression this tribe suffered at the hands of their own leaders and foreign invaders.

49:16-18 Jacob used a wordplay to describe the key positive action associated with his fifth-born son: Dan will judge (Hb dan yadin; "the judging one will judge")—a possible prophetic reference to Samson's work (Jdg 15:20). Dan was compared to a snake, the enemy of humanity in the garden of Eden. The comparison is to an animal with venom so poisonous that it could kill horses. This contrast between images foreshadows the checkered history of the tribe of Dan. On the one hand, it was the second most populous tribe (Nm 2:26); on the other hand, it could not defeat the Canaanite inhabitants in its territory and so abandoned its allotment (Jos 19:47). Though Samson led Israel for 20 years, the Danites also played a leading role in encouraging idolatry in Israel (Jdg 18:14-27; 1Kg 12:28-30).

49:19 Gad, Jacob's seventh-born son, was once associated with good fortune (30:11). However, in an involved wordplay (Hb gad gedud yegudennu) Jacob prophesied that Gad would be attacked by raiders, a reference to its vulnerability based on the location of its land allotment east of the Jordan River. But Jacob praised the tenacity of the Gadites because they would not give up but rather attack the heels of their oppressors.

49:20 Asher, Jacob's eighth-born, was prophetically foreseen to enjoy prosperity that, associated with its coastal land allotment, would produce royal delicacies supporting Israel's prosperity.

49:21 Jacob's sixth-born son, Naphtali, whose descendants would live just west of the Sea of Galilee, was foreseen to produce a people who would be free and populous, like a doe that bears beautiful fawns. Naphtali's freedom may have been realized historically by the fact that its tribal territory had no northern boundary—the tribe was free to expand its holdings to whatever extent it was able to do so.

49:22-26 Jacob's longest blessing (61 Hebrew words) was associated with Joseph, Rachel's firstborn son (his eleventh son). This section contains the largest number and variety of references to God (five: Mighty One of Jacob . . . Shepherd . . . Rock of Israel . . . God of your father . . . Almighty) and the greatest number of references to "blessing" (six: one verb, five nouns). Joseph alone is termed the prince of his brothers and is the one who uniquely receives from God both blessings of the heavens above, blessings of the deep, and blessings of numerous offspring.

49:27 Jacob's final prophetic blessing was reserved for his last-born son Benjamin. Metaphorically compared to a wolf, Jacob identified him as one who tears and devours prey and divides the plunder. Benjamin's descendants were thus characterized as dangerous fighters, but also as ones who would provide benefits for others. Benjamin's fighting skills were most clearly seen in the sordid events of Jdg 20:14-25, but more positively in the capable military leadership of Saul and Jonathan (1Sm 11:4-11; 14:1-23,47-48). Benjamin was the fifth of the sons to be prophetically compared to an animal (also Judah: lion; Issachar: donkey; Dan: snake; Naphtali: deer).

49:28 Jacob's 12 prophetic blessings were for the tribes of Israel founded by his sons/grandsons. Each blessing would prove suitable to later historical realities.

49:29-33 The dying patriarch emphasized two matters in his final words: where he was to be buried, and with whom he was to be buried. The burial site was in Canaan, two miles north of Hebron and some 17 miles west of the Dead Sea. Wishing to reestablish family solidarity in death, Jacob asked to be buried with his grandparents Abraham and his wife Sarah, his parents Isaac and his wife Rebekah, and his first wife Leah.

His last request made and his strength now spent, Jacob drew his feet into the bed, lay down, and died. At death Jacob was spiritually gathered to his people; as his sons fulfilled his request, his physical remains would soon be gathered to those of his ancestors. Jacob, who had spent 17 years in Egypt (47:28), outlived the famine by approximately 12 years.

The Nile is the basis of Egypt's very life and wealth. It is the only river to flow northwards across the Sahara. Egypt was unique as an agricultural community in not being dependent on rainfall. The secret was the black silt deposited on the fields by the annual flood caused when the Blue Nile was swollen by the run-off from the winter rains in Ethiopia. This silt was remarkably fertile. Irrigation waters, raised laboriously from the river, let the Egyptians produce many varieties of crops in large quantities (Gn 42:1-2; Nm 11:5). If the winter rains failed, the consequent small or nonexistent inundation resulted in disastrous famine: some are recorded as lasting over a number of years (Gn 41). This photo shows the striking contrast between the ribbon of land in which the rich silt was deposited annually and the desert-like land in the background.

50:1-3 Joseph, who was physically closest to his father at the moment of his death, "fell upon" (leaning over) his father's face, wept and kissed him. The usual Hebrew custom was to practice same-day burial without embalming; however, embalming was necessary to prepare Jacob's body for the journey to Canaan. Egyptian embalming, which took 40 days to complete, was normally a religious practice performed by priests to prepare the person for the afterlife; the fact that Joseph used physicians rather than priests to perform the task may suggest that he had rejected Egyptian afterlife beliefs and wished to avoid giving a different impression.

The 70 days of mourning probably reflected Egyptian customs associated with the deaths of particularly important individuals; normal Hebrew mourning periods were either seven days (1Sm 31:13) or 30 days (one lunar cycle; Dt 34:8).

50:4-9 When the 70 days of mourning were over, Joseph went to Pharaoh's household, asking permission to bury his father in the land of Canaan. Joseph probably had reduced access to Pharaoh by now, which was about 12 years after the famine ended and the crisis Joseph had handled so well was long past. Even so, Pharaoh granted him permission to go and bury his father, thus fulfilling the oath Joseph had made to his dying father (47:29-31).

As a sign of Pharaoh's continuing gratitude for Joseph's work, he permitted all his servants, the elders of his household, and all the elders of the land of Egypt—a considerable number of high-ranking Egyptian politicians—to accompany all the adult members of the clan of Jacob on the journey to Canaan. Horses and chariots, prestigious transportation used only by members of the Egyptian aristocracy, were part of a very impressive procession to Canaan.

50:10-14 When the group crossed the Jordan River into Canaan, they camped at the open, level threshing floor of Atad and went through a Hebrew mourning ritual. The presence of a large number of Egyptians publicly displaying solemn mourning so impressed the local Canaanite inhabitants that they renamed the place Abel-mizraim ("The Meadow of Egypt"), a wordplay on a Semitic word for weeping ('ebel) . Proceeding westward to the cave at Machpelah two miles north of Hebron, Joseph buried his father, thus fulfilling what his father had commanded Joseph and his brothers to do.

50:15-21 With Jacob now dead, Joseph's older brothers feared for their lives and hoped the words spoken by Jacob before he died would protect them from Joseph's wrath. They were so afraid of Joseph that they did not dare at first to come to him personally; instead they only sent a message entreating him to forgive his brothers' "rebellion" (transgression) and sin, especially since they were "slaves" (servants) of the God of your father—that is, they worshiped the same God that Joseph did. Perhaps the reason the brothers came to Joseph was that they heard he had wept when he received their message. To maximize their chances of survival they bowed down before him (cp. 37:7,9) and offered themselves as his personal slaves.

Joseph refused their offer. They were slaves of God, not of him, and he would not put himself in the place of God to make them his slaves. He admitted that his older brothers planned evil against him, but with great spiritual insight he also confessed that God planned it for good to bring about . . . the survival of many people (see note at 45:5-8). God had transformed the soot of human sin into a diamond of divine blessing (Rm 8:28; 1Pt 2:24). Far from being embittered, Joseph was emboldened to take care of the very ones who had tried to kill him, along with their little ones. He spoke kindly to them (lit "spoke upon their heart"; cp. Is 40:2) and comforted them.

50:22-23 God's blessing on Joseph's life is apparent as he lived 110 years, 93 of them in Egypt and 80 of them as a ruler in Egypt. He lived to see the third generation of descendants through Ephraim, a phrase that could refer either to great-grandsons or great-great-grandsons. A further sign of God's blessing was the fact that Gilead (Nm 26:29) and other great-grandsons by Machir son of Manasseh "were born on the knees of Joseph," that is, they were ritually adopted by him (Gn 30:3; Ru 4:16).

50:24-26 As Joseph was about to die, some 54 years after his father Jacob's death, he called his brothers to him for one last time and gave them two prophetic promises. First, that God would certainly come to the aid of their descendants. Second, that God would indeed bring their descendants up from Egypt to the land He promised Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (12:7; 13:15,17; 15:7,18; 24:7; 26:3; 28:13).

After Joseph died, he was embalmed—one of only two persons in the Bible said to have been embalmed (also Jacob; see v. 2 and note at vv. 1-3). His preserved body was then placed . . . in a coffin, awaiting a future day when it was to be carried by Moses and the Israelites to the promised land (Ex 13:19; Jos 24:32).

Word Studies yom Hebrew Pronunciation [YOHM]

HCSB Translation day, time Uses in Genesis 152
Uses in the OT 2,301
Focus passage Genesis 1:5,8,13-14,16,18-19,23,31

Yom means day, the Hebrew day lasting from one evening to the next (Gn 1:5). Yom describes a working day (Ex 20:9) or day of the month (Zch 1:7). It indicates a time (Pr 24:10) or occasion (Nm 10:10). In the day often appears as when (Zch 8:9). The plural can represent age (Jb 32:7), lifetime (Jos 24:31), or reign (Is 1:1). The plural denotes a number of days (Neh 1:4), a time period (Lv 25:8), some time (Gn 40:4), a year (Lv 25:29), or years (Ex 2:11). With the definite article yom suggests today (Dt 4:39), now (Neh 1:6), whenever (1Sm 1:4), one day (Jb 1:6), or by day (Neh 4:22). Yom could characterize a particular event such as the day of Jezreel (Hs 1:11). Similarly, the Day/day of Yahweh, or the Lord, is a time or day that belongs to the Lord in a special way (Zph 1:14).

’ishshah Hebrew Pronunciation [eesh SHAH]
HCSB Translation woman Uses in Genesis 152
Uses in the OT 781
Focus passage Genesis 2:22-25

’Ishshah may not be related to a Hebrew word for man in Gn 2:22-25 that looks and sounds like it (’iysh). ’Ishshah resembles a word for woman in several Semitic languages, and may derive from a verb meaning “be weak” that could also lie behind ’enosh, “man” (2 Sm 12:15). The phrase born of woman (Jb 14:1) points to mankind’s weaknesses. ’Ishshah has two basic meanings, woman and wife. Both ideas are present in the word’s first occurrences (Gn 2:22-25). ’Ishshah connotes fiancée or bride (Dt 22:24; 24:5). It signifies woman without implying marriage (Ec 7:28). "The way of women" is a euphemism for menstruation (Gn 31:35). Sometimes 'ishshah describes a kind of woman, like a prophetess (Jdg 4:4). Fearful soldiers are compared to women (Nah 3:13). 'Ishshah functions as a feminine distributive meaning each, referring to women (Ru 1:8), animals, or even things. "Each to each" appears as together (Ex 26:5).

nachash Hebrew Pronunciation [nah KHASH]
HCSB Translation serpent, snake Uses in Genesis 6
Uses in the OT 31
Focus passage Genesis 3:1-2,4,13-14

Although nachash is the most prevalent of eight OT terms for snake (Nm 21:6), the usage is broader than that. The nachash in Gn 3:1,14 was the shrewdest animal and did not crawl on its belly before the curse. The nachash Leviathan was a sea monster (Is 27:1), and there were other sea serpents (Am 9:3). Associated with nachash are slithering motion (Pr 30:19), flying (Is 14:29), sudden attack (Gn 49:17), poisonous venom (Ps 58:4), sharp bite (Ps 140:3), hissing (Jr 46:22), eggs (Is 14:29), and licking of dust (Gn 3:14; Mc 7:17). Five times nachash occurs with words meaning "viper." The Middle East has large desert areas that are habitats for serpents. The serpent of Genesis 3, an enemy of man linked with evil, is particularly identified with Satan in Rv 12:9, where he is also called a "dragon," based on the Greek drakon, which can mean "serpent."

tamiym Hebrew Pronunciation [tah MEEM]
HCSB Translation blameless, mature, perfect Uses in Genesis 2
Uses in the OT 91
Focus passage Genesis 6:9

Tamiym, an adjective from tamam, "be complete," has both physical and spiritual significance. Fifty-one occurrences describe animals as unblemished (Ex 12:5) or without blemish, thus qualified to be sacrificial victims. Related ideas are entire (Lv 3:9), complete (Lv 23:15), healthy (Pr 1:12), whole (Ezk 15:5), and full (Lv 25:30). A frequent spiritual meaning is blameless, devout, or upright (Gn 6:9; 17:1; Jb 12:4). A synonym is yashar ("upright"; Pr 2:21). This is God's standard for human behavior (Dt 18:13) echoed in the NT by the word translated "perfect" (teleios) in Mt 5:48. Tamiym means perfect when describing God's ways, knowledge, or word (Dt 32:4; 2Sm 22:31; Jb 37:16). He can make our way perfect (2Sm 22:33). Tamiym can function nominatively as integrity or sincerity (Jos 24:14; Am 5:10), and adverbially as honestly (Jdg 9:16). Once it seems to mean the right decision (1Sm 14:41).

Focus passage Genesis 12:7

Zera‘ appears 15 times with related zara‘ (sow; Ex 23:10). Zera‘ means seed (Nm 24:7), seedtime (Gn 8:22), crop (Dt 22:9), or grain (Is 23:3). Zera‘ indicates human or animal seed (Jr 31:27), semen (Lv 22:4), or offspring (Gn 3:15). It signifies child (Gn 4:25) or son (1Sm 1:11), children (Gn 46:6), descendants (Ps 18:50), heirs (2Kg 11:1), family (1Kg 11:14), a nation’s kindred (Est 10:3), and people (Is 61:9). It connotes brood (Is 1:4), line or bloodline (Gn 19:32), lineage (Nm 16:40), race (Is 57:4), or ancestry (Ezr 2:59). Zera‘ implies fertile (Ezk 17:5). Zara‘ (56x) also denotes sowed seed (Gn 26:12), plant, become pregnant (Lv 12:2), conceive (Nm 5:28), and have offspring (Nah 1:14). It functions figuratively (Hs 8:7). Participles with zera‘ indicate seed-bearing (Gn 1:12,29). Zerua‘ (3x) is sowing, what is sown, or vegetables (Dn 1:12).

’achuzzah Hebrew Pronunciation [a khooz ZAH]
HCSB Translation possession Uses in Genesis 9
Uses in the OT 66
Focus passage Genesis 17:8

’Achuzzah generally refers to real estate , but can refer to other forms of property such as slaves (Lv 25:45). A common translation of the word is property . The noun derives from the verb ’achaz , meaning to grasp or take hold of . The first and most common OT use of the noun is for land promised by God to Abraham and his descendants (Gn 17:8). Most occurrences of ’achuzzah are in the Pentateuch, Joshua, and Ezekiel 44-48, where this topic is in the forefront. A number of times the word refers to a burial plot (Gn 23:4); these burial plots served the patriarchs as a foretaste of the eventual possession of Canaan by their descendants. The word is often associated with another noun translated as “inheritance” (nachalah) , since the Israelites’ land was God’s gracious gift to be handed down from generation to generation (Nm 32:32).

HCSB Translation circumcise, cut off Uses in Genesis 17
Uses in the OT 35
Focus passage Genesis 17:10-14,23-27

The Egyptians, Edomites, Ammonites, Moabites, Arabs, and Phoenicians practiced circumcision (Jr 9:25-26), but normally on adolescents. God made it the sign of His eternal covenant with Abraham, to be kept by all generations of his male descendants. Any man not circumcised would be cut off from the community (Gn 17:11-14). Circumcision was to be done on the eighth day of life if possible (Gn 21:4; Lv 12:3). Jacob's sons made it a condition of intermarriage with other people groups (Gn 34:15). Later, slaves and foreign residents had to undergo circumcision to celebrate the Passover (Ex 12:44,48). Flint knives were initially the instrument (Jos 5:2). Mul eventually acquired a metaphorical sense of loyalty. Circumcised hearts contrast with being stiff-necked (Dt 10:16). By removing the foreskin of their hearts, Israelites circumcised themselves to the Lord (Jr 4:4).

gadal Hebrew Pronunciation [gah DAHL]
HCSB Translation be great, grow Uses in Genesis 14
Uses in the OT 117
Focus passage Genesis 19:13,19

Gadal is related to gadol, and means be great (Gn 19:13). It denotes grow, grow up, and mature. It implies be magnified or exalted. Someone is powerful or valuable; something is intense or magnificent. People become rich or are wealthy. With comparative words gadal means surpass. The intensive denotes make great, exalt, honor, or promote. It denotes raising, caring for, or training youth. One makes or lets grow. One proclaims greatness or thinks highly of someone. An intensive passive verb means nurtured. The causative means make great or large and describes exalting, increasing, magnifying, or enlarging something. It appears as show great kindness or give great wisdom. It means do great or catastrophic things and connotes boast, boastfully mock, or threaten. One is arrogant or acts arrogantly. He rises up against. He exalts or magnifies himself, appears superior, or triumphs. Additionally, the reflexive means display greatness.

nissah Hebrew Pronunciation [nis SAH]
HCSB Translation test Uses in Genesis 1
Uses in the OT 36
Focus passage Genesis 22:1

The verb nissah describes testing that one gives oneself (Ec 2:1), other people (1Kg 10:1), or various aspects of life (Ec 7:23). Most OT usage depicts either God's testing of man or the reverse. Man's testing of God is almost always due to lack of faith. People forget what God has already done for them (Ps 95:9). They are complaining, rebellious, provocative, and full of excessive desires (Ex 17:2; Ps 78:17-18,41,56). God forbade Israel to test Him this way (Dt 6:16). God, in contrast, tested Israel for the purpose of advancing its welfare (Dt 8:16).

He tested the Israelites to see what was in their hearts (2Ch 32:31), whether they would obey (Ex 16:4) and love (Dt 13:3) Him. So the psalmist invites God to test him (Ps 26:2). Passive-reflexive verbs mean attempt (Dt 4:34), try (Jb 4:2), venture (Dt 28:56), or be used to (1Sm 17:39).

'erets Hebrew Pronunciation [EHR ehtz]
HCSB Translation land Uses in Genesis 311
Uses in the OT 2,505
Focus passage Genesis 28:4,12-14

'Erets is one of the most common and flexible OT nouns, whose meanings seem derived from the idea of land (Gn 2:5). Often it refers to nations such as the land of Israel. 'Erets denotes area, region, homeland, country, or earth, the latter often in conjunction with "heaven" to represent the whole world (Gn 1:1; 20:1; 21:23; 30:25; 34:1). 'Erets means district (1Ch 13:2). It is soil (Lv 27:30) or dirt (Jr 17:13) but may suggest the land's produce (Lv 27:30). 'Erets can involve distance (Gn 35:16), the surface of the ground (Jdg 6:37), or private property (Gn 23:15). 'Erets indicates earth (Ps 66:4) or world (Gn 41:57) as the inhabitants of the earth. It describes the depths of the earth (Is 44:23) and, with modifiers, the underworld (Ezk 26:20). "People of the land" can connote common people (Lv 4:27). "Field of the land" indicates open fields (Lv 25:31).

'El Shaddai Hebrew Pronunciation [ALE shad EYE]
HCSB Translation God Almighty Uses in Genesis 5
Uses in the OT 7
Focus passage Genesis 35:11

God called Himself 'El Shaddai when addressing Abram and Jacob, but after He explained the name Yahweh to Moses (Ex 6:3), 'El Shaddai hardly appears —just once in Ezekiel 10:5. Yet Shaddai occurs 48 times, once or twice in Numbers, Ruth, Isaiah, Ezekiel, Psalms, and Joel, and 31 times in Job, perhaps suggesting that Job is an early book. 'El was a Semitic word for "god" but could designate the high god, as in the ancient city-state Ugarit. The sense of Shaddai is uncertain but was probably linked with an Akkadian word for mountain—the gods were pictured as living on mountains. Modern versions that translate 'El Shaddai as God Almighty follow the Septuagint and Vulgate. Shaddai alone may be a shortened form of 'El Shaddai, for 'El and Shaddai are separated in Gn 49:25; Nm 24:4,16; and 20 times in Job.

chalam Hebrew Pronunciation [khah LAM]
HCSB Translation dream Uses in Genesis 14

Uses in the OT 29
Focus passage Genesis 40:5,8

The word dream is a translation of a Hebrew verb (chalam), a Hebrew noun (chalom; 65x), and an Aramaic noun (chelem) in Daniel (22x)Dreams are of great importance in the Bible. While six passages can refer to ordinary dreams (e.g., Jb 7:14), the rest pertain to dreams that are or claim to be supernatural in origin. This does not imply that most dreams are supernatural, but dreams are used as an avenue of communication between God and humans. God may appear in the dream (Gn 28:12-15) or may disclose His message through symbols that the dreamer or another person must interpret (Dn 2:4). Occasionally an angel will interpret a dream (Dn 7:16). God regularly used dreams to give revelation to His prophets (Nm 12:6). A dream could consist of several visions, or scenes (Dn 7:1-2,7,13).

yakal Hebrew Pronunciation [yah KAL]
HCSB Translation be able, prevail, defeat Uses in Genesis 22
Uses in the OT 193
Focus passage Genesis 44:1,22,26

Yakal indicates capability and regularly takes a complementary infinitive: someone is able to stand (1Sm 6:20). It appears as can (Gn 44:1) or could (Jdg 2:14). It frequently takes the negative, perhaps as cannot. Yakal sometimes involves lack of permission: may not (Dt 24:4), must not (Dt 22:3), or are not (Dt 16:5) to do something. Yakal also signifies prevail (Jr 5:22). It connotes win (Gn 30:8), defeat (Gn 32:25), conquer (Ob 7), overcome (Jr 15:20), and triumph over (Ps 13:4). Twice yakal implies not daring (Lm 4:14) to act. It means be capable of (Hs 8:5). Yakal may imply other words; God can do anything (Jb 42:2), Job could not do these things (Jb 31:23). The psalmist is unable to reach certain knowledge (Ps 139:6); he cannot tolerate evil people (Ps 101:5). Yakal may suggest that action does no good (Is 16:12).

parah Hebrew Pronunciation [pah RAH] HCSB Translation be fruitful Uses in Genesis 15
Uses in the OT 29
Focus passage Genesis 47:27

Parah means be fruitful (Gn 1:22) or sprout (Is 45:8). In some verses the sense is to have plenty of fruit (Is 17:6; 32:12). Parah refers to many offspring or descendants, appearing as become numerous (Ex 23:30) or increase (Jr 3:16). This sense was applied to a mother with numerous children (Ps 128:3). It regularly stands alongside other verbs with similar meanings. Exodus 1:7 lists four in a row to emphasize that God blessed Israel as He originally intended to bless creation (Gn 1:22,28). In 15 verses parah occurs together with ravah meaning fruitful and multiply. Israelites linked the two verbs (Gn 28:3) in imitation of the Lord's repeatedly stressed intention for His creation (e.g., Gn 8:17; Lv 26:9; Ezk 36:11). Participles denote fruitful or bearing fruit (Dt 29:18). Causative verbs indicate make fruitful (Ps 105:24).

bakah Hebrew Pronunciation [bah KAH]
HCSB Translation weep Uses in Genesis 16
Uses in the OT 114
Focus passage Genesis 50:1,3,17

The root behind bakah means weep in all Semitic languages. Bakah also suggests mourn (Lv 10:6), cry (Nm 11:4), and lament (Ps 78:64). Bakah is often vocal, involving loud (2Sm 15:23) or bitter (Ezr 10:1) weeping. There is mention of tears (1Sm 1:10), and fasting that accompanies weeping (2Sm 1:12). Weeping was natural during days of mourning (Gn 50:3) but also signaled complaining (Nm 11:4), repentance (2Ch 34:27), infatuation (Gn 29:11), or reunion (Gn 33:4). Weeping is contrasted with laughing (Ec 3:4). The inner being weeps (Jr 13:17). Bekiy is weeping (Dt 34:8), sometimes as the object of bakah (Jdg 21:2). Once it signifies tears (Ps 102:9), and once the flowing of a stream (Jb 28:11). So bakah apparently implied tears. Bekiyt is mourning (Gn 50:4). Bakut (Gn 35:8), bekeh (Ezr 10:1), and the proper name Bochim (bokiym; Jdg 2:5) all imply weeping.

Essays The Uniqueness of the Genesis Creation Story Kenneth Mathews While there are many similarities between parts of Genesis and ancient Near Eastern (ANE) myths, there are also fundamental differences. These are seen especially in the significantly different views of the Creator and creation. Five features in particular distinguish the biblical creation account and perspective. So distinctive theologically is the biblical teaching from that of Israel's neighbors that it is best explained as the result of divine revelation, not the imagination or "religious genius" of the biblical author.

The Identity of God The basic identity of God as revealed in Genesis is distinct from all other ANE conceptions. The Lord God did not have an origin and did not have a female counterpart. In fact, Genesis does not present any kind of theogony (origin of the gods). God simply always existed. The concept of fertility was a common explanation among the ancients for how the world was created. It was believed that gods and goddesses joined in sexual union and thus produced the world, just as man and woman can come together to create a child. Israel's God, however, was revealed to be asexual, neither male nor female. According to other ANE religions the world (or parts of it, like the sun) was a divine "Thou," whereas in Genesis the world was revealed to be an "it," a non-supernatural reality brought into existence by a supernatural God.

No Rival Gods While polytheistic views dominated the ANE, Genesis revealed that God has no divine rivals. A common explanation for creation among the ancients was that an epic battle had raged between creator gods and anti-creation deities. Ultimately, the creator god overcame the anti-creation forces/gods, in some cases using the slain bodies of their enemies to make the stuff of the world. In Genesis there is no rival opposing the Creator. All creation obeyed the voice of God, as expressed in the recurring phrase, "and it was so" (1:7).

Creation out of Nothing In Genesis the Creator by inherent authority as Sovereign Lord spoke creation into a functional, well-ordered existence. There was no eternal pre-created matter, such as was believed in the ancient myths. Genesis says God spoke all things into origination. This does not mean He uttered words that possessed inherent magical powers. Rather, the irrevocable power of God's creation words was grounded in the authority of God Himself. Unlike the nature deities whose existence was limited to the world system, God existed before creation and above creation. Also, creation was not the emanation of divine person or power. It was separate from Him, a new reality subject to His will.

The Value of Humanity In Genesis the Creator bestowed special value on humanity. Human beings in the ANE view were not indispensable to the operation of the world, whereas in Genesis they were essential as its chief caretakers. The Lord blessed humanity, assigning man and woman the responsibility to propagate and to rule over the earth (1:26-28). ANE myths explained the purpose of humanity as servants who met the servile interests of the gods. The Bible elevates the person and role of humans who were "crowned . . . with glory and honor" (Ps 8:5), made in the divine image. God prepared the resplendent Garden of Eden for humanity, giving humanity meaningful work and purpose (Gn 2:8-18). Also, Genesis presents the first humanity as individuals who were the progenitors of the human race.

The Sabbath In Genesis the Creator provided the seventh day as a holy day of rest and celebration (2:1-3), which was later memorialized in Israel's Sabbath (Ex 20:8-11). The Sabbath was unique to Israel, not tied to the movement of the stars, such as in the ancient preoccupation with astrology. The Lord was revealed as Master of the material universe and of time. All creation was invited to join in the knowledge of God and in the worship of Him as Creator and Sustainer of all things.

THE HISTORICAL RELIABILITY OF THE OLD TESTAMENT KENNETH A. KITCHEN "RELIABILITY" IS THE QUALITY OF BEING DEPENDABLE AND TRUTHFUL. IS THE OLD TESTAMENT (OT) RELIABLE IN WHAT IT SAYS ABOUT GOD'S DEALINGS WITH HUMANITY IN THE ANCIENT NEAR EAST?

Discoveries from that early world often illustrate the factual reality of OT history.

Primeval History Shared memories represent one proof of the reliability of the OT. Far antiquity saw the passing of countless human generations, but they kept a living memory of momentous events. For instance, other cultures told stories that are strikingly similar to Noah's Flood. This is indirect proof for the reliability of the OT. The Genesis schema of documenting creation and listing two sets of eight or ten representative generations living before and after the Flood also finds commonality in ancient Sumerian and Babylonian literature. This demonstrates that the OT fits the literary forms and practices of the era it documents. Finally, long lives like Methuselah's 969 years are no bar to personal historicity; ancient Sumerian documents maintain that king (En)-me-bara-gisi reigned for 900 years. The 900-year reign is not credible, but king (En)-me-bara-gisi was not fictional. He is known to be historical because archaeologists have discovered inscriptions bearing his name. It was a widespread ancient convention to "stretch" spans of true events and ages of people that hailed from primeval times.

Patriarchal History With Abraham we enter the era of the patriarchs (ca 2000-1600 B.C.). Historical records are more plentiful from this point on in history. The patriarchs herded sheep and cattle, ranging from Ur (modern Iraq) down to Egypt. Data from Ur during this era record large flocks of sheep, which fits with OT depictions. Archives from Mari mention Haran, where Abraham once lived. From the time of Abraham down to Jacob, Canaan was a land of independent "city-states" like Shechem, (Jeru)salem, and Gerar. These population centers were sustained by pastures, frequented by local herdsmen and visitors like Abraham and his descendants (Gn 37:12-13). Egyptian "execration-texts" provide extrabiblical evidence of this practice. The war between the Canaanite kings and eastern rulers from Babylonia (Shinar, Ellasar—see Gn 14) and Iranian Elam is true to this period. The Mari archives verify that this was the only period in which Elam's forces reached so far west and when many war alliances flourished. Patriarchal customs involving things like marriage and covenant-formation reflect this period, as does the sum of 20 shekels paid to purchase Joseph (Gn 37:28). Egyptian details mentioned in the OT (personal names, deadly famines, the practice of "reading" dreams, etc.) match what is learned about Egypt from other ancient sources.

The Merenptah Stele (left) dates to the late 13th century B.C. Pharaoh Merenptah (1212-1203 B.C.) memorializes his victories against Libya and in Canaan on this granite stele. Outside the Bible, this is the earliest reference to Israel to date: "Israel is laid waste, its seed is not." The Merenptah Stele was discovered in 1896 by Flanders Petrie at Thebes and is currently in the Cairo Museum, Egypt.

In Egypt the enslaved Hebrews labored to build cities such as Rameses and Pithom. One view is that this took place under Ramesses II (1279-1213 B.C.). Another view is that the exodus took place around 1446 B.C. Archaeology reveals that Rameses included chariotry-stables (see Ex 14:25). During the exodus from Egypt, God led the Hebrews not by the nearby northern route to Canaan (cp. Ex 13:17-18), which was infested with Egyptian military stations, but by Mount Sinai, which was safely south of Egyptian control.

The covenant Moses mediated between God and Israel at Mount Sinai includes features (historical introduction, identification of witnesses, the naming of covenant blessings and curses) that reflect known usage in the fourteenth and thirteenth centuries B.C., and the Tabernacle (Ex 25:9; 26:1ff) echoes a long regional tradition (ca 2800-1000 B.C.) of building sacred tents and sanctuaries. By 1209 B.C., tribal Israel was already in Canaan. Extrabiblical proof for this is found on Pharaoh Merenptah's Victory Stele.

Historical Israel After the troubled times of the judges, Saul, David, and Solomon ruled Israel. "The House of David" is named on an Aramean stele from Dan, and likewise on the stele of Mesha king of Moab. Less than 50 years after David, the place-name "Heights of Davit" (Egyptians used t for final d) is included in the geographic list of Palestine drawn up for Shoshenq I ("Shishak" ca 924 B.C.). The design of Solomon's temple reflected trends that were current in neighboring Syria, though the temple's décor was modest by comparison. Solomon's wisdom-writings fit his epoch in format and content.

After Solomon's death (930 B.C.), Israel and Judah split into two kingdoms. The Assyrians advanced southward and came into repeated contact with Hebrew rulers. Thus Ahab and Jehu of Israel are mentioned in texts of Shalmaneser III, while his successors mention Jehoash, Menahem, Pekah, and Hoshea. We have Hebrew seals identifying servants of Jeroboam II and Hoshea. From Judah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah are included on official seal-impressions, while Assyrian records name (Jeho)-ahaz, Hezekiah, and Manasseh. All these kings appear in the same sequence and epochs in both biblical and Assyrian records.

The House of David Inscription is the earliest reference to David outside the Bible. This inscription was part of a victory monument erected by an Aramaean king in the 9th century B.C. He celebrates victories over a "king of Israel" and a king of the "House of David"—a reference to Judah. This artifact was discovered in 1994 at Tell Dan in Northern Israel. It resides currently in the Israel Museum, Jerusalem.

Mesha of Moab left a stele mentioning Omri and Ahab of Israel. In turn, the narratives in Kings and Chronicles mention, in correct periods and order, the following kings of Egypt: Shoshenq I [Shishak], Osorkon IV [So], Taharqa [Tirhakah], Necho (II), and Hophra. Also mentioned are Assyrian rulers Tiglath-pileser III, Shalmaneser (V), Sargon (II), Sennacherib, and Esar-haddon. Finally, the Babylonian rulers Merodach-baladan (II), Nebuchadrezzar (II), and Evil-Merodach are named. Various events are documented in both biblical and external sources through 200 years for Israel and 340 years for Judah. The falls of Samaria (722/720 B.C.) and Judah (605-597 B.C.) are mentioned in Assyrian and Babylonian chronicles respectively.

We have discovered ration-tablets from Babylon for the banished Judean king Jehoiachin and his family for 594-570 B.C. The well-documented Persian triumph in 539 B.C. enabled many exiles to return to Judah and rebuild Jerusalem and its temple, just as the OT says. Other biblical figures now verified through archaeological discoveries include: Sanballat I of Samaria from Aramaic papyri;

the later family of Tobiah of Ammon from tombs at Iraq al-Amir; and Gashmu/Geshem as an Arabian king in Qedar, from a bowl belonging to his son Qaynu.

The historicity of the OT should be taken seriously. As for the OT text itself, the Dead Sea Scrolls (ca 150 B.C.- A.D. 70) provide good evidence of a carefully transmitted core-text tradition through almost a thousand years down to the Masoretic scribes (ca eighth-tenth centuries A.D.) Thus, the basic text of OT Scripture can be established as essentially soundly transmitted, and the evidence shows that the form and content of the OT fit with known literary and cultural realities of the Ancient Near East. EXODUS

Israel Oppressed in Egypt

1 These are the names of the sons of Israel who came to Egypt with Jacob;
each came with his family: [a]

2 Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah;
3 Issachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin;
4 Dan and Naphtali; Gad and Asher.

5 The total number of Jacob's descendants [A] was 70; [b, c] Joseph was already in Egypt.
6 Then Joseph and all his brothers and all that generation died. [d] 7 But the Israelites were fruitful, increased rapidly, multiplied, and became extremely numerous [e] so that the land was filled with them.
8 A new king, who had not known Joseph, came to power in Egypt. 9 He said to his people, "Look, the Israelite people are more numerous and powerful than we are. [f] 10 Let us deal shrewdly with them; otherwise they will multiply further, and if war breaks out, they may join our enemies, fight against us, and leave the country." [g] 11 So the Egyptians assigned taskmasters over the Israelites to oppress them with forced labor. [h] They built Pithom and Rameses as supply cities [i] for Pharaoh. 12 But the more they oppressed them, the more they multiplied and spread so that the Egyptians came to dread [B] the Israelites. 13 They worked the Israelites ruthlessly [j] 14 and made their lives bitter with difficult labor in brick and mortar and in all kinds of fieldwork. They ruthlessly imposed all this work on them. [k]
15 Then the king of Egypt said to the Hebrew midwives, one of whom was named Shiphrah and the other Puah, 16 "When you help the Hebrew women give birth, observe them as they deliver. [C] If the child is a son, kill him, but if it's a daughter, she may live." 17 The Hebrew midwives, however, •feared God [l] and did not do as the king of Egypt had told them; [m] they let the boys live. 18 So the king of Egypt summoned the midwives and asked them, "Why have you done this and let the boys live? "
19 The midwives said to Pharaoh, "The Hebrew women are not like the Egyptian women, for they are vigorous and give birth before a midwife can get to them." [n]
20 So God was good to the midwives, [o] and the people multiplied and became very numerous. 21 Since the midwives feared God, He gave them families. [p] 22 Pharaoh then commanded all his people: "You must throw every son born to the Hebrews [q] into the Nile, but let every daughter live." [r]

Moses' Birth and Adoption

2 Now a man from the family of Levi married a Levite woman. [a] [2] The woman became pregnant and gave birth to a son; when she saw that he was beautiful, [A] she hid him for three months. [b] [3] But when she could no longer hide him, she got a papyrus basket for him and coated it with asphalt and pitch. She placed the child in it and set it among the reeds by the bank of the Nile. [4] Then his sister [c] stood at a distance in order to see what would happen to him.

5 Pharaoh's daughter went down to bathe at the Nile while her servant girls walked along the riverbank. Seeing the basket among the reeds, she sent her slave girl to get it. 6 When she opened it, she saw the child — a little boy, crying.
She felt sorry for him and said, "This is one of the Hebrew boys."

7 Then his sister said to Pharaoh's daughter, "Should I go and call a woman from the Hebrews to nurse the boy for you? "

8 "Go," Pharaoh's daughter told her. So the girl went and called the boy's mother. 9 Then Pharaoh's daughter said to her, "Take this child and nurse him for me, and I will pay your wages." So the woman took the boy and nursed him.
10 When the child grew older, she brought him to Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her son. She named him Moses, "Because," she said, "I drew him out of the water." [d]

Moses in Midian

11 Years later, [B] after Moses had grown up, he went out to his own people [C] and observed their forced labor. [e] He saw an Egyptian beating a Hebrew, one of his people. 12 Looking all around and seeing no one, he struck the Egyptian dead and hid him in the sand. 13 The next day he went out and saw two Hebrews fighting. He asked the one in the wrong, “Why are you attacking your neighbor? ” [D]

14 “Who made you a leader and judge over us? ” the man replied. “Are you planning to kill me as you killed the Egyptian? ”

Then Moses became afraid and thought: What I did is certainly known. 15 When Pharaoh heard about this, he tried to kill Moses. But Moses fled from Pharaoh and went to live in the land of Midian, [f] and sat down by a well. [g]

16 Now the priest of Midian [h] had seven daughters. They came to draw water and filled the troughs to water their father’s flock. 17 Then some shepherds arrived and drove them away, but Moses came to their rescue and watered their flock. 18 When they returned to their father Reuel [i, j] he asked, “Why have you come back so quickly today? ”

19 They answered, “An Egyptian rescued us from the shepherds. He even drew water for us and watered the flock.”

20 “So where is he? ” he asked his daughters. “Why then did you leave the man behind? Invite him to eat dinner.”

21 Moses agreed to stay with the man, and he gave his daughter Zipporah [k] to Moses in marriage. 22 She gave birth to a son whom he named Gershom, for he said, “I have been a foreigner [l] in a foreign land.” [m]

23 After a long time, the king of Egypt died. The Israelites groaned because of their difficult labor, and they cried out; [n] and their cry for help ascended to God because of the difficult labor. 24 So God heard their groaning, and He remembered [o] His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. [p] 25 God saw the Israelites, and He took notice. [q]

Moses and the Burning Bush

3 Meanwhile, Moses was shepherding the flock of his father-in-law Jethro, [a] the priest of Midian. He led the flock to the far side of the wilderness and came to Horeb, [b] the mountain of God. [c] 2 Then the Angel of the LORD appeared to him in a flame of fire within a bush. [d] As Moses looked, he saw that the bush was on fire but was not consumed. 3 So Moses thought: I must go over and look at this remarkable sight. Why isn't the bush burning up?

4 When the LORD saw that he had gone over to look, God called out to him from the bush, "Moses, Moses! "

"Here I am," he answered.

5 "Do not come closer," He said. "Remove the sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy ground." [e] 6 Then He continued, "I am the God of your father, [f] the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob." [g] Moses hid his face because he was afraid to look at God.

7 Then the LORD said, "I have observed the misery of My people in Egypt, and have heard them crying out [h] because of their oppressors, and I know about their sufferings. 8 I have come down to rescue them from the power of the Egyptians and to bring them from that land to a good and spacious land, a land flowing with milk and honey [i] — the territory of the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites. [j] 9 The Israelites' cry for help has come to Me, and I have also seen the way the Egyptians are oppressing [k] them. 10 Therefore, go. I am sending you to Pharaoh so that you may lead My people, the Israelites, out of Egypt."

11 But Moses asked God, "Who am I [l] that I should go to Pharaoh and that I should bring the Israelites out of Egypt? "

12 He answered, "I will certainly be with you, [m] and this will be the sign to you that I have sent you: when you bring the people out of Egypt, you will all worship [A] God at this mountain."

13 Then Moses asked God, "If I go to the Israelites and say to them: The God of your fathers has sent me to you, and they ask me, 'What is His name? ' what should I tell them? "

14 God replied to Moses, "I AM WHO I AM. [B, n] This is what you are to say to the Israelites: I AM has sent me to you." 15 God also said to Moses, "Say this to the Israelites: •Yahweh , the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, has sent me to you. This is My name forever; [o] this is how I am to be remembered in every generation.

16 "Go and assemble the elders of Israel and say to them: Yahweh, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, has appeared to me and said: I have paid close attention to you and to what has been done to you in Egypt. [p] 17 And I have promised you that I will bring you up from the misery of Egypt [q] to the land of the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites — a land flowing with milk and honey. 18 They will listen to what you say. Then you, along with the elders of Israel, must go to the king of Egypt and say to him: Yahweh, the God of the Hebrews, has met with us. Now please let us go on a three-day trip into the wilderness so that we may sacrifice to Yahweh our God. [r]

19 "However, I know that the king of Egypt will not allow you to go, unless he is forced by a strong hand. [s] 20 I will stretch out My hand and strike Egypt with all My miracles that I will perform in it. After that, he will let you go. [t] 21 And I will give these people such favor in the sight of the Egyptians that when you go, you will not go empty-handed. [u] 22 Each woman will ask her neighbor and any woman staying in her house for silver and gold jewelry, and clothing, and you will put them on your sons and daughters. So you will plunder the Egyptians." [v]

Miraculous Signs for Moses

4 Then Moses answered, “What if they won’t believe me and will not obey me but say, ‘The LORD did not appear [a] to you’? ”
2 The LORD asked him, “What is that in your hand? ”
“A staff,” he replied.
3 Then He said, “Throw it on the ground.” He threw it on the ground, and it became a snake. Moses ran from it, 4 but the LORD told him, “Stretch out your hand and grab it by the tail.” So he stretched out his hand and caught it, and it became a staff in his hand. 5 “This will take place,” He continued, “so they will believe that •Yahweh , the God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, has appeared to you.” [b] 6 In addition the LORD said to him, “Put your hand inside your cloak.” So he put his hand inside his cloak, and when he took it out, his hand was diseased, white as snow. [c, d] 7 Then He said, “Put your hand back inside your cloak.” He put his hand back inside his cloak, and when he took it out, [A] it had again become like the rest of his skin. [e] 8 “If they will not believe you and will not respond to the evidence of the first sign, they may believe the evidence of the second sign. 9 And if they don’t believe even these two signs or listen to what you say, take some water from the Nile and pour it on the dry ground. The water you take from the Nile will become blood on the ground.” [f] 10 But Moses replied to the LORD, “Please, Lord, I have never been eloquent — either in the past or recently or since You have been speaking to Your servant [g] — because I am slow and hesitant in speech.” [B, h] 11 Yahweh said to him, “Who made the human mouth? Who makes him mute or deaf, seeing or blind? Is it not I, Yahweh? [i] 12 Now go! I will help [C] you speak and I will teach you what to say.” [j] 13 Moses said, “Please, Lord, send someone else.” [D] 14 Then the LORD’s anger burned against Moses, and He said, “Isn’t Aaron the Levite your brother? I know that he can speak well. And also, he is on his way now to meet you. He will rejoice when he sees you. 15 You will speak with him and tell him what to say. [k] I will help [E] both you and him to speak and will teach you both what to do. 16 He will speak to the people for you. He will be your spokesman, and you will serve as God to him. 17 And take this staff in your hand that you will perform the signs with.” [l]

Moses’ Return to Egypt 18 Then Moses went back to his father-in-law Jethro and said to him, “Please let me return to my relatives in Egypt and see if they are still living.”

Jethro said to Moses, “Go in peace.”

19 Now in Midian the LORD told Moses, “Return to Egypt, for all the men who wanted to kill you are dead.” [m] 20 So Moses took his wife and sons, put them on a donkey, and returned to the land of Egypt. And Moses took God’s staff [n] in his hand.

21 The LORD instructed Moses, “When you go back to Egypt, make sure you do all the wonders before Pharaoh that I have put within your power. But I will harden his heart [F,] [o] so that he won’t let the people go. 22 Then you will say to Pharaoh: This is what Yahweh says: Israel is My firstborn son. [p] 23 I told you:
Let My son go so that he may worship Me, but you refused to let him go. Now I will kill your firstborn son! ” [q]

24 On the trip, at an overnight campsite, it happened that the LORD confronted him and sought to put him to death. 25 So Zipporah took a flint, cut off her son’s foreskin, and threw it at Moses’ feet. [r] Then she said, “You are a bridegroom of blood to me! ” [s] 26 So He let him alone. At that time she said, “You are a bridegroom of blood,” referring to the circumcision. [t]

Reunion of Moses and Aaron 27 Now the LORD had said to Aaron, “Go and meet Moses in the wilderness.” So he went and met him at the mountain of God and kissed him. [u] 28 Moses told Aaron everything the LORD had sent him to say, and about all the signs He had commanded him to do. 29 Then Moses and Aaron went and assembled all the elders of the Israelites. 30 Aaron repeated everything the LORD had said to Moses and performed the signs before the people. 31 The people believed, and when they heard that the LORD had paid attention [v] to them and that He had seen their misery, [w] they bowed down and worshiped.

Moses Confronts Pharaoh

5 Later, Moses and Aaron went in and said to Pharaoh, “This is what •Yahweh , the God of Israel, says: Let My people go, so that they may hold a festival for Me in the wilderness.” [a]

2 But Pharaoh responded, “Who is Yahweh that I should obey Him by letting Israel go? I do not know anything about Yahweh, and besides, I will not let Israel go.” [b]

3 Then they answered, “The God of the Hebrews has met with us. Please let us go on a three-day trip into the wilderness so that we may sacrifice to Yahweh our God, or else He may strike us with plague or sword.”

4 The king of Egypt said to them, “Moses and Aaron, why are you causing the people to neglect their work? Get to your work! ” 5 Pharaoh also said, “Look, the people of the land are so numerous, and you would stop them from working.” [c]

Further Oppression of Israel 6 That day Pharaoh commanded the overseers [d] of the people as well as their foremen: 7 “Don’t continue to supply the people with straw for making bricks, as before. They must go and gather straw for themselves. 8 But require the same quota of bricks from them as they were making before; do not reduce it. For they are slackers — that is why they are crying out, [e] ‘Let us go and sacrifice to our God.’ 9 Impose heavier work on the men. Then they will be occupied with it and not pay attention to deceptive words.”

10 So the overseers and foremen of the people went out and said to them, “This is what Pharaoh says: [f] ‘I am not giving you straw. 11 Go get straw yourselves wherever you can find it, but there will be no reduction at all in your workload.’ ” 12 So the people scattered throughout the land of Egypt to gather stubble for straw. 13 The overseers insisted, “Finish your assigned work each day, just as you did when straw was provided.” 14 Then the Israelite foremen, whom Pharaoh’s slave drivers had set over the people, were beaten [g] and asked, “Why haven’t you finished making your prescribed number of bricks yesterday or today, as you did before? ”

15 So the Israelite foremen went in and cried for help to Pharaoh: “Why are you treating your servants this way? 16 No straw has been given to your servants, yet they say to us, ‘Make bricks! ’ Look, your servants are being beaten, but it is your own people who are at fault.”

17 But he said, “You are slackers. Slackers! That is why you are saying, ‘Let us go sacrifice to the LORD.’ 18 Now get to work. No straw will be given to you, but you must produce the same quantity of bricks.”

19 The Israelite foremen saw that they were in trouble when they were told,
“You cannot reduce your daily quota of bricks.” 20 When they left Pharaoh, they confronted Moses and Aaron, who stood waiting to meet them.
21 “May the LORD take note of you and judge,” they said to them, “because you have made us reek in front of Pharaoh and his officials — putting a sword in their hand to kill us! ” [h] 22 So Moses went back to the LORD and asked, “Lord, why have You caused trouble for this people? And why did You ever send me? [i] 23 Ever since I went in to Pharaoh to speak in Your name he has caused trouble for this people, and You haven’t delivered Your people at all.”

6 But the LORD replied to Moses, “Now you are going to see what I will do to Pharaoh: he will let them go because of My strong hand; he will drive them out of his land because of My strong hand.” [a]

God Promises Freedom

2 Then God spoke to Moses, telling him, “I am •Yahweh . 3 I appeared to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as •God Almighty, but I did not reveal My name Yahweh to them. [b] 4 I also established My covenant with them to give them the land of Canaan, the land they lived in as foreigners. [c] 5 Furthermore, I have heard the groaning of the Israelites, whom the Egyptians are forcing to work as slaves, and I have remembered [d] My covenant.

6 “Therefore tell the Israelites: I am Yahweh, and I will deliver you from the forced labor of the Egyptians and free you from slavery to them. I will redeem you with an outstretched arm [e] and great acts of judgment. 7 I will take you as My people, [f] and I will be your God. You will know [g] that I am Yahweh your God, who delivered you from the forced labor of the Egyptians. 8 I will bring you to the land that I swore [A, h] to give to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and I will give it to you as a possession. I am Yahweh.” 9 Moses told this to the Israelites, but they did not listen [i] to him because of their broken spirit and hard labor.

10 Then the LORD spoke to Moses, 11 “Go and tell Pharaoh king of Egypt to let the Israelites go from his land.”

12 But Moses said in the LORD’s presence: “If the Israelites will not listen to me, then how will Pharaoh listen to me, since I am such a poor speaker? ” [B, j] 13
Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron and gave them commands concerning both the Israelites and Pharaoh king of Egypt to bring the Israelites out of the land of Egypt.

Genealogy of Moses and Aaron 14 These are the heads of their fathers’ families:

The sons of Reuben, [k] the firstborn of Israel:
Hanoch and Pallu, Hezron and Carmi.
These are the clans of Reuben.

15 The sons of Simeon: [l]
Jemuel, Jamin, Ohad, Jachin,
Zohar, and Shaul, the son of a Canaanite woman.
These are the clans of Simeon.

16 These are the names of the sons of Levi
according to their genealogy:
Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. [m]

Levi lived 137 years.
17 The sons of Gershon:
Libni and Shimei, by their clans.
18 The sons of Kohath:
Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.
Kohath lived 133 years.
19 The sons of Merari:
Mahli and Mushi.
These are the clans of the Levites [n]
according to their genealogy.
20 Amram married his father's sister Jochebed, and she bore him Aaron and Moses. [o]
Amram lived 137 years.
21 The sons of Izhar: [p]
Korah, Nepheg, and Zichri.
22 The sons of Uzziel: Mishael, Elzaphan, [q] and Sithri.
23 Aaron married Elisheba, daughter of Amminadab [r] and sister of Nahshon.
She bore him Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. [s]
24 The sons of Korah: [t]
Assir, Elkanah, and Abiasaph.
These are the clans of the Korahites.
25 Aaron's son Eleazar married one of the daughters of Putiel and she bore him Phinehas. [u]
These are the heads of the Levite families by their clans.
26 It was this Aaron and Moses whom the LORD told, "Bring the Israelites out of the land of Egypt according to their divisions." [v] 27 Moses and Aaron were the ones who spoke to Pharaoh king of Egypt in order to bring the Israelites out of Egypt.

Moses and Aaron before Pharaoh 28 On the day the LORD spoke to Moses in the land of Egypt, 29 He said to him, "I am Yahweh; [w] tell Pharaoh king of Egypt everything I am telling you."
30 But Moses replied in the LORD's presence, "Since I am such a poor speaker, C, [x] how will Pharaoh listen to me? "

7 The LORD answered Moses, “See, I have made you like God to Pharaoh, and Aaron your brother will be your prophet. 2 You must say whatever I command you; then Aaron your brother must declare it to Pharaoh so that he will let the Israelites go from his land. 3 But I will harden Pharaoh’s heart [a] and multiply My signs and wonders in the land of Egypt. 4 Pharaoh will not listen to you, but I will put My hand on Egypt and bring the divisions of My people the Israelites out of the land of Egypt by great acts of judgment. 5 The Egyptians will know that I am •Yahweh [b] when I stretch out My hand [c] against Egypt, and bring out the Israelites from among them.”

6 So Moses and Aaron did this; they did just as the LORD commanded them.
7 Moses was 80 years old [d] and Aaron 83 when they spoke to Pharaoh.

8 The LORD said to Moses and Aaron, 9 “When Pharaoh tells you, ‘Perform a miracle,’ tell Aaron, ‘Take your staff and throw it down before Pharaoh. It will become a serpent.’ ” [e] 10 So Moses and Aaron went in to Pharaoh and did just as the LORD had commanded. Aaron threw down his staff before Pharaoh and his officials, and it became a serpent. 11 But then Pharaoh called the wise men and sorcerers — the magicians [f] of Egypt, and they also did the same thing by their occult practices. [g] 12 Each one threw down his staff, and it became a serpent. But Aaron’s staff swallowed their staffs. 13 However, Pharaoh’s heart hardened, [h] and he did not listen to them, as the LORD had said.

The First Plague: Water Turned to Blood 14 Then the LORD said to Moses, “Pharaoh’s heart is hard: he refuses to let the people go. 15 Go to Pharaoh in the morning. When you see him walking out to the water, stand ready to meet him by the bank of the Nile. Take in your hand the staff that turned into a snake.
[i] 16 Tell him: Yahweh, the God of the Hebrews, has sent me to tell you: Let My people go, so that they may worship [A] Me in the wilderness, but so far you have not listened. 17 This is what Yahweh says: Here is how you will know that I am Yahweh. Watch. I will strike the water in the Nile with the staff in my hand, and it will turn to blood. 18 The fish in the Nile will die, the river will stink, and the Egyptians will be unable to drink water from it.”

19 So the LORD said to Moses, “Tell Aaron: Take your staff and stretch out your hand [j] over the waters of Egypt — over their rivers, canals, [k] ponds, and all their water reservoirs — and they will become blood. There will be blood throughout the land of Egypt, even in wooden and stone containers.”

20 Moses and Aaron did just as the LORD had commanded; in the sight of Pharaoh and his officials, he raised the staff and struck the water in the Nile, and all the water in the Nile was turned to blood. [l] 21 The fish in the Nile died, and the river smelled so bad the Egyptians could not drink water from it. There was blood throughout the land of Egypt.

22 But the magicians of Egypt did the same thing by their occult practices. So Pharaoh's heart hardened, and he would not listen to them, as the LORD had said. 23 Pharaoh turned around, went into his palace, and didn't even take this to heart. 24 All the Egyptians dug around the Nile for water to drink because they could not drink the water from the river. 25 Seven days passed after the LORD struck the Nile.

Chapter 8 [a]

The Second Plague: Frogs [1] Then the LORD said to Moses, "Go in to Pharaoh and tell him: This is what •Yahweh says: Let My people go, so that they may worship Me. [b] [2] But if you refuse to let them go, then I will plague all your territory with frogs. [c] [3] The Nile will swarm with frogs; they will come up and go into your palace, into your bedroom and on your bed, into the houses of your officials and your people, and into your ovens and kneading bowls. [4] The frogs will come up on you, your people, and all your officials."

[5] [d] The LORD then said to Moses, "Tell Aaron: Stretch out your hand with your staff over the rivers, canals, and ponds, and cause the frogs to come up onto the land of Egypt." [e] [6] When Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt, the frogs [f] came up and covered the land of Egypt. [7] But the magicians did the same thing by their occult practices and brought frogs up onto the land of Egypt.

[8] Pharaoh summoned Moses and Aaron and said, "Ask [g] Yahweh to remove the frogs from me and my people. Then I will let the people go and they can sacrifice to Yahweh."

[9] Moses said to Pharaoh, "You make the choice rather than me. When should I ask on behalf of you, your officials, and your people, that the frogs be taken away from you and your houses, and remain only in the Nile?"

Moses replied, "As you have said, so you may know there is no one like Yahweh our God, [h] [11] the frogs will go away from you, your houses, your officials, and your people. The frogs will remain only in the Nile." [12] After Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh, Moses cried out to the LORD for help concerning the frogs that He had brought against [A] Pharaoh. [13] The LORD did as Moses had said: the frogs in the houses, courtyards, and fields died. [14] They piled them in countless heaps, and there was a terrible odor in the land. [15] But when Pharaoh saw there was relief, he hardened his heart [i] and would not listen to them, as the LORD had said.

The Third Plague: Gnats [16] Then the LORD said to Moses, "Tell Aaron: Stretch out your staff and strike the dust of the earth, and it will become gnats [j] throughout the land of Egypt." [17] And they did this. Aaron stretched out his hand with his staff, and when he struck the dust of the earth, gnats were on man and beast. All the dust of the earth became gnats throughout the land of Egypt. [18] The magicians tried to produce gnats using their occult practices, but they could not. The gnats remained on man and beast. [k]

19 “This is the finger of God,” [l] the magicians said to Pharaoh. But Pharaoh’s heart hardened, and he would not listen to them, as the LORD had said.

The Fourth Plague: Swarms of Flies 20 The LORD said to Moses, “Get up early in the morning and present yourself to Pharaoh when you see him going out to the water. Tell him: This is what Yahweh says: Let My people go, so that they may worship [B] Me. [m] 21 But if you will not let My people go, then I will send swarms of flies [C] against you, your officials, your people, and your houses. The Egyptians’ houses will swarm with flies, and so will the land where they live. [D] 22 But on that day I will give special treatment to the land of Goshen, where My people are living; [n] no flies will be there. This way you will know that I, Yahweh, am in the land. 23 I will make a distinction [o] between My people and your people. This sign will take place tomorrow.”

24 And the LORD did this. Thick swarms of flies went into Pharaoh’s palace and his officials’ houses. Throughout Egypt the land was ruined because of the swarms of flies. [p] 25 Then Pharaoh summoned Moses and Aaron and said, “Go sacrifice to your God within the country.”

26 But Moses said, “It would not be right [E] to do that, because what we will sacrifice to the LORD our God is detestable to the Egyptians. [q] If we sacrifice what the Egyptians detest in front of them, won’t they stone us? 27 We must go a distance of three days into the wilderness and sacrifice to the LORD our God as He instructs us.”

28 Pharaoh responded, “I will let you go and sacrifice to the LORD your God in the wilderness, but don’t go very far. Make an appeal [r] for me.”

29 “As soon as I leave you,” Moses said, “I will appeal to the LORD, and tomorrow the swarms of flies will depart from Pharaoh, his officials, and his people. But Pharaoh must not act deceptively again by refusing to let the people go and sacrifice to the LORD.” 30 Then Moses left Pharaoh’s presence and appealed to the LORD. 31 The LORD did as Moses had said: He removed the swarms of flies from Pharaoh, his officials, and his people; not one was left.
32 But Pharaoh hardened his heart this time also and did not let the people go.

The Fifth Plague: Death of Livestock

9 Then the LORD said to Moses, “Go in to Pharaoh and say to him: This is what •Yahweh , the God of the Hebrews, says: Let My people go, so that they may worship Me. 2 But if you refuse to let them go and keep holding them, 3 then the LORD’s hand will bring a severe plague against your livestock in the field — the horses, donkeys, camels, herds, and flocks. 4 But the LORD will make a distinction between the livestock of Israel and the livestock of Egypt, so that nothing of all that the Israelites own will die.” 5 And the LORD set a time, saying, “Tomorrow the LORD will do this thing in the land.” [a] 6 The LORD did this the next day. All the Egyptian livestock died, [b] but none among the Israelite livestock died.
7 Pharaoh sent messengers who saw that not a single one of the Israelite livestock was dead. But Pharaoh’s heart was hardened, [c] and he did not let the people go.

The Sixth Plague: Boils 8 Then the LORD said to Moses and Aaron, “Take handfuls of furnace soot, and Moses is to throw it toward heaven in the sight of Pharaoh. 9 It will become fine dust over the entire land of Egypt. It will become festering boils [d] on man and beast throughout the land of Egypt.” 10 So they took furnace soot and stood before Pharaoh. Moses threw it toward heaven, and it became festering boils on man and beast. 11 The magicians could not stand before Moses because of the boils, for the boils were on the magicians as well as on all the Egyptians. [e] 12 But the LORD hardened Pharaoh’s heart [f] and he did not listen to them, as the LORD had told Moses.

The Seventh Plague: Hail 13 Then the LORD said to Moses, “Get up early in the morning and present yourself to Pharaoh. Tell him: This is what Yahweh, the God of the Hebrews says: Let My people go, so that they may worship Me.
14 Otherwise, I am going to send all My plagues against you, [A] your officials, and your people. Then you will know there is no one like Me in all the earth.
15 By now I could have stretched out My hand and struck you and your people with a plague, and you would have been obliterated from the earth. [g] 16 However, I have let you live for this purpose: to show you My power [h] and to make My name known in all the earth. 17 You are still acting arrogantly against [B] My people by not letting them go. 18 Tomorrow at this time I will rain down the worst hail [i] that has ever occurred in Egypt from the day it was founded until
now. 19 Therefore give orders to bring your livestock and all that you have in the field into shelters. Every person and animal that is in the field and not brought inside will die when the hail falls on them.” 20 Those among Pharaoh’s officials who •feared the word of the LORD made their servants and livestock flee to shelters, 21 but those who didn't take the LORD's word seriously left their servants and livestock in the field.

22 Then the LORD said to Moses, "Stretch out your hand toward heaven and let there be hail throughout the land of Egypt — on man and beast and every plant of the field in the land of Egypt." 23 So Moses stretched out his staff toward heaven, and the LORD sent thunder and hail. [j] Lightning struck the earth, and the LORD rained hail on the land of Egypt. 24 The hail, with lightning flashing through it, was so severe that nothing like it had occurred in the land of Egypt since it had become a nation. 25 Throughout the land of Egypt, the hail struck down everything in the field, both man and beast. The hail beat down every plant of the field and shattered every tree in the field. 26 The only place it didn't hail was in the land of Goshen where the Israelites were. [k]

27 Pharaoh sent for Moses and Aaron. "I have sinned this time," he said to them. "Yahweh is the Righteous [l] One, and I and my people are the •guilty ones. 28 Make an appeal to Yahweh. There has been enough of God's thunder and hail. I will let you go; [m] you don't need to stay any longer."

29 Moses said to him, "When I have left the city, I will extend my hands [n] to Yahweh. The thunder will cease, and there will be no more hail, so that you may know the earth [o] belongs to Yahweh. 30 But as for you and your officials, I know that you still do not fear Yahweh our God."

31 The flax and the barley were destroyed because the barley was ripe [C] and the flax was budding, [p] 32 but the wheat and the spelt were not destroyed since they are later crops. [D]

33 Moses went out from Pharaoh and the city, and extended his hands to the LORD. Then the thunder and hail ceased, and rain no longer poured down on the land. 34 When Pharaoh saw that the rain, hail, and thunder had ceased, he sinned again and hardened his heart, he and his officials. 35 So Pharaoh's heart hardened, and he did not let the Israelites go, as the LORD had said through Moses.

The Eighth Plague: Locusts

10 Then the LORD said to Moses, “Go to Pharaoh, for I have hardened his heart and the hearts of his officials so that I may do these miraculous signs of Mine among them, [A, a] 2 and so that you may tell [B] your son and grandson [b] how severely I dealt with the Egyptians and performed miraculous signs among them, and you will know that I am •Yahweh .”

3 So Moses and Aaron went in to Pharaoh and told him, “This is what Yahweh, the God of the Hebrews, says: How long will you refuse to humble yourself before Me? Let My people go, that they may worship Me. [c] 4 But if you refuse to let My people go, then tomorrow I will bring locusts [d] into your territory. 5 They will cover the surface of the land so that no one will be able to see the land. They will eat the remainder left [e] to you that escaped the hail; they will eat every tree you have growing in the fields. 6 They will fill your houses, all your officials’ houses, and the houses of all the Egyptians — something your fathers and ancestors never saw since the time they occupied the land until today.” Then he turned and left Pharaoh’s presence.

7 Pharaoh’s officials asked him, “How long must this man be a snare [f] to us? Let the men go, so that they may worship Yahweh their God. Don’t you realize yet that Egypt is devastated? ”

8 So Moses and Aaron were brought back to Pharaoh. “Go, worship Yahweh your God,” Pharaoh said. “But exactly who will be going? ”

9 Moses replied, “We will go with our young and our old; we will go with our sons and daughters and with our flocks and herds because we must hold Yahweh’s festival.” [g]

10 He said to them, “May Yahweh be with you if I ever let you and your families go! [h] Look out — you are planning evil. 11 No, only the men may go and worship Yahweh, for that is what you have been asking for.” And they were driven from Pharaoh’s presence.

12 The LORD then said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand over the land of Egypt and the locusts will come up over it and eat every plant in the land, everything that the hail left.” 13 So Moses stretched out his staff over the land of Egypt, and the LORD sent an east wind over the land all that day and through the night. By morning the east wind had brought in the locusts. 14 The locusts went up over the entire land of Egypt and settled on the whole territory of Egypt. Never before had there been such a large number of locusts, and there never will be again. [i] 15 They covered the surface of the whole land so that the land was black, and they consumed all the plants on the ground and all the fruit on the trees that the hail had left. Nothing green was left on the trees or the plants in the field throughout the land of Egypt. [j]

16 Pharaoh urgently sent for Moses and Aaron and said, “I have sinned against Yahweh your God and against you. 17 Please forgive my sin once more and make an appeal to Yahweh your God, so that He will take this death away from me.” 18 Moses left Pharaoh’s presence and appealed to the Lord. [k] 19 Then the Lord changed the wind to a strong west [C] wind, and it carried off the locusts and blew them into the •Red Sea. [l] Not a single locust was left in all the territory of Egypt. 20 But the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, [m] and he did not let the Israelites go.

The Ninth Plague: Darkness 21 Then the Lord said to Moses, “Stretch out your hand toward heaven, and there will be darkness over the land of Egypt, a darkness that can be felt.” 22 So Moses stretched out his hand toward heaven, and there was thick darkness throughout the land of Egypt for three days. 23 One person could not see another, and for three days they did not move from where they were. Yet all the Israelites had light where they lived. [n]

24 Pharaoh summoned Moses and said, “Go, worship Yahweh. Even your families may go with you; only your flocks and herds must stay behind.” 25 Moses responded, “You must also let us have [D] sacrifices and •burnt offerings to prepare for Yahweh our God. 26 Even our livestock must go with us; not a hoof will be left behind because we will take some of them to worship Yahweh our God. We will not know what we will use to worship Yahweh until we get there.”
27 But the Lord hardened Pharaoh’s heart, [o] and he was unwilling to let them go. 28 Pharaoh said to him, “Leave me! Make sure you never see my face again, for on the day you see my face, you will die.”
29 “As you have said,” Moses replied, “I will never see your face again.” [p]

The Tenth Plague: Death of the Firstborn

11 The LORD said [A] to Moses, “I will bring one more plague on Pharaoh and on Egypt. After that, he will let you go from here. When he lets you go, [B] he will drive you out of here. 2 Now announce to the people that both men and women should ask their neighbors for silver and gold jewelry.” 3 The LORD gave [C] the people favor in the sight of the Egyptians. And the man Moses was highly regarded [D] in the land of Egypt by [E] Pharaoh’s officials and the people. [a]

4 So Moses said, “This is what •Yahweh says: ‘About midnight I will go throughout Egypt, 5 and every firstborn male in the land of Egypt will die, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sits on his throne to the firstborn of the servant girl who is behind the millstones, as well as every firstborn of the livestock. 6 Then there will be a great cry of anguish through all the land of Egypt such as never was before, or ever will be again. 7 But against all the Israelites, whether man or beast, not even a dog will snarl, [F] so that you may know that Yahweh makes a distinction between Egypt and Israel. 8 All these officials of yours will come down to me and bow before me, saying: Leave, you and all the people who follow you. [G] After that, I will leave.’ ” And he left Pharaoh’s presence in fierce anger. [b]

9 The LORD said to Moses, “Pharaoh will not listen [c] to you, so that My wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.” 10 Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh, but the LORD hardened Pharaoh’s heart, [d] and he would not let the Israelites go out of his land.

Instructions for the Passover

12 The Lord said to Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt: 2 “This month is to be the beginning of months for you; it is the first month of your year. [a] 3 Tell the whole community of Israel that on the tenth day of this month they must each select an animal of the flock according to their fathers’ households, one animal per household. 4 If the household is too small for a whole animal, that person and the neighbor nearest his house are to select one based on the combined number of people; you should apportion the animal according to what each person [A] will eat. 5 You must have an unblemished [b] animal, a year-old male; you may take it from either the sheep or the goats. 6 You are to keep it until the fourteenth day of this month; then the whole assembly of the community of Israel will slaughter the animals at twilight. [c] 7 They must take some of the blood and put it on the two doorposts and the lintel of the houses where they eat them. 8 They are to eat the meat that night; they should eat it, roasted over the fire along with unleavened bread and bitter herbs. [d] 9 Do not eat any of it raw or cooked in boiling [B] water, but only roasted [e] over fire — its head as well as its legs and inner organs. 10 Do not let any of it remain until morning; [f] you must burn up any part of it that does remain before morning. 11 Here is how you must eat it: you must be dressed for travel, [C] your sandals on your feet, and your staff in your hand. You are to eat it in a hurry; it is the Lord’s •Passover . [g]

12 “I will pass through [h] the land of Egypt on that night and strike every firstborn male in the land of Egypt, both man and beast. I am •Yahweh ; I will execute judgments against all the gods of Egypt. [i] 13 The blood on the houses where you are staying will be a distinguishing mark for you; when I see the blood, I will pass over you. No plague will be among you to destroy you when I strike the land of Egypt.

14 “This day is to be a memorial for you, and you must celebrate it as a festival to the Lord. You are to celebrate it throughout your generations as a permanent statute. [j] 15 You must eat unleavened bread for seven days. On the first day you must remove yeast [k] from your houses. Whoever eats what is leavened from the first day through the seventh day must be cut off [l] from Israel. 16 You are to hold a sacred assembly [m] on the first day and another sacred assembly on the seventh day. No work may be done on those days except for preparing what people need to eat — you may do only that.

17 “You are to observe the Festival of •Unleavened Bread because on this very day I brought your divisions out of the land of Egypt. [n] You must observe this day throughout your generations as a permanent statute. 18 You are to eat unleavened bread in the first month, [o] from the evening of the fourteenth day of the month until the evening of the twenty-first day. 19 Yeast must not be found in your houses for seven days. If anyone eats something leavened, that person, whether a foreign resident or native of the land, must be cut off from the community of Israel. 20 Do not eat anything leavened; eat unleavened bread in all your homes." [D]

21 Then Moses summoned all the elders of Israel and said to them, "Go, select an animal from the flock according to your families, and slaughter the Passover animal. [p] 22 Take a cluster of hyssop, dip it in the blood [q] that is in the basin, and brush the lintel and the two doorposts with some of the blood in the basin. None of you may go out the door of his house until morning. 23 When the LORD passes through to strike Egypt and sees the blood on the lintel and the two doorposts, He will pass over the door and not let the destroyer enter your houses to strike you. [r]

24 "Keep this command permanently as a statute for you and your descendants. 25 When you enter the land that the LORD will give you as He promised, you are to observe this ritual. 26 When your children [s] ask you, 'What does this ritual mean to you? ' 27 you are to reply, 'It is the Passover sacrifice [t] to the LORD, for He passed over the houses of the Israelites in Egypt when He struck the Egyptians and spared our homes.' " So the people bowed down and worshiped. 28 Then the Israelites went and did this; they did just as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron.

The Exodus

29 Now at midnight the LORD struck every firstborn male in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh who sat on his throne to the firstborn of the prisoner who was in the dungeon, and every firstborn of the livestock. [u] 30 During the night Pharaoh got up, he along with all his officials and all the Egyptians, and there was a loud wailing [v] throughout Egypt because there wasn't a house without someone dead. 31 He summoned Moses and Aaron during the night and said, "Get up, leave my people, both you and the Israelites, and go, worship Yahweh as you have asked. 32 Take even your flocks and your herds as you asked and leave, and also bless me."

33 Now the Egyptians pressured the people in order to send them quickly out of the country, for they said, "We're all going to die! " [w] 34 So the people took their dough before it was leavened, with their kneading bowls wrapped up in their clothes on their shoulders.

35 The Israelites acted on Moses' word and asked the Egyptians for silver and gold jewelry and for clothing. [x] 36 And the LORD gave the people such favor in the Egyptians' sight that they gave them what they requested. In this way they plundered the Egyptians.

37 The Israelites traveled from Rameses to Succoth, [y] about 600,000 [z] soldiers on foot, besides their families. 38 An ethnically diverse crowd also went up with them, along with a huge number of livestock, both flocks and herds. 39 The people baked the dough they had brought out of Egypt into unleavened loaves, since it had no yeast; for when they had been driven [a] out of Egypt they could not delay and had not prepared any provisions for themselves.

40 The time that the Israelites lived in Egypt [b] was 430 years. [c] 41 At the end of 430 years, on that same day, all the LORD's divisions went out from the land of Egypt. 42 It was a night of vigil in honor of the LORD, because He would bring them out of the land of Egypt. This same night is in honor of the LORD, a night vigil for all the Israelites throughout their generations. [d]

Passover Instruction

43 The LORD said to Moses and Aaron, “This is the statute of the Passover: no foreigner may eat it. 44 But any slave a man has purchased may eat it, after you have circumcised him. 45 A temporary resident or hired hand may not eat the Passover. [e] 46 It is to be eaten in one house. You may not take any of the meat outside the house, and you may not break any of its bones. [f] 47 The whole community of Israel must celebrate [E] it. 48 If a foreigner resides with you and wants to celebrate the LORD’s Passover, every male in his household must be circumcised, and then he may participate; [F] he will become like a native of the land. But no uncircumcised person may eat it. 49 The same law will apply to both the native and the foreigner [g] who resides among you.”

50 Then all the Israelites did this; they did just as the LORD had commanded Moses and Aaron. 51 On that same day the LORD brought the Israelites out of the land of Egypt according to their divisions. [h]

13 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Consecrate every firstborn male [a] to Me, the firstborn from every womb among the Israelites, both man and domestic animal; it is Mine.”
3 Then Moses said to the people, “Remember this day when you came out of Egypt, out of the place of slavery, for the LORD brought you out of here by the strength of His hand. Nothing leavened may be eaten. [b] 4 Today, in the month of Abib, [c, d] you are leaving. 5 When the LORD brings you into the land of the Canaanites, Hittites, Amorites, Hivites, and Jebusites, [e] which He swore to your fathers that He would give you, a land flowing with milk and honey, [f] you must carry out this ritual in this month. [g] 6 For seven days you must eat unleavened bread, and on the seventh day there is to be a festival to the LORD. 7 Unleavened bread is to be eaten for those seven days. Nothing leavened may be found among you, and no yeast may be found among you in all your territory. 8 On that day explain to your son, ‘This is because of what the LORD did for me when I came out of Egypt.’ [h] 9 Let it serve as a sign for you on your hand and as a reminder on your forehead, [A, i] so that the LORD’s instruction may be in your mouth; for the LORD brought you out of Egypt with a strong hand. 10 Keep this statute at its appointed time from year to year.
11 “When the LORD brings you into the land of the Canaanites, as He swore to you and your fathers, and gives it to you, 12 you are to present to the LORD every firstborn male of the womb. All firstborn offspring of the livestock you own that are males will be the LORD’s. 13 You must redeem every firstborn of a donkey with a flock animal, but if you do not redeem it, break its neck. However, you must redeem every firstborn among your sons. [j] 14 “In the future, when your son [k] asks you, ‘What does this mean? ’ say to him, ‘By the strength of His hand the LORD brought us out of Egypt, out of the place of slavery. 15 When Pharaoh stubbornly refused to let us go, the LORD killed every firstborn male in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of man to the firstborn of livestock. That is why I sacrifice to the LORD all the firstborn of the womb that are males, but I redeem all the firstborn of my sons.’ 16 So let it be a sign on your hand and a symbol [B] on your forehead, for the LORD brought us out of Egypt by the strength of His hand.” [l]

The Route of the Exodus 17 When Pharaoh let the people go, God did not lead them along the road to the land of the Philistines, even though it was nearby; for God said, “The people will change their minds and return to Egypt if they face war.” [m] 18 So He led the people around toward the •Red Sea along the road of the wilderness. And the Israelites left the land of Egypt in battle formation. [n]

19 Moses took the bones of Joseph [o] with him, because Joseph had made the Israelites swear a solemn oath, saying, “God will certainly come to your aid;
then you must take my bones with you from this place.”

20 They set out from Succoth and camped at Etham on the edge of the wilderness. 21 The LORD went ahead of them in a pillar of cloud [p] to lead them on their way during the day and in a pillar of fire to give them light at night, so that they could travel day or night. 22 The pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night never left its place in front of the people.

14 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Tell the Israelites to turn back and camp in front of Pi-hahiroth, between Migdol and the sea; you must camp in front of Baal-zephon, facing it by the sea. [a] 3 Pharaoh will say of the Israelites: They are wandering around the land in confusion; the wilderness has boxed them in. 4 I will harden Pharaoh’s heart so that he will pursue them. Then I will receive glory by means of Pharaoh and all his army, and the Egyptians will know that I am •Yahweh .” So the Israelites did this. [b]

The Egyptian Pursuit

5 When the king of Egypt was told that the people had fled, Pharaoh and his officials changed their minds about the people and said: “What have we done?
We have released Israel from serving us.” 6 So he got his chariot ready and took his troops [A] with him; 7 he took 600 of the best chariots and all the rest of the chariots of Egypt, with officers in each one. 8 The LORD hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued the Israelites, who were going out triumphantly. [B, c] 9 The Egyptians — all Pharaoh’s horses and chariots, his horsemen, [C] and his army — chased [d] after them and caught up with them as they camped by the sea beside Pi-hahiroth, in front of Baal-zephon.

10 As Pharaoh approached, the Israelites looked up and saw the Egyptians coming after them. Then the Israelites were terrified and cried out [e] to the LORD for help. 11 They said to Moses: “Is it because there are no graves in Egypt that you took us to die in the wilderness? What have you done to us by bringing us out of Egypt? 12 Isn’t this what we told you in Egypt: Leave us alone so that we may serve the Egyptians? It would have been better for us to serve the Egyptians than to die in the wilderness.” [f]

13 But Moses said to the people, “Don’t be afraid. Stand firm and see [g] the LORD’s salvation He will provide for you today; for the Egyptians you see today, you will never see again. 14 The LORD will fight for you; you must be quiet.” [h]

Escape through the Red Sea 15 The LORD said to Moses, “Why are you crying out to Me? Tell the Israelites to break camp. 16 As for you, lift up your staff, stretch out your hand over the sea, and divide it so that the Israelites can go through the sea on dry ground. [i] 17 I am going to harden the hearts of the Egyptians so that they will go in after them, and I will receive glory by means of Pharaoh, all his army, and his chariots and horsemen. 18 The Egyptians will know that I am Yahweh when I receive glory through Pharaoh, his chariots, and his horsemen.”

19 Then the Angel of God, [j] who was going in front of the Israelite forces, moved and went behind them. The pillar of cloud moved from in front of them and stood behind them. [k] 20 It came between the Egyptian and Israelite forces.
The cloud was there in the darkness, yet it lit up the night. [l] So neither group came near the other all night long.

21 Then Moses stretched out his hand over the sea. The LORD drove the sea back with a powerful east wind all that night and turned the sea into dry land. So the waters were divided, [m] 22 and the Israelites went through the sea on dry ground, with the waters like a wall to them on their right and their left. [n]

23 The Egyptians set out in pursuit — all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen — and went into the sea after them. 24 Then during the morning watch, the LORD looked down on the Egyptian forces from the pillar of fire [o] and cloud, and threw them into confusion. 25 He caused their chariot wheels to swerve [p, D] and made them drive [E] with difficulty. "Let's get away from Israel," the Egyptians said, "because Yahweh is fighting for them against Egypt! "

26 Then the LORD said to Moses, "Stretch out your hand over the sea so that the waters may come back on the Egyptians, on their chariots and horsemen." 27 So Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and at daybreak the sea returned to its normal depth. While the Egyptians were trying to escape from it, the LORD threw them into the sea. [q] 28 The waters came back and covered the chariots [r] and horsemen, the entire army of Pharaoh, that had gone after them into the sea.
None of them survived.

29 But the Israelites had walked through the sea on dry ground, with the waters like a wall to them on their right and their left. 30 That day the LORD saved Israel from the power of the Egyptians, and Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the seashore. 31 When Israel saw the great power that the LORD used against the Egyptians, the people •feared the LORD and believed [s] in Him and in His servant
Moses.

Israel's Song

15 Then Moses and the Israelites sang this song to the LORD. They said:
I will sing to the LORD,
for He is highly exalted;
He has thrown the horse
and its rider into the sea.
2 The LORD is my strength and my song; [A]
He has become my salvation. [a]
This is my God, and I will praise Him, my father's God, and I will exalt Him. [b] 3 The LORD is a warrior; [c]
•Yahweh is His name. [d]

4 He threw Pharaoh's chariots and his army into the sea;
the elite of his officers were drowned in the •Red Sea. [e] 5 The floods covered them;
they sank to the depths like a stone. [f]
6 LORD, Your right hand is glorious in power.
LORD, Your right hand shattered the enemy. [g] 7 You overthrew Your adversaries
by Your great majesty.
You unleashed Your burning wrath;
it consumed them like stubble. [h]
8 The waters heaped up [i] at the blast of Your nostrils;
the currents stood firm like a dam.
The watery depths congealed in the heart of the sea.
9 The enemy said:
"I will pursue, I will overtake,
I will divide the spoil. [j]
My desire will be gratified at their expense.
I will draw my sword;
my hand will destroy [B] them."
10 But You blew with Your breath, and the sea covered them.
They sank like lead in the mighty waters.

11 LORD, who is like You among the gods?
Who is like You, glorious in holiness, [k] revered with praises, performing wonders? [l] 12 You stretched out Your right hand, and the earth swallowed them.
13 You will lead the people
You have redeemed
with Your faithful love;
You will guide them to Your holy dwelling with Your strength. [m]

14 When the peoples hear, they will shudder;
anguish will seize the inhabitants of Philistia.
15 Then the chiefs of Edom will be terrified; [n] trembling will seize the leaders of Moab;
the inhabitants of Canaan will panic;
16 and terror [o] and dread will fall on them.
They will be as still [C] as a stone because of Your powerful arm until Your people pass by, LORD, until the people whom You purchased [D] pass by. [p]

17 You will bring them in and plant them on the mountain of Your possession; [q]
LORD, You have prepared the place for Your dwelling;
Lord, [r] Your hands have established the sanctuary.
18 The LORD will reign [s] forever and ever!

19 When Pharaoh's horses with his chariots and horsemen went into the sea, the LORD brought the waters of the sea back over them. But the Israelites walked through the sea on dry ground. 20 Then Miriam the prophetess, [t] Aaron's sister, took a tambourine in her hand, and all the women followed her with their tambourines and danced. [u] 21 Miriam sang to them:

Sing to the LORD,
for He is highly exalted;
He has thrown the horse
and its rider into the sea.

Water Provided

22 Then Moses led Israel on from the Red Sea, and they went out to the Wilderness of Shur. They journeyed for three days in the wilderness without finding water. 23 They came to Marah, but they could not drink the water at Marah because it was bitter — that is why it was named Marah. v 24 The people grumbled to Moses, “What are we going to drink? ” w 25 So he cried out to the LORD, and the LORD showed him a tree. When he threw it into the water, the water became drinkable.

He made a statute and ordinance for them at Marah and He tested them there.
x 26 He said, “If you will carefully obey the LORD your God, do what is right in His eyes, pay attention to His commands, and keep all His statutes, I will not inflict any illnesses on you that I inflicted on the Egyptians. For I am Yahweh who heals you.” y

27 Then they came to Elim, where there were 12 springs of water and 70 date palms, and they camped there by the waters.

Manna and Quail Provided

16 The entire Israelite community departed from Elim and came to the Wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month after they had left the land of Egypt. [a] 2 The entire Israelite community grumbled [b] against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness. 3 The Israelites said to them, "If only we had died by the LORD*'s hand in the land of* Egypt, when we sat by pots of meat and ate all the bread we wanted. Instead, you brought us into this wilderness to make this whole assembly die of hunger!" [c]

4 Then the LORD said to Moses, "I am going to rain bread from heaven for you. The people are to go out each day and gather enough for that day. This way
I will test them to see whether or not they will follow My instructions. [d] 5 On the sixth day, when they prepare what they bring in, it will be twice as much as they gather on other days." [A]

6 So Moses and Aaron said to all the Israelites: "This evening you will know that it was the LORD who brought you out of the land of Egypt; [e] 7 in the morning you will see the LORD's glory because He has heard your complaints about Him. For who are we that you complain about us?" [f] 8 Moses continued,
"The LORD will give you meat to eat this evening and more than enough bread in the morning, for He has heard the complaints that you are raising against Him.
Who are we? Your complaints are not against us but against the LORD." [g]

9 Then Moses told Aaron, "Say to the entire Israelite community, 'Come before the LORD, for He has heard your complaints.'" 10 As Aaron was speaking to the entire Israelite community, they turned toward the wilderness, and there in a cloud the LORD's glory appeared. [h]

11 The LORD spoke to Moses, 12 "I have heard the complaints of the Israelites.
Tell them: At twilight you will eat meat, and in the morning you will eat bread until you are full. Then you will know that I am •Yahweh your God."

13 So at evening quail [i] came and covered the camp. In the morning there was a layer of dew all around the camp. 14 When the layer of dew evaporated, there were fine flakes on the desert surface, as fine as frost on the ground. 15 When the Israelites saw it, they asked one another, "What is it?" because they didn't know what it was.

Moses told them, "It is the bread the LORD has given you to eat. [j] 16 This is what the LORD has commanded: 'Gather as much of it as each person needs to eat. You may take two quarts [B] per individual, according to the number of people each of you has in his tent.'"

17 So the Israelites did this. Some gathered a lot, some a little. 18 When they measured it by quarts, [C] the person who gathered a lot had no surplus, and the person who gathered a little had no shortage. Each gathered as much as he needed to eat. [k] 19 Moses said to them, “No one is to let any of it remain until morning.” 20 But they didn’t listen to Moses; some people left part of it until morning, and it bred worms and smelled. Therefore Moses was angry with them.
21 They gathered it every morning. Each gathered as much as he needed to eat, but when the sun grew hot, it melted. 22 On the sixth day they gathered twice as much food, four quarts [D] apiece, and all the leaders of the community came and reported this to Moses. 23 He told them, “This is what the Lord has said: ‘Tomorrow is a day of complete rest, a holy Sabbath [l] to the Lord. Bake what you want to bake, and boil what you want to boil, and set aside everything left over to be kept until morning.’ ” 24 So they set it aside until morning as Moses commanded, and it didn’t smell or have any maggots in it. 25 “Eat it today,” Moses said, “because today is a Sabbath to the Lord. Today you won’t find any in the field. 26 For six days you may gather it, but on the seventh day, the Sabbath, there will be none.” 27 Yet on the seventh day some of the people went out to gather, but they did not find any. 28 Then the Lord said to Moses, “How long will you [m] refuse to keep My commands [n] and instructions? 29 Understand that the Lord has given you the Sabbath; therefore on the sixth day He will give you two days’ worth of bread. Each of you stay where you are; no one is to leave his place on the seventh day.” 30 So the people rested on the seventh day.
31 The house of Israel named the substance manna. [o, p] It resembled coriander seed, was white, and tasted like wafers made with honey. 32 Moses said, “This is what the Lord has commanded: ‘Two quarts [E] of it are to be preserved throughout your generations, so that they may see the bread I fed you in the wilderness when I brought you out of the land of Egypt.’ ” 33 Moses told Aaron, “Take a container and put two quarts [F] of manna in it.
Then place it before the Lord to be preserved throughout your generations.” 34 As the Lord commanded Moses, Aaron placed it before the •testimony [q] to be preserved.
35 The Israelites ate manna for 40 years, until they came to an inhabited land.
They ate manna until they reached the border of the land of Canaan. [r] 36 (Two quarts are [G] a tenth of an ephah.)

Water from the Rock

17 The entire Israelite community left the Wilderness of Sin, moving from one place to the next according to the LORD's command. They camped at Rephidim, but there was no water for the people to drink. [a] 2 So the people complained to Moses, "Give us water to drink."

"Why are you complaining to me? " Moses replied to them. "Why are you testing [b] the LORD? "

3 But the people thirsted there for water, and grumbled against Moses. They said, "Why did you ever bring us out of Egypt to kill us and our children and our livestock with thirst? " [c]

4 Then Moses cried out to the LORD, "What should I do with these people? In a little while they will stone me! " [d]

5 The LORD answered Moses, "Go on ahead of the people and take some of the elders of Israel with you. Take the staff you struck the Nile with in your hand and go. 6 I am going to stand there in front of you on the rock at Horeb; when you hit the rock, water [e] will come out of it and the people will drink." Moses did this in the sight of the elders of Israel. 7 He named the place Massah [f] and Meribah [g, h] because the Israelites complained, and because they tested the LORD, saying, "Is the LORD among us or not? "

The Amalekites Attack 8 At Rephidim, Amalek [i, j] came and fought against Israel. 9 Moses said to Joshua, [k] "Select some men for us and go fight against Amalek. Tomorrow I will stand on the hilltop with God's staff in my hand."

10 Joshua did as Moses had told him, and fought against Amalek, while Moses, Aaron, and Hur went up to the top of the hill. 11 While Moses held up his hand, [l] Israel prevailed, but whenever he put his hand [m] down, Amalek prevailed. [n] 12 When Moses' hands grew heavy, they took a stone and put it under him, and he sat down on it. Then Aaron and Hur supported his hands, one on one side and one on the other so that his hands remained steady until the sun went down. 13 So Joshua defeated Amalek and his army [A] with the sword.

14 The LORD then said to Moses, "Write this down on a scroll as a reminder and recite it to Joshua: I will completely blot out the memory of Amalek under heaven." [o]

15 And Moses built an altar [p] and named it, "The LORD Is My Banner." [B] 16
He said, "Indeed, my hand is lifted up toward [C] the LORD's throne. The LORD will be at war with Amalek from generation to generation."

Jethro’s Visit

18 Moses' father-in-law Jethro, the priest of Midian, [a] heard about everything that God had done for Moses and His people Israel, and how the LORD had brought Israel out of Egypt.
2 Now Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, had taken in Zipporah, [b] Moses' wife, after he had sent her back, 3 along with her two sons, one of whom was named Gershom (because Moses had said, "I have been a foreigner in a foreign land") [c, d] 4 and the other Eliezer (because he had said, "The God of my father was my helper and delivered me from Pharaoh's sword"). [e] 5 Moses' father-in-law Jethro, along with Moses' wife and sons, came to him in the wilderness where he was camped at the mountain of God. [f] 6 He sent word to Moses, "I, your father-in-law Jethro, am coming to you with your wife and her two sons."
7 So Moses went out to meet his father-in-law, bowed down, [g] and then kissed him. They asked each other how they had been [A] and went into the tent. 8 Moses recounted to his father-in-law all that the LORD had done to Pharaoh and the Egyptians for Israel's sake, all the hardships that confronted them on the way, and how the LORD delivered them. [h] 9 Jethro rejoiced over all the good things the LORD had done for Israel when He rescued them from the power of the Egyptians. 10 "Praise the LORD," [i] Jethro exclaimed, "who rescued you from Pharaoh and the power of the Egyptians and snatched the people from the power of the Egyptians. 11 Now I know that •Yahweh is greater than all gods, because He did wonders when the Egyptians acted arrogantly against Israel." [B, j] 12 Then Jethro, Moses' father-in-law, brought a •burnt offering and sacrifices to God, and Aaron came with all the elders of Israel to eat a meal with Moses' father-in-law in God's presence.
13 The next day Moses sat down to judge the people, and they stood around Moses from morning until evening. 14 When Moses' father-in-law saw everything he was doing for them he asked, "What is this thing you're doing for the people? Why are you alone sitting as judge, while all the people stand around you from morning until evening? " 15 Moses replied to his father-in-law, "Because the people come to me to inquire of God. 16 Whenever they have a dispute, it comes to me, and I make a decision between one man and another. I teach them God's statutes and laws." [k] 17 "What you're doing is not good," Moses' father-in-law said to him. 18 "You will certainly wear out both yourself and these people who are with you, because the task is too heavy for you. You can't do it alone. [l] 19 Now listen to me; I will give you some advice, and God be with you. You be the one to represent the people before God and bring their cases to Him. 20 Instruct them about the statutes and laws, and teach them the way to live and what they must do. m 21 But you should select from all the people able men, God-fearing, trustworthy, and hating bribes. n Place them over the people as commanders of thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens. o 22 They should judge the people at all times. Then they can bring you every important case but judge every minor case themselves. In this way you will lighten your load, C and they will bear it with you. p 23 If you do this, and God so directs you, you will be able to endure, and also all these people will be able to go home satisfied." D

24 Moses listened to his father-in-law and did everything he said. 25 So Moses chose able men from all Israel and made them leaders over the people as commanders of thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens. 26 They judged the people at all times; they would bring the hard cases to Moses, but they would judge every minor case themselves.

27 Then Moses said good-bye to his father-in-law, and he journeyed to his own land. q

Israel at Sinai

19 In the third month, on the same day of the month that the Israelites had left the land of Egypt, they entered the Wilderness of Sinai. 2 After they departed from Rephidim, they entered the Wilderness of Sinai and camped in the wilderness, and Israel camped there in front of the mountain. [a] 3 Moses went up the mountain to God, and the LORD called [b] to him from the mountain: "This is what you must say to the house of Jacob, and explain to the Israelites: 4 'You have seen what I did to the Egyptians and how I carried you on eagles' wings and brought you to Me. [c] 5 Now if you will listen to Me and carefully keep My covenant, [d] you will be My own possession [e] out of all the peoples, although all the earth is Mine, 6 and you will be My kingdom of priests and My holy nation.' [f] These are the words that you are to say to the Israelites." 7 After Moses came back, he summoned the elders of the people and set before them all these words that the LORD had commanded him. 8 Then all the people responded together, "We will do all that the LORD has spoken." [g] So Moses brought the people's words back to the LORD.
9 The LORD said to Moses, "I am going to come to you in a dense cloud, [h] so that the people will hear when I speak [i] with you and will always believe you."
Then Moses reported the people's words to the LORD. 10 And the LORD told Moses, "Go to the people and consecrate them today and tomorrow. They must wash their clothes [j] 11 and be prepared by the third day, for on the third day the LORD will come down on Mount Sinai in the sight of all the people. [k] 12 Put boundaries for the people all around the mountain and say: Be careful that you don't go up on the mountain or touch its base. Anyone who touches the mountain will be put to death. [l] 13 No hand may touch him; instead he will be stoned or shot with arrows. No animal or man will live. When the ram's horn sounds a long blast, they may go up the mountain." 14 Then Moses came down from the mountain to the people and consecrated them, and they washed their clothes. 15 He said to the people, "Be prepared by the third day. Do not have sexual relations with women." 16 On the third day, when morning came, there was thunder and lightning, a thick cloud on the mountain, and a loud trumpet sound, so that all the people in the camp shuddered. 17 Then Moses brought the people out of the camp to meet God, and they stood at the foot of the mountain. 18 Mount Sinai was completely enveloped in smoke because the LORD came down on it in fire. [m] Its smoke went up like the smoke of a furnace, [n] and the whole mountain shook violently. [o] 19 As the sound of the trumpet grew louder and louder, Moses spoke and God answered him in the thunder. [p]

20 The LORD came down on Mount Sinai at the top of the mountain. Then the LORD summoned Moses to the top of the mountain, and he went up. 21 The LORD directed Moses, “Go down and warn the people not to break through to see the LORD; otherwise many of them will die. [q] 22 Even the priests who come near the LORD must purify themselves or the LORD will break out in anger against them.”
[r]

23 But Moses responded to the LORD, “The people cannot come up Mount Sinai, since You warned us: Put a boundary around the mountain and consider it holy.” 24 And the LORD replied to him, “Go down and come back with Aaron.
But the priests and the people must not break through to come up to the LORD, or He will break out in anger against them.” 25 So Moses went down to the people and told them.

The Ten Commandments

20 Then God spoke all these words:

2 I am the LORD your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the place of slavery. [a]
3 Do not have other gods besides Me. [b]
4 Do not make an idol [c] for yourself, whether in the shape of anything in the heavens above or on the earth below or in the waters under the earth. 5 You must not bow down to them or worship them; for I, the LORD your God, am a jealous God, [d] punishing the children for the fathers' sin, to the third and fourth generations [e] of those who hate Me, 6 but showing faithful love to a thousand generations of those who love Me and keep My commands. [f]
7 Do not misuse the name of the LORD your God, because the LORD will not leave anyone unpunished who misuses His name. [g]
8 Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy: [h] 9 You are to labor six days and do all your work, [i] 10 but the seventh day is a Sabbath to the LORD your God. You must not do any work — you, your son or daughter, your male or female slave, your livestock, or the foreigner who is within your gates. [j] 11 For the LORD made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and everything in them in six days; then He rested on the seventh day. Therefore the LORD blessed the Sabbath day and declared it holy.
12 Honor your father and your mother [k] so that you may have a long life in the land that the LORD your God is giving you.
13 Do not murder. [l]
14 Do not commit adultery. [m]
15 Do not steal. [n]
16 Do not give false testimony against your neighbor. [o]
17 Do not covet your neighbor's house. Do not covet your neighbor's wife, his male or female slave, his ox or donkey, or anything that belongs to your neighbor. [p]

The People's Reaction

18 All the people witnessed [A] the thunder and lightning, the sound of the trumpet, and the mountain surrounded by smoke. When the people saw it [q] they trembled and stood at a distance. [r] 19 "You speak to us, and we will listen," they said to Moses, "but don't let God speak to us, or we will die." [s]
20 Moses responded to the people, "Don't be afraid, for God has come to test

you, so that you will •fear Him and will not [B] sin.” [t] [21] And the people remained standing at a distance as Moses approached the thick darkness where God was. [u]

Moses Receives Additional Laws

22 Then the LORD told Moses, “This is what you are to say to the Israelites:
You have seen that I have spoken to you from heaven. v 23 You must not make gods of silver to rival Me; you must not make gods of gold for yourselves. C, w 24 “You must make an earthen altar for Me and sacrifice on it your •burnt offerings and •fellowship offerings, your sheep and goats, as well as your cattle.
I will come to you and bless you in every place where I cause My name to be remembered. x 25 If you make a stone altar for Me, you must not build it out of cut stones. If you use your chisel on it, you will defile it. y 26 You must not go up to My altar on steps, so that your nakedness is not exposed on it.

21 “These are the ordinances that you must set before them: Laws about Slaves

2 “When you buy a Hebrew slave, he is to serve for six years; then in the seventh he is to leave as a free man [A] without paying anything. [a] 3 If he arrives alone, he is to leave alone; if he arrives with [B] a wife, his wife is to leave with him. 4 If his master gives him a wife and she bears him sons or daughters, the wife and her children belong to her master, and the man must leave alone.

5 “But if the slave declares: ‘I love my master, my wife, and my children; I do not want to leave as a free man,’ [b] 6 his master is to bring him to the judges [C] and then bring him to the door or doorpost. His master must pierce his ear with an awl, and he will serve his master for life.

7 “When a man sells his daughter as a slave, [D] she is not to leave as the male slaves do. [c] 8 If she is displeasing to her master, who chose her for himself, then he must let her be redeemed. He has no right to sell her to foreigners because he has acted treacherously toward her. 9 Or if he chooses her for his son, he must deal with her according to the customary treatment of daughters. 10 If he takes an additional wife, he must not reduce the food, clothing, or marital rights of the first wife. [d] 11 And if he does not do these three things for her, she may leave free of charge, without any exchange of money. [e]

Laws about Personal Injury 12 “Whoever strikes a person so that he dies must be put to death. [f] 13 But if he didn’t intend any harm, [E] and yet God caused it to happen by his hand, I will appoint a place for you where he may flee. [g] 14 If a person schemes and willfully [F] acts against his neighbor to murder him, you must take him from My altar to be put to death. [h]

15 “Whoever strikes his father or his mother must be put to death.

16 “Whoever kidnaps a person must be put to death, whether he sells him or the person is found in his possession. [i]

17 “Whoever curses his father or his mother must be put to death. [j]

18 “When men quarrel and one strikes the other with a stone or his fist, and the injured man does not die but is confined to bed, 19 if he can later get up and walk around outside leaning on his staff, then the one who struck him will be exempt from punishment. Nevertheless, he must pay for his lost work time [G] and provide for his complete recovery.

20 “When a man strikes his male or female slave with a rod, and the slave dies under his abuse, [H] the owner must be punished. [I] 21 However, if the slave can stand up after a day or two, the owner should not be punished [J] because he is his

owner’s property. [K, k]

22 “When men get in a fight and hit a pregnant woman so that her children are born prematurely [l] but there is no injury, the one who hit her must be fined as the woman’s husband demands [m] from him, and he must pay according to judicial assessment. 23 If there is an injury, then you must give life for life, 24 eye for eye, tooth for tooth, [n] hand for hand, foot for foot, 25 burn for burn, bruise for bruise, wound for wound.

26 “When a man strikes the eye of his male or female slave and destroys it, he must let the slave go free in compensation for his eye. 27 If he knocks out the tooth of his male or female slave, he must let the slave go free in compensation for his tooth.

28 “When an ox [L] gores a man or a woman to death, the ox must be stoned, [o] and its meat may not be eaten, but the ox’s owner is innocent. 29 However, if the ox was in the habit of goring, and its owner has been warned yet does not restrain it, and it kills a man or a woman, the ox must be stoned, and its owner must also be put to death. 30 If instead a ransom [p] is demanded of him, he can pay a redemption price for his life in the full amount demanded from him. 31 If it gores a son or a daughter, he is to be dealt with according to this same law. 32 If the ox gores a male or female slave, he must give 30 •shekels [q] of silver [r] to the slave’s master, and the ox must be stoned.

33 “When a man uncovers a pit or digs a pit, and does not cover it, and an ox or a donkey falls into it, 34 the owner of the pit must give compensation; he must pay money to its owner, but the dead animal will become his.

35 “When a man’s ox injures his neighbor’s ox and it dies, they must sell the live ox and divide its proceeds; they must also divide the dead animal. 36 If, however, it is known that the ox was in the habit of goring, yet its owner has not restrained it, he must compensate fully, ox for ox; the dead animal will become his.

Chapter 22 a

Laws about Theft

1 “When a man steals an ox or a sheep and butchers it or sells it, he must repay [b] five cattle for the ox or four sheep for the sheep. 2 [c] If a thief is caught in the act of breaking in, and he is beaten to death, no one is •guilty of bloodshed. [d] 3 But if this happens after sunrise, [A] there is guilt of bloodshed. A thief must make full restitution. If he is unable, he is to be sold because of his theft. [e] 4 If what was stolen — whether ox, donkey, or sheep — is actually found alive in his possession, he must repay double.

Laws about Crop Protection 5 “When a man lets a field or vineyard be grazed in, and then allows his animals to go and graze in someone else’s field, he must repay [f] with the best of his own field or vineyard.

6 “When a fire gets out of control, spreads to thornbushes, and consumes stacks of cut grain, standing grain, or a field, the one who started the fire must make full restitution for what was burned.

Laws about Personal Property 7 “When a man gives his neighbor money or goods to keep, but they are stolen from that person’s house, the thief, if caught, must repay double. 8 If the thief is not caught, the owner of the house must present himself to the judges [B] to determine [g] whether or not he has taken his neighbor’s property. [h] 9 In any case of wrongdoing involving an ox, a donkey, a sheep, a garment, or anything else lost, and someone claims, ‘That’s mine,’ [C] the case between the two parties is to come before the judges. [D] The one the judges condemn [E] must repay double to his neighbor.

10 “When a man gives his neighbor a donkey, an ox, a sheep, or any other animal to care for, but it dies, is injured, or is stolen, while no one is watching, 11 there must be an oath before the LORD between the two of them to determine whether or not he has taken his neighbor’s property. Its owner must accept the oath, and the other man does not have to make restitution. 12 But if, in fact, the animal was stolen from his custody, he must make restitution to its owner. [i] 13 If it was actually torn apart by a wild animal, he is to bring it as evidence; he does not have to make restitution for the torn carcass.

14 “When a man borrows an animal from his neighbor, and it is injured or dies while its owner is not there with it, the man must make full restitution. 15 If its owner is there with it, the man does not have to make restitution. If it was rented, the loss is covered by [F] its rental price.

Laws about Seduction

16 “If a man seduces a virgin who is not engaged, and he has sexual relations with her, he must certainly pay the bridal price for her to be his wife. 17 If her father absolutely refuses to give her to him, he must pay an amount in silver equal to the bridal price for virgins. j

Capital Offenses

18 “You must not allow a sorceress [k] to live.

19 “Whoever has sexual intercourse with an animal [l] must be put to death.

20 “Whoever sacrifices to any gods, except the LORD alone, is to be •set apart for destruction. [m]

Laws Protecting the Vulnerable 21 “You must not exploit a foreign resident [n] or oppress him, since you were foreigners in the land of Egypt.

22 “You must not mistreat any widow or fatherless child. [o] 23 If you do mistreat them, they will no doubt cry to Me, and I will certainly hear their cry. [p] 24 My anger will burn, and I will kill you with the sword; then your wives will be widows and your children fatherless. [q]

25 “If you lend money to My people, to the poor person among you, you must not be like a moneylender to him; you must not charge him interest. [r]

26 “If you ever take your neighbor’s cloak as collateral, return it to him before sunset. 27 For it is his only covering; it is the clothing for his body. [G] What will he sleep in? And if he cries out to Me, I will listen because I am compassionate. [s]

Respect for God

28 “You must not blaspheme God [H] or curse a leader among your people. [t]

29 “You must not hold back offerings [u] from your harvest or your vats. Give Me the firstborn of your sons. 30 Do the same with your cattle and your flock.
Let them stay with their mothers for seven days, but on the eighth day you are to give them to Me. [v]

31 “Be My holy people. You must not eat the meat of a mauled animal [w] found in the field; throw it to the dogs.

Laws about Honesty and Justice

23 “You must not spread a false report. Do not join [A] the wicked to be a malicious witness. [a]

2 “You must not follow a crowd in wrongdoing. Do not testify in a lawsuit and go along with a crowd to pervert justice. [b] 3 Do not show favoritism to a poor person in his lawsuit.

4 “If you come across your enemy’s stray ox or donkey, you must return it to him.

5 “If you see the donkey of someone who hates you lying helpless under its load, and you want to refrain from helping it, you must help with it. [B, c]

6 “You must not deny justice to a poor person among you in his lawsuit. 7 Stay far away from a false accusation. Do not kill the innocent and the just, because I will not justify the •guilty . [d] 8 You must not take a bribe, [e] for a bribe blinds the clear-sighted and corrupts the words [C] of the righteous. 9 You must not oppress a foreign resident; [f] you yourselves know how it feels to be a foreigner because you were foreigners in the land of Egypt.

Sabbaths and Festivals

10 “Sow your land for six years and gather its produce. [g] 11 But during the seventh year you are to let it rest and leave it uncultivated, so that the poor among your people may eat from it and the wild animals may consume what they leave. Do the same with your vineyard and your olive grove.

12 “Do your work [h] for six days but rest on the seventh day so that your ox and your donkey may rest, and the son of your female slave as well as the foreign resident may be refreshed.

13 “Pay strict attention to everything I have said to you. You must not invoke the names of other gods; they must not be heard on your lips. [D, i]

14 “Celebrate a festival in My honor three times a year. [j] 15 Observe the Festival of •Unleavened Bread. As I commanded you, you are to eat unleavened bread for seven days at the appointed time in the month of Abib, [k] because you came out of Egypt in that month. No one is to appear before Me empty-handed. [l] 16 Also observe the Festival of Harvest [m] with the •firstfruits of your produce from what you sow in the field, and observe the Festival of Ingathering [n, o] at the end of the year, when you gather your produce [E] from the field. 17 Three times a year all your males are to appear before the Lord GOD.

18 “You must not offer the blood of My sacrifices with anything leavened.
The fat of My festival offering must not remain until morning. [p]

19 “Bring the best of the firstfruits of your land to the house of the LORD your God.

“You must not boil a young goat in its mother’s milk. [q]

Promises and Warnings

20 “I am going to send an angel [r] before you to protect you on the way and bring you to the place I have prepared. 21 Be attentive to him and listen to his voice. Do not defy [F] him, because he will not forgive your acts of rebellion, for My name is in him. [s] 22 But if you will carefully obey him and do everything I say, then I will be an enemy [t] to your enemies and a foe to your foes. 23 For My angel will go before you and bring you to the land of the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, Canaanites, Hivites, and Jebusites, and I will wipe them out. [u] 24 You must not bow down to their gods or worship them. Do not imitate their practices.
Instead, demolish them [v] and smash their sacred pillars to pieces. [w] 25 Worship the LORD your God, and He [x] will bless your bread and your water. I will remove illnesses from you. [y] 26 No woman will miscarry or be childless in your land. I will give you the full number of your days. [z]

27 “I will cause the people ahead of you to feel terror [G] and throw into confusion [a] all the nations you come to. I will make all your enemies turn their backs to you in retreat. 28 I will send the hornet [H, b] in front of you, and it will drive the Hivites, Canaanites, and Hittites away from you. 29 I will not drive them out ahead of you in a single year; otherwise, the land would become desolate, and wild animals would multiply against you. 30 I will drive them out little by little ahead of you until you have become numerous [I] and take possession of the land. 31 I will set your borders from the •Red Sea to the Mediterranean Sea, [J] and from the wilderness to the Euphrates River. [K] For I will place the inhabitants of the land under your control, and you will drive them out ahead of you. [c] 32 You must not make a covenant [d] with them or their gods.
33 They must not remain in your land, or else they will make you sin against Me.
If you worship their gods, it will be a snare for you.” [e]

The Covenant Ceremony

24 Then He said to Moses, “Go up to the LORD, you and Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and 70 of Israel’s elders, [a] and bow in worship at a distance.
2 Moses alone is to approach the LORD, but the others are not to approach, and the people are not to go up with him.”
3 Moses came and told the people all the commands of the LORD and all the ordinances. Then all the people responded with a single voice, “We will do everything that the LORD has commanded.” [b] 4 And Moses wrote [c] down all the words of the LORD. He rose early the next morning and set up an altar and 12 pillars for the 12 tribes of Israel at the base of the mountain. 5 Then he sent out young Israelite men, and they offered •burnt offerings and sacrificed bulls as •fellowship offerings to the LORD. 6 Moses took half the blood and set it in basins; the other half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar. 7 He then took the covenant scroll and read it aloud to the people. They responded, “We will do and obey everything that the LORD has commanded.” 8 Moses took the blood, sprinkled it on the people, and said, “This is the blood of the covenant that the LORD has made with you concerning all these words.” [d] 9 Then Moses went up with Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, and 70 of Israel’s elders, 10 and they saw [e] the God of Israel. Beneath His feet was something like a pavement made of sapphire [A] stone, as clear as the sky itself. [f] 11 God did not harm [B] the Israelite nobles; they saw [g] Him, and they ate and drank.
12 The LORD said to Moses, “Come up to Me on the mountain and stay there so that I may give you the stone tablets [h] with the law and commandments I have written for their instruction.” 13 So Moses arose with his assistant Joshua and went up the mountain of God. [i] 14 He told the elders, “Wait here for us until we return to you. Aaron and Hur are here with you. Whoever has a dispute should go to them.” 15 When Moses went up the mountain, the cloud [j] covered it. 16 The glory of the LORD settled on Mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it for six days. On the seventh day He called to Moses from the cloud. [k] 17 The appearance of the LORD’s glory to the Israelites was like a consuming fire [l] on the mountaintop. 18 Moses entered the cloud as he went up the mountain, and he remained on the mountain 40 days and 40 nights. [m]

Offerings to Build the Tabernacle

25 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Tell the Israelites to take an offering for Me.
You are to take My offering from everyone who is willing to give. a 3 This is the offering you are to receive from them: gold, silver, and bronze; 4 blue, purple, and scarlet yarn; fine linen and goat hair; 5 ram skins dyed red b and manatee skins; A acacia wood; 6 oil c for the light; spices for the anointing oil and for the fragrant incense; 7 and onyx B along with other gemstones for mounting on the •ephod and breastpiece. C, d

8 “They are to make a sanctuary e for Me so that I may dwell f among them. 9
You must make it according to all that I show you — the pattern g of the tabernacle as well as the pattern of all its furnishings.

The Ark

10 “They are to make an ark [h] of acacia wood, 45 inches long, 27 inches wide, and 27 inches high. D 11 Overlay it with pure gold; overlay it both inside and out. Also make a gold molding all around it. 12 Cast four gold rings for it and place them on its four feet, two rings on one side and two rings on the other side.
13 Make poles of acacia wood and overlay them with gold. 14 Insert the poles into the rings on the sides of the ark in order to carry the ark with them. 15 The poles are to remain in the rings of the ark; they must not be removed from it. 16
Put the tablets of the •testimony that I will give you into the ark. [i] 17 Make a •mercy seat [j] of pure gold, 45 inches long and 27 inches wide. E 18 Make two •cherubim of gold; make them of hammered work at the two ends of the mercy seat. 19 Make one cherub at one end and one cherub at the other end. At its two ends, make the cherubim of one piece with the mercy seat. 20 The cherubim are to have wings spread out above, covering [k] the mercy seat with their wings, and are to face one another. The faces of the cherubim should be toward the mercy seat. 21 Set the mercy seat on top of the ark and put the testimony that I will give you into the ark. [l] 22 I will meet with you there above the mercy seat, between the two cherubim [m] that are over the ark of the testimony; I will speak with you from there about all that I command you regarding the Israelites.

The Table

23 “You are to construct a table [n] of acacia wood, 36 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 27 inches high. [F] 24 Overlay it with pure gold and make a gold molding all around it. 25 Make a three-inch [G] frame all around it and make a gold molding for it all around its frame. 26 Make four gold rings for it, and attach the rings to the four corners at its four legs. 27 The rings should be next to the frame as holders for the poles to carry the table. 28 Make the poles of acacia
wood and overlay them with gold, and the table can be carried by them. 29 You are also to make its plates [o] and cups, as well as its pitchers and bowls for pouring •drink offerings. Make them out of pure gold. 30 Put the •bread of the Presence [p] on the table before Me at all times.

The Lampstand

31 “You [q] are to make a lampstand [r] out of pure, hammered gold. It is to be made of one piece: its base and shaft, its ornamental cups, and its calyxes [s] and petals. 32 Six branches are to extend from its sides, three branches of the lampstand from one side and three branches of the lampstand from the other side. 33 There are to be three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a calyx and petals, on the first branch, and three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a calyx and petals, on the next branch. It is to be this way for the six branches that extend from the lampstand. 34 There are to be four cups shaped like almond blossoms on the lampstand shaft along with its calyxes and petals. 35 For the six branches that extend from the lampstand, a calyx must be under the first pair of branches from it, a calyx under the second pair of branches from it, and a calyx under the third pair of branches from it. 36 Their calyxes and branches are to be of one piece. [H] All of it is to be a single hammered piece of pure gold.

37 “Make seven lamps [t] on it. Its lamps are to be set up so they illuminate the area in front of it. 38 Its snuffers and firepans must be of pure gold. 39 The lampstand [I] with all these utensils is to be made from 75 pounds [J] of pure gold.
40 Be careful to make them according to the pattern [u] you have been shown on the mountain.

The Tabernacle

26 “You [a] are to construct the tabernacle itself with 10 curtains. You must make them of finely spun linen, and blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, with a design of •cherubim worked into them. 2 The length of each curtain should be 42 feet, [A] and the width of each curtain six feet; [B] all the curtains are to have the same measurements. 3 Five of the curtains should be joined together, and the other five curtains joined together. 4 Make loops of blue yarn on the edge of the last curtain [C] in the first set, and do the same on the edge of the outermost curtain in the second set. 5 Make 50 loops on the one curtain and make 50 loops on the edge of the curtain in the second set, so that the loops line up together.
6 Also make 50 gold clasps and join the curtains together with the clasps, so that the tabernacle may be a single unit.

7 “You are to make curtains of goat hair for a tent over the tabernacle; make 11 of these curtains. 8 The length of each curtain should be 45 feet [D] and the width of each curtain six feet. "> [E] All 11 curtains are to have the same measurements. 9 Join five of the curtains by themselves, and the other six curtains by themselves. Then fold the sixth curtain double at the front of the tent.
10 Make 50 loops on the edge of the one curtain, the outermost in the first set, and make 50 loops on the edge of the corresponding curtain of the second set.
11 Make 50 bronze clasps; put the clasps through the loops and join the tent together so that it is a single unit. 12 As for the flap that is left over from the tent curtains, the leftover half curtain is to hang down over the back of the tabernacle.
13 The half yard [F] on one side and the half yard [G] on the other of what is left over along the length of the tent curtains should be hanging down over the sides of the tabernacle on either side to cover it. 14 Make a covering for the tent from ram skins dyed red [b] and a covering of manatee skins [H] on top of that.

15 “You are to make upright planks [I] of acacia wood [c] for the tabernacle.
16 The length of each plank is to be 15 feet, [J] and the width of each plank 27 inches. [K] 17 Each plank must be connected together with two tenons. Do the same for all the planks of the tabernacle. 18 Make the planks for the tabernacle as follows: 20 planks for the south side, 19 and make 40 silver bases under the 20 planks, two bases under the first plank for its two tenons, and two bases under the next plank for its two tenons; 20 20 planks for the second side of the tabernacle, the north side, 21 along with their 40 silver bases, two bases under the first plank and two bases under each plank; 22 and make six planks for the west side of the tabernacle. 23 Make two additional planks for the two back corners of the tabernacle. 24 They are to be paired at the bottom, and joined together [L] at the top in a single ring. So it should be for both of them; they will serve as the two corners. 25 There are to be eight planks with their silver bases: 16 bases; two bases under the first plank and two bases under each plank.

26 “You are to make five crossbars of acacia wood for the planks on one side of the tabernacle, 27 five crossbars for the planks on the other side of the tabernacle, and five crossbars for the planks of the back side of the tabernacle on the west. 28 The central crossbar is to run through the middle of the planks from one end to the other. 29 Then overlay the planks with gold, and make their rings of gold as the holders for the crossbars. Also overlay the crossbars with gold. 30 You are to set up the tabernacle according to the plan for it that you have been shown on the mountain. [d]

31 “You are to make a veil of blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and finely spun linen with a design of cherubim worked into it. [e] 32 Hang it on four gold-plated posts of acacia wood that have gold hooks and that stand on four silver bases. 33 Hang the veil under the clasps [f] and bring the ark of the •testimony there behind the veil, so the veil will make a separation for you between the holy place [g] and the most holy place. 34 Put the •mercy seat on the ark of the testimony in the most holy place. [h] 35 Place the table outside the veil and the lampstand on the south side of the tabernacle, opposite the table; put the table on the north side. [i]

36 “For the entrance to the tent you are to make a screen embroidered with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and finely spun linen. 37 Make five posts of acacia wood for the screen and overlay them with gold; their hooks are to be gold, and you are to cast five bronze bases for them.

The Altar of Burnt Offering

27 “You [a] are to construct the altar of acacia wood. The altar must be square, 7 1/2 feet long, and 7 1/2 feet wide; [A] it must be 4 1/2 feet high. [B] 2 Make horns for it on its four corners; the horns are to be of one piece. [C] Overlay it with bronze. [b] 3 Make its pots for removing ashes, and its shovels, basins, meat forks, and firepans; make all its utensils of bronze. 4 Construct a grate for it of bronze mesh, and make four bronze rings on the mesh at its four corners. 5 Set it below, under the altar’s ledge, [c] so that the mesh comes halfway up [D] the altar. 6 Then make poles for the altar, poles of acacia wood, and overlay them with bronze. 7 The poles are to be inserted into the rings so that the poles are on two sides of the altar when it is carried. 8 Construct the altar with boards so that it is hollow. They are to make it just as it was shown to you on the mountain. [d]

The Courtyard

9 “You [e] are to make the courtyard for the tabernacle. Make the hangings on the south of the courtyard out of finely spun linen, 150 feet [E] long on that side.
10 There are to be 20 posts and 20 bronze bases. The hooks and bands [F] of the posts must be silver. 11 Then make the hangings on the north side 150 feet [G] long. There are to be 20 posts and 20 bronze bases. The hooks and bands [H] of the posts must be silver. 12 Make the hangings of the courtyard on the west side 75 feet [I] long, including their 10 posts and 10 bases. 13 Make the hangings of the courtyard on the east side toward the sunrise 75 feet. [J] 14 Make the hangings on one side of the gate 22 1/2 feet, [K] including their three posts and their three bases. 15 And make the hangings on the other side 22 1/2 feet, [L] including their three posts and their three bases. 16 The gate of the courtyard is to have a thirty-foot [M] screen [f] embroidered with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and finely spun linen. It is to have four posts including their four bases.

17 “All the posts around the courtyard are to be banded with silver and have silver hooks and bronze bases. 18 The length of the courtyard is to be 150 feet, the width 75 feet at each end, and the height 7 1/2 feet, [N] all of it made of finely spun linen. The bases of the posts must be bronze. 19 All the tools of the tabernacle for every use and all its tent pegs as well as all the tent pegs of the courtyard are to be made of bronze.

The Lampstand Oil

20 “You are to command the Israelites to bring you pure oil from crushed olives for the light, in order to keep the lamp burning continually. 21 In the tent of meeting outside the veil that is in front of the •testimony , [g] Aaron and his sons are to tend the lamp [h] from evening until morning before the LORD. This is to be a permanent statute [i] for the Israelites throughout their generations.

The Priestly Garments

28 “Have your brother Aaron, with his sons, come to you from the Israelites to serve Me as priest — Aaron, his sons Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. [a] 2 Make holy garments [b] for your brother Aaron, for glory and beauty.
3 You are to instruct all the skilled craftsmen, [A,] [c] whom I have filled with a spirit of wisdom, to make Aaron’s garments for consecrating him to serve Me as priest. 4 These are the garments that they must make: a breastpiece, an •ephod , a robe, a specially woven tunic, [B] a turban, and a sash. They are to make holy garments for your brother Aaron and his sons so that they may serve Me as priests. 5 They should use [C] gold; blue, purple, and scarlet yarn; and fine linen.

The Ephod

6 “They [d] are to make the ephod of finely spun linen embroidered with gold, and with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn. 7 It must have two shoulder pieces attached to its two edges so that it can be joined together. 8 The artistically woven waistband that is on the ephod [D] must be of one piece, [E] according to the same workmanship of gold, of blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and of finely spun linen.

9 “Take two onyx stones and engrave on them the names of Israel’s sons:
10 six of their names on the first stone and the remaining six names on the second stone, in the order of their birth. 11 Engrave the two stones with the names of Israel’s sons as a gem cutter engraves a seal. Mount them, surrounded with gold filigree settings. 12 Fasten both stones on the shoulder pieces of the ephod as memorial stones for the Israelites. Aaron will carry their names on his two shoulders before the LORD as a reminder. [e] 13 Fashion gold filigree settings 14 and two chains of pure gold; you will make them of braided cord work, and attach the cord chains to the settings.

The Breastpiece

15 “You [f] are to make an embroidered breastpiece for making decisions. [g]
Make it with the same workmanship as the ephod; make it of gold, of blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and of finely spun linen. 16 It must be square and folded double, nine inches long and nine inches wide. [F] 17 Place a setting of gemstones [h] on it, four rows of stones:

The first row should be a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald; [G] 18 the second row,
a turquoise, [H] a sapphire, [I] and a diamond; [J] 19 the third row,
a jacinth, [K] an agate, and an amethyst; 20 and the fourth row,
a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper.

They should be adorned with gold filigree in their settings. 21 The 12 stones are to correspond to the names of Israel’s sons. Each stone must be engraved like a seal, with one of the names of the 12 tribes.

22 “You are to make braided chains [i] of pure gold cord work for the breastpiece. 23 Fashion two gold rings for the breastpiece and attach them to its two corners. 24 Then attach the two gold cords to the two gold rings at the corners of the breastpiece. 25 Attach the other ends of the two cords to the two filigree settings, and in this way attach them to the ephod’s shoulder pieces in the front. 26 Make two other gold rings and put them at the two other corners of the breastpiece on the edge that is next to the inner border of the ephod. 27 Make two more gold rings and attach them to the bottom of the ephod’s two shoulder pieces on its front, close to its seam, [j] and above the ephod’s woven waistband.
28 The craftsmen are to tie the breastpiece from its rings to the rings of the ephod with a cord of blue yarn, so that the breastpiece is above the ephod’s waistband and does not come loose from the ephod.

29 “Whenever he enters the sanctuary, Aaron is to carry the names of Israel’s sons over his heart on the breastpiece for decisions, as a continual reminder before the LORD. 30 Place the •Urim and Thummim [k] in the breastpiece for decisions, so that they will also be over Aaron’s heart whenever he comes before the LORD. Aaron will continually carry the means of decisions for the Israelites over his heart before the LORD.

The Robe

31 “You [l] are to make the robe of the ephod entirely of blue yarn. 32 There should be an opening at its top in the center of it. Around the opening, there should be a woven collar with an opening like that of body armor [L] so that it does not tear. 33 Make pomegranates of blue, purple, and scarlet yarn [m] on its lower hem and all around it. Put gold bells between them all the way around, 34 so that gold bells and pomegranates alternate around the lower hem of the robe. 35 The robe must be worn by Aaron whenever he ministers, and its sound will be heard when he enters the sanctuary before the LORD and when he exits, so that he does not die.

The Turban

36 “You are to make a pure gold medallion and engrave it, like the engraving of a seal: [n]

HOLY TO THE LORD.

37 Fasten it to a cord of blue yarn so it can be placed on the turban; the medallion is to be on the front of the turban. 38 It will be on Aaron’s forehead so that Aaron may bear the •guilt [o] connected with the holy offerings that the Israelites consecrate as all their holy gifts. It is always to be on his forehead, so that they may find acceptance with the LORD.

Other Priestly Garments 39 “You are to weave the tunic from fine linen, make a turban of fine linen, and make an embroidered sash. 40 Make tunics, sashes, and headbands for Aaron’s sons to give them glory and beauty. [p] 41 Put these on your brother Aaron and his sons; then anoint, [q] ordain, [M] and consecrate [r] them, so that they may serve Me as priests. 42 Make them linen undergarments [s] to cover their naked bodies; they must extend from the waist [N] to the thighs. 43 These must be worn by Aaron and his sons whenever they enter the tent of meeting or approach the altar to minister in the sanctuary area, so that they do not incur guilt [t] and die. This is to be a permanent statute [u] for Aaron and for his future descendants.

Instructions about Consecration

29 “This is what you are to do for them to consecrate them to serve Me as priests. Take a young bull and two unblemished rams, 2 with unleavened bread, unleavened cakes mixed with oil, and unleavened wafers coated with oil.
Make them out of fine wheat flour, [a] 3 put them in a basket, and bring them in the basket, along with the bull and two rams. 4 Bring Aaron and his sons to the entrance to the tent of meeting and wash them with water. [b] 5 Then take the garments and clothe Aaron with the tunic, the robe for the •ephod , the ephod itself, and the breastpiece; fasten the ephod on him with its woven waistband. [c] 6 Put the turban on his head and place the holy diadem [d] on the turban. 7 Take the anointing oil, pour it on his head, and anoint [e] him. 8 You must also bring his sons, clothe them with tunics. 9 Tie the sashes on Aaron and his sons and fasten headbands on them. The priesthood is to be theirs by a permanent statute. This is the way you will ordain Aaron and [A] his sons. [f]

10 “You are to bring the bull to the front of the tent of meeting, and Aaron and his sons must lay their hands on the bull’s head. [g] 11 Slaughter the bull before the LORD at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 12 Take some of the bull’s blood and apply it to the horns [h] of the altar with your finger; then pour out all the rest of the blood at the base of the altar. 13 Take all the fat [i] that covers the entrails, the fatty lobe of the liver, and the two kidneys with the fat on them, and burn them on the altar. 14 But burn up the bull’s flesh, its hide, and its dung outside the camp; [j] it is a •sin offering.

15 “Take one ram, and Aaron and his sons are to lay their hands on the ram’s head. [k] 16 You are to slaughter the ram, take its blood, and sprinkle it on all sides of the altar. 17 Cut the ram into pieces. Wash its entrails and shanks, and place them with its head and its pieces on the altar. 18 Then burn the whole ram on the altar; it is a •burnt offering to the LORD. It is a pleasing aroma, [l] a fire offering to the LORD.

19 “You are to take the second ram, and Aaron and his sons must lay their hands on the ram’s head. [m] 20 Slaughter the ram, take some of its blood, and put it on Aaron’s right earlobe, on his sons’ right earlobes, on the thumbs of their right hands, and on the big toes of their right feet. Sprinkle the remaining blood on all sides of the altar. 21 Take some of the blood that is on the altar and some of the anointing oil, [n] and sprinkle them on Aaron and his garments, as well as on his sons and their garments. In this way, he and his garments will become holy, as well as his sons and their garments.

22 “Take the fat from the ram, the fat tail, the fat covering the entrails, the fatty lobe of the liver, the two kidneys and the fat on them, and the right thigh (since this is a ram for ordination [o]); 23 take one loaf of bread, one cake of bread made with oil, and one wafer from the basket of unleavened bread that is before the LORD; 24 and put all of them in the hands of Aaron and his [B] sons and wave them as a presentation offering before the LORD. [p] 25 Take them from their hands and burn them on the altar on top of the burnt offering, as a pleasing aroma before the LORD; it is a fire offering to the LORD.

26 "Take the breast from the ram of Aaron's ordination and wave it as a presentation offering before the LORD; it is to be your portion. [q] 27 Consecrate for Aaron and his sons [r] the breast of the presentation offering that is waved and the thigh of the contribution that is lifted up from the ram of ordination. 28 This will belong to Aaron and his sons as a regular portion from the Israelites, for it is a contribution. It will be the Israelites' contribution from their •fellowship sacrifices, their contribution to the LORD.

29 "The holy garments that belong to Aaron are to belong to his sons after him, so that they can be anointed and ordained [C] in them. [s] 30 Any priest who is one of his sons and who succeeds him and enters the tent of meeting to minister in the sanctuary must wear them for seven days. [t]

31 "You are to take the ram of ordination and boil its flesh in a holy place. 32 Aaron and his sons are to eat the meat of the ram and the bread that is in the basket at the entrance to the tent of meeting. [u] 33 They must eat those things by which •atonement was made at the time of their ordination [D] and consecration. An unauthorized person must not eat [v] them, for these things are holy. 34 If any of the meat of ordination or any of the bread is left until morning, burn up what is left over. It must not be eaten because it is holy.

35 "This is what you are to do for Aaron and his sons based on all I have commanded you. Take seven days to ordain them. 36 Sacrifice a bull as a sin offering each day for atonement. Purify [E] the altar when you make atonement for it, and anoint it in order to consecrate it. [w] 37 For seven days you must make atonement for the altar and consecrate it. The altar will become especially holy; whatever touches the altar will become holy. [x]

38 "This is what you are to offer regularly on the altar every day: two year-old lambs. [y] 39 In the morning offer one lamb, and at twilight offer the other lamb. [z] 40 With the first lamb offer two quarts [F] of fine flour mixed with one quart [G] of oil from crushed olives, and a •drink offering of one quart [H] of wine. 41 You are to offer the second lamb at twilight. Offer a •grain offering and a drink offering with it, like the one in the morning, as a pleasing aroma, a fire offering to the LORD. 42 This will be a regular burnt offering throughout your generations at the entrance to the tent of meeting before the LORD, where I will meet you [a] to speak with you. [b] 43 I will also meet with the Israelites there, and that place will be consecrated by My glory. [c] 44 I will consecrate the tent of meeting and the altar;

I will also consecrate Aaron and his sons to serve Me as priests. 45 I will dwell [d]
among the Israelites and be their God. [e] 46 And they will know that I am •Yahweh their God, who brought them out of the land of Egypt, so that I might dwell among them. I am Yahweh their God. [f]

The Incense Altar

30 “You are to make an altar for the burning of incense; make it of acacia wood. [a] 2 It must be square, 18 inches long and 18 inches wide; [A] it must be 36 inches high. [B] Its horns must be of one piece. [C] 3 Overlay its top, all around its sides, and its horns with pure gold; make a gold molding all around it.
4 Make two gold rings for it under the molding on two of its sides; put these on opposite sides of it to be holders for the poles to carry it with. 5 Make the poles of acacia wood and overlay them with gold.
6 “You are to place the altar in front of the veil by the ark of the •testimony — in front of the •mercy seat that is over the testimony — where I will meet with you. 7 Aaron must burn fragrant incense on it; he must burn it every morning when he tends the lamps. [b] 8 When Aaron sets up the lamps at twilight, he must burn incense. There is to be an incense offering before the LORD throughout your generations. 9 You must not offer unauthorized incense on it, [c] or a •burnt or •grain offering; you are not to pour a •drink offering on it.
10 “Once a year Aaron is to perform the purification rite [D] on the horns of the altar. Throughout your generations he is to perform the purification rite [E] for [F] it once a year, with the blood of the •sin offering for •atonement . [d] The altar is especially holy to the LORD.”

The Atonement Money

11 The LORD spoke to Moses: 12 “When you take a census [e] of the Israelites to register them, each of the men must pay a ransom [f] for himself to the LORD as they are registered. Then no plague [g] will come on them as they are registered.
13 Everyone who is registered must pay half a •shekel [h] according to the sanctuary shekel (20 gerahs to the shekel). This half shekel is a contribution to the LORD. [i] 14 Each man who is registered, 20 years old or more, must give this contribution to the LORD. 15 The wealthy may not give more and the poor may not give less [j] than half a shekel when giving the contribution to the LORD to atone for [G] your lives. 16 Take the atonement money [H] from the Israelites and use it for the service of the tent of meeting. It will serve as a reminder for the Israelites before the LORD to atone for [I] your lives.” [k]

The Bronze Basin

17 The LORD spoke to Moses: 18 “Make a bronze basin [l] for washing and a bronze stand for it. Set it between the tent of meeting and the altar, and put water in it. 19 Aaron and his sons must wash their hands and feet from the basin.
20 Whenever they enter the tent of meeting or approach the altar to minister by burning up an offering to the LORD, they must wash with water so that they will not die. 21 They must wash their hands and feet so that they will not die; this is to be a permanent statute [m] for them, for Aaron and his descendants throughout their generations.”

The Anointing Oil

22 The LORD spoke to Moses: 23 “Take for yourself the finest spices: [n] 12 1/2 pounds [J] of liquid myrrh, half as much (6 1/4 pounds [K]) of fragrant cinnamon, 6 1/4 pounds [L] of fragrant cane, 24 12 1/2 pounds [M] of cassia (by the sanctuary shekel), and one gallon [N] of olive oil. [o] 25 Prepare from these a holy anointing oil, a scented blend, the work of a perfumer; it will be holy anointing oil. [p]

26 “With it you are to anoint [q] the tent of meeting, the ark of the testimony, 27 the table with all its utensils, the lampstand with its utensils, the altar of incense, 28 the altar of burnt offering with all its utensils, and the basin with its stand. 29 Consecrate them and they will be especially holy. Whatever touches them will be consecrated. 30 Anoint Aaron and his sons and consecrate [r] them to serve Me as priests.

31 “Tell the Israelites: This will be My holy anointing oil throughout your generations. 32 It must not be used for ordinary anointing on a person’s body, and you must not make anything like it using its formula. It is holy, and it must be holy to you. 33 Anyone who blends something like it or puts some of it on an unauthorized person must be cut off [s] from his people.”

The Sacred Incense

34 The LORD said to Moses: “Take fragrant spices: stacte, onycha, and galbanum; the spices and pure frankincense are to be in equal measures.
35 Prepare expertly blended incense from these; it is to be seasoned with salt, pure and holy. 36 Grind some of it into a fine powder and put some in front of the testimony in the tent of meeting, where I will meet with you. It must be especially holy [t] to you. 37 As for the incense you are making, you must not make any for yourselves using its formula. It is to be regarded by you as sacred to the LORD. 38 Anyone who makes something like it to smell its fragrance must be cut off from his people.”

God's Provision of the Skilled Workers

31 The LORD also spoke to Moses: 2 “Look, I have appointed by name Bezalel
[a] son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah. 3 I have filled him with God’s Spirit, with wisdom, understanding, and ability in every craft [b] 4 to design artistic works in gold, silver, and bronze, 5 to cut gemstones for mounting, and to carve wood for work in every craft. 6 I have also selected Oholiab [c] son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, to be with him. I have placed wisdom within every skilled craftsman [A] in order to make all that I have commanded you: 7 the tent of meeting, the ark of the •testimony , the •mercy seat that is on top of it, and all the other furnishings of the tent [d] — 8 the table with its utensils, the pure gold lampstand with all its utensils, the altar of incense, 9 the altar of •burnt offering with all its utensils, the basin with its stand — 10 the specially woven [B] garments, both the holy garments for Aaron the priest and the garments for his sons to serve as priests, 11 the anointing oil, and the fragrant incense for the sanctuary. They must make them according to all that I have commanded you.” [e]

Observing the Sabbath

12 The LORD said to Moses: 13 “Tell the Israelites: You must observe My Sabbaths, for it is a sign between Me and you throughout your generations, so that you will know that I am •Yahweh who sets you apart. [f] 14 Observe the Sabbath, for it is holy to you. Whoever profanes it must be put to death. If anyone does work on it, that person must be cut off from his people. [g] 15 Work may be done for six days, but on the seventh day there must be a Sabbath of complete rest, [h] dedicated to the LORD. Anyone who does work on the Sabbath day must be put to death. 16 The Israelites must observe the Sabbath, celebrating it throughout their generations as a perpetual covenant. 17 It is a sign forever between Me and the Israelites, for in six days the LORD made the heavens and the earth, but on the seventh day He rested and was refreshed.”

The Two Stone Tablets

18 When He finished speaking with Moses on Mount Sinai, He gave him the two tablets of the testimony, stone tablets inscribed by the finger of God. [i]

The Gold Calf

32 When the people saw that Moses delayed in coming down from the mountain, they gathered around Aaron and said to him, “Come, make us a god [A] who will go before us because this Moses, the man who brought us up from the land of Egypt — we don’t know what has happened to him! ” [a] 2 Then Aaron replied to them, “Take off the gold rings [b] that are on the ears of your wives, your sons, and your daughters and bring them to me.” 3 So all the people took off the gold rings that were on their ears and brought them to Aaron.
4 He took the gold from their hands, fashioned it with an engraving tool, and made it into an image of a calf.
Then they said, “Israel, this is your God, [B] who brought you up from the land of Egypt! ” [c] 5 When Aaron saw this, he built an altar before it; then he made an announcement: “There will be a festival [d] to the LORD tomorrow.” 6 Early the next morning they arose, offered •burnt offerings, and presented •fellowship offerings. The people sat down to eat and drink, then got up to play. [e] 7 The LORD spoke to Moses: “Go down at once! For your people you brought up from the land of Egypt have acted corruptly. [f] 8 They have quickly turned from the way I commanded them; they have made for themselves an image of a calf. They have bowed down to it, sacrificed to it, and said, ‘Israel, this is your God, [C] who brought you up from the land of Egypt.’ ” [g] 9 The LORD also said to Moses: “I have seen this people, and they are indeed a stiff-necked [h] people.
10 Now leave Me alone, so that My anger can burn against them and I can destroy them. Then I will make you into a great nation.” [i] 11 But Moses interceded with the LORD his God: “LORD, why does Your anger burn against Your people You brought out of the land of Egypt with great power and a strong hand? 12 Why should the Egyptians say, ‘He brought them out with an evil intent to kill them in the mountains and wipe them off the face of the earth’? Turn from Your great anger and relent concerning this disaster planned for Your people. [j] 13 Remember Your servants Abraham, Isaac, and Israel — You swore to them by Your very self [k] and declared, ‘I will make your •offspring as numerous as the stars of the sky and will give your offspring all this land that I have promised, and they will inherit it forever.’ ” [l] 14 So the LORD relented [m] concerning the disaster He said He would bring on His people.
15 Then Moses turned and went down the mountain with the two tablets of the •testimony in his hands. They were inscribed on both sides — inscribed front and back. 16 The tablets were the work of God, and the writing was God’s writing, engraved on the tablets. [n]

17 When Joshua heard the sound of the people as they shouted, he said to Moses, “There is a sound of war in the camp.”

18 But Moses replied:

It’s not the sound of a victory cry
and not the sound of a cry of defeat;
I hear the sound of singing!

19 As he approached the camp and saw the calf and the dancing, Moses became enraged and threw the tablets out of his hands, smashing them at the base of the mountain. 20 Then he took the calf they had made, burned it up, and ground it to powder. He scattered the powder over the surface of the water and forced the Israelites to drink the water.

21 Then Moses asked Aaron, “What did these people do to you that you have led them into such a grave sin? ”

22 “Don’t be enraged, my lord,” Aaron replied. “You yourself know that the people are intent on evil. [o] 23 They said to me, ‘Make us a god [D] who will go before us because this Moses, the man who brought us up from the land of Egypt — we don’t know what has happened to him! ’ 24 So I said to them, ‘Whoever has gold, take it off,’ and they gave it to me. When I threw it into the fire, out came this calf! ”

25 Moses saw that the people were out of control, for Aaron had let them get out of control, resulting in weakness before their enemies. [E] 26 And Moses stood at the camp’s entrance and said, “Whoever is for the LORD, come to me.” And all the Levites gathered around him. 27 He told them, “This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says, ‘Every man fasten his sword to his side; go back and forth through the camp from entrance to entrance, and each of you kill his brother, his friend, and his neighbor.’ ” [p] 28 The Levites did as Moses commanded, and about 3,000 men fell dead that day among the people. 29 Afterward Moses said, “Today you have been dedicated [q] to the LORD, since each man went against his son and his brother. Therefore you have brought a blessing on yourselves today.” [r]

30 The following day Moses said to the people, “You have committed a grave sin. Now I will go up to the LORD; perhaps I will be able to atone for your sin.” [s]

31 So Moses returned to the LORD and said, “Oh, these people have committed a grave sin; they have made a god of gold for themselves. [t] 32 Now if You would only forgive their sin. But if not, please erase me from the book You have written.” [u]

33 The LORD replied to Moses: “I will erase whoever has sinned against Me from My book. v 34 Now go, lead the people to the place I told you about; see, My angel will go before you. But on the day I settle accounts, I will hold them accountable for their sin.” w 35 And the LORD inflicted a plague on the people for what they did with the calf Aaron had made.

The Tent Outside the Camp

33 The Lord spoke to Moses: “Go, leave here, you and the people you brought up from the land of Egypt, to the land I promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, saying: I will give it to your •offspring . [a] 2 I will send an angel ahead of you and will drive out the Canaanites, Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, [b] Hivites, and Jebusites. [c] 3 Go up to a land flowing with milk and honey. But I will not go with you because you are a stiff-necked people; otherwise, I might destroy you on the way.” [d] 4 When the people heard this bad news, they mourned and didn’t put on their jewelry. [e]

5 For the Lord said to Moses: “Tell the Israelites: You are a stiff-necked people. If I went with you for a single moment, I would destroy you. Now take off your jewelry, and I will decide what to do with you.” 6 So the Israelites remained stripped of their jewelry from Mount Horeb onward.

7 Now Moses took a tent and set it up outside the camp, far away from the camp; he called it the tent of meeting. Anyone who wanted to consult the Lord would go to the tent of meeting that was outside the camp. [f] 8 Whenever Moses went out to the tent, all the people would stand up, each one at the door of his tent, and they would watch Moses until he entered the tent. 9 When Moses entered the tent, the pillar of cloud would come down and remain at the entrance to the tent, and the Lord would speak with Moses. [g] 10 As all the people saw the pillar of cloud remaining at the entrance to the tent, they would stand up, then bow in worship, each one at the door of his tent. 11 The Lord spoke with Moses face to face, just as a man speaks with his friend. Then Moses would return to the camp, but his assistant, the young man Joshua son of Nun, would not leave the inside of the tent. [h]

The Lord’s Glory 12 Moses said to the Lord, “Look, You have told me, ‘Lead this people up,’ but You have not let me know whom You will send with me. You said, ‘I know you by name, [i] and you have also found favor in My sight.’ 13 Now if I have indeed found favor in Your sight, please teach me Your ways, [j] and I will know You and find favor in Your sight. Now consider that this nation is Your people.” [k]

14 Then He replied, “My presence will go with you, and I will give you rest.”
[l]

15 “If Your presence does not go,” Moses responded to Him, “don’t make us go up from here. 16 How will it be known that I and Your people have found favor in Your sight unless You go with us? I and Your people will be distinguished by this from all the other people on the face of the earth.” [m]

17 The LORD answered Moses, “I will do this very thing you have asked, for you have found favor in My sight, and I know you by name.”
18 Then Moses said, “Please, let me see Your glory.” n 19 He said, “I will cause all My goodness to pass in front of you, and I will proclaim the name •Yahweh before you. I will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and I will have compassion on whom I will have compassion.” o 20
But He answered, “You cannot see My face, for no one can see p Me and live.” 21 The LORD said, “Here is a place near Me. You are to stand on the rock, 22 and when My glory passes by, I will put you in the crevice of the rock and cover you with My hand until I have passed by. q 23 Then I will take My hand away, and you will see My back, but My face will not be seen.”

New Stone Tablets

34 The LORD said to Moses, “Cut two stone tablets like the first ones, and I will write on them the words that were on the first tablets, which you broke. [a] 2 Be prepared by morning. Come up Mount Sinai in the morning and stand before Me on the mountaintop. 3 No one may go up with you; in fact, no one must be seen anywhere on the mountain. Even the flocks and herds are not to graze in front of that mountain.” [b]

4 Moses cut two stone tablets like the first ones. He got up early in the morning, and taking the two stone tablets in his hand, he climbed Mount Sinai, just as the LORD had commanded him.

5 The LORD came down in a cloud, stood with him there, and proclaimed His name •Yahweh . 6 Then the LORD passed in front of him and proclaimed:

Yahweh — Yahweh is a compassionate and gracious God, slow to anger and rich in faithful love and truth, [c] 7 maintaining faithful love to a thousand generations, forgiving wrongdoing, rebellion, and sin. [d] But He will not leave the •guilty [e] unpunished, bringing the consequences of the fathers’ wrongdoing on the children and grandchildren to the third and fourth generation.

8 Moses immediately bowed down to the ground and worshiped. 9 Then he said, “My Lord, if I have indeed found favor in Your sight, my Lord, please go with us. Even though this is a stiff-necked people, forgive our wrongdoing and sin, and accept us as Your own possession.” [f]

Covenant Obligations

10 And the LORD responded: “Look, I am making a covenant. I will perform wonders in the presence of all your people [A] that have never been done [B] in all the earth or in any nation. All the people you live among will see the LORD’s work, for what I am doing with you is awe-inspiring. [g] 11 Observe what I command you today. I am going to drive out before you the Amorites, Canaanites, Hittites, Perizzites, Hivites, [h] and Jebusites. 12 Be careful not to make a treaty with the inhabitants of the land that you are going to enter; otherwise, they will become a snare among you. [i] 13 Instead, you must tear down their altars, smash their sacred pillars, and chop down their •Asherah poles. [j] 14
You are never to bow down to another god because Yahweh, being jealous [k] by nature, [C] is a jealous God.

15 “Do not make a treaty with the inhabitants of the land, or else when they prostitute themselves with their gods and sacrifice to their gods, they will invite you, and you will eat their sacrifices. [l] 16 Then you will take some of their daughters as brides for your sons. Their daughters will prostitute themselves with their gods and cause your sons to prostitute themselves with their gods. [m]

17 “Do not make cast images [n] of gods for yourselves.

18 “Observe the Festival of •Unleavened Bread. You are to eat unleavened bread for seven days at the appointed time in the month of Abib [o] as I commanded you. For you came out of Egypt in the month of Abib. [p]

19 “The firstborn [q] male from every womb belongs to Me, including all your male [r,] [D] livestock, the firstborn of cattle or sheep. 20 You must redeem the firstborn of a donkey with a sheep, but if you do not redeem it, break its neck. [s]
You must redeem all the firstborn of your sons. No one is to appear before Me empty-handed.

21 “You are to labor six days but you must rest [t] on the seventh day; you must even rest during plowing and harvesting times.

22 “Observe the Festival of Weeks with the •firstfruits of the wheat harvest, and the Festival of Ingathering [u] at the turn of the agricultural year. 23 Three times a year [v] all your males are to appear before the Lord GOD, the God of Israel. 24 For I will drive out nations [w] before you and enlarge your territory. [x]
No one will covet your land when you go up three times a year to appear before the LORD your God.

25 “Do not present [E] the blood for My sacrifice with anything leavened. The sacrifice of the •Passover Festival must not remain until morning. [y]

26 “Bring the best firstfruits [z] of your land to the house of the Lord your God.
“You must not boil a young goat in its mother’s milk.”
27 The Lord also said to Moses, “Write [a] down these words, for I have made a covenant with you and with Israel based on these words.”
28 Moses was there with the Lord 40 days and 40 nights; he did not eat bread or drink water. He wrote the Ten Commandments, [b] the words of the covenant, on the tablets.

Moses’ Radiant Face

29 As Moses descended from Mount Sinai — with the two tablets of the •testimony in his hands as he descended the mountain — he did not realize that the skin of his face shone as a result of his speaking with the Lord. [F, c] 30 When Aaron and all the Israelites saw Moses, the skin of his face shone! [d] They were afraid to come near him. 31 But Moses called out to them, so Aaron and all the leaders of the community returned to him, and Moses spoke to them. 32 Afterward all the Israelites came near, and he commanded them to do everything the Lord had told him on Mount Sinai. 33 When Moses had finished speaking with them, he put a veil over his face. 34 But whenever Moses went before the Lord to speak with Him, he would remove the veil until he came out. After he came out, he would tell the Israelites what he had been commanded, [e] 35 and the Israelites would see that Moses’ face [G] was radiant. Then Moses would put the veil over his face again until he went to speak with the Lord.

The Sabbath Command

35 Moses assembled the entire Israelite community and said to them, “These are the things that the Lord has commanded you to do: [a] 2 For six days work is to be done, but on the seventh day you are to have a holy day, a Sabbath [b] of complete rest to the Lord. Anyone who does work on it must be executed.
3 Do not light a fire in any of your homes on the Sabbath day.” [c]

Building the Tabernacle [4] Then Moses said to the entire Israelite community, “This is what the Lord has commanded: [5] Take [d] up an offering among you for the Lord. Let everyone whose heart is willing bring this as the Lord’s offering:
gold, silver, and bronze; [6] blue, purple, and scarlet yarn; fine linen and goat hair; [7] ram skins dyed red and manatee skins; [A] acacia wood; [8] oil for the light; spices for the anointing oil and for the fragrant incense; [9] and onyx with gemstones to mount on the •ephod and breastpiece.

[10] “Let all the skilled craftsmen [B] among you come and make everything that the Lord has commanded: [e] [11] the tabernacle — its tent and covering, its clasps and planks, its crossbars, its posts and bases; [12] the ark with its poles, the •mercy seat, and the veil for the screen; [13] the table with its poles, all its utensils, and the •bread of the Presence [14] the lampstand for light with its utensils and lamps as well as the oil for the light; [15] the altar of incense with its poles; the anointing oil and the fragrant incense; the entryway screen for the entrance to the tabernacle; [16] the altar of •burnt offering with its bronze grate, its poles, and all its utensils;
the basin with its stand; [17] the hangings of the courtyard, its posts and bases, and the screen for the gate of the courtyard; [18] the tent pegs for the tabernacle and the tent pegs for the courtyard, along with their ropes; [19] and the specially woven [C] garments for ministering in the sanctuary — the holy garments for Aaron the priest and the garments for his sons to serve as priests.” [f]

[20] Then the entire Israelite community left Moses’ presence. [21] Everyone whose heart was moved and whose spirit prompted him came and brought an offering to the Lord for the work on the tent of meeting, for all its services, and for the holy garments. [g] [22] Both men and women came; all who had willing hearts brought brooches, earrings, rings, necklaces, and all kinds of gold jewelry — everyone who waved a presentation offering of gold to the Lord.
[23] Everyone who had in his possession blue, purple, or scarlet yarn, [h] fine linen or goat hair, ram skins dyed red or manatee skins, [D] brought them. [24] Everyone making an offering of silver or bronze brought it as a contribution to the Lord.
Everyone who possessed acacia wood useful for any task in the work brought it.
[25] Every skilled [E] woman [i] spun yarn with her hands and brought it: blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and fine linen. 26 And all the women whose hearts were moved spun the goat hair by virtue of their skill. 27 The leaders [j] brought onyx and gemstones to mount on the ephod and breastpiece, 28 as well as the spice [k] and oil for the light, for the anointing oil, and for the fragrant incense. 29 So the Israelites brought a freewill offering to the LORD, all the men and women whose hearts prompted them to bring something for all the work that the LORD, through Moses, had commanded to be done. [l]

Bezalel and Oholiab

30 Moses [m] then said to the Israelites: “Look, the LORD has appointed by name Bezalel son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah. 31 He has filled him with God’s Spirit, with wisdom, understanding, and ability in every kind of craft 32 to design artistic works in gold, silver, and bronze, 33 to cut gemstones for mounting, and to carve wood for work in every kind of artistic craft. 34 He has also given both him and Oholiab son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, the ability to teach others. 35 He has filled them with skill [F] to do all the work [n] of a gem cutter; a designer; an embroiderer in blue, purple, and scarlet yarn and fine linen; and a weaver. They can do every kind of craft and design artistic designs.

36 Bezalel, Oholiab, and all the skilled [A] people are to work based on everything the LORD has commanded. The LORD has given them wisdom and understanding to know how to do all the work of constructing the sanctuary." [a]

2 So Moses summoned Bezalel, Oholiab, and every skilled [B] person in whose heart the LORD had placed wisdom, everyone whose heart moved him, [b] to come to the work and do it. 3 They took from Moses' presence all the contributions that the Israelites had brought for the task of making the sanctuary. Meanwhile, the people continued to bring freewill offerings morning after morning.

4 Then all the craftsmen who were doing all the work for the sanctuary came one by one from the work they were doing 5 and said to Moses, "The people are bringing more than is needed [c] for the construction of the work the LORD commanded to be done."

6 After Moses gave an order, they sent a proclamation throughout the camp:
"Let no man or woman make anything else as an offering for the sanctuary." So the people stopped. 7 The materials were sufficient for them to do all the work.
There was more than enough.

Building the Tabernacle 8 All [d] the skilled craftsmen [C] among those doing the work made the tabernacle with 10 curtains. Bezalel made them of finely spun linen, as well as blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, with a design of •cherubim worked into them. 9 The length of each curtain was 42 feet, [D] and the width of each curtain six feet; [E] all the curtains had the same measurements. 10 He joined five of the curtains to each other, and the other five curtains he joined to each other. 11 He made loops of blue yarn on the edge of the last curtain in the first set and did the same on the edge of the outermost curtain in the second set. 12 He made 50 loops on the one curtain and 50 loops on the edge of the curtain in the second set, so that the loops lined up with each other. 13 He also made 50 gold clasps and joined the curtains to each other, so that the tabernacle became a single unit.

14 He made curtains of goat hair for a tent over the tabernacle; he made 11 of them. 15 The length of each curtain was 45 feet, [F] and the width of each curtain six feet. [G] All 11 curtains had the same measurements. 16 He joined five of the curtains together, and the other six together. 17 He made 50 loops on the edge of the outermost curtain in the first set and 50 loops on the edge of the corresponding curtain in the second set. 18 He made 50 bronze clasps to join the tent together as a single unit. 19 He also made a covering for the tent from ram skins dyed red and a covering of manatee skins [H] on top of it.

20 He [e] made upright planks [I] of acacia wood for the tabernacle. 21 The length of each plank was 15 feet, [J] and the width of each was 27 inches. [K] 22 There were two tenons connected to each other for each plank. He did the same for all the planks of the tabernacle. 23 He made planks for the tabernacle as follows: 20 for the south side, 24 and he made 40 silver bases to put under the 20 planks, two bases under the first plank for its two tenons, and two bases under each of the following planks for their two tenons; 25 for the second side of the tabernacle, the north side, he made 20 planks, 26 with their 40 silver bases, two bases under the first plank and two bases under each of the following ones; 27 and for the west side of the tabernacle he made six planks. 28 He also made two additional planks for the two back corners of the tabernacle. 29 They were paired at the bottom and joined together [L] at the [M] top in a single ring. This is what he did with both of them for the two corners. 30 So there were eight planks with their 16 silver bases, two bases under each one.

31 He made five crossbars of acacia wood for the planks on one side of the tabernacle, 32 five crossbars for the planks on the other side of the tabernacle, and five crossbars for those at the back of the tabernacle on the west. 33 He made the central crossbar run through the middle of the planks from one end to the other. 34 He overlaid them with gold and made their rings out of gold as holders for the crossbars. He also overlaid the crossbars with gold.

35 Then [f] he made the veil with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and finely spun linen. He made it with a design of cherubim worked into it. 36 He made four posts of acacia wood for it and overlaid them with gold; their hooks were of gold. And he cast four silver bases for the posts.

37 He made a screen embroidered with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and finely spun linen for the entrance to the tent, 38 together with its five posts and their hooks. He overlaid the tops of the posts and their bands with gold, but their five bases were bronze.

Making the Ark

37 Bezalel [a] made the ark of acacia wood, 45 inches long, 27 inches wide, and 27 inches high. [A] 2 He overlaid it with pure gold inside and out and made a gold molding all around it. 3 He cast four gold rings for it, for its four feet, two rings on one side and two rings on the other side. 4 He made poles of acacia wood and overlaid them with gold. 5 He inserted the poles into the rings on the sides of the ark for carrying the ark.

6 He made a •mercy seat of pure gold, 45 inches long and 27 inches wide. [B]
7 He made two •cherubim of gold; he made them of hammered work at the two ends of the mercy seat, 8 one cherub at one end and one cherub at the other end.
At each end, he made a cherub of one piece with the mercy seat. 9 They had wings spread out. They faced each other and covered the mercy seat with their wings. The faces of the cherubim were looking toward the mercy seat.

Making the Table

10 He [b] constructed the table of acacia wood, 36 inches long, 18 inches wide, and 27 inches high. [C] 11 He overlaid it with pure gold and made a gold molding all around it. 12 He made a three-inch [D] frame all around it and made a gold molding all around its frame. 13 He cast four gold rings for it and attached the rings to the four corners at its four legs. 14 The rings were next to the frame as holders for the poles to carry the table. 15 He made the poles for carrying the table from acacia wood and overlaid them with gold. 16 He also made the utensils that would be on the table out of pure gold: its plates and cups, as well as its bowls and pitchers for pouring •drink offerings.

Making the Lampstand

17 Then [c] he made the lampstand out of pure hammered gold. He made it all of one piece: its base and shaft, its ornamental cups, and its calyxes [d] and petals.
18 Six branches extended from its sides, three branches of the lampstand from one side and three branches of the lampstand from the other side. 19 There were three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a calyx and petals, on the first branch, and three cups shaped like almond blossoms, each with a calyx and petals, on the next branch. It was this way for the six branches that extended from the lampstand. 20 On the lampstand shaft there were four cups shaped like almond blossoms with its calyxes and petals. 21 For the six branches that extended from it, a calyx was under the first pair of branches from it, a calyx under the second pair of branches from it, and a calyx under the third pair of branches from it. 22 Their calyxes and branches were of one piece. [E] All of it was a single hammered piece of pure gold. 23 He also made its seven lamps, snuffers, and firepans of pure gold. 24 He made it and all its utensils of 75 pounds [F] of pure gold.

Making the Altar of Incense 25 He [e] made the altar of incense out of acacia wood. It was square, 18 inches long and 18 inches wide; it was 36 inches high.
[G] Its horns were of one piece. [H] 26 He overlaid it, its top, all around its sides, and its horns with pure gold. Then he made a gold molding all around it. 27 He made two gold rings for it under the molding on two of its sides; he put these on opposite sides of it to be holders for the poles to carry it with. 28 He made the poles of acacia wood and overlaid them with gold.

29 He also made the holy anointing oil and the pure, fragrant, and expertly blended incense. [f]

Making the Altar of Burnt Offering

38 Bezalel [a] constructed the altar of •burnt offering from acacia wood. It was square, 7 1/2 feet long and 7 1/2 feet wide, [A] and was 4 1/2 feet [B] high. 2 He made horns for it on its four corners; the horns were of one piece. [C] Then he overlaid it with bronze.

3 He made all the altar's utensils: the pots, shovels, basins, meat forks, and firepans; he made all its utensils of bronze. 4 He constructed for the altar a grate of bronze mesh under its ledge, [D] halfway up from the bottom. 5 At the four corners of the bronze grate he cast four rings as holders for the poles. 6 Also, he made the poles of acacia wood and overlaid them with bronze. 7 Then he inserted the poles into the rings on the sides of the altar in order to carry it with them. He constructed the altar with boards so that it was hollow.

Making the Bronze Basin

8 He made the bronze basin and its stand from the bronze mirrors of the women who served at the entrance to the tent of meeting. [b]

Making the Courtyard

9 Then [c] he made the courtyard. The hangings on the south side of the courtyard were of finely spun linen, 150 feet in length, [E] 10 including their 20 posts and 20 bronze bases. The hooks and bands [F] of the posts were silver. 11 The hangings on the north side were also 150 feet in length, [G] including their 20 posts and 20 bronze bases. The hooks and bands [H] of the posts were silver. 12 The hangings on the west side were 75 feet in length, [I] including their 10 posts and 10 bases. The hooks and bands of the posts were silver. 13 The hangings on the east toward the sunrise were also 75 feet in length. [J] 14 The hangings on one side of the gate were 22 1/2 feet, [K] including their three posts and three bases. 15 It was the same for the other side. The hangings were 22 1/2 feet, [L] including their three posts and three bases on both sides of the courtyard gate. 16 All the hangings around the courtyard were of finely spun linen. 17 The bases for the posts were bronze; the hooks and bands [M] of the posts were silver; and the plating for the tops of the posts was silver. All the posts of the courtyard were banded with silver.

18 The screen for the gate of the courtyard was embroidered with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and finely spun linen. It was 30 feet [N] long, and like the hangings of the courtyard, 7 1/2 feet [O] high. [P] 19 It had four posts, including their four bronze bases. Their hooks were silver, and the bands [Q] as well as the plating of their tops were silver. 20 All the tent pegs for the tabernacle and for the surrounding courtyard were bronze.

Inventory of Materials

21 This is the inventory for the tabernacle, the tabernacle of the •testimony , [d] that was recorded at Moses' command. It was the work of the Levites under the direction of [R] Ithamar son of Aaron the priest. [e] 22 Bezalel son of Uri, son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made everything that the LORD commanded Moses. 23 With him was Oholiab son of Ahisamach, of the tribe of Dan, a gem cutter, a designer, and an embroiderer with blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and fine linen.

24 All the gold of the presentation offering that was used for the project in all the work on the sanctuary, was 2,193 pounds, [S] according to the sanctuary •shekel . [f] 25 The silver from those of the community who were registered was 7,544 pounds, [T] according to the sanctuary shekel — 26 2/5 of an ounce [U] per man, that is, half a shekel according to the sanctuary shekel, from everyone 20 years old or more who had crossed over to the registered group, 603,550 men. 27 There were 7,500 pounds [V] of silver used to cast the bases of the sanctuary and the bases of the veil — 100 bases from 7,500 pounds, [W] 75 pounds [X] for each base. [g] 28 With the remaining 44 pounds [Y] he made the hooks for the posts, overlaid their tops, and supplied bands [Z] for them.

29 The bronze of the presentation offering totaled 5,310 pounds. [A] 30 He made with it the bases for the entrance to the tent of meeting, the bronze altar and its bronze grate, all the utensils for the altar, 31 the bases for the surrounding courtyard, the bases for the gate of the courtyard, all the tent pegs for the tabernacle, and all the tent pegs for the surrounding courtyard.

Making the Priestly Garments

39 They made specially woven [A] garments for ministry in the sanctuary, and the holy garments for Aaron from the blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. [a]

Making the Ephod

2 Bezalel [b] made the •ephod of gold, of blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and of finely spun linen. 3 They hammered out thin sheets of gold, and he [c] cut threads from them to interweave with the blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and the fine linen in a skillful design. 4 They made shoulder pieces for attaching it; it was joined together at its two edges. 5 The artistically woven waistband that was on the ephod was of one piece with the ephod, according to the same workmanship of gold, of blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and of finely spun linen, just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

6 Then they mounted the onyx stones surrounded with gold filigree settings, engraved with the names of Israel's sons as a gem cutter engraves a seal. 7 He fastened them on the shoulder pieces of the ephod as memorial stones for the Israelites, just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Making the Breastpiece

8 He [d] also made the embroidered breastpiece with the same workmanship as the ephod of gold, of blue, purple, and scarlet yarn, and of finely spun linen.
9 They made the breastpiece square and folded double, nine inches long and nine inches wide. [B] 10 They mounted four rows of gemstones [e] on it. The first row was a row of carnelian, topaz, and emerald; [C] 11 the second row, a turquoise, [D] a sapphire, [E] and a diamond; [F] 12 the third row, a jacinth, [G] an agate, and an amethyst; 13 and the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jasper. They were surrounded with gold filigree in their settings.

14 The 12 stones corresponded to the names of Israel's sons. Each stone was engraved like a seal with one of the names of the 12 tribes.

15 They made braided chains of pure gold cord for the breastpiece. 16 They also fashioned two gold filigree settings and two gold rings and attached the two rings to its two corners. 17 Then they attached the two gold cords to the two gold rings on the corners of the breastpiece. 18 They attached the other ends of the two cords to the two filigree settings and, in this way, attached them to the ephod's shoulder pieces in front. 19 They made two other gold rings and put them at the two other corners of the breastpiece on the edge that is next to the inner border of the ephod. 20 They made two more gold rings and attached them to the bottom of the ephod's two shoulder pieces on its front, close to its seam, [f] above the ephod's woven waistband. 21 Then they tied the breastpiece from its rings to the rings of the ephod with a cord of blue yarn, so that the breastpiece was above the ephod's waistband and did not come loose from the ephod. They did just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Making the Robe

22 They [g] made the woven robe of the ephod entirely of blue yarn. 23 There was an opening in the center of the robe like that of body armor [H] with a collar around the opening so that it would not tear. 24 They made pomegranates of finely spun blue, purple, and scarlet yarn [h] on the lower hem of the robe. 25 They made bells of pure gold and attached the bells between the pomegranates, all around the hem of the robe between the pomegranates, 26 a bell and a pomegranate alternating all around the lower hem of the robe [I] to be worn for ministry. They made it just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

The Other Priestly Garments 27 They made the tunics of fine woven linen for Aaron and his sons. 28 They also made the turban and the ornate headbands [J] of fine linen, the undergarments, [i] 29 and the sash of finely spun linen of embroidered blue, purple, and scarlet yarn. They did just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Making the Holy Diadem

30 They also made a medallion, the holy diadem, out of pure gold and wrote on it an inscription like the engraving on a seal: [j]

HOLY TO THE LORD.

31 Then they attached a cord of blue yarn to it in order to mount it on the turban, just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Moses' Inspection of the Tabernacle 32 So all the work for the tabernacle, the tent of meeting, was finished. The Israelites did everything just as the LORD had commanded Moses. [k] 33 Then they brought the tabernacle to Moses: the tent with all its furnishings, its clasps, its planks, its crossbars, and its posts and bases; 34 the covering of ram skins dyed red and the covering of manatee skins;
[K] the veil for the screen; 35 the ark of the •testimony with its poles and the •mercy seat; 36 the table, all its utensils, and the •bread of the Presence 37 the pure gold lampstand, with its lamps arranged and all its utensils, as well as the oil for the light; 38 the gold altar; the anointing oil; the fragrant incense; the screen for the entrance to the tent; 39 the bronze altar with its bronze grate, its poles, and all its utensils; the basin with its stand; 40 the hangings of the courtyard, its posts and bases, the screen for the gate of the courtyard, its ropes and tent pegs, and all the equipment for the service of the tabernacle, the tent of meeting; 41 and the specially woven [L] garments for ministering in the sanctuary, the holy garments for Aaron the priest and the garments for his sons to serve as priests. 42 The Israelites had done all the work according to everything the LORD had commanded Moses. [l] *43 Moses inspected all the work they had accomplished.
They had done just as the LORD commanded. Then Moses blessed them.* [m]

Setting up the Tabernacle

40 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “You are to set up the tabernacle, the tent of meeting, on the first day of the first month. A, a 3 Put the ark b of the •testimony there and screen off the ark with the veil. 4 Then bring in the table and lay out its arrangement; also bring in the lampstand and set up its lamps.
5 Place the gold altar for incense in front of the ark of the testimony. Put up the screen for the entrance to the tabernacle. 6 Position the altar of burnt offering in front of the entrance to the tabernacle, the tent of meeting. 7 Place the basin c between the tent of meeting and the altar, and put water in it. 8 Assemble the surrounding courtyard and hang the screen for the gate of the courtyard.

9 “Take the anointing oil and anoint d the tabernacle and everything in it; consecrate it along with all its furnishings so that it will be holy. 10 Anoint the altar of burnt offering and all its utensils; consecrate the altar so that it will be especially holy. 11 Anoint the basin and its stand and consecrate it.

12 “Then bring Aaron and his sons to the entrance to the tent of meeting and wash them with water. e 13 Clothe Aaron with the holy garments, f anoint him, and consecrate him, so that he can serve Me as a priest. 14 Have his sons come forward and clothe them in tunics. 15 Anoint them just as you anointed their father, so that they may also serve Me as priests. Their anointing will serve to inaugurate a permanent priesthood for them throughout their generations.” g

16 Moses did everything just as the LORD had commanded him. 17 The tabernacle was set up in the first month of the second year, on the first day of the month. h, i 18 Moses set up the tabernacle: he laid its bases, positioned its planks, inserted its crossbars, and set up its posts. 19 Then he spread the tent over the tabernacle and put the covering of the tent on top of it, just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

20 Moses took the testimony j and placed it in the ark, and attached the poles to the ark. He set the •mercy seat on top of the ark. 21 He brought the ark into the tabernacle, put up the veil for the screen, and screened off the ark of the testimony, just as the LORD had commanded him.

22 Moses placed the table in the tent of meeting on the north side of the tabernacle, outside the veil. 23 He arranged the bread on it before the LORD, just as the LORD had commanded him. 24 He also put the lampstand in the tent of meeting opposite the table on the south side of the tabernacle 25 and set up the lamps before the LORD, just as the LORD had commanded him.

26 Moses also installed the gold altar in the tent of meeting, in front of the veil, 27 and burned fragrant incense on it, just as the LORD had commanded him. 28 He put up the screen at the entrance to the tabernacle. 29 Then he placed the altar of burnt offering at the entrance to the tabernacle, the tent of meeting, and offered the •burnt offering and the •grain offering on it, just as the LORD had commanded him.

30 He set the basin between the tent of meeting and the altar and put water in it for washing. 31 Moses, Aaron, and his sons washed their hands and feet from it.
32 They washed whenever they came to the tent of meeting and approached the altar, just as the LORD had commanded Moses.
33 Next Moses set up the surrounding courtyard for the tabernacle and the altar and hung a screen for the gate of the courtyard. So Moses finished the work. [k]

The LORD's Glory 34 The cloud covered the tent of meeting, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle. [l] 35 Moses was unable to enter the tent of meeting because the cloud rested on it, and the glory of the LORD filled the tabernacle.
36 The Israelites set out whenever the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle throughout all the stages of their journey. [m] 37 If the cloud was not taken up, they did not set out until the day it was taken up. [n] 38 For the cloud of the LORD was over the tabernacle by day, and there was a fire inside the cloud by night, visible to the entire house of Israel throughout all the stages of their journey.

Introduction

The title “Exodus” is an anglicized version of a Greek word that means “departure” in recognition of one of the book’s major events—the departure of God’s people from Egypt. Exodus could be considered the central book in the Old Testament because it records God’s act of saving the Israelites and establishing them as a covenant community, a nation chosen to serve and represent Him. Exodus describes: the enslavement and oppression of the Israelites; the preparation and call of Moses; the conflict between Yahweh the God of Israel and the gods of Egypt (represented by Pharaoh); the exodus of the Israelites; their establishment as a nation in covenant with the Lord; their rebellion; and the Lord’s provision for their ongoing relationship, symbolized by His presence at the tabernacle that they built for Him.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The book of Exodus does not state who its author was. It does refer to occasions when Moses made a written record of events that took place and what God had said (17:14; 24:4,7; 34:27-28). The book also contains references to preserving and passing on information. Along with the other four books of the Pentateuch, it has long been considered to be primarily the work of Moses. Moses could have written Exodus at any time during a 40-year time span: after the Israelites finished constructing and dedicating the tabernacle at Mount Sinai, at the start of their second year after leaving Egypt (1445 B.C.), and before his death in the land of Moab (about 1406 B.C.).

Background: Exodus picks up where the Genesis narrative ended with the death of Joseph around 1805 B.C. It quickly moves us forward almost 300 years to a time when the circumstances of Jacob's descendants had changed in Egypt. The Israelites were serving as slaves during Egypt's Eighteenth Dynasty, probably under the pharaohs Thutmose and Amenhotep II. The Hebrew slaves experienced a miraculous deliverance by God's hand through His servant-leader Moses. The Israelite slavery ended in 1446 B.C. The book of Exodus records the events surrounding the exodus from Egypt and the Israelites' first year in the wilderness, including the giving of the law.

The date of the exodus is disputed, but biblical evidence favors 1446 B.C. First Kings 6:1 states that the exodus occurred 480 years before Solomon's fourth year as king, established by biblical data combined with Assyrian chronology to be 966 B.C. In Judges 11:26, Jephthah said that Israel had been living in regions of Palestine for 300 years. Jephthah lived around 1100 B.C., thus dating the end of the wilderness journey around 1400 B.C.

Message and Purpose The book of Exodus shows God at work with the goal of having such close fellowship with people that He is described as dwelling among them. He rescued the Israelites in order to make Himself known, not only by the exercise of His power but also through an ongoing covenant relationship based on His capacity for patience, grace, and forgiveness. The record of what the Lord did for the Israelites provided grounds for them to recognize Him as their God who deserved their complete loyalty and obedience. This record would make clear to the Israelites their identity as God's people and would continue the display of His glorious identity.

Exodus conveys four strong messages: 1. The LORD God: God revealed Himself to Moses and Israel as Yahweh, "I Am Who I Am." This covenant name for God carries profound meaning and affirms the power, authority, and eternal nature of God.

2. Redemption: The Israelites prayed for deliverance and God responded. God worked through His servant-leader Moses, but He did it in such a miraculous way that it was obvious that God was at work. The Israelites could not save themselves; it was all the work of God. The Passover was established to serve as an annual reminder of God's work on their behalf.

3. Law: The law of God is encapsulated in the Ten Commandments, God's absolutes for spiritual and moral living. The law is divided into two sections: the civil law—the rules that govern life in the community—and the ceremonial law—the patterns for worship and building the tabernacle.

4. Tabernacle: God gave specific instructions on how the tabernacle was to be built, but its significance is in what it represented—God dwelling among His people. He was specifically understood to dwell in the holy of holies, inaccessible to the normal Israelite. The tabernacle points ahead to the moment when Christ removed the veil of separation, giving all believers access to God. In the NT, believers become the tabernacle, for God doesn't just dwell among His people; He dwells in them.

Contribution to the Bible Exodus provides the high point of redemptive history in the OT. Many patterns and concepts from Exodus receive attention, further development, and fulfillment elsewhere in Scripture, especially in the past, present, and future work of the Lord Jesus. These include rescue from oppression, provision of sustenance, God's faithfulness to His promises, the self-revelation of God, knowledge of God resulting from His actions, the presence of God, His glory, efforts required to preserve the knowledge of God, a new identity for people that is based on God's actions, provision for worship, provision for life in community, connection between the reputation of God and His relationship with a group of people, obedience and rebellion, intercession, and gracious forgiveness.

Structure Exodus is considered a part of the Law, but it is more historical narrative than law. The book is structured around the life and travels of Moses. Sandwiched between the narratives of chapters 1-18 and 32-40 are the establishment of the covenant (chaps. 19-24) and the laws related to the tabernacle and priesthood.

Study Notes 1:1-7 These verses summarize Gn 37-50, which describe in full how Jacob's family arrived in Egypt, the welcome they received, and the deaths of Jacob and Joseph. The list of sons

(vv. 2-4) does not follow chronological order. It begins with Leah's six sons, then Rachel's younger son, Benjamin. Rachel's older son, Joseph, had come to Egypt first, before Jacob and the rest. The names continue with the two sons of Rachel's maid and finally the two sons of Leah's maid. Without mentioning the mothers, the arrangement of the list reflects family tensions.

1:5 Two other Scripture passages also say that the number who went to Egypt was 70 (Gn 46:27; Dt 10:22). The Septuagint (at Gn 46:27 and Ex 1:5 but not Dt 10:22), two Qumran manuscripts of Exodus, and Ac 7:14 all mention 75. The Septuagint of Gn 46:20 lists five sons and grandsons of Ephraim and Manasseh. These go unmentioned in the Hebrew text and therefore account for the different totals.

1:7 Verses 7, 12, and 20 use several terms to talk about the multiplication of the Israelites. These terms also appear repeatedly in God's creation and flood mandates (Gn 1:20-22,28; 9:1,7) and in promises He made to the patriarchs (Gn 17:2,6,20; 18:18; 26:4,24; 28:14; 35:11). Any Egyptian king who feared and opposed the growth of the Israelite population was opposing the purposes of the Lord.

1:8-22 These unsuccessful attempts to deal shrewdly with the Israelites seem to escalate in desperation and decline in shrewdness. The king of Egypt never reexamined his assumptions; he only tried new methods.

1:8 One plausible explanation of Egyptian and Israelite connections contends that Joseph came to Egypt when the native Egyptian 12th Dynasty ruled in the Middle Kingdom era. Years later, Semitic foreigners known as "Hyksos" took over much of Egypt until the time of Kamose, who reasserted Egyptian rule. The new king is not named in Exodus, nor is any other Egyptian king, but perhaps he was a Hyksos ruler without concern for the rights granted to the Israelites by an earlier regime. Another suggestion is that the "new king" was Ahmose, who followed his brother Kamose as ruler, reigned about 25 years, completed the restoration of Egyptian rule, and founded Dynasty 18 and the New Kingdom era, a period when Egypt exerted a powerful presence in the ancient Near East. Any 18th Dynasty king might have been wary of the Israelites if he associated them with foreigners such as the ousted Hyksos.

1:9 This is the first time the Israelite people are called a "people." They came to Egypt as an extended family, but now Pharaoh compared their numbers with his own. This exaggeration indicates Pharaoh's eagerness to convince his courtiers that they must take decisive action.

1:10 Pharaoh's concerns are ironic in view of the Lord's later statement that if the Israelites faced war on the way to Canaan, they would flee back to Egypt for safety (13:17).

1:11 Supply cities held agricultural produce and other useful items as part of the king's strategic oversight of the country (Gn 41:35; 1Kg 9:15-19).

1:12 The Moabites shared with the Egyptians this dread of the Israelites when they saw how numerous they were (Nm 22:3). Pharaoh's scheme resulted in more Israelites and more fear among the Egyptians, not less of both as he had intended.

1:13-14 Five forms of the same Hebrew word are translated here with forms of "work" or "labor." (A different word for labor is in v. 11.) The repetition drives home what the Egyptians were doing, and also prepares for making a comparison, since the same word can refer to service in worship. The Lord would give the Israelites new work of a different sort (3:12; 4:23; 7:16; 8:1). Elsewhere forms of the word translated bitter describe situations of severe hardship and loss (Ru 1:13,20; 1Sm 30:6; 2Kg 4:27; Is 22:4).

1:15 In this book that takes a profound interest in identities, ironically the king is nameless, but the midwives who honored God are named. Verse 15 begins with the introduction to the king's speech, but then it is as if the king could not speak until the midwives were identified. The delay is more obvious in Hebrew since verse 16 starts over with the same statement the king . . . said that starts verse 15.

1:16 Observe them as they deliver is literally "look at the stones," a term referring here to the genitals. The orders are clear; the midwives must kill Israelite sons and let the daughters live.

1:17 By letting the boys live, the midwives showed that they feared God rather than Pharaoh (Pss 96; 112; Pr 1:7; 3:7; Ac 4:19; 5:29).

1:18-20 True or not, the midwives' excuse about the superior ability of Hebrew women must have been believable, since Pharaoh did not pursue the matter further.

1:22 When Pharaoh commanded all his people, his desperate desire to kill Israelites came out into the open.

2:1-10 The story of how this unnamed baby was protected during dangerous and uncertain times adds to the suspense and indicates the child's important future role. Its close-up depiction of Pharaoh's oppression in one family helps communicate how all the Israelites needed deliverance. It also raises sympathy for the rescued infant and causes us to wonder what he will be like as both a child of slaves and the adopted son of a princess.

2:1 The genealogy of Aaron and Moses names Amram and Jochebed as the parents (6:20; Nm 26:59). Moses' Levite heritage is appropriate, considering his later responsibilities in instituting national worship, since the tribe of Levi was set apart for priestly service (chaps. 28-29; Nm 1:47-54; 3:5-13; 8:5-26).

2:2 Readers in cultures that prize superficial attractiveness may wonder if the mother would have cared for the baby if he had been homely. Her reaction is probably better understood against a background of high infant mortality. The mother recognized that, except for the decree of Pharaoh, this baby would surely live and thrive. Also, the broadly positive adjective translated beautiful is often translated "good" and could describe such varied items as a calf (Gn 18:7), houses (Dt 8:12), a tree (2Kg 3:19), land (Ex 3:8), a method of operating (Ex 18:7), or what is morally right (Ps 14:1; 34:8). The combination of "saw" and "good" in Exodus 2 echoes its use in Genesis 1. Hebrews 11:23 refers to hiding this child as an exercise of faith by his parents. No doubt they were both involved, though the narrative focuses on what the mother and sister did.

2:3 Asphalt and pitch made the basket waterproof; even full-sized boats could be similarly sealed (Is 18:2).

2:4 His sister was Miriam (15:20; Nm 26:59). If a baby was found, people might look around for the mother, but a small girl would attract little attention and could report to her mother or, better yet, think quickly and offer the services of her mother.

2:5-6 The wording in Hebrew tracks the movements of Pharaoh's daughter more closely than the English wording can easily do, helping reflect her important status.

2:10 During the New Kingdom era, Egypt would bring foreign boys to court to train them for service in Egyptian territories. The actions of Pharaoh's daughter continue the undermining of his plans by women, though he considered daughters safe enough to let them live (1:16,22). Moses' name had significance for both Egyptian and Hebrew hearers. In an Egyptian name like Thutmose, mose is related to an Egyptian verb meaning "bear, produce, bring forth" and a noun meaning "child," while Thut/Thoth was a god; so "Thutmose" and similar names celebrated a connection between the birth of a child and an Egyptian god.

Pharaoh's daughter named Moses in a way that suited Egyptian naming patterns and commemorated her action in saving his life, celebrating his connection with her. The name calls to mind a verb meaning "draw out" (2Sm 22:17; Ps 18:16), which to Hebrew readers must have sounded appropriate for the person who led the Israelites out of Egypt. This child's name seems more appropriate than Pharaoh or his daughter could have thought.

2:12 Moses' caution indicates that his action was deliberate. Struck translates the same root word as "beating" (v. 11) and "attacking" (v. 13). In other words, the Egyptian was striking a Hebrew man, a Hebrew man struck another Hebrew, and Moses struck the Egyptian but with a different outcome. Hid translates a word used sometimes in contexts involving burying something (Gn 35:4; Jos 2:6; 7:21); it is different from the word used in verses 2 and 3 about Moses' mother hiding him.

2:13-14 Moses expressed surprise that the two Hebrews were fighting. This incident is evidence that the Israelites' deliverance from Egypt exemplifies God's loyalty and grace; it did not take place because they were all fine, deserving people.

2:15 The land of Midian included territory in modern Saudi Arabia, on the east of the Gulf of Aqaba. The Sinai Peninsula to the west would not have been far enough from Pharaoh to be safe, since Egypt had mining interests in the Sinai and it was under Egyptian military control. When he sat down by a well as a newcomer, Moses positioned himself to meet people, as had Abraham's servant when he met Rebekah, and as Jacob had done when he met Rachel (Gn 24:11-14; 29:1-6).

2:16 The priest of Midian, the father of seven daughters, was called Reuel (v. 18; Nm 10:29), Hobab (Jdg 4:11), and most often Jethro (Ex 3:1; 4:18; 18:1-12). Other men with more than one name include Jacob (Gn 32:28; 46:2; 48:2; 49:2), Gideon (Jdg 7:1; 8:35), and Solomon (2Sm 12:24-25). Midianites were descendants of Abraham through his wife Keturah (Gn 25:1-2). Because of this connection, perhaps Jethro led others in worship of the God of Abraham and Isaac, as did Melchizedek (Gn 14:18-20). The Midianites as a whole seem to have been nomadic desert dwellers who were later enemies of Israel (Gn 37:28,36; Nm 22:4,7; 25:1-18; 31:1-20; Jos 13:21; Jdg 6-8; 9:17; Ps 83:9; Is 9:4; 10:26; 60:6).

2:17-19 Again Moses came to the defense of someone, but this time it had nothing to do with the Israelites or their plight. He rescued a bunch of shepherd girls from what seems to have been a common annoyance, and they thought he was an Egyptian. Moses' identity continued to be an issue.

2:22 The name Gershom reflected the son's status as an alien in both Egypt and Midian.

2:23-24 The word for groaning describes a man with broken arms in Ezk 30:24. Four different words for the Israelite outcry and four words for God's response combine to make a weighty statement of desperation and response. The formality is enhanced in Hebrew by the unusual repetition of the word God as the subject of each verb in verse 24, which also underscores God's superiority and sovereignty: God heard . . . God remembered . . . God saw . . . God took notice. God's remembering is more than mental awareness; it implies action in keeping with His covenant promises (Gn 8:1; 19:29; 30:22; Lv 26:42-45; Ps 105:8; 106:44-46; Jr 14:21; Am 1:9). The command to "remember" the Sabbath Day is parallel to the command to "keep" the Sabbath (Ex 20:8; Dt 5:12).

"Took notice" (heard) translates a verb often translated "know" or "knew" (1:8; 5:2; 6:3,7; 7:5; 16:12; 18:11), which like "remember" typically involves more than awareness of information. Here it carries the thought of having regard for something or someone and of exercising personal concern (Ps 31:7; 37:18; 144:3; Hs 13:4). Because God knew their situation and took action, the Israelites and others would come to know Him in a new way. This verse assumes that readers are familiar with the promises that God had made and confirmed by covenants with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (Gn 12:1-3,7; 13:14-17; 15:1-21; 17:1-21; 18:17-19; 21:12-13; 22:15-18; 28:3-4,10-22; 32:9-12; 35:9-15; 46:1-4; 48:3-4,15-16; 50:24-25).

3:1 Many ancient gods were associated with a mountain where they were believed to live. The Lord was by no means limited to this mountain, however, as His actions at other mountains and other places make clear (e.g., Gn 22:14; 1Kg 18:20-45; 2Kg 6:17; Is 2:3; Ezk 28:14,16; Zch 8:3).

3:2-3 The Angel of the LORD was active in Genesis to inform, rebuke, protect, and provide guidance and success (Gn 16:7-11; 21:17; 22:11,15; 24:7,40; 31:11). The account in Exodus 3 describes the following conversation as directly between the Lord and Moses, without concern for how the event occurred. Fire is frequently associated with special displays of God's presence (Ex 13:21-22; 19:18; 40:38; Dt 4:11-24,33-36; Jdg 6:21; 13:20; 1Kg 18:24,38; 2Ch 7:1-3; Ps 18:8,12-13; 50:3; 97:1-5; Is 66:15-16; Dn 7:9).

3:6 The possibility of danger implicit in human contact with God is reflected throughout Scripture (19:21-24; 24:11; 33:20-23; Gn 32:30; Jdg 13:20-23; Is 6:5; Ac 9:3-9; 1Tm 6:15-16; Rv 19:11-21). This place was holy, not because of any quality intrinsic to it, but because of God's presence and activity. The tabernacle would be a place set apart by the Lord's presence (Ex 29:43-44). To stay at a distance and remove footwear was then and is now in many cultures a sign of respect and humility. The Lord's self-identification, which began, I am the God of your father, connected this event with the past both by naming the patriarchs and by the wording of the statement (Gn 15:7; 17:1; 26:24; 28:13; 31:13; 35:11; 46:3). It also had the ring of a formal pronouncement by a king (Gn 41:44).

3:8 In Egypt the Israelite flocks were limited to the region of Goshen (see Gn 46:32-34). By comparison, the new land would be spacious . . . flowing with milk and honey—resentful Levites later used this phrase to describe Egypt (Nm 16:12-14). In the land of Canaan, such abundance depended on rain. The word for honey may also describe a sweet syrup made from boiling dates, grapes, and other fruit.

3:11-12 Moses' question—Who am I?—reminds us of the question one of the Hebrews asked Moses in 2:14: "Who are you?" The answer to these questions has nothing to do with Moses' upbringing or abilities. The Lord's promise to Moses, I will certainly be with you, depends for its value on who the Lord is; it matters that He is present because He is willing and able to act. This promise gave Moses grounds for authority that was missing earlier (2:11-15) and continues the important theme of God's personal involvement in the lives of His people (Gn 28:15; 31:3; 46:4; 48:21; Ex 33:14-16; Nm 14:43; Jos 1:9; Zch 8:23; Mt 28:20; Jn 14:16; Heb 13:5). To worship God with all the Israelites at the mountain where God and Moses were speaking would be a sign for Moses because he would be able to look back and know that this worship was possible only because of what the Lord had done (Ex 18:1-12; 24:1-11).

3:13-15 God's statement is worded with a finality that sometimes appears at the end of a conversation, typically to put an end to debate without volunteering information, like Pilate's statement, "What I have written, I have written" (Jn 19:22; also Gn 43:14; Ex 16:23; 33:19; 2Sm 15:20; Est 4:16; Jr 15:1-2). The statements containing I AM (v. 14) use the same Hebrew verb that God's promise, "I will certainly be with you," does in verse 12 (and also 4:12,15).

The wordplay with the verb makes it especially prominent and recalls the promise, as if to remind Moses, "The one who promises to be with you is the one who sends you." Since Hebrew verbs gather much of their temporal meaning from their contexts, the same form can indicate present or future or both at once, depending on the situation. Here the promises in 3:12; 4:12,15 are oriented to the future; so though "will" is appropriate in English, it does not exclude God's presence with Moses at the time they were speaking. Nor does the English present tense "am" in 3:14 exclude the future.

3:16 The name Yahweh is connected etymologically with the Hebrew verb "to be" that appears so prominently in verses 12,14. Yahweh was no stranger. He was the God of their fathers: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Four hundred years in Egypt had not annulled the promises made to them and their offspring (2:24). He now sent Moses to their descendants, the Israelites. If the Israelites wanted to know who He was, they needed to look at what He had done. When the present translation uses the word LORD (with large and small capital letters), it is representing the Hebrew name that can also be transliterated "Yahweh."

3:18 A three-day trip . . . so that we may sacrifice was a reasonable request, since other slave groups in Egypt received permission for similar journeys to worship their gods. Something about Israelite sacrifices was abhorrent to the Egyptians (8:26); a three-day trip into the wilderness would get them well out of sight.

3:20 The two clauses I will stretch out My hand and he will let you go both use a form of the same Hebrew verb, making tight connection between cause and effect. When God's hand goes to work, the Israelites will go out of Egypt. The contest would be between the hand of the Lord and the "power [lit "hand"] of the Egyptians" as personified by Pharaoh (v. 8).

3:21-22 Gifts of silver and gold would fulfill what the Lord had told Abram (Gn 15:14), repeating the pattern of Abram's own departure from Egypt with wealth that had been handed to him (Gn 12:16,20; cp. Gn 20:14,16). The word translated plunder has a parallel use in 2Ch 20:25 to describe plundering corpses on a battlefield. Its use in Ex 3:22 and 12:36 may be an intentional overstatement. It contributes to showing the nature of the Lord's victory over Egypt, which may be why 3:22 particularly mentions that Israelite women—noncombatants ordinarily—would do the asking. In 11:2 and 12:35 men also participate.

4:1-9 These three signs the Lord gave Moses pertain to areas of common human vulnerability—attack by other creatures, illness, and the need for water—all of which are under the sovereign power of the Lord. The signs begin a pattern in Exodus of actions that are intended to prompt faith and obedience.

4:3-4 Moses ordinarily would have used his staff to defend himself and his flock from snakes; now his staff became a snake. Speculation that the command to catch the snake by the tail rather than some other method required more faith from Moses, and that the writer of Exodus was unfamiliar with snakes is unnecessary. As Moses reached out, the tail would have been closest to him and, in fact, snakes are often picked up tail first.

4:6-7 Traditionally and in many translations, Moses' disease has been called leprosy, though the Hebrew term used here covers a variety of severe afflictions, even problems found in garments and buildings (Lv 13-14; Nm 12:10; Dt 24:8-9; 2Kg 5; 2Ch 26:19-21). The descriptions in Leviticus do not match the symptoms of leprosy, a condition also called Hansen's disease that is caused by bacteria.

4:10-12 Moses' next objection that he was slow . . . in speech returned to the problem of his personal identity and unsuitability (2:14; 3:11), as if God were dependent on him. God's answer returned attention to who He is and what He would do.

4:10 Moses began by saying he was not eloquent (lit "I am not a man of words"). Ironically, Moses used 21 Hebrew words arranged in somewhat complicated expressions to say that he could not speak well. He used a figure of speech referring to his mouth and tongue as "heavy" (lit "I am heavy of mouth and heavy of tongue"). The word for "heavy" also describes ears that do not hear (Is 6:10; 59:1; Zch 7:11) and eyes that do not see (Gn 48:10). One might think of a tool that is too heavy to be used easily and so impedes the efforts that it ought to make easier.

4:11 The Lord answered by arguing from the greater to the lesser, implying that the Creator of all can deal with the problem of one. His rhetorical questions invited Moses to think and recognize that he was making a mistake by not viewing the situation from God's point of view.

4:12 The Lord's command and statement amount to a repeat of His promise to be with Moses (3:12). He applies it specifically to the problem of speaking, saying literally, "I will be with your mouth."

4:14-16 I will help both you and him repeats again His promise to be with Moses and applies it to Aaron as well. To help them speak well, God promised (lit), "I will be with your mouth and with his mouth." The promise that God would teach Moses and Aaron what to say and do has NT parallels (Lk 12:11-12; Jn 14:26). The working relationship that the Lord described for Aaron and Moses was analogous to that of a prophet with God. He will be your spokesman (lit "he will be a mouth for you"), and Moses would be like God for Aaron in telling him what to say to the people. Moses had complained of having a defective mouth; he would now have a new one to use.

4:19 This verse resumes God's instruction to Moses (3:10) and adds some reassuring information.

4:20 This is the first mention of Moses' two sons. Gershom was named in 2:22. The name of the second was Eliezer (18:3).

4:21-22 This introductory summary is matched by the similar concluding statement in 11:9-10 that "Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh." So the signs Moses had been given and the use of the staff would apply to both the Israelites (4:1-9) and to Pharaoh to authenticate Moses' message, although all the wonders would include the plagues Moses would announce as well. God informed Moses here not of what he was to say initially to Pharaoh but of the final result. In order to free Yahweh's firstborn son, Pharaoh's firstborn son would have to die (11:4-8).

When He presented the matter as a formal declaration (This is what Yahweh says), the Lord framed the message as a demand from a king to an underling. In the language of ancient treaties and letters, when a king declared that someone was his son, respect for the superior rank and authority of the "father" was called for. Yahweh was claiming that He, and not Pharaoh, had authority over Israel. Yahweh was also demanding that Pharaoh show proper respect to Yahweh by treating His "son" with respect. Everyone understood that failure to comply would call for severe penalties.

Such a demand to submit to the Lord would go entirely against the grain of Egyptian culture and beliefs about Pharaoh as a deity and the only king—inferior to no one. Making matters worse, Israel was being claimed as the "firstborn," a position of privilege within ancient families that was obtained through birth order or by appointment (Gn 25:21-36; Dt 21:16-17; 1Ch 5:1-2; 26:10; Ps 89:27). In short, Pharaoh was informed that he was merely a vassal ruling a second-rate nation and must answer to Yahweh.

Exodus uses three different Hebrew words for harden to describe what the Lord and Pharaoh himself did to his heart. The word here is especially associated with strength. Depending on the context, it could have a positive meaning (courage, steadfastness, Ps 27:14; 31:24) or a negative meaning (stubbornness, obstinacy, Ezk 2:4). When the Lord hardened hearts, it was a matter of executing judgment against confirmed rebels, not people who otherwise wanted to serve the Lord (Dt 2:30; Jos 11:20; Is 6:9-10; 63:17). It meant that Pharaoh would not listen and obey but would demonstrate that he deserved God's judgment.

The hardening of Pharaoh's heart was especially appropriate as an attack on Egyptian beliefs. Egyptians valued a "hard heart," since it was needed after death during judgment to testify on behalf of the dead individual rather than to admit wrongdoing. This terminology was also used to describe the ideal man in public life, who because of his "hard heart" would always appear firm and unshaken. When Pharaoh's heart becomes hard in Exodus, however, he is not cool and in command, and the truth about his character becomes known.

4:24-26 Perhaps the statement that the Lord sought to put him to death expressed how the circumstances appeared to Moses and Zipporah. It was apparent to Zipporah what had to be done, and nothing is said about what would have happened if she had failed to act. Circumcision was performed in Egypt when boys were 14 years of age. However, circumcision on the eighth day had been commanded of Abraham as the sign of God's covenant (Gn 17:1-14; 21:4). Moses' failure to circumcise his son shows that Moses had not been acting like a member of the covenant community, a serious offense. In contrast with the custom in Egypt—where a boy's circumcision was associated with coming into manhood—performing circumcision on the eighth day of an infant's life would naturally have involved his mother, who would closely care for the infant. So every Israelite wife and mother of a son would have thus been reminded of the covenant between God and Israel. Now because Moses had neglected the circumcision of at least one of his sons, Zipporah suddenly was involved. If Moses was to speak for Abraham's God, who was in the process of keeping His covenant promises, Moses needed to observe the sign of that covenant.

4:28 This summary parallels the one in 18:8.

4:31 The Israelites responded to Aaron and Moses with belief and worship, rather than with the skepticism that Moses had expected (3:13). This was a sign of God's faithfulness to His chosen servant.

5:1 Subservient groups in Egypt were allowed time off to worship their gods, but the way that Moses and Aaron spoke for the Lord told their hearers that this message was a command from Pharaoh's superior.

5:2 Pharaoh intended his question as an insult, not as a request for information (like the question asked about Moses' identity and authority in 2:14). Proverbs 30:9 describes the question, "Who is the Lord?" as that of a self-satisfied person who is denying God's providence. Pharaoh's assertion I do not know anything about Yahweh continues the insult and makes no admission of ignorance. Pharaoh would have believed the answer to his rhetorical question to be "Yahweh is certainly no one that I need to recognize or obey." Pharaoh was rejecting Yahweh's position of superiority. A right knowledge of and respect for the identity of the Lord is central to the issue of whether or not to obey Him (cp. Jn 8:48-55); the events recorded in the book of Exodus answer Pharaoh's question about who the Lord is for the benefit of the Israelites (Ex 6:7), the Egyptians (7:5), onlookers (18:11; Jos 2:8-11; Jdg 2:2-11; 1Sm 4:7-8; 6:6), and subsequent readers (Ps 105; Is 63:7-14), providing ample grounds for obedience.

5:3 Concern over consequences for failure to obey the Lord gave Pharaoh another indication that He was someone to be reckoned with and that Israelite allegiance must ultimately be to Him rather than to Pharaoh (Is 8:11-13; Jr 1:17). The Lord had authority to command and power to enforce that Pharaoh did not have.

5:19 Repeated mention of the daily quota (lit "the requirement/amount of a day in its day") from 5:13 helps convey the oppressiveness of the situation: the Egyptians made demands and kept account of what the Israelites did every day.

5:20 The sight of Moses and Aaron standing on the outside, waiting to hear what had happened, only to be scolded by the foremen, further shows them as having little or no power.

5:21 Earlier when Moses intervened in a fight between Israelites, one of them challenged his right to act as a judge and accused Moses of intending to kill him (2:14). Now the foremen called on the Lord to judge Moses. They were not expecting freedom at this point. Their hopes for restoring the status quo had just been crushed, so much so that they considered Moses responsible for their impending death. They believed Moses had made the Israelites so offensive to the Egyptians (you have made us reek) that they would want to kill the Israelites. Their comment also shows that the Israelite foremen already knew that the Lord had the right and the ability to act as the ultimate Judge in the situation.

5:22-23 The foremen hoped to gain favor with Pharaoh by blaming others for the trouble. They still saw their welfare as under his control. When he spoke to the Lord, Moses boldly blamed both the Lord and Pharaoh (You caused trouble and he has caused trouble) for worsening conditions and asserted that the Lord had done nothing to rescue His people. Obedience of the Lord's commands by Moses and Aaron and the elders had led to trouble rather than immediate ease.

6:1 The Hebrew wording does not include the pronoun My to specify that the strong hand must be that of the Lord rather than Pharaoh, but this impetus has been mentioned in 3:19-20.

6:2-3 A variety of attempts have been made to derive English renderings other than (or more precise than) God Almighty for the Hebrew name El Shaddai, based on proposed etymological connections with words in Hebrew or in other Semitic languages. But as with many names, usage provides the best insights into its significance. Among these are references to the exercise of authoritative power, discernment, justice, chastening, protection or destruction, provision of blessings, and the hearing of prayer. "Shaddai" appears most often in the book of Job (Jb 5:17; 6:4,14; 8:3,5; 11:7; 13:3; 21:15; 33:4; 34:12; 37:23; 40:2, among others), and the combination with El is prominent in Genesis as a name for God in His dealings with the patriarchs (Gn 17:1; 28:3; 35:11; 43:14; 48:3). Naomi used the name Shaddai in her complaint against God (Ru 1:20-21), and it appears also in Nm 24:4,16; Ps 68:14; 91:1; Is 13:6; Ezk 1:24; 10:5; Jl 1:15. The rendering of "Shaddai" with "Almighty" is traceable to Greek translations done before the time of Christ (pantokrator) and to the Vulgate (Omnipotens). Meanwhile, the word "El" is associated with a Hebrew word for strength, and forms of it appear widely in ancient Semitic languages to refer to deity.

"El" is a generic word for deity—a classifying word—while "Yahweh" is a personal name. Because the name Yahweh is used in Genesis, even frequently in quoted speech (Gn 9:26; 15:2,7-8; 16:5; 18:4; 19:13-14; 21:33; 22:14,17; 24:27-56; 26:28-29; 27:20,27; 28:13), scholars have debated about what is meant when in Ex 6:3 God says, I did not reveal My name Yahweh to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Since the name Yahweh was well known by the time Genesis was written, some have proposed its usage in Genesis is anachronistic but compatible with common literary practice—much like a modern historian might tell the story of a king's early years using the throne name that he later adopted at his coronation.

Or it may be that Ex 6:3 is not indicating that the name "Yahweh" was previously unknown among the Israelites but rather that now the Israelites would see the truth of the name's meaning displayed before them. They would come to know by experience Yahweh as their covenant-keeping God. This has parallels in Is 52:6 and Jr 16:21, which look forward to future occasions when people will personally experience His actions that fill His name with meaning (Is 64:2; Ezk 39:7).

It is also possible to translate God's words as "Did I not reveal My name Yahweh?" (cp. 2 Sam 23:5; Ps 105:28). This rendering would relieve the present difficulty, but few translations have thought it the most accurate rendering.

For God to recall to Moses the name El Shaddai , a deeply meaningful name from the experiences of the patriarchs, while also referring to Himself as Yahweh, is part of emphasizing the continuity between God's promises to the patriarchs and what He was doing for Israel through Moses.

6:5 I have remembered is a way of saying that He was about to act in accordance with His covenant with the ancestors (Ps 98:1-3; 109:14-16; 115:12; Jr 14:21; Am 1:9).

6:6-8 God's message for the Israelites put emphasis at the beginning, middle, and end on His identity: I am Yahweh. Freeing Israel from Egypt would be part of a permanent relationship between the Lord and the Israelites. By what He did, the Israelites would come to know from experience who He is, and their own identity as His people would be established and displayed.

Both the Lord and the Israelites would be known as a result of what the Lord would do: deliver you from the forced labor (lit, and perhaps easier to visualize, "bring you out from under the burdensome labor"), free you . . . redeem you . . . take you as My people . . . bring you to the land, and give it to you. That the Lord would be known as a result of what He did continues the theme of action leading to knowledge (see 4:1-9), which is repeated frequently throughout Exodus and serves as one of the book's unifying elements (7:5,17; 8:10,22; 9:14,29; 10:2; 11:7; 14:4,18; 16:6,12; 18:11; 29:46; 31:13; 33:13,16).

6:6 The references to forced labor in verses 6 and 7 translate the same Hebrew word that was heard twice when Pharaoh complained that Moses and Aaron were stopping the Israelites "from working" (5:5) and told them to get back to their “labors” (5:4); it is also used at the start of the oppression (1:11; cp. 2:11). The Lord would oppose Pharaoh and his plans and would be successful where Moses was not, despite how it might appear at first.

The promise I will redeem you uses a legal term that pictures the Lord’s action as that of a close relative who protected a family member or recovered property that belonged to someone in the extended family (Lv 25; 27; Dt 19; Jr 32:6-15). Boaz did this for Naomi and Ruth (Ru 3:2,9-13; 4:1-17). Such things were a matter of special interest to the Lord, who gained the reputation as Redeemer supreme (Pr 23:10-11; Is 41:14; 44:6; Jr 31:9-11). For the Lord to speak of Himself as redeeming the Israelites by means of His outstretched arm clarified the nature of the conflict with Pharaoh. In Egyptian art and literature, Pharaoh was pictured in battle gear with his arm stretched out as a way of showing how powerful he was. Along with the “strong hand” (v. 1), the “outstretched arm” was a frequently used figure in references to what the Lord did at the time of the exodus (Dt 4:34; 5:15; 7:19; 9:29; 11:2; 2Kg 17:36; Ps 136:12; Jr 32:21).

In a later prophecy about the future defeat of Egypt, Pharaoh’s arms are broken (Ezk 30:20-26), and in a terrible reversal of the exodus, the Lord’s hand and arm are turned against Judah (Jr 21:5), but when restoration is prophesied, the strong hand and outstretched arm of the Lord are again at work on behalf of His people (Ezk 20:33-34). The Lord’s great acts of judgment (cp. Ex 7:4) would include action taken against the gods of Egypt (12:12; Nm 33:4). Ezekiel 14:21 also uses this term and defines the judgments planned there as including losses in war (“the sword”), famine, dangerous animals, and plagues, all sent as Israel’s punishment for idolatry (cp. Ezk 5:17).

6:10-12 Regardless of the rejections Moses had received, the Lord instructed him to try again. Not even the Israelites had listened to him; why should Pharaoh? Moses’ self-deprecating I am such a poor speaker is (lit) “I am uncircumcised of lips.” The term “uncircumcised” is used elsewhere of ears that could not listen (Jr 6:10) as well as being a derogatory description of the enemies of Israel (Jdg 14:3; 15:18; 1Sm 14:6; Jr 9:26; Ezk 28:10).

6:13-7 : 6 This genealogy could theoretically have been placed in a different location that would have required less effort and repetition. Here it interrupts the conversation between the Lord and Moses and creates suspense by forcing readers to wait for the answer that Moses presumably received immediately. In answer to questions raised in chapters 2-6 about the identity and abilities of Moses, it supplies a formal identification of Moses and Aaron that 6:13,26-27, and 7:6 make even more formal.

6:16-25 This family would be important to the institution of worship at the tabernacle in the wilderness, since Aaron and his sons and finally one line of his sons (Nm 25:1-18) would be designated as priests. Moses' sons are not mentioned.

6:26 According to their divisions uses a military term to speak of the Israelites leaving in an orderly fashion. The same word is used in 7:4, and it sometimes refers to "armies" (1Kg 2:5; 2Kg 5:1; Is 34:2).

7:3-5 God promised to harden Pharaoh's heart (cp. 4:21), this time using a word that also describes the oppression that Pharaoh inflicted on the Israelites. Pharaoh had made their slavery "difficult" or "hard" (1:14; 6:9; Dt 26:6), and in return, his heart would become "hard." This way it would be clear that when the Israelites left Egypt it was not because of the persuasiveness of Moses or the wise leadership of Pharaoh. Earlier the Lord had said that as a result of His actions, the Israelites would know Him as Yahweh their God (Ex 6:7). Now He said that also the Egyptians will know that I am Yahweh by the way He would bring the Israelites out of Egypt. This continues and expands the theme of action leading to knowledge of the Lord (see note at 6:6-8).

7:6 The formal notice that Moses and Aaron did just as the LORD commanded them introduces a refrain with later parallels, especially in the account of the construction of the tabernacle (vv. 10,20; 12:28,50; 38:22; 39:1,32,42-43; 40:16).

7:8-13 Miracle in verse 9 represents the singular form of the same word translated "wonders" in verse 3. But seeing this wonder did Pharaoh no good, since he did not respond with faith and obedience (Heb 3:13-4:6). A staff (sometimes called a scepter) as a symbol of power and authority has had widespread currency (Ps 110:2; Is 10:5,24; 14:5; Ezk 19:10-14). Both staffs and serpents were prominent in Egyptian art. The kings of Egypt are also pictured wearing crowns that display a menacing cobra as a symbol of protection for the king and danger for his enemies, so that all would respect his commands.

7:9 The term translated serpent here and in verses 10 and 12 is a different Hebrew word than in 4:3. Since it is sometimes used to refer to large water creatures (Is 27:1; Ezk 29:3; 32:2), its appearance here may emphasize the size and frightening effect of the snakes in the contest.

7:11-12 Pharaoh summoned the wise men and sorcerers, functionaries who were present in other ancient royal courts (Gn 41:8,24; Is 19:11-13; Jr 27:9; Dn 1:20; 2:2,10,27). To have them as part of the retinue at his command was another evidence of Pharaoh's power. These men used occult practices to demonstrate their power and that of Pharaoh by duplicating what Moses and Aaron did when they simply obeyed the Lord (cp. 1Kg 18:25-39). Israel was unique among ancient Near Eastern cultures in that all forms of occult activity were outlawed because the people of God were to trust Him and His provisions for their security (Lv 19:26-31; Dt 18:9-14; 2Kg 21:1-12; Is 8:13-22; 47:9-15). Even if someone could produce a miracle, if the message that person brought led away from loyalty to the Lord, the Israelites must not listen (Dt 13:1-4; Mt 7:21-23; 24:24).

7:13 This verse uses the word for hardened associated with strength and firmness (as in 4:21) to describe Pharaoh's heart. King Josiah exemplifies the opposite condition, when his heart is described as "tender" (or soft) and he listened humbly to the Lord's words (2Kg 22:19).

7:14- 11 : 10 The ten plagues described in this section are in three groups of three plagues each, plus one last climactic plague—the death of the firstborn. Elsewhere the pattern of three plus a fourth appears in contexts that emphasize thorough observation and completeness of reckoning (Pr 30:15-31; Am 1:3-2:8). Each plague that has an announcement comes with the same command: Let My people go, so that they may worship Me (v. 16; 8:1,20; 9:1,13; 10:3). The exception is the tenth plague. There Moses informed Pharaoh that after this last plague, Pharaoh's own people would come to Moses to beg the Israelites to leave Egypt (11:8).

In each group of plagues, Moses brings the announcement of the first one to Pharaoh when meeting him "in the morning" (7:15; cp. 8:20; 9:13). The second plague of each group is announced in the palace, when Moses "went in to Pharaoh" (10:3; cp. 8:1; 9:1). After each of the nine plagues comes a notice about the condition of Pharaoh's heart (7:22-23; 8:15,19,32; 9:7,12,35; 10:20,27).

The orderliness and consistency of the Lord and Moses as the contest progresses contrast with the vacillation in Pharaoh's personal behavior (expressing regret, offering concessions and taking them back, angry outbursts) and the growing chaos in the realm in which he was thought responsible to maintain order. Throughout, Moses did what the Lord told him to do, while Pharaoh did the opposite, just as God had foretold; the implication is that the Lord is sovereign in human affairs. The plagues involved natural elements and events that were familiar to Egyptians—water, frogs, insects, east and west winds, storms, diseases, darkness—but they were not merely natural. The Lord, to and through Moses and Aaron, foretold the timing, intensity, and extent of the plagues, which set them apart from mere natural disasters. For example, hordes of locusts have come to portions of Egypt intermittently throughout history, but not to the extent reported in Exodus and not in the wake of the series of disasters that struck Egypt then. Likewise, all firstborn humans die, but they do not die all at once and to the exclusion of other humans. The Lord also announced the purpose of the plagues, explaining that they were intended to reveal His identity, to make Him known to a wide audience (6:1,7; 7:5,17; 8:10,22; 9:14-16,29; 10:2; 11:7). Note the gradual increase in seriousness and the gradual defeat of the magicians (7:12; 8:18-19; 9:11).

Attempts have been made to identify each of the plagues as an attack on one of the many Egyptian gods. Such equivalence is not required, however, for the events to show the futility of Egyptian beliefs, the powerlessness of Egyptian deities, and the necessity of allegiance to Yahweh. The events in Exodus as a whole reveal Him to be trustworthy. The contest with Pharaoh displays the Lord's sovereignty over an array of natural elements necessary for human life and over the inner workings of a man whom Egyptians believed to be a god but who was in fact just an ordinary human king (Ezr 6:22; Pr 21:1).

7:14 The word hard (lit "heavy") represents a Hebrew figure of speech. In English to have a "heavy heart" typically means to be troubled or sad. But the Hebrew term for "heavy" could describe a mouth and tongue that did not speak well (4:10), eyes that did not see (Gn 48:10), and ears that did not hear (Is 6:10; 59:1; Zch 7:11). In both Egyptian and Hebrew, the heart (like the mind)—as the center of mental, emotional, and volitional activity—was supposed to listen and respond appropriately (Dt 30:17; 1Kg 3:9; Solomon asked to be given "a hearing heart"). Pharaoh was failing to respond as he ought.

Pharaoh's "heavy" heart registered another problem, because according to Egyptian beliefs, gods would weigh a person's heart after death to determine his destiny in the afterlife. If it was heavy by comparison with a feather, a symbol for wisdom, then a fierce god stood by to devour the individual. Elsewhere in the OT sin is spoken of as heavy and as making the heart heavy (Gn 18:20; Ps 38:4; Is 1:4; 24:20), and the Lord is the One who weighs hearts, which makes Him the ultimate Judge of all, including Pharaoh and other kings (1Sm 2:3; Pr 16:2; 21:2; 24:12; Dn 5:25-28).

The Lord's assessment of Pharaoh was also important because Pharaoh and his heart were thought to be responsible for maintaining order throughout Egypt. Order was thought to be the essential expression of wisdom (in contrast to the essence of wisdom in Ps 111:10; Pr 1:7; 9:10; 15:33; Dn 2:20). During the plagues Pharaoh could not maintain order; he failed by both the Lord's standards and his own.

7:17-18 Suggestions about why Pharaoh was expected to go out in the morning to the river (8:20) include the possibility of a worship ritual, something about his personal habits, or to measure the river's depth and reach during its flood stage. It is unclear whether the river became actual blood, or whether it was so polluted that the word "blood" would best describe how it looked. The Hebrew word is related to the word for the color red and is sometimes used to describe something that had the appearance of blood but was not literal blood (Gn 49:11; Dt 32:14; 2Kg 3:22; Jl 2:31). Either way, it caused the fish to die, the water to stink, and people to need something else to drink. Pharaoh had used the Nile to bring death to Israelite babies, but now it would be a source of death rather than life for Egyptians, and Pharaoh could do nothing about it.

7:21 The Israelite foremen had complained that Moses had made them reek to Pharaoh (same Hb verb as in v. 18; 5:21), but now there was something that truly stank—the Nile.

7:25 The Lord striking the Nile had been symbolized and enacted when Aaron struck it with his staff (v. 20).

8:8 Pharaoh's request put Moses in a situation similar to that of Abraham in Gn 20:7,17; both were called prophets, both prayed for a foreign ruler, and the Lord answered both with relief (Ex 7:1; 8:13-14). The wording of Pharaoh's request shows that he understood what had happened and what he ought to do.

8:9-10 The opportunity for Pharaoh to choose the time would show that the end of the plague was under the Lord's control. Unless Pharaoh's answer, Tomorrow, was idiomatic for "immediately," or "as soon as possible," his choice postponed the end of the plague until the next day. The response to Moses' prayer pointed to the Lord's incomparability; He could start and stop this plague at will.

8:15 This is the first instance of Pharaoh making his heart "heavy" himself (cp. 7:14), but it is matched by the notice in 7:23 that he failed to "take to heart" the first plague. References to Pharaoh's hardening his own heart, in the sense of making it "heavy" and so inoperative, also include 8:32; 9:34.

8:16-19 Researchers have debated about exactly what kind of troublesome insects these were: gnats, fleas, mosquitoes, or ticks. When they found they could not duplicate the plague, Pharaoh's magicians declared, This is the finger of God (cp. 31:18; Dt 9:10; Ps 8:3). Yet, by their description, this disaster required the action of just a finger of the God who had said He would put His hand into Egypt. After the magicians' admission, Goshen began to be excluded from the plagues beginning with the fourth, making it irrefutable that the God of the Hebrews was responsible since He spared His own people.

8:21 The use of two somewhat rhyming forms of a Hebrew word for send marks the cause-and-effect connection that Pharaoh needed to recognize. An idea of the tone may be indicated by a rendering such as, "If you won't send out, I will send in."

8:22-23 During the fourth plague and others to follow, the Lord would distinguish His people from Pharaoh's people in order to give knowledge of His sovereign presence. This new element and the use of two forms of the word "send" in verse 21 help to highlight the conflict and contrast between the Lord and Pharaoh. It would be clear that Pharaoh was unable to protect his people. Goshen was in northeastern Egypt, possibly near Wadi Tumilat, and had excellent pasture for sheep and goats (Gn 45:10; 46:34; 47:4,6).

8:24-28 The rare word translated swarms of flies does not specify a particular insect and may indicate a mixture. Pharaoh's stipulations in verses 25 and 28 show that he still thought he was in charge and could assert his authority. His don't go very far uses an emphatic construction and the kind of negative command that only someone of superior status could issue. The word Moses used for detest is the same one that Gn 43:32 and 46:34 use to talk about the Egyptians' refusal to eat with Joseph's Hebrew brothers, that is, the Egyptian scorn for shepherds. Apparently Pharaoh could admit that Moses was right about the clash of cultures. Pharaoh would let the Israelites go and sacrifice in the wilderness, but his quick command—make an appeal for me—just two words in Hebrew, shows what he was primarily interested in.

8:29 Jacob used the word translated here act deceptively to describe how Laban had cheated him when he kept changing Jacob's pay (Gn 31:7). The Lord did not owe Pharaoh warnings or rebukes. Each rebuke and each warning of an impending plague gave Pharaoh an opportunity to change course.

9:2 The phrase holding them uses a form of the same verb that 4:4 uses where Moses "caught" the snake. To speak of Pharaoh holding on to the Israelites fits scenes in Egyptian art that depict the king as a warrior with one hand grasping a captive by the hair and the other holding a club ready to strike him.

9:3 Plague five is in keeping with the Lord's earlier announcements that He would put His hand into Egypt and extend His hand against Egypt (3:20; 7:4-5).

9:5-7 The word for time is used later in Exodus to speak of the appointments that the Lord set for the Israelites as occasions to gather for worship (13:10; 23:15; 34:18). Again a distinction was made; no Israelite livestock died, which Pharaoh knew both from the plague announcement and from checking afterward, but he did not benefit from the information that he gathered. Verse 7 highlights Pharaoh's contradictory behavior by using two forms of the Hebrew word for "send"; he sent to find out about Israelite livestock but would not send the Israelites out of Egypt. Later events (vv. 19-25) indicate that all the Egyptian livestock is meant to be taken as (a) an intentional hyperbole or general statement, with exceptions being minor enough not to matter, or (b) that it refers to most of the varieties mentioned in verse 3, or (c) that animals not "in the field" (v. 3) were spared, or (d) that enough time passed for Egyptians to acquire more animals.

9:8 Furnace soot may have been readily available from brick kilns, which would have offered a measure of poetic justice, though soot from a smelting furnace or lime kiln would also have sufficed.

9:9 Festering boils and specifically Egyptian boils were infamous enough to be included among the covenant curses in Dt 28:27,35.

9:10-11 Moses and Aaron stood before Pharaoh, but the magicians could not stand before Moses. This turnabout of wording enhances the status of Moses by putting him in the position of "holding court." The magicians were finished and are not mentioned again in Exodus.

9:12 This is the first instance in which the LORD hardened Pharaoh's heart. Earlier notices have mentioned his heart's condition (7:13,22; 8:19) or recorded that Pharaoh did the hardening (8:15,32), although the first reference to the Lord's hardening Pharaoh's heart is in 4:21.

9:13-17 The Lord could easily have destroyed Pharaoh and his people without plagues or the hardening of Pharaoh's heart (cp. Dn 2:20-21), but these events were designed to show the Lord's incomparability (there is no one like Me in all the earth). Thus God now made for Himself the claim that Moses made for Him earlier (8:10). The Lord described Pharaoh as still acting arrogantly. Such statements might seem arrogant and egotistical, but taking Exodus as a whole, they demonstrate the truthfulness of the claims and show that the Lord is just and compassionate. Throughout the conflict with Pharaoh, the Lord was demonstrating His right to rule while calling for allegiance and obedience.

9:19 Previous plagues did not include direct commands about how to avoid damage. The outcome for obedience and disobedience before the seventh plague should have helped prompt obedience when the last plague came with its commands about preparing.

9:20-21 Some officials feared the word of the LORD. Others didn't take the LORD's word seriously (lit, anyone "who did not set his heart to the Lord's word"). A person who fears the Lord and His word takes them seriously—giving attention and credence—leading to appropriate action (cp. 1:17,21).

9:27-28 When Pharaoh said, I have sinned, he may have been admitting to being merely "at fault," or "in the wrong," using the word translated "sinned" in a way similar to its use in 5:16.

9:29 Extending hands was a gesture associated with prayer and a sign of need and dependence (1Kg 8:22,38,54; Jr 4:31). Again God's action was meant to provide knowledge. The seventh plague added significance to the Lord's name by showing His ownership of and sovereignty over the entire earth, not just a portion as with many pagan gods.

9:30 Moses pointed Pharaoh to the source of Egypt's problems (cp. 7:16; 8:29).

9:31-32 The description of the crops when the seventh plague hit indicates that people might have held out hope for a good harvest, but the locusts of the eighth plague would soon devour them.

9:34 Here the word for sinned gets its full force and perhaps a touch of irony (cp. v. 27; 5:16).

9:34-10 : 1 These verses contain three references to the hardening of Pharaoh's heart following the plague of hail. The first reference names Pharaoh as the agent (he . . . hardened his heart), and it says that his officials did the same. The second names no agent and simply describes the condition (Pharaoh's heart hardened). The third names the Lord as the agent (I have hardened his heart and the hearts of his officials). The first (9:34) and third (10:1) use the same verb. So it seems that both Pharaoh and the Lord are responsible for the condition that the second reference describes without naming an agent. Other similar descriptions may likewise leave room for both the Lord and Pharaoh to be involved. Later some Philistines commented on the hardening of hearts that took place in Egypt and spoke of the Egyptians and Pharaoh as responsible (1Sm 6:7).

10:1 -2 This prologue to the plague of locusts introduces the topic of provisions for remembering and recording what the Lord had done for them (12:14-27,42-49; 13:1-16; 16:33-34; 17:14-16). The hardening of Egyptian hearts was the occasion for miraculous signs that the Israelites should recount to succeeding generations so they would know who the Lord is (Ps 111:4-6).

10:3-7 This is the first time Moses and Aaron deliver the plague announcement and then leave, showing the Lord's control of events and revealing to readers what will happen.

10:3 The correct answer to Moses' and Aaron's question should have been, "No longer." Pharaoh was refusing to humble himself. Would he like to avoid plagues? Yes. Humble himself? No.

10:4 Locusts are still dreaded in Africa. The eighth plague would bring the worst visitation of locusts ever in Egypt.

10:7 Pharaoh's officials blamed Moses for the problem. Their second rhetorical question drew attention to what Pharaoh did not "know," that is, to recognize and respond appropriately. Realize translates the word usually rendered "know" (1:8; 5:2). The officials were convinced that more trouble was coming.

10:8-11 In an attempt to forestall the plague of locusts, Moses and Aaron were brought back to Pharaoh, who immediately began an argument over who should go. Moses' list included everyone and everything they owned, since the entire nation belonged to the Lord. You are planning evil translates a terse phrase with no verb, literally, “evil [is] opposite your face.” The word translated “evil” often refers to calamity or disaster; so it may be that Pharaoh referred to the trouble that the Israelites would experience if they continued to annoy him with talk of leaving—“Look out, you are about to be in trouble from me; it’s right in front of you!” Or he may have been saying that what they were contemplating was bad, evil from his point of view. Pharaoh considered both the journey and the reason for it unimportant. To him, going off to worship Yahweh was just something that Moses and Aaron had contrived.

10:16-20 Monarchs cultivate the image of serenity and control. Pharaoh’s hurry to call Moses and Aaron back, his longer confession, and his request for relief from the plague show its impact on him. Unlike before, in the aftermath of this plague, Moses said nothing to Pharaoh.

10:19 The Hebrew name for the Red Sea, yam suph, is used here for the first time. It is also applied to what is now called the Gulf of Aqaba or Gulf of Eilat, the branch of the Red Sea that extends east of the Sinai Peninsula and west of the Arabian Peninsula (1Kg 9:26). The translation “Reed Sea” or “Sea of Reeds” that is sometimes suggested recognizes that the word suph means “reed” or “reeds,” as in Ex 2:3,5 and Is 19:6. The name “Red Sea” reflects ancient Greek usage, which included the Gulf of Suez, the Gulf of Aqaba, the Arabian Sea, and the Persian Gulf under the Greek equivalent of “Red Sea” (eruthra thalassey).

10:21-23 Darkness seems appropriate as an attack on the Egyptian king, since Pharaoh was believed to be the son of Egypt’s chief god, the sun-god Re. It is also part of later judgment pronounced against Egypt (Ezk 32:7-8). Pharaoh had refused to allow a three-day journey for the Israelites, and now, ironically, Pharaoh’s people were surrounded by darkness and unable to go anywhere for three days, while the Lord’s people had light for their activities. An unusually severe sandstorm could have been the plague that the Lord used to impose darkness on Egypt.

10:24 Pharaoh’s restriction of the movement of the flocks and herds of the Israelites showed that he was still unwilling to submit to the Lord.

10:28-29 Make sure you never see my face again has to do with initiating a formal appearance before Pharaoh, not a casual sighting (cp. 23:17; 34:23; 2Sm 14:23-33). Moses did see Pharaoh again secretly (Ex 12:31). Moses’ words in verse 29 may also mean “I will not keep seeing you” rather than I will never see your face again. The words Moses delivered to Pharaoh in 11:4-8 may have been uttered during the encounter in 10:24-29 (translating the speech verb in 11:1 as “had said”). The angry exchange between Pharaoh and Moses shows that they agreed on one thing—that Moses’ series of announcements and demands was finished. There would be no more bargaining. For Pharaoh to threaten to kill the messenger of the Lord shows that he still disrespected them both.

11:1-3 The notice that the LORD gave the people favor with the Egyptians and that Moses was highly regarded by them summarizes opinions that were unexpected and different from those of Pharaoh. He wasn't shaping the Egyptians' opinions to the degree that a king would like to do. Meanwhile, the inner workings of Pharaoh's people, like his own heart, were accessible to the Lord.

11:2-5 The instructions to request silver and gold and the announcement that the firstborn of Egypt would die return to matters that the Lord had told Moses about much earlier (3:19-22; 4:21-23). Events were taking place according to God's plan.

11:5 The servant girl who is behind the millstones refers to someone grinding grain by pushing the top stone over the lower one.

11:6 A great cry of anguish corresponds to the cry of the oppressed Israelites in 3:7,9.

11:8 Moses' anger is unusual, since during the cycle of plagues nothing is said about his feelings. Moses expressed anger on behalf of the Lord, who had been angry when Moses repeatedly objected to obeying (4:14). The notice of anger contributes to recognizing that Moses, although he knew about the hardening of Pharaoh's heart, considered him accountable for his actions. By the end of the tenth plague, Moses would in a sense be in the position of Pharaoh, with Pharaoh's officials bowing as supplicants to Moses.

12:1-13:16 Chapters 12-13 are arranged topically in a way that intersperses long sections of instruction with short sections that describe events taking place. With earlier plagues, the report of the plague follows immediately after its announcement. Not so with the tenth. Instructions to Moses and Aaron and then to the Israelites about how to observe the LORD's Passover (12:11) postpone the report of the plague's enactment (12:29-42). Some of the instructions that stand before the report of the plague and of the Israelite departure are ones that the Israelites would have needed at the time in order to prepare. Some instructions would be of use only in later years, but they are prominent among the instructions before the event. The report of the exodus (12:29-42) is followed by further instructions for future celebrations (12:43-49) and a short summary of the first Passover observance and the exodus (12:50-51).

Another section of instructions for the future follows. It involves dedication of the firstborn and observing the feast of unleavened bread (13:1-16) before the account returns to the unfolding events of the exodus (13:17-14:31). People usually wait to make plans for commemorating an event until after the event has occurred, but here the Israelites were still in Egypt (12:1). The attention given to future celebrations in these preparatory chapters highlights the event's certainty and importance as well as the authority of the Lord, who would give the Israelites cause for celebration.

12:2 Because of what the Lord was about to do in the current month, the Israelites were to consider it the first month of their year (the beginning of months). Its Canaanite name was Abib and its Babylonian name was Nisan (13:4). This lunar month overlaps with portions of the solar months of March and April.

12:3 To select an animal of the flock four days in advance would give opportunity to observe it for defects. But more importantly, early selection would draw attention to what was ahead. Just enough should be prepared for the people who would eat together.

12:8-10 The meat must be eaten immediately, and anything left must be burned and not left to ordinary uses the next morning. That it must be roasted whole also fits the need for special treatment of this animal, whose blood above the doorway and on the side posts identified the inhabitants of the house; they were people who took the Lord's commands seriously (9:20-21).

12:11-12 The declarations it is the LORD's Passover and I am Yahweh reinforce the truth that what was happening centered on God's identity and His self-revelatory actions (6:2-8,29; 7:5,17, etc.). In this instance He exercised His ability and right to execute judgments, as He had said He would do (cp. 6:6; 7:4), even against all the gods of Egypt.

12:15-20 Eating unleavened bread would remind the Israelites of their rapid departure from Egypt that did not allow time for a leavening agent to make the bread rise (v. 39). Those who ate leavened bread showed disdain for what the Lord had done in founding Israel as a nation and were subject to either banishment (Nm 19:13) or the death penalty, which was meted out to intentionally defiant lawbreakers in Nm 15:22-31 and carried out by human or divine agency (Ex 31:14; Lv 20:1-24).

12:23 The descriptions of the death of the firstborn say nothing more about the destroyer, nor do they indicate how the humans or animals died. The Lord's sovereign activity was the issue, and He presented Himself as bringing about the deaths. He also referred to the plague as destroying (v. 13), in an expression that uses a Hebrew word closely related to the one here translated "destroyer." Elsewhere an angel from the Lord is described using the Hebrew word for "the destroyer" in a situation that involved a deadly plague (2Sm 24:16). David chose "plague" because it would allow him to "fall into the LORD 's hands" (2Sm 24:14). Angels came to destroy Sodom and Gomorrah (Gn 19:13), while He was repeatedly credited with destroying the cities (Gn 13:10; 18:22-19:14,24-25).

12:24-27 The Lord expected the Israelites to teach their children about Him in the process of regularly celebrating what He had done for them (10:2; 13:8-9,14-15).

12:29 The prisoner who was in the dungeon was another person opposite Pharaoh in social standing, like "the servant girl who is behind the millstones" (11:5). Mention of both extremes encompassed all people in between.

12:31-32 Pharaoh had one last encounter with Moses and Aaron. He had declared that Moses would die if they met again, but he could not keep that resolve. Instead he capitulated and gave unconditional release of all the Israelites to go and worship, but he himself made no mention of worshiping the Lord (cp. 2Kg 5:17-18). Pharaoh's desire for blessing recalls earlier dealings of Egyptians and others with God's people that show things could have been far different for him (Gn 12:3; 21:22-24; 26:28-31; 39:5; 47:7,10).

12:33 We're all going to die! is the last recorded statement to Moses by ordinary Egyptians. It uses just two words in Hebrew and assesses the situation without any pretense, the expectation being that all the Egyptians were about to die if the Israelites stayed any longer in Egypt.

12:35-36 These verses describe what the statements in 3:21-22 and 11:2-3 had looked toward.

12:37 Rameses and Succoth are thought to have been in eastern Egypt (1:11), with Succoth east of Rameses in an area that the ancient Egyptians called Tjeku. This was at the eastern end of the Wadi Tumilat and contained fortifications because the area was a trade route with access to the Sinai Peninsula. The large number of people who left Egypt contrasts with the small number who had entered it (1:1-5).

12:38 The ethnically diverse crowd may have included other laborers who saw an opportunity to escape from Egyptian servitude, but who had not necessarily come to faith in Yahweh (Nm 11:4).

12:40-41 Starting from 966 B.C., when Solomon began to build the temple, and adding 480 years (1Kg 6:1) yields 1446 B.C. for the date of the exodus. Adding 430 years to that brings Jacob to Egypt in 1876 B.C., during the Egyptian Middle Kingdom era.

12:43-49 Passover was a family event for those who belonged to the covenant community of Israel, to whom circumcision was the sign of the covenant that God was in the process of fulfilling (2:24; Gn 17:9-13). The whole community of Israel must celebrate the Passover, and one law would apply to anyone who was part of the covenant community, whether by birth (and membership in a family through purchase) or by choice of affiliation. A woman's participation would normally depend on her family connections.

13:1-16 In addition to having the Passover Feast and Festival of Unleavened Bread, the Israelites would memorialize what the Lord had done for them when they set apart, or consecrated, the firstborn males of both humans and animals. In future years the Israelites were to reenact certain events of the exodus. They would eat a meal like their last one in Egypt, and they would eat unleavened bread, as they had done in the early days of their journey out of Egypt (12:39). Because the Lord had distinguished and redeemed Israel, His firstborn, they would redeem their firstborn sons (4:22-23; 6:6; 15:13; 22:29-31; 34:18-20; Dt 7:8; 9:26). All these people, animals, and events were built into Israelite life as reminders of the Lord's identity. He was known from His actions, and He gave meaning to the lives of His people (cp. Ti 2:14).

13:2 Elsewhere the Lord explained that He had consecrated every firstborn male of Israel as belonging to Him when He struck down the firstborn of Egypt (Nm 3:13; 8:17). The significance of Israel's firstborn sons and animals was tied to what the Lord had done and said rather than to anything special about them.

13:3 The theme of God's strong hand comes up repeatedly in instructions about the celebration (v v. 9,14,16; cp. 32:11) and uses forms of the Hebrew word for "strong" or "strength" that describe the hardening of Pharaoh's heart by strengthening his resolve and making him more firmly determined (7:13,22; 8:19; 9:35; 10:22,27; 11:10; 14:4,8,17). What had seemed impossible to Egyptian observers had happened (3:19; 5:22-6:1). The might of Pharaoh had been crushed by the strong hand of the Lord.

13:5 On the groups in Canaan that the Israelites would drive out, see 3:7-8; Dt 7:1.

13:9 That the LORD' s instruction may be in your mouth emphasizes that the Israelites would accept, meditate on, and do what the Lord prescribed (Dt 30:14; Jos 1:8; Ps 1:2; Is 59:21). In the context of teaching children, it also describes what the Israelites should know well and talk about to remind themselves and one another (Dt 6:6-8). The effect of what the Lord had done should be as great as if it all were displayed on each person's hand (easy for the person to see) and forehead (easy for others to see). When that was the case, the individual would readily speak of what the Lord had said, meditate on it, and act accordingly (Ps 50:16; 119:46-48; Mal 2:7).

13:12 The command you are to present to the LORD uses a verb that refers elsewhere to transferring property (Gn 32:16; Nm 27:7-8; 2Sm 3:10; Is 45:14). It is not normally used to describe offerings to the Lord, but it does occur prominently in references to the pagan practice, forbidden to Israel, of killing and burning children as sacrifices (Lv 18:21; Dt 18:10; 2Kg 16:3; 17:17; 21:6; 23:10; Jr 32:35; Ezk 16:21). Its use in Ex 13:12 ("pass something over to"/"convey over to") recalls its use in describing the actions of the Lord, who "passed through" Egypt (12:12,23). What He had done must shape what His people would do.

13:13 Redemption brought an animal or person back into its original or ordinary use (Lv 25:23-28). Donkeys could not be sacrificed, so a donkey firstborn should be redeemed for normal use by giving a sheep or goat in its place. A human firstborn must be redeemed (Nm 18:15-16). The Lord's requirement of redemption for a human firstborn contrasted with the practices of pagan worshipers who killed children in rituals designed to curry favor with their gods.

13:17 The Lord could have taken His people safely on any route He wished. The choice of route here and the comment on it offer insight into the thinking of both the Lord and the Israelites. The Lord knew the Israelites better than Pharaoh, who considered them a military threat (1:10). It balances reports that the Israelites worshiped and obeyed (12:27-28,35,50-51) and foreshadows their upcoming behavior (14:10-12; 16:2-3). In the process of the exodus, God anticipated the thinking of both the Israelites and the Egyptians and put it to His own use (14:3).

Like His choice to keep Pharaoh alive (9:13-16), this choice of route displays who the Lord is. As a result of it, the Israelites would watch the Lord fight for them (14:13-14). They would experience His care and His willingness to work in spite of their frailties (Ps 103:13-14). Archaeologists have found that Egypt had heavy fortifications along the northern route close to the Mediterranean coast. Though that route would have taken the Israelites by the most direct path to Canaan, through Philistine territory, it would have presented extreme danger and constant opposition. The Philistines came to the western coast of the Mediterranean from islands in the Aegean Sea and would later be frequent foes of Israel. Egyptian or Philistine opposition would have been daunting to the Israelites at this time (cp. 6:9).

13:18 The road of the wilderness would take Israel east into the Sinai Peninsula, to the Wilderness of Shur (15:22; cp. 1Sm 15:7). "Wilderness" describes uninhabited areas with varying amounts of water and pasturage, depending on the area and the time of year. The description of the Israelites leaving in battle formation uses a rare word (Jos 1:14; 4:12; Jdg 7:11) and seems contrary to the Lord's assessment. Perhaps there is irony to be recognized in the discrepancy between outward and inward readiness.

13:19 God was doing exactly what Joseph had said He would do (3:16; 4:31; Gn 50:24-25).

13:21-22 The Lord had promised to accompany Moses as he confronted Pharaoh (3:12; 4:12,15). Now He signified His presence with the Israelites by means of a pillar of cloud and a pillar of fire. Sometimes it would descend and show that the Lord was talking with Moses (33:9; Nm 12:5; Dt 31:15); even other peoples heard about it (Nm 14:14).

14:2 The Lord led the Israelites to where they could be trapped between the sea and the Egyptian army. The name Pi-hahiroth may mean "Mouth of the Canal." The remnants of an ancient canal have been found east of Wadi Tumilat, a route into the Sinai Peninsula. Migdol means "Tower" or "Watchtower." Baal-zephon, "lord of the north," incorporates the name of a Canaanite god important to seafarers.

14:3 Pharaoh's assumption that the Israelites were lost grew from his low opinion of them and their God (5:2,8; 10:10). He was not counting on the Lord's planning or the fiery and cloudy pillar that gave evidence of His presence.

14:4 The Hebrew word translated glory (related to the idea of being heavy) is related to one of the words describing Pharaoh's "hardened" heart (8:15,32; 9:7,34; 10:1). The Lord would receive glory from Pharaoh's refusal to give glory.

14:5 The Israelites' actions appeared to evidence fear, which fit the Egyptian opinion of them better than the triumph described in verse 8. The word translated fled indicates they had cleared out entirely, as did Moses after killing the Egyptian (2:15, in contrast with the word used in 4:3 and 14:25,27 for escaping immediate peril). It is typically used of people who were emigrating in order to escape the reach of a powerful person (Gn 16:6,8; 31:21-22; 1Sm 19:12,18; 21:10; 27:4; 1Kg 11:17,23,40). The Egyptians began to focus on their loss—we have released Israel from serving us—plus the change in the situation of the Israelites. The Egyptian magicians had failed, but to this point the Egyptian army had not had an opportunity to act. With the Israelites wandering around and seemingly boxed in (v. 3), certainly some slaves, livestock, and wealth could be recovered or destroyed (15:9).

14:6-7 To people on foot, chariots and horses would have seemed as terrifying as armored tanks (see v. 10 and note there). Egypt took pride in its chariots, portraying them in art meant to display Egyptian power.

14:8 Going out triumphantly gives a glimpse into the Israelites' frame of mind (Nm 33:3). Having been urged to leave Egypt, they had received valuables to take with them, and they were gladly going; they had no reason to look over their shoulders in fear.

14:10 Verses 5-9 provided a panoramic perspective. The perspective switches here to that of the Israelites, using a word that older translations render "and behold," which Hebrew authors could use to make a rapid switch in perspective and give readers a momentary share in the experience of someone in the story. When the Egyptian army suddenly appeared, the Israelites' eyes became wide with terror.

14:11-12 Egypt had been preoccupied for centuries with death, mummification, and the building of elaborate graves, some of which the Israelites themselves may have been forced to help construct. Terror turned Israelite elation and triumph into sarcasm and accusation. They considered Moses responsible for their impending doom, and themselves helpless victims. Their assessment gave no thought to any third option besides death or servitude in Egypt. By not considering the Lord's involvement, the Israelites resembled faithless Pharaoh.

14:13-14 The command Don't be afraid, given as a word from the Lord to His people or an affirmation of confidence before battle, has many parallels (Nm 21:34; Dt 1:21,29; 3:2,22; Jos 8:1; 10:8,25; 2Ch 20:15,17; 32:7; Neh 4:14). Moses gave no defense of himself but focused instead on what the Lord would accomplish. The words salvation (here and Ex 15:2; Hb yeshu'ah) and "saved" (14:30) mark the instructions for the encounter with Egyptian forces, its summary, and its celebration. The "save" word group in Hebrew (the root yasha') was applied in a variety of situations, often military ones, so that salvation took the form of victory (Dt 20:1-4; Jdg 10:12-14; 2Kg 19:32-35; Ps 3) or rescue (Ex 2:17). An earlier pharaoh was afraid that the Israelites might fight against Egypt (1:10), but something greater happened—the Lord fought for Israel and against Egypt (14:14,25).

14:19-20 The Angel of God and the pillar of cloud may have looked familiar to Moses, for he saw the Angel and the fire when God commissioned him to return to Egypt (3:2; Nm 20:16; Dt 31:15). Besides showing the way to go, day or night, the pillar of cloud prevented a clash between the Egyptian and Israelite forces.

14:21-28 Parallels exist between the plague of locusts and the overthrow of the Egyptians: Moses' outstretched hand (cp. v. 21; 10:12), the east wind (cp. v. 21; 10:13), morning initiation (v. 24; 10:13), use of the Hebrew word translated "sent" (10:13) and drive (v. 25), drowning in the sea (vv. 27-28; 10:19), and the observation that none of them survived (cp. v. 28; 10:19). It was no more difficult for the Lord to defeat Pharaoh and his army than to dispense with a horde of insects.

14:22 The waters like a wall on both sides forced the Egyptians to follow straight ahead and protected the Israelites from a flanking attack.

14:24-25 The night hours were divided into three "watches": the first watch

(Lm 2:19) being the beginning of the night, perhaps roughly 6:00-10:00 p.m., the second watch (Jdg 7:19) being the middle of the night, perhaps about 10:00 p.m.-2:00 a.m., and the morning watch or end of the night, roughly 2:00-6:00 a.m. The Lord observed the Egyptians from His superior vantage point (cp. Dt 26:15; Ps 14:2; 53:2; 85:11; 102:19). With His accurate reconnaissance, God threw the Egyptians into confusion. This is a weapon He used on a number of occasions (23:27; Jos 10:10; 1Sm 5:9,11; 7:10; cp. 2Kg 7:6-7). Now the Lord, rather than the Israelites whom an earlier Egyptian king had feared (Ex 1:10), was the one who fought against Egypt, and the Egyptians themselves announced the fact.

14:30-31 These verses summarize the completeness of the Lord's victory by using many terms that the speakers have used earlier, mostly in the near context. Instead of dying (v v. 11-12), the Israelites saw the Egyptians dead. The LORD saved Israel from the power [lit "hand"] of the Egyptians (cp. 3:8; 18:10; Dt 7:8; 2Kg 17:7). The assertion that Israel saw the great power [lit "hand"] that the LORD used continues the theme of the Lord's action as an exercise of His hand (Ex 3:20; 7:4-5; 9:3,15; 13:3,9,14,16) in contest with the hand of Pharaoh and the Egyptians, and it uses the verb that Moses used in 14:13 (cp. v v. 5,11). The people feared the LORD , and this is what Pharaoh had failed to do (1:17,21; 9:20-21,30). The mention of Moses as the Lord's servant gives a subtle reminder that an alternative to serving Egypt was available to the Israelites (cp. v. 12) and accords Moses the highest of titles in the hierarchy of the Lord's society and the one by which Moses was called many times (Nm 12:7-8; Dt 34:5; Jos 1:1,7,13,15; cp. Gn 26:24; 2Sm 3:18; Is 41:8; Rm 1:1; Rv 19:10).

15:1-18 This poetic rehearsal of the exodus event demonstrates a technique found in extrabiblical ancient Near Eastern literature as well as elsewhere in the OT (Dt 32-33; 2Sm 1:17-27; 22:1-23:7), particularly the song of Deborah (Jdg 5). Other poetic reflections on the exodus include Pss 77; 78; 105; 106; Is 63:7-14. The introduction of this song conveys a change of atmosphere and highlights the importance of the occasion. While the prose account speaks about the Lord, the song speaks to the Lord and is more personal. Since Moses had complained about being inarticulate, it is something of a surprise as well. It also contrasts with the grumbling and skepticism that often typified the Israelites.

The vivid and prosodic language of poetry can invite readers to use their imaginations to view the same event in multiple ways. For example, the song celebrates that the Lord threw horse and rider into the sea (Ex 15:1), He threw Pharaoh's chariots and army into the sea (v. 4), His "right hand shattered the enemy" (v. 6), He overthrew His enemies by virtue of His majesty (v. 7), and He unleashed His wrath (v. 7). These and other descriptions of the same victory help readers to enter into the experience and celebrate the events.

15:1 Other victories of the Israelites were also celebrated with singing and dancing (Jdg 5; 11:34; 1Sm 18:6-7; Jr 31:4).

15:2-3 This is my God affirms the Lord's objective that the Israelites would know Him as their God (6:7). Israel had not selected Him; rather He had shown Himself to be their God based on His actions. My father's God ties this event to the covenant relationship between the Lord and the patriarchs (2:24; 3:6). Yahweh is His name celebrates that His reputation was growing.

15:7 Stubble recalls how the Egyptians had troubled the Israelites over obtaining straw for bricks, forcing them to scrabble about for "stubble" (5:12). Now the Egyptians had been reduced to stubble.

15:11 The truth of God's unequaled power is one of the lessons of the plagues (8:10; 9:14; Dt 4:39; Ps 86:3-10; 96:4-5; 135:5,15-17).

15:12 The earth swallowed them is a poetic way of saying that they died (Ps 63:9; 71:20; Pr 1:12; Jnh 2:6).

15:13 The word translated faithful love refers to displays of loyalty and kind provisions of help between family members or friends, often in situations where the needy party would have no legal right to the assistance (20:6; 34:6-7 contain the other uses of the word in Exodus; cp. Ru 1:8; 2:20; 3:10; 1Sm 20:8; 2Sm 9:1).

15:14-16 As He intended, the Lord was becoming widely known (cp. 9:16; 18:11; 32:12). The nations are listed in the order Israel would encounter them during the exodus: first the people of Philistia, then those in Edom (descended from Esau), Moab (descended from Lot), and Canaan (descended from Ham's son Canaan). The idea that God purchased or redeemed Israel is also found elsewhere (see Ps 74:2; Is 11:11, where "recover" translates the same verb). The verb is often used of buying a slave (Gn 39:1; Ex 21:2) or land (Gn 47:20; 2Sm 24:21).

15:17 Earlier in Exodus the land was described as spacious and fertile, as well as occupied by other nations (3:8,17; 13:5); the song describes it in ways that imply privilege and fellowship. In short, the Lord was taking the Israelites to be at home with Him (cp. Jn 14:1-3).

15:20 Moses and Aaron were already familiar with the work of prophets and prophecy (4:14-16; 6:30-7:2). Their sister Miriam shared in the work (6:20; Nm 12:1-15; 26:59; cp. Jdg 4:4; 2Kg 22:12-20; Neh 6:14; Is 8:3; Ezk 13; Jl 2:28-29).

15:21 The last lines of the song repeat the first, except that the first is a declaration of resolve to praise and the last is a command, an exhortation to praise. The song was sung antiphonally (cp. Ps 136).

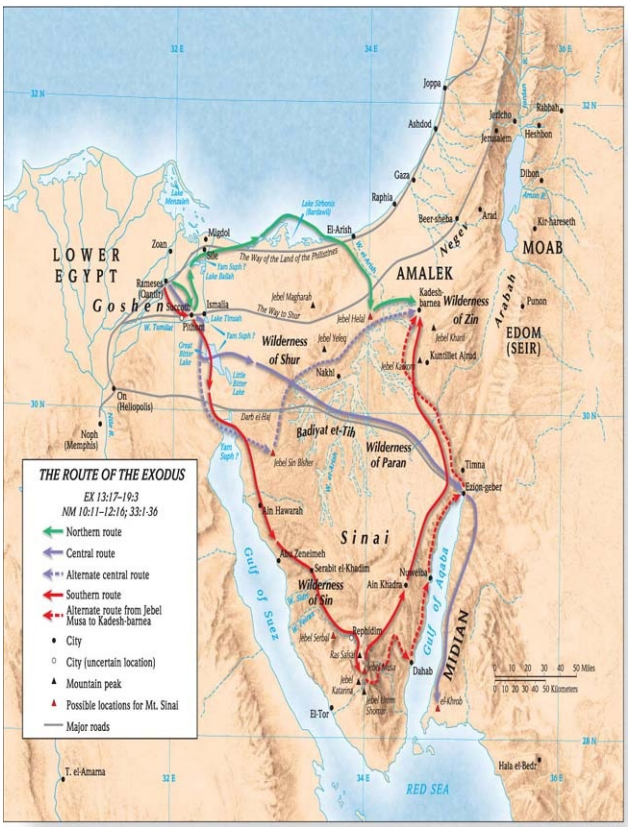
15:22-17 : 26 In this section, the primary conflict is no longer the Lord and Moses versus Pharaoh and the Egyptians, but the Lord and Moses versus the Israelites, who still tended to look back to Egypt for provision (13:17; 17:3). The Lord graciously showed them that when it came to matters basic to survival, He was capable of sustaining them.

15:22-27 The account of water provided at Marah introduces themes prominent in the accounts of Israel's time in the wilderness: grumbling, testing, and the need for attention and obedience to the Lord's commands.

15:22 The Wilderness of Shur, in the Sinai Peninsula, has been mentioned in connection with Hagar (Gn 16:7-14) and Abraham (Gn 20:1). Since "Shur" means "wall," this area may have received its name by being associated with fortifications protecting Egypt's eastern border and referred to in Egyptian records as the "Wall of the Ruler."

15:24 The word translated grumbled signals a hostile question and is used mostly to describe the Israelites' rebellious complaining (chaps. 15-17; Nm 14-17).

15:25-26 The word translated tested is used once before in the Pentateuch when the Lord tested Abraham by commanding him to sacrifice Isaac (Gn 22:1-2). The changing of bitter water recalls when God did the opposite to Egypt's water (Ex 7:17-24; cp. 23:25). At issue in the call for obedience was Israel's distinct identity; they were supposed to be different from Egypt. The Lord had "healed" the water for them and would provide healing for the Israelites in other ways as well (Dt 32:39; 2Kg 2:21-22; Ezk 47:8-9).



16:1 Wilderness of Sin uses a transliterated Hebrew word that may be a shortened form of Sinai. The traditional site of Mount Sinai, Jebel Musa in Arabic, is in the southern Sinai Peninsula. Other proposed sites for Mount Sinai are in central and northern Sinai and east of the Gulf of Aqaba. Only a month had passed since the Israelites had left Egypt.

16:2-3 This time Israel's complaint is longer and more hostile. The people's memory was short and their hearts ungrateful. If God were going to let them die, they would rather He had done so in Egypt. This discounted the actions of the LORD's hand for them in the past as well as in the future (cp. 2Sm 24:13-14,17).

16:4 During the time between the exodus and the giving of the covenant at Sinai, the Lord and Israel tested each other, the Lord looking to see whether or not the Israelites would trust Him and obey Him after experiencing all His efforts on their behalf. The Israelites were attempting to put God in the position of meeting their demands. In the process of these experiments, dominant qualities and values of both are displayed (v. 4; 15:25-26; 17:2,7; 20:20; cp. Nm 14:22; Ps 78:17-22). Follow My instructions is lit "walk in My instructions." Since walking is the most common way for humans to move around, it is good terminology for talking about conduct of life (18:20; Lv 18:4; Dt 5:33; 8:6; Pr 1:15; 10:9; Eph 2:10; 4:1).

16:6-8 The Lord continued to act to give knowledge of Himself and reveal His glory (6:6; 7:17; 8:10,22; 9:14,29; 10:2; 11:7; 14:4,17-18). Who are we is lit "What are we?" Moses' use of the interrogative pronoun that usually refers to things rather than people presents himself and Aaron as unimportant in the situation. Their grumbling against Moses and Aaron was in fact a complaint against the Lord.

16:10 Like its English rendering, the Hebrew word for glory refers to God's excellence on display, often in action, as here. It can also refer to the recognition of that excellence, as when someone is said "to give glory."

16:13 Unlike manna, quail did not become part of the daily fare of the Israelites (Nm 11:4-6,13,31-32). When quail migrate between Europe and Africa, they fly over northern Sinai, are subject to the prevailing winds, and need to rest after flying over the Mediterranean Sea.

16:18-19 Those who ignored the instruction not to keep any of the manna overnight presumably went without enough to eat. They failed to enjoy the Lord's provision because of their distrust.

16:23-26 Sabbath is an anglicized form of the Hebrew word shabbath, associated with a verb meaning "cease, stop, rest" (v. 30; 5:5; 31:12-17; Gn 8:22).

16:28 The rhetorical question expresses the Lord's displeasure and returns to the theme of testing for obedience (v. 4; 15:25-26). The Israelites' refusal to keep the Lord's commands put them in the company of Pharaoh, who refused to humble himself (4:23; 7:14; 10:3; cp. Dt 8:16).

16:29 Pharaoh had refused to give the Israelites any days of rest, and he had withheld the straw needed for their work. But the Lord provided a day of rest each week and the food the Israelites needed for that day of rest.

16:31-36 The name manna is the anglicized form of the Hebrew word man (interrogative "What?"), which partially echoes the question in verse 15, (Hb) man hu'; "What is it?" No naturally occurring substance matches the description, constancy, and duration of manna well enough to account for it. The testimony is a shortened form of "the ark of the testimony," the box that would later contain the Ten Commandments and would testify about the covenant the Lord had given Israel (25:16,21; 26:33; 30:36; 31:18; Nm 17:1-10). The construction of the ark is described in Ex 37:1-9, so it was not built until after 16:33-34. God continued sending the manna until the day after the Israelites first ate food grown in their new land (Jos 5:12). So Moses' instructions to Aaron here could have been given any time after the tabernacle was built.

16:36 The measure of about two quarts (Hb 'omer) appears only in Exodus 16. Apparently the ephah remained in use longer than the 'omer. The passing of a generation or a change in region can make such explanations helpful.

17:1-7 At Rephidim the Israelites complained about lack of water, but again the core issue was their mistrust of the Lord. The level of their hostility continued to increase.

17:2-3 The verb translated complained here and in verse 7 has not been used before in Exodus. It and a closely related noun describe disputes like the one between Jacob and Laban (Gn 13:7-8; 26:20-21; 31:36). Later in Exodus they describe interpersonal conflict that might lead to blows between two men (Ex 21:18) or to formal legal proceedings (23:2; cp. Dt 17:8; 25:1). By continuing to accuse Moses, the Israelites were testing the LORD.

17:5 The instruction to take some of the elders fits the thought that the Israelite "complaining" had become a quasi-official legal case. The mention of striking the Nile indicates that while Moses might have been unpopular, he was still designated to represent the Lord and lead the Israelites.

17:6 Moses pointed back to this and similar events in Dt 8:15. The apostle Paul considered the rock here to be a significant sign pointing to Christ (1Co 10:4). The Lord is referred to in the OT as "the Rock" (Dt 32:4,15,18,30; 1Sm 2:2). God could also bring fire out of rock (Jdg 6:21).

17:7 To remind everyone of conduct to be avoided in light of God's presence and provision, Moses renamed the place. The name Massah is closely related to the verb translated "tested," and the name Meribah is cognate to the verb translated complained (see Ps 95:8-9). So the new name was something like "Testing and Complaint" or "Quarrelsome Trial." The Israelites' question expressed their impatience with what they considered unsatisfactory performance.

17:8 Deuteronomy 25:18 describes how Amalek preyed on the weakest among the Israelites. Amalekites troubled Israel intermittently for many years (Nm 14:40-45; Jdg 3:12-13; 6:3-6; 7:12; 10:12; 1Sm 14:47-48; 15:1-33; 27:8; 30:1-18; 2Sm 1:1-16; 1Ch 4:43).

17:9-11 Raising the staff in this case likely symbolized God's exercise of power (v. 11; 7:20; 14:16,21,26-27). Joshua would go on to serve Moses and succeed him as leader of the Israelites (24:13; Nm 27:18-23; Jos 1:1-9). Hur is best known for his part in this event and for Moses trusting him to help the Israelites when Moses was away (24:14).

17:12 The weakness of Moses showed that he was not the source of the victory.

17:14-15 The scroll could be a kind of diary from which Moses would write the book of Exodus. It is clear that knowledge of the Lord by means of His actions must be preserved. The sort of Banner that Moses referred to was commonly hoisted high on a pole as a rallying point or signal. The image asserts

Moses' intention to orient his life and actions according to the Lord's direction.

17:16 Moses' testimony of faith here conveys far more than first appears. Moses' uplifted hand may seem small and insignificant, but it symbolizes all that is implied by the Lord's throne. The solemn affirmation that follows offered reassurance to the Israelites and a warning to the Amalekites and others like them that the Lord would be at enmity with predators who attacked the Israelites. It confirmed the promise made in verse 14—retribution against Amalek would be complete and lasting.

18:1-27 The events in this chapter mark a turning point in the book of Exodus. The first half looks back at what had happened and describes responses to it, while the second half looks ahead by showing the need for the Israelites to be organized to conduct life with one another as a nation. At the end of Exodus 18, Moses and Jethro part company, but Nm 10:11,29-32 indicates that Moses' father-in-law was with the Israelites when they left Mount Sinai after the events in chapters 19-40 had taken place.

18:1-2 Earlier mentions of Jethro and Zipporah are in 2:18-21; 3:1; 4:18-26. Nothing is said about when or why Moses had sent his family to stay with Jethro.

18:3-4 Gershom was introduced in 2:22. He was no longer an alien in Egypt or a fugitive in Midian. Eliezer is mentioned here for the first time, perhaps because now his name has even more to commemorate, since the Lord had repeatedly helped Moses and had delivered him from two pharaohs who wanted to kill him.

18:5 Moses was back at the place where the Lord had first spoken to him from the burning bush (3:1-4).

18:6-7 These details present Jethro and Moses as men of rank and dignity. Previously Moses took polite leave of Jethro (4:18-19); now Moses was the host. Jethro showed deference by announcing his coming, and Moses showed deference by coming to meet him and by bowing. All this shows who Moses had become and portrays Jethro as a person qualified to offer advice.

18:10-11 The references to rescue from the power of the Egyptians continue the use of "hand" in Hebrew as a prominent means by which power is displayed. God had become known through His rescue of Israel from Egypt (6:7; 9:14; 14:18; 16:12). The breadth of the word translated know could mean that Jethro was previously unconvinced of the Lord's superiority, or that he was simply declaring a new awareness from experience. Either way, he was convinced and glad to say so. Jethro's response contrasts with that of Pharaoh and exemplifies how the Israelites and the readers of Exodus should respond to learning about who the Lord is from His actions.

18:12 Recognition of the Lord and His actions led to worship, a fulfillment of the sign that He gave Moses at the burning bush (3:12). A burnt offering was consumed by fire, and parts of sacrifices were burned, but most was roasted and eaten by people present to worship and celebrate (Lv 1:2-17; 3:1-17; 7:11-18).

18:13-26 This section answers the Israelite who asked Moses, "Who made you a leader and judge over us?" (2:14). In a sense, it also answers Moses' questions and misgivings about his ability (3:11; 4:10-13; 6:12,30).

18:19-20 Jethro was thinking of conflicts between Israelites when he said that Moses should bring their cases to Him, but a far more serious case was ahead (32:30-35; 34:9).

18:21 The word translated commanders is the plural of the one translated in 2:14 as "leader." It is used repeatedly in 18:21,25 (lit "officials of thousands, officials of hundreds," etc.). This tends to strengthen the tie with the question about Moses' status in 2:14. Jethro's list of qualifications for leadership requires qualities of character, belief, and behavior rather than age, wealth, or family position (Dt 1:13,16-17; 2Ch 19:6-7,9-10).

18:23 The verb rendered endure can also mean "stand." It repeats the Hebrew verb for "stand/endure" from the descriptions in verses 13 and 14 of the people standing around Moses waiting for him to hear their cases. If Moses followed Jethro's advice, the people would not have to "stand around" so much and Moses would be able to "stand" the work.

19:3-24:11 This section describes events surrounding the making of the covenant between the Lord and Israel, using practices and terms familiar in the culture. When a powerful king (the suzerain) would send a treaty to a less powerful king (the vassal) informing him and his people of the suzerain's intention to rule them, the treaty contained: (1) formal self-identification of the more powerful ruler; (2) a review of the history between the parties as grounds for issuing and accepting the covenant; (3) the requirement of loyalty to the suzerain; (4) stipulations regulating future conduct of the vassal; (5) positive and negative consequences for obedience or disobedience; and (6) instructions for copying, storing, and publicly reading the covenant.

The Mosaic covenant with its laws was given to people who had expressed belief in the Lord (14:31)—people already rescued from Egypt. Its purpose was not to provide a means for people to initiate or merit a relationship with the Lord. Rather, the covenant was a means of communicating what Israel should do as a people who already belonged to Him. The covenant was tied to what the Lord had already done for the Israelites. This was the reason why it was appropriate for them to keep it.

For its contents and system of values the covenant was further tied to what the Lord had done and would continue to do in the expression of His own character—for example, out of His concern for justice and His concern for weaker members of society. It contains some individual regulations that were shared with extrabiblical law codes and wisdom literature. In the covenant the Lord issued, these laws exist in a framework that ties them to the task of displaying the character of the Lord. Even as the actions of the Lord Himself had revealed who He is, so the actions of His people were to display His character.

Other law codes (like that of the Babylonian king Hammurabi) were the pronouncements of a human king and might be offered to a deity to show that the king deserved the deity's approval and support. Israel's laws came from their God with the recognition that people who claimed the Lord as God should resemble Him in their dealings. This was part of the benefit of belonging to Him, not a means of acquiring this status (Dt 10:12-13).

19:3-6 God's program for the future of Israel is the next step in the outworking of His plan in bringing Israel out of Egypt (6:7; Lv 26:12; Dt 29:9-13).

19:3 One purpose for Moses making three trips up the mountain and back (v v. 3,7-8,14,20,25) was to clarify visually the unique role and privileges he was granted. The people needed to acknowledge his authority as God's representative and the importance of his message.

19:4 The Lord's past provision should be the basis for Israel's future decisions. The mention of being carried on eagles' wings implied a comparison between the Lord's bringing Israel out of Egypt and eagles that sometimes carried their young on their backs (Dt 32:10-11). Eagles were also noted for their speed, long flights, and high nests (2Sm 1:23; Is 40:31; Jr 4:13; 49:16; Ob 4).

19:5 The Lord wanted Israel to be known by what He had done as well as by what they would do. My own possession uses a word that is sometimes translated "treasure." David used it to speak of his "personal treasures of gold and silver" that he had set aside for building the temple (1Ch 29:3). In extrabiblical literature a king sometimes used a closely related word to speak positively of a vassal with whom he had a good relationship and where a king advertised himself on his royal seal as the treasured possession of a certain god.

19:6 The ideas of priesthood and holiness go together, since special requirements marked priests as set apart for special service that benefited others (Lv 21). The tasks of priests included helping people offer sacrifices to God, according to the need or condition of the person (Lv 1-7). Priests acted as judges, both in matters of ritual purity and in civil controversies (Lv 13-14; Dt 17:9; 21:5), and they taught God's law (Lv 10:11; Mal 2:7-9). These tasks pointed to the work of Israel among the nations. As the priesthood in Israel was to the nation as a whole, so Israel should be to the other nations; as Israelite priests had unique requirements, duties, and privileges among the Israelites, so Israel would have unique requirements, duties, and privileges among the nations (Lv 20:22-26; Dt 4:5-8; 14:21; 26:17-19; Is 2:1-5).

19:9-25 The preparations for a meeting between the Lord and the Israelites continue the extended metaphor that compares the Lord to a great king issuing a covenant to his vassal. The Lord had chosen to come to Mount Sinai in a way designed to reveal His presence and to communicate with the Israelites, making it "private property," where no one should expect to wander in and out oblivious to the wishes of the owner. For as long as the Lord visited that place, it was holy ground, an extension of His royal court. Coming there required a royal summons. It was not a casual meeting of equals.

19:9 This statement of God's intention increases the gravity of future failures by the people to believe Moses.

19:10 The requirements to be purified and to wear clean clothes involved everyone in the preparation. When Pharaoh summoned him, Joseph likewise changed his clothes before appearing at court (Gn 41:14; cp. Gn 35:2; Nm 8:7; Rv 22:14).

Rocky pathway down from Jebel Musa, the traditional site of Mount Sinai 19:12 Refusal to observe boundaries was a sign of disrespect. Those who violated the warning would die. Such was the case even with merely human kings whose sanctity and security measures had been violated (Est 4:11).

19:15 Abstaining from sex would prevent contact with semen, which caused ritual uncleanness (Lv 15:16-18). Considering the pagan practice of mixing sexual activity with religious rituals, this prohibition may also have contributed to separating such practices from worship of the Lord. If nothing else, it marked a life change and redirection of attention for the Israelites (cp. 1Co 7:5).

19:16-17 All these phenomena are associated with occasions when God revealed His presence (40:34; Jdg 5:4-5; 1Kg 19:11-12; Ps 18:6-15; Is 29:6; 30:30; 64:1-3; Rv 4:1,5).

19:18 Like the smoke of a furnace uses the word for furnace that also appears in 9:8,10. Its only other use is to describe the source of the smoke compared with what came from the ruins of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gn 19:28). The whole mountain shook violently uses the same Hebrew verb as the statement that "all the people in the camp shuddered" (v. 16).

19:21 Moses' warning not . . . to see the LORD on penalty of death shows God's concern to protect the Israelites and to reveal to them His awesome, personal reality. He cannot be treated as an object of curiosity that one might walk up to, examine at will, and then walk away from without personal engagement.

19:22 Some interpreters think reference to priests here and in verse 24 is anachronistic, since Aaron and his sons were appointed as priests at a later time (28:1; 40:12-15). Based on ancient practices, however, it would have been normal for selected Israelites to have functioned as priests even before the formal appointment of the Aaronic priesthood. Knowledge of sacrifices, intercession, consecration, and priestly activities is taken for granted throughout Genesis and Exodus (cp. Gn 14:18-20). In later years disobedient Israelites appointed priests to suit their own purposes (Jdg 17:1-5; 1Kg 13:33).

20:1-17 Hebrew has two forms of negative commands. One is used for specific, immediate situations, and the other, used here, is for general prohibitions. The idea is "Don't ever . . ." It is used by a superior to an inferior but not the reverse. The eight negative commands and two positive commands (v v. 8,12) became known as the Ten Commandments (lit "the ten words"; 34:28; Dt 4:13; 10:4), or the Decalogue (from Gk for "ten words," deka + logoi). They provide basic principles that laid the foundation for the other rules and regulations for ancient Israel.

For example, God's delivery of the Israelites out of slavery in Egypt influenced stipulations about how slaves should be treated (Ex 20:1; 21:2-11).

The prohibition against murder made a distinction between premeditated murder and manslaughter (20:13; 21:12-14). They were the commands written on the stone tablets and stored in the ark of the covenant to be kept in the most holy part of the tabernacle (34:28; Dt 4:13; 9:10-11; 10:4-5). The importance of these commandments is further indicated by their repetition in Dt 5:6-21 and elsewhere (Mt 19:18; Mk 10:19; Lk 18:20). The first four commands (Ex 20:2-11) focus on loyalty to the Lord, while the last six (vv. 12-17) focus on dealings between humans.

20:2 To start with self-identification, as the LORD does here, was normal for a covenant document sent from a king and for royal proclamations and inscriptions. Delivering the Israelites had become part of His identity, what people should think of when His name was mentioned. In the ancient Near East, Israel's system of laws was unique in that it came from God and obedience or disobedience was oriented toward God; elsewhere rulers might present laws to a deity for approval, but the laws themselves were not given by the deity. In Israel, lawbreaking was first of all an offense against the Lord, not just a disruption of order or an offense against other people.

20:4-6 Not to make an idol ran counter to every instinct of ancient Near Eastern cultures, but to do so is an affront to a jealous God. God is concerned to protect the integrity of His relationship with His people (34:14). If the Israelites made idols to worship, it would be an act of hatred, disloyalty, and repudiation.

When the Lord made Himself known to the Israelites, they did not see any form (Dt 4:10-20). The best way to know and worship Him was to recall what He had already done and said and to be alert to trust Him and see what He would do in the future.

Punishing the children for the fathers' sin involved penalties for successive generations who continued to commit the sins they learned from their fathers. This did not mean that in a court case a son would have to suffer the penalty for his father's crime (Dt 24:16), nor that individual standing or fellowship with God was determined by the behavior of one's parents (Jr 31:29-30; Ezk 18:1-32). It meant the excuse, "They don't know any better; it's how they were raised," doesn't work with God. But the Lord's faithful love would far exceed His judgment (to a thousand generations; Lv 26:39-45; Is 65:6-7; Jr 11:9-12; 32:17-19; Dn 9:8-16).

20:7 In ancient times misusing the name of the LORD could have meant failing to fulfill a sworn oath or making an oath with the intention of deceiving someone. Those who swore an oath in the Lord's name called on Him to bring punishment if they did not keep the promise or tell the truth (Gn 24:3; Lv 19:12; Jos 2:12). Those who might do this would cause the Lord's reputation to suffer, while acting as if His presence as a witness were not important (Dt 6:13-14; 10:20; Is 48:1-11; Jr 4:2; 12:16; Zph 1:14). To swear by the Lord's name was an affirmation of allegiance to Him that required appropriate action (Jos 23:6-8). By extension, this command would also apply when a person attached the Lord's name to an activity contrary to His character or will, resulting in certain punishment (cp. Ps 50:16-23; Jr 14:14-16). In a sense, misusing the Lord's name misrepresented His character, purposes, and actions revealed to the people of Israel and amounted to lying about who God is.

20:8-11 The Sabbath, introduced with the giving of manna (16:22-30; the term "Sabbath" being related to the Hb verb meaning "to cease"), would be a perpetual institution, not just a day to observe while receiving manna in the wilderness. It would serve as a reminder of the Mosaic or Sinai covenant. In Exodus it comes up for discussion again in 23:12; 31:12-17; 35:1-3. Verses 8 and 11 use forms of the same Hebrew verb qadash, "keep/declare holy," to speak of consecrating the Sabbath. The Lord had set this day apart (declared it holy), so the Israelites should treat it as such. The list in verse 10 makes the Sabbath command particularly directed to adults who had children and were wealthy enough to own slaves and livestock. If it applied to these people—the ones with the most influence in a community—it would apply to everyone.

20:12 A stubborn and rebellious son who refused other discipline could be taken before the elders for judgment (Dt 21:18-21; cp. Lv 19:3). Eli's sons showed contempt for their father and for the Lord, who brought them death as a result (1Sm 2:12-17,22-25,29-30). The respect and kindness that Ruth and Boaz showed for Naomi and that Joseph showed for Jacob provide positive examples (cp. Pr 1:8; 19:26; 20:20; 23:22; 28:24; 30:17). Long life may refer to the tenure of the nation in the land. Failure to honor parents was one of the sins that Ezekiel listed in a description of the people of Jerusalem before the city was destroyed (Ezk 22:7; cp. Mc 7:6). Long life for individuals is also possible and is mentioned elsewhere as an outcome from the Lord for loyal obedience (Ex 23:26).

20:13 The word translated murder is not a general word for "killing," and it is not used for killing animals or for killing humans in war or legal execution. Cities of refuge were designated so that anyone who killed another person could run to these cities to avoid being killed in revenge. This also meant that a case of homicide could be properly investigated to determine whether the killing was accidental or premeditated (21:12-14; Nm 35; Dt 19; Jos 20).

20:17 This command addresses the inner life, the source of wrong actions including murder, adultery, and stealing.

20:18-21 In the same breath Moses told the people not to fear (Don't be afraid) but to fear (lit "so that the fear of Him will be before your face"). They should not fear that God might capriciously exterminate them. Nevertheless, the purpose of the frightening display is that they might recognize God's power, His presence, and His holiness and be motivated to avoid sin and consequent judgment.

20:22-23:19 This section includes laws that were similar to those of other ancient cultures—which we know from ancient documents—altered and put into a context of motivation based on the Lord's actions, character, requirements, and oversight.

20:22-23 Obedience to the instructions in verses 22-26 would have distinguished Israelite worship from the pagan worship around them.

20:24-26 Mention of places where the Lord would come and bless the Israelites provided a reminder that, unlike pagan gods, the Lord must not be considered limited to Mount Sinai or any other locality. If they obeyed Him, they would enjoy God's blessings wherever they were.

21:2-6 These rules for Hebrew slaves applied to both males and females, according to Dt 15:12-17 (cp. Ex 21:20,26-27,32; Jr 34:13-16). An Israelite might choose to go into slavery to pay restitution for theft, to repay another debt, or to obtain food and shelter in hard times. On penalty of death, Ex 21:16 rules out kidnapping and forcing an Israelite into slavery. And while the life of slaves might be difficult, there were penalties for mistreatment (v v. 20-21,26-27) and slaves who ran away were not to be returned to their masters (Dt 23:15-16).

21:7-11 These verses deal with the status and rights of a woman who had been sold with the expectation of becoming a kind of second-class wife, somewhat like Hagar, Bilhah, and Zilpah, who bore children for Abraham and Jacob.

21:14 You must take him from My altar pictures the murderer as having come to the sanctuary for protection. But even the Lord's altar provided no asylum for a person who planned a murder (cp. 1Kg 1:50-53; 2:28-34). This is a reminder that the Lord's sacred spaces and objects are not endowed with power that could be manipulated apart from Him.

21:16 Under this statement, what Joseph's brothers did to him (Gn 37:27-28) was a death-penalty offense.

21:20-21 If a slave died from being beaten, the death would be avenged by death (v v. 12-14). If the slave lived but sustained permanent injury, he or she would go free (v v. 26-27). A later death might be from another cause than the owner's action; so the owner should not die. Because he is his owner's property adopts a pragmatic stance and assumes that the owner had shown regard for potential monetary loss and had not intended to kill or permanently injure the slave.

21:22-25 A fine was to be assessed for a blow that caused premature delivery. The only other uses of the word translated "injury" here occurs in Gn 42:4,38, where the harm that Jacob feared was that Benjamin might die. The series that begins with life for life seems to have been a formula that might be repeated partly or in full, even in situations like blasphemy, where physical harm was not an issue (Lv 24:17-21; Dt 19:16-21). The formula called for proportionate punishment rather than a process of escalating violence between individuals or families (in contrast to the attitude of Lamech in Gn 4:23-24). Considering pregnancy as a special complication implies concern for the infant. Certain other deaths incurred financial penalties (Ex 21:28-32). The case assumed that even unintentional injury must be remedied, while Exodus 1-2 with its portrayal of intentional injury to infants stands in the background of this passage.

21:26-27 Laws protecting slaves are not found in other ancient Near Eastern law collections.

21:28-32 Stoning was a form of public execution and not the ordinary way to slaughter an animal (Dt 13:10; 17:5; Jos 7:25; 1Kg 21:13). If the owner's negligence caused the death, he too must die or pay a ransom for his life. The possibility of a ransom implies that the owner was less directly responsible for the person's death than in cases of murder (Ex 21:12,20,23; Nm 35:31). This value placed on human life over animals fits with God's earlier statement, "I will require the life of every animal and every man for your life and your blood"

because humans are made in God's image (Gn 9:5-6). Other ancient Near Eastern laws treat these situations strictly as monetary matters. In case a child died, the stipulation that the negligent owner was to be dealt with according to this same law treated the lives of children as valuable and protected the negligent owner's child, whose life was forfeited in some ancient law codes.

21:35-36 Unlike the death of a human, the death of an ox was a monetary matter. When the matter was unforeseeable, the owners of both oxen bore the loss equally.

22:2-4 The difference in responses to burglary at different times rests on the concern that the owners' lives might be at stake, especially if the breakin took place at night. During the day they could recognize the thief and know whether or not this was a dangerous intruder (cp. Jr 2:26,34-35). Even the life of a thief was valued; he could not be sold as a slave or be killed in revenge.

22:8-9 In these verses, the judges translates the Hebrew word elohim , which usually refers to "God" or to "gods." Here it refers to superiors in the society, or judges, rather than a superior being, or God (cp. 1Sm 2:25, where Yahweh is distinguished from judges in a dispute between humans). In verse 9, the verb translated condemn is plural, which is appropriate for judges. The noun translated wrongdoing and its related verb are used in both political and private situations in which a breach of trust, violation of an agreement, disloyalty, or treachery were involved (23:21; Gn 31:36; 50:17; 1Kg 12:19; 2Kg 1:1; Pr 28:24; Is 1:2).

22:11 For examples of an oath before the LORD, see 1Sm 20:42; 2Sm 21:7; 1Kg 2:42-43.

22:16-17 The verb rendered seduces expresses the idea of persuading or enticing someone, often used negatively in the case of a gullible individual (Jdg 14:15; 16:5; Pr 1:10; 16:29). "Makes a fool of" would be another possible translation. Payment of a bridal price to the girl's father was a widely established ancient custom. The payment eventually should become her possession (Gn 31:14-15; 34:12). If a man had sexual intercourse with a woman to whom he was not engaged, he was required to pay the bridal price and marry her.

22:18 This prohibition represents one of several that outlawed all forms of occult activity (Lv 19:26-31; Dt 18:9-14). The three violations in Ex 22:18-20 would be more of a temptation once the Israelites reached the land of Canaan (23:32-33; Lv 18:1-5,23-30; 20:15-26,23-27; Dt 18:14-15).

22:20 The kind of sacrifices mentioned here involved fellowship between the deity and the worshiper. The Israelites must be loyal to and have fellowship with the LORD alone.

22:21-26 The Israelites were to remember who they were and their mistreatment in Egypt, and they were to remember that the Lord would take action on behalf of the powerless and vulnerable members of society. The word translated oppress in verse 21 and 23:9 is used in 3:9 to describe what prompted the Israelites to call out for help. They needed to avoid putting themselves in the position of the Egyptians. The mention of collateral consisting of a garment needed for warmth at night shows that the loan involved helping a poverty-stricken person survive. No luxury or business venture is in view.

22:28 Respect for God displayed in behavior toward others is an issue in the verses that precede and follow this one. Respect for a leader is included, perhaps in both halves of the verse, if the Hebrew word elohim has the same reference to "judges" that it seems to have in verses 8-9.

22:31 Be My holy people recalls the fuller description of the Lord's vision for Israel in 19:4-6 but is expressed more personally by listing individual choices. Leviticus provides further directions about what the Israelites could eat (Lv 17:12-15).

23:1-9 These verses touch on every economic status or personal feeling that might tempt someone to treat another unjustly. Favoritism either to the poor or to the rich is ruled out (Lv 19:15). Even in private matters involving the need of an enemy, an Israelite must not only return straying livestock but also render aid on the spot (Lv 19:15-18; Mt 5:43-48; Rm 12:17-21).

23:6-9 As in 22:21-26, the Israelites must remember who they were and what it was like as foreigners, and they must consider who the Lord is in His support of justice. The warning in 23:7 not to execute an innocent person comes with a reason: because I will not justify the guilty. This may refer to God ultimately bringing to justice a guilty person who may slip through the court when judges take care not to execute an innocent person. Or it may refer to God bringing to justice any witness or judge who contributes to the execution of an innocent person. Either way, the Lord declared His concern for maintaining justice (Dt 10:17; 16:18-20; 2Ch 19:6-7; Jr 22:3; 1Pt 1:15-17). With these things in mind, the Israelites must support justice equally for the poor, the rich, and foreigners.

23:10-19 The section on Sabbaths and festivals has as its unifying thread inclusion of matters with agricultural connections, even the prohibition against invoking other gods. The Israelites would find it easy to mimic surrounding cultures that called on other gods in hopes of improving the fertility of their crops and flocks.

23:10-11 The Lord's provision for His people from year to year would be like His provision of manna from day to day; there would be sufficient left over for the seventh day and for the seventh year so that everyone could eat without constant labor.

23:12 The two animals and two sorts of people here are illustrative and not an exhaustive list of who would rest and be refreshed (cp. 20:10).

23:13 This verse does not mean an Israelite must never pronounce the name of a false god, since the names of some pagan gods are included in Scripture. Rather, it is a prohibition of calling on any other god for guidance, help, thanksgiving, or praise.

23:14-17 The Festival of Unleavened Bread took place near the start of the barley harvest; the Festival of Harvest took place at the time of the wheat harvest; and the Festival of Ingathering celebrated the completion of all the harvesting, including grapes and olives. Bringing firstfruits, the first items harvested, expressed gratitude for the harvest as coming from the Lord and faith that He would supply the remainder of the harvest (Dt 26:1-11). The name Lord GOD emphasizes His sovereignty and could also be rendered "the Sovereign [or "Master"], Yahweh." Any ancient king who did not receive the prescribed tribute at the appropriate times would conclude that his vassal was plotting rebellion (1Kg 12:16-19; Ezr 4:8-24). In the ancient Near East, the appearance of all your males would demonstrate the loyalty or rebellion of those with potential for military service.

23:18-19 Based on 34:25, the sacrifice and festival offering is the Passover lamb, which was sacrificed, roasted, and eaten on the eve of the week of the Festival of Unleavened Bread. All leaven was to be dispensed with before the Passover lamb was offered (Dt 16:2-4). Regulations in Leviticus prohibit eating specified portions of fat from sacrificed animals (Lv 3:16-17; 7:25); the fat and anything else left from the Passover lamb was to be burned (Ex 12:10). The prohibition about boiling a young goat in its mother's milk is repeated in 34:26 and Dt 14:21. It may have been connected with the Festival of Ingathering, since goats gave birth around that time, or it may have referred to a pagan custom of unknown significance.

23:20-23 The Lord's sending of an angel (cp. 13:21; 14:19) continues the picture of Israel's relationship with the Lord as that of a vassal with a suzerain. The vassal must understand that the envoy came with the king's authority behind him (My name is in Him).

23:24 Sacred pillars could be set up as monuments for various purposes (24:4; Gn 28:18,22; 31:13,45,51-52; 35:20; Lv 26:1; Is 19:19).

23:25 The Lord had already shown His ability in the areas of bread . . . water, and illnesses (cp. 15:22-26; 16:4-5; 17:1-7).

23:26 The Lord referred to provision and preservation of life at both ends of the spectrum—for infants and the elderly—having already spoken about what was needed in between (v v. 22,25). He was concerned about all aspects of life.

23:27-30 While the military battles of Joshua may be more typical of the era of conquest in Canaan, this passage focuses on what might be called psychological warfare and on the departure of the previous inhabitants. The Lord may have intended to use a plague of hornets to drive . . . out the groups living in the land (Dt 7:20; Jos 24:12). It may also be a figure of speech referring to the image of people running away from a place as if chased by swarming hornets (cp. Dt 1:44; Ps 118:12; Is 7:18-19).

Because of the terror and confusion that the Lord would instigate (Jos 2:9-11; 1Sm 5:6-8,11-12), many people would leave gradually rather than stay to engage in combat. Joshua noted that the Israelites had taken possession of cities, olive groves, and vineyards that they did not build or plant (Dt 6:10-11; Jos 24:11-13). It seems that major portions of the land were intact and not destroyed by protracted warfare. I will cause the people ahead of you to feel terror is literally, "My terror I will send before you." God may be interpreted as either the source or the object of the terror. In the events that followed, both took place; the Lord caused fear/confusion and was also the object of fear as His reputation spread. Rahab's report in Jos 2:9 of what was happening among people in Canaan uses the same rare word for terror or dread as does Ex 15:16.

23:30-31 I will drive them out and you will drive them out assumes the involvement of both divine and human effort. Borders from the Red Sea refers to the portion of the Red Sea known as the Gulf of Aqaba (cp. 1Kg 9:26). The Mediterranean Sea, as it is called now, is in Hebrew literally "the sea of the Philistines," since they lived along the coast (cp. 13:17).

23:33 It will be a snare for you uses the word that 10:7 used to express what Pharaoh's men thought about Moses as they surveyed the damage caused by the plagues. Snares were naturally associated with death (1Sm 18:21; Ps 18:5; Pr 13:14; 14:27; 18:7). Idolatry as a snare to the Israelites pictured serious trouble, not a minor inconvenience (Ex 34:12; Dt 7:16; Jos 23:13; Jdg 2:3; Ps 106:36).

24:1-2 The ceremonies in chapter 24 are the climax of preparations and instructions in chapters 19-23. The arrangements of people and spaces at the mountain parallel those at the tabernacle, with areas that admitted everyone who was properly prepared, initial boundaries past which designated people could go (Moses, Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, 70 elders, priests, and Levites) and further boundaries past which only one representative could go (Moses and the high priest). Nadab and Abihu were two of Aaron's sons (6:23; Lv 10:1-5). To bow in worship at a distance fits ancient customs that called for bowing in full-length prostration at various points when approaching a person to whom one showed great respect (Gn 33:3). While only Moses could approach closely, Aaron and the elders could come near enough to participate in the ways that Ex

24:9-11 describes.

24:3 All the commands may refer specifically to the Ten Commandments (20:1-17), and the ordinances to additional commands given in 20:22-23:33.

24:4 The 12 pillars represented the people as silent witnesses to their participation and agreement, like the ones built by Jacob and Laban (Gn 31:44-53) and by Joshua (Jos 24:24-27).

24:5-8 Burnt offerings were burned entirely, except for the animal hides, and they showed total dedication to the Lord. Fellowship offerings were primarily cooked and eaten by the worshipers, symbolizing that the people and the Lord, who had invited them, were at peace with one another. It was normal for covenant-making to include a meal, as in the case of the parity treaty between Isaac and Abimelech (Gn 26:26-31; cp. Gn 31:43-54). The shedding of blood when making a covenant reminded everyone of the covenant's seriousness and the penalties for breaking it (Jr 34:18-20). The sprinkling of blood marked the altar and the people as associated with the covenant sacrifices. And because this covenant was with God, the shed blood was also a provision for atonement and forgiveness, life for life (Lv 4:13-20; 17:1-16; Heb 9:13-22).

In addition to telling the people what the Lord commanded (v. 3), Moses read aloud the covenant scroll before he sprinkled them with blood, so they knew exactly what responsibilities they were agreeing to fulfill. To read a covenant aloud in the hearing of the vassal was another part of the process.

24:10-11 The description of what Moses and the Israelite leaders saw when they approached the God of Israel must employ comparisons. It was something like a pavement made of sapphire stone, and it had a clarity like that of the sky. It was similar to, but beyond anything people knew of (likewise in v. 17). The description is further limited in that it offers the point of view of someone face down and able to see only what was beneath His feet. The mention that God did not harm the Israelite nobles (lit "stretch out His hand") reflects ancient customs that gave kings the ability to call for a subject's removal or death with just a hand gesture. Instead, He received them with favor.

24:12 The stone tablets are also mentioned in 31:18, forming a frame around the instructions for building the tabernacle in chapters 25-31.

24:13-15 The departure of Moses and Joshua parallels that of Abraham and Isaac (Gn 22). In both cases the older man left instructions, and the younger man required an explanation of events from the older man. That the Israelites began worshiping the golden calf (Ex 32) rather than waiting as instructed showed that they failed to match either the faithfulness of Abraham or even of his servants. Meanwhile, Moses and Joshua in a sense continued the legacy of Abraham and Isaac's faithful worship.

25:1-31:17 These chapters contain instructions for the tabernacle and its furnishings and the clothing for priests that the Israelites were to make. Much of the information is repeated in chapters 35-40, which report the tabernacle's construction. It would have been possible to put all the necessary details about the tabernacle in the report about its construction and go almost immediately from the events at the end of chapter 24 to the events surrounding worship of the golden calf in chapter 32. The attention to detail in chapters 25-31 slows the account, forcing readers to wait for what happens next. It also highlights the catastrophe of worshiping the golden calf against a background of concern for proper worship. It is ironic that while the Lord gave instructions for correct worship, the Israelites were doing it their own way.

25:1 The statement The LORD spoke to Moses divides chapters 25-31 into seven unequal segments, ending with instructions about the Sabbath, as if to show a connection between creation and this new building where God would meet with human beings (25:1; 30:11,17,22,34; 31:1,12; cp. Rv 21:1-3). Recording the instructions as they came in the voice of the Lord Himself, rather than in a narrative summary, helps reinforce God's personal interest in these matters and His personal offense at the worship of the golden calf.

25:2 This offering would be the result of internal compulsion and not external —as with taxes or public pressure. The willingness of the people extended so far that the workmen had more than enough materials (36:3-7).

25:7 The ephod and breastpiece are described more fully in chapter 28, along with other priestly garments.

25:8 For the Israelites to make a sanctuary for the Lord to dwell in continues the theme of His presence with His people and His goal in bringing them out of Egypt—to make Himself known as their God, and to give them a unique identity as His people (6:6-7; 19:4-6; 29:43-46). The word translated "dwell" is rendered "settled" in the statement that "the glory of the Lord settled on Mount Sinai" in 24:16. It is closely associated with the word "shekinah," used in postbiblical discussions of the Lord's presence. It is also connected by sound and concept with the Greek verb in Jn 1:14 that is translated "took up residence." By commissioning the building of the tabernacle, a portable worship center, the Lord showed that He intended to live among the Israelites more closely than when meeting with them on Mount Sinai.

Returning to the suzerain-vassal comparison, the suzerain would customarily live far from the vassal, using his collected tribute exclusively for his own enjoyment. The best a vassal nation could hope for was that their suzerain would provide security and predictable levies of tribute rather than sporadic, devastating raids. The Lord, however, was talking to Moses about residing among the Israelites as His own people.

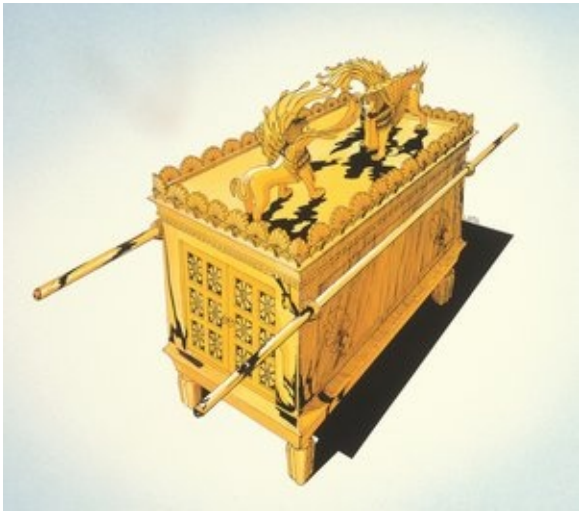
25:9 Attempts to imagine or to build a replica of the tabernacle and its furnishings can only proceed with the disadvantage of not having seen what the Lord showed Moses, in addition to difficulties posed by rare words describing unfamiliar items. The tabernacle itself and a complete description of all its details were not what subsequent generations needed.

25:10-22 The ark, a rectangular wooden box covered inside and out with gold, sat in the most sacred area in the tabernacle. It symbolized the Lord's presence with the Israelites in at least three ways: (1) It was a repository for the stone tablets given to Moses, which were a witness, or testimony to the requirements the Israelites had agreed to. (2) On the annual Day of Atonement, the high priest sprinkled blood on the mercy seat, the ark's cover, in keeping with the Lord's provision for dealing with the sins of the people (Lv 16:13-15,29-34). (3) The ark was also where the Lord met with Moses and spoke with him (Nm 7:89). This was in keeping with His earlier assurance of His presence with Moses (Ex 3:11-12; 4:11-15).



Reconstruction of the ark of the covenant drawn in Egyptian style, reflecting the influence of 400 years of bondage in Egypt.The mysterious origin of the ark is seen by contrasting the two accounts of how it was made in the Pentateuch. The more elaborate account of the manufacture and ornamentation of the ark by the craftsman Bezalel appears in Ex 25:10-22; 31:2,7; 35:30-35; 37:1-9. It was planned during Moses' first sojourn on Sinai and built after the tabernacle specifications had been communicated and completed. The other account is found in Dt 10:1-5. After the sin of the golden calf and the breaking of the original Decalogue tablets, Moses made a plain box of acacia wood as a container to receive the new tables of the law. A very ancient poem, the "Song of the Ark" in Nm 10:35-36, sheds some light on the function of the ark in the wanderings in the wilderness.

25:10 Many measurements for the tabernacle and its furnishings used a unit called ammah in Hebrew, traditionally rendered "cubit," an anglicized version of the Latin cubitus. The Hebrew word also meant "forearm," and an ammah measured from the tip of a man's fingers to his elbow, roughly 18 inches. The HCSB makes the conversions to English measures.

25:16 Recording a covenant on tablets and placing them in a sanctuary in the presence of a deity were common practices for preserving covenants. Certain Hittite covenant documents mention doing this.

25:18 The cover of the ark was to be decorated with two cherubim. Elsewhere the Lord is spoken of as enthroned above the cherubim, so that the ark was His footstool (1Sm 4:4; 2Sm 6:2; 2Kg 19:15; Ps 99:1,5; 132:7). "Cherubim" is the plural for "cherub," and both are anglicized Hebrew words. Winged beings of this sort were commissioned "to guard the way to the tree of life" (Gn 3:24), and they were described by the prophet Ezekiel, who saw them transporting God's throne (Ezk 10).

25:29 To present drink offerings, a priest would pour out a liquid—wine, for example—to be burned along with certain animal sacrifices (29:40-41; Lv 23:9-13).

25:30 The bread of the Presence consisted of 12 loaves made with fine flour and arranged in two rows on the gold-covered table located just outside the most holy area of the tabernacle (Lv 24:5-9). Unlike foodstuffs that were placed in pagan temples for the gods to eat, this bread was for the Israelite priests to eat as a symbolic provision for them from the Lord's table.

25:31-37 The highly decorated lampstand (Hb menorah) resembled the almond tree, noted for its early blossoming. The Hebrew word for "almond" is associated with a verb that means "watch over" or "keep watch," so that almond blossoms seem an appropriate decoration for an item that enhanced visibility. Aaron's staff was made of almond wood (Nm 17:8). In Jr 1:11-12 it is a symbol of God watching over His word to accomplish His purpose.

26:1-14 The tabernacle proper was made with four layers; the first of finely spun linen, the second of woven goat hair, the third of leather made from ram skins dyed red, and the fourth another kind of leather whose source is uncertain. The word used for it appears also in Ezk 16:10 to describe material for special sandals. The translation manatee skins depends on the similarity in sound of the Hebrew term to an Arabic word for a marine mammal native to the Red Sea. Another possibility is that the Hebrew word is a borrowed Egyptian word for "leather."

26:15-25 The tabernacle would be oriented with its open side to the east, its short wall on the west, and its long walls on the north and south. See the reconstruction of the tabernacle and its court on page 145.

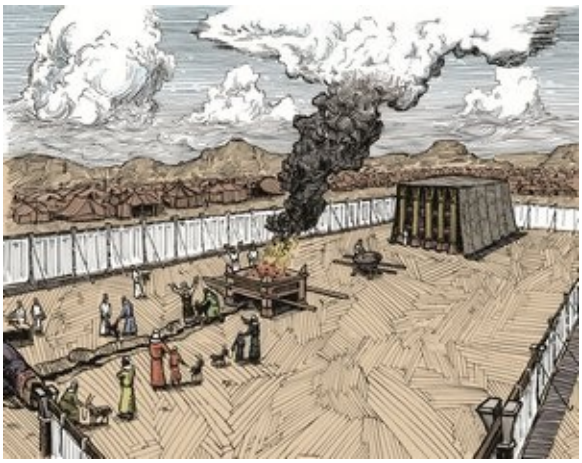
26:31-35 The veil (Hb paroketh) is a term used only of this curtain that divides the two halves of the tabernacle proper. The outer room, the holy place, would contain the table and the lampstand described in chapter 25. The inner room, the most holy place, would contain the ark and its cover, the mercy seat.

26:36-37 The entrance to the holy place, on the east side of the tabernacle, would have a woven linen screen of the same fine material as the veil, but with no mention of the cherubim design.

27:1 The altar (also called "the bronze altar"; see 38:30; 39:39) would sit outside the sanctuary or tabernacle proper in the middle of the courtyard square in front of the holy place. It was massive in size; a man of average height standing beside it would barely be able to look over it. Anything burning on it would be at about eye level or higher.

27:2 Discoveries by archaeologists indicate that horns were typical of stone altars. The incense altar would also have horns (30:1-2), which may have been symbols of strength. Psalm 118:27 mentions using ropes to tie a sacrifice to the altar's horns. Blood was put on the horns of both the altar of burnt offering and the incense altar (Ex 29:12; 30:10; Lv 4:7,18,25,30,34; 8:15; 9:9; 16:18). A person seeking refuge in hope of avoiding death would grasp the horns on the altar for burnt offerings (1Kg 1:50-51; 2:28).

27:8 Since the altar was hollow, which helped make it portable, it could be filled with stones and earth each time the tabernacle was rebuilt (cp. 20:24).



Reconstruction of the tabernacle and its court (26:1-35). The tabernacle was always set up to face east, so this view is from the northeast.

27:9-18 The courtyard for the tabernacle would be enclosed by a fence seven and a half feet high made with linen cloth hung from posts at seven-and-a-half-foot intervals. Like the tabernacle proper, it would open to the east.

27:20-21 This variety of pure oil from crushed olives (crushed and pressed rather than ground in a mill) would give bright light with little smoke. Mention of Aaron and his sons, who would tend the lamp, prepares for the start of a lengthy section (chaps. 28-29) that describes preparations for their service. The tabernacle is called the tent of meeting in view of the Lord's intention to meet with His people there (25:22; 29:42-43; 30:6,36).

28:1-2 The holy garments of Aaron and his sons marked them as the Lord's priests. The Lord's directions provided clothing and food for those who served in His presence (29:28), in contrast with certain pagan rituals, which focused on clothing and feeding idol gods. The phrase for glory and beauty indicates that the priestly garments were much more than utilitarian. They resembled other elements of the tabernacle complex, which featured fine fabrics, colorful designs, precious metals, and specialized workmanship, as appropriate for honoring the Lord, who would reside there. Nadab and Abihu accompanied their father and the Israelite elders who were privileged to take part in the covenant ceremony on Mount Sinai (24:1-11). Their sudden deaths are recorded in Lv 10:1-7. Eleazar followed Aaron as high priest (Nm 20:28). Ithamar directed the Levites, who made an inventory of materials used in constructing the tabernacle (Ex 38:21).

Artist's rendition of the high priest's garments (28:1-38) 28:3 The men and women who would make the priestly garments would use abilities that God gave them. In contrast with Pharaoh, whose heart was characteristically "hard" in rebellion toward the Lord, these people were "wise of heart" and were filled with a spirit of wisdom. Wisdom in this case would display itself in both willingness and skill to do the needed work.

28:6 The word ephod is a transliterated Hebrew word referring to a vest-like garment worn by the high priest.

28:11-12 A seal would stamp a distinctive impression into wax or clay, or leave an identifying pattern of ink and act like a signature (cp. Gn 38:18; 1Kg 21:8; Jr 22:24). Exodus 28:12 does not specify who should be reminded by the stones or for what purpose. Previously in Exodus both the Lord and the Israelites received impetus to remember (2:24; 3:15; 6:5; 12:14; 13:9; 17:14).

28:16 The breastpiece was folded double, it seems, to create a pocket or pouch for storing the Urim and Thummim (v. 30).

28:29 The high priest represented the Israelites, as symbolized by the double display of the names of each tribe on the two stones on the ephod (v. 11) and also by the name on each of the 12 stones on his breastpiece. Since the Lord's "remembering" entailed His acting (2:24-25; 3:7-10), to "remind" Him is an expression of dependence, faith, and prayer.

28:30 Little is known about what the words Urim and Thummim meant (the Hebrew words are transliterated rather than translated), or how these objects worked. One suggested meaning is that "Urim" had to do with "light" and "Thummim" with "completion, perfection." Another possibility is that they are associated with words that mean "curse" and "innocence." They seem to have been familiar objects in the ancient context since there is no discussion about making or obtaining them. Their use included receiving direction from the Lord for decisions (Nm 27:18-21; 1Sm 28:5-6). For the high priest to carry into the presence of the Lord both the names of the tribes and items used in rendering decisions presupposed the Lord's sovereignty in these quests for guidance. The priest promoted adherence to the covenant stipulations and rendered judgments under the Lord's supervision (Dt 33:8-10).

28:33-34 The colors, precious stones, fine materials and specialized workmanship, and certainly the bells that went into making the priest's clothing contributed to marking the high priest and drawing attention to his work and movements.

28:35 To wear the specified clothing would show that the priest recognized the sanctity of the holy place because of God's presence, just as Moses and the Israelites had to do at the burning bush and at Mount Sinai (3:5; 19:10-24).

28:36-37 The phrase HOLY TO THE LORD indicated ownership —"belonging to." The priest was marked as someone devoted to the Lord for service, representing the Israelites, who were likewise to be holy (19:5-6; 22:31; Lv 11:44-45). The same words are used to describe the Sabbath in Ex 31:15 where it is translated, "dedicated to the LORD" (cp. Ezr 8:28; Jr 2:2-3; Zch 14:20-

28:38 In place of and as representatives of the rest of the Israelites, Aaron and his sons were responsible to care for the tabernacle and present offerings there (Nm 17:12-18:7). The high priest would bear the guilt (or suffer the consequences) associated with failure to observe the requirements of holiness (cp. v. 43). In that process the people needed a high priest marked by holiness to offer acceptable sacrifices to the Lord (Heb 7:25-28).

28:41 Ceremonial anointing involved pouring oil on a person to designate the start of a new role in life. Among those anointed were priests, kings, and prophets (30:30; Jdg 9:8; 1Sm 9:16; 1Kg 19:16). Objects also could be anointed to set them apart for holy uses (Ex 29:36; 40:9-11).

29:1 The word unblemished applies also to the young bull (Lv 22:19-21; Dt 17:1).

29:4-9 Leviticus 8 describes the ceremony enacted in the tabernacle. Much later in Israel's history, the prophet Zechariah looked forward to a time when the Lord would graciously restore His people and reclothe their high priest (Zch 2:10-3:5).

29:6 Holy diadem is another term for the engraved gold plate described in 28:36-37 (cp. 39:30).

29:7 Instructions for making the fragrant anointing oil appear in 30:22-25.

29:10 Aaron and his sons would associate themselves with the bull by putting their hands on it, transferring their guilt to receive atonement and forgiveness as the bull was offered up (Lv 4:4,15,24,29,33). The bull would be sacrificed as a substitute for the people; they must do likewise with two rams (Ex 29:15,19; cp. Lv 16:21; Nm 8:10; 27:18-23).

29:12-13 The use of blood reflects its significance as essential to life and to God's provision of a substitute whose life was lost on behalf of the worshiper (Lv 17:11). Certain portions of the animal's fat were to be burned as a way of offering what was best to the Lord. While the blood symbolized life, the fat symbolized abundance and was characteristic of an animal that had been well fed and cared for; it was considered the finest part (Gn 4:4; 45:18, "richness"; Ezk 34:3). The kidneys were associated with the inner life of a person, along with the heart (Ps 7:10; 73:21; Jr 17:10; 20:12). Perhaps separating the kidneys signified the examination and dedication of the offerer at that level.

29:14 The various kinds of sin offering and their circumstances are described in Lv 4:1-5:13. Sometimes called a purification offering, its purpose was to atone for sin or ceremonial uncleanness in order to restore communion. Most of the animal had to be burned outside the camp (cp. Heb 13:11-12).

29:18 The first ram was given as a burnt offering. It went up in smoke as a gift in tribute to God by means of fire, making it a fire offering. That it would make a pleasing aroma signified God's acceptance of the offering and the worshiper (Lv 1).

29:20-21 No reason is given for placing blood on the right earlobes . . . thumbs, and toes. A person who came for ceremonial cleansing after recovering from a skin disease received the same treatment with both blood and oil (Lv 14:14-18). The outcome of the marking of both priests and garments was holiness; they would be clearly set apart for service to the Lord.

29:22-25 The sacrifice of the second ram is one of the "fellowship sacrifices" (Lv 3; 7:11-21). It celebrated communion with God with ceremonies including a shared meal. The ram's designation as a ram for ordination explains why the right thigh was to be burned rather than eaten, as was normal for fellowship sacrifices. The words "ordination" and "ordain" reflect the idiomatic Hebrew expression that reads literally, "to fill the hand of someone." By placing items in the hands of Aaron and his sons and then waving and burning the items, Moses would act out the filling of the hands of the new priests. It would become their work to present to the Lord the offerings that the Israelites would bring.

29:26-28 It is to be your portion specifies that this time Moses would receive the breast because he was the officiating priest. On later occasions it would go to Aaron or his sons (Lv 7:34-36).

29:38-42 After the instructions for the seven-day consecration of Aaron and his sons and of the altar in verses 1-37, instructions for regular sacrifices to be offered on normal days are presented.

29:43-46 The most important consecrations would be accomplished not by the Israelites but by the Lord. Their priests and ceremonies would have significance because of Yahweh's presence. The display of His glory would then extend from victory over Pharaoh (14:4,17-18) to provision for the Israelites in the wilderness (16:7,10), to making a covenant with them (24:16-17), and then to this tent they would build.

He would be with them to act on their behalf, as when He answered Moses' objections by promising to be with him (3:12; 4:12,15). In this place He would continue the pattern of action leading to knowledge of His identity: They will know that I am Yahweh their God (cp. 6:7; 7:17; 8:10,22; 9:14,29; 10:2; 11:7; 14:4,18; 16:6,12). This is the last and climactic divine statement in Exodus of God's revelatory purpose. But all this would be jeopardized by the Israelites' actions in chapter 32.

30:1 Incense is a picture of prayer (Ps 141:2; Rv 5:8; 8:3-4).

30:9 The other offerings mentioned were to be made outside the holy place, at the altar for burnt offerings.

30:10 To perform the purification rite (or “make atonement”) involved putting blood on the horns of the incense altar on the Day of Atonement (Lv 16:16-20).

30:12-16 The motive for taking a census was typically military (Nm 1:2-3,20-45; Jdg 20:2,15-17). The need to pay a ransom, also called a contribution, of half a shekel each in order to avert a plague reminded everyone that the nation as a whole and its citizens belonged to the Lord. Their preservation depended ultimately on Him, not their military strength, wealth, or poverty (12:13; 15:26; 17:8-16; Nm 8:19).

30:13 At the time of Moses, a shekel was a measure of weight. Coins of various weights, including the shekel, came into being centuries later. Measuring according to the sanctuary may mean that this weight was different from the one commonly used in scales (Gn 23:16) or that the sanctuary was the center for a system of standardizing weights.

30:22-38 The oil and incense for the tabernacle required costly ingredients (some coming from a great distance) and expert knowledge to compound them properly. Myrrh came from the sap of a tree found in Arabia and Ethiopia. Cinnamon came from the bark of a tree grown in Ceylon and Malaysia. Cassia may have come from a type of tree bark. Stacte is a transliterated Greek term used for different varieties of tree and plant sap. Onycha, based on an Arabic word, may have come from a type of mollusk. Galbanum came from the sap of a plant grown in Afghanistan and Persia. Frankincense also came from sap and could be imported from Arabia or Ethiopia.

31:1-6 The Israelites would construct the tabernacle and its furnishings by using a wide variety of skills that the Lord had supplied to the builders. Their calling and enabling came from the Lord by His Spirit. The terms for wisdom, understanding, and ability appear also in Pr 2:6. Like other matters in Exodus, these abilities to make beautiful objects involved the person’s “heart.” Every skilled craftsman is more literally “everyone wise of heart,” which helps in recognizing that “wise” and “wisdom” in Proverbs refer to skills for living in relationships with other people and with God, even as wisdom here shows itself as skills needed for building the tabernacle. The Lord provided what people needed to make things that would be valuable to Him and to other people. A fuller description appears in Ex 35:4-36:7.

31:12-13 Here again action leads to knowledge (see notes at 4:1-9; 6:6-8), but this time it is what the Israelites must do—observe My Sabbaths—that will lead to knowing the identity of the Lord and of themselves. The term translated sets you apart can also be translated “consecrates you” or “sanctifies you.” The Israelites were to have a unique identity, distinct from other nations and closely associated with the Lord.

31:14-15 Anyone who profaned the Sabbath by working was in willful rebellion against the Lord. They refused to recognize His past provisions or to trust Him for present and future provisions.

31:16-17 To observe the Sabbath would be a sign forever of the covenant between the Lord and the Israelites, reminding them of the Lord's provision as the One who had made the heavens and the earth and as the One who had made Israel a new nation (16:24-30; 20:8-11). As part of their loyalty to the Lord, their Sovereign, the Israelites could participate in the rest that He enjoyed.

31:18 The two tablets of the testimony contained the Ten Commandments and were to be placed inside the ark in the most holy place in the tabernacle to remind the people of the covenant that the Israelites had promised to keep (25:16).

32:1 When the people saw that Moses delayed in coming down presents the situation from the viewpoint of the people. The preceding verse about the Lord having finished speaking and having given Moses the tablets, plus 24:14,18, indicates that their notion was mistaken. Moses could not have returned sooner; he had been summoned by the sovereign Lord and could leave only when dismissed. Their way of speaking about this Moses, the man who brought us up from . . . Egypt, gives insight into their ungrateful attitude. What they said was insulting to Moses and also to the Lord, since it ignored His involvement. It matched their earlier complaints (14:11-12; 16:2-3,6-8; 17:3). The assumption seems to be that Moses (not to mention Joshua) had abandoned them.

32:2-6 While Moses was viewing patterns and receiving detailed instructions about building the tabernacle and its furnishings, and about consecrating Aaron as priest of the Lord, Aaron made a golden calf, set up an altar, and began making sacrifices on it. To worship a calf fit well with both Egyptian and Canaanite practices, in which the calf was a symbol of strength and fertility.

32:5 Perhaps Aaron's declaration attempted to put a better face on the situation with a version of the theory that the end justified the means. But the festival could never be in honor of the Lord when the method it used defied Him.

32:7 The word translated acted corruptly indicates total ruin, as in 8:24; Gn 6:12-13; 19:13; Jr 12:10; 13:7. The word "corrupt" describes something irrevocably spoiled in such a way that it is no longer of any use.

32:9-14 During the plagues against Egypt, Moses frequently prayed on behalf of Pharaoh and the Egyptians. Now Moses prayed for the Israelites (v v. 30-32; 33:12-16; 34:8-9). That the Lord told Moses about the situation and did not immediately destroy the Israelites left the door open for Moses to pray for them and for the Lord to relent (unlike Jr 15:1). As He would Himself proclaim, compassion, grace, and the capacity to forgive are among God's most prominent characteristics (Ex 34:6-7; cp. Jnh 3:9-10; 4:2). Earlier the Lord had needed to persuade Moses to accept His plans; now Moses uses the Lord's own words to persuade Him to have mercy on His people. This displayed the depth of the victory that the Lord had won in Moses' heart.

32:11-12 The same terms describe the anger of both the Lord and Moses (v v. 10-11,19,22). Moses agreed with the Lord's assessment that the Israelites were stubbornly rebellious ("stiff-necked," v. 9; 33:3,5; 34:9) and called what they had done "grave sin" (v. 31). "To what end? For what purpose?" is the point of both questions (cp. Gn 25:32; 27:45-46; Dt 5:24; Jdg 15:10; Ru 1:11).

32:15-16 This lengthy description of the two tablets reinforces their importance and underscores the statement Moses made by smashing them.

32:17 No one had told Joshua what was happening in the Israelite camp. His concerned but erroneous explanation conveyed how bad things had gotten. Even war would be better than what was happening. It also provides a brief glimpse into Joshua's character as an innocent man who cared about the people; he was unaware of the terrible events that had taken place.

32:20 Drinking water containing the ground-up golden calf meant that whatever was left of the calf would become nothing but human waste. Similarities exist between this action by Moses and the trial of a woman accused of adultery (Nm 5:11-31).

32:21-22 This attempt to deflect blame shows that Aaron knew that making the calf was wrong.

32:23-24 Aaron's account minimizes his participation by leaving out much of what he did and by describing the calf as a surprise.

32:25-29 The phrasing of Moses' order to kill was a forceful way to rule out sparing anyone based on a personal connection, no matter how close. The Levites must have killed known leaders of the rebellion but not all of the participants, since later events show that not all guilty parties died at this point.

32:30-33 Throughout Scripture, it is clear that consequences for sin in general come in stages and with varying degrees of severity, giving people an opportunity to repent (cp. 2Pt 2:9). Moses knew that although the Israelites as a nation had not been destroyed (Ex 32:9-14), the matter of consequences from their sin with the golden calf was not yet settled. Perhaps Moses intended to offer himself as a substitute for the people since sacrifices were normally offered when people sought atonement (Lv 16:6,11,17,24; Ezk 45:17). In any case, by requesting to die if the people died, Moses identified himself with them and refused to be the start of a "great nation" to replace them (Ex 32:10). His reference to erasure from the book You have written, that lists those who were alive on earth, implies a comparison between God's actions and that of a person who kept and consulted written records, such as census lists used for collecting taxes or for military conscriptions (cp. Ezr 2:62; Ps 69:28; Jr 22:30; Ezk 13:9).

32:34 The angel was first mentioned in 3:2 and would be a topic of further discussion between the Lord and Moses (23:20,23; 32:34; 33:2).

33:1-5 The instruction to set out for the land promised to Israel, in terms similar to those used before the golden calf incident (13:21-22; 14:19), might suggest that all was well. The Lord even said that He would drive out the land's current inhabitants. He added, however, that He would not go among the Israelites. This amounted to saying that there would be no use for the tabernacle to be built, since it was intended as the dwelling of the Lord among His people (29:45-46). Earlier the Israelites had questioned whether the Lord was among them (17:7), and now He assured them that He would not be.

33:6 The verb translated stripped recalls 3:22 and 12:36, which use a form of the same Hebrew verb to speak of the Egyptians being "plundered" when they gave gold and silver items to the Israelites. The disobedience of the Israelites made them like the Egyptians in worship and now in the loss of their ornaments.

33:7-11 The tent far away from the camp contrasts with the splendid tabernacle that had been intended for the middle of the camp. At the same time, the tent's location kept open the possibility of further consideration on all sides without immediate danger to the Israelites. The description of the close access that Moses enjoyed provides a background for his further requests. Moses, more than anyone else, knew what the Israelites were in danger of losing.

33:12 Moses' polite objection, You have not let me know whom You will send with me, returns to issues that the Lord and Moses discussed at the beginning of Moses' mission. The Lord had assured Moses that He would go with him (3:12; 4:12,15; cp. 10:10). Now rather than asking the Lord to send whomever He wished, so long as it was someone else (4:13), Moses insisted that the Lord should go with him and with the Israelites as His people.

33:13 Throughout the conflict with Pharaoh, the events in the wilderness, and the explanation of the tabernacle, the Lord spoke of actions designed to make Himself known by revealing who He is. In addition, Moses' desire to know the Lord contrasts with Pharaoh's boast about not knowing the Lord and not listening to Him (5:2).

33:14 The phrase I will give you rest may be short for "rest from your enemies." It probably refers to security for the Israelites in their new land (Dt 3:20; 12:9-10; 25:19; Jos 1:13,15; 21:44; 22:4; 23:1; 2Sm 7:1,11). This continues the presentation of the Lord as the One who gave His people rest, both from danger and from labor (Ex 16:21-30; 20:8-11; 23:10-12), by His presence and provision (Mt 11:28-29; 28:20; Heb 13:5).

33:15-16 Moses knew that the Israelites' entering and possessing the land of Canaan would not by itself set them apart from other nations. All the nations had land (Dt 2:5,9,19-22), but they did not have the covenant relationship with the Lord that He had initiated with the Israelites (Ex 3:9-10; 4:22-23; 19:4-6). Only if Yahweh went with them would the Israelites have a distinct identity as His special people. The word for distinguished or "make a distinction" is the relatively rare word the Lord had used earlier when He spoke about the identity of His people (8:22; 9:4; 11:7; cp. Ps 4:3).

33:17 The agreement—I will do this very thing you have asked—was a display of the Lord's favor, or grace, already extended to Moses, who was interceding for the Israelites on that basis rather than on the basis of their merits (v v. 12-13,16; cp. Dt 7:7; 9:4-6).

33:19 With these words regarding His grace and compassion, Yahweh tied the continued existence of Israel and of any individual within the nation to God's capacity for and right to show favor even to those who deserved disfavor. Moses himself had provoked the Lord's anger and had been in danger of dying, though not for the same reason (4:14,24-26; cp. 32:10-11); but Moses had also been shown the Lord's favor (33:12-13,17). The Lord's words about grace and compassion would have been encouraging in view of His earlier words, "On the day I settle accounts, I will hold them accountable for their sin" (32:34).

33:20-23 Scripture often speaks of the potential danger of an encounter with God (3:6; 24:9-11; Gn 28:12-17; 32:30; Nm 17:12-13; Jdg 6:22-24; 13:22; 2Sm 6:6-7; 1Kg 19:11-13; Ps 76:7; 103:3; Is 2:10; 6:1-7; cp. Jn 1:18; 14:8-9; 1Tm 6:16). If a person survived the contact, it was because of the Lord's restraint, often in the form of a specific provision. The description of the Lord's provision for Moses presents Moses as so small and the Lord as so great that protecting Moses would be like the action of a man who could cover a little opening with his hand while walking past it. Of the Hebrew words for hand, the one used here refers to the palm of the hand (Ex 3:20; 5:21).

The contrast between seeing God's face and His back is figurative for full and partial revelation. "Face" is used as a way of referring to a person himself (vv. 14-15; Dt 4:37, "presence" = "face"; 2Sm 17:11, "personally" = "your face"), since the face displayed the attitudes of a person (Ps 102:2; Pr 16:15; 21:29).

34:6-7 Rather than providing a new visual description (in contrast with chaps. 3; 13-14; 19-20; 24), the account of the Lord's display of His glory this time offers His list of a series of invisible qualities. The Lord has the capacity to be compassionate and gracious, to be slow to anger, and to forgive, in addition to exacting punishment (cp. Nm 14:18; Neh 9:17; Ps 86:15; 103:6-14; 145:8; Jl 2:13-14; Jnh 4:2; Nah 1:3).

34:9 Nowhere in Moses' prayers for the Israelites did he point to their repentance or promise any improvement; their future would depend on the Lord's ongoing favor, forgiveness, and faithfulness.

34:14 The phrase translated being jealous by nature is (lit) "Yahweh jealous His name." It reflects the close connection between traits of character and the concept of name or reputation. It can also be rendered, "His name is Jealous" or "Yahweh is jealous for His name." It is a forceful assertion that the Lord zealously protects the integrity of His relationships (cp. 20:5; Dt 4:24; 5:9; 6:15; Jos 24:19; Nah 1:2).

34:15-16 The derogatory way of referring to pagan worship and to the Israelites' possible participation in it shows that it was wrong for both (Nm 25:1-13). The Lord was the only God who anyone ought to worship, but the Israelites were especially accountable to Him because of their covenant relationship with Him (Ex 34:10).

34:33-35 The veil that Moses put over his face was like the boundaries placed around Mount Sinai (19:21-22; 20:18-19), like the veil that hung between the holy place and the most holy place (26:31-33), and like the Lord's hand placed over the rocky crevice where Moses was hidden (33:20-23). All were gracious provisions to protect people from casual and deadly exposure to the glory of God. The shining (Moses' face was radiant) and the veil demonstrate the success of Moses' intercession; the Lord had agreed to go with the Israelites in such a gracious way that they could safely see His glory among them, despite their stiff-necked frailty (cp. 2Co 3:13-14).

35:4-36:6 This section describes the preparation of materials and workers needed to build the tabernacle. The people who brought the prized and costly materials contributed them willingly (35:5,21-22,29; 36:2-3,5). They also worked willingly (35:26; 36:2), using God-given skills in design, execution, and teaching (35:30-36:2). They had both the will and the skills needed for the work that the Lord had commanded (35:4,10,28; 36:1,4; cp. Eph 2:8-10).

At the start of Exodus the Israelites were oppressed slaves forced to make mud bricks and build cities to suit Pharaoh. He considered the Israelites to be seditious and lazy, so he refused to supply enough straw for their work. Now the Israelites could willingly participate in building a structure for the glory of God for which He had provided the necessary materials and even skills for the workers.

35:31 Because the Lord had called Bezalel and filled him with God's Spirit, he would be able to do with excellence what the Lord had commanded (Nm 11:17; Dt 34:9; Jdg 3:10; 6:14-16,34).

35:34-36:1 The ability to teach others attributed to Bezalel and Oholiab is described as both a matter of the "heart" and a work of God in them. The idiomatic Hebrew expression says, "And He has put in his heart to teach," referring first to Bezalel, who is mentioned before Oholiab. Moses added that the Lord had filled them with skill. He further described Bezalel, Oholiab, and the other workers—all those who were "wise/skillful of heart"—as people "in whom the Lord has put wisdom/skill and understanding." This is why they would know how to do all the work of constructing the sanctuary.

36:2 This verse, with verse 1 and 35:35, speaks of the Lord providing wisdom and skill to those who would build the tabernacle. The heart, or inner core, of a person was spoken of as central to both willingness and skillfulness to do work in service to the Lord, even as it was spoken of as central to Pharaoh's rebellion.

36:7 In Egypt, the Israelites lacked straw for making bricks for Pharaoh (5:6-18). Now, thanks to the Lord's action on their behalf, there was more than enough of the silver, gold, and other beautiful materials that they would use to build a dwelling for the Lord.

36:8-40:33 Repeating the Lord's instructions to Moses in describing the construction of the tabernacle emphasized the people's commitment to making everything according to the Lord's specifications and completing the work as He commanded (see note at 25:1-31:17).

38:8 Since the instructions for the tabernacle do not refer to the women who served at the entrance to the tent of meeting, little is known about them beyond this mention (cp. 1Sm 2:22-25). The Hebrew verb that describes their service is somewhat rare; a related noun and this verb also describe service by Levites at the tabernacle (Nm 4:23; 8:24). Its connections with military service give it overtones of organization and service in the sense of being "on duty" (2Kg 25:19). A letter written in the mid-fourteenth century B.C. indirectly shows the value of this donation; the letter mentions a shipment of mirrors from Egypt to the king of Babylon.

38:21 The inventory was appropriate even when supplies were plentiful. It promoted order, showed concern for conservation rather than waste or theft, and let people know what had been accomplished with their offerings. Similar accountings are known from Egyptian records.

38:26 Each man moved from one group to another when he had paid his half a shekel (30:11-16).

39:30-31 As the final item in the record of construction (in contrast to its position toward the middle of the record of building instructions listed earlier), the inscription of the high priest's headdress serves as a kind of finishing label for everything the artisans had made, all marked as belonging to the Lord.

39:32-43 Several terms and concepts here, especially in verse 43, recall the completion of creation. Both the Lord and Moses completed work, saw all the work they had accomplished, and pronounced a blessing (Gn 1:22,28,31; 2:1-2; 5:2). Earlier in Exodus, Pharaoh begged for a blessing from Moses (12:32). Now the workers who had built the tabernacle received his blessing, as had the Levites who showed loyalty to the Lord (32:29; cp. 20:24; 23:25).

39:38 The gold altar was the altar for incense (30:1-5).

39:39 The bronze altar was the altar for burnt offerings (27:1-6).

40:2 The first day of the first month, in other words New Year's day, was appropriate for inaugurating use of the new structure. Since the Israelites had left Egypt at the middle of the first month of the year (12:1-11), the tabernacle was to be erected two weeks before the first anniversary of their exodus, at the start of the month that marked the beginning of their second year of freedom (40:17), and nine months after their arrival at Mount Sinai (19:1).

40:12-15 A full description of installing Aaron and his sons as priests appears in Leviticus 8-9.

40:17 The first month of the second year refers to the start of the Israelites' second year after they had left Egypt.

40:34-35 This visible display, in the form of a cloud, showed that the Lord was consecrating the tabernacle by His presence, as He had promised (25:8; 29:44-46). What He had described to Moses before the Israelites made the golden calf was taking place on the basis of the Lord's character and Moses' intercession. The Lord was revealing Himself to His redeemed people at this meeting place (1Kg 8:10-11,56-60; 9:3; Mt 17:1-8; Mk 9:2-8; Lk 9:28-36; Jn 1:14,18; 2Co 3:18; 4:6; Eph 1:17-18; Rv 21:3).

40:36-38 Exodus ends with a summary of what was ahead. The Lord guided the Israelites on their journey by means of the movement of the cloud, as He had done before their sin with the golden calf. Now the cloud that the Israelites had seen above Mount Sinai was associated with the tabernacle, a portable dwelling place for the Lord. He would dwell among His covenant people on their way to the land that He had promised them.

Word Studies 'ehyeh 'asher 'ehyeh Hebrew Pronunciation [eh YEH ah SHEHR eh YEH]

HCSB Translation I AM WHO I AM
Uses in Exodus 1
Uses in the OT 1
Focus Passage Exodus 3:14

'Ehyeh 'asher 'ehyeh is God's statement as He revealed His preferred form of address to be Yahweh (Ex 3:14-16). 'Ehyeh is the first person form of the Hb verb meaning "to be." God may have spoken 'ehyeh 'asher 'ehyeh as a name in answer to Moses' request in verse 13, but He certainly reduced the words to the name 'Ehyeh, or I AM in verse 14. Yahweh seems to be an ancient form of the third person form of "to be." The third person may have been most suitable for Israelites considering their God. Some scholars interpret Yahweh as a causative form like "He Causes To Be," but 'ehyeh 'asher 'ehyeh favors a meaning like "He Is." Such a translation agrees with the NT portrayal of Christ as the eternally present One (Jn 8:56). I AM WHO I AM suggests God's sovereign freedom to be what He chooses to be.

Yahweh Hebrew Pronunciation [YAH weh]
HCSB Translation Lord, Yahweh Uses in Exodus 398

Focus Passage Exodus 3:15

God told Moses, "I AM WHO I AM." Moses was to tell Israel, "I AM has sent me to you" (Ex 3:14). Then God replaced I AM with "Yahweh, the God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob . . . This is My name forever" (Ex 3:15). Yahweh is probably a third person singular equivalent of I AM. Its pronunciation was almost lost because Jews considered it so holy that they replaced its vowels with those of other divine names. Yahweh communicates God's commitment to deliver Israel in ways that reveal His character. God did not reveal this name to the patriarchs (Ex 6:3), but Yahweh occurs in Genesis dialogue (Gn 14:22). Either the meaning was previously unknown, its significance had not been fully appreciated, or Genesis reflects later language. Moses' mother Jochebed might have a shortened form of Yahweh in her name (Jo-) if the name follows later practice.

Focus Passages Exodus 12:11,21,27,43,48

The first occurrence of pesach (Ex 12:11) refers either to the Passover lamb (Ex 12:21) or the Passover Festival (Ex 12:48). Exodus 12 explains both. Pesach usually refers to the festival, but the reference to the Passover lamb occurs before and after the exile (Dt 16:2; Ezr 6:20), as well as into the NT era (1Co 5:7). The plural of pesach indicates the Passover lambs needed for the nation (2Ch 35:6). People "slaughtered" (2Ch 35:1) and "ate" (2Ch 30:18) the lamb while "observing" the festival (2Ch 35:1). Pesach seems related to the verb pasach ("pass over") in Ex 12:13,23,27. God mercifully passes over the people, doors, and houses. The verb can imply sparing (Is 31:5).

Focus Passages Exodus 12:8,15,17-18,20,39

Matstsah, or matzo, is a flat bread, cake, or wafer baked quickly from flour and water in dough prepared without yeast (Lv 10:12). People could make it when there was no time to be more elaborate (Gn 19:3; Jdg 6:19; 1Sm 28:24). Israelites ate unleavened bread under such conditions at the exodus (Ex 12:39). God required unleavened bread, or "bread of hardship," at the Passover to remind the Israelites that they left Egypt hurriedly (Ex 12:8; Dt 16:3). The Passover together with the Festival of Unleavened Bread celebrated over the next seven days could both be called the Festival of Unleavened Bread (2Ch 8:13). Unleavened bread was also necessary for the consecration of priests, the dedication of Nazirites, the grain offering, and the fellowship sacrifice (Ex 29:2; Lv 2:4-5; 7:11-12; Nm 6:15). A part of it was burned on the altar, with the priests eating the rest (Lv 6:15-16; 10:12).

bekor Hebrew Pronunciation [beh KOHR]

Focus Passages Exodus 13:2,13,15

Babylonian (eighteenth century B.C.) and Assyrian (fourteenth and fifteenth century B.C.) inheritance laws usually gave the firstborn son a portion twice as big as the other sons. This was true in Israel (Dt 21:15-17). The firstborn son was prized (Mc 6:7; Zch 12:10) because he embodied the father's strength (Gn 49:3). Bekor is used entirely with reference to males. Bekor could also indicate status since Israel was God's firstborn son among the nations (Ex 4:22-23). God judged the firstborn in Egypt for Egypt's mistreatment of His firstborn. He then claimed the Israelite firstborn, whether man or beast (Nm 3:13). He took the Levites in place of the firstborn, but firstborn sons and the firstborn among unclean animals had to be monetarily redeemed (Nm 3:41; 18:15). The firstborn of the flock and herd became sacrifices (Lv 27:26; Dt 15:19). Later the Davidic king was God's firstborn among earth's kings (Ps 89:27).

midbar Hebrew Pronunciation [midh BAHR]

Uses in the OT 269
Focus Passages Exodus 16:1-3,10,14,32

Midbar signifies desert (Ex 16:14) and wilderness (Gn 14:16). Midbar was sparsely inhabited, mostly by nomads. There were pastures (Jl 1:20) and refuges (Jdg 20:47; 1Sm 23:14). The midbar included dry terrain south and east of Palestine such as the Arabah, the Negev, the Sinai Peninsula, and the Transjordanian Plateau, but it also described unsettled rural areas. With sadeh, "field," it suggests open country (Jos 8:24). The *midba*r was vulnerable to strong winds, supported meager vegetation and fauna, and often had saline soil. It could be associated with formlessness and chaos (Is 34:11; Jr 4:23-26). Devastated settled areas could return to wasteland (Jr 12:10). Over half the occurrences of midbar are in connection with the 40 years of exodus wanderings. Thirty-eight years were punitive, though God miraculously provided and showed His love for Israel (Dt 32:10; Jr 2:2). Ultimately "He will make her wilderness like Eden" (Is 51:3).

Focus Passage Exodus 19:5

Extrabiblical evidence confirms that segullah denotes acquired property, a reserve set aside as a personal possession. Six of the biblical references describe Israel's people as God's chosen ("My own") possession (Ex 19:5) or treasured possession (Ps 135:4). The other two concern the treasures of human kings. David consecrated segullah, or personal treasures, for building the temple, encouraging others to do likewise (1Ch 29:3,6-8). Solomon mentioned "the treasure of kings and provinces" that he had accumulated (Ec 2:8). Although God owns all nations, He uniquely acquired Israel by His initiatives with that people (Ex 19:4-5). But fulfillment of the potential in this acquisition was conditioned on Israel's obedience to Him. At the close of the OT God asserted His intent to make Israel His special possession in the "Day of the Lord" through His compassion (Mal 3:17; 4:5). First Peter 2:9 cites Ex 19:5 as having a fulfillment in the church.

Focus Passages Exodus 23:15-16,18

Chag denotes festival (Ex 32:5) and regularly represents one of the three annual festivals that required all Israelite men to come to Jerusalem: Unleavened Bread, Weeks, and Booths (Dt 16:16). For many this would involve a trip, and a related Arabic word that has come into English as hajj meaning "pilgrimage." Chag first signifies a festival that Israel would hold after making a trip (Ex 10:9), but not every chag involved traveling. Chag also connotes feasts (Am 5:21) or festival sacrifices (Mal 2:3). It derives from the verb chagag (16x), which appears eight times with chag as celebrate a festival (Nm 29:12) or something as a festival (Ex 12:14). Chagag alone means hold or celebrate a festival (Ex 5:1; 23:14) and describes non-Israelites celebrating (1Sm 30:16).

Garash has related words in Ugaritic and Moabite. It means drive (Jdg 9:41), drive out (Gn 3:24), or drive away (Ex 2:17). It connotes banish (Gn 4:14), force out (Mc 2:9), and expel (Jb 30:5). Garash usually involves driving out of a location, but can indicate loss of a ministry position (1Kg 2:27). It suggests rejection and often is accomplished through military force. The passive participle was standard terminology for a divorced woman (Lv 21:14). Three times garash , either as a homonym or a variant of drive out , characterizes water as tossing , churning up , or surging (Is 57:20; Am 8:8).

mitswah Hebrew Pronunciation [mits VAH]
HCSB Translation command, commandment Uses in Exodus 4

Focus Passage Exodus 24:12

Mitswah is an important OT legal term that retains its importance in current Judaism. Mitswah derives from the verb tsiwwah, meaning command, direct, or appoint. Mitswah has the force of a duty or obligation to the recipient. God gave such commands to Abraham (Gn 26:5). There are 613 divine commandments in the Law, and most other OT occurrences of the word refer back to these. But in Jr 32:11, mitswah indicates terms of a deed of purchase. The word can also refer to commands from a forefather (Jr 35:14) or father (Pr 6:20). It can be man-made rules (Is 29:13), a divine decree (Mal 2:1), or a royal command (2Kg 18:36). Mitswah can indicate self-imposed duties (Neh 10:32). Psalm 119 focuses on God's commandments. Mitswah is a key term in Deuteronomy 28 and Leviticus 26, which give blessings or curses as the consequences of one's response to God's commandments.

mishkan Hebrew Pronunciation [mish KAN]
HCSB Translation tabernacle, dwelling Uses in Exodus 58
Uses in the OT 139
Focus Passages Exodus 26:1,6-7,12-13,15

Mishkan, from shakan ("dwell"), describes human dwellings (Nm 16:24) or the divine dwelling place (Ps 43:3). Commonly these are tents (Nm 24:5), and mishkan is sometimes translated tent (Sg 1:8; Ezk 25:4). Mishkan occurs with 'ohel, "tent," in 73 verses. Mishkan can suggest home (Jr 51:30), a permanent structure (Is 32:18). Mishkan can connote a crypt (Is 22:16), salt flats as an animal's dwelling (Jb 39:6), or territories as dwelling places (Hab 1:6). Exodus 25-40 describes the tabernacle (Ex 26:6) built as God's residence (Lv 26:11), also called the "tent of meeting." This structure as the mishkan can be distinguished from its top, called a "tent" (Ex 26:7), and its "courtyard" (Ex 38:31). Mishkan also characterized the temple (Ps 43:3; 74:7), and most references to mishkan concern either the tabernacle or the temple. God will again establish His mishkan among Israel (Ezk 37:26-27) at the end of the age.

shabbath Hebrew Pronunciation [shah BAT]
HCSB Translation Sabbath Uses in Exodus 15
Uses in the OT 111
Focus Passage Exodus 31:13-16

Shabbath, related to the verb shavath ("cease, rest"), designates the day in the week when work must cease. There is no clear parallel for the Sabbath in surrounding cultures. God first mentioned shabbath shortly before giving the Mosaic law, as if to anticipate it (Ex 16:23-29). The Sabbath became the fourth and most elaborated of the Ten Commandments (Ex 20:8-11). God associated shabbath with His sanctification of the week's seventh day when He ceased His work of creation. He later gave His deliverance of Israel from Egyptian slavery as a motive for keeping the Sabbath (Dt 5:15). Even slaves and animals were to rest that day (Ex 20:10). The Sabbath was a sign of God's covenant with Israel, so that they might know He set them apart as holy (Ex 31:13). Consequently, the penalty for breaking the Sabbath was death (Ex 31:14). Related shabbaton (11x) means complete rest (Ex 31:15).

qasheh Hebrew Pronunciation [kah SHEH]
HCSB Translation harsh, stiff, hard Uses in Exodus 7
Uses in the OT 36

Focus Passages Exodus 33:3,5

Qasheh describes difficult or hard labor (Ex 1:14; 6:9), fierce battles (2Sm 2:17), harsh masters (Is 19:4), and severe storms (Is 27:8). Eight times it indicates "stiff-necked" (Dt 9:6). Qasheh suggests unrelenting love (Sg 8:6), troubling visions (Is 21:2), obstinate ways (Jdg 2:19), and broken hearts (1Sm 1:15). Adverbially, it connotes harshly (Gn 42:30). Nominally, it is hardship or bad news (1Kg 14:6). Qasheh derives from qashah (30x), be severe (1Sm 5:7), harsh (2Sm 19:43), difficult (Dt 1:17), cruel (Gn 49:7), or a hardship (Dt 15:18). The passive participle connotes dejected (Is 8:21). Causative and intensive forms imply harden (Ex 7:3). The causative is treat harshly (Jb 39:16), oppose (Jb 9:4), make stubborn (Dt 2:30), or stubbornly refuse (Ex 13:15). To "stiffen the neck" (Neh 9:29) appears as be stiff-necked (Dt 10:16) or become obstinate (Jr 7:26). Qeshiy signifies stubbornness (Dt 9:27).

chashav Hebrew Pronunciation [khah SHAV]
HCSB Translation* plan, consider, design Uses in Exodus 13
Uses in the OT* 124
Focus Passages* Exodus 35:32,35

Chashav is think (Ps 40:17), consider (Ps 77:5), or intend (1Sm 18:25), then plan (Jr 18:8) or devise (Mc 2:3). It is credit (Gn 15:6), charge with (Ps 32:2), value, or regard (Is 53:3-4). People invent (Am 6:5), contrive (Ps 35:20), or design (Ex 31:4). The participle denotes designer (Ex 38:23). Passives include be counted (Ps 44:22), considered (Neh 13:13), regarded (Gn 31:15), credited (Lv 7:18), or classified (Lv 25:31). Intensives signify calculate (Lv 25:27), require an accounting (2Kg 12:15), plot (Hs 7:15), scheme (Pr 24:8), or threaten (Jnh 1:4). The reflexive is consider oneself (Nm 23:9). The related noun machashavah occurs with chashav 18 times as make plots (Dn 11:25), execute designs (2Ch 2:14), devise plans (Ezk 38:10) or strategies (Jr 49:20), and skillfully designed (2Ch 26:15). Machashavah is also scheme (Gn 6:5), thought (Is 55:7), purpose (Jr 51:29), and artistic (Ex 35:33).

mizbeach Hebrew Pronunciation [miz BAY akh]
HCSB Translation altar Uses in Exodus 59
Uses in the OT 403
Focus Passages Exodus 40:5-6,10,26,29-30,32-33

Mizbeach is related to the verb zavach ("sacrifice") and the noun zevach ("sacrifice"). Use of altars to present sacrifices to God is as ancient as Noah (Gn 8:20). Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob built altars at places where God manifested Himself to them in some way. Exodus 20:24-26 gives instructions for building

“an earthen altar for Me . . . in every place where I cause My name to be remembered.” Forbidden is the use of cutting tools on a stone altar, and steps are also disallowed. The tabernacle and sanctuary had more elaborate altars of two types. The outdoor sacrificial altar was large and bronze-plated. It probably required a ramp to mount and there were horns at its four corners. The indoor incense altar was small and gold-plated. Ezekiel pictures an indoor altar that was made of wood (Ezk 41:22). At least one biblical altar is purely memorial (Jos 22:21-29). The tabernacle and sanctuary altars were portable.

LEVITICUS

The Burnt Offering

1 Then the LORD summoned Moses [a] and spoke to him from the tent of meeting: [b] 2 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When any of you brings an offering to the LORD from the livestock, you [A] may bring your offering from the herd or the flock.
3 “If his gift is a •burnt offering [c] from the herd, he is to bring an unblemished male. [d] He must bring it to the entrance to the tent of meeting so that he [B] may be accepted by the LORD. [e] 4 He is to lay his hand on [f] the head of the burnt offering so it can be accepted [g] on his behalf to make •atonement for him. [h] 5
He is to slaughter the bull before the LORD; Aaron’s sons the priests [i] are to present the blood [j] and sprinkle it [k] on all sides of the altar that is at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 6 Then he must skin the burnt offering [l] and cut it into pieces. [C] 7 The sons of Aaron the priest will prepare a fire on the altar and arrange wood on the fire. 8 Aaron’s sons the priests are to arrange the pieces, the head, and the suet [m] on top of the burning wood on the altar. 9 The offerer must wash its entrails [n] and shanks [o] with water. Then the priest will burn all of it on the altar as a burnt offering, a fire offering [p] of a pleasing aroma [q] to the LORD.
10 “But if his gift for a burnt offering is from the flock, from sheep or goats, [r] he is to present an unblemished male. 11 He will slaughter it on the north side of the altar before the LORD. Aaron’s sons the priests will sprinkle its blood against the altar on all sides. 12 He will cut the animal into pieces [D] with its head and its suet, and the priest will arrange them on top of the burning wood on the altar.
13 But he is to wash the entrails and shanks with water. The priest will then present all of it and burn it on the altar; it is a burnt offering, a fire offering of a pleasing aroma to the LORD.
14 “If his gift to the LORD is a burnt offering of birds, [s] he is to present his offering from the turtledoves [t] or young pigeons. [E, u] 15 Then the priest must bring it to the altar, and must twist off its head and burn it on the altar; its blood should be drained at the side of the altar. 16 He will remove its digestive tract, [F] cutting off the tail feathers, and throw it on the east side of the altar at the place for ashes. [v] 17 He will tear it open by its wings without dividing the bird. [w] Then the priest is to burn it on the altar on top of the burning wood. It is a burnt offering, a fire offering of a pleasing aroma to the LORD.

The Grain Offering

2 “When anyone presents a •grain offering [a] as a gift to the Lord, his gift must consist of fine flour. [b, c] He is to pour olive oil [d] on it, put frankincense on it, [e, f] 2 and bring it to Aaron’s sons the priests. The priest will take a handful of fine flour and oil from it, along with all its frankincense, and will burn this memorial portion [g] of it on the altar, a fire offering of a pleasing aroma to the Lord. 3 But the rest of the grain offering will belong to Aaron and his sons; it is the holiest part [h] of the fire offerings to the Lord.

4 “When you present a grain offering baked in an oven, it must be made of fine flour, either unleavened cakes [i] mixed with oil or unleavened wafers [j] coated with oil. 5 If your gift is a grain offering prepared on a griddle, [k] it must be unleavened bread [l] made of fine flour mixed with oil. 6 Break it into pieces and pour oil on it; it is a grain offering. 7 If your gift is a grain offering prepared in a pan, [m] it must be made of fine flour with oil. 8 When you bring [n] to the Lord the grain offering made in any of these ways, it is to be presented to the priest, and he will take it to the altar. 9 The priest will remove the memorial portion [A] from the grain offering and burn it on the altar, a fire offering of a pleasing aroma to the Lord. 10 But the rest of the grain offering will belong to Aaron and his sons; [o] it is the holiest part of the fire offerings to the Lord.

11 “No grain offering that you present to the Lord is to be made with yeast, for you are not to burn [p] any yeast [q] or honey [r] as a fire offering to the Lord.
12 You may present them to the Lord as an offering of •firstfruits , [s] but they are not to be offered on the altar as a pleasing aroma. 13 You are to season each of your grain offerings with salt; you must not omit from your grain offering the salt of the covenant [t] with your God. You are to present salt [u] with each of your offerings.

14 “If you present a grain offering of firstfruits to the Lord, you must present fresh heads of grain, crushed kernels, roasted on the fire, for your grain offering of firstfruits. 15 You are to put oil and frankincense on it; it is a grain offering.
16 The priest will then burn some of its crushed kernels and oil with all its frankincense as a fire offering to the Lord.

The Fellowship Offering

3 “If his offering is a •fellowship sacrifice, [a] and he is presenting an animal from the herd, whether male or female, he must present one without blemish [b] before the Lord. [2] He is to lay his hand on the head of his offering and slaughter it at the entrance to the tent of meeting. Then Aaron’s sons the priests will sprinkle the blood on all sides of the altar. [c] [3] He will present part of the fellowship sacrifice as a fire offering to the Lord*: the fat* [d] surrounding the entrails, [e] all the fat that is on the entrails, [4] and the two kidneys [f] with the fat on them at the loins; he will also remove the fatty lobe of the liver [g] with the kidneys. [5] Aaron’s sons will burn it on the altar along with the •burnt offering [h] that is on the burning wood, a fire offering of a pleasing aroma to the Lord.

[6] “If his offering as a fellowship sacrifice to the Lord is from the flock, he must present a male or female without blemish. [7] If he is presenting a lamb for his offering, he is to present it before the Lord. [8] He must lay his hand on the head of his offering, then slaughter it before the tent of meeting. Aaron’s sons will sprinkle its blood on all sides of the altar. [9] He will then present part of the fellowship sacrifice as a fire offering to the Lord consisting of its fat and the entire fat tail, [i] which he is to remove close to the backbone. He will also remove the fat surrounding the entrails, [j] all the fat on the entrails, [10] the two kidneys with the fat on them at the loins, and the fatty lobe of the liver above the kidneys. [11] Then the priest will burn the food on the altar, [k] as a fire offering to the Lord.

[12] “If his offering is a goat, [l] he is to present it before the Lord. [13] He must lay his hand on its head and slaughter it before the tent of meeting. Aaron’s sons will sprinkle [A] its blood on all sides of the altar. [14] He will present part of his offering as a fire offering to the Lord: the fat surrounding the entrails, all the fat that is on the entrails, [15] and the two kidneys with the fat on them at the loins; he will also remove the fatty lobe of the liver with the kidneys. [16] Then the priest will burn the food on the altar, as a fire offering for a pleasing aroma. [m]

“All fat belongs to the Lord. [17] This is a permanent statute [n] throughout your generations, wherever you live: you must not eat any fat or any blood.” [o]

The Sin Offering

4 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Tell the Israelites: When someone sins unintentionally [a] against any of the LORD’s commands and does anything prohibited by them — 3 “If the anointed priest [b, c] sins, bringing •guilt [d] on the people, he is to present to the LORD a young, unblemished [e] bull as a •sin [A] offering [f] for the sin he has committed. 4 He must bring the bull to the entrance to the tent of meeting before the LORD, lay his hand on the bull’s head, and slaughter it before the LORD. 5 The anointed priest must then take some of the bull’s blood and bring it into the tent of meeting. 6 The priest is to dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle some of it seven times [g] before the LORD in front of the veil [h] of the sanctuary. [i] 7 The priest must apply some of the blood to the horns of the altar of fragrant incense [j] that is before the LORD in the tent of meeting. He must pour out the rest of the bull’s blood at the base of the altar of burnt offering [k] that is at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 8 He is to remove all the fat from the bull of the sin offering: the fat surrounding the entrails, all the fat that is on the entrails, 9 and the two kidneys with the fat on them at the loins. He will also remove the fatty lobe of the liver with the kidneys, 10 just as the fat is removed from the ox of the •fellowship sacrifice. [l] The priest is to burn them on the altar of burnt offering. 11 But the hide [m] of the bull and all its flesh, with its head and shanks, and its entrails and dung — 12 all the rest of the bull — he must bring to a ceremonially •clean place [n] outside the camp [o] to the ash heap, and must burn it on a wood fire. It is to be burned at the ash heap.

13 “Now if the whole community of Israel [p] errs, [q] and the matter escapes the notice of the assembly, [r] so that they violate any of the LORD’s commands and incur guilt [s] by doing what is prohibited, 14 then the assembly must present a young bull as a sin offering. When the sin they have committed in regard to the command becomes known, they are to bring it before the tent of meeting. 15 The elders [t] of the community are to lay their hands on the bull’s head before the LORD and it is to be slaughtered before the LORD. 16 The anointed priest will bring some of the bull’s blood into the tent of meeting. 17 The priest is to dip his finger in the blood and sprinkle it seven times before the LORD in front of the veil. 18 He is to apply some of the blood to the horns of the altar that is before the LORD in the tent of meeting. He must pour out the rest of the blood at the base of the altar of burnt offering that is at the entrance to the tent of meeting.
19 He is to remove all the fat from it and burn it on the altar. 20 He is to offer this bull just as he did with the bull in the sin offering; he will offer it the same way.
So the priest will make •atonement [u] on their behalf, and they will be forgiven.

v 21 Then he will bring the bull outside the camp w and burn it just as he burned the first bull. It is the sin offering for the assembly.
22 "When a leader B, x sins and unintentionally violates any of the commands of the LORD his God by doing what is prohibited, and incurs guilt, 23 or someone informs him about the sin he has committed, he is to bring an unblemished male goat y as his offering. 24 He is to lay his hand on the head of the goat and slaughter it at the place where the •burnt offering z is slaughtered before the LORD. It is a sin offering. a 25 Then the priest must take some of the blood from the sin offering with his finger and apply it to the horns of the altar of burnt offering. b The rest of its blood he must pour out at the base of the altar of burnt offering. 26 He must burn all its fat on the altar, like the fat of the fellowship sacrifice. In this way the priest will make atonement on his behalf for that person's sin, and he will be forgiven.
27 "Now if any of the common people C sins unintentionally by violating one of the LORD's commands, does what is prohibited, and incurs guilt, 28 or if someone informs him about the sin he has committed, then he is to bring an unblemished female goat as his offering for the sin that he has committed. 29 He is to lay his hand on the head of the sin offering and slaughter it at the place of the burnt offering. 30 Then the priest must take some of its blood with his finger and apply it to the horns of the altar of burnt offering. He must pour out the rest of its blood at the base of the altar. 31 He is to remove all its fat just as the fat is removed from the fellowship sacrifice. The priest is to burn it on the altar as a pleasing aroma to the LORD. In this way the priest will make atonement on his behalf, and he will be forgiven.
32 "Or if the offering that he brings as a sin offering is a lamb, c he is to bring an unblemished female. 33 He is to lay his hand on the head of the sin offering and slaughter it as a sin offering at the place where the burnt offering is slaughtered. 34 Then the priest must take some of the blood of the sin offering with his finger and apply it to the horns of the altar of burnt offering. He must pour out the rest of its blood at the base of the altar. 35 He is to remove all its fat just as the fat of the lamb is removed from the fellowship sacrifice. The priest will burn it on the altar along with the fire offerings to the LORD. In this way the priest will make atonement on his behalf for the sin he has committed, and he will be forgiven.

Cases Requiring Sin Offerings

5 “When someone sins in any of these ways:

If he has seen, heard, or known about something he has witnessed, and did not respond to a public call to testify, he is responsible for his sin. [a]
2 Or if someone touches anything •unclean [b] — a carcass of an unclean wild animal, [c] or unclean livestock, or an unclean swarming creature [d, e] — without being aware of it, he is unclean and •guilty . [f]
3 Or if he touches human uncleanness [g] — any uncleanness by which one can become defiled [h] — without being aware of it, but later recognizes it, he is guilty.
4 Or if someone swears rashly [i] to do what is good or evil — concerning anything a person may speak rashly in an oath — without being aware of it, but later recognizes it, he incurs guilt in such an instance. [A]

5 If someone incurs guilt in one of these cases, he is to confess [j] he has committed that sin. 6 He must bring his restitution [k] for the sin he has committed to the LORD: a female lamb or goat from the flock as a •sin offering. In this way the priest will make •atonement [l] on his behalf for his sin.

7 “But if he cannot afford an animal from the flock, then he may bring to the LORD two turtledoves or two young pigeons [m] as restitution for his sin — one as a sin offering and the other as a •burnt offering. 8 He is to bring them to the priest, who will first present the one for the sin offering. He must twist its head at the back of the neck without severing it. [n] 9 Then he will sprinkle some of the blood of the sin offering on the side of the altar, while the rest of the blood is to be drained out at the base of the altar; [o] it is a sin offering. 10 He must prepare the second bird as a burnt offering according to the regulation. [p] In this way the priest will make atonement on his behalf for the sin he has committed, and he will be forgiven.

11 “But if he cannot afford [B] two turtledoves or two young pigeons, [q] he may bring two quarts [C] of fine [D] flour [E, r] as an offering for his sin. He must not put olive oil or frankincense on it, for it is a sin offering. 12 He is to bring it to the priest, who will take a handful from it as its memorial portion [s] and burn it on the altar along with the fire offerings to the LORD; it is a sin offering. 13 In this way the priest will make atonement on his behalf concerning the sin he has committed in any of these cases, and he will be forgiven. The rest will belong to the priest, like the •grain offering.” [t]

The Restitution Offering

14 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 15 “If someone offends [u] by sinning unintentionally [v] in regard to any of the LORD’s holy things, [w] he must bring his •restitution offering to the LORD: an unblemished ram from the flock (based on your assessment of its value in silver •shekels , according to the sanctuary shekel [x]) as a restitution offering. 16 He must make restitution [y] for his sin regarding any holy [z] thing, adding a fifth of its value to it, [a] and give it to the priest. Then the priest will make atonement on his behalf with the ram of the restitution offering, and he will be forgiven. [b]

17 “If someone sins and without knowing it violates any of the LORD’s commands concerning anything prohibited, he bears the consequences of his guilt. 18 He must bring an unblemished ram from the flock according to your assessment of its value as a restitution offering to the priest. Then the priest will make atonement on his behalf for the error he has committed unintentionally, and he will be forgiven. 19 It is a restitution offering; he is indeed guilty before the LORD.”

Chapter 6 [a]

[1]The LORD spoke to Moses: [2] "When someone sins and offends the LORD by deceiving [b] his neighbor in regard to a deposit, [c] a security, [A] or a robbery; [d] or defrauds [e] his neighbor; [3] or finds something lost and lies about it; [f] or swears falsely [g] about any of the sinful things a person may do — [4] once he has sinned [h] and acknowledged his •guilt [i] — he must return what he stole or defrauded, or the deposit entrusted to him, or the lost item he found, [5] or anything else about which he swore falsely. He must make full restitution for it and add a fifth of its value to it. [j] He is to pay it to its owner on the day he acknowledges his guilt. [k] [6] Then he must bring his •restitution offering [l] to the LORD: an unblemished [m] ram from the flock according to your assessment of its value as a restitution offering to the priest. [7] In this way the priest will make •atonement on his behalf before the LORD, and he will be forgiven for anything he may have done to incur guilt." [n]

The Burnt Offering

8 [o] The LORD spoke to Moses: 9 "Command Aaron and his sons: This is the law of the •burnt offering; the burnt offering itself must remain on the altar's hearth all night until morning, while the fire of the altar is kept burning on it. 10
The priest is to put on his linen robe and linen undergarments. [B, p] He is to remove the ashes of the burnt offering the fire has consumed on the altar, and place them beside the altar. 11 Then he must take off his garments, put on other clothes, [q] and bring the ashes outside the camp to a ceremonially •clean place.
12 The fire on the altar is to be kept burning; it must not go out. Every morning the priest will burn wood on the fire. He is to arrange the burnt offering on the fire and burn the fat portions from the •fellowship offerings [r] on it. 13 Fire must be kept burning on the altar continually; it must not go out.

The Grain Offering

14 “Now this is the law of the •grain offering: [s] Aaron’s sons will present it before the LORD in front of the altar. 15 The priest is to remove a handful of fine
flour and olive oil from the grain offering, with all the frankincense that is on the offering, and burn its memorial portion on the altar as a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 16 Aaron and his sons may eat the rest of it. [t] It is to be eaten in the form of unleavened bread [u] in a holy place; [v] they are to eat it in the courtyard [w] of the tent of meeting. 17 It must not be baked with yeast; I have assigned it as their portion [x] from My fire offerings. [y] It is especially holy, like the •sin offering [z]
and the restitution offering. 18 Any male among Aaron’s descendants [a] may eat
it. It is a permanent portion [C,] [b] throughout your generations from the fire offerings to the LORD. Anything that touches the offerings will become holy.” [c]

19 The LORD spoke to Moses: 20 “This is the offering that Aaron and his sons
must present to the LORD on the day that he is anointed: two quarts [D] of fine
flour as a regular [d] grain offering, half of it in the morning and half in the evening. 21 It is to be prepared with oil on a griddle; you are to bring it wellkneaded. You must present it as a grain offering of baked pieces, [E] a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 22 The priest, who is one of Aaron’s sons and will be anointed to take his place, is to prepare it. It must be completely burned as a permanent portion for the LORD. 23 Every grain offering for a priest will be a whole burnt offering; [e] it is not to be eaten.”

The Sin Offering

24 The LORD spoke to Moses: 25 “Tell Aaron and his sons: This is the law of the sin offering. [f] The sin offering is most holy and must be slaughtered before
the LORD at the place where the burnt offering is slaughtered. 26 The priest who offers it as a sin offering is to eat it. It must be eaten in a holy place, [g] in the courtyard of the tent of meeting. 27 Anything that touches its flesh will become holy, and if any of its blood spatters on a garment, then you must wash that garment [F] in a holy place. 28 A clay pot in which the sin offering is boiled must be broken; if it is boiled in a bronze vessel, it must be scoured and rinsed with water. 29 Any male among the priests may eat it; it is especially holy. 30 But no sin offering may be eaten if its blood has been brought into the tent of meeting to make atonement in the holy place; it must be burned up.

Entering the Ark

7 Then the LORD said to Noah, “Enter the ark, you and all your household, for I have seen that you alone are righteous before Me in this generation. [a] 2 You are to take with you seven pairs, a male and its female, of all the •clean animals, [b] and two of the animals that are not clean, a male and its female, 3 and seven pairs, male and female, of the birds of the sky — in order to keep •offspring
alive on the face of the whole earth. 4 Seven days from now I will make it rain
on the earth 40 days and 40 nights, and I will wipe off from the face of the earth
every living thing I have made.” 5 And Noah did everything that the LORD
commanded him. [c]

6 Noah was 600 years old when the flood came and water covered the earth.
7 So Noah, his sons, his wife, and his sons’ wives entered the ark because of the waters of the flood. 8 From the clean animals, •unclean animals, birds, and every creature that crawls on the ground, 9 two of each, male and female, entered the ark with Noah, just as God had commanded him. 10 Seven days later the waters of the flood came on the earth.

The Flood

11 In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, on the seventeenth day of the month, on that day all the sources of the watery depths burst open, [d] the floodgates of the sky were opened, [e] 12 and the rain fell on the earth 40 days and 40 nights. 13 On that same day Noah along with his sons
Shem, Ham, and Japheth, Noah's wife, and his three sons' wives entered the ark with him. 14 They entered it with all the wildlife according to their kinds, all livestock according to their kinds, the creatures that crawl on the earth according to their kinds, all birds, every fowl, and everything with wings according to their kinds. 15 Two of all flesh that has the breath of life in it entered the ark with Noah. 16 Those that entered, male and female of all flesh, entered just as God had commanded him. Then the LORD shut him in.

17 The flood continued for 40 days on the earth; the waters increased and lifted
up the ark so that it rose above the earth. 18 The waters surged and increased greatly on the earth, and the ark floated on the surface of the water. 19 Then the waters surged even higher on the earth, and all the high mountains under the whole sky were covered. 20 The mountains were covered as the waters surged above them more than 20 feet. [A] 21 Every creature perished — those that crawl
on the earth, birds, livestock, wildlife, and those that swarm [B] on the earth, as well as all mankind. 22 Everything with the breath of the spirit of life in its nostrils [f] — everything on dry land died. 23 He wiped out every living thing that was on the surface of the ground, from mankind to livestock, to creatures that crawl, to the birds of the sky, and they were wiped off the earth. Only Noah was left, and those that were with him in the ark. [g] 24 And the waters surged on the earth 150 days.

Ordination of Aaron and His Sons

8 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Take Aaron, his sons with him, the garments, the anointing oil, [a] the bull of the •sin [A] offering, the two rams, and the basket [b] of unleavened bread, 3 and assemble the whole community [c] at the entrance to the tent of meeting.” 4 So Moses did as the LORD commanded him, and the community assembled at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 5 Moses said to them, “This is what the LORD has commanded to be done.”

6 Then Moses presented Aaron and his sons and washed them with water. 7
He put the tunic on Aaron, wrapped the sash around him, clothed him with the robe, and put the •ephod [d] on him. He put the woven band of the ephod around him and fastened it to him. 8 Then he put the breastpiece on him and placed the •Urim and Thummim [e] into the breastpiece. 9 He also put the turban [f] on his head and placed the gold medallion, the holy diadem, on the front of the turban, as the LORD had commanded Moses. [g]

10 Then Moses took the anointing oil and anointed the tabernacle and everything in it to consecrate [h] them. 11 He sprinkled some of the oil on the altar seven times, anointing the altar with all its utensils, and the basin with its stand, to consecrate them. [i] 12 He poured some of the anointing oil on Aaron’s head and anointed and consecrated him. [j] 13 Then Moses presented Aaron’s sons, clothed them with tunics, wrapped sashes around them, and fastened headbands on them, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

14 Then he brought the bull near for the sin offering, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the bull for the sin offering. 15 Then Moses slaughtered it, [B] took the blood, and applied it with his finger to the horns of the altar on all sides, purifying [k] the altar. He poured out the blood at the base of the altar and consecrated it so that •atonement can be made on it. [C, l] 16 Moses took all the fat that was on the entrails, the fatty lobe of the liver, and the two kidneys [m] with their fat, and he burned them on the altar. [n] 17 He burned up the bull with its hide, flesh, and dung outside the camp, [o] as the LORD had commanded Moses.

18 Then he presented the ram for the •burnt offering, and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram. 19 Moses slaughtered it and [D] sprinkled the blood on all sides of the altar. 20 Moses cut the ram into pieces and burned the head, the pieces, and the suet, [p] 21 but he washed the entrails and shanks with water. He then burned the entire ram on the altar. It was a burnt offering for a pleasing aroma, a fire offering to the LORD as He had commanded Moses.

22 Next he presented the second ram, the ram of ordination, [q] and Aaron and his sons laid their hands on the head of the ram. 23 Moses slaughtered it, [E] took some of its blood, and put it on Aaron's right earlobe, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot. [r] 24 Moses also presented Aaron's sons and put some of the blood on their right earlobes, on the thumbs of their right hands, and on the big toes of their right feet. Then Moses sprinkled the blood on all sides of the altar. 25 He took the fat — the fat tail, [s] all the fat that was on the entrails, the fatty lobe of the liver, and the two kidneys with their fat — as well as the right thigh. 26 From the basket of unleavened bread that was before the LORD he took one cake of unleavened bread, one cake of bread made with oil, and one wafer, and placed them on the fat portions and the right thigh. [t] 27 He put all these in the hands of Aaron and his sons and waved them before the LORD as a presentation offering. 28 Then Moses took them from their hands and burned them on the altar with the burnt offering. This was an ordination offering for a pleasing aroma, a fire offering to the LORD. 29 He also took the breast and waved it before the LORD as a presentation offering; it was Moses' portion of the ordination ram as the LORD had commanded him.

30 Then Moses took some of the anointing oil and some of the blood that was on the altar and sprinkled them on Aaron and his garments, as well as on his sons and their garments. In this way he consecrated Aaron and his garments, as well as his sons and their garments. [u]

31 Moses said to Aaron and his sons, "Boil the meat at the entrance to the tent of meeting and eat it there with the bread that is in the basket for the ordination offering as I commanded: [v] Aaron and his sons are to eat it. [w] 32 You must burn up what remains of the meat and bread. [x] 33 You must not go outside the entrance to the tent of meeting for seven days, until the time your days of ordination are completed, because it will take seven days to ordain you. [F] 34 The LORD commanded what has been done today in order to make atonement for you. [y] 35 You must remain at the entrance to the tent of meeting day and night for seven days and keep the LORD's charge [z] so that you will not die, [a] for this is what I was commanded." 36 So Aaron and his sons did everything the LORD had commanded through Moses.

The Priestly Ministry Inaugurated

9 On the eighth day Moses summoned Aaron, his sons, and the elders of Israel. [a] [2] He said to Aaron, "Take a young bull for a •sin [A] offering and a ram for a •burnt offering, both without blemish, [b] and present them before the Lord. [3] And tell the Israelites: [c] Take a male goat for a sin offering; a calf and a lamb, male yearlings without blemish, for a burnt offering; [4] an ox and a ram for a •fellowship offering to sacrifice before the Lord; and a •grain offering mixed with oil. For today the Lord is going to appear [d] to you."

[5] They brought what Moses had commanded to the front of the tent of meeting, and the whole community came forward and stood before the Lord. [6] Moses said, "This is what the Lord commanded you to do, that the glory of the Lord [e] may appear to you." [7] Then Moses said to Aaron, "Approach the altar and sacrifice your sin offering and your burnt offering; make •atonement for yourself and the people. [f, g] Sacrifice the people's offering and make atonement for them, as the Lord commanded."

[8] So Aaron approached the altar and slaughtered the calf as a sin offering for himself. [9] Aaron's sons brought the blood to him, and he dipped his finger in the blood and applied it to the horns of the altar. He poured out the blood at the base of the altar. [10] He burned the fat, the kidneys, and the fatty lobe of the liver from the sin offering on the altar, as the Lord had commanded Moses. [11] He burned up the flesh and the hide [h] outside the camp. [i]

[12] Then he slaughtered the burnt offering. Aaron's sons brought him the blood, and he sprinkled it on all sides of the altar. [13] They brought him the burnt offering piece by piece, along with the head, and he burned them on the altar. [14] He washed the entrails and the shanks and burned them with the burnt offering on the altar.

[15] Aaron presented the people's offering. He took the male goat for the people's sin offering, slaughtered it, and made a sin offering with it as he did before. [16] He presented the burnt offering and sacrificed it according to the regulation. [j] [17] Next he presented the grain offering, took a handful of it, and burned it on the altar in addition to the morning burnt offering. [k]

[18] Finally, he slaughtered the ox and the ram as the people's fellowship sacrifice. Aaron's sons brought him the blood, and he sprinkled it on all sides of the altar. [19] They also brought the fat portions from the ox and the ram — the fat tail, the fat surrounding the entrails, the kidneys, and the fatty lobe of the liver — [20] and placed these on the breasts. Aaron burned the fat portions on the altar, [21] but he waved the breasts [l] and the right thigh as a presentation offering [m]

before the LORD, as Moses had commanded. [n]

22 Aaron lifted up his hands toward the people and blessed [o] them. He came down after sacrificing the sin offering, the burnt offering, and the fellowship offering. 23 Moses and Aaron then entered the tent of meeting. When they came out, they blessed the people, and the glory of the LORD appeared to all the people. 24 Fire came from the LORD and consumed [p] the burnt offering and the fat portions on the altar. And when all the people saw it, they shouted [q] and fell facedown on the ground. [r]

Nadab and Abihu

10 Aaron’s sons Nadab [a] and Abihu [b] each took his own firepan, [c] put fire in it, placed incense on it, [d] and presented unauthorized [e] fire before the Lord, which He had not commanded them to do. 2 Then fire came from the Lord [f] and burned them to death before the Lord. [g] 3 So Moses said to Aaron, “This is what the Lord meant when He said:

I will show My holiness [A, h]
to those who are near Me, [i] and I will reveal My glory [B, j] before all the people.”

But Aaron remained silent.

4 Moses summoned Mishael and Elzaphan, [k] sons of Aaron’s uncle Uzziel, [l] and said to them, “Come here and carry your relatives away from the front of the sanctuary to a place outside the camp.” [m] 5 So they came forward and carried them in their tunics outside the camp, as Moses had said.

6 Then Moses said to Aaron and his sons Eleazar and Ithamar, [n] “Do not let your hair hang loose [o] and do not tear your garments, [p] or else you will die, and the Lord will become angry [q] with the whole community. However, your brothers, the whole house of Israel, may mourn [r] over that tragedy when the Lord sent the fire. 7 You must not go outside the entrance to the tent of meeting or you will die, for the Lord’s anointing oil [s] is on you.” So they did as Moses said.

Regulations for Priests

8 The LORD spoke to Aaron: 9 “You and your sons are not to drink wine [t] or beer [u] when you enter the tent of meeting, or else you will die; this is a permanent statute [v] throughout your generations. 10 You must distinguish [w] between the holy and the common, [x] and the •clean and the •unclean , [y] 11 and teach the Israelites all the statutes [z] that the LORD has given to them through Moses.”

12 Moses spoke to Aaron and his remaining sons, Eleazar and Ithamar: “Take the •grain offering that is left over from the fire offerings [a] to the LORD, and eat it prepared without yeast beside the altar, because it is especially holy. 13 You must eat it in a holy place because it is your portion [C] and your sons’ from the fire offerings to the LORD, for this is what I was commanded. 14 But you and your sons and your daughters may eat the breast of the presentation offering and the thigh of the contribution in any ceremonially clean place, because these portions have been assigned to you and your children from the Israelites’ •fellowship sacrifices. 15 They are to bring the thigh of the contribution and the breast of the presentation offering, together with the offerings of fat portions made by fire, to wave as a presentation offering before the LORD. It will belong permanently [b] to you and your children, as the LORD commanded.”

16 Later, Moses inquired about the male goat of the •sin offering, but it had already been burned up. He was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, Aaron’s surviving sons, and asked, 17 “Why didn’t you eat the sin offering in the sanctuary area? [c] For it is especially holy, and He has assigned it to you to take away the •guilt [d] of the community [e] and make •atonement for them before the LORD. 18 Since its blood was not brought inside the sanctuary, you should have eaten it in the sanctuary area, as I commanded.” [f]

19 But Aaron replied to Moses, “See, today they presented their sin offering and their •burnt offering before the LORD. Since these things have happened to me, if I had eaten the sin offering today, would it have been acceptable in the LORD’s sight? ” 20 When Moses heard this, it was acceptable to him. [D]

Clean and Unclean Land Animals

11 The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: 2 “Tell the Israelites: You may eat [a] all these kinds of land animals. [b] 3 You may eat any animal with divided hooves and that chews the cud. 4 But among the ones that chew the cud or have divided hooves you are not to eat these:

the camel, [c] though it chews the cud,
does not have divided hooves — it is •unclean for you;
5 the hyrax, [d, e] though it chews the cud,
does not have hooves — it is unclean for you;
6 the hare, though it chews the cud,
does not have hooves — it is unclean for you;
7 the pig, though it has divided hooves,
does not chew the cud — it is unclean for you.

8 Do not eat any of their meat or touch their carcasses — they are unclean for you. [f]

Clean and Unclean Aquatic Animals

9 “This is what you may eat from all that is in the water: You may eat everything in the water that has fins and scales, whether in the seas or streams.
10 But these are to be detestable to you: everything in the seas or streams that does not have fins and scales among all the swarming things and other living creatures [g] in the water. 11 They are to remain detestable to you; you must not eat any of their meat, and you must detest their carcasses. 12 Everything in the water that does not have fins and scales will be detestable to you.

Unclean Birds

13 “You are to detest these birds. They must not be eaten because they are detestable:

the eagle, [A, h] the bearded [B] vulture,
the black vulture, [C] 14 the kite, [D]
any kind of falcon, [E, i] 15 every kind of raven, 16 the ostrich, [F]
the short-eared owl, [G] the gull, [H]
any kind of hawk, [j] 17 the little [I] owl, the cormorant, [J]
the long-eared owl, [K, k] 18 the white [L] owl, the desert owl, [M, l]
the osprey, [N] 19 the stork, [O] any kind of heron, [P]
the hoopoe, and the bat.

Clean and Unclean Flying Insects

20 "All winged insects that walk on all fours are to be detestable to you. 21 But you may eat these kinds of all the winged insects that walk on all fours: those that have jointed legs above their feet for hopping on the ground. 22 You may eat these:

any kind of locust, [m] katydid, cricket, and grasshopper.

23 All other winged insects that have four feet are to be detestable to you.

Purification after Touching Dead Animals 24 "These will make you unclean.
Whoever touches their carcasses will be unclean [n] until evening, 25 and whoever carries any of their carcasses must wash his clothes and will be unclean until evening. [o] 26 All animals that have hooves but do not have a divided hoof and do not chew the cud are unclean for you. Whoever touches them becomes unclean.
27 All the four-footed animals [p] that walk on their paws are unclean for you.
Whoever touches their carcasses will be unclean until evening, 28 and anyone who carries their carcasses must wash his clothes and will be unclean until evening. They are unclean for you.

29 "These creatures that swarm [q] on the ground are unclean for you:

the weasel, [Q] the mouse, [r]
any kind of large lizard, [R] 30 the gecko, the monitor lizard, [S]
the common lizard, [T] the skink, [U]
and the chameleon. [V]

31 These are unclean for you among all the swarming creatures. Whoever touches them when they are dead will be unclean until evening. 32 When any one of them dies and falls on anything it becomes unclean — any item of wood, clothing, leather, •sackcloth , [s] or any implement used for work. It is to be rinsed with water and will remain unclean until evening; then it will be •clean . 33 If any of them falls into any clay pot, everything in it will become unclean; you must break it. 34 Any edible food [t] coming into contact with that unclean water will become unclean, and any drinkable liquid in any container will become unclean.
35 Anything one of their carcasses falls on will become unclean. If it is an oven or stove, it must be smashed; it is unclean and will remain unclean for you. 36 A spring or cistern containing water will remain clean, but someone who touches a carcass in it will become unclean. 37 If one of their carcasses falls on any seed that is to be sown, it is clean; 38 but if water has been put on the seed and one of their carcasses falls on it, it is unclean for you.

39 “If one of the animals that you use for food dies, [u] anyone who touches its carcass will be unclean until evening. 40 Anyone who eats some of its carcass must wash his clothes and will be unclean until evening. Anyone who carries its carcass must wash his clothes and will be unclean until evening.

Unclean Swarming Creatures

41 “All the creatures that swarm on the earth are detestable; they must not be eaten. 42 Do not eat any of the creatures that swarm on the earth, anything that moves on its belly or walks on all fours or on many feet, [W] for they are detestable. 43 Do not become contaminated by any creature that swarms; do not become unclean or defiled by them. 44 For I am •Yahweh your God, [v] so you must consecrate yourselves [w] and be holy because I am holy. [x] You must not defile yourselves by any swarming creature that crawls on the ground. 45 For I am Yahweh, who brought you up from the land of Egypt to be your God, [y] so you must be holy because I am holy. [z]

46 “This is the law concerning animals, birds, all living creatures that move in the water, and all creatures that swarm on the ground, 47 in order to distinguish between the unclean and the clean, between the animals [a] that may be eaten and those that may not be eaten.”

Purification after Childbirth

12 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Tell the Israelites: When a woman becomes pregnant and gives birth to a male child, [a] she will be •unclean seven days, as she is during the days of her menstrual impurity. [b] 3 The flesh of his foreskin
[c] must be circumcised [d] on the eighth day. [e] 4 She will continue in purification [f] from her bleeding [g] for 33 days. She must not touch any holy thing or go into the sanctuary until completing her days of purification. 5 But if she gives birth to a female child, she will be unclean for two weeks as she is during her menstrual impurity. She will continue in purification from her bleeding for 66 days.
6 “When her days of purification are complete, whether for a son or daughter, she is to bring to the priest at the entrance to the tent of meeting a year-old male lamb for a •burnt offering, and a young pigeon or a turtledove for a •sin [A] offering. 7 He will present them before the LORD and make •atonement on her behalf; she will be •clean from her discharge of blood. This is the law for a woman giving birth, whether to a male or female. 8 But if she doesn’t have sufficient means [B,] [h] for a sheep, she may take two turtledoves or two young pigeons, [i] one for a burnt offering and the other for a sin [C] offering. Then the priest will make atonement on her behalf, and she will be clean.”

Skin Diseases

13 The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron: 2 “When a person has a swelling, [A] scab, [B] or spot on the skin of his body, and it becomes a disease on the skin [a] of his body, he is to be brought to Aaron the priest or to one of his sons, the priests. 3 The priest will examine the infection [b] on the skin of his body. If the hair in the infection has turned white and the infection appears to be deeper than the skin of his body, it is a skin disease. After the priest examines him, he must pronounce him •unclean . 4 But if the spot on the skin of his body is white and does not appear to be deeper than the skin, and the hair in it has not turned white, the priest must quarantine the infected person for seven days. [c] 5 The priest will then reexamine him on the seventh day. If he sees that the infection remains unchanged and has not spread on the skin, the priest must quarantine him for another seven days. 6 The priest will examine him again on the seventh day. If the infection has faded and has not spread on the skin, the priest is to pronounce him •clean ; [d] it is a scab. The person is to wash his clothes and will become clean. 7 But if the scab spreads further on his skin after he has presented himself to the priest for his cleansing, [e] he must present himself again to the priest. 8 The priest will examine him, and if the scab has spread on the skin, then the priest must pronounce him unclean; he has a skin disease.

9 “When a skin disease develops on a person, he is to be brought to the priest. 10 The priest will examine him. If there is a white swelling on the skin that has turned the hair white, and there is a patch of raw flesh in the swelling, 11 it is a chronic disease on the skin of his body, and the priest must pronounce him unclean. [f] He need not quarantine him, for he is unclean. 12 But if the skin disease breaks out all over the skin so that it covers all the skin of the infected person from his head to his feet so far as the priest can see, 13 the priest will look, and if the skin disease has covered his entire body, he is to pronounce the infected person clean. [g] Since he has turned totally white, he is clean. 14 But whenever raw flesh appears on him, he will be unclean. 15 When the priest examines the raw flesh, he must pronounce him unclean. Raw flesh is unclean; it is a skin disease. 16 But if the raw flesh changes [C] and [D] turns white, he must go to the priest. 17 The priest will examine him, and if the infection has turned white, the priest must pronounce the infected person clean; he is clean.

18 “When a boil appears on the skin [h] of one’s body [i] and it heals, 19 and a white swelling or a reddish-white spot develops where the boil was, the person must present himself to the priest. 20 The priest will make an examination, and if the spot seems to be beneath the skin and the hair in it has turned white, the priest must pronounce him unclean; it is a skin disease that has broken out in the boil. 21 But when the priest examines it, if there is no white hair in it, and it is not beneath the skin but is faded, the priest must quarantine him seven days. 22 If it spreads further on the skin, the priest must pronounce him unclean; it is an infection. 23 But if the spot remains where it is and does not spread, it is only the scar from the boil. The priest is to pronounce him clean.

24 “When there is a burn on the skin of one’s body produced by fire, and the patch made raw by the burn becomes reddish-white or white, 25 the priest is to examine it. If the hair in the spot has turned white and the spot appears to be deeper than the skin, it is a skin disease that has broken out in the burn. The priest must pronounce him unclean; it is a skin disease. 26 But when the priest examines it, if there is no white hair in the spot and it is not beneath the skin but is faded, the priest must quarantine him seven days. 27 The priest will reexamine him on the seventh day. If it has spread further on the skin, the priest must pronounce him unclean; it is a skin disease. 28 But if the spot has remained where it was and has not spread on the skin but is faded, it is the swelling from the burn. The priest is to pronounce him clean, for it is only the scar from the burn.

29 “When a man or woman has an infection on the head or chin, 30 the priest must examine the infection. If it appears to be deeper than the skin, [j] and the hair in it is yellow and sparse, the priest must pronounce the person unclean. It is a scaly outbreak, [E] a skin disease of the head or chin. 31 When the priest examines the scaly infection, if it does not appear to be deeper than the skin, and there is no black hair in it, the priest must quarantine the person with the scaly infection for seven days. 32 The priest will reexamine the infection on the seventh day. If the scaly outbreak has not spread and there is no yellow hair in it and it does not appear to be deeper than the skin, 33 the person must shave himself [k] but not shave the scaly area. Then the priest must quarantine the person who has the scaly outbreak for another seven days. 34 The priest will examine the scaly outbreak on the seventh day, and if it has not spread on the skin and does not appear to be deeper than the skin, the priest is to pronounce the person clean. He is to wash his clothes, and he will be clean. 35 But if the scaly outbreak spreads further on the skin after his cleansing, 36 the priest is to examine the person. If the scaly outbreak has spread on the skin, the priest does not need to look for yellow hair; the person is unclean. 37 But if as far as he can see, the scaly outbreak remains unchanged and black hair has grown in it, then it has healed;
he is clean. The priest is to pronounce the person clean.

38 “When a man or a woman has white spots on the skin of the body, 39 the priest is to make an examination. If the spots on the skin of the body are dull white, it is only a rash [F] that has broken out on the skin; the person is clean.

40 “If a man loses the hair of his head, he is bald, [l] but he is clean. 41 Or if he loses the hair at his hairline, he is bald on his forehead, but he is clean. 42 But if there is a reddish-white infection on the bald head or forehead, it is a skin disease breaking out on his head or forehead. [m] 43 The priest is to examine him, and if the swelling of the infection on his bald head or forehead is reddish-white, like the appearance of a skin disease on his body, 44 the man is afflicted with a skin disease; [n] he is unclean. The priest must pronounce him unclean; the infection is on his head.

45 “The person afflicted with an infectious skin disease is to have his clothes torn [o] and his hair hanging loose, and he must cover his mouth [p] and cry out, ‘Unclean, unclean! ’ 46 He will remain unclean as long as he has the infection; he is unclean. He must live alone in a place outside the camp. [q]

Contaminated Fabrics

47 “If a fabric is contaminated with mildew — in wool or linen fabric, 48 in the warp or woof of linen or wool, or in leather or anything made of leather — 49 and if the contamination is green or red in the fabric, the leather, the warp, the woof, or any leather article, it is a mildew contamination and is to be shown to the priest. 50 The priest is to examine the contamination and quarantine the contaminated fabric for seven days. 51 The priest is to reexamine the contamination on the seventh day. If it has spread in the fabric, the warp, the woof, or the leather, regardless of how it is used, the contamination is harmful mildew; it is unclean. r 52 He is to burn the fabric, the warp or woof in wool or linen, or any leather article, which is contaminated. Since it is harmful mildew it must be burned up.

53 “When the priest examines it, if the contamination has not spread in the fabric, the warp or woof, or any leather article, 54 the priest is to order whatever is contaminated to be washed and quarantined for another seven days. 55 After it has been washed, the priest is to reexamine the contamination. If the appearance of the contaminated article has not changed, it is unclean. Even though the contamination has not spread, you must burn up the fabric. It is a fungus G on the front or back of the fabric.

56 “If the priest examines it, and the contamination has faded after it has been washed, he must cut the contaminated section out of the fabric, the leather, or the warp or woof. 57 But if it reappears in the fabric, the warp or woof, or any leather article, it has broken out again. You must burn up whatever is contaminated. 58 But if the contamination disappears from the fabric, the warp or woof, or any leather article, which have been washed, it is to be washed again, and it will be clean.

59 “This is the law concerning a mildew contamination in wool or linen fabric, warp or woof, or any leather article, in order to pronounce it clean or unclean.” s

Cleansing of Skin Diseases

14 The Lord spoke to Moses: 2 “This is the law [a] concerning the person afflicted with a skin disease on the day of his cleansing. [b] He is to be brought to the priest, [c] 3 who will go outside the camp [d] and examine him. [e] If the skin disease has disappeared from the afflicted person, [A] 4 the priest will order that two live •clean birds, [f] cedar wood, [g] scarlet [h] yarn, and hyssop [i] be brought for the one who is to be cleansed. 5 Then the priest will order that one of the birds be slaughtered over fresh water in a clay pot. 6 He is to take the live bird together with the cedar wood, scarlet yarn, and hyssop, and dip them all into the blood of the bird that was slaughtered over the fresh water. 7 He will then sprinkle the blood seven times on the one who is to be cleansed from the skin disease. He is to pronounce him clean and release the live bird over the open countryside. [j] 8 The one who is to be cleansed must wash his clothes, shave off all his hair, and bathe with water; he is clean. Afterward he may enter the camp, but he must remain outside his tent for seven days. 9 He is to shave off all his hair again on the seventh day: his head, his beard, his eyebrows, and the rest of his hair. He is to wash his clothes and bathe himself with water; he is clean.

10 “On the eighth day he must take two unblemished [k] male lambs, an unblemished year-old ewe lamb, a •grain offering of three quarts [B] of fine flour mixed with olive oil, and one-third of a quart [C] of olive oil. 11 The priest who performs the cleansing will place the person who is to be cleansed, together with these offerings, before the Lord at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 12 The priest is to take one male lamb and present it as a •restitution offering, [l] along with the one-third quart [D] of olive oil, and he must wave them as a presentation offering [m] before the Lord. 13 He is to slaughter the male lamb at the place in the sanctuary area where the •sin offering [n] and •burnt offering [o] are slaughtered, [p] for like the sin offering, the restitution offering belongs to the priest; [q] it is especially holy. [r] 14 The priest is to take some of the blood from the restitution offering and put it on the lobe of the right ear of the one to be cleansed, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot. [s] 15 Then the priest will take some of the one-third quart [E] of olive oil and pour it into his left palm. 16 The priest will dip his right finger into the oil in his left palm and sprinkle some of the oil with his finger seven times before the Lord.
17 From the oil remaining in his palm the priest will put some on the lobe of the right ear of the one to be cleansed, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot, on top of the blood of the restitution offering. [t] 18 What is left of the oil in the priest’s palm he is to put on the head of the one to be cleansed. In this way the priest will make •atonement for him before the LORD.

19 The priest must sacrifice the sin offering and make atonement for the one to be cleansed from his uncleanness. [u] Afterward he will slaughter the burnt offering. 20 The priest is to offer the burnt offering and the grain offering on the altar. The priest will make atonement for him, and he will be clean. [v] 21 "But if he is poor [w] and cannot afford these, [F, x] he is to take one male lamb for a restitution offering to be waved in order to make atonement for him, along with two quarts [G] of fine flour mixed with olive oil for a grain offering, one-third of a quart [H] of olive oil, 22 and two turtledoves or two young pigeons, whatever he can afford, [I] one to be a sin offering and the other a burnt offering.
23 On the eighth day he is to bring these things for his cleansing to the priest at the entrance to the tent of meeting before the LORD. 24 The priest will take the male lamb for the restitution offering and the one-third quart [J] of olive oil, and wave them as a presentation offering before the LORD. 25 After he slaughters the male lamb for the restitution offering, the priest is to take some of the blood of the restitution offering and put it on the right earlobe of the one to be cleansed, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot. 26 Then the priest will pour some of the oil into his left palm. 27 With his right finger the priest will sprinkle some of the oil in his left palm seven times before the LORD.
28 The priest will also put some of the oil in his palm on the right earlobe of the one to be cleansed, on the thumb of his right hand, and on the big toe of his right foot, on the same place as the blood of the restitution offering. 29 What is left of the oil in the priest's palm he is to put on the head of the one to be cleansed to make atonement for him before the LORD. [y] 30 He must then sacrifice one type of what he can afford, [K] either the turtledoves or young pigeons, 31 one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering, sacrificing what he can afford [z, L] together with the grain offering. In this way the priest will make atonement before the LORD for the one to be cleansed. 32 This is the law for someone who has [M] a skin disease and cannot afford [N] the cost of his cleansing."

Cleansing of Contaminated Objects 33 The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron:
34 "When you enter the land of Canaan [a] that I am giving you as a possession, [b] and I place a mildew contamination in a house in the land you possess, [O] 35 the owner of the house is to come and tell the priest: Something like mildew contamination has appeared [P] in my house. 36 The priest must order them to clear the house before he enters to examine the contamination, so that nothing in the house becomes •unclean . Afterward the priest will come to examine the house. 37 He will examine it, and if the contamination in the walls of the house consists of green or red indentations Q that appear to be beneath the surface of the wall, 38 the priest is to go outside the house to its doorway and quarantine the house for seven days. 39 The priest is to return on the seventh day and examine it. If the contamination has spread on the walls of the house, 40 the priest must order that the stones with the contamination be pulled out and thrown into an unclean place outside the city. 41 He is to have the inside of the house completely scraped, and the plaster R that is scraped off must be dumped in an unclean place outside the city. 42 Then they must take different stones to replace the former ones and take additional plaster S to replaster the house.

43 “If the contamination reappears in the house after the stones have been pulled out, and after the house has been scraped and replastered, 44 the priest must come and examine it. If the contamination has spread in the house, it is harmful mildew; the house is unclean. 45 It must be torn down with its stones, its beams, and all its plaster, and taken outside the city to an unclean place.
46 Whoever enters the house during any of the days the priest quarantines it will be unclean until evening. 47 Whoever lies down in the house is to wash his clothes, and whoever eats in it is to wash his clothes.

48 “But when the priest comes and examines it, if the contamination has not spread in the house after it was replastered, he is to pronounce the house clean because the contamination has disappeared. T 49 He is to take two birds, cedar wood, scarlet yarn, and hyssop to purify the house, 50 and he is to slaughter one of the birds over a clay pot containing fresh water. 51 He will take the cedar wood, the hyssop, the scarlet yarn, and the live bird, dip them in the blood of the slaughtered bird and the fresh water, and sprinkle the house seven times. 52 He will purify the house with the blood of the bird, the fresh water, the live bird, the cedar wood, the hyssop, and the scarlet yarn. 53 Then he is to release the live bird into the open countryside c outside the city. In this way he will make atonement for the house, and it will be clean.

54 “This is the law for any skin disease or mildew, for a scaly outbreak, U 55 for mildew in clothing or on a house, 56 and for a swelling, scab, or spot, 57 to determine when something is unclean or clean. This is the law regarding skin disease and mildew.”

Bodily Discharges

15 The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron: 2 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When any man has a discharge [a] from his body, he is •unclean .
3 This is uncleanness of his discharge: Whether his body secretes the discharge or retains it, he is unclean. All the days that his body secretes or retains anything because of his discharge, [b] he is unclean. [c] 4 Any bed the man with the discharge lies on will be unclean, and any furniture he sits on will be unclean. 5 Anyone who touches his bed is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 6 Whoever sits on furniture that the man with the discharge was sitting on is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 7 Whoever touches the body of the man with a discharge is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 8 If the man with the discharge spits on anyone who is •clean , he is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 9 Any saddle the man with the discharge rides on will be unclean. [d] 10 Whoever touches anything that was under him will be unclean until evening, and whoever carries such things is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 11 If the man with the discharge touches anyone without first rinsing his hands in water, [e] the person who was touched is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 12 Any clay pot that the man with the discharge touches must be broken, while any wooden utensil must be rinsed with water. [f]

13 “When the man with the discharge has been cured of it, he is to count seven days for his cleansing, wash his clothes, and bathe his body in fresh water; he will be clean. 14 He must take two turtledoves or two young pigeons on the eighth day, come before the Lord at the entrance to the tent of meeting, and give them to the priest. 15 The priest is to sacrifice them, one as a •sin offering and the other as a •burnt offering. [g] In this way the priest will make •atonement for him before the Lord because of his discharge.

16 “When a man has an emission of semen, [h] he is to bathe himself completely with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 17 Any clothing or leather on which there is an emission of semen must be washed with water, and it will remain unclean until evening. 18 If a man sleeps with a woman and has an emission of semen, both of them are to bathe with water, and they will remain unclean until evening. [i]

19 “When a woman has a discharge, and it consists of blood from her body, she will be unclean because of her menstruation [j] for seven days. Everyone who touches her will be unclean until evening. 20 Anything she lies on during her menstruation will become unclean, and anything she sits on will become unclean. 21 Everyone who touches her bed is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 22 Everyone who touches any furniture she was sitting on is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 23 If discharge is on the bed or the furniture she was sitting on, when he touches it he will be unclean until evening. 24 If a man sleeps with her, and blood from her menstruation gets on him, he will be unclean for seven days, and every bed he lies on will become unclean. [k]

25 "When a woman has a discharge of her blood for many days, though it is not the time of her menstruation, or if she has a discharge beyond her period, she will be unclean all the days of her unclean discharge, as she is during the days of her menstruation. 26 Any bed she lies on during the days of her discharge will be like her bed during menstrual impurity; any furniture she sits on will be unclean as in her menstrual period. 27 Everyone who touches them will be unclean; he must wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain unclean until evening. 28 When she is cured of her discharge, she is to count seven days, and after that she will be clean. [l] 29 On the eighth day she must take two turtledoves or two young pigeons and bring them to the priest at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 30 The priest is to sacrifice one as a sin offering and the other as a burnt offering. In this way the priest will make atonement for her before the LORD because of her unclean discharge.

31 "You must keep the Israelites from their uncleanness, so that they do not die by defiling My tabernacle [m] that is among them. 32 This is the law for someone with a discharge: a man who has an emission of semen, becoming unclean by it; 33 a woman who is in her menstrual period; anyone who has a discharge, whether male or female; and a man who sleeps with an unclean woman."

The Day of Atonement

16 The LORD spoke to Moses after the death of two of Aaron's sons when they approached the presence [a] of [b] the LORD and died. [c] 2 The LORD said to Moses: "Tell your brother Aaron that he may not come whenever he wants into the holy place [d] behind the veil [e] in front of the •mercy seat [f] on the ark or else he will die, because I appear in the cloud [g] above the mercy seat. [h]

3 "Aaron is to enter the most holy place [i] in this way: with a young bull for a •sin offering and a ram for a •burnt offering. [j] 4 He is to wear a holy linen tunic, and linen undergarments are to be on his body. He must tie a linen sash around him and wrap his head with a linen turban. [k] These are holy garments; he must bathe his body with water before he wears them. 5 He is to take from the Israelite community two male goats for a sin offering and one ram for a burnt offering. [l]

6 "Aaron will present the bull for his sin offering and make •atonement for himself and his household. 7 Next he will take the two goats and place them before the LORD at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 8 After Aaron casts lots [m] for the two goats, one lot for the LORD and the other for azazel, [n, o] 9 he is to present the goat chosen by lot for the LORD and sacrifice it as a sin offering. [p] 10 But the goat chosen by lot for azazel [q] is to be presented alive before the LORD to make purification with it by sending it into the wilderness [r] for azazel.

11 "When Aaron presents the bull for his sin offering and makes atonement for himself and his household, he will slaughter the bull for his sin offering. 12 Then he must take a firepan full of fiery coals from the altar before the LORD and two handfuls of finely ground fragrant incense, [s] and bring them inside the veil. [t] 13 He is to put the incense on the fire before the LORD, so that the cloud [u] of incense covers the mercy seat that is over the •testimony , [v] or else he will die. [w] 14 He is to take some of the bull's blood [x] and sprinkle it with his finger against the east side of the mercy seat; then he will sprinkle some of the blood with his finger before the mercy seat seven times. [y]

15 "When he slaughters the male goat for the people's sin offering and brings its blood inside the veil, he must do the same with its blood as he did with the bull's blood: he is to sprinkle it against the mercy seat and in front of it. 16 He will purify the most holy place in this way for all their sins because of the Israelites' impurities and rebellious acts. [z] He will do the same for the tent of meeting that remains among them, because it is surrounded by their impurities. 17 No one may be in the tent of meeting from the time he enters to make atonement in the most holy place until he leaves after he has made atonement for himself, his household, and the whole assembly of Israel. [a] 18 Then he will go out to the altar that is before the LORD and make atonement for it. He is to take some of the bull's blood and some of the goat's blood and put it on the horns on all sides of the altar. 19 He is to sprinkle some of the blood on it with his finger seven times to cleanse and set it apart [b] from the Israelites' impurities. [c]

20 "When he has finished purifying the most holy place, the tent of meeting, and the altar, he is to present the live male goat. 21 Aaron will lay both his hands on the head of the live goat and confess [d] over it all the Israelites' wrongdoings [e] and rebellious acts — all their sins. [f] He is to put them on the goat's head and send it away into the wilderness [g] by the man appointed for the task. [A] 22 The goat will carry on it all their wrongdoings into a desolate land, [h] and he will release it there.

23 "Then Aaron is to enter the tent of meeting, take off the linen garments [i] he wore when he entered the most holy place, and leave them there. 24 He will bathe his body with water in a holy place [j] and put on his clothes. [k] Then he must go out and sacrifice his burnt offering and the people's burnt offering; he will make atonement for himself and for the people. 25 He is to burn the fat of the sin offering on the altar. 26 The man who released the goat for azazel [l] is to wash his clothes and bathe his body with water; afterward he may reenter the camp. 27 The bull for the sin offering and the goat for the sin offering, whose blood was brought into the most holy place to make atonement, must be brought outside the camp [m] and their hide, [n] flesh, and dung burned up. [o] 28 The one who burns them is to wash his clothes and bathe himself with water; afterward he may reenter the camp.

29 "This is to be a permanent statute [p] for you: In the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month you are to practice self-denial [q, r] and do no work, [s] both the native and the foreigner [t] who resides among you. 30 Atonement will be made for you on this day to cleanse you, [u] and you will be •clean from all your sins before the LORD. 31 It is a Sabbath [v] of complete rest for you, [w] and you must practice self-denial; it is a permanent statute. 32 The priest who is anointed and ordained [B, x] to serve as high priest [y] in place of his father will make atonement. He will put on the linen garments, the holy garments, 33 and purify the most holy place. He will purify the tent of meeting and the altar and will make atonement for the priests and all the people of the assembly. 34 This is to be a permanent statute for you, to make atonement for the Israelites once a year [z] because of all their sins." And all this was done as the LORD commanded Moses.

Forbidden Sacrifices

17 The Lord spoke to Moses: 2 “Speak to Aaron, his sons, and all the Israelites and tell them: This is what the Lord has commanded: 3 Anyone from the house of Israel who slaughters [a] an ox, sheep, or goat in the camp, or slaughters it outside the camp, 4 instead of bringing it to the entrance to the tent of meeting to present it as an offering to the Lord before His tabernacle — that person will be considered •guilty . [A,] [b] He has shed blood [c] and must be cut off from his people. [d] 5 This is so the Israelites will bring to the Lord the sacrifices [e] they have been offering in the open country. They are to bring them to the priest at the entrance to the tent of meeting and offer them as •fellowship sacrifices [f] to the Lord. 6 The priest will then sprinkle the blood on the Lord’s altar at the entrance to the tent of meeting and burn the fat as a pleasing aroma to the Lord. 7 They must no longer offer their sacrifices to the goat-demons [g] that they have prostituted [h] themselves with. This will be a permanent statute [i] for them throughout their generations.

8 “Say to them: Anyone from the house of Israel or from the foreigners [j] who live among them who offers a •burnt offering or a sacrifice 9 but does not bring it to the entrance to the tent of meeting to sacrifice it to the Lord, that person must be cut off from his people.

Eating Blood and Carcasses Prohibited 10 “Anyone from the house of Israel or from the foreigners who live among them who eats any blood, [k] I will turn [B] against that person who eats blood and cut him off from his people. 11 For the life of a creature is in the blood, and I have appointed it to you to make •atonement on the altar for [C] your lives, since it is the lifeblood that makes atonement. [l] 12 Therefore I say to the Israelites: None of you and no foreigner who lives among you may eat blood.

13 “Any Israelite or foreigner living among them, who hunts [m] down a wild animal or bird that may be eaten must drain its blood [n] and cover it with dirt.
14 Since the life of every creature is its blood, I have told the Israelites: You must not eat the blood of any creature, [o] because the life of every creature is its blood;
whoever eats it must be cut off.

15 “Every person, whether the native or the foreigner, [p] who eats an animal that died a natural death or was mauled by wild beasts [q] is to wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will remain •unclean until evening; then he will be •clean . 16 But if he does not wash his clothes and bathe himself, he will bear his punishment.”

Prohibited Pagan Practices

18 •Yahweh spoke to Moses: 2 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: I am Yahweh your God. [a] 3 Do not follow the practices of the land of Egypt, [b] where you used to live, or follow the practices of the land of Canaan, [c] where I am bringing you. You must not follow their customs. [d] 4 You are to practice My ordinances [e] and you are to keep My statutes [f] by following them; I am Yahweh your God. 5 Keep My statutes and ordinances; a person will live [g] if he does them. [h] I am Yahweh.

6 “You are not to come near [i] any close relative [A] for sexual intercourse; [j] I am Yahweh. 7 You are not to shame your father [k] by having sex with your mother. She is your mother; you must not have sexual intercourse with her. 8 You are not to have sex with your father’s wife; [l] it will shame your father. [m] 9 You are not to have sexual intercourse with your sister, either your father’s daughter or your mother’s, [n] whether born at home or born elsewhere. You are not to have sex with her. 10 You are not to have sexual intercourse with your son’s daughter or your daughter’s daughter, because it will shame your family. [B] 11 You are not to have sexual intercourse with your father’s wife’s daughter, [o] who is adopted by [C] your father; she is your sister. 12 You are not to have sexual intercourse with your father’s sister; [p] she is your father’s close relative. 13 You are not to have sexual intercourse with your mother’s sister, [q] for she is your mother’s close relative. 14 You are not to shame your father’s brother by coming near his wife to have sexual intercourse; she is your aunt. [r] 15 You are not to have sexual intercourse with your daughter-in-law. [s] She is your son’s wife; you are not to have sex with her. 16 You are not to have sexual intercourse with your brother’s wife; it will shame your brother. [t] 17 You are not to have sexual intercourse with a woman and her daughter. [u] You are not to marry her son’s daughter or her daughter’s daughter and have sex with her. They are close relatives; it is depraved. [v] 18 You are not to marry a woman as a rival to her sister and have sexual intercourse with her during her sister’s lifetime. [w]

19 “You are not to come near [x] a woman during her menstrual impurity to have sexual intercourse with her. [y] 20 You are not to have sexual intercourse with [D] your neighbor’s wife, defiling yourself with her. [z]

21 “You are not to make any of your children pass through the fire to •Molech. [a] Do not profane the name [b] of your God; I am Yahweh. 22 You are not to sleep with a man as with a woman; [c] it is detestable. [d] 23 You are not to have sexual intercourse with [E] any animal, defiling yourself with it; a woman is not to present herself to an animal to mate with it; [e] it is a perversion.

24 “Do not defile yourselves by any of these practices, for the nations I am driving out before you have defiled themselves by all these things. 25 The land has become defiled, so I am punishing it for its sin, and the land will vomit out its inhabitants. [f] 26 But you are to keep My statutes and ordinances. You must not commit any of these detestable things — not the native or the foreigner who lives among you. 27 For the men who were in the land prior to you have committed all these detestable things, and the land has become defiled. 28 If you defile the land, it will vomit [g] you out as it has vomited out the nations that were before you. 29 Any person who does any of these detestable practices must be cut off from his people. 30 You must keep My instruction to not do any of the detestable customs [h] that were practiced before you, so that you do not defile yourselves by them; I am Yahweh your God.”

Laws of Holiness

19 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Speak to the entire Israelite community and tell them: Be holy [a] because I, •Yahweh your God, am holy. [b] 3 “Each of you is to respect his mother and father. [c] You are to keep My Sabbaths; I am Yahweh your God. 4 Do not turn to idols [d] or make cast images [e] of gods for yourselves; [f] I am Yahweh your God.
5 “When you offer a •fellowship sacrifice to the LORD, sacrifice it so that you may be accepted. 6 It is to be eaten on the day you sacrifice it or on the next day, but what remains on the third day must be burned up. [g] 7 If any is eaten on the third day, it is a repulsive thing; it will not be accepted. [h] 8 Anyone who eats it will bear his punishment, for he has profaned what is holy to the LORD. That person must be cut off from his people. [i] 9 “When you reap the harvest of your land, you are not to reap to the very edge of your field or gather the gleanings [j] of your harvest. 10 You must not strip your vineyard bare or gather its fallen grapes. Leave them for the poor [k] and the foreign resident; [l] I am Yahweh your God.
11 “You must not steal. [m] You must not act deceptively [n] or lie [o] to one another. 12 You must not swear falsely by My name, profaning the name of your God; [p] I am Yahweh.
13 “You must not oppress [q] your neighbor or rob [r] him. The wages due a hired hand [s] must not remain with you until morning. 14 You must not curse the deaf or put a stumbling block in front of the blind, [t] but you are to •fear your God; [u] I am Yahweh. [v] 15 “You must not act unjustly [w] when deciding a case. Do not be partial [x] to the poor or give preference to the rich; [y] judge your neighbor fairly. 16 You must not go about spreading slander [z] among your people; you must not jeopardize [A] your neighbor’s life; I am Yahweh.
17 “You must not harbor hatred against your brother. [B, a] Rebuke your neighbor directly, and you will not incur •guilt because of him. [b] 18 Do not take revenge [c] or bear a grudge against members of your community, but love your neighbor as yourself; [d] I am Yahweh.
19 “You are to keep My statutes. You must not crossbreed two different kinds of your livestock, sow your fields with two kinds of seed, or put on a garment made of two kinds of material. [e] 20 “If a man has sexual intercourse with a woman who is a slave designated for another man, but she has not been redeemed [f] or given her freedom, there must be punishment. [C] They are not to be put to death, because she had not been freed. 21 However, he must bring a ram as his •restitution offering to the LORD at the entrance to the tent of meeting. g 22 The priest will make •atonement on his behalf before the LORD with the ram of the restitution offering for the sin he has committed, and he will be forgiven for the sin he committed.

23 "When you come into the land and plant any kind of tree for food, you are to consider the fruit forbidden. D It will be forbidden to you for three years; it is not to be eaten. 24 In the fourth year all its fruit must be consecrated as a praise offering h to the LORD. 25 But in the fifth year you may eat its fruit. In this way its yield will increase for you; i I am Yahweh your God.
26 "You are not to eat anything with blood in it. E, j You are not to practice •divination k or sorcery. l 27 You are not to cut off the hair at the sides of your head or mar the edge of your beard. m 28 You are not to make gashes on your bodies for the dead n or put tattoo marks on yourselves; I am Yahweh.
29 "Do not debase F, o your daughter by making her a prostitute, p or the land will be prostituted and filled with depravity. 30 You must keep My Sabbaths and revere My sanctuary; q I am Yahweh.
31 "Do not turn to mediums G, r or consult spiritists, H, s or you will be defiled by them; I am Yahweh your God.
32 "You are to rise in the presence of the elderly and honor the old. t Fear your God; I am Yahweh.
33 "When a foreigner lives with you in your land, you must not oppress u him.
34 You must regard the foreigner who lives with you as the native-born among you. You are to love him as yourself, v for you were foreigners in the land of Egypt; w I am Yahweh your God.
35 "You must not be unfair x in measurements of length, weight, or volume.
36 You are to have honest balances, y honest weights, an honest dry measure, I and an honest liquid measure; J, z I am Yahweh your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt. 37 You must keep all My statutes and all My ordinances and do them; I am Yahweh."

Molech Worship and Spiritism

20 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Say to the Israelites: Any Israelite or foreigner living in Israel who gives any of his children to •Molech [a] must be put to death; the people of the country are to stone him. [b] 3 I will turn [A] against that man and cut him off from his people, because he gave his •offspring to Molech, defiling My sanctuary [c] and profaning My holy name. [d] 4 But if the people of the country look the other way when that man [B] gives any of his children to Molech, and do not put him to death, 5 then I will turn [C] against that man and his family, and cut off from their people both him and all who follow [D] him in prostituting [e] themselves with Molech.
6 “Whoever turns to mediums [E, f] or spiritists [F] and prostitutes himself with them, I will turn [G] against that person and cut him off from his people.
7 Consecrate yourselves and be holy, for I am •Yahweh your God. 8 Keep My statutes and do them; I am Yahweh who sets you apart.

Family and Sexual Offenses

9 “If anyone curses his father or mother, he must be put to death. [g] He has cursed his father or mother; his blood is on his own hands. [H] 10 If a man commits adultery [h] with a married woman — if he commits adultery with his neighbor’s wife — both the adulterer and the adulteress must be put to death. 11 If a man sleeps with his father’s wife, he has shamed his father. [i] Both of them must be put to death; their blood is on their own hands. [I] 12 If a man sleeps with his daughter-in-law, [j] both of them must be put to death.
They have acted perversely; their blood is on their own hands. [J] 13 If a man sleeps with a man as with a woman, [k] they have both committed a detestable thing. [l] They must be put to death; their blood is on their own hands. [K] 14 If a man marries a woman and her mother, [m] it is depraved. Both he and they must be burned with fire, [n] so that there will be no depravity among you. 15 If a man has sexual intercourse with [L] an animal, he must be put to death; you are also to kill the animal. 16 If a woman comes near any animal and mates with it, you are to kill the woman and the animal. [o] They must be put to death; their own blood is on them. 17 If a man marries his sister, [p] whether his father’s daughter or his mother’s daughter, and they have sexual relations, [M,] [q] it is a disgrace. [r] They must be cut off publicly from their people. He has had sexual intercourse with his sister; he will bear his punishment. 18 If a man sleeps with a menstruating woman and has sexual intercourse with her, he has exposed the source of her flow, and she has uncovered the source of her blood. [s] Both of them must be cut off from their people. 19 You must not have sexual intercourse with your mother’s sister or your father’s sister, [t] for it is exposing one’s own blood relative; both people will bear their punishment. 20 If a man sleeps with his aunt, he has shamed his uncle; [u] they will bear their •guilt and die childless. 21 If a man marries his brother’s wife, it is impurity. [v] He has shamed his brother; [w] they will be childless.

Holiness in the Land

22 “You are to keep all My statutes and all My ordinances, and do them, so that the land where I am bringing you to live will not vomit you out. [x] 23 You must not follow the statutes of the nations I am driving out before you, for they did all these things, and I abhorred them. [y] 24 And I promised you: You will inherit their land, since I will give it to you to possess, a land flowing with milk and honey. [z] I am Yahweh your God who set you apart from the peoples.
25 Therefore you must distinguish the •clean animal from the •unclean one, and the unclean bird from the clean one. Do not become contaminated [a] by any land animal, bird, or whatever crawls on the ground; I have set these apart as unclean for you. [b] 26 You are to be holy to Me because I, Yahweh, am holy, and I have set you apart from the nations to be Mine. [c]

27 A man or a woman who is [N] a medium or a spiritist must be put to death.
They are to be stoned; their blood is on their own hands.” [O]

The Holiness of the Priests

21 The Lord said to Moses: "Speak to Aaron's sons, the priests, and tell them: A priest is not to make himself ceremonially •unclean for a dead person among his relatives, [a] 2 except for his immediate family: his mother, father, son, daughter, or brother. 3 He may make himself unclean for his young unmarried sister in his immediate family. 4 He is not to make himself unclean for those related to him by marriage [A] and so defile himself.

5 "Priests may not make bald spots on their heads, shave the edge of their beards, or make gashes on their bodies. [b] 6 They are to be holy to their God and not profane the name of their God. [c] For they present the fire offerings to •Yahweh , the food of their God, and they must be holy. 7 They are not to marry a woman defiled by prostitution. [B,] [d] They are not to marry one divorced [e] by her husband, for the priest is holy to his God. 8 You are to consider him holy since he presents the food of your God. He will be holy to you because I, Yahweh who sets you apart, am holy. 9 If a priest's daughter defiles herself by promiscuity, [C,] [f] she defiles her father; she must be burned up. [g]

10 "The priest who is highest among his brothers, who has had the anointing oil poured on his head and has been ordained [D] to wear the garments, must not dishevel his hair [E] or tear his garments. [h] 11 He must not go near any dead person or make himself unclean even for his father or mother. [i] 12 He must not leave the sanctuary or he will desecrate the sanctuary of his God, for the consecration of the anointing oil of his God is on him; [j] I am Yahweh.

13 "He is to marry a woman who is a virgin. 14 He is not to marry a widow, [k] a divorced woman, [l] or one defiled by prostitution. He is to marry a virgin from his own people, 15 so that he does not corrupt his bloodline [F] among his people, for I am Yahweh who sets him apart."

Physical Defects and Priests 16 The Lord spoke to Moses: 17 "Tell Aaron: None of your descendants throughout your generations who has a physical defect [m] is to come near to present the food [n] of his God. 18 No man who has any defect is to come near: no man who is blind, lame, facially disfigured, or deformed; 19 no man who has a broken foot or hand, 20 or who is a hunchback or a dwarf, [G,] [o] or who has an eye defect, a festering rash, scabs, [p] or a crushed testicle. [q] 21 No descendant of Aaron the priest who has a defect is to come near to present the fire offerings to the Lord. He has a defect and is not to come near to present the food of his God. 22 He may eat the food of his God from what is especially holy as well as from what is holy. 23 But because he has a defect, he must not go near the curtain [r] or approach the altar. He is not to desecrate My sanctuaries, for I am Yahweh who sets them apart." [s] [24] Moses said this to Aaron and his sons and to all the Israelites.

Priests and Their Food

22 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Tell Aaron and his sons to deal respectfully with the holy offerings of the Israelites that they have consecrated to Me, so they do not profane My holy name; [a] I am •Yahweh . 3 Say to them: If any man from any of your descendants throughout your generations is in a state of uncleanness yet approaches the holy offerings that the Israelites consecrate to the LORD, that person will be cut off from My presence; I am Yahweh. 4 No man of Aaron’s descendants who has a skin disease [A] or a discharge is to eat from the holy offerings until he is •clean . Whoever touches anything made •unclean by a dead person or by a man who has an emission of semen, 5 or whoever touches any swarming creature that makes him unclean or any person who makes him unclean — whatever his uncleanness — 6 the man who touches any of these will remain unclean until evening [b] and is not to eat from the holy offerings unless he has bathed his body with water. 7 When the sun has set, he will become clean, and then he may eat from the holy offerings, for that is his food. [c] 8 He must not eat an animal that died naturally or was mauled by wild beasts, [B,] [d] making himself unclean by it; I am Yahweh. 9 They must keep My instruction, [e] or they will be •guilty and die because they profane it; I am Yahweh who sets them apart.

10 “No one outside a priest’s family [C,] [f] is to eat the holy offering. A foreigner staying with a priest or a hired hand is not to eat the holy offering. 11 But if a priest purchases someone with his money, that person may eat it, and those born in his house may eat his food. 12 If the priest’s daughter is married to a man outside a priest’s family, [D] she is not to eat from the holy contributions. [E] 13 But if the priest’s daughter becomes widowed or divorced, has no children, and returns to her father’s house as in her youth, she may share her father’s food. But no outsider may share it. 14 If anyone eats a holy offering in error, [g] he must add a fifth to its value and give the holy offering to the priest. [h] 15 The priests must not profane the holy offerings the Israelites give to the LORD 16 by letting the people eat their holy offerings and having them bear the penalty of restitution. [i] For I am Yahweh who sets them apart.”

Acceptable Sacrifices

17 The LORD spoke to Moses: 18 “Speak to Aaron, his sons, and all the Israelites and tell them: Any man of the house of Israel or of the foreign residents [j] in Israel who presents his offering [k] — whether they present freewill gifts or payment of vows to the LORD as •burnt offerings — 19 must offer an unblemished male [l] from the cattle, sheep, or goats in order for you to be accepted. 20 You are not to present anything that has a defect, because it will not be accepted on your behalf.

21 “When a man presents a •fellowship sacrifice to the LORD to fulfill a vow or as a freewill offering from the herd or flock, it has to be unblemished to be acceptable; there must be no defect in it. 22 You are not to present any animal to the LORD that is blind, injured, maimed, or has a running sore, festering rash, [m] or scabs; you may not put any of them on the altar as a fire offering to the LORD.
[n] 23 You may sacrifice as a freewill offering any animal from the herd or flock that has an elongated or stunted limb, but it is not acceptable as a vow offering.
24 You are not to present to the LORD anything that has bruised, crushed, torn, or severed testicles; [o] you must not sacrifice them in your land. 25 Neither you nor [F] a foreigner are to present food to your God from any of these animals. They will not be accepted for you because they are deformed and have a defect.” [p]

26 The LORD spoke to Moses: 27 “When an ox, sheep, or goat is born, it must remain with [G] its mother for seven days; from the eighth day [q] on, it will be acceptable as a gift, a fire offering to the LORD. 28 But you are not to slaughter an animal from the herd or flock on the same day as its young. [r] 29 When you sacrifice a thank offering [s] to the LORD, sacrifice it so that you may be accepted.
30 It is to be eaten on the same day. [t] Do not let any of it remain until morning; I am Yahweh.

31 “You are to keep My commands and do them; I am Yahweh. 32 You must not profane My holy name; I must be treated as holy [u] among the Israelites. I am Yahweh who sets you apart, 33 the One who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God; I am Yahweh.”

Holy Days

23 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: These are My appointed times, [a] the times of the LORD that you will proclaim as sacred assemblies. [b]
3 “Work may be done for six days, but on the seventh day there must be a Sabbath of complete rest, [c] a sacred assembly. You are not to do any work; it is a Sabbath [d] to the LORD wherever you live.
4 “These are the LORD’s appointed times, the sacred assemblies you are to proclaim at their appointed times. 5 The •Passover [e] to the LORD comes in the first month, at twilight on the fourteenth day of the month. 6 The Festival of •Unleavened Bread [f] to the LORD is on the fifteenth day of the same month. For seven days you must eat unleavened bread. 7 On the first day you are to hold a sacred assembly; you are not to do any daily work. 8 You are to present a fire offering to the LORD for seven days. On the seventh day there will be a sacred assembly; you must not do any daily work.” 9 The LORD spoke to Moses: 10 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When you enter the land I am giving you and reap its harvest, [g] you are to bring the first sheaf of your harvest to the priest. 11 He will wave the sheaf before the LORD so that you may be accepted; the priest is to wave it on the day after the Sabbath. 12 On the day you wave the sheaf, you are to offer a year-old male lamb [A] without blemish [h] as a •burnt offering to the LORD. 13 Its •grain offering is to be four quarts [B] of fine flour mixed with oil as a fire offering to the LORD, a pleasing aroma, and its •drink offering will be one quart [C] of wine. 14 You must not eat bread, roasted grain, or any new grain [i] until this very day, and until you have brought the offering to your God. This is to be a permanent statute throughout your generations wherever you live.
15 “You are to count seven [D] complete weeks [E, j] starting from the day after the Sabbath, the day you brought the sheaf of the presentation offering. [k] 16 You are to count 50 days until the day after the seventh Sabbath and then present an offering of new grain [l] to the LORD. 17 Bring two loaves of bread from your settlements as a presentation offering, each of them made from four quarts [F] of fine flour, baked with yeast, as •firstfruits [m] to the LORD. 18 You are to present with the bread seven unblemished male lambs a year old, one young bull, and two rams. They will be a burnt offering to the LORD, with their grain offerings and drink offerings, a fire offering of a pleasing aroma to the LORD. 19 You are also to prepare one male goat as a •sin offering, and two male lambs a year old as a •fellowship sacrifice. 20 The priest will wave the lambs with the bread of firstfruits as a presentation offering before the LORD; the bread and the two lambs will be holy to the LORD for the priest. 21 On that same day you are to make a proclamation and hold a sacred assembly. You are not to do any daily work. This is to be a permanent statute wherever you live throughout your generations. 22 When you reap the harvest of your land, you are not to reap all the way to the edge of your field or gather the gleanings of your harvest. Leave them for the poor and the foreign resident; [n] I am •Yahweh your God."

23 The LORD spoke to Moses: 24 "Tell the Israelites: In the seventh month, on the first day of the month, you are to have a day of complete rest, commemoration, and joyful shouting [G, o] — a sacred assembly. [p] 25 You must not do any daily work, but you must present a fire offering to the LORD."

26 The LORD again spoke to Moses: 27 "The tenth day of this seventh month is the Day of •Atonement . [q] You are to hold a sacred assembly and practice self-denial; [r, s] you are to present a fire offering to the LORD. 28 On this particular day you are not to do any work, for it is a Day of Atonement to make atonement for yourselves before the LORD your God. 29 If any person does not practice self-denial on this particular day, he must be cut off from his people. 30 I will destroy among his people anyone who does any work on this same day. 31 You are not to do any work. This is a permanent statute throughout your generations wherever you live. 32 It will be a Sabbath of complete rest for you, and you must practice self-denial. You are to observe your Sabbath from the evening of the ninth day of the month until the following evening."

33 The LORD spoke to Moses: 34 "Tell the Israelites: The Festival of Booths [H, t] to the LORD begins on the fifteenth day of this seventh month and continues for seven days. 35 There is to be a sacred assembly on the first day; you are not to do any daily work. 36 You are to present a fire offering to the LORD for seven days. On the eighth day you are to hold a sacred assembly and present a fire offering to the LORD. It is a solemn gathering; [u] you are not to do any daily work.

37 "These are the LORD's appointed times that you are to proclaim as sacred assemblies for presenting fire offerings to the LORD, burnt offerings and grain offerings, sacrifices and drink offerings, each on its designated day. 38 These are in addition to the offerings for the LORD's Sabbaths, your gifts, all your vow offerings, and all your freewill offerings that you give to the LORD.

39 "You are to celebrate the LORD's festival on the fifteenth day of the seventh month for seven days after you have gathered the produce of the land. There will be complete rest on the first day and complete rest on the eighth day. 40 On the first day you are to take the product [v] of majestic trees — palm fronds, [w] boughs of leafy trees, [x] and willows of the brook [y] — and rejoice before the LORD your God for seven days. 41 You are to celebrate it as a festival to the LORD seven days each year. This is a permanent statute for you throughout your generations; you must celebrate it in the seventh month. 42 You are to live in booths [z] for seven days. All the native-born of Israel must live in booths, 43 so that your generations may know that I made the Israelites live in booths when I brought them out of the land of Egypt; I am Yahweh your God.” 44 So Moses declared the LORD’s appointed times to the Israelites.

Tabernacle Oil and Bread

24 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Command the Israelites to bring you pure oil from crushed olives for the light, in order to keep the lamp burning continually. [a] 3 Aaron is to tend it continually from evening until morning before the LORD outside the veil [b] of the •testimony [c] in the tent of meeting. This is a permanent statute throughout your generations. 4 He must continually tend the lamps on the pure gold lampstand in the LORD’s presence. [d]

5 “Take fine flour and bake it into 12 loaves; [e] each loaf is to be made with four quarts. [A] 6 Arrange them in two rows, six to a row, on the pure gold table [f] before the LORD. 7 Place pure frankincense [g] near each row, so that it may serve as a memorial portion [h] for the bread and a fire offering [i] to the LORD. 8 The bread is to be set out before the LORD every Sabbath day as a perpetual covenant [j] obligation on the part of the Israelites. 9 It belongs to Aaron and his sons, who are to eat it in a holy place, for it is the holiest portion for him from the fire offerings to the LORD; this is a permanent rule.”

A Case of Blasphemy

10 Now the son of an Israelite mother and an Egyptian father was [B] among the Israelites. A fight broke out in the camp between the Israelite woman's son and an Israelite man. 11 Her son cursed and blasphemed the Name, [k] and they brought him to Moses. (His mother's name was Shelomith, a daughter of Dibri of the tribe of Dan. [l]) 12 They put him in custody [m] until the LORD's decision [n] could be made clear to them.

13 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 14 "Bring the one who has cursed to the outside of the camp and have all who heard him lay their hands on his head; then have the whole community stone him. [o] 15 And tell the Israelites: If anyone curses his God, he will bear the consequences of his sin. 16 Whoever blasphemes the name of •Yahweh is to be put to death; [p] the whole community must stone him. If he blasphemes the Name, he is to be put to death, whether the foreign resident or the native.

17 "If a man kills anyone, he must be put to death. [q] 18 Whoever kills an animal is to make restitution for it, life for life. 19 If any man inflicts a permanent injury on his neighbor, whatever he has done is to be done to him: 20 fracture for fracture, eye for eye, tooth for tooth. Whatever injury he inflicted on the person, the same is to be inflicted on him. [r] 21 Whoever kills an animal is to make restitution for it, but whoever kills a person is to be put to death. [s] 22 You are to have the same law for the foreign resident and the native, because I am Yahweh your God."

23 After Moses spoke to the Israelites, they brought the one who had cursed to the outside of the camp and stoned him. So the Israelites did as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Sabbath Years and Jubilee

25 The Lord spoke to Moses on Mount Sinai: 2 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When you enter the land I am giving you, the land will observe a Sabbath to the Lord. 3 You may sow your field for six years, and you may prune your vineyard and gather its produce for six years. 4 But there will be a Sabbath of complete rest [a] for the land in the seventh year, a Sabbath to the Lord: you are not to sow your field or prune your vineyard. 5 You are not to reap what grows by itself from your crop, or harvest the grapes of your untended vines. It must be a year of complete rest for the land. 6 Whatever the land produces during the Sabbath year can be food for you — for yourself, your male or female slave, and the hired hand or foreigner who stays with you. 7 All of its growth may serve as food for your livestock and the wild animals in your land.

8 “You are to count seven sabbatical years, seven times seven years, so that the time period of the seven sabbatical years amounts to 49. 9 Then you are to sound a trumpet loudly in the seventh month, on the tenth day of the month; you will sound it throughout your land on the Day of •Atonement . [b] 10 You are to consecrate the fiftieth year and proclaim freedom in the land for all its inhabitants. It will be your Jubilee, [c] when each of you is to return to his property and each of you to his clan. 11 The fiftieth year will be your Jubilee;
you are not to sow, reap what grows by itself, or harvest its untended vines. 12 It is to be holy to you because it is the Jubilee; you may only eat its produce directly from the field.

13 “In this Year of Jubilee, each of you will return to his property. 14 If you make a sale to your neighbor or a purchase from him, do not cheat [d] one another.
15 You are to make the purchase from your neighbor based on the number of years since the last Jubilee. He is to sell to you based on the number of remaining harvest years. 16 You are to increase its price in proportion to a greater amount of years, and decrease its price in proportion to a lesser amount of years, because what he is selling to you is a number of harvests. 17 You are not to cheat one another, but •fear your God, for I am •Yahweh your God.

18 “You are to keep My statutes and ordinances and carefully observe them, so that you may live securely in the land. [e] 19 Then the land will yield its fruit, so that you can eat, be satisfied, and live securely in the land. 20 If you wonder:
‘What will we eat in the seventh year if we don’t sow or gather our produce? ’
21 I will appoint My blessing for you in the sixth year, so that it will produce a crop sufficient for three years. 22 When you sow in the eighth year, you will be eating from the previous harvest. You will be eating this until the ninth year when its harvest comes in.

23 “The land is not to be permanently sold because it is Mine, and you are only foreigners and temporary residents on My land. A, f 24 You are to allow the redemption of any land you occupy. 25 If your brother becomes destitute and sells part of his property, his nearest relative may come and redeem what his brother has sold. 26 If a man has no •family redeemer, but he prospers B and obtains enough to redeem his land, 27 he may calculate the years since its sale, repay the balance to the man he sold it to, and return to his property. 28 But if he cannot obtain enough to repay him, what he sold will remain in the possession of its purchaser until the Year of Jubilee. It is to be released at the Jubilee, so that he may return to his property.

29 “If a man sells a residence in a walled city, his right of redemption will last until a year has passed after its sale; his right of redemption will last a year. 30 If it is not redeemed by the end of a full year, then the house in the walled city is permanently transferred to its purchaser throughout his generations. It is not to be released on the Jubilee. 31 But houses in villages that have no walls around them are to be classified as open fields. The right to redeem such houses stays in effect, and they are to be released at the Jubilee.

32 “Concerning the Levitical cities, g the Levites always have the right to redeem houses in the cities they possess. 33 Whatever property one of the Levites can redeem C — a house sold in a city they possess — must be released at the Jubilee, because the houses in the Levitical cities are their possession among the Israelites. 34 The open pastureland around their cities may not be sold, for it is their permanent possession.

35 “If your brother becomes destitute and cannot sustain himself among D you, you are to support him as a foreigner or temporary resident, so that he can continue to live among you. 36 Do not profit or take interest from him, h but fear your God and let your brother live among you. 37 You are not to lend him your silver with interest or sell him your food for profit. 38 I am Yahweh your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt to give you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

39 “If your brother among you becomes destitute and sells himself to you, i you must not force him to do slave labor. 40 Let him stay with you as a hired hand or temporary resident; he may work for you until the Year of Jubilee.
41 Then he and his children are to be released from you, and he may return to his clan and his ancestral property. j 42 They are not to be sold as slaves, E because they are My slaves that I brought out of the land of Egypt. 43 You are not to rule over them harshly [k] but fear your God. 44 Your male and female slaves are to be from the nations around you; you may purchase male and female slaves. 45 You may also purchase them from the foreigners staying with you, or from their families living among you — those born in your land. These may become your property. 46 You may leave them to your sons after you to inherit as property;

you can make them slaves for life. But concerning your brothers, the Israelites, you must not rule over one another harshly.

47 “If a foreigner or temporary resident living among you prospers, but your brother living near him becomes destitute and sells himself to the foreigner living among you, or to a member of the foreigner’s clan, 48 he has the right of redemption after he has been sold. One of his brothers may redeem him. 49 His uncle or cousin may redeem him, or any of his close relatives from his clan may redeem him. If he prospers, he may redeem himself. 50 The one who purchased him is to calculate the time from the year he sold himself to him until the Year of Jubilee. The price of his sale will be determined by the number of years. It will be set for him like the daily wages of a hired hand. 51 If many years are still left, he must pay his redemption price in proportion to them based on his purchase price. 52 If only a few years remain until the Year of Jubilee, he will calculate and pay the price of his redemption in proportion to his remaining years. 53 He will stay with him like a man hired year by year. A foreign owner is not to rule over him harshly in your sight. 54 If he is not redeemed in any of these ways, he and his children are to be released at the Year of Jubilee. 55 For the Israelites are My slaves. [l] They are My slaves that I brought out of the land of Egypt; I am Yahweh your God.

Covenant Blessings and Discipline

26 “Do not make idols for yourselves, [a] set up a carved image or sacred pillar for yourselves, or place a sculpted stone in your land to bow down to it, for I am •Yahweh your God. 2 You must keep My Sabbaths and revere My sanctuary; [b] I am Yahweh.

3 “If you follow My statutes and faithfully observe My commands, 4 I will give you rain at the right time, and the land will yield its produce, and the trees of the field will bear their fruit. 5 Your threshing will continue until grape harvest, and the grape harvest will continue until sowing time; you will have plenty of food to eat and live securely in your land. [c] 6 I will give peace to the land, and you will lie down with nothing to frighten you. I will remove dangerous animals from the land, and no sword will pass through your land. [d] 7 You will pursue your enemies, and they will fall before you by the sword. 8 Five of you will pursue 100, and 100 of you will pursue 10,000; your enemies will fall before you by the sword. [e]

9 “I will turn to you, make you fruitful and multiply you, and confirm My covenant with you. 10 You will eat the old grain of the previous year and will clear out the old to make room for the new. 11 I will place My residence [A] among you, and I will not reject you. [f] 12 I will walk among you and be your God, and you will be My people. [g] 13 I am Yahweh your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, so that you would no longer be their slaves. I broke the bars of your yoke [h] and enabled you to live in freedom. [B]

14 “But if you do not obey Me and observe all these commands — 15 if you reject My statutes and despise My ordinances, and do not observe all My commands — and break My covenant, 16 then I will do this to you: I will bring terror [i] on you — wasting disease and fever that will cause your eyes to fail and your life to ebb away. You will sow your seed in vain because your enemies will eat it. 17 I will turn [C] against you, so that you will be defeated by your enemies. Those who hate you will rule over you, and you will flee even though no one is pursuing you. [j]

18 “But if after these things you will not obey Me, I will proceed to discipline you seven times for your sins. [k] 19 I will break down your strong pride. I will make your sky like iron and your land like bronze, 20 and your strength will be used up for nothing. [l] Your land will not yield its produce, and the trees of the land will not bear their fruit.

21 “If you act with hostility toward Me and are unwilling to obey Me, I will multiply your plagues seven times for your sins. [m] 22 I will send wild animals against you that will deprive you of your children, ravage your livestock, and reduce your numbers until your roads are deserted. [n]

23 “If in spite of these things you do not accept My discipline, but act with hostility toward Me, 24 then I will act with hostility toward you; I also will strike you seven times for your sins. 25 I will bring a sword against you [o] to execute the vengeance of the covenant. Though you withdraw into your cities, I will send a pestilence among you, and you will be delivered into enemy hands. 26 When I cut off your supply of bread, 10 women will bake your bread in a single oven and ration out your bread by weight, so that you will eat but not be satisfied. [p]

27 “And if in spite of this you do not obey Me but act with hostility toward Me, 28 I will act with furious hostility toward you; I will also discipline you seven times for your sins. 29 You will eat the flesh of your sons; you will eat the flesh of your daughters. [q] 30 I will destroy your •high places, cut down your incense altars, and heap your dead bodies on the lifeless bodies of your idols; [r] I will reject you. 31 I will reduce your cities to ruins and devastate your sanctuaries. I will not smell the pleasing aroma of your sacrifices. [s] 32 I also will devastate the land, so that your enemies who come to live there will be appalled by it. 33 But I will scatter you among the nations, and I will draw a sword to chase after you. So your land will become desolate, and your cities will become ruins.

34 “Then the land will make up for its Sabbath years during the time it lies desolate, while you are in the land of your enemies. At that time the land will rest and make up for its Sabbaths. 35 As long as it lies desolate, it will have the rest it did not have during your Sabbaths when you lived there.

36 “I will put anxiety in the hearts of those of you who survive in the lands of their enemies. The sound of a wind-driven leaf will put them to flight, and they will flee as one flees from a sword, and fall though no one is pursuing them. 37 They will stumble over one another as if fleeing from a sword though no one is pursuing them. You will not be able to stand against your enemies. 38 You will perish among the nations; the land of your enemies will devour you. 39 Those [D] who survive in the lands of your enemies will waste away because of their sin; they will also waste away because of their fathers’ sins along with theirs.

40 “But if they will confess their sin and the sin of their fathers — their unfaithfulness that they practiced against Me, and how they acted with hostility toward Me, 41 and I acted with hostility toward them and brought them into the land of their enemies — and if their uncircumcised hearts will be humbled, [t] and if they will pay the penalty for their sin, 42 then I will remember My covenant with Jacob. I will also remember My covenant with Isaac and My covenant with Abraham, and I will remember the land. 43 For the land abandoned by them will make up for its Sabbaths by lying desolate without the people, while they pay the penalty for their sin, because they rejected My ordinances and abhorred My statutes. 44 Yet in spite of this, while they are in the land of their enemies, I will not reject or abhor them so as to destroy them and break My covenant with them, since I am Yahweh their God. u 45 For their sake I will remember the covenant with their fathers, whom I brought out of the land of Egypt in the sight of the nations to be their God; I am Yahweh.”

46 These are the statutes, ordinances, and laws the LORD established between Himself and the Israelites through Moses on Mount Sinai.

Funding the Sanctuary

27 The Lord spoke to Moses: 2 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When someone makes a special vow [a] to the Lord that involves the assessment of people, 3 if the assessment concerns a male from 20 to 60 years old, your assessment is 50 silver •shekels [b] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel. [c] 4 If the person is a female, your assessment is 30 shekels. [d] 5 If the person is from five to 20 years old, your assessment for a male is 20 shekels [e] and for a female 10 shekels. 6 If the person is from one month to five years old, your assessment for a male is five silver shekels, [f] and for a female your assessment is three shekels of silver. 7 If the person is 60 years or more, your assessment is 15 shekels for a male and 10 shekels for a female. 8 But if one is too poor to pay the assessment, he must present the person before the priest and the priest will set a value for him. The priest will set a value for him according to what the one making the vow can afford.

9 “If the vow involves one of the animals that may be brought as an offering to the Lord, any of these he gives to the Lord will be holy. 10 He may not replace it or make a substitution for it, either good for bad, or bad for good. [g] But if he does substitute one animal for another, both that animal and its substitute will be holy.

11 “If the vow involves any of the •unclean animals that may not be brought as an offering to the Lord, the animal must be presented before the priest. 12 The priest will set its value, whether high or low; the price will be set as the priest makes the assessment for you. 13 If the one who brought it decides to redeem it, he must add a fifth to the [A] assessed value. [h]

14 “When a man consecrates his house as holy to the Lord, the priest will assess its value, whether high or low. The price will stand just as the priest assesses it. 15 But if the one who consecrated his house redeems it, he must add a fifth to the [B] assessed value, and it will be his. [i]

16 “If a man consecrates to the Lord any part of a field that he possesses, your assessment of value will be proportional to the seed needed to sow it, at the rate of 50 silver shekels for every five bushels [C] of barley seed. [D] 17 If he consecrates his field during the Year of Jubilee, [j] the price will stand according to your assessment. 18 But if he consecrates his field after the Jubilee, the priest will calculate the price for him in proportion to the years left until the next Year of Jubilee, so that your assessment will be reduced. 19 If the one who consecrated the field decides to redeem it, he must add a fifth to the [E] assessed value, and the field will transfer back to him. 20 But if he does not redeem the field or if he has sold it to another man, it is no longer redeemable. 21 When the field is released in the Jubilee, it will be holy to the LORD like a field permanently set apart; it becomes the priest's property.

22 "If a person consecrates to the LORD a field he has purchased that is not part of his inherited landholding, 23 then the priest will calculate for him the amount of the [F] assessment up to the Year of Jubilee, and the person will pay the assessed value on that day as a holy offering to the LORD. 24 In the Year of Jubilee the field will return to the one he bought it from, [k] the original owner. 25 All your assessed values will be measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, 20 gerahs to the shekel. [l]

26 "But no one can consecrate a firstborn of the livestock, whether an animal from the herd or flock, to the LORD, because a firstborn already belongs to the LORD. [m] 27 If it is one of the unclean livestock, it must be ransomed according to your assessment by adding a fifth of its value to it. If it is not redeemed, it can be sold according to your assessment. [n]

28 "Nothing that a man permanently sets apart to the LORD from all he owns, whether a person, an animal, or his inherited landholding, can be sold or redeemed; everything set apart is especially holy to the LORD. 29 No person who has been set apart for destruction is to be ransomed; he must be put to death. [o]

30 "Every tenth of the land's produce, grain from the soil or fruit from the trees, belongs to the LORD; [p] it is holy to the LORD. 31 If a man decides to redeem any part of this tenth, he must add a fifth to its value. 32 Every tenth animal from the herd or flock, which passes under the shepherd's rod, [q] will be holy to the LORD. 33 He is not to inspect whether it is good or bad, and he is not to make a substitution for it. But if he does make a substitution, both the animal and its substitute will be holy; [r] they cannot be redeemed." [s]

LEVITICUS

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies

Introduction

Jebel Musa, on the Arabian Peninsula, is the traditional location of Mount Sinai, where God delivered the Ten Commandments to Moses.

The book's name comes from the Septuagint (the Greek translation of the Old Testament): "relating to the Levites." This third section of the Pentateuch deals primarily with the duties of the priests and the service of the tabernacle, but it contains other laws as well. Leviticus gives us regulations for worship, laws on ceremonial cleanness, moral laws, and holy days.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Although the book of Leviticus is technically anonymous, the evidence from the Bible and from Jewish and Christian traditions attributes it to the lawgiver, Moses (cp. 18:5 with Rm 10:5). Moses was the chief recipient of God's revelation in the book of Leviticus (1:1; 4:1). Elsewhere, Moses is said to have written down revelation that he received (Ex 24:4; 34:28; Mk 10:4-5; 12:19; Jn 1:45; 5:46). The author of Leviticus was someone well acquainted with the events in the book, and he was knowledgeable of the Sinai Wilderness, making him most likely a firsthand witness.

Background: About one year passed from the time Israel arrived at Sinai until they departed (Ex 19:1; Nm 10:11). During that time, Moses received the covenant from the Lord, erected the tabernacle (Ex 40:17), and received all the instructions in Leviticus and in the early chapters of Numbers. This block of material is the continuous narrative extending from Exodus 19 through Leviticus to Numbers 10:11. Since these events occurred in just one year and yet received the largest amount of space in the books from Exodus through Deuteronomy, Moses showed the special importance of the Sinai revelation to the writing of the Pentateuch. The repeated expression "The Lord spoke to Moses" throughout Leviticus leaves no doubt that its instructions were of divine origin, not the creation of Moses (Lv 1:1; 27:1).

Message and Purpose The message and purpose of Leviticus must be studied in the context of the redemption of Israel from Egypt (Ex 12), the covenant made with Israel (Ex 20-24), and the building of the tent of meeting, or the tabernacle (Ex 25-40). The Lord dwelt among Israel symbolically in the tent of meeting, which stood in the center of the camp's tribal arrangement. In order for the Lord to reside with Israel, it was imperative that the people maintain a holy character and ethical behavior (Lv 11:44-45; 19:2; Dt 23:14; 1Pt 1:15-16). The decrees in Leviticus instructed the people in regulating this holy relationship through atonement and ritual cleansing. The sacrifices, the ordination of the holy priests, the purity laws, and the code for holy living made the benevolence of the Lord a reality through the forgiveness of sin and ceremonial purification. The purpose of Leviticus was to instruct Israel in holiness so that the Lord might abide among them and bless them. Five key words capture the message of Leviticus: Holiness: The chief idea in Leviticus is the holiness of God. The priests were to teach the people to differentiate "between the holy and the common, and the clean and the unclean" (10:10). "Holy" describes special persons (priests), places (tents), or things (offerings) that are captivated by or share in God's holy presence. Thus the holiness of everything and everyone is contingent upon the Holy One who alone is inherently holy. Anything that compromises this exclusive relationship profanes (treats as common) the person or thing and thereby offends God, who is apart and "who sets . . . apart" (makes holy; 22:16).

Clean: "Clean" and "unclean" are ritual terms that pertain to physical substances. Any item that was a departure from its normal state was unclean. This included certain foods, skin diseases, bodily emissions, and contamination. Consequently, rites of purgation ("cleansing") were a feature of daily life and a constant reminder of the inadequacy of the people to maintain their relationship with God apart from His provision.

Sacrifice: The sacrifices were holy gifts presented to the Lord. They also made atonement and provided stipends for the priests and communal meals. The three voluntary offerings were the burnt, grain, and fellowship sacrifices; the required offerings were the sin and restitution offerings. Special, additional instructions for sacrifices applied to special events.

Atonement: The term “to atone, make atonement” (Hb kipper) means “to reconcile two estranged parties”; theologically, God is the aggrieved party and must be appeased by the offender (26:14-45). The Lord provided the means by which the affront could be remedied and forgiven (4:20; 19:22). Genuine remorse and confession of sin were required (5:5; 16:21; 26:40-42), not just ritual performance (Hs 6:6; Mc 6:8; Mt 9:13).

Priests: The Lord appointed only Aaron and his sons as priests to serve in His house (8:30; cp. Ex 28:1,41); the Levites were the priests’ assistants in caring for the tabernacle (Nm 8:13,19,22). It was the priest who made atonement on the guilty person’s behalf (Lv 4:20) as well as for himself (16:6,24). Their role of protecting the holiness of God, the sanctity of the tent, and the Israelite people is illustrated by the intercessory action of Aaron, who “stood between the dead and the living” (Nm 16:48).

Contribution to the Bible Leviticus is often neglected because Christians have misunderstood its message and purpose. This was not true of Jesus, who designated “love your neighbor as yourself” (19:18) as the second greatest commandment (Mt 22:39). The apostle Paul considered these words the summation of the Mosaic commandments (Rm 13:9; Gl 5:14; cp. Jms 2:8). The writer of Hebrews relied on the images of Leviticus in describing the person and role of Jesus Christ: sacrifice, the priesthood, and the Day of Atonement (Heb 4:14-10:18). Studying Leviticus gives us a deeper devotion to Jesus Christ, a stronger worship of God, and a better understanding of daily Christian living.

Structure

Leviticus is primarily a collection of laws, with a little historical narrative. The laws contained in Leviticus can be divided into two groups. First are the commands, or apodictic law. These are both positive commands (“You must . . .”) and negative commands (“You must not . . .”). The second type of law is casuistic law. These are case laws using an example of what to do if such-and-such happened (“If a man . . .”). Some scholars seek to divide the laws further into civil laws, moral laws, and ceremonial laws, but there is no evidence that the Israelites made such a distinction.

Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 The tent of meeting refers to the tabernacle tent erected under Moses' supervision at Sinai (Ex 40), not the temporary tent used only for communication (Ex 33:7). Moses must have stood outside the tent (Ex 40:34-35), although later he with Aaron would enter once again (Lv 9:23). The period from the building of the structure to the departure from Sinai was about 48 days (Ex 40:2; Nm 10:11), which included all the events of Leviticus and the preparations for departure in Nm 1:1-10:10.

1:2 Brings (Hb qarav) an offering (Hb qorban) is technical jargon describing any gift presented to the Lord ("Corban" in Mk 7:11). Livestock (Hb behemah) is the general term for domesticated cattle and sheep, as distinguished from the birds (v. 14).

1:3 The burnt offering (Hb 'olah) is the first of the five regular offerings: burnt, grain, fellowship, sin, and restitution. The first three offerings were voluntary gifts and the last two were required. The burnt offering was for the general (nonspecific) sinfulness of the offerer. The term 'olah means "an ascending" (Hb 'alah; "to ascend"), referring probably to the rising smoke of the burning animal. The burnt offering was also known as the "whole burnt offering" because it was totally consumed on the altar (v. 9), except the hide (7:8), expressing the person's total dedication to God. Since it was so commonly associated with the altar of sacrifice, the altar itself was sometimes called "the altar of burnt offering" (4:7).

He . . . he refers to the layman, not the priests, who are identified as "Aaron's sons" (vv. 5,7,11). The unblemished male from cattle was considered culturally as the most valued and thus appropriate as the most costly offering made to God (22:22-24; Mal 1:13-14; 1Pt 1:19). He may be accepted can also be translated "it may be accepted," indicating the animal, not the offerer (see NIV, NLT, NJB). "Accepted" (Hb ratson) means divine favor, indicating that the person received forgiveness (v. 4).

1:4 By laying his hand on the head, the layperson symbolically transferred guilt or identified with the fate of the victim (16:21). The result was to make atonement (Hb kapper), which meant appeasement (propitiation) with God (Gn 32:20) by removing (expiation) sin and impurities (Day of Atonement, Lv 16:30; 23:28; "propitiation," Rm 3:25; Heb 9:25).

1:5 The offerer himself slit the bull's throat (2Kg 10:7; Talmud), and the priest sprinkled the blood . . . on all sides of the altar, signifying that the animal's life belonged to God. Before the LORD identified multiple locations: the entrance to the courtyard (4:4,14), the altar area inside the courtyard (4:18), the curtain inside the tent that separated the holy place from the most holy place where the altar of incense stood (4:6-7), and the furniture in the holy place (24:3,6).

1:6 The skinning provided the gift of the hide for the priest (7:8).

1:9 Washing the internal organs and shanks (lower back legs) removed filth, making the sacrifice ritually fit for God. A fire offering is the traditional translation, but it may be generally "a food offering." Pleasing aroma is a frequent expression meaning the Lord accepted the gift (vv. 13,17; Gn 8:21; Ex 29:18); fragrant incense (Ex 30:7; Lv 4:7; 16:12) explains the agreeable smell that masked the odor of the burning corpse. The Greek translation of the OT (osme euodias) also describes the sacrifice of Christ (Eph 5:2) and Christian giving (Php 4:18).

1:11 Sheep were the most common burnt offering. The north side of the altar was especially for the flock (also sin offering, 4:24,29,33), perhaps because less space was needed for them than cattle, which were slaughtered "before the LORD," that is, on the larger east side facing the entrance to the tent of meeting (1:5).

1:14 Easily domesticated, numerous, and affordable for the poor, these two species of birds were common offerings (5:7; 12:8; 14:21-22; cp. Gn 15:9). Mary offered birds at Jesus' birth for her purification (Lk 2:22-24).

1:15-17 The blood was too meager to be caught in a receptacle; nevertheless, proper disposal (i.e., squeezing it out, Jdg 6:38) was necessary to show that the life belonged to God (Lv 17:10-17). The place for ashes (lit "fat" because of animal fat deposits) was east of the altar; a priest cleaned off the altar each morning and took the ash heap outside the camp to purge the refuse from God's sight (6:10-11).

2:1 By the grain offering (or cereal offering) the worshiper acknowledged God as the source of provision and prosperity. The Hebrew word minchah has the general meaning of gift (cp. Gn 32:13) and could refer to grain or animal offerings (Gn 4:3-5), or "sacrifices" in general (Is 19:21); it has the technical sense of "grain" offering in cultic texts. It was grain derived from wheat that produced a fine, white flour (Ex 29:2). This offering could be offered in raw, cooked, ground (into flour), and baked forms. Typically, it accompanied animal offerings (Lv 7:12-13; 14:20; Nm 28:4-15), but it could be presented independently (Lv 5:11; 7:12-14). For the very poor it was offered in place of a bird offering (5:11). The priests relied largely on grain offerings for their daily sustenance (2:3,10).

Frankincense, a white resin of pleasant fragrance, was widely valued in the ancient world (Mt 2:11). Tabernacle worship required its pure form in the incense for anointing (Ex 30:34) and the bread loaves (Lv 24:7). Although frankincense typically accompanied grain offerings, it was specifically prohibited in cases of offerings for sin and jealousy (5:11; Nm 5:15). Its association with joy may explain its customary use (Sg 3:6; 4:14; Is 60:6; Jr 17:26).

2:2 The memorial portion, given to God, was a representative handful of the treated flour and all of the frankincense (v. 16).

2:3 , 10 What the priests, as consecrated persons (lit "holy of holies," i.e., "especially holy," Ex 30:29), consumed was considered the holiest part (lit "holy of holies"); only a ritually clean priest could eat the holiest part and only in a ritually clean place (probably near the altar).

2:11 Yeast had a corrupting influence and thus could symbolize evil (Mk 8:15; 1Co 5:8). Perhaps honey was prohibited because it was used in pagan rites.

2:13-14 Yeast and honey could be offered as firstfruits although not burned on the altar (23:17). Firstfruits, the first portion of the harvest, were viewed as the choice part that belonged to God as the source of all blessing (Festival of Harvest, 23:10; Ex 23:16; 34:26; 1Co 15:20). The permanent quality of salt indicates the eternality of the relationship between the Lord and His people (Nm 18:19). Fresh heads describes the first ripening sheaves, indicating the best produce (Ex 23:19). The general principle was to give the Lord the first and the best of a person's livelihood (2Co 8:5; 9:7).

3:1 The three kinds of fellowship offering were thanksgiving, votive, and freewill (7:11-21). The fellowship offering signified communion between the worshiper and God (9:18,21; 23:19; Nm 6:18) because it was the only sacrifice in which the worshiper ate the shared meal with the priests (Lv 7:31-35). Guests of the offerer—including his household, Levites, and the poor—were part of the communal meal (Dt 12:7,12,18; 26:12-13; Ps 22:25-26). Shared meals characterized the life of the early church (Ac 2:46). That the daily burnt offering preceded the fellowship offering conveyed the importance of atonement as the basis for fellowship with God (Lv 3:5; 6:12), which Christ provided for the church (Rm 5:1; 1Jn 1:3). Because the fellowship offering required a valuable contribution by the worshiper, it is also vital for fellowship with Christ (Php 3:10; 2Tm 1:8; 1Pt 4:13).

3:3-4 The rationale for restricting the fat is not stated, except that the fat was the prerogative of God (Is 43:24; Ezk 44:7). The fat was considered the best part of an animal (Gn 4:4; 45:18; Is 34:6) and was associated with robust power (2Sm 1:22; Is 10:27). Fat was especially associated with the fellowship offering (1Kg 8:64; 2Ch 7:7). Figuratively, the kidneys conveyed a person's feelings and inner thoughts (often parallels "heart," Ps 73:21), and both the liver and kidneys were vital to physical life (Jb 16:13; Pr 7:23).

3:9 The entire fat tail refers to the broad-tail sheep whose tail was reputed to be a heavy fat organ weighing from five to fifteen pounds (Herodotus; Geikie, ca 1887).

3:11 Identifying the animal sacrifice as a food offering occurs here in connection with the fellowship offering that could be eaten (v. 16; 21:8; Nm 28:2). Since the Hebrews did not conceive of God as fed by the sacrifice (Ps 50:12-13), the offering requires a different explanation, perhaps as a metaphorical allusion to the worshiper sharing in a meal with the Lord.

3:12 The goat is distinguished from the sheep (unlike the burnt offering, 1:10) because of the special feature of the fat in sheep.

3:16 b - 17 Belongs to the LORD applies to the fat that was removed from a sacrifice at the altar (Ezk 44:7) and not necessarily the fat of animals for the common table. The fat of nonsacrificed animals and birds could be eaten but never the blood (Lv 7:22-27; Dt 12:15-16,20-24; 32:14). Permanent statute and wherever you live show that there were no exceptions to the command. On blood, see notes at 17:10-11.

4:2 Sins committed unintentionally (Hb shegagah) are inadvertent transgressions committed through ignorance or neglect, not premeditated, defiant sins. Although all sins are serious, requiring the cost of a substitutionary death, the sins and impurities were atoned for by the sin offering. Compare 5:1-5a for examples of unplanned sins.

4:3 Anointed priest refers to the high priest (6:22; 21:10; Ex 29:7). As the representative of the people before God, his sin—which was probably some inadvertent error in carrying out prescribed rituals—would also impact the purity of the people. A young, unblemished bull refers to its pristine, vital youth, but the Hebrew phrase may also mean a bull taken from the herd—a domesticated specimen. The traditional translation sin offering is better understood as "purification offering" since it involved the ritual removal of impurities and provided forgiveness (Milgrom). The Hebrew noun (chatta'th) is related to the verb meaning "to purify," that is, "to decontaminate" (chitte' ; e.g., Ezk 43:19-23). The sin offering also dealt with the offerer's sin (Lv 4:20; 5:13).

The instructions for the sin offering (4:1-5:13) consisted of two parts: the general instructions (4:1-35) and the appendix naming special circumstances (5:1-13). The sin offering addressed the consequences of sin, which always rendered the sanctuary and its furnishings unclean, meaning that the relationship between the worshiper and God had been impaired, making it unacceptable for the worshiper to access the sanctuary and receive God's forgiveness. The sin offering removed the corrupting effects of sin, which permitted the remorseful sinner not only to receive forgiveness but to have the assurance of acceptance with God. For this reason, the ritual included the application of blood to the sanctuary furnishings, not to the person (4:5-7,16-18,25,30,34).

The importance of the sin offering is validated by its role in the everyday lives of individuals and its use at special times in the community, such as the ordination of Aaron to the priesthood (chap. 8) and significant annual festivals (Passover, Ex 12:11-27; Day of Atonement, Lv 16:3; Booths, Nm 29:16).

The sin offering varied according to the progressive degrees of responsibility: the high priest (Lv 4:3-12), the congregation collectively (vv. 13-21), the ruler (vv. 22-26), and the individual layperson (vv. 27-35). The underlying principle is that although all sin is contaminating, the sins of leadership (priest, king) and the congregation have greater impact than the individual transgressor. The variation in the cost of the sacrifice and the placement of blood on the sanctuary furnishings reflected this same principle. The reason was the infiltration of sin and impurities inside the tent. Thus, the more profound the impact of the sin, the farther into the tent the blood was applied, that is, the closer to the presence of the Lord as symbolized by the ark. In all cases, however, the remaining blood was poured at the base of the altar in the courtyard, symbolizing that the life of the victim belonged to God (vv. 7,18,25,30,34; 5:9). Another distinction was that for the priest's and the congregation's sins, the animal's carcass must be butchered into parts and burned (4:8-12,19-21), while for the leader and individual, a portion of the offering was assigned to the priest, who could eat it as a sign of divine acceptance of the worshiper (5:13; 6:26).

4:4 Lay his hand indicates an identification of the person with the sacrificial animal that served as his substitute (see note at 1:4).

4:6 Seven indicates the thoroughness of the purging; this number occurs also in the accounts of the ordination rite (8:11), purification of lepers (14:7), the Day of Atonement (16:14,19), and the ceremony of the red heifer (Nm 19:4). On before the LORD, see note at 1:5. The veil (Hb paroketh) was the curtain that separated the holy place from the most holy place inside the tent canopy (Ex 26:33). The sin offering on the Day of Atonement had the sprinkling inside the veil before the mercy seat, whereas here the priest could go no farther than in front of the veil. It may be that the veil represented the whole sanctuary (16:16), guaranteeing that the entire tabernacle was thus purged. Another possibility is that the veil represented the mercy seat (Hb kapporeth) of the ark, which the priest could not approach except on the annual Day of Atonement.

4:7 The priest must apply (Hb natan) the blood by smearing rather than sprinkling (Hb nazah) it; the altar of fragrant incense refers to the golden altar before the dividing curtain inside the tent canopy that Aaron lit each morning and evening (Ex 30:7-8). Only priests could offer the incense (2Ch 26:18). The word incense (Hb qetoreth) is related to the Hebrew word that means "to produce smoke by burning up" (qatar) . The altar symbolized intercessory prayer (Ps 141:2; Rv 5:8; 8:3-4). Thus by decontaminating this altar, the prayers of the priest and people could be received by the Lord. The fragrance refers to a unique blend of spices that made a special perfume used in the tabernacle (Ex 30:34-38). Compare its distinctive use on the Day of Atonement (Lv 16:12).

The four horns, one protruding from each of the altar's four corners (Ex 30:1-6; 38:2), conveyed the power of a formidable animal (Dt 33:17) and thus the efficacy (strength, e.g., 1Sm 2:10; Am 3:14) of the altar's purpose. The disposal of the remaining blood at the base of the (courtyard's) altar, around which a trench probably ran (1Kg 18:32), occurred only for the sin offering of the five offerings detailed in Leviticus 1-7, and also during the special ordination rites of Aaron's priesthood (9:9; Ex 29:12). The blood, as the symbol of life, belonged solely to God and could not be used for any other purpose.

4:8-12 For the burning of the fat, compare the fellowship offering (3:3-4,9,16-17). The precise instructions for the bull's parts were necessary since the meat of a sin offering taken from the flock could be eaten by the priest (6:26). Any sin offering whose blood was taken into the tent (6:30), such as prescribed for the priest and the congregation (4:5,16; 16:24), could not be eaten. A distinguishing feature of the sin offering was that the bull's remaining parts were taken to a ceremonially clean place outside the camp (also Day of Atonement, 16:27) where they were burned. But the burnt offering required the burning of the whole animal on the altar (except the hide). The disposal site for the bull's remaining parts had to be ritually clean, unpolluted by unclean persons or defiled by human refuse (13:46; Nm 5:3; Dt 23:10,13). The phrase ash heap occurs only here, describing the place where the remaining parts were burned (6:11-12; Jr 31:40; Ezk 43:21).

4:13 The priest who carried out the offering on his own behalf (16:11) now did so for the congregation. The word errs (Hb shegag) refers to unintended transgressions (cp. v. 2). This sort of sin escaped notice (Hb 'alam), hidden at the time of the trespass, but was perceived later. The priest's sin imposing "guilt" on the congregation (v. 3) may indicate that the congregation's guilt was related to the error committed by the priest, which the assembly obeyed.

4:15 Before the LORD is equivalent to "before the tent of meeting" (v. 14; cp. v. 4). The passage does not specify who slaughtered the sin offering, although the priest did so on the Day of Atonement (16:15).

4:20 This is the first occurrence in Leviticus of the word forgiven (Hb salach; cp. vv. 26,31,35; 5:10,13,16,18; 6:7; 19:22); the Hebrew passive form of the verb implies that it is God alone who can forgive sin.

4:22 A leader (Hb nasi') was a ruler over a tribe (Gn 25:16; Ex 34:31). The expression the LORD his God is often used of a significant leader (Moses, Ex 32:11; king, Dt 17:18-19; priest and Levite, Dt 18:6-7).

4:24 The burnt offering was slaughtered north of the altar (see note at 1:11). The declaration that it is a sin offering was a reminder that this rite should not be confused with the burnt offering.

4:25 The blood remained outside the tent and was applied to the courtyard's altar of burnt offering for its purgation (Ex 29:38-42; on the altar's construction, see Ex 27:1-8). On horns of the altar, see note at verse 7.

4:27-35 The individual was permitted to offer a female goat or female sheep.

4:27 Common people renders (lit) "people of the land," meaning anyone who was not the high priest or an official.

4:31 Divine acceptance shown by the catchphrase pleasing aroma occurs only here in chapter 4, and it is assumed for the previous procedures for the sin offering (see note at 1:9).

5:1-13 The remaining instructions for the sin offering provide four case examples (vv. 1-4) and the ritual procedure required (vv. 5-6), including special directives for the poor (vv. 5-13).

5:1-4 The four cases involve those who failed to testify in court (v. 1); those who became unclean through contact with an unclean animal (v. 2) or an unclean person (v. 3); and those who uttered an oath rashly (v. 4). The first and fourth of these cases of sin pertained to an oath, and the second and third cases regarded ceremonial uncleanness. One suggestion for why these four cases are treated as a separate category is that the person remained in his guilt for a prolonged time before he confessed (Milgrom, 1:310-13).

5:1 A public call to testify (lit "voice of an oath") indicates a judicial matter in which formal testimony is requested of those who have knowledge to contribute to a court proceeding. Typically, with an oath came a divine curse against someone who failed in his oath; in this case, the implied curse was that the person's failure made him answerable to God (Pr 29:24). The sinner felt guilty and he openly confessed his sin (Lv 5:5); this indicates that he had genuine remorse. Precisely why he failed to testify was left open to a number of possible scenarios, including complicity in the crime, neglect, or forgetfulness. The absence of the qualification "unintentional" (cp. 4:2) in the verse may mean that the sin could have been deliberate. The sin, however, could qualify for purging since the wrong was not as severe as the crime of bearing false witness and since the person showed remorse.

SACRIFICIAL SYSTEM

Name	Reference	Elements	Significance
Burnt Offering	Lv 1; 6:8-13	Bull, ram, male goat, male dove, or young pigeon without blemish. (Always male animals, but species of animal varied according to individual's economic status.)	Voluntary. Signifies propitiation for sin and complete surrender, devotion, and commitment to God.
Grain Offering. Also called Meal or Tribute Offering	Lv 2; 6:14-23	Grain, flour, or bread (always unleavened) made with olive oil and salt; or incense.	Voluntary. Signifies thanksgiving for firstfruits.
Fellowship Offering. Also called Peace Offering, which includes: (1) Thank Offering, (2) Vow Offering, and (3) Freewill Offering	(1) Lv 3; 7:11-36; 22:17-30; 27	Any animal without blemish. (Species of animal varied according to individual's economic status.) (1) Can be grain offering.	Voluntary. Symbolizes fellowship with God. (1) Signifies thankfulness for a specific blessing; (2) offers a ritual expression of a vow; and (3) symbolizes general thankfulness (to be brought to one of three required religious services).
Sin Offering	Lv 4:1-5:13; 6:24-30; 12:6-8	Male or female animal without blemish—as follows: bull for high priest or congregation; male goat for king; female goat or lamb for common person; dove or pigeon for slightly poor; tenth of an ephah of flour for the very poor.	Mandatory. Made by one who had sinned unintentionally or was unclean in order to attain purification.
Guilt Offering	Lv 5:14-6:7; 7:1-6; 14:12-18	Ram or lamb without blemish.	Mandatory. Made by a person who had either deprived another of his rights or had desecrated something holy. Made by lepers for purification.

5:2 The possibility of touching an unclean creature was always a threat

(11:24-28,35-40), and therefore it was common that a person might forget it or postpone the purification rite. For the unclean swarming creature, see the specifics in chapter 11.

5:3 For the purity laws that designate human uncleanness, see chapters 12-15; 17:15-16; 18:19; cp. 1Sm 20:26; Ezk 22:10.

5:4 Rashly (Hb bata') describes hurtful, hastily spoken words (Ps 106:33; Pr 12:18); here it indicates a careless oath, made regardless of whether it was virtuous or not. The oath was forgotten; it either could not be or should not be realized. Typically, an unfulfilled oath included a divine punishment. Even failure to fulfill an oath with an evil purpose resulted in personal guilt, because God required His people to speak truthful words, just as He is truthful (2Sm 22:31; Is 40:8; Rm 3:4). Because of the seriousness of this sin, oaths should be made only after careful thought (Nm 30:2; Dt 23:21-22; Ec 5:4-5).

5:5-6 Two measures were required of the offender for any of these four crimes. The root word for confess (Hb yadah) can also mean to "praise aloud" (Ps 7:17), indicating that confession involved declaring one's sin publicly (Lv 16:21; 26:40; Nm 5:6-7; 1Jn 1:9). The restitution (Hb 'asham) compensation was an animal offering; the word can mean "guilt" (4:13). It is the word for "the restitution offering" (traditionally "guilt" or "trespass" offering) in 5:14-6:7.

5:7 On birds as a substitute offering, see note at 1:14.

5:8 Two birds were necessary since the regular sin offering required two acts (4:6-10): (1) the disposal of the blood and (2) the burning of its internal organs and fat. The sin offering granted cleansing and acceptance with God, which was necessary before the burnt offering (indicating devotion) was appropriate.

5:11 Although the sin offering presented by the very poor was similar to the grain offering by the use of wheat flour, it is identified as a sin offering, not a grain offering ("a fire offering," 2:16). Oil and incense that characterized the grain offering (see note at 2:1) were omitted from the sin offering since these elements signified the joy of worship. The amount of flour was small enough that the very poor could afford it. Rich (e.g., a leader) and poor alike were guilty of sin, but by God's gracious provision, all could be purified.

5:12 The burning of the memorial portion (cp. 2:2) corresponded to the burning of the sacrificial animal's entrails in the regular offering procedure.

5:13 The remainder of the flour customarily belonged to the officiating priest (cp. 6:26); although this was a minimal amount, its consumption by the priest symbolized to the poor that his offering had been accepted by God and that he had received forgiveness. It was the grace of the Lord, not the value of the offering, that procured forgiveness.

5:14-6 : 7 The restitution offering (5:15), traditionally translated "trespass" or

"guilt" offering, remedied the sins defrauding God's "holy things" (5:14-19) or defrauding a person, which involved offending the Lord through a false oath (6:1-7). This offering addressed the damage of depriving someone of his rightful due, and thus monetary reparations were required. The word "restitution" (Hb 'asham) refers to the crime (6:5,7, "guilt") as well as the offering (6:6, "restitution offering"). The precise shade of meaning for the word "guilt" is uncertain, meaning either the fact of guilt or the feelings of guilt.

The offering involved an assessment by the priest of the damages plus a surcharge payment of 20 percent. The restitution ritual varied for compensating damages against God and against a person. In addition to those listed here, the offering was required for the purification of a leper (14:12), payment for a sexual crime against a slave woman (19:20), and the purification ritual of a Nazirite (Nm 6:12).

5:15 The term offends (Hb ma'al) means "acts treacherously," which can describe sacrilege against God (Jos 7:1) or betrayal of another person (Nm 5:6). On sins committed unintentionally, see note at 4:2. Holy things refer broadly to any of those things that were consecrated to the Lord, such as unlawfully eating food dedicated to the Lord (22:14) and a Nazirite who became defiled (Nm 6:9-12). The ritual required compensation to the LORD by bringing the sacrificial animal to His representative, the priest. The ritual was like the sin offering (4:1-5:13; 7:7). The offender slaughtered the sacrificial animal at the main altar; the priest sprinkled blood on all its sides and burned up the fat, leaving the meat for the officiating priest to eat (7:2-7). The restitution offering included additional steps. The offender had to pay back for the damages, as evaluated by the priest (27:12), according to the standard sanctuary shekel (27:3), with an additional 20 percent charge (5:16).

5:16 The payment was to the priest since the offense was against the Lord. On the word forgiven, see note at 4:20.

5:17 The second case was a transgression in which the person had desecrated something holy (without knowing it). This distinguished the restitution offering from the sin offering, which described an offender who later came to realize his crime (4:2,22,27).

5:19 Before the LORD here means "against the Lord."

6:1 The third case was a breach of trust that involved the misappropriation of another person's property. Since it most likely involved an oath in the Lord's name, the crime also ultimately offended the Lord. If the defrauded person was dead and a relative could not be repaid, then the priest as the representative of God received the compensation (Nm 5:5-10). Sin against a neighbor was considered a sin against the Lord (Ex 20:16; Lv 19:18; Mt 22:39).

6:2-3 Six examples are listed: the illegal withholding of another's property received through (1) a deposit given for safekeeping; (2) an investment made in a business; (3) theft; (4) property falsely acquired through defrauding a neighbor; (5) keeping lost property; and (6) swearing against a neighbor falsely.

6:5 On the day shows the immediate effect of the guilty conscience of the offender whose restitution demonstrated genuine remorse. Numbers 5:7 requires the offender to confess his sin.

6:7 The Suffering Servant, our Lord Jesus Christ, was the ultimate "restitution offering" (Is 53:10) that provided full forgiveness. Because of sin against the Lord and their neighbors, people have a debt to God, but Jesus has made the ransom payment (Mk 10:45). Restitution must precede the act of worship (Mt 5:23-26).

6:8-7 : 38 The previous descriptions of the five offerings were addressed primarily to everyday Israelites, but these regulations are directed primarily to the priests. Also, instructions on the procedure for the restitution offering appear for the first time (7:1-7).

6:8-13 On the burnt offering, see note at 1:3.

6:9 The daily burnt offering (Ex 29:42-43; Nm 28:3,6,10), known as the tamid ("continually," Lv 6:13) offering, provided for the meat to roast all night until morning; the phrase kept burning describes the perpetual flame on the altar (vv. 12-13). The eternal flame came from the Lord (see note at 9:24), indicating perpetual cleansing and intercession.

6:10-11 Special holy garments were required of the priest (Ex 28:42-43) when handling the ashes in the sacred courtyard. Other clothes were appropriate since the priest left the sacred precinct; yet, even outside, the ashes were to remain in a ceremonially clean place, or the designated "ash heap" (4:12).

6:14-23 This passage probably describes the layperson's private grain offering, although it may refer to the daily grain offering of Israel presented by the priest that accompanied the daily burnt offering. On the private grain offering, see 2:1-16 and note at 2:1; on the daily offering, compare Ex 29:40-41; Nm 28:4-8.

6:14 The word law (Hb torah) can mean "instruction."

6:15 On the memorial portion, see note at 2:2.

6:16-17 Only the priests were qualified to eat the remainder of the sacrifice, which they ate in the courtyard (2:11). In the NT, the same principle applied to Christian leaders who received their livelihood from the gifts of the parishioners (1Co 9:14; 1Tm 5:17-18).

6:17 Especially holy (Hb qodesh qadashim) refers to the offerings from which the priests received their sustenance (vv. 25-26; 2:3; 7:1,6; Nm 18:8-10);

therefore, these sacrifices could only be consumed in the sanctuary courtyard.

6:18 The permanent portion identified this food as one of many divine gifts for the service of the priests (v. 29; 7:6,34; 24:9; Nm 18). Anything . . . will become holy describes the resulting state of someone who handled the grain or meat (in the case of an animal offering) or something that came into contact with it (for other occasions, see Ex 29:37; Nm 16:37-38; cp. the opposite state, Lv 11:24 and see note at Hg 2:13).

6:19-23 The daily grain offering of the high priest had its beginning with the ordination service of Aaron and his sons (8:1-8; Ex 29:1-9).

6:20 The amount corresponded to the daily grain offering of Israel (Ex 29:40; Nm 28:5) and the sin offering of the very poor (Lv 5:11). It was offered twice per day by the high priest.

6:22-23 The successor to Aaron as high priest would make the offering at the altar. The burning of the entire offering indicated that the priest could not benefit from the offering made for himself; this was a perpetual reminder to the priest and congregation that he must be dedicated totally to the Lord. These twice-daily offerings contrast with the high priesthood of Jesus, who offered the perfect sacrifice of Himself for all time (Heb 7:27).

6:24-30 The purpose of this segment was to protect the holiness of the offering and to warn those who might desecrate the meat through unlawful consumption. On the sin offering, see chapter 4.

6:25 Most holy (or “especially holy”; see v. 29) indicates that the priest was the recipient of the meat. The place for slaughter of the sacrificial animal must be on the north side of the altar, just as with animals from the flock (1:11; 4:24,29,33).

6:26 The officiating priest must consume the meat, showing divine acceptance of the gift, but he could share it with other priests (v. 29; see note at v. 30). The location was in the courtyard of the tent of meeting (cp. v. 16), meaning that the meat was not taken home for family members to eat.

6:27 Since this offering was holy, anything the meat touched would become holy. The priest became holy through contact with the sacrifice. Special cautions were in order for the animal’s disposal since it was for the forgiveness of sin. Inevitably, blood splattered on the priest’s clothes when he sprinkled the blood on the altar (4:6,17; 5:9; 16:14-15,19); the cleaning of the garments must be in a holy place, which was inside the courtyard. On the blood of Christ, see 1Pt 1:19 and note there.

6:28 Since a clay pot used in this sacrifice was made of porous material that absorbed the animal’s blood, it could not be used again, but a bronze pot could be scrubbed clean and reused.

6:30 The exception to the priestly consumption of the offering was that a priest could not benefit from a sin offering given for himself. When the priest took the blood inside the sacred tent, or the holy place, that was the sin offering to atone for the sins of the priest and the congregation (cp. 4:5,16). The animal was therefore burned up on the ash heap (4:12,21).

7:1 On especially holy, see note at 6:25.

7:2 The blood sprinkled on all sides of the altar was also part of the rituals for the burnt and fellowship offerings (1:11; 3:2,8,13) but not the sin offering (see note at 6:25).

7:3-7 These instructions are similar to those for the sin offering (4:1-35; 6:25-30).

7:8 The gift of the hide to the officiating priest of the burnt offering is new information, not mentioned in chapter 1; the skin of the sin offering was burned (4:11).

7:9-10 The officiating priest received his due, but provision of grain was designated for all the priests, whether they officiated at offerings or not. This included priests with physical defects (2:3; 6:18,29; 22:21-22).

7:11-21 Three subtypes made up the fellowship sacrifice: thanksgiving (vv. 12-15), vow, and freewill offerings (vv. 16-18). Since the fellowship offering was voluntary and it was shared with family and guests, the offering demonstrated the generosity of the giver, who made his offering as an expression of praise. On the fellowship sacrifice, see chapter 3.

7:12-13 Thanksgiving (Hb todah) offerings were typically associated with a song of joy (Neh 12:27; Ps 42:4; 50:14; 69:30; 100:1; 116:17). This was the Israelite's response to answered prayer and a proclamation to others of God's goodness; the worshiper in similar fashion was generous toward others by sharing his meal with guests. A grain offering of three bread products accompanied the thanksgiving animal (chap. 3). One of the cakes had to be made of yeast (leavened bread), a departure from the typical practice. The inclusion of yeast was appropriate since this sacrifice was an offering of joy.

7:14 The bread offering belonged to the officiating priest of the blood sacrifice who represented its acceptance by the Lord. Contribution (Hb terumah), traditionally known as the "heave offering," was not necessarily lifted up in the ritual. It is related to the word "to remove" (Hb herim), which describes a dedicatory portion that was set aside especially for the Lord (2:9; 6:15). It probably means a dedicated "gift" made to the Lord.

7:15 Eating the offering on the day he offers it showed its special holiness; any delay removed the offering from the act of sacrifice and increased the possibility of its defilement. The participants in the communal meal witnessed the immediate acceptance of the offering by the Lord through eating the freshly roasted meat.

7:16-17 The vow offering was a grateful response to the completion of a vow, and the freewill offering was a general expression of joyful thanksgiving by the worshiper. The freewill gift was often given in conjunction with the establishment of community worship (Ex 35:29; Nm 29:39; 1Ch 29:6; Ezr 2:68). The psalmist depicted them as offerings of praise (Ps 54:6; 119:108).

7:18 The word credited (Hb chashav) refers to the act of counting or evaluating (25:27). If the meat was not eaten or burned up within the required time, the offering was repulsive, meaning tainted and desecrated (19:7; Ezk 4:14).

7:19 The general principle regarding the purity of the meat was the threat of defilement through contact. The clean must eat only clean meat, or the consequences were severe.

7:20-21 If the person who ate this sacrifice was ceremonially unclean, he was cut off, which meant either excommunicated from worship (22:3) or premature death by the intervention of God (17:4). This stern warning was given because of the communal nature of the fellowship offerings. First Corinthians 11:27-32 contains a similar warning against those who took the Lord's Supper unworthily. The categories of defilement are human . . . animal, and detestable creature (Hb sheqets), which is the same term that designated unclean food (11:10; 20:25) or an idol (Dt 7:26).

7:22-27 An offering's fat and blood belonged to the Lord, and they could not be eaten (3:17; 17:6). The fat was the best portion, and the blood represented the life of the animal that had been surrendered to God. The blood was to be properly drained from the sacrifice before the meat was eaten (Dt 12:23; cp. Ac 15:29).

7:24 Animal fat that came from a source other than a sacrifice could be used for household purposes (e.g., oil), but the blood from an animal could never be eaten (3:16-17; 17:13).

7:26 Wherever you live refers to any domestic dwelling place, setting apart the people's homes from the sanctuary (3:17; 23:3,21; Ex 12:20; Nm 35:29).

7:28-36 After detailing the procedure about the laity and the disposal of the bread and meat, the passage focuses on the portions of the fellowship offering presented to the Lord—that which belonged to the priests.

7:30-31 His own hands refers to the individual layperson, emphasizing that the gift came voluntarily from the owner. Since the fat belonged to the Lord, it must be burned up, and the breast was given to the priests collectively, symbolizing that the sacrifice had been accepted by the Lord. The expression waved as a presentation offering, traditionally known as the "wave offering," describes the (Hb) tenuphah offering (v. 34; 8:27; 9:21; 10:14-15; Ex 29:24; 35:22). Rather than waving the offering, the worshiper presented it as a dedicatory gift ("elevation offering") to the Lord. This symbolized the transfer of the gift portion from the owner's possession (Milgrom, 1:475).

7:32-33 The officiating priest received the right thigh (cp. Nm 18:18-19) as a contribution (Hb terumah; see note at v. 14). The breast and thigh were meaty portions that provided a regular stipend for the priestly families, showing the generosity of the Lord. The owner first burned the fat on the altar to the Lord. Then the owner apportioned the meat as a gift from the Lord to His servants, His priests.

7:35-36 The distribution of portions of offerings to the priests began with the ordination of Aaron and his sons (8:25-28; Ex 29:22-26).

7:37-38 This summary statement points back to the setting described in 1:1.

8:2 Take Aaron begins the installation service that was prescribed in Exodus 29. Just as Aaron was a mediator for the nation, Israel was to function as priest to the nations (Ex 19:5-6). Christians serve as witnesses to the priesthood of the perfect high priest, Jesus (Heb 7:1-28; 1Pt 2:5,9).

8:3 The service was a public installation to assure the community of the legitimacy of the Aaronic priesthood.

8:6 Aaron underwent a ceremonial washing to show the moral purity required of priests (1Pt 3:21).

8:7-9 The outfitting of the priests in sacred garments gave them "glory and beauty" in the eyes of the congregation (Ex 28:2,40). Although the brightly colored garments symbolized the mediation of the nation in the presence of the Lord, the priesthood of Jesus is not accompanied by a dress code; His mediation is in His personhood as the perfect God-man who reigns with the Father (1Tm 2:5-6; Heb 1:4; 4:14; 6:20).

8:10-13 The holiness of God demanded a consecration of the place, items, and persons who ministered before the Lord. This was satisfied by Christ through His perfect offering and as the perfect offerer (Heb 7:26; 9:11-12). Christians are anointed by a spiritual anointing (2Co 1:21-22; 1Jn 2:20). All its utensils refers to the items that enabled the carrying out of the offerings, such as forks, firepans, and the tabernacle furniture (Ex 27:3).

8:14-17 The priests made atonement for their own sins before they could mediate for the people. The death of an animal was necessary, but this could not take away the sins of the people (Heb 5:3; 9:22; 10:4). The death of Jesus Christ alone achieved complete atonement (2Co 5:21; Col 1:20). The High Priest Jesus had no need to make atonement for His own sins since He was without sin (Heb

4:15; 5:9-10; 7:26-27; 10:11-12).

8:18-21 The complete incineration of the ram indicated the total dedication of the priests to the Lord's service.

8:22-30 The application of the blood from the "ram of ordination" to the priests' extremities symbolized the total cleansing of the priests. The ear indicated hearing the confessions of the people, the hand represented the touching and handling of the offerings, and the foot represented the holy courtyard and tent in which they served.

8:25-29 Moses placed the unleavened bread in the hands of Aaron and his sons to lift it up as a gesture of presentation to the Lord. Moses retrieved the presentation offering and burned it on the altar that was still smoking from the incineration of the first ram offering. Moses took the breast for himself as the officiating priest and made it his presentation offering (7:31).

8:30 The Hebrew term for consecrated (Hb qaddesh) refers to select persons, places, or things that were designated exclusively for the Lord's service (Ex 29:21; Heb 10:22). The public nature of this rite gave the congregation confidence in the effectiveness of the Aaronic household. Christians can have greater confidence in their acceptance by the Lord through Jesus Christ (Eph 3:12).

8:31-32 The ordination meal was also public and was consumed by the priests to indicate the divine approval of their offerings and to symbolize their fellowship with the Lord. To avoid any polluting effect and to prevent its consumption by an unlawful person, the remainder of the meal was burned up on the same day (7:15).

8:33-36 The number seven symbolized the completion of the ritual's purpose. Since the ordination rite was about consecration, the priests could not leave the sacred grounds during the ordination week. Although the priests enjoyed the privileges of service, the gravity of their responsibility put them at risk if they offended the holiness of God (10:1-2; 1Sm 2:12-17). Christian leaders, whether lay or clergy, have a special accountability before the Lord and the church (1Tm 1:7; 4:14-16; 2Tm 1:6; Jms 3:1).

9:1-24 Verses 6 and 23 are the only ones in Leviticus that include the word "glory." The purpose of the inaugural act of worship was to recognize the presence of the Lord among His people, symbolized by the fiery glory of the Lord in the tent of meeting. This exhibition gave the congregation assurance of His favor. Christians can have confidence in the acceptance of their worship through the certainty of Christ's cleansing blood that makes full atonement. The call to worship (vv. 1-6) was followed by the ritual cleansing of the priests (vv. 7-14) and of the people (vv. 15-21). The conclusion was the act of worship (vv.

9:1 On the eighth day after the seven days of ordination (8:33; Ex 29:35), the divine call to worship began a new creative act. All the events of this first communal service occurred on this one day. Worship begins at the initiation of the Lord, who directs the proper protocol for acceptable worship. The elders represented the congregation, although the entire congregation approached the tent of meeting (v. 5).

9:2 Aaron and his sons had to present a sin offering (4:1-5:13) and a burnt offering (1:3-17), although they had undergone seven days of consecration. This demonstrated their constant need for atonement before they officiated as mediators.

9:3-5 Aaron's giving directions to the congregation elevated him in their eyes. Four of the five offerings described in chapters 1-7 were called for; the exception, the guilt offering, involved restitution and was a private, individual ceremony. The purpose of the instructions was to prepare for the appearance of the "glory of the Lord" (v. 6). The word "appear" (Hb ra'ah) occurs three times (vv. 4,6,23); the "appearance" was a visible manifestation of the presence of the Lord. This theophany, an outward manifestation of the invisible God, involved a light or fire (Ex 3:2). The fiery presence of the Lord was an echo of God's coming to Moses at Sinai (Ex 19:18), making the portable tent another "Sinai." Christians look to Jesus' incarnation as the presence of the Lord (Jn 1:14). Through His atonement they receive the glory of the Lord by faith (Jn 17:22-24; Rm 8:30; 1Pt 1:7).

9:6 The fullest disclosure of the Lord was the human incarnation of Jesus Christ, whose death and resurrection demonstrated the glory of the LORD (Rm 6:4; Heb 2:9). Christians participate in the glory of the Lord (2Co 4:17; 1Pt 5:10).

9:7-14 After the gathering of the elements of worship, the priests first received the rites of cleansing and dedication.

9:8-11 When Aaron went outside the camp, this was the first time he had left the sanctuary since his seven-day ordination. The incineration of the sacrificial animal demonstrated that the officiating priest could not benefit from the offering made for his own sins (8:17). Another variation from the regular sin offering was that the blood was not taken inside the tent.

9:12-14 No mention is made of the calf's hide (7:8), which apparently was burned up (8:17; 9:11).

9:15-16 By offering a male goat in accordance with the regulation of the sin offering for a leader, the animal represented the elders, and by proxy, the entire community (4:22-23).

9:17-21 The priests continued to represent the entire community by carrying out the grain and fellowship offerings that were typically offered by an individual Israelite. For the procedures of the two offerings, see chapters 2-3.

9:22 When Aaron lifted up his hands, it showed that he invoked the Lord (1Kg 8:22; Ps 28:2). Prayer for blessing was the duty of the priestly order (Dt 10:8; 21:5). On the traditional priestly blessing, see Nm 6:24-26 and notes there.

9:23 The entrance into the tent by Moses and Aaron confirmed the legitimacy of the newly ordained Aaron, who would enter the holy place every day from then on (Ex 29:42-44; 30:7-8). Moses entered the cloud when God descended on Mount Sinai (Ex 24:18; cp. Lk 9:34). His entrance now signaled the imminent presence of the Lord. Christians receive and declare the imminent relationship with God through Christ (2Co 5:18-20; Col 1:20).

9:24 The fiery blast probably came out of the tent from the most holy place and incinerated the remains of the smoldering offerings. The God who revealed Himself at Sinai was now the God of the tent who dwelt in their midst (Ex 24:17; 2Ch 7:3). The Hebrew words for saw (wayyar') and shouted (wayyaronnu) may be a pun on "appeared" (wayyera'; v. 23). The response of the people exhibited their joy and humility (cp. 2Ch 7:1-3). "Shouted" (Hb ranan) means to give a ringing cry aloud (Jr 31:7), and fell facedown (Hb naphal) also describes later reactions to the fiery demonstrations of the Lord (Jdg 13:20; 2Ch 7:3; cp. Nm 16:22; 20:6; Mt 17:6).

10:1 Nadab was the firstborn of Aaron, and presumably Abihu was his second born (Ex 6:23). Firepan (Hb machtah) describes a hand-held censer used to transport live coals from one place to another (16:12; Nm 16:17-18,46). The incense (Hb qetoreth) may have been from the altar of incense (Ex 30:1-10) or from another unnamed source (Nm 16:6,17-18). The location before the LORD may refer to the bronze altar in the courtyard (1:5) or inside the tent in the holy place (4:4). The word unauthorized (Hb zarah) translates the adjective "strange, foreign," meaning that the fire came from some place other than the altar of the sanctuary (16:12; Nm 16:46). The crime of Aaron's sons was not the incense (Ex 30:9) but the fire that came from some place other than the legitimate source.

10:2 The phrase fire came from the LORD and burned is the same Hebrew expression as that in 9:24 (cp. Nm 16:35) in which the fire that consumed the offerings on the altar came from the Lord Himself (the most holy place). It inaugurated the altar's perpetual fire that was to be maintained indefinitely (Lv 6:12-13) by the priests, making it the legitimate source for all future offerings and the burning of incense.

10:3 God's immediate lethal response displayed His holiness to those who are near Me, the officiating priests. The incident especially illustrates the failure of the priests to distinguish between the "holy" and the "common" (v. 10). Reveal My glory parallels "show My holiness," indicating that the display of the fiery glory (9:23-24) exhibited the holy demands of God for proper worship; the objective was to instruct all the people in the holiness of God (v. 11). Aaron's silence reflected his discernment that mourning rites in the sacred sanctuary were inappropriate (v. 6).

10:4 Mishael and Elzaphan were Aaron and Moses' cousins (Ex 6:16-22), making them Levites—and thus responsible for the purity of the sanctuary—but not priests. They could remove the bodies of Nadab and Abihu without offending God (Nm 3:5-10; 18:2-6). Front of the sanctuary describes the courtyard's altar area (v. 18). The Hebrew term for come here (qarav) echoes the same word describing an illicit offering ("presented" in v. 1 and "approach" in 9:7). The priestly function is described as those who are "near" (Hb qarov) God (10:3).

10:6 Eleazar and Ithamar (Ex 28:1) replaced their deceased brothers (Nm 3:4), and Eleazar later succeeded Aaron as high priest (Dt 10:6). Eleazar's descendant Zadok ultimately displaced the priestly family of Abiathar, a descendant of Ithamar (1Kg 2:27, 35). Disheveled hair and torn garments (Gn 37:34) were part of mourning rites (Lv 13:45; 21:10). By desecrating the holy sanctuary through mourning, the priests risked death and bringing guilt on the whole community. If the priests compromised the holiness of God and were disqualified to make atonement, the community would not be protected from divine wrath. Although Aaron and his sons could not mourn, the community (brothers) could fulfill their obligation.

10:7 Priests bearing holy anointing oil (cp. 8:12) would defile themselves if they left the holy precinct for mourning rites during the time of their consecration (21:10-12).

10:8 Only here in Leviticus does Aaron alone receive a direct word from the Lord (cp. Ex 4:27; Nm 18:1,8). God usually addressed Aaron and Moses as a team (Lv 13:1).

10:9 Libations accompanied offerings (23:13; Nm 28:7,14), and through tithes wine was provided the priests (Nm 18:12; Dt 14:23). During their performance of priestly functions, the priests were not allowed to drink wine or beer so they would be clear-headed in making judgments and carrying out their duties in the sanctuary (v. 10). The abuse of alcohol by priests rendered their service useless (Is 28:7ff).

10:10 The assignment for the priests was cultic—distinguishing between the holy and the ordinary—and pedagogical—instructing the congregation in cultic matters (Ezk 22:26). Distinguish (from Hb badal ; "to separate, divide") meant differentiating the distinctive from the commonplace, such as edible animals from prohibited animals (11:47; 20:25). The holy (Hb qodesh) versus the common (Hb chol) refers to anything or anyone that was dedicated to the Lord and His service as opposed to that which was for normal use. Clean (Hb tahor) and unclean (Hb tame') refer to matters pertaining to the physical existence of the people, especially foods (chap. 11; Dt 14) and persons (Lv 12-15; Nm 5:2-4).

10:11 The term teach (Hb yarah) means "to instruct" but it can also mean "to determine" (14:57). The instruction was intended to enable the people to discern the proper conduct in cultic matters and everyday activities. The Levites in general and the priests in particular were to direct the people in the ways commanded by the Lord (Dt 17:9-11; 33:10; Ezk 44:23-24). A statute (Hb choq) was a divine enactment that must be kept (Lv 19:37; 26:46).

10:12 For the portion of the grain offering belonging to the priests, see 2:10; 6:15-18; 7:9-10; 21:22.

10:13 The word portion (Hb choq), meaning that which was owed to him, is the same as "statute" in verse 11. Moses emphasized that the command came from the Lord, not by his authority.

10:14-15 For the breast and thigh belonging to the priestly families, see 7:31-34; Nm 18:18-19; the priestly portion of the fellowship offerings could be eaten in their homes (Lv 22:10-13; Nm 18:11).

10:16-18 Moses complained that Aaron's sons had failed to eat the consecration portions of the sin offering as prescribed by the Lord. By their failure to perform the proper ritual ceremony, the guilt of the community remained. The Hebrew phrase translated inquired (darosh darash) can be rendered "diligently inquired," reflecting the urgency of Moses' concern for proper observance. For instructions on the priestly consumption of the sin offering, see 6:26,29-30.

10:19 Aaron had to determine whether the desecration by Nadab and Abihu made the sin offering portions inappropriate for priestly consumption. Rather than run the risk of defiling the sanctuary further, Aaron chose to burn up the entire goat.

10:20 A wordplay on acceptable (Hb yatav), which describes the divine approval in verse 19, also describes Moses' acceptance of the explanation; Moses accepted the determination of Aaron according to verse 10.

11:1-15 : 33 By observing the purity laws, the Israelites would live and prosper by God's presence and blessing.

11:1-47 This chapter includes two separate listings of clean and unclean creatures (vv. 1-23; vv. 41-45); the identity of many of the animals is uncertain.

If the food laws were observed by the Israelites, the holiness of God would extend from the sanctuary to their homes, ensuring His continued presence.

Although there may have been some hygienic benefit derived from keeping the food laws, the prohibited creatures were not consistently unhealthy for human consumption. More likely, these laws reflected the distinctive types at creation (Gn 1:26) and thereby taught the Israelites that there was an ordained pattern of conformity. The instructions showed the Israelites that they must conform to their creation as a holy people, avoiding assimilation with their pagan neighbors by adopting their domestic habits.

The food laws that once separated the Israelites and the nations are not binding on modern believers (Ac 10:11-16; Col 2:16), but the underlying principle remains true: all that a Christian does must be for the glory of God (1Co 10:31). Consecrated Christian living arises from the inner person who is redeemed, not from physical things (Mk 7:18-23; Rm 14:17-18). Christians must exercise spiritual maturity in choosing food and drink (Rm 14; 1Co 8; 10:23) and in associating with others (1Co 5:11; 2Co 6:14).

11:1 The Lord included Aaron as the recipient of the purity instructions (chaps. 11-15) since they were primarily a priestly responsibility (10:10-11; 13:1; 14:33; 15:1).

11:9-12 The unacceptable sea creatures were designated detestable (Hb sheqets) three times (vv. 10,11,12). Although there is no specific prohibition against touching them or warning of ritual uncleanness by consumption, as "detestable" creatures these prohibitions may be assumed.

11:13-19 These birds may have been outlawed because they are scavengers.

11:24-25 Defilement occurred by touching carcasses or by transporting them. When transporting them, the clothing of the person was defiled by contact and required laundering. All corpses conveyed uncleanness through touch (22:4; Nm 5:2). For consecrated persons, just being in the presence of a dead body resulted in defilement (Lv 21:11; Nm 6:6; Hg 2:13). The duration of uncleanness stretched until sunset, which concluded a day (Dt 22:26; Jos 8:29).

11:27 Four-footed animals that walked on paws (lit "palms"), such as dogs and cats, were considered unclean.

11:29-38 Carcasses of creatures that swarm on the ground (such as insects) conveyed defilement through direct contact or indirectly to persons who handled inanimate things which had already come into contact with the dead creatures. Since a clay pot absorbed the liquid polluted by a carcass, it must be thrown away; food or drink touched secondarily by the contaminated water in the pot was unclean. Two exceptions pertained to water: the water of a reservoir from which a carcass was retrieved remained clean, probably because of the ritual significance of water for purification; and seed already germinated by water was unclean.

11:39-40 Animals that had been killed by wild animals or that had died by natural means—that is, not slaughtered for food—could be eaten, but they still conveyed uncleanness (17:15; they were prohibited for a priest, 22:8). The cleansing rite demanded more of the person who had longer contact with a corpse. This involved the laundering of clothes for those who ate or transported the animal.

11:44-45 Since the Lord had made the Israelites uniquely His by delivering them from the land of Egypt, they must be holy as He is holy (Ex 19:2). It was necessary that the people maintain their ritual cleanness in everyday activities as well as in sanctuary worship. The food offered to the Lord in worship involved the partaking of portions by the priests and the people. For God to continue His presence among the people, they must practice the same measure of holiness in their homes. Since it was inevitable that the people became unclean, they must consecrate themselves by undergoing these cleansing procedures.

11:46-47 The purpose was to distinguish (Hb badal) what could be lawfully consumed; the same root term occurs in 10:10 and means "set apart" in 20:24. The ultimate rationale was theological: because the Lord is holy, the people had to express holiness by their behavior (19:2; 20:7,26).

12:1-8 The newborn child of a mother was not impure, since the male child was circumcised on the eighth day while the mother was in isolation. That circumcision was a part of her duty showed the mother's valued contribution to the community. She was the vehicle of God's blessing of children within the covenant commitment of the Israelites to God (Gn 17). Children were considered a gift from God; the woman was not ritually defiled when she was pregnant. The impurity resulted from blood and fluids that are a part of the birth process (Lv 12:4-5,7). Men also underwent separation and ritual reintegration due to bodily discharges (15:2-18).

The message of these restrictions is that a person's spiritual relationship is more important than physical attributes (Ross, Holiness, 264). Jesus healed a woman who endured constant hemorrhaging, showing His power to cleanse physically and spiritually (Mk 5:25-34). Although the physical body was created good, Christians must subject their physical life to the greater good of the kingdom of God (Rm 12:1; 1Co 6:13; Php 3:19-21). Jesus Christ is the perfect High Priest and pure sacrifice (Heb 7:26). By His blood Christians receive His purity and holiness (Heb 13:12; 1Jn 3:3). This was true also of Mary, the mother of Jesus, whose flow of blood and physical impurities after childbirth symbolized her more serious spiritual defilement that was finally and fully cleansed through the blood of her son, Jesus.

12:2 Although the text does not say that anyone who came into contact with a woman after childbirth became unclean, the parallel instructions about menstruation and any other discharge of blood made this explicit (15:25-30). Her domestic duties would defile the home and members of her family through touch.

12:3 On circumcision, compare Gn 17:10-11; on the eighth day, compare Lk 1:59; 2:21; Php 3:5.

12:5 The rationale for doubling the period of isolation for the birth of a female child was not a matter of gender bias since the purification rite was the same for the male child. Possibly the circumstance of both a mother and a daughter (a future mother) doubled the period of time.

12:6-7 The sin offering is better understood as a "purification offering," since no sin was committed by the mother or child. The mother was in a state of ritual uncleanness because of the discharge of blood.

12:8 The grace of the Lord provided a concession for the poor (5:7,11; cp. Lk 2:22-24); it was the willing spirit of the worshiper that was foremost, not the value of the gift.

13:1-14 : 32 The instructions on physical purity emphasize the holiness of God and the necessity of purity in every aspect of our relationship with Him. In order for God's covenant people to enter the tabernacle—that is, enter into the place for worship and fellowship with Him—their bodies had to be free from skin disease. The priests diagnosed the disease and isolated the sick person. But God in His grace provided for the restoration of the isolated party after healing occurred. A restored person could return to the community of the faithful.

13:1 God addressed both Moses and Aaron in verse 1; 11:1; 14:33; and 15:1 (cp. 10:8).

13:2 The Hebrew word for "skin disease" (tsara'ath) was translated into the Greek as lepra and transliterated as such into Latin. Thus most English translations render the word as "leprosy." The Hebrew word, however, is a generic term that refers to changes in the surface of the human skin and is best translated as a disease on the skin; it can also indicate fungus or mildew (v. 47; 14:34). During the postexilic period, rabbis identified 72 types of skin disease.

13:3-8 Two different types of problems are described here. One can be classified as minor because the disorder was not severe and the isolation was not long, but in the second type, the infinitive absolute in verse 7 indicates that the infection had spread drastically. The ritual period of seven days is predominant in Leviticus (8:33; 12:2; 14:8; 15:13,28, 23:6; 25:4). The number seven and its derivatives occur 176 times in Leviticus. The number seven symbolizes fullness, perfection, or completion. Later rabbis suggested that the person being isolated was banished outside the camp or city, while others suggested that it was in special quarters, as in the case of King Uzziah (1Kg 15:5; 2Ch 26:21).

13:9 , 11, 15 The chronic disease on the skin involved the presence of raw flesh rendering a person unclean. The Hebrew word tsara'ath appears 35 times in the OT, but only six times outside of Leviticus (Dt 24:8; 2Kg 5:3,6-7,27; 2Ch 26:19). A person is pronounced unclean seven times in chapter 13 (vv. 11,15,36,44,46,51,55).

13:25 The skin condition described here could be identified as psoriasis.

13:30 The term scaly outbreak appears only in this pericope of the Bible (vv. 30-37; 14:54). It refers to a skin disease that appeared on a person's head or chin.

13:45-46 The person rendered unclean was relegated to life outside the community until healed. The torn clothes were a sign of mourning, while the crying out was a warning to those who were ceremonially clean. This practice was still observed during Jesus' time, when 10 men with serious skin diseases stood at a distance from the community and were asked by Jesus to show themselves to the priest after He had healed them (Lk 17:11-14).

13:47-59 As with contagious skin diseases, so also with mildew or fungus; no spreadable contamination of fabric or leather was permitted to undermine the ceremonial cleanliness of the community.

14:1-32 God, in His grace, provided for the restoration of the person rendered unclean by a skin disease. The priests did not cure the person affected. They only diagnosed the disease and helped with the religious rituals subsequent to a person's healing. Chapter 14 points to the grace of God, who made provision for the people affected by disease to return to the community of the faithful.

14:3 The examination of the person afflicted with a skin disease had to be done outside the camp in case the disease had not healed completely. The camp was a place of great ritual significance in Leviticus because it was the place where the tent of meeting was located. People or things rendered unclean had to be taken outside the camp—a place where ashes were dumped (4:12,21; 6:11; 8:17; 9:11; 16:27), corpses were buried (10:4-5), illegitimate sacrifices were offered (17:3), blasphemers were executed (24:14,23), and people with skin diseases were banished. Hebrews 13:11-13 declares that Jesus suffered outside the gate.

14:4 Although the person was healed, he had to go through a cleansing ritual that involved animal sacrifice. The scarlet yarn was a woolen yarn colored with a crimson-scarlet dye made from the kermes or cochineal scale insects. The plant known as hyssop had a good absorbing quality, was abundant in Israel, and was associated with purification (Ps 51:7).

14:7 The release of a live bird over the open countryside could be a parallel to the Day of Atonement rite of releasing the scapegoat (16:21-22), or it could represent the releasing of the healed person from the chains of death and being allowed to live freely in the community.

14:10 The healed person was allowed in the camp on the eighth day, which marked a new beginning, and it has special significance in Leviticus. It is generally associated with rest and celebration (vv. 10,23; 9:1; 12:3; 15:14,29; 22:27; 23:36,39).

14:11-13 A restitution offering was necessary because the person afflicted was absent from the community and was separated from God by not being allowed in the sanctuary. This offering was unique in that it was the only blood sacrifice in which the entire animal had to undergo the wave rite (see note at 7:30-31). Because the blood of the lamb was crucial for this offering, a person could not commute this sacrifice with money (1Pt 1:19-20).

14:14 The placing of blood on the healed person's extremities symbolized that his entire being—his ear . . . hand, and foot—must be consecrated to God. The ears were important because people confessed their sin to the priest. The hands and the feet were part of the important rituals performed at the tabernacle (8:23-24).

14:18-20 The priest must also bring a burnt offering in order to make atonement for the person who had been healed. The verb "to atone for" can mean "to wipe away," "to purge," "to purify," or "to make atonement." As a result, the healed person would be pronounced clean and thus forgiven, ready to enter God's presence with confidence. The concept is important to the sacrificial theology of Leviticus because atonement cleansed a person from all sins, known and unknown. The language used affirms that physical impurity was purified while moral impurity had to be forgiven.

14:21-32 In His grace, God provided concessions for the poor (Ex 22:25; 23:11; Dt 15:4).

14:33-53 As with mildew in fabric in 13:47-59, mildew in a house would compromise the ceremonial cleanness of the community and therefore was not allowed. Because it could spread, it was thoroughly eradicated (vv. 43-45). The ceremony for purifying a building with mildew was similar to that for a person with a skin disease, except that there was no restitution offering or sin offering for the building since it only had to be declared clean; it did not have to be prepared for communion with God.

15:2-3 The word body here is a euphemism for the male genitalia. The word discharge occurs only in Leviticus. It probably refers to some chronic infection in men. The adjective unclean is used 25 times in Leviticus, and it can refer to either an ethical or a religious impurity.

15:7-12 In His grace, God made provision for the purification of affected people or objects.

15:8 Spitting was a gesture of extreme contempt, and it pointed not just to the outside uncleanness but to the man's wicked heart.

15:13 The fact that an unclean man could be cured of the discharge points to the fact that the discharge refers to a medical condition.

15:14-15 The sin offering removed the impurity while the burnt offering restored the man to the Israelite community. The animals needed for these offerings are the least costly, two turtledoves or two young pigeons (1:14; 5:11; 12:8; 14:22,30; Lk 2:24).

15:16-18 The phrase emission of semen can refer to a nocturnal ejaculation (vv. 16-17) as well as ejaculation in sexual intercourse (v. 18). This passage does not suggest that God considered sex sinful. Rather, God gave laws to ensure that sex must not be part of the sanctuary rites. These laws were a clear contrast with the ancient Near Eastern religions that portrayed gods and goddesses engaging in sexual relations and their followers imitating them as part of pagan temple worship.

15:19 The word body here is a euphemism for the female genitalia.

15:20 The idea that menstruation rendered a woman unclean was a common conception throughout the ancient Near East. Both the Egyptians and the Persians thought of menstruation as cultic uncleanness.

15:25 This discharge refers to a chronic condition that is not related to menstruation.

15:31 The verb keep comes from the Hebrew root nazar, which means "to refrain, to be a Nazirite." Here it conveys the idea that the Israelites were to refrain from being unclean so they could enter God's sanctuary. Defiling the sanctuary was grounds for the death penalty.

16:1-34 In His mercy and grace, God provided the Day of Atonement as a sacred time in which the high priest cleansed the sanctuary and made atonement for the sins of the people.

16:1 The sanctuary was polluted because of the actions of two of Aaron's sons, Nadab and Abihu (10:1-2). Chapter 16 is in part a response to their sinful actions.

16:2 The holy place refers to the holy of holies (vv. 16-17,20,23,27,33). The mercy seat was the place of atonement and was made of a solid gold slab that covered the ark of the covenant. The Septuagint (LXX) translates this word as "instrument of propitiation." The cloud is not the cloud of smoke from the incense; it is the divine cloud representing God's presence that descended on the tabernacle as a sign that Israel was to make camp (Ex 40:34-35) and that rested on the ark when God spoke to Moses (Ex 25:22; Nm 7:89).

16:4 The high priest wore the garments of an ordinary priest, indicating that he must be humble, free of all pretense. The garments were classified as holy, and thus set apart exclusively for the high priest. The high priest would bathe his body twice (vv. 4,26), and he would wash his hands and feet each time he entered the tabernacle or officiated at the altar (v. 24; Ex 30:19).

16:6 Atonement was made for the high priest and his household before he could bring the sacrifice for the nation. The word "household" refers to family and the line of subsequent high priests.

16:8 Three different interpretations have been proposed for the meaning of azazel, a word that occurs only in chapter 16. The LXX translates it as "the one carrying away evil," from which we got the term "scapegoat." The second view was developed by later rabbis who suggested that azazel means "a rough and difficult place" and that it represented the goat's destination. The third view suggests that the word is the name of a demon that inhabited the desert. Later Jewish interpreters identified azazel with Azael, whom legend identified as the leader of the fallen angels. The first interpretation seems to best fit the context of chapter 16 where the goat is sent away into the wilderness.

16:11 The first phase of purification took place through the blood-sprinkling rituals. The sin offering—for intentional or inadvertent sins—appears first in chapter 4.

16:12-14 The fragrant incense had a very practical purpose since the blood on the mercy seat would produce an unpleasant odor. The incense included spices such as stacte, onycha, and galbanum mixed with pure frankincense (Ex 30:34-35).

16:16 The atoning blood would purify the people of their sin and rebellion. This definitely points toward Christ, whose blood provides for the purification of all sin (Heb 9:24-28).

16:20-28 The second phase of purification occurred through the removal of the scapegoat. The author of Hebrews drew a parallel to this ritual when he affirmed that Christ offered Himself as a sin offering once and for all (Heb 10:10). Jesus is also compared to the scapegoat because He also "suffered outside the gate, so that He might sanctify the people by His own blood" (Heb 13:12). The fact that Jesus took our sins upon Himself is also affirmed in Is 53:5-6; 2Co 5:21; Gl 3:13; and 1Pt 2:24. From a symbolic perspective, when Jesus died on the cross, the curtain that divided the holy of holies from the holy place was torn from top to bottom (Mt 27:51; Mk 15:38; Lk 23:45), signaling access to God by all people through Christ's atoning act on our behalf.

16:29 The Day of Atonement (Hb yom kippur) was an annual ceremony held on the tenth day of Tishri (September/October). Self-denial is usually associated with fasting and prayer (Is 58:3,5). The Targum adds that the people should abstain from "food and drink, from the enjoyment of the baths and anointing, from wearing shoes, and from marital intercourse." Today, yom kippur is generally celebrated as a day of confession of sin and asking for forgiveness. Readings from Leviticus are included in this celebration, one of the most important holy days in Judaism.

17:1-16 This chapter introduces what is known as the Holiness Code, laws that call the people to live holy lives before a holy God.

17:3-4 The verb slaughter is a technical term for all sacrificial slaughter (1:5; 3:8; 4:29,33; 7:2). It does not refer to the killing of animals in general. This was not a command prohibiting nonsacrificial slaughter or hunting (Dt 12:20-25). The seriousness of the offense can be seen in the phrase be cut off, an expression that always refers to the death penalty when used in the context of punishment (vv. 9,10,14; 7:20-21,25,27; 18:29; 19:8; 20:3; 22:3). In broader OT context, to be cut off designated the judgment of a person who offended God or the community of the faithful. The ostracized person was usually removed or expelled, and in extreme cases, killed.

17:7-9 In their wilderness wandering, the Israelites resorted to worshiping goat-demons, which could refer to demons in the form of goats that haunted the wilderness (Is 13:21; 34:14). Unfaithfulness toward Yahweh was often depicted as prostitution, so the reference here does not suggest that the Israelites were worshiping Canaanite fertility gods (Jr 2-3; Ezk 16; 23; Hs 1-3). God in His grace also included foreigners who lived among the covenant people; they had to observe the commandment not to worship other gods (vv. 8,10,12-13,15). The expression burnt offering or a sacrifice (Nm 15:3; Dt 12:6; 1Sm 15:22; 2Kg 5:17; Is 43:23) is a figure of speech called a merism , and it points to all sacrifices. The law's intent was to ban all sacrifices offered to any god other than Yahweh.

17:10 The prohibition against eating blood pertains to both sacrificial and nonsacrificial animals and is mentioned in other parts of the Torah (3:17; 7:26-27; Gn 9:4; Dt 12:16,23-25). The expression I will turn against is literally "I will set My face against." It points to God's decision not just to oppose those who disobey the law, but it suggests that He would destroy those who committed such lawlessness (20:3; 26:17; Ezk 14:8; 15:7).

17:11 The concept that the life was in the blood goes back to creation (Gn 2:7; 7:22). Here Yahweh gave a rationale for the law—that the blood is the life, and God has designed the blood for atonement. Eating blood would profane something that God had sanctified or set apart for the sanctuary. The NT clearly teaches that Jesus' blood serves as atonement for the sin of humanity (Heb 9:24-26).

18:1-30 The ancient Near Eastern world had many pagan practices that included incest, adultery, bestiality, homosexuality, and child sacrifice. God made it clear that the covenant community must not adopt such practices.

18:3 Egypt was known for its licentiousness and for condoning intrafamily practices such as father-daughter, brother-sister, aunt-nephew, and uncle-niece marriages. Canaan was identified with homosexuality (Gn 19:5-8) and bestiality. Seven times Israel is warned not to behave like those living in Canaan (Lv 18:3,24,26-27,29-30). Six times the expression I am Yahweh appears in chapter 18 as the motive for observing the law (vv. 2,4,5,6,21,30). The formula "I am Yahweh your God" appears frequently in the context of God's redeeming Israel from Egypt (11:45; 19:34,36; 23:43; 25:38,55; 26:13,45; Ex 6:7; Nm 15:41). In this context, the formula shows that these statutes were God's commandments and not human conventions.

18:6 The expression close relative (lit "flesh of his flesh") designates all close blood relatives, such as father, mother, brother, sister, son, daughter, and grandchild (vv. 12-13; 20:19; 21:2-3). Sexual intercourse with any close relative —even those who are not specifically mentioned in the list—is prohibited.

18:7 This prohibition is repeated because of the possibility of double incest—with the father and with the mother.

18:9 , 11 Marriage with one's half sister (Gn 20:12) was not prohibited before the Mosaic covenant at Sinai. Brother-sister marriages were commonplace in Egypt, Phoenicia, and pre-Islamic Arabia.

18:12-14 While sexual intercourse between aunts and nephews was forbidden, unions between uncles and nieces were permitted (Jos 15:17; Jdg 1:13). Later, marriages between uncles and nieces were forbidden in both the Qumran (11QT66:16-17) and Christian communities.

18:15 The prohibition of a sexual relationship with one's daughter-in-law extends to a person who is divorced or widowed, even though this practice was common in the ancient Near East.

18:16 John the Baptist used this law to rebuke Herod for marrying his brother's wife (Mt 14:4; Mk 6:18). This law was in effect only if the brother was alive. If the brother died, the law of levirate marriage, which was instituted in Dt 25:5-9, would go into effect.

18:17 Orgies involving a woman and her daughter were classified as depraved, a legal term that was also used for incest (20:14), rape (Jdg 20:6), and prostitution (Lv 19:29; Ezk 16:27). Orgies of any type were prohibited and were seen as paganistic, profane acts.

18:19 Self-control was one of the concepts God was trying to teach His people. Refraining from sex during a woman's menstrual impurity was meant to keep the other person ceremonially clean (15:19-24). The apostle Paul listed self-control as part of the fruit of the Spirit (Gl 5:22-23).

18:20 This prohibition restates the seventh of the Ten Commandments (Ex 20:14; Dt 5:18), and it refers to sexual intercourse with a married or engaged person.

18:21 Child sacrifice practiced as worship of Molech was common among the Canaanites. The name Molech appears five times in Leviticus (v. 21; 20:2,3,4,5), and it refers to the god of the Ammonites. Human sacrifice was practiced in Israel only by corrupt rulers (1Kg 11:7; 2Kg 23:10; Jr 32:35). The expression pass through the fire indicates that the child was probably burned to honor Molech in a pagan ritual. This practice was labeled as profane by God.

18:22 Homosexuality is clearly prohibited throughout the Bible (20:13; Rm 1:27; 1Co 6:9). The Sodomites were destroyed because of their sodomy (Gn 19:5), and the men of Gibeah were destroyed following their homosexual rampage (Jdg 19:22). Male prostitution was practiced as part of a fertility ritual because pagans deified not just gods but sex as well; ironically, male and female shrine prostitutes were called literally "holy ones" (Dt 23:17). Homosexuality is called detestable because it is against God's order of creation and against His laws pertaining to the covenant community. The word occurs 116 times in the OT in contexts addressing idolatry, magic, transvestism, and defective sacrifice.

18:23 Just like homosexuality, bestiality was prohibited in the Bible under all circumstances. This act was classified as a perversion, a violation of the divine order.

18:24-30 The punishment for these detestable things was the death penalty. When the covenant community profaned God's name by following pagan practices, it was not just a mistake, it was a grave sin, an abomination, and something that defiled the community. The fact that the laws of chapter 18 begin and end with the statement I am Yahweh your God shows the seriousness of these laws.

19:1-37 All commandments from the Decalogue are reasserted here. The covenant community must live a holy life demonstrated through worship, integrity, justice, and love.

19:2 This is the only time where God tells Moses to speak directly to the entire Israelite community. The imperative be holy (11:44; 20:7,26) and the reason for the people's holiness—because I, Yahweh your God, am holy—are the main message of this chapter as well as the theme of the entire book of Leviticus. This idea was repeated by Jesus in the Sermon on the Mount when He told His disciples to "be perfect . . . as your heavenly Father is perfect" (Mt 5:48).

19:3 The placement of the mother before the father is unusual in the male-oriented Israelite society. Greek, Syriac, and Aramaic translations reverse the order to harmonize it with the Decalogue.

19:4 The expressions "I am Yahweh" and I am Yahweh your God (vv. 2-4,10-12,14,16,18,25,28,31-32,34,36-37) emphasize that God is the author of these holiness laws as well as the rationale for them.

19:9-10 God in His grace made provision for the poor and the foreign resident. Boaz obeyed this commandment when Ruth was allowed to glean after the reapers (Ru 2:8-9). Jesus repeatedly taught His disciples to care for the poor (Mt 19:21; Mk 12:42-43; Lk 4:18; 6:20; 11:41; 12:33; 14:13).

19:14 The command against abusing the deaf and the blind can be applied concerning any handicapped or disadvantaged people. The imperative you are to fear your God serves as the rationale for the law because, unlike the deaf and the blind, God can see and hear everything we do. Outside the Bible, laws protecting disabled people were conspicuously absent in the ancient Near East.

19:15 The law against acting unjustly is directed not at judges (Dt 1:16; 16:18) but at the people in general, since any Israelite could be a juror and stand in judgment of his neighbor (Ru 4).

19:17 One way to show love for a neighbor is to rebuke him when he does wrong. New Testament leaders were commanded to rebuke those whom they served (1Tm 5:20; 2Tm 4:2; Ti 1:9,13; 2:15).

19:18 The importance of the command to love your neighbor as yourself was affirmed by Jesus and the apostle Paul; it also shows continuity between the OT and the NT (Mt 22:39-40; Rm 13:9).

19:20-22 Having sexual intercourse with a woman who is a slave was a sin, and this is why a restitution offering had to be made, though the death penalty was not required. The man alone was guilty since the female slave was not required to bring the guilt offering. This law protected vulnerable female slaves who did not have the social power and economic clout that free men had.

19:23-25 This law dealing with horticultural holiness was intended for the benefit of the Israelites. The prohibition from eating the fruit of a newly planted fruit tree may have had to do with the fact that the fruit did not taste good in the first three years. Because the firstfruits belonged to God (Nm 18:12-17), the fruit of the fourth year was consecrated to God as a praise offering in which the covenant community recognized that God was the One who gave them the good things the earth produced. Following this law would result in an increase of production.

19:26 Divination involved trying to determine the future by such devices as casting lots, using arrows, or looking at liquids or entrails. Sorcery involved interpreting natural phenomena such as clouds or stars, or communicating with the spirits of the dead. Both of these practices were common in the ancient Near East, but they were denounced in the Bible because they were an attempt to undermine God's sovereignty. God, when He chose to, revealed the future through His servants, the prophets.

19:27 In Israel hair was the sign of a person's strength and beauty. To this day orthodox Jews keep this law because the beard was a symbol of manhood. To mar the edge of the beard may have been a pagan practice that Israel was forbidden to emulate. In later Israelite culture, shaving was considered disgraceful (2Sm 10:4-5; Is 7:20).

19:28 Because the body is God's creation, it was to be kept whole (1Co 6:8-20). The pagan custom of gashing the body as a sign of mourning was prohibited (Dt 14:1; Jr 16:6; 41:5; 47:5; 48:37). Painting one's body (tattoo marks) was also a custom that denoted belonging to a pagan cult, or it was done to ward off spirits of the dead.

19:31 In the ancient Near East, necromancy, or communication with the dead, was sought through mediums or spiritists, but God's law ruled against such pagan practice (1Sm 28).

19:32 Respect for the elderly is God's rule not just in the Jewish culture, but universally (Pr 16:31; 20:29).

19:35-36 The holiness laws must also permeate business dealings. The way a person buys and sells is an indication of his obedience to God. Honesty was a sign of wise living (Pr 11:1; 16:11; 20:10,23).

20:1-27 The laws in this chapter are similar to those in chapter 18 except that here the penalties for disobedience are attached to the laws forbidding Molech worship, pagan religious practices, and sexual offenses.

20:2 Death by stoning was also applied to blasphemers (24:16; 1Kg 21:9-14), sorcerers (Lv 20:27), Sabbath violators (Nm 15:35-36), idolaters (Dt 13:6-10; 17:3-5), rebellious children (Dt 21:18-21), adulterers (Ezk 16:35-40; 23:43-47), a bride who did not disclose she was not a virgin (Dt 22:23-24), a man and a betrothed woman who engaged in consensual sex (Dt 22:24), and those who did not destroy things that had been placed under a divine ban (Jos 7:1,25).

20:9 The fact that both parents are mentioned promotes the value of women in a traditional patriarchal society. The curse against one's parents carried the death penalty (Ex 21:17; Dt 21:18-21; Pr 20:20; Mt 15:4; Mk 7:10).

20:17-19 The punishment for lesser offenses was being cut off publicly from their people. In some instances God Himself carried out this punishment (vv. 3,5-6; 17:10), in which He excommunicated the offenders from their relatives (7:20-21,25,27; 17:4,9-10; 18:29; 19:8; 20:3,5-6; 23:29).

20:20-21 Lesser violations were punished with childlessness. The presence of children was depicted in the Bible as divine reward (Ps 127:3). To be barren was regarded as shameful (Gn 16:2; 25:21; 30:1; 1Sm 1:5-11). Barrenness as punishment for sexual offenses was not a new judgment (Gn 20:17-18; Nm 5:22,27), but not all cases of barrenness were punishment for sin. Sarah, Rachel, and Hannah in the OT, and Elizabeth in the NT are examples of barrenness, but nowhere does Scripture indicate that their barrenness was punishment for sin.

21:1-24 The standard of holiness was set higher for the priests. While all Israelites were part of the "holy nation" (Ex 19:5-6), the leaders were held to a higher standard in matters such as mourning, marriage, and family. This concept parallels the NT where church leaders such as elders, bishops, and deacons are held to higher standards (Jms 3:1).

21:1-2 Priests were forbidden from defiling themselves by touching a dead person except in the case of a close relative. This law was a polemic against the cult of the dead, which was widespread in the ancient Near East. The Egyptians were so preoccupied with death that their pharaohs would spend years preparing their pyramid tombs.

21:4-5 Since contact with the dead defiled a person (Nm 19:11-22), priests could not even prepare their wives for burial because they were not blood relatives. The priest was also forbidden to follow the mourning laws of the Canaanites, who would mutilate their bodies to show their sorrow and pain as well as to venerate the dead.

21:7 In the ancient Near East, there were two types of prostitutes. Common prostitutes were sexually loose and were paid for their services. Cult prostitutes, on the other hand, committed sexual acts as worship to pagan gods. The prohibition against marrying a divorced woman carried over into the NT rules about elders and deacons (1Tm 3; Ti 1:5-9).

21:9 Because the family in Israel was a solid unit, the activity of each member reflected on the others. Since cremation was not an accepted practice in Israel, the punishment for this filial promiscuity was probably death by stoning, after which the body was burned up.

21:16-23 A priest in Israel had to be in good physical condition and without physical defect. While the text lists 12 blemishes that would prevent a person from serving as a priest, later rabbis expanded the list of blemishes to 142. The NT does not address physical requirements but only spiritual qualifications for ministers. While some cultures today still hold to the OT requirements for ministers, the Levitical law does not carry over to the NT, and it is not binding on the church.

PRIESTS IN THE OLD TESTAMENT
(Listed alphabetically)

NAME	REFERENCE	IDENTIFICATION
Aaron	Ex 28-29	Older brother of Moses; first high priest of Israel
Abiathar	1Sm 22:20-23; 2Sm 20:25	Son of Ahimelech who escaped the slayings at Nob

Joshua	Hg 1:1,12; Zch 3	First high priest after the Babylonian captivity
Nadab and Abihu	Lv 10:1-2	Evil sons of Aaron
Pashhur	Jr 20:1-6	False priest who persecuted the prophet Jeremiah
Phinehas	(1) Nm 25:7-13 (2) See Hophni and Phinehas	(1) Son of Eleazar; Israel's third high priest whose zeal for pure worship stopped a plague
Shelemiah	Neh 13:13	Priest during the time of Nehemiah; was in charge of administrating storehouses
Uriah	2Kg 16:10-16	Priest who built pagan altar for evil King Ahaz
Zadok	2Sm 15; 1Kg 1	High priest during the reign of David and Solomon

22:1-33 Since the priests led in corporate worship, they had to be ceremonially pure. The sacrifices they brought also had to be unblemished in order to be acceptable to the Lord.

22:4-5 The impurities that rendered a priest unclean are listed in descending order of severity. During the time of Jesus, the religious leaders were angry that Jesus touched what would render Him as unclean, but when Jesus touched an unclean person, that person became clean.

22:11 This law was consistent with the instruction given to Abraham to circumcise purchased slaves (Gn 17:12-13), thus making them part of the covenant community.

22:19 The word unblemished comes from a term that means "to be complete, perfect." It conveys the idea that sacrifices must be without flaw. During the Second Temple period, the prophet Malachi spoke against the people's bringing defective animals as sacrifices (Mal 1:8-14). The NT teaches that the covenant community must bring their best to God (2Co 8-9; Eph 5:2; Php 4:10-20; Heb 13:15-16; 1Pt 2:5). The ultimate perfect sacrifice was Jesus, the Messiah, through whose atoning death believers are forgiven of sin and granted eternal life (Jn 1:29; 1Pt 1:19; Rv 7:9; 12:11).

23:1-44 God set aside a sacred period that included festivals and holy days to give the covenant community rest from everyday life. These special days would also help them remember His acts of creation, deliverance, protection, and provision.

23:2 The expression sacred assemblies occurs 11 times in chapter 23 (vv. 2,3,4,7,8,21,24,27,35,36,37) and 8 times elsewhere in the Torah (Ex 12:16; Nm 28:18,25,26; 29:1,7,12). A sacred assembly was a time during which the people were to lay aside their usual work to focus on the worship of Yahweh. The eight days that were designated sacred assemblies were the first and seventh days of Unleavened Bread (Lv 23:7-8), the Festival of Weeks (v. 21), the first day of the seventh month (v. 24), the Day of Atonement (v. 27), the first and eighth days of Booths (vv. 35-36), and the Sabbath.

23:3 The Sabbath is the only holy day commanded in the Ten Commandments (Ex 20:8-11) and the only commandment grounded in creation (Ex 20:11). Examples of work mentioned in the Torah are plowing and reaping (Ex 34:21), kindling fire (Ex 35:3), and gathering wood (Nm 15:32-36). Work that was prohibited elsewhere in the OT includes trade (Am 8:5) and carrying burdens (Jr 17:21-27). The Hebrew verb shavath means "to rest" or "to cease," and it is the root on which the word "Sabbath" was formed. Jesus affirmed that He is "Lord of the Sabbath" (Mt 12:8) and that "it is lawful to do what is good on the Sabbath" (Mt 12:12). The book of Hebrews also speaks of a spiritual rest into which the community of faith enters through Jesus Christ (Heb 3-4). Just as the rainbow was the sign of the covenant with Noah and circumcision was the sign of the Abrahamic covenant, the Sabbath served as the sign of the Mosaic covenant.

23:5 The Passover was celebrated in the first month, Abib (later called Nisan; March-April). Further instructions about Passover were given in Exodus 12, before the Israelites were delivered by God's mighty hand. It was during the Passover Festival that Jesus was crucified, signaling that He was the unblemished lamb that was sacrificed for all humanity (Is 53:5-6; Heb 8-10; 1Pt 1:18-19).

23:6 The Festival of Unleavened Bread began on the fifteenth day of Abib and was a reminder of the haste with which the Hebrews left Egypt (Ex 12). The word "festival" designates the event as a pilgrimage, and it could not be celebrated at home. The unleavened bread was usually in the form of small round wafers baked from new grain without leaven (Lv 2:4). Over time leaven came to signify corruption. Thus, the festival was intended to remind the covenant community that they were supposed to purge corruption as they celebrated redemption (1Co 5:8). By the first century A.D., the Passover and Unleavened Bread festivals were celebrated at the same time (Mk 14:1,12; Lk 22:1,7), although Passover was also treated as part of the pilgrimage during the reign of King Hezekiah (2Ch 30:1).

23:9-12 The Feast of Firstfruits occurred during the week of Unleavened Bread and was both commemorative and prophetic. During this feast the Israelites were to show their gratitude to God for His provision. The community of faith was to acknowledge God's provision by giving Him the first of their income. The waving of the sheaf was to be an outward sign of an inward attitude; therefore it was accompanied by the bringing of sacrifices. The people could only eat from the fruit of the land after they acknowledged God as its source. The prophetic element of this feast was fulfilled in the risen Jesus Christ, who is the firstfruits of those believers who have died (1Co 15:20).

23:15-22 The word "Pentecost" comes from the Greek. It means "fiftieth," and it concluded the period of seven weeks that began during Passover. Originally the Festival of Weeks was for the wheat harvest (Ex 34:22), but later it was tied with the events on Sinai. During this feast the Jews were supposed to show gratitude for God's provisions by bringing gifts (Lv 23:15-17), by setting aside times for worship (vv. 18-21), and by making provision for the poor. God's concern for the poor is evident throughout the OT, and He always makes provision for their well-being (v. 22; 19:10, 25:35; Ex 23:11; Dt 15:4; Ru 2). The Jews were celebrating this pilgrimage feast when the Holy Spirit came upon those gathered in Jerusalem (Ac 2).

Feast of Purim, or Esther	Adar	(Feb./Mar.): 14	Est 9	Commemorates the deliverance of the Jewish people in the days of Esther.

23:23-25 What later became known as the Festival of Trumpets was observed in the seventh month of Tishri, when the Israelites celebrated the end of the harvest. During the postexilic time, this day became the Jewish New Year (Rosh Hashanah). The words joyful shouting mean a shout or a blast; it refers to the sound of the trumpet that reminded the Israelites to assemble in God's presence for spiritual service. Trumpet blasts are important in the end time when events surrounding Christ's second coming will be preceded by angels blowing trumpets (Rv 8:7-8,10,12; 9:1,13-14; 10:7; 11:15).

23:27 The Day of Atonement was to be celebrated during the tenth day of Tishri. Details on the celebration of this day are outlined in chapter 16. In contrast to the other feasts, this was to be a day of fasting in which the people exercised self-denial and expressed remorse over personal and corporate sin.

23:33-34 The Festival of Booths or Tabernacles began on Tishri 15. It was primarily a thanksgiving festival showing gratitude for God's provision (Ex 34:22) and closing out the agricultural year. The booths (Hb succoth) were also a reminder that the Israelites lived in tents during the 40-year journey from Egypt to the promised land (Lv 23:42-43). The Festival of Booths was observed during the monarchy period as well as the postexilic period (2Ch 8:13; Ezr 3:4; Zch 14:16,18-19) and during the early church period.

23:40 Booths is the only festival where the Israelites are commanded to rejoice before the LORD (cp. Dt 12:10-12; Php 4:4).

24:4 The lampstand was the seven-branched menorah that lighted the holy place of the tabernacle (Ex 25:31-40). The light represented the presence of God with His people. In the Bible, light also represents God or His Word (Ps 27:1; 36:9; 119:105). Jesus' affirmation that He was the light of the world was a polemic against those who put their faith in a menorah that was only the symbol of a greater reality (Jn 8:12; 9:5).

24:5-7 The 12 loaves of bread were called "the bread of the Presence" (Ex 25:30). They were a constant reminder of God's provision for the Israelites every day and especially during the wilderness period. The 12 loaves represented the 12 tribes of Israel, pointing to the totality of God's provision. Jesus affirmed that He was the Bread of Life (Jn 6:33,35,48,51), satisfying the spiritual hunger of humanity.

24:11 To blaspheme the name of God was to blaspheme God Himself, just as to praise His name was to praise Him. Jews stopped using the name of Yahweh because they thought it too sacred. When they referred to God, they called him the Name.

24:16 The punishment for blasphemy was the death penalty by stoning, a punishment used also for those who worshiped Molech (20:2).

24:20 The eye for eye, tooth for tooth principle was a figurative way of pointing to God's justice to show that the punishment should fit the crime. The principle of punishing an offender with the same injury that he had inflicted is called (Lat) lex talionis. Quoting this verse, Jesus raised the bar in His teaching on turning the other cheek (Mt 5:38-42), the offering of forgiveness instead of retribution.

25:4 The expression a Sabbath of complete rest occurs only with the sabbatical year, the Sabbath (23:3) and the Day of Atonement (23:32). These are the only times in which abstinence from all work was prescribed.

25:8 The number seven is sacred, so the expression seven times seven years points to a most sacred time which ushered in the Year of Jubilee. While amnesties in the ancient Near East occurred at the discretion of a particular king or ruler, in Israel the Year of Jubilee was fixed and ordained by God, who did not leave it to human discretion. This assured that Jubilee would be observed.

25:10 Israel was asked to consecrate or sanctify only the Sabbath (Ex 20:8,11; Dt 5:12; Jr 17:22,24,27; Ezk 20:20; 44:24) and the Year of Jubilee. The verb "to consecrate" may be translated, "to sanctify" or "to treat as holy."

25:23 The land refers to the promised land. The notion of God's ownership of the land occurs throughout the OT (Ex 15:17; Ps 10:16; 85:1; Is 14:2,25; Jr 2:7; Ezk 36:5; 38:16; Hs 9:3).

25:25 In order to keep property in the family, a well-off relative, known as a family redeemer, was allowed to buy it. This law was applied when Ruth was redeemed by Boaz after her closest family redeemer refused to marry her.

25:32-34 Even though the Levites were not allotted permanent property in the promised land (Nm 18:23; 26:62), they were provided permanent residences and pastureland. These consisted of 48 towns and their surrounding fields (Nm 35:1-8). Sacred cities similar to these Levitical cities have been found in Ugarit and Mesopotamia.

25:35-38 A destitute Israelite who became impoverished was supposed to be supported (strengthened) by his fellow Israelites, who were not allowed to profit from the needs of the poor. The text implies that if a person took advantage of his impoverished brother, he did not fear . . . God.

25:39-55 God provided for the poor who had to sell themselves as indentured servants. However, slavery was only a temporary condition, and the law prohibited harsh treatment and provided for release in the Year of Jubilee. Proslavery movements in recent history have misused passages in Leviticus by ignoring their provisions and limitations.

26:2 The verb keep refers to the detailed observation of the commandments. The expression you must keep My Sabbaths occurs four times (v. 2; 19:3,30; Ex 31:13), and it is an allusion to the Fourth Commandment about keeping and sanctifying the Sabbath.

26:4 In Hebrew the word rain is in the plural. It refers to the two rainy periods that occurred in autumn and spring (Dt 11:14; Jr 5:24; Jl 2:23).

26:8 The 1 to 20 and 1 to 100 proportions point to the miraculous victories over their enemies with which God would reward His people if they obeyed His commandments.

26:11 The promise of divine fellowship is rendered by the phrase, I will place My residence among you. The "residence" is literally a "tabernacle." This is a direct parallel to Jn 1:14, where John affirmed that Jesus, the Word, became flesh and "took up residence" or "tabernacled" among us.

26:13 The bars of your yoke were a reminder of the Egyptian bondage from which God delivered the Israelites. Here Israel is pictured as an animal held down by a heavy yoke. Later Jesus invited humanity to take His light yoke and partake of His rest (Mt 11:28-30).

26:14-17 The five sets of curses that begin in verse 14 are presented as punishment for disobedience of God's commands . . . statutes . . . ordinances, and covenant. These curses match the five sets of blessings in verses 3-13. The curses increase in severity with a persistent refusal to repent. The Lord would turn against His people only after they defiantly turned against Him.

26:18-20 The number seven associated with the discipline for sins is not to be taken literally, but it is used figuratively to mean "many times" or "thoroughly." It could be an allusion to the Sabbaths not kept by the Israelites (v. 34).

26:22 Because Yahweh is the God of all creation, He can also sovereignly use wild animals to punish His people. The outbreak of wild animals is frequently regarded as punishment for sin (Dt 32:24; 2Kg 2:24; 17:25; Is 13:21-22).

26:29 This curse was fulfilled when the Syrian king Ben-Hadad besieged Samaria, the capital of the northern kingdom of Israel (2Kg 6:24-29).

26:31 The expression I will not smell the pleasing aroma of your sacrifices refers to the fact that God would not accept His people's sacrifices, and thus He was rejecting the people. Sacrifices without obedience are meaningless (1Sm 15:22).

26:33 The Hebrew verb zarâ, translated here as scatter, can also be translated "winnow." In the mind of the Jews it would trigger the image of wicked people being blown away like chaff (Ps 1:4). This is an obvious reference to God's ultimate rejection of the errant Jews—the exile.

26:34-35 This curse anticipates Israel's failure to keep the Sabbath years. The Chronicler fused this verse with Jeremiah's prophecy that the exile would last 70 years (2Ch 36:21; cp. Jr 25:11; 29:10).

26:40-41 The expression but if indicates a turning point and involves a note of hope. The promised restoration is contingent upon the people's confession of sin and their humility. The verb translated humbled is literally "to bring to one's knees."

26:44 The purifying agent will be the exile, not the flood that destroyed the earth during the time of Noah (Gn 6; 9). The great judgments of wars and famines in Revelation 6-19 have their original setting in Leviticus 26 and Deuteronomy 28. As in OT times, the NT believer must repent or be judged.

27:2-3 People who were dedicated by vow to the Lord's service could be redeemed through a sum of money established by God or the priest. Hannah promised Samuel to the Lord (1Sm 1:11), but if she had wanted to keep the child, God would have allowed her to take him back through monetary redemption. The Bible also affirms that the Nazirites made vows that included people (Nm 6).

27:26 No one could consecrate a firstborn, because he already belonged to the LORD (Ex 13:2; 34:19-20).

27:28-29 The penalty for disobeying God's law regarding things set apart . . . to the LORD was death. It is possible that Ananias and Sapphira in the early church were guilty of breaking this law as well as lying to the Holy Spirit (Ac 5:1-11).

27:30 The tithe is not a human invention but a divine command. The first time the tithe is mentioned in the Bible was when Abram gave a tenth of what he had to Melchizedek (Gn 14:20). The Israelites are told to tithe from their land's produce (cp. Dt 14:22-24). During the monarchy, the tithe was important because it provided the capital necessary for the day-to-day operation of the temple. The giving of the tithe was revived by Nehemiah during the postexilic era since it seems that the practice had been ignored (Neh 10:37-38,13:10-12). Through the prophet Malachi, God rebuked the people for robbing God by not bringing their tithes to the temple (Mal 3:8-10).

HCSB Translation draw near, present Uses in Leviticus 102
Uses in the OT 280
Focus Passages Leviticus 1:5,10,13-14

Qarav, related to qorban (offering), means draw (come, go, be) near (Gn 47:29). People come (forward, closer, here). They get close, step in, advance, approach, or reach. Qarav denotes take place (Is 5:19), consult (1Sm 14:36), and support (1Kg 2:7). People are about to act (Gn 12:11) and are sexually intimate (Dt 22:14). Intensive verbs mean join (Ezk 37:17) and draw (Hs 7:6). People submit cases (Is 41:21). Causative verbs signify bring (near, forward), present, offer, or have/let come (near, forward). They imply join or invite (Jr 30:21). Qarov (75x) means near (Nm 24:17), close, approaching, soon, brief, almost, or just. It connotes relative or neighbor. Qarev (12x) involves being about to (Dt 20:3), coming (near, closer), approaching, or drawing near. Qerav (9x) is battle (Zch 14:3), war, or warfare. Qirvah is nearness (Is 58:2) or presence.

chatta'th Hebrew Pronunciation [khat TAT]
HCSB Translation sin, sin offering Uses in Leviticus 82
Uses in the OT 298
Focus Passage Leviticus 5:6-13

Chatta'th, related to the verb chata' (sin), indicates sin as behavior (Gn 50:17) or thoughts (Pr 21:4). Sin afflicts everyone (Pr 20:9). Whether conscious (Jb 34:37) or unconscious (Nm 15:24), it contrasts with righteousness (Pr 14:34). Scripture considers God the chief victim, and idolatry was one of the gravest sins (1Sm 15:23; 1Kg 16:13; Jr 16:10-18). Chatta'th specifies sin's guilt (Jr 17:1) or its punishment (Zch 14:19). God instituted sacrifice as a means to forgive sin (Lv 4:27-31), and chatta'th denotes sin offering (Ex 29:14). Chatta'th implies purification from ceremonial impurity (Nm 8:7). Chete' (34x) means sin (Nm 27:3), offense, fault (Gn 41:9), guilt (Lv 19:17), consequences of sin (Lv 24:15), or punishment (Lm 3:39). Adjectival chatta' (19x) indicates sinning (Gn 13:13) or sinner (Is 33:14). Chata'ah (8x) is sin (Ex 32:21), guilt, or sin offering (Ps 40:6).

'olah Hebrew Pronunciation [oh LAH]
HCSB Translation* burnt offering Uses in Leviticus 62
Uses in the OT* 286
Focus Passage* Leviticus 9:2-3,7,12-14,16-17,22,24

'Olah always signifies burnt offering and is the first kind of Israelite offering described in detail (Lv 1:3-17). 'Olah could be a participle of the verb rise up ('alah), and speculation occurs whether what rises is the smoke and fire, the aroma, or the animal onto the altar. However, the verb in a causative form ("to offer up") regularly has 'olah as object, suggesting an offering of sacrifice to God (Gn 8:20; 22:2). Its burning was a form of presentation. The 'olah was unique in being entirely consumed by altar fire, yet its preparation involved removing the animal's skin, which the officiating priest could keep (Lv 7:8). The offerer put his hand on the victim in apparent identification with it. The 'olah could express joy (1Sm 6:14-15), accompany petition (Jr 14:12), or seek atonement (Lv 1:4). God permitted poor people to present birds as burnt offerings (Lv 5:7; 12:8).

zar Hebrew Pronunciation [ZARR]
HCSB Translation strange, foreign, unauthorized Uses in Leviticus 4
Uses in the OT 70
Focus Passage Leviticus 10:1

Zar occurs nominally (56x) and adjectivally (14x). It describes unauthorized incense or people in the Lord's sanctuary (Ex 29:33; 30:9). God had not given orders or freedom for Nadab and Abihu's incense burning (Lv 10:1). The noun mostly designates non-Israelite strangers or foreigners (Lm 5:2), who may be seen as foes (Is 29:5) or barbarians (Is 25:5). It implies someone unknown (Pr 11:15) or outside a family (Lv 22:13). Zar suggests someone else (1Kg 3:18). It refers to plants as exotic (Is 17:10), children as illegitimate (Hs 5:7), and behavior as strange (Is 28:21) or alien (Hs 8:12). Zar connotes what is forbidden (Pr 5:3). Related zur (6x) means go astray (Ps 58:3). It is "turn from" as abandon (Jb 19:13) or satisfy (Ps 78:30). Passive-reflexives denote be estranged (Ezk 14:5) or turn one's back (Is 1:4). The causative passive participle means stranger (Ps 69:8).

nega'
Hebrew Pronunciation [neh GAH]

HCSB Translation disease, affliction, plague Uses in Leviticus 61
Uses in the OT 78
Focus Passage Leviticus 13:2-6,9,12-13,17,20

Nega‘ derives from naga‘, a verb that basically means touch but often indicates infliction of a painful blow. The noun implies a negative touch, either an affliction sent by God, a diseased condition of skin, a contamination of clothing or housing, or a physical assault. God may send a plague (Gn 12:17). Nega‘ denotes skin disease when combined with another word that by itself can mean skin disease or leprosy (tsara‘ath; Lv 13:3). In these cases nega‘ may emphasize the affliction or divine stroke that the disease represents. Nega‘ alone can mean a person’s infection (Lv 13:6) or the contamination of objects (13:49); with a definite article it sometimes refers to the infected person (13:4). Each individual knows his afflictions (1Kg 8:38). Victims of assault (Dt 17:8) go to court for redress, probably for blows they have suffered (2Sm 7:14). The Suffering Servant bore a nega‘ that mankind deserved (Is 53:8).

kaphar Hebrew Pronunciation [kah PHAR]
HCSB Translation cover, make atonement, purge Uses in Leviticus 49
Uses in the OT 102
Focus Passage Leviticus 16:29-34

Akkadian and Arabic cognates mean wipe on, wipe away, or cover. Kaphar as cover occurs with kopher, asphalt, in Gn 6:14. Elsewhere kaphar uses other conjugations with different meanings. The intensive verb means make/provide atonement (Ex 29:36), atone for (Ps 65:3), wipe out (1Sm 3:14), or wipe away (Dn 9:24). It suggests appease (Gn 32:20), ward off (Is 47:11), or forgive (Dt 21:8). It denotes make purification or purify (Lv 16:10,16). Passive forms also indicate be purged (Is 27:9), dissolved (Is 28:18), or absolved of responsibility (Dt 21:8). Some verbs connote ransom and could possibly derive from a homonym kopher, ransom. But this connotation could have developed secondarily because cleansing so often came through substitutionary sacrifice. Capporeth (27x) indicates mercy seat (Lv 16:13), the place of atonement. Kippuriym (8x) is atonement (Lv 25:9).

dam Hebrew Pronunciation [DAHM]
HCSB Translation blood Uses in Leviticus 88
Uses in the OT 361
Focus Passage Leviticus 17:4,6,10-14

The word for blood is ancient and much the same in every Semitic language. Dam can have the same meanings in the singular or plural, although some phrases are set. The OT uses blood of men, animals, and birds, but not fish. Blood could symbolize life itself (Dt 12:23) and so was important in sacrificial ritual. Dam can be translated life (Ps 72:14) but more commonly might be translated death (Ps 30:9). Dam especially connotes violent death in the phrase "to shed blood" (Gn 9:6). A "man of blood" is a murderer (2Sm 16:7). Dam sometimes has the meanings bloodshed (Ex 22:2) or bloodguilt (Is 4:4). Fat and blood are treated separately from the rest of the animal in sacrificial rituals (Lv 1:11; 3:17). Wine can be called (lit) "blood of grapes" (Dt 32:14), and blood is compared to wine (Is 49:26).

tame'
Hebrew Pronunciation [tah MAY]
HCSB Translation be unclean, defiled, declare unclean Uses in Leviticus 85
Uses in the OT 162
Focus Passage Leviticus 18:20,23-25,27-28,30

Tame' indicates being/becoming (ceremonially) unclean (Nm 19:7) or defiled (Ezk 22:3) by things like skin disease (Lv 13:3), abnormal or sexual bodily discharges (Lv 15:4,16), touching dead animals or people (Lv 11:24; Nm 19:11), and giving birth (Lv 12:2). People defiled themselves (Lv 18:20). Things and people could become unclean by secondary or tertiary contact (Lv 11:34; 15:5). Uncleanness is contrasted with God's holiness (Lv 11:43-44). Tame' involved defiling through rape (Gn 34:5), adultery, bestiality, consulting mediums (Lv 19:31), Baal worship (Jr 2:23), and sacrificing children to idols (Lv 20:3). Defiled things included God's name (Ezk 43:8), the sanctuary, houses (Lv 14:36), land, and even pagans (Lv 18:24-25). The intensive verb denotes declare or make unclean (Lv 13:11; Nm 35:34) or defile (Lv 15:31; 2Kg 23:8). The adjective tame' (88x) means unclean, defiled, impure, or pagan (Am 7:17). The noun tum'ah (36x) refers to uncleanness (Lv 5:3), impurity, or defilement.

Focus Passage Leviticus 23:2-4,7-8,20-21,24,27,35-37

This noun regularly functions adjectivally as holy, sacred, dedicated, or consecrated (Ex 3:5; 12:16; 31:15; Lv 19:24). It denotes sanctuary (Ex 28:29) or various parts such as holy place, sanctuary area, or most holy place (Ex 26:33; 28:43; Lv 16:6). Qodesh occurs twice in a row to indicate superlatives: most holy place, especially holy, and holiest part (Ex 26:34; 30:10; Lv 2:3). Singular uses suggest holiness, what is holy, or holy portion (Ex 15:11; Lv 19:8; Nm 6:20).

With numbers qodesh connotes holy ones (Dt 33:2). Plurals can signify holy offerings, gifts, things, or objects (Ex 28:38; Lv 5:15; Nm 4:16). Implicit in qodesh are concepts of separateness and consecration (Ezk 42:20). Holiness is associated with glory and commands respect or awe (Ex 15:11). God is holy as separated from sin. Holy things and people belong to God, being set apart from common use (Ex 39:30) for His consecrated purposes (Lv 10:17).

The Census of Israel

1 The LORD spoke to Moses in the tent of meeting in the Wilderness of Sinai, on the first day of the second month of the second year [a] after Israel's departure from the land of Egypt: 2 "Take a census [b] of the entire Israelite community by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of every male one by one. 3 You and Aaron are to register those who are 20 years old or more by their military divisions — everyone who can serve in Israel's army. [A] 4 A man from each tribe is to be with you, each one the head of his ancestral house. [c] 5 These are the names of the men who are to assist you:

Elizur son of Shedeur from Reuben;
6 Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai from Simeon;
7 Nahshon son of Amminadab from Judah;
8 Nethanel son of Zuar from Issachar;
9 Eliab son of Helon from Zebulun;
10 from the sons of Joseph:
Elishama son of Ammihud from Ephraim,
Gamaliel son of Pedahzur from Manasseh;
11 Abidan son of Gideoni from Benjamin;
12 Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai from Dan;
13 Pagiel son of Ochran from Asher;
14 Eliasaph son of Deuel [d] from Gad;
15 Ahira son of Enan from Naphtali.
16 These are the men called from the community; they are leaders of their ancestral tribes, the heads of Israel's clans."
17 So Moses and Aaron took these men who had been designated by name, 18 and they assembled the whole community on the first day of the second month. They recorded their ancestry by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting one by one the names of those 20 years old or more, 19 just as the LORD commanded Moses. He registered them in the Wilderness of Sinai:

20 The descendants of Reuben, [e] the firstborn of Israel: according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting one by one the names of every male 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 21 those registered for the tribe of Reuben numbered 46,500.

22 The descendants of Simeon: [f] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, those registered counting one by one the names of every male 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 23 those registered for the tribe of Simeon numbered 59,300.

24 The descendants of Gad: [g] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 25 those registered for the tribe of Gad numbered 45,650.

26 The descendants of Judah: [h] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 27 those registered for the tribe of Judah numbered 74,600.

28 The descendants of Issachar: [i] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 29 those registered for the tribe of Issachar numbered 54,400.

30 The descendants of Zebulun: [j] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 31 those registered for the tribe of Zebulun numbered 57,400.

32 The descendants of Joseph: [k]

The descendants of Ephraim: [l] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 33 those registered for the tribe of Ephraim numbered 40,500.

34 The descendants of Manasseh: [m] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 35 those registered for the tribe of Manasseh numbered 32,200.

36 The descendants of Benjamin: [n] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 37 those registered for the tribe of Benjamin numbered 35,400.

38 The descendants of Dan: [o] according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 39 those registered for the tribe of Dan numbered 62,700.

40 The descendants of Asher: p according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 41 those registered for the tribe of Asher numbered 41,500.

42 The descendants of Naphtali: q according to their family records by their clans and their ancestral houses, counting the names of those 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in the army, 43 those registered for the tribe of Naphtali numbered 53,400.

44 These are the men Moses and Aaron registered, with the assistance of the 12 leaders of Israel; each represented his ancestral house. 45 So all the Israelites 20 years old or more, everyone who could serve in Israel's army, were registered by their ancestral houses. 46 All those registered numbered 603,550. r

Duties of the Levites

47 But the Levites were not registered with them by their ancestral tribe. 48 For the LORD had told Moses: 49 “Do not register or take a census of the tribe of Levi with the other Israelites. 50 Appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of the •testimony , all its furnishings, and everything in it. They are to transport the tabernacle and all its articles, take care of it, and camp around it. 51 Whenever the tabernacle is to move, the Levites are to take it down, and whenever it is to stop at a campsite, the Levites are to set it up. Any unauthorized person who comes near it must be put to death. s

52 “The Israelites are to camp by their military divisions, each man with his encampment and under his banner. 53 The Levites are to camp around the tabernacle of the testimony and watch over it, so that no wrath will fall on the Israelite community.” t 54 The Israelites did everything just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Organization of the Camps

2 The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron: 2 “The Israelites are to camp under their respective banners beside the flags of their ancestral houses. They are to camp around the tent of meeting at a distance from it:

3 Judah’s military divisions will camp on the east side toward the sunrise under their banner. The leader of the descendants of Judah is Nahshon son of Amminadab. 4 His military division numbers 74,600. 5 The tribe of Issachar will camp next to it. The leader of the Issacharites is Nethanel son of Zuar.
6 His military division numbers 54,400. 7 The tribe of Zebulun will be next.
The leader of the Zebulunites is Eliab son of Helon. 8 His military division numbers 57,400. 9 The total number in their military divisions who belong to Judah’s encampment is 186,400; they will move out first.

10 Reuben’s military divisions will camp on the south side under their banner. The leader of the Reubenites is Elizur son of Shedeur. 11 His military division numbers 46,500. 12 The tribe of Simeon will camp next to it. The leader of the Simeonites is Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai. 13 His military division numbers 59,300. 14 The tribe of Gad will be next. The leader of the Gadites is Eliasaph son of Deuel. [a] 15 His military division numbers 45,650. 16 The total number in their military divisions who belong to Reuben’s encampment is 151,450;
they will move out second.

17 The tent of meeting is to move out with the Levites’ camp, which is in the middle of the camps. They are to move out just as they camp, each in his place, [A] with their banners.

18 Ephraim’s military divisions will camp on the west side under their banner. The leader of the Ephraimites is Elishama son of Ammihud.
19 His military division numbers 40,500. 20 The tribe of Manasseh will be next to it. The leader of the Manassites is Gamaliel son of Pedahzur.
21 His military division numbers 32,200. 22 The tribe of Benjamin will be next. The leader of the Benjaminites is Abidan son of Gideoni.
23 His military division numbers 35,400. 24 The total in their military divisions who belong to Ephraim’s encampment number 108,100; they will move out third.

25 Dan’s military divisions will camp on the north side under their banner. The leader of the Danites is Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai.
26 His military division numbers 62,700. 27 The tribe of Asher will camp next to it. The leader of the Asherites is Pagiel son of Ochran.

28 His military division numbers 41,500. 29 The tribe of Naphtali will be next. The leader of the Naphtalites is Ahira son of Enan. 30 His military division numbers 53,400. 31 The total number who belong to Dan's encampment is 157,600; they are to move out last, with their banners."

32 These are the Israelites registered by their ancestral houses. The total number in the camps by their military divisions is 603,550. 33 But the Levites were not registered among the Israelites, just as the LORD had commanded Moses. [b]

34 The Israelites did everything the LORD commanded Moses; they camped by their banners in this way and moved out the same way, each man by his clan and by his ancestral house. [c]

Aaron’s Sons and the Levites

3 These are the family records of Aaron and Moses at the time the Lord spoke with Moses on Mount Sinai. [a] 2 These are the names of Aaron's sons: Nadab, the firstborn, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. 3 These are the names of Aaron's sons, the anointed priests, who were ordained to serve as priests. 4 But Nadab and Abihu died in the Lord*'s presence when they presented unauthorized* fire [b] before the Lord in the Wilderness of Sinai, and they had no sons. So Eleazar and Ithamar served as priests under the direction of Aaron their father.
[c]

5 The Lord spoke to Moses: 6 "Bring the tribe of Levi near and present them to Aaron the priest to assist him. 7 They are to perform duties for [A] him and the entire community before the tent of meeting by attending to the service of the tabernacle. 8 They are to take care of [B] all the furnishings of the tent of meeting [d] and perform duties for [C] the Israelites by attending to the service of the tabernacle. 9 Assign the Levites to Aaron and his sons; they have been assigned exclusively to him [e] from the Israelites. [f] 10 You are to appoint Aaron and his sons to carry out their priestly responsibilities, but any unauthorized person who comes near the sanctuary must be put to death." [g]

11 The Lord spoke to Moses: 12 "See, I have taken the Levites from the Israelites in place of every firstborn Israelite from the womb. [h] The Levites belong to Me, 13 because every firstborn belongs to Me. At the time I struck down every firstborn in the land of Egypt, [i] I consecrated every firstborn in Israel to Myself, both man and animal. They are Mine; I am •Yahweh ." [j]

The Levitical Census

14 The Lord spoke to Moses in the Wilderness of Sinai: 15 “Register the Levites by their ancestral houses and their clans. You are to register every male one month old or more.” 16 So Moses registered them in obedience to the Lord as he had been commanded:

17 These were Levi’s sons by name: Gershon, Kohath, and Merari. 18 These were the names of Gershon’s sons by their clans: Libni and Shimei.
19 Kohath’s sons by their clans were Amram, Izhar, Hebron, and Uzziel.
20 Merari’s sons by their clans were Mahli and Mushi. These were the Levite clans by their ancestral houses. [k]

21 The Libnite clan and the Shimeite clan came from Gershon; these were the Gershonite clans. 22 Those registered, counting every male one month old or more, numbered 7,500. 23 The Gershonite clans camped behind the tabernacle on the west side, [l] 24 and the leader of the Gershonite family was Eliasaph son of Lael. 25 The Gershonites’ duties [m] at the tent of meeting involved the tabernacle, the tent, its covering, the screen for the entrance to the tent of meeting, [n] 26 the hangings of the courtyard, the screen for the entrance [o] to the courtyard that surrounds the tabernacle and the altar, and the tent ropes — all the work relating to these.

27 The Amramite clan, the Izharite clan, the Hebronite clan, and the Uzzielite clan came from Kohath; these were the Kohathites.
28 Counting every male one month old or more, there were 8,600 [p] responsible for the duties of [D] the sanctuary. 29 The clans of the Kohathites camped on the south side of the tabernacle, [q] 30 and the leader of the family of the Kohathite clans was Elizaphan son of Uzziel. 31 Their duties involved the ark, the table, the lampstand, the altars, the sanctuary utensils that were used with these, and the screen [r, s] — and all the work relating to them. [t] 32 The chief of the Levite leaders was Eleazar [u] son of Aaron the priest; he had oversight of those responsible for the duties of [E] the sanctuary.

33 The Mahlite clan and the Mushite clan came from Merari; these were the Merarite clans. 34 Those registered, counting every male one month old or more, numbered 6,200. 35 The leader of the family of the Merarite clans was Zuriel son of Abihail; they camped on the north side of the tabernacle. [v] 36 The assigned duties of Merari's descendants involved the tabernacle's supports, crossbars, posts, bases, all its equipment, and all the work related to these, [w] 37 in addition to the posts of the surrounding courtyard with their bases, tent pegs, and ropes.

38 Moses, Aaron, and his sons, who performed the duties of [F] the sanctuary as a service on behalf of the Israelites, camped in front of the tabernacle on the east, [x] in front of the tent of meeting toward the sunrise. Any unauthorized person who came near it was to be put to death. [y]

39 The total number of all the Levite males one month old or more that Moses and Aaron [z] registered by their clans at the LORD's command was 22,000.

Redemption of the Firstborn 40 The LORD told Moses: "Register every firstborn male of the Israelites [a] one month old or more, and list their names. 41 You are to take the Levites for Me — I am Yahweh — in place of every firstborn among the Israelites, and the Levites' cattle in place of every firstborn among the Israelites' cattle." 42 So Moses registered every firstborn among the Israelites, as the LORD commanded him. 43 The total number of the firstborn males one month old or more listed by name was 22,273.

44 The LORD spoke to Moses again: 45 "Take the Levites in place of every firstborn among the Israelites, and the Levites' cattle in place of their cattle. The Levites belong to Me; I am Yahweh. [b] 46 As the redemption price for the 273 firstborn Israelites who outnumber the Levites, 47 collect five •shekels for each person, according to the standard sanctuary shekel — 20 gerahs to the shekel. [c] 48 Give the money to Aaron and his sons as the redemption price for those who are in excess among the Israelites."

49 So Moses collected the redemption money from those in excess of the ones redeemed by the Levites. 50 He collected the money from the firstborn Israelites: 1,365 shekels [d] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel. 51 He gave the redemption money to Aaron and his sons in obedience to the LORD, just as the LORD commanded Moses.

Duties of the Kohathites

4 The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: 2 "Among the Levites, take a census of the Kohathites [a] by their clans and their ancestral houses, 3 men from 30 years old to 50 years old — everyone who is qualified [A] to do work at the tent of meeting.

4 "The service of the Kohathites at the tent of meeting concerns the most holy objects. [b] 5 Whenever the camp is about to move on, Aaron and his sons are to go in, take down the screening veil, and cover the ark of the •testimony with it. [c] 6 They are to place over this a covering made of manatee skin, [B] spread a solid blue cloth on top, and insert its poles. [d]

7 "They are to spread a blue cloth over the table of the Presence and place the plates and cups on it, as well as the bowls and pitchers for the •drink offering.
The regular bread offering is to be on it. [e] 8 They are to spread a scarlet cloth over them, cover them with a covering made of manatee skin, [C] and insert the poles in the table. [f]

9 "They are to take a blue cloth and cover the lampstand [g] used for light, with its lamps, snuffers, and firepans, [h] as well as its jars of oil by which they service
it. 10 Then they must place it with all its utensils inside a covering made of manatee skin [D] and put them on the carrying frame.

11 "They are to spread a blue cloth over the gold altar, [i] cover it with a covering made of manatee skin, [E] and insert its poles. [j] 12 They are to take all the serving utensils they use in the sanctuary, place them in a blue cloth, cover them with a covering made of manatee skin, [F] and put them on a carrying frame.

13 "They are to remove the ashes from the bronze altar, spread a purple cloth over it, 14 and place all the equipment on it that they use in serving: the firepans, meat forks, shovels, and basins — all the equipment of the altar. [k] They are to spread a covering made of manatee skin [G] over it and insert its poles. [l, m]

15 "Aaron and his sons are to finish covering the holy objects and all their equipment whenever the camp is to move on. The Kohathites will come and carry them, but they are not to touch the holy objects or they will die. [n] These are the transportation duties of the Kohathites regarding the tent of meeting.

16 "Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, has oversight of the lamp oil, [o] the fragrant incense, [p] the daily •grain offering, [q] and the anointing oil. [r] He has oversight of the entire tabernacle and everything in it, the holy objects and their utensils." [H]

17 Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: 18 "Do not allow the Kohathite tribal clans to be wiped out from the Levites. 19 Do this for them so that they may live and not die when they come near the most holy objects: [s] Aaron and his sons are to go in and assign each man his task and transportation duty. 20

The Kohathites are not to go in and look at the holy objects, even for a moment,
[I] or they will die."

Duties of the Gershonites 21 The LORD spoke to Moses: 22 "Take a census of the Gershonites [t] also, by their ancestral houses and their clans. 23 Register men from 30 years old to 50 years old, everyone who is qualified to perform service, to do work at the tent of meeting. 24 This is the service of the Gershonite clans regarding work and transportation duties: 25 They are to transport the tabernacle curtains, [u] the tent of meeting with its covering and the covering made of manatee skin [J] on top of it, the screen for the entrance to the tent of meeting, 26 the hangings of the courtyard, the screen for the entrance at the gate of the courtyard that surrounds the tabernacle and the altar, along with their ropes and all the equipment for their service. They will carry out everything that needs to be done with these items.

27 "All the service of the Gershonites, all their transportation duties and all their other work, is to be done at the command of Aaron and his sons; you are to assign to them all that they are responsible to carry. 28 This is the service of the Gershonite clans at the tent of meeting, and their duties will be under the direction of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest.

Duties of the Merarites 29 "As for the Merarites, you are to register them by their clans [v] and their ancestral houses. 30 Register men from 30 years old to 50 years old, everyone who is qualified to do the work of the tent of meeting. 31 This is what they are responsible to carry as the whole of their service at the tent of meeting: the supports of the tabernacle, with its crossbars, posts, and bases, 32 the posts of the surrounding courtyard with their bases, tent pegs, and ropes, including all their equipment and all the work related to them. You are to assign by name the items that they are responsible to carry. 33 This is the service of the Merarite clans regarding all their work at the tent of meeting, under the direction of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest."

Census of the Levites

34 So Moses, Aaron, and the leaders of the community registered the Kohathites by their clans and their ancestral houses, 35 men from 30 years old to 50 years old, everyone who was qualified for work at the tent of meeting. 36 The men registered by their clans numbered 2,750. 37 These were the registered men of the Kohathite clans, everyone who could serve at the tent of meeting. Moses and Aaron registered them at the LORD's command through Moses.

38 The Gershonites were registered by their clans and their ancestral houses, 39 men from 30 years old to 50 years old, everyone who was qualified for work at the tent of meeting. 40 The men registered by their clans and their ancestral houses numbered 2,630. 41 These were the registered men of the Gershonite clans. At the LORD's command Moses and Aaron registered everyone who could serve at the tent of meeting.

42 The men of the Merarite clans were registered by their clans and their ancestral houses, 43 those from 30 years old to 50 years old, everyone who was qualified for work at the tent of meeting. 44 The men registered by their clans numbered 3,200. 45 These were the registered men of the Merarite clans; Moses and Aaron registered them at the LORD's command through Moses.

46 Moses, Aaron, and the leaders of Israel registered all the Levites by their clans and their ancestral houses, 47 from 30 years old to 50 years old, everyone who was qualified to do the work of serving at the tent of meeting and transporting it. 48 Their registered men numbered 8,580. 49 At the LORD's command they were registered under the direction of Moses, each one according to his work and transportation duty, and his assignment was as the LORD commanded Moses.

Isolation of the Unclean

5 The LORD instructed Moses: 2 “Command the Israelites to send away anyone from the camp who is afflicted with a skin disease, anyone who has a bodily discharge, or anyone who is defiled because of a corpse. a 3 You must send away both male or female; send them outside the camp, so that they will not defile their camps where I dwell among them.” 4 The Israelites did this, sending them outside the camp. The Israelites did as the LORD instructed Moses.

Compensation for Wrongdoing

5 The Lord spoke to Moses: 6 “Tell the Israelites: When a man or woman commits any sin against another, that person acts unfaithfully toward the Lord and is •guilty . 7 The person is to confess the sin he has committed. He is to pay full compensation, add a fifth of its value to it, and give it to the individual he has wronged. [b] 8 But if that individual has no relative [c] to receive compensation, [d] the compensation goes to the Lord for the priest, along with the •atonement ram by which the priest will make atonement for the guilty person. [e] 9 Every holy contribution the Israelites present to the priest will be his. [f] 10 Each one’s holy contribution is his to give; what each one gives to the priest will be his.”

The Jealousy Ritual

11 The LORD spoke to Moses: 12 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: If any man’s wife goes astray, is unfaithful to him, 13 and sleeps with another, A but it is concealed from her husband, and she is undetected, even though she has defiled herself, since there is no witness against her, and she wasn’t caught in the act; 14 and if a feeling of jealousy comes over the husband and he becomes jealous because of his wife who has defiled herself — or if a feeling of jealousy comes over him and he becomes jealous of her though she has not defiled herself — 15 then the man is to bring his wife to the priest. He is also to bring an offering for her of two quarts B of barley flour. He is not to pour oil over it or put frankincense on it because it is a •grain offering of jealousy, a grain offering for remembrance that brings sin to mind.

16 “The priest is to bring her forward and have her stand before the LORD.
17 Then the priest is to take holy water in a clay bowl, and take some of the dust from the tabernacle floor and put it in the water. 18 After the priest has the woman stand before the LORD, he is to let down her hair C and place in her hands the grain offering for remembrance, which is the grain offering of jealousy. The priest is to hold the bitter water that brings a curse. 19 The priest will require the woman to take an oath and will say to her, ‘If no man has slept with you, if you have not gone astray and become defiled while under your husband’s authority, be unaffected by this bitter water that brings a curse. 20 But if you have gone astray while under your husband’s authority, if you have defiled yourself and a man other than your husband has slept with you’ — 21 at this point the priest must make the woman take the oath with the sworn curse, and he is to say to her — ‘May the LORD make you into an object of your people’s cursing and swearing when He makes your thigh g shrivel and your belly swell. D 22 May this water that brings a curse enter your stomach, causing your belly to swell and your thigh to shrivel.’

“And the woman must reply, ‘•Amen , Amen.’

23 “Then the priest is to write these curses on a scroll and wash them off into the bitter water. 24 He will require the woman to drink the bitter water that brings a curse, and it will enter her and cause bitter suffering. 25 The priest is to take the grain offering of jealousy from the woman’s hand, wave the offering before the LORD, and bring it to the altar. 26 The priest is to take a handful of the grain offering as a memorial portion and burn it on the altar. Then he will require the woman to drink the water.

27 “When he makes her drink the water, if she has defiled herself and been unfaithful to her husband, the water that brings a curse will enter her and cause bitter suffering; her belly will swell, and her thigh will shrivel. She will become a curse among her people. 28 But if the woman has not defiled herself and is pure, she will be unaffected and will be able to conceive children.
29 “This is the law regarding jealousy when a wife goes astray and defiles herself while under her husband’s authority, 30 or when a feeling of jealousy comes over a husband and he becomes jealous of his wife. He is to have the woman stand before the LORD, and the priest will apply this entire ritual to her.
31 The husband will be free of guilt, but that woman will bear the consequences of her guilt.”

The Nazirite Vow

6 The Lord instructed Moses: 2 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When a man or woman makes a special vow, a Nazirite vow, [a] to consecrate himself to [A] the Lord, 3 he is to abstain [b] from wine and beer. [c] He must not drink vinegar made from wine or from beer. He must not drink any grape juice or eat fresh grapes or raisins. 4 He is not to eat anything produced by the grapevine, from seeds to skin, [B] during his vow.

5 “You must not cut his hair [C] throughout the time of his vow of consecration.
He must be holy until the time is completed during which he consecrates himself to the Lord; he is to let the hair of his head grow long. 6 He must not go near a dead body during the time he consecrates himself to the Lord. [d] 7 He is not to defile himself for his father or mother, or his brother or sister, when they die, because the hair consecrated to his God is on his head. 8 He is holy to the Lord [e] during the time of consecration.

9 “If someone suddenly dies near him, defiling his consecrated head of hair, he must shave his head on the day of his purification; he is to shave it on the seventh day. [f] 10 On the eighth day he is to bring two turtledoves or two young pigeons to the priest at the entrance to the tent of meeting. [g] 11 The priest is to offer one as a •sin offering and the other as a •burnt offering [h] to make •atonement on behalf of the Nazirite, since he sinned because of the corpse. On that day he must consecrate [D] his head again. [i] 12 He is to rededicate his time of consecration to the Lord and to bring a year-old male lamb as a •restitution offering. [j] But do not count the previous period, because his consecrated hair became defiled.

13 “This is the law of the Nazirite: On the day his time of consecration is completed, he must be brought to the entrance to the tent of meeting. [k] 14 He is to present an offering to the Lord [l] of one unblemished year-old male lamb as a burnt offering, one unblemished year-old female lamb as a sin offering, one unblemished ram as a •fellowship offering, [m] 15 along with their •grain offerings and •drink offerings, [n] and a basket of unleavened cakes made from fine flour mixed with oil, and unleavened wafers coated with oil. [o]

16 “The priest is to present these before the Lord and sacrifice the Nazirite’s sin offering and burnt offering. 17 He will also offer the ram as a fellowship sacrifice to the Lord, together with the basket of unleavened bread. Then the priest will offer the accompanying grain offering and drink offering.

18 “The Nazirite is to shave his consecrated head at the entrance to the tent of meeting, take the hair from his head, and put it on the fire under the fellowship sacrifice. 19 The priest is to take the boiled shoulder from the ram, one unleavened cake from the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and put them into the hands [p] of the Nazirite after he has shaved his consecrated head. 20 The priest is to wave them as a presentation offering before the LORD. [q] It is a holy portion for the priest, in addition to the breast of the presentation offering and the thigh of the contribution. [r] After that, the Nazirite may drink wine.

21 "This is the ritual of the Nazirite who vows his offering to the LORD for his consecration, [s] in addition to whatever else he can afford; he must fulfill whatever vow he makes in keeping with the ritual for his consecration."

The Priestly Blessing

22 The LORD spoke to Moses: 23 “Tell Aaron and his sons how you are to bless the Israelites. Say to them:

24 May •Yahweh bless you and protect you; [t]
25 may Yahweh make His face shine on you and be gracious to you; [u] 26 may Yahweh look with favor on you [E]
and give you peace. [F, v]

27 In this way they will pronounce My name over [G] the Israelites, and I will bless them.”

Offerings from the Leaders

7 On the day Moses finished setting up the tabernacle, [a] he anointed and consecrated it and all its furnishings, along with the altar and all its utensils.
After he anointed and consecrated these things, 2 the leaders of Israel, the heads of their ancestral houses, presented an offering. They were the tribal leaders who supervised the registration. [b] 3 They brought as their offering before the LORD six covered carts and 12 oxen, a cart from every two leaders and an ox from each one, and presented them in front of the tabernacle.

4 The LORD said to Moses, 5 "Accept these from them to be used in the work of the tent of meeting, and give this offering to the Levites, to each division according to their service."

6 So Moses took the carts and oxen and gave them to the Levites. 7 He gave the Gershonites two carts and four oxen corresponding to their service, [c] 8 and gave the Merarites four carts and eight oxen corresponding to their service, [d] under the direction of Ithamar son of Aaron the priest. 9 But he did not give any to the Kohathites, since their responsibility was service related to the holy objects [e] carried on their shoulders. [f]

10 The leaders also presented the dedication gift for the altar when it was anointed. [g] The leaders presented their offerings in front of the altar. 11 The LORD told Moses, "Each day have one leader present his offering for the dedication of the altar." [h]

12 The one who presented his offering on the first day was Nahshon son of Amminadab [i] from the tribe of Judah. 13 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [A] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [B] measured by the standard sanctuary •shekel , both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil for a •grain offering; [j] 14 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [C] full of incense; 15 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a •burnt offering; [k] 16 one male goat for a •sin offering; [l] 17 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the •fellowship sacrifice. [m] This was the offering of Nahshon son of Amminadab.

18 On the second day Nethanel son of Zuar, [n] leader of Issachar, presented an offering. 19 As his offering, he presented one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [D] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [E] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine
flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 20 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [F] full of incense; 21 one young bull, one ram, and one

male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 22 one male goat for a sin offering; 23 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Nethanel son of Zuar.

24 On the third day Eliab son of Helon, [o] leader of the Zebulunites, presented an offering. 25 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [G] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [H] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 26 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [I] full of incense; 27 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 28 one male goat for a sin offering; 29 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Eliab son of Helon.

30 On the fourth day Elizur son of Shedeur, [p] leader of the Reubenites, presented an offering. 31 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [J] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [K] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 32 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [L]
full of incense; 33 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 34 one male goat for a sin offering; 35 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Elizur son of Shedeur.

36 On the fifth day Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai, [q] leader of the Simeonites, presented an offering. 37 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [M] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [N]
measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine
flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 38 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [O] full of incense; 39 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 40 one male goat for a sin
offering; 41 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai.

42 On the sixth day Eliasaph son of Deuel, [r, s] leader of the Gadites, presented an offering. 43 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [P] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [Q] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 44 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [R]

full of incense; 45 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 46 one male goat for a sin offering; 47 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Eliasaph son of Deuel. [t]

48 On the seventh day Elishama son of Ammihud, [u] leader of the Ephraimites, presented an offering. 49 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [S] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [T]
measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine
flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 50 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [U] full of incense; 51 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 52 one male goat for a sin
offering; 53 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Elishama son of Ammihud.

54 On the eighth day Gamaliel son of Pedahzur, [v] leader of the Manassites, presented an offering. 55 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [V] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [W]
measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine
flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 56 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [X] full of incense; 57 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 58 one male goat for a sin
offering; 59 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Gamaliel son of Pedahzur.

60 On the ninth day Abidan son of Gideoni, [w] leader of the Benjaminites, presented an offering. 61 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [Y] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [Z]
measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine
flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 62 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [A] full of incense; 63 one young bull, one ram, and one

male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 64 one male goat for a sin
offering; 65 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Abidan son of Gideoni.

66 On the tenth day Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai, [x] leader of the Danites, presented an offering. 67 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [B] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [C]
measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine
flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 68 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [D] full of incense; 69 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 70 one male goat for a sin
offering; 71 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai.

72 On the eleventh day Pagiel son of Ochran, [y] leader of the Asherites, presented an offering. 73 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [E] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [F] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 74 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [G]
full of incense; 75 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 76 one male goat for a sin offering; 77 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Pagiel son of Ochran.

78 On the twelfth day Ahira son of Enan, [z] leader of the Naphtalites, presented an offering. 79 His offering was one silver dish weighing 3 1/4 pounds [H] and one silver basin weighing 1 3/4 pounds, [I] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel, both of them full of fine flour mixed with oil for a grain offering; 80 one gold bowl weighing four ounces, [J]
full of incense; 81 one young bull, one ram, and one male lamb a year old, for a burnt offering; 82 one male goat for a sin offering; 83 and two bulls, five rams, five male breeding goats, and five male lambs a year old, for the fellowship sacrifice. This was the offering of Ahira son of Enan.

84 This was the dedication gift from the leaders of Israel for the altar when it was anointed: [a] 12 silver dishes, 12 silver basins, and 12 gold bowls. 85 Each silver dish weighed 3 1/4 pounds, [K] and each basin 1 3/4 pounds. [L] The total weight of the silver articles was 60 pounds [M] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel. 86 The 12 gold bowls full of incense each weighed four ounces [N] measured by the standard sanctuary shekel. The total weight of the gold bowls was three pounds. [O] 87 All the livestock for the burnt offering [b] totaled 12 bulls, 12 rams, and 12 male lambs a year old, with their grain offerings, and 12 male goats for the sin offering. [c] 88 All the livestock for the fellowship sacrifice [d] totaled 24 bulls, 60 rams, 60 male breeding goats, and 60 male lambs a year old.

This was the dedication gift for the altar after it was anointed.

89 When Moses entered the tent of meeting to speak with the LORD, he heard the voice speaking to him [e] from above the •mercy seat that was on the ark of the •testimony , from between the two •cherubim . [f] He spoke to him that way.

The Lighting in the Tabernacle

8 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 "Speak to Aaron and tell him: When you set up the lamps, the seven lamps are to give light in front of the lampstand." 3 So Aaron did this; he set up its lamps to give light in front of the lampstand just as the LORD had commanded Moses. 4 This is the way the lampstand was made: it was a hammered work of gold, hammered from its base to its flower petals. The lampstand was made according to the pattern the LORD had shown Moses. [a]

Consecration of the Levites 5 The LORD spoke to Moses: 6 "Take the Levites from among the Israelites and ceremonially cleanse them. 7 This is what you must do to them for their purification: Sprinkle them with the purification water.
[b] Have them shave their entire bodies and wash their clothes, and so purify themselves. [c]

8 "They are to take a young bull and its •grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, and you are to take a second young bull for a •sin offering. 9 Bring the Levites before the tent of meeting and assemble the entire Israelite community. [d] 10 Then present the Levites before the LORD, and have the Israelites lay their hands on them. 11 Aaron is to present the Levites before the LORD as a presentation offering from the Israelites, so that they may perform the LORD's work. [e] 12 Next the Levites are to lay their hands on the heads of the bulls.
Sacrifice one as a sin offering and the other as a •burnt offering to the LORD, to make •atonement for the Levites. [f]

13 "You are to have the Levites stand before Aaron and his sons, and you are to present them before the LORD as a presentation offering. 14 In this way you are to separate the Levites from the rest of the Israelites so that the Levites will belong to Me. [g] 15 After that the Levites may come to serve at the tent of meeting, once you have ceremonially cleansed them and presented them as a presentation offering. [h] 16 For they have been exclusively assigned to Me from the Israelites. [i] I have taken them for Myself in place of all who come first from the womb, every Israelite firstborn. [j] 17 For every firstborn among the Israelites is Mine, both man and animal. I consecrated them to Myself [k] on the day I struck down every firstborn in the land of Egypt. 18 But I have taken the Levites in place of every firstborn among the Israelites. 19 From the Israelites, I have given the Levites exclusively to Aaron and his sons to perform the work for the Israelites at the tent of meeting and to make atonement on their behalf, so that no plague will come against the Israelites when they approach the sanctuary." [l]

20 Moses, Aaron, and the entire Israelite community did this to the Levites.

The Israelites did everything to them the LORD commanded Moses regarding the Levites. 21 The Levites purified themselves and washed their clothes; then Aaron presented [A] them before the LORD as a presentation offering. Aaron also made atonement for them to ceremonially cleanse them. 22 After that, the Levites came to do their work at the tent of meeting in the presence of Aaron and his sons. So they did to them as the LORD had commanded Moses concerning the Levites.

23 The LORD spoke to Moses: 24 “In regard to the Levites: From 25 years old or more, a man enters the service in the work at the tent of meeting. [m] 25 But at 50 years old he is to retire from his service in the work and no longer serve. 26 He may assist his brothers to fulfill responsibilities [B] at the tent of meeting, [n] but he must not do the work. This is how you are to deal with the Levites regarding their duties.”

The Second Passover

9 In the first month of the second year after their departure from the land of Egypt, the LORD told Moses in the Wilderness of Sinai: [a] 2 "The Israelites are to observe the •Passover at its appointed time. [b] 3 You must observe it at its appointed time on the fourteenth day of this month at twilight; you are to observe it according to all its statutes and ordinances." [c] 4 So Moses told the Israelites to observe the Passover, 5 and they observed it in the first month on the fourteenth day at twilight in the Wilderness of Sinai. The Israelites did everything as the LORD had commanded Moses.

6 But there were some men who were •unclean because of a human corpse, so they could not observe the Passover on that day. [d] These men came before Moses and Aaron the same day 7 and said to him, "We are unclean because of a human corpse. Why should we be excluded from presenting the LORD's offering at its appointed time with the other Israelites? "

8 Moses replied to them, "Wait here until I hear what the LORD commands for you."

9 Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 10 "Tell the Israelites: When any one of you or your descendants is unclean because of a corpse [e] or is on a distant journey, he may still observe the Passover to the LORD. 11 Such people are to observe it in the second month, on the fourteenth day at twilight. They are to eat the animal with unleavened bread and bitter herbs; [f] 12 they may not leave any of it until morning or break any of its bones. [g] They must observe the Passover according to all its statutes.

13 "But the man who is ceremonially •clean , is not on a journey, and yet fails to observe the Passover is to be cut off from his people, because he did not present the LORD's offering at its appointed time. That man will bear the consequences of his sin.

14 "If a foreigner resides with you and wants to observe the Passover to the LORD, [h] he is to do so according to the Passover statute and its ordinances. You are to apply the same statute to both the foreign resident and the native of the land." [i]

Guidance by the Cloud

15 On the day the tabernacle was set up, the cloud covered the tabernacle, the tent of the •testimony , [j] and it appeared like fire above the tabernacle from evening until morning. 16 It remained that way continuously: the cloud would cover it, [k] appearing like fire at night. [l] 17 Whenever the cloud was lifted up above the tent, the Israelites would set out; at the place where the cloud stopped, there the Israelites camped. [m] 18 At the LORD's command the Israelites set out, and at the LORD's command they camped. As long as the cloud stayed over the tabernacle, they camped.

19 Even when the cloud stayed over the tabernacle many days, the Israelites carried out the LORD's requirement and did not set out. 20 Sometimes the cloud remained over the tabernacle for only a few days. They would camp at the LORD's command and set out at the LORD's command. 21 Sometimes the cloud remained only from evening until morning; when the cloud lifted in the morning, they set out. Or if it remained a day and a night, they moved out when the cloud lifted. 22 Whether it was two days, a month, or longer, [A] the Israelites camped and did not set out as long as the cloud stayed over the tabernacle. But when it was lifted, they set out. 23 They camped at the LORD's command, and they set out at the LORD's command. They carried out the LORD's requirement according to His command through Moses.

Two Silver Trumpets

10 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Make two trumpets of hammered silver to summon the community [a] and have the camps set out. 3 When both are sounded in long blasts, the entire community is to gather before you at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 4 However, if one is sounded, only the leaders, the heads of Israel’s clans, [b] are to gather before you.

5 “When you sound short blasts, the camps pitched on the east [c] are to set out.
6 When you sound short blasts a second time, the camps pitched on the south [d] are to set out. Short blasts are to be sounded for them to set out. 7 When calling the assembly together, you are to sound long blasts, not short ones. 8 The sons of Aaron, the priests, are to sound the trumpets. Your use of these is a permanent statute throughout your generations.

9 “When you enter into battle in your land against an adversary who is attacking you, sound short blasts on the trumpets, and you will be remembered before the LORD your God and be delivered from your enemies. [e] 10 You are to sound the trumpets over your •burnt offerings and your •fellowship sacrifices and on your joyous occasions, your appointed festivals, and the beginning of each of your months. They will serve as a reminder for you before your God: I am •Yahweh your God.” [f]

From Sinai to Paran

11 During the second year, in the second month on the twentieth day of the month, the cloud was lifted up above the tabernacle of the •testimony . 12 The Israelites traveled on from the Wilderness of Sinai, moving from one place to the next [g] until the cloud stopped in the Wilderness of Paran. [h] 13 They set out for the first time according to the LORD's command through Moses. [i]

14 The military divisions of the camp of Judah with their banner set out first, and Nahshon son of Amminadab [j] was over Judah's divisions. 15 Nethanel son of Zuar [k] was over the division of the Issachar tribe, 16 and Eliab son of Helon was over the division of the Zebulun tribe. 17 The tabernacle was then taken down, and the Gershonites and the Merarites set out, transporting the tabernacle.

18 The military divisions of the camp of Reuben with their banner set out, and Elizur son of Shedeur was over Reuben's division. 19 Shelumiel son of Zurishaddai [l] was over the division of Simeon's tribe, 20 and Eliasaph son of Deuel was over the division of the tribe of Gad. 21 The Kohathites then set out, transporting the holy objects; [m] the tabernacle was to be set up before their arrival.

22 Next the military divisions of the camp of Ephraim with their banner set out, and Elishama son of Ammihud [n] was over Ephraim's division. 23 Gamaliel son of Pedahzur was over the division of the tribe of Manasseh, 24 and Abidan son of Gideoni was over the division of the tribe of Benjamin.

25 The military divisions of the camp of Dan with their banner set out, serving as rear guard for all the camps, and Ahiezer son of Ammishaddai [o] was over Dan's division. 26 Pagiel son of Ochran was over the division of the tribe of Asher, 27 and Ahira son of Enan was over the division of the tribe of Naphtali.
28 This was the order of march for the Israelites by their military divisions as they set out.

29 Moses said to Hobab, son of Moses' father-in-law [A] Reuel [p, q] the Midianite: "We're setting out for the place the LORD promised: 'I will give it to you.' [r] Come with us, and we will treat you well, for the LORD has promised good things to Israel." [s]

30 But he replied to him, "I don't want to go. Instead, I will go to my own land and my relatives."

31 "Please don't leave us," Moses said, "since you know where we should camp in the wilderness, and you can serve as our eyes. 32 If you come with us, whatever good the LORD does for us we will do for you." [t]

33 They set out from the mountain of the LORD on a three-day journey with the ark of the LORD's covenant traveling ahead of them for those three days to seek a resting place for them. [u] 34 Meanwhile, the cloud of the LORD was over them by day when they set out from the camp.
35 Whenever the ark set out, Moses would say:
Arise, LORD!
Let Your enemies be scattered,
and those who hate You flee from Your presence. [v] 36 When it came to rest, he would say:
Return, LORD,
to the countless thousands of Israel. [w]

Complaints about Hardship

11 Now the people began complaining openly before [A] the LORD about hardship. When the LORD heard, His anger burned, [a] and fire [b] from the LORD blazed among them and consumed the outskirts of the camp. 2 Then the people cried out to Moses, and he prayed to the LORD, and the fire died down.
3 So that place was named Taberah, [c, d] because the LORD's fire had blazed among them.

Complaints about Food 4 Contemptible people [B] among them [e] had a strong craving [f] for other food. The Israelites cried again and said, "Who will feed us meat? 5 We remember the free fish we ate in Egypt, [g] along with the cucumbers, melons, leeks, onions, and garlic. 6 But now our appetite is gone; [C] there's nothing to look at but this manna! "

7 The manna [h] resembled coriander seed, and its appearance was like that of bdellium. [i] 8 The people walked around and gathered it. They ground it on a pair of grinding stones or crushed it in a mortar, then boiled it in a cooking pot and shaped it into cakes. It tasted like a pastry cooked with the finest oil. 9 When the dew fell on the camp at night, the manna would fall with it. [j]

10 Moses heard the people, family after family, crying at the entrance of their tents. The LORD was very angry; [k] Moses was also provoked. [D] 11 So Moses asked the LORD, "Why have You brought such trouble on Your servant? Why are You angry with me, and why do You burden me with all these people? [l] 12 Did I conceive all these people? Did I give them birth so You should tell me, 'Carry them at your breast, as a nursing woman carries a baby,' [m] to the land that You [n] swore to give their fathers? [o] 13 Where can I get meat to give all these people? For they are crying to me: 'Give us meat to eat! ' 14 I can't carry all these people by myself. They are too much for me. 15 If You are going to treat me like this, please kill me right now. [p] If You are pleased with me, [q] don't let me see my misery [r] anymore."

Seventy Elders Anointed 16 The LORD answered Moses, "Bring Me 70 men from Israel known to you as elders and officers of the people. Take them to the tent of meeting and have them stand there with you. 17 Then I will come down and speak with you there. I will take some of the Spirit who is on you and put the Spirit on them. [s] They will help you bear the burden of the people, so that you do not have to bear it by yourself. [t]

18 "Tell the people: Purify yourselves in readiness for tomorrow, and you will eat meat because you cried before the LORD: ‘Who will feed us meat? We really had it good in Egypt.’ The LORD will give you meat and you will eat. 19 You will eat, not for one day, or two days, or five days, or 10 days, or 20 days, 20 but for a whole month — until it comes out of your nostrils and becomes nauseating to you — because you have rejected the LORD who is among you, and cried to Him: ‘Why did we ever leave Egypt? ’ ” [u]

21 But Moses replied, “I’m in the middle of a people with 600,000 foot soldiers, [v] yet You say, ‘I will give them meat, and they will eat for a month.’ 22 If flocks and herds were slaughtered for them, would they have enough? Or if all the fish in the sea were caught for them, would they have enough? ” [w]

23 The LORD answered Moses, “Is the LORD’s power limited? [E, x] You will see whether or not what I have promised will happen to you.”

24 Moses went out and told the people the words of the LORD. He brought 70 men from the elders of the people and had them stand around the tent. 25 Then the LORD descended in the cloud and spoke to him. [y] He took some of the Spirit that was on Moses and placed the Spirit on the 70 elders. As the Spirit rested on them, they prophesied, [z] but they never did it again. 26 Two men had remained in the camp, one named Eldad and the other Medad; the Spirit rested on them — they were among those listed, but had not gone out to the tent — and they prophesied in the camp. 27 A young man ran and reported to Moses, “Eldad and Medad are prophesying in the camp.”

28 Joshua son of Nun, assistant to Moses since his youth, [a] responded, “Moses, my lord, stop them! ”

29 But Moses asked him, “Are you jealous on my account? [b] If only all the LORD’s people were prophets and the LORD would place His Spirit on them!” 30 Then Moses returned to the camp along with the elders of Israel.

Quail in the Camp

31 A wind sent by the LORD [c] came up and blew quail in from the sea; it dropped them at the camp all around, three feet [F] off [G] the ground, about a day's journey in every direction. [d] 32 The people were up all that day and night and all the next day gathering the quail — the one who took the least gathered 50 bushels [H] — and they spread them out all around the camp. [e, f]

33 While the meat was still between their teeth, before it was chewed, the LORD's anger burned [g] against the people, and the LORD struck them with a very severe plague. [h] 34 So they named that place Kibroth-hattaavah, [i] because there they buried the people who had craved the meat.

35 From Kibroth-hattaavah the people moved on to Hazeroth [j, k] and remained there.

Miriam and Aaron Rebel

12 Miriam [a] and Aaron criticized Moses because of the •Cushite [b, c] woman he married (for he had married a Cushite woman). 2 They said, “Does the LORD speak only through Moses? Does He not also speak through us? ” And the LORD heard it. 3 Moses was a very humble man, more so than any man on the face of the earth.

4 Suddenly the LORD said to Moses, Aaron, and Miriam, “You three come out to the tent of meeting.” So the three of them went out. 5 Then the LORD descended in a pillar of cloud, [d] stood at the entrance to the tent, and summoned Aaron and Miriam. When the two of them came forward, 6 He said:

“Listen to what I say:
If there is a prophet among you from the LORD,
I make Myself known to him in a vision; [e]
I speak with him in a dream.
7 Not so with My servant Moses;
he is faithful in [A] all My household. [f] 8 I speak with him [g] directly, [B] openly, and not in riddles;
he sees the form of the LORD. [h]

So why were you not afraid to speak against My servant Moses? ” 9 The LORD’s anger burned against them, [i] and He left.

10 As the cloud moved away from the tent, Miriam’s skin suddenly became diseased, as white as snow. When Aaron turned toward her, he saw that she was diseased 11 and said to Moses, “My lord, please don’t hold against us this sin we have so foolishly committed. 12 Please don’t let her be like a dead baby [j] whose flesh is half eaten away when he comes out of his mother’s womb.”

13 Then Moses cried out to the LORD, “God, please heal her! ” [k]

14 The LORD answered Moses, “If her father had merely spit in her face, wouldn’t she remain in disgrace for seven days? Let her be confined outside the camp [l] for seven days; [m] after that she may be brought back in.” 15 So Miriam was confined outside the camp for seven days, and the people did not move on until Miriam was brought back in. [n] 16 After that, the people set out from Hazeroth and camped in the Wilderness of Paran.

Scouting Out Canaan

13 The LORD spoke to Moses: 2 “Send men to scout out the land of Canaan [a] I am giving to the Israelites. Send one man who is a leader among them from each of their ancestral tribes.” 3 Moses sent them from the Wilderness of Paran at the LORD’s command. All the men were leaders in Israel. [b] 4 These were their names:

Shammua son of Zaccur from the tribe of Reuben;
5 Shaphat son of Hori from the tribe of Simeon;
6 Caleb [c] son of Jephunneh from the tribe of Judah;
7 Igal son of Joseph from the tribe of Issachar;
8 Hoshea son of Nun [d] from the tribe of Ephraim;
9 Palti son of Raphu from the tribe of Benjamin;
10 Gaddiel son of Sodi from the tribe of Zebulun;
11 Gaddi son of Susi from the tribe of Manasseh (from the tribe of Joseph);
12 Ammiel son of Gemalli from the tribe of Dan;
13 Sethur son of Michael from the tribe of Asher;
14 Nahbi son of Vophsi from the tribe of Naphtali;
15 Geuel son of Machi from the tribe of Gad.

16 These were the names of the men Moses sent to scout out the land, and Moses renamed Hoshea son of Nun, Joshua.
17 When Moses sent them to scout out the land of Canaan, he told them, “Go up this way to the •Negev , then go up into the hill country. 18 See what the land is like, and whether the people who live there are strong or weak, few or many.
19 Is the land they live in good [e] or bad? Are the cities they live in encampments or fortifications? [f] 20 Is the land fertile or unproductive? [g] Are there trees in it or not? Be courageous. Bring back some fruit from the land.” It was the season for the first ripe grapes. [h] 21 So they went up and scouted out the land from the Wilderness of Zin [i] as far as Rehob [j] near the entrance to Hamath. [A] 22 They went up through the Negev and came to Hebron, where Ahiman, Sheshai, and Talmai, the descendants of Anak, [k] were living. Hebron was built seven years before Zoan [l] in Egypt. 23 When they came to the Valley of Eshcol, [m] they cut down a branch with a single cluster of grapes, which was carried on a pole by two men. They also took some pomegranates and figs. [n] 24 That place was called the Valley of Eshcol [o] because of the cluster of grapes the Israelites cut there. 25 At the end of 40 days [p] they returned from scouting out the land.

Report about Canaan

26 The men went back to Moses, Aaron, and the entire Israelite community in the Wilderness of Paran at Kadesh. They brought back a report for them and the whole community, and they showed them the fruit of the land. [q] 27 They reported to Moses: “We went into the land where you sent us. Indeed it is flowing with milk and honey, [r] and here is some of its fruit. 28 However, the people living in the land are strong, and the cities are large and fortified. [s] We also saw the descendants of Anak [t] there. 29 The Amalekites [u] are living in the land of the Negev; the Hittites, Jebusites, and Amorites live in the hill country; and the Canaanites live by the sea and along the Jordan.”

30 Then Caleb [v] quieted the people in the presence of Moses and said, “We must go up and take possession of the land because we can certainly conquer it! ”

31 But the men who had gone up with him responded, “We can’t go up against the people because they are stronger than we are! ” 32 So they gave a negative report to the Israelites about the land they had scouted: “The land we passed through to explore is one that devours its inhabitants, and all the people we saw in it are men of great size. 33 We even saw the Nephilim [w, x] there — the descendants of Anak come from the Nephilim! [y] To ourselves we seemed like grasshoppers, and we must have seemed the same to them.”

Israel's Refusal to Enter Canaan

14 Then the whole community broke into loud cries, and the people wept that night. 2 All the Israelites complained about Moses and Aaron, [a] and the whole community told them, "If only we had died in the land of Egypt, or if only we had died in this wilderness! 3 Why is the LORD bringing us into this land to die by the sword? Our wives and little children will become plunder. [b] Wouldn't it be better for us to go back to Egypt? " [c] 4 So they said to one another, "Let's appoint a leader and go back to Egypt."

5 Then Moses and Aaron fell down with their faces to the ground in front of the whole assembly of the Israelite community. 6 Joshua son of Nun and Caleb son of Jephunneh, who were among those who scouted out the land, tore their clothes 7 and said to the entire Israelite community: "The land we passed through and explored is an extremely good land. [d] 8 If the LORD is pleased with us, He will bring us into this land, a land flowing with milk and honey, [e] and give it to us. 9 Only don't rebel against the LORD, and don't be afraid of the people of the land, for we will devour them. [f] Their protection [g] has been removed from them, and the LORD is with us. Don't be afraid of them! "

10 While the whole community threatened to stone them, [h] the glory of the LORD appeared to all the Israelites at the tent of meeting.

God's Judgment of Israel's Rebellion 11 The LORD said to Moses, "How long will these people despise Me? How long will they not trust in Me despite all the signs I have performed among them? [i] 12 I will strike them with a plague and destroy them. Then I will make you into a greater and mightier nation than they are." [j]

13 But Moses replied to the LORD, "The Egyptians will hear about it, for by Your strength You brought up this people from them. 14 They will tell it to the inhabitants of this land. [k] They have heard that You, LORD, are among these people, how You, LORD, are seen face to face, how Your cloud stands over them, and how You go before them in a pillar of cloud by day and in a pillar of fire by night. [l] 15 If You kill this people with a single blow, [A,] [m] the nations that have heard of Your fame [n] will declare, 16 'Since the LORD wasn't able to bring this people into the land He swore to give them, [o] He has slaughtered them in the wilderness.' [p]

17 "So now, may my Lord's power be magnified just as You have spoken:
18 The LORD is slow to anger and rich in faithful love, [q] forgiving wrongdoing and rebellion. [r] But He will not leave the •guilty unpunished, [s] bringing the consequences of the fathers' wrongdoing on the children to the third and fourth generation. [t] [19] Please pardon the wrongdoing of this people, in keeping with the greatness of Your faithful love, [u] just as You have forgiven them from Egypt until now."

[20] The LORD responded, "I have pardoned them as you requested. [21] Yet as surely as I live and as the whole earth is filled with the LORD's glory, [v] [22] none of the men who have seen My glory and the signs I performed in Egypt and in the wilderness, and have tested Me these 10 times and did not obey Me, [23] will ever see the land I swore to give their fathers. [w] None of those who have despised Me [x] will see it. [24] But since My servant Caleb has a different spirit and has followed Me completely, I will bring him into the land where he has gone, and his descendants will inherit it. [y] [25] Since the Amalekites and Canaanites are living in the lowlands, [B] turn back tomorrow and head for the wilderness in the direction of the •Red Sea." [z]

[26] Then the LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron: [27] "How long must I endure this evil community that keeps complaining about Me? I have heard the Israelites' complaints that they make against Me. [a] [28] Tell them: As surely as I live," this is the LORD's declaration, "I will do to you exactly as I heard you say. [29] Your corpses will fall in this wilderness — all of you who were registered in the census, the entire number of you 20 years old or more [b] — because you have complained about Me. [30] I swear that none of you will enter the land I promised [C] to settle you in, except Caleb son of Jephunneh and Joshua son of Nun. [31] I will bring your children whom you said would become plunder [c] into the land you rejected, and they will enjoy it. [d] [32] But as for you, your corpses will fall in this wilderness. [33] Your children will be shepherds in the wilderness for 40 years and bear the penalty for your acts of unfaithfulness until all your corpses lie scattered in the wilderness. [34] You will bear the consequences of your sins 40 years based on the number of the 40 days that you scouted the land, a year for each day. [D, e] You will know My displeasure. [E] [35] I, •Yahweh , have spoken. I swear that I will do this to the entire evil community that has conspired against Me. [f] They will come to an end in the wilderness, and there they will die." [g]

[36] So the men Moses sent to scout out the land, and who returned and incited the entire community to complain about him by spreading a negative report about the land — [37] those men who spread the negative report about the land were struck down by the LORD. [38] Only Joshua son of Nun and Caleb son of Jephunneh remained alive of those men who went to scout out the land.

Israel Routed

39 When Moses reported these words to all the Israelites, the people were overcome with grief. 40 They got up early the next morning and went up the ridge of the hill country, saying, “Let’s go to the place the LORD promised, for we were wrong.” [h]

41 But Moses responded, “Why are you going against the LORD’s command? It won’t succeed. 42 Don’t go, because the LORD is not among you and you will be defeated by your enemies. 43 The Amalekites and Canaanites are right in front of you, and you will fall by the sword. The LORD won’t be with you, since you have turned from following Him.”

44 But they dared to go up the ridge of the hill country, even though the ark of the LORD’s covenant and Moses did not leave the camp. 45 Then the Amalekites and Canaanites who lived in that part of the hill country came down, attacked them, and routed them as far as Hormah. [i]

Laws About Offerings

15 The Lord instructed Moses: 2 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When you enter the land I am giving you to settle in, 3 and you make a fire offering to the Lord from the herd or flock — either a •burnt offering or a sacrifice, to fulfill a vow, [a] or as a freewill offering, or at your appointed festivals — to produce a pleasing aroma for the Lord, 4 the one presenting his offering to the Lord must also present a •grain offering of two quarts [A] of fine flour mixed with a quart [B] of oil. 5 Prepare a quart [C] of wine as a •drink offering with the burnt offering or sacrifice of each lamb.

6 “If you prepare a grain offering with a ram, it must be four quarts [D] of fine flour mixed with a third of a gallon [E] of oil. 7 Also present a third of a gallon [F] of wine for a drink offering as a pleasing aroma to the Lord.

8 “If you prepare a young bull as a burnt offering or as a sacrifice, to fulfill a vow, or as a •fellowship offering to the Lord, 9 a grain offering of six quarts [G] of fine flour mixed with two quarts [H] of oil must be presented with the bull. 10 Also present two quarts [I] of wine as a drink offering. It is a fire offering of pleasing aroma to the Lord. 11 This is to be done for each ox, ram, lamb, or goat. 12 This is how you must prepare each of them, no matter how many.

13 “Every Israelite is to prepare these things in this way when he presents a fire offering as a pleasing aroma to the Lord. 14 When a foreigner resides with you or someone else is among you and wants to prepare a fire offering as a pleasing aroma to the Lord, he is to do exactly as you do throughout your generations.
15 The assembly is to have the same statute for [b] both you and the foreign resident as a permanent statute throughout your generations. You and the foreigner will be alike before the Lord. 16 The same law and the same ordinance will apply to both you and the foreigner who resides with you.” [c]

17 The Lord instructed Moses: 18 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: After you enter the land where I am bringing you, 19 you are to offer a contribution to the Lord when you eat from the food of the land. 20 You are to offer a loaf from your first batch of dough [d] as a contribution; offer it just like a contribution from the threshing floor. [e] 21 Throughout your generations, you are to give the Lord a contribution from the first batch of your dough.

22 “When you sin unintentionally and do not obey all these commands that the Lord spoke to Moses [f] — 23 all that the Lord has commanded you through Moses, from the day the Lord issued the commands and onward throughout your generations — 24 and if it was done unintentionally without the community’s awareness, the entire community is to prepare one young bull for a burnt offering as a pleasing aroma to the LORD, with its grain offering and drink offering according to the regulation, and one male goat as a •sin offering. 25 The priest must then make •atonement for the entire Israelite community so that they may be forgiven, for the sin was unintentional. They are to bring their offering, one made by fire to the LORD, and their sin offering before the LORD for their unintentional sin. 26 The entire Israelite community and the foreigner who resides among them will be forgiven, since it happened to all the people unintentionally.

27 "If one person sins unintentionally, [g] he is to present a year-old female goat as a sin offering. 28 The priest must then make atonement before the LORD on behalf of the person who acts in error sinning unintentionally, and when he makes atonement for him, he will be forgiven. 29 You are to have the same law for the person who acts in error, whether he is an Israelite or a foreigner who lives among you.

30 "But the person who acts defiantly, [J] whether native or foreign resident, blasphemes the LORD. [h] That person is to be cut off from his people. 31 He will certainly be cut off, because he has despised the LORD's word and broken His command; his •guilt remains on him."

Sabbath Violation

32 While the Israelites were in the wilderness, they found a man gathering wood on the Sabbath day. [i] 33 Those who found him gathering wood brought him to Moses, Aaron, and the entire community. 34 They placed him in custody because it had not been decided what should be done to him. 35 Then the LORD told Moses, “The man is to be put to death. The entire community is to stone him outside the camp.” 36 So the entire community brought him outside the camp and stoned him to death, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

Tassels for Remembrance

37 The LORD said to Moses, 38 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them that throughout their generations they are to make tassels [j] for the corners of their garments, and put a blue cord on the tassel at each corner. 39 These will serve as tassels for you to look at, so that you may remember all the LORD’s commands and obey them and not become unfaithful by following your own heart and your own eyes. 40 This way you will remember and obey all My commands and be holy to your God. 41 I am •Yahweh your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt to be your God; I am Yahweh your God.” [k]

Korah Incites Rebellion

16 Now Korah son of Izhar, son of Kohath, son of Levi, [a] with Dathan and Abiram, [b] sons of Eliab, and On son of Peleth, sons of Reuben, took [2] 250 prominent Israelite men who were leaders of the community and representatives in the assembly, and they rebelled against Moses. [3] They came together against Moses and Aaron and told them, "You have gone too far! [A] Everyone in the entire community is holy, and the LORD is among them. [c] Why then do you exalt yourselves above the LORD's assembly? "

[4] When Moses heard this, he fell facedown. [5] Then he said to Korah and all his followers, "Tomorrow morning the LORD will reveal who belongs to Him, who is set apart, and the one He will let come near [d] Him. He will let the one He chooses come near Him. [6] Korah, you and all your followers are to do this: take firepans, and tomorrow [7] place fire in them and put incense on them before the LORD. [e] Then the man the LORD chooses will be the one who is set apart. [f] It is you Levites who have gone too far! " [B]

[8] Moses also told Korah, "Now listen, Levites! [9] Isn't it enough for you that the God of Israel has separated you from the Israelite community to bring you near to Himself, to perform the work at the LORD's tabernacle, and to stand before the community to minister to them? [10] He has brought you near, and all your fellow Levites who are with you, but you are seeking the priesthood as well. [11] Therefore, it is you and all your followers who have conspired against the LORD! [g] As for Aaron, who is he [C] that you should complain about him? "

[12] Moses sent for Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab, but they said, "We will not come! [13] Is it not enough that you brought us up from a land flowing with milk and honey to kill us in the wilderness? Do you also have to appoint yourself as ruler over us? [14] Furthermore, you didn't bring us to a land flowing with milk and honey or give us an inheritance of fields and vineyards. Will you gouge out the eyes of these men? We will not come! "

[15] Then Moses became angry and said to the LORD, "Don't respect their offering. I have not taken one donkey from them or mistreated a single one of them." [16] So Moses told Korah, "You and all your followers are to appear before the LORD tomorrow — you, they, and Aaron. [17] Each of you is to take his firepan, place incense on it, and present his firepan before the LORD — 250 firepans. You and Aaron are each to present your firepan also."

[18] Each man took his firepan, placed fire in it, put incense on it, and stood at the entrance to the tent of meeting along with Moses and Aaron. [19] After Korah assembled the whole community against them at the entrance to the tent of meeting, the glory of the LORD appeared to the whole community. 20 The LORD spoke to Moses and Aaron, 21 “Separate yourselves from this community so I may consume them instantly.” h 22 But Moses and Aaron fell facedown and said, “God, God of the spirits D, i of all flesh, when one man sins, will You vent Your wrath on the whole community? ” j 23 The LORD replied to Moses, 24 “Tell the community: Get away from the dwellings of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram.” 25 Moses got up and went to Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel followed him. 26 He warned the community, “Get away now from the tents of these wicked men. Don’t touch anything that belongs to them, or you will be swept away because of all their sins.” 27 So they got away from the dwellings of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. Meanwhile, Dathan and Abiram came out and stood at the entrance of their tents with their wives, children, and infants.

28 Then Moses said, “This is how you will know that the LORD sent me k to do all these things and that it was not of my own will: 29 If these men die naturally as all people would, and suffer the fate of all, then the LORD has not sent me.
30 But if the LORD brings about something unprecedented, and the ground opens its mouth and swallows them along with all that belongs to them so that they go down alive into •Sheol , then you will know that these men have despised the LORD.”
31 Just as he finished speaking all these words, the ground beneath them split open. 32 The earth opened its mouth and swallowed them and their households, all Korah’s people, l and all their possessions. 33 They went down alive into Sheol with all that belonged to them. The earth closed over them, and they vanished from the assembly. 34 At their cries, all the people of Israel who were around them fled because they thought, “The earth may swallow us too! ” 35 Fire also came out from the LORD and consumed the 250 men who were presenting the incense. m 36 n Then the LORD spoke to Moses: 37 “Tell Eleazar son of Aaron the priest to remove the firepans from the burning debris, because they are holy, and scatter the fire far away. 38 As for the firepans of those who sinned at the cost of their own lives, make them into hammered sheets as plating for the altar, for they presented them before the LORD, and the firepans are holy. They will be a sign to the Israelites.”
39 So Eleazar the priest took the bronze firepans that those who were burned had presented, and they were hammered into plating for the altar, 40 just as the LORD commanded him through Moses. It was to be a reminder for the Israelites that no unauthorized person outside the lineage of Aaron should approach to offer incense before the LORD [o] and become like Korah and his followers.

41 The next day the entire Israelite community complained about Moses and Aaron, [p] saying, “You have killed the LORD’s people! ” 42 When the community assembled against them, Moses and Aaron turned toward the tent of meeting, and suddenly the cloud covered it, and the LORD’s glory appeared.

43 Moses and Aaron went to the front of the tent of meeting, 44 and the LORD said to Moses, 45 “Get away from this community so that I may consume them instantly.” [q] But they fell facedown.

46 Then Moses told Aaron, “Take your firepan, place fire from the altar in it, and add incense. Go quickly to the community and make •atonement for them, because wrath has come from the LORD; the plague has begun.” 47 So Aaron took his firepan as Moses had ordered, ran into the middle of the assembly, and saw that the plague had begun among the people. After he added incense, he made atonement for the people. 48 He stood between the dead and the living, and the plague was halted. 49 But those who died from the plague numbered 14,700, in addition to those who died because of the Korah incident. 50 Aaron then returned to Moses at the entrance to the tent of meeting, since the plague had been halted. [r]

Chapter 17 [a] Aaron's Staff Chosen

[1]The LORD instructed Moses: [2] "Speak to the Israelites and take one staff from them for each ancestral house, 12 staffs from all the leaders of their ancestral houses. Write each man's name on his staff. [3] Write Aaron's name on Levi's staff, because there must be one staff for the head of each ancestral house. [4] Then place them in the tent of meeting in front of the •testimony where I meet with you. [5] The staff of the man I choose will sprout, and I will rid Myself of the Israelites' complaints that they have been making about you."

[6] So Moses spoke to the Israelites, and each of their leaders gave him a staff, one for each of the leaders of their ancestral houses, 12 staffs in all. Aaron's staff was among them. [7] Moses placed the staffs before the LORD in the tent of the testimony.

[8] The next day Moses entered the tent of the testimony and saw that Aaron's staff, representing the house of Levi, had sprouted, formed buds, blossomed, and produced almonds! [9] Moses then brought out all the staffs from the LORD's presence to all the Israelites. They saw them, and each man took his own staff. [10] The LORD told Moses, "Put Aaron's staff back in front of the testimony to be kept as a sign [b] for the rebels, so that you may put an end to their complaints before Me, or else they will die." [11] So Moses did as the LORD commanded him.

[12] Then the Israelites declared to Moses, "Look, we're perishing! We're lost; we're all lost! [13] Anyone who comes near the LORD's tabernacle will die. [c] Will we all perish? "

Provision for the Priesthood

18 The LORD said to Aaron, "You, your sons, and your ancestral house [a] will be responsible for sin against the sanctuary. You and your sons will be responsible for sin involving your priesthood. 2 But also bring your relatives with you from the tribe of Levi, your ancestral tribe, so they may join you and assist you and your sons in front of the tent of the •testimony . [b] 3 They are to perform duties for you and for the whole tent. They must not come near the sanctuary equipment or the altar; otherwise, both they and you will die. 4 They are to join you and guard the tent of meeting, doing all the work at the tent, but no unauthorized person may come near you.

5 "You are to guard the sanctuary and the altar so that wrath may not fall on the Israelites again. [c] 6 Look, I have selected your fellow Levites from the Israelites as a gift for you, [d] assigned by the LORD to work at the tent of meeting. 7 But you and your sons will carry out your priestly responsibilities for everything concerning the altar and for what is inside the veil, and you will do that work. I am giving you the work of the priesthood as a gift, [A] but an unauthorized person who comes near the sanctuary will be put to death."

Support for the Priests and Levites 8 Then the LORD spoke to Aaron, "Look, I have put you in charge of the contributions brought to Me. As for all the holy offerings of the Israelites, I have given them to you and your sons as a portion and a permanent statute. [e] 9 A portion of the holiest offerings kept from the fire will be yours; every one of their offerings that they give Me, whether the •grain offering, •sin offering, or •restitution offering will be most holy for you and your sons. 10 You are to eat it as a most holy offering. [B] Every male may eat it; it is to be holy to you.

11 "The contribution of their gifts also belongs to you. I have given all the Israelites' presentation offerings to you and to your sons and daughters as a permanent statute. [f] Every ceremonially •clean person in your house may eat it. 12 I am giving you all the best of the fresh olive oil, new wine, and grain, which the Israelites give to the LORD as their •firstfruits . 13 The firstfruits of all that is in their land, which they bring to the LORD, belong to you. Every clean person in your house may eat them.

14 "Everything in Israel that is permanently dedicated to the LORD [g] belongs to you. 15 The firstborn of every living thing, man or animal, presented to the LORD belongs to you. But you must certainly redeem the firstborn of man, [h] and redeem the firstborn of an •unclean animal. 16 You will pay the redemption price for a month-old male according to your assessment: five •shekels of silver by the standard sanctuary shekel, which is 20 gerahs. [i]

17 “However, you must not redeem the firstborn of an ox, a sheep, or a goat; they are holy. You are to sprinkle their blood on the altar and burn their fat as a fire offering for a pleasing aroma to the Lord. 18 But their meat belongs to you.
It belongs to you like the breast of the presentation offering and the right thigh.
19 “I give to you and to your sons and daughters all the holy contributions that the Israelites present to the Lord as a permanent statute. It is a permanent covenant of salt [j] before the Lord for you as well as your •offspring .” 20 The Lord told Aaron, “You will not have an inheritance in their land; there will be no portion among them for you. I am your portion and your inheritance among the Israelites. [k] 21 “Look, I have given the Levites every tenth in Israel as an inheritance in return for the work they do, the work of the tent of meeting. 22 The Israelites must never again come near the tent of meeting, or they will incur •guilt and die.
23 The Levites will do the work of the tent of meeting, and they will bear the consequences of their sin. The Levites will not receive an inheritance among the Israelites; [l] this is a permanent statute throughout your generations. 24 For I have given them the tenth that the Israelites present to the Lord as a contribution for their inheritance. That is why I told them that they would not receive an inheritance among the Israelites.” 25 The Lord instructed Moses, 26 “Speak to the Levites and tell them: When you receive from the Israelites the tenth that I have given you as your inheritance, you must present part of it as an offering to the Lord — a tenth of the tenth. 27 Your offering will be credited to you as if it were your grain from the threshing floor or the full harvest from the winepress. 28 You are to present an offering to the Lord from every tenth you receive from the Israelites. Give some of it to Aaron the priest as an offering to the Lord. 29 You must present the entire offering due the Lord from all your gifts. The best part of the tenth [m] is to be consecrated.
30 “Tell them further: Once you have presented the best part of the tenth, and it is credited to you Levites as the produce of the threshing floor or the winepress, 31 then you and your household may eat it anywhere. It is your wage in return for your work at the tent of meeting. 32 You will not incur guilt because of it once you have presented the best part of it, but you must not defile the Israelites’ holy offerings, so that you will not die.”

Purification Ritual

19 The Lord spoke to Moses and Aaron, 2 “This is the legal statute that the Lord has commanded: Instruct the Israelites to bring you an unblemished red cow that has no defect and has never been yoked. [a] 3 Give it to Eleazar the priest, and he will have it brought outside the camp and slaughtered in his presence. 4 Eleazar the priest is to take some of its blood with his finger and sprinkle it seven times toward the front of the tent of meeting. 5 The cow must be burned in his sight. Its hide, flesh, and blood, are to be burned along with its dung. 6 The priest is to take cedar wood, hyssop, and crimson yarn, [b] and throw them onto the fire where the cow is burning. 7 Then the priest must wash his clothes and bathe his body in water; after that he may enter the camp, but he will remain ceremonially •unclean until evening. 8 The one who burned the cow must also wash his clothes and bathe his body in water, and he will remain unclean until evening.

9 “A man who is •clean is to gather up the cow’s ashes and deposit them outside the camp in a ceremonially clean place. The ashes must be kept by the Israelite community for preparing the water to remove impurity; it is a •sin offering. [c] 10 Then the one who gathers up the cow’s ashes must wash his clothes, and he will remain unclean until evening. This is a permanent statute for the Israelites and for the foreigner who resides among them.

11 “The person who touches any human corpse will be unclean for seven days.
12 He is to purify himself with the water [A] on the third day and the seventh day;
then he will be clean. [d] But if he does not purify himself on the third and seventh days, he will not be clean. 13 Anyone who touches a body of a person who has died, and does not purify himself, defiles the tabernacle of the Lord. That person will be cut off from Israel. He remains unclean because the water for impurity has not been sprinkled on him, and his uncleanness is still on him.

14 “This is the law when a person dies in a tent: everyone who enters the tent and everyone who is already in the tent will be unclean for seven days, 15 and any open container without a lid tied on it is unclean. 16 Anyone in the open field who touches a person who has been killed by the sword or has died, or who even touches a human bone, or a grave, will be unclean for seven days. 17 For the purification of the unclean person, they are to take some of the ashes of the burnt sin offering, put them in a jar, and add fresh water to them. 18 A person who is clean is to take hyssop, dip it in the water, and sprinkle the tent, all the furnishings, and the people who were there. He is also to sprinkle the one who touched a bone, a grave, a corpse, or a person who had been killed.

19 “The one who is clean is to sprinkle the unclean person on the third day and the seventh day. After he purifies the unclean person on the seventh day, the one being purified must wash his clothes and bathe in water, and he will be clean by evening. 20 But a person who is unclean and does not purify himself, that person will be cut off from the assembly because he has defiled the sanctuary of the LORD. [e] The water for impurity has not been sprinkled on him; he is unclean. 21 This is a permanent statute for them. The person who sprinkles the water for impurity is to wash his clothes, and whoever touches the water for impurity will be unclean until evening. 22 Anything the unclean person touches will become unclean, and anyone who touches it will be unclean until evening.”

Water from the Rock

20 The entire Israelite community entered the Wilderness of Zin in the first month, and they [A] settled in Kadesh. Miriam [a] died and was buried there.
2 There was no water for the community, so they assembled against Moses and Aaron. 3 The people quarreled with Moses and said, “If only we had perished when our brothers perished before the Lord. [b] 4 Why have you brought the Lord’s assembly into this wilderness for us and our livestock to die here? 5 Why have you led us up from Egypt to bring us to this evil place? It’s not a place of grain, figs, vines, and pomegranates, [c] and there is no water to drink! ” 6 Then Moses and Aaron went from the presence of the assembly to the doorway of the tent of meeting. They fell down with their faces to the ground, and the glory of the Lord appeared to them. 7 The Lord spoke to Moses, 8 “Take the staff [d] and assemble the community. You and your brother Aaron are to speak to the rock while they watch, and it will yield its water. You will bring out water for them from the rock and provide drink for the community and their livestock.”
9 So Moses took the staff from the Lord’s presence [e] just as He had commanded him. 10 Moses and Aaron summoned the assembly in front of the rock, and Moses said to them, “Listen, you rebels! Must we bring water out of this rock for you? ” 11 Then Moses raised his hand and struck the rock twice with his staff, so that a great amount of water gushed out, and the community and their livestock drank. [f] 12 But the Lord said to Moses and Aaron, “Because you did not trust Me to show My holiness in the sight of the Israelites, you will not bring this assembly into the land I have given them.” [g] 13 These are the waters of Meribah, [h, i] where the Israelites quarreled with the Lord, and He showed His holiness to them.

Edom Denies Passage

14 Moses sent messengers from Kadesh to the king of Edom, “This is what your brother Israel [j] says, ‘You know all the hardships that have overtaken us.
15 Our fathers went down to Egypt, and we lived in Egypt many years, but the Egyptians treated us and our fathers badly. 16 When we cried out to the LORD, He heard our voice, sent an angel, [B, k] and brought us out of Egypt. Now look, we are in Kadesh, a city on the border of your territory. 17 Please let us travel through your land. We won’t travel through any field or vineyard, or drink any well water. We will travel the King’s Highway; we won’t turn to the right or the left until we have traveled through your territory.’ ” [l]

18 But Edom answered him, “You must not travel through our land, or we will come out and confront you with the sword.”

19 “We will go on the main road,” the Israelites replied to them, “and if we or our herds drink your water, we will pay its price. [m] There will be no problem;
only let us travel through on foot.”

20 Yet Edom insisted, “You must not travel through.” And they came out to confront them with a large force of heavily-armed people. [C] 21 Edom refused to allow Israel to travel through their territory, and Israel turned away from them.

Aaron’s Death

22 After they set out from Kadesh, the entire Israelite community came to Mount Hor. [n] 23 The LORD said to Moses and Aaron at Mount Hor on the border of the land of Edom, 24 “Aaron will be gathered to his people; he will not enter the land I have given the Israelites, because you both rebelled against My command at the waters of Meribah. 25 Take Aaron and his son Eleazar and bring them up Mount Hor. 26 Remove Aaron’s garments and put them on his son Eleazar. Aaron will be gathered to his people and die there.”

27 So Moses did as the LORD commanded, and they climbed Mount Hor in the sight of the whole community. 28 After Moses removed Aaron’s garments and put them on his son Eleazar, Aaron died there on top of the mountain. Then Moses and Eleazar came down from the mountain. 29 When the whole community saw that Aaron had passed away, the entire house of Israel mourned for him 30 days.

Canaanite King Defeated

21 When the Canaanite king of Arad, [a] who lived in the •Negev , heard that Israel was coming on the Atharim road, he fought against Israel and captured some prisoners. 2 Then Israel made a vow to the LORD, “If You will deliver this people into our hands, we will •completely destroy their cities.” [b] 3 The LORD listened to Israel’s request, the Canaanites were defeated, and Israel completely destroyed them and their cities. So they named the place Hormah. [c, d]

The Bronze Snake

4 Then they set out from Mount Hor by way of the •Red Sea to bypass the land of Edom, but the people [A] became impatient because of the journey. 5 The people spoke against God and Moses: “Why have you led us up from Egypt to die in the wilderness? There is no bread or water, and we detest this wretched food! ” 6 Then the Lord sent poisonous [e, B] snakes among the people, and they bit them so that many Israelites died. [f]

7 The people then came to Moses and said, “We have sinned by speaking against the Lord and against you. Intercede with the Lord so that He will take the snakes away from us.” And Moses interceded for the people.

8 Then the Lord said to Moses, “Make a snake image and mount it on a pole. When anyone who is bitten looks at it, he will recover.” [g] 9 So Moses made a bronze snake and mounted it on a pole. Whenever someone was bitten, and he looked at the bronze snake, he recovered.

Journey around Moab

10 The Israelites set out and camped at Oboth. [h] 11 They set out from Oboth and camped at Iye-abarim in the wilderness that borders Moab on the east.
12 From there they went and camped at Zered Valley. 13 They set out from there and camped on the other side of the Arnon River, in the wilderness that extends from the Amorite border, because the Arnon was the Moabite border between Moab and the Amorites. 14 Therefore it is stated in the Book of the LORD's Wars:

Waheb [i] in Suphah
and the ravines of the Arnon, 15 even the slopes of the ravines that extend to the site of Ar [j, k]
and lie along the border of Moab.

16 From there they went to Beer, [l] the well the LORD told Moses about,
"Gather the people so I may give them water." 17 Then Israel sang this song:

Spring up, well — sing to it!
18 The princes dug the well;
the nobles of the people hollowed it out with a scepter and with their staffs.

They went from the wilderness to Mattanah, 19 from Mattanah to Nahaliel, from Nahaliel to Bamoth, 20 from Bamoth to the valley in the territory of Moab near the Pisgah highlands [m, n] that overlook the wasteland. [C, o]

Amorite Kings Defeated

21 Israel sent messengers to say to Sihon [p] king of the Amorites: 22 “Let us travel through your land. We won’t go into the fields or vineyards. We won’t drink any well water. We will travel the King’s Highway until we have traveled through your territory.” [q] 23 But Sihon would not let Israel travel through his territory. Instead, he gathered his whole army and went out to confront Israel in the wilderness. When he came to Jahaz, [r] he fought against Israel. 24 Israel struck him with the sword and took possession of his land from the Arnon to the Jabbok, [s] but only up to the Ammonite border, because it was fortified. [t, D]

25 Israel took all the cities and lived in all these Amorite cities, including Heshbon and all its villages. 26 Heshbon was the city of Sihon king of the Amorites, who had fought against the former king of Moab and had taken control of all his land as far as the Arnon. 27 Therefore the poets [E] say:

Come to Heshbon, let it be rebuilt;
let the city of Sihon be restored. [F] 28 For fire came out of Heshbon, a flame from the city of Sihon.
It consumed Ar of Moab,
the lords of [u] Arnon’s heights.
29 Woe to you, Moab!
You have been destroyed, people of Chemosh! [v]
He gave up his sons as refugees, and his daughters into captivity
to Sihon the Amorite king.
30 We threw them down;
Heshbon has been destroyed as far as Dibon. [w, x]
We caused desolation as far as Nophah, which reaches as far as Medeba. [y, z]

31 So Israel lived in the Amorites’ land. 32 After Moses sent spies to Jazer, Israel captured its villages and drove out the Amorites who were there.

33 Then they turned and went up the road to Bashan, and Og king of Bashan [a] came out against them with his whole army to do battle at Edrei. [b] 34 But the LORD said to Moses, “Do not fear him, for I have handed him over to you along with his whole army and his land. Do to him as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, who lived in Heshbon.” [c] 35 So they struck him, his sons, and his whole army until no one was left, [G] and they took possession of his land. [d]

Balak Hires Balaam

22 The Israelites traveled on and camped in the plains of Moab near the Jordan across from Jericho. 2 Now Balak [a] son of Zippor saw all that Israel had done to the Amorites. 3 Moab was terrified of the people because they were numerous, and Moab dreaded the Israelites. 4 So the Moabites said to the elders of Midian, “This horde will devour everything around us like an ox eats up the green plants in the field.”

Since Balak son of Zippor was Moab’s king at that time, 5 he sent messengers to Balaam [b] son of Beor at Pethor, which is by the Euphrates in the land of his people. [c, A] Balak said to him: “Look, a people has come out of Egypt; they cover the surface of the land and are living right across from me. 6 Please come and put a curse on these people for me because they are more powerful than I am. I may be able to defeat them and drive them out of the land, for I know that those you bless are blessed and those you curse are cursed.”

7 The elders of Moab and Midian departed with fees for •divination in hand. [d]
They came to Balaam and reported Balak’s words to him. 8 He said to them, “Spend the night here, and I will give you the answer the LORD tells me.” So the officials of Moab stayed with Balaam.

9 Then God came to Balaam and asked, “Who are these men with you? ”

10 Balaam replied to God, “Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab, sent this message to me: 11 ‘Look, a people has come out of Egypt, and they cover the surface of the land. Now come and put a curse on them for me. I may be able to fight against them and drive them away.’ ”

12 Then God said to Balaam, “You are not to go with them. You are not to curse this people, for they are blessed.”

13 So Balaam got up the next morning and said to Balak’s officials, “Go back to your land, because the LORD has refused to let me go with you.”

14 The officials of Moab arose, returned to Balak, and reported, “Balaam refused to come with us.”

15 Balak sent officials again who were more numerous and higher in rank than the others. 16 They came to Balaam and said to him, “This is what Balak son of Zippor says: ‘Let nothing keep you from coming to me, 17 for I will greatly honor you and do whatever you ask me. So please come and put a curse on these people for me! ’ ”

18 But Balaam responded to the servants of Balak, “If Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, I could not go against the command of the LORD my God to do anything small or great. 19 Please stay here overnight as the others did, so that I may find out what else the LORD has to tell me.”

20 God came to Balaam at night and said to him, “Since these men have come to summon you, get up and go with them, but you must only do what I tell you.” 21 When he got up in the morning, Balaam saddled his donkey and went with the officials of Moab.

Balaam’s Donkey and the Angel 22 But God was incensed that Balaam was going, and the Angel of the LORD took His stand on the path to oppose him.
Balaam was riding his donkey, and his two servants were with him. 23 When the donkey saw the Angel of the LORD standing on the path with a drawn sword in His hand, she turned off the path and went into the field. So Balaam hit her to return her to the path. 24 Then the Angel of the LORD stood in a narrow passage between the vineyards, with a stone wall on either side. 25 The donkey saw the Angel of the LORD and pressed herself against the wall, squeezing Balaam’s foot against it. So he hit her once again. 26 The Angel of the LORD went ahead and stood in a narrow place where there was no room to turn to the right or the left.
27 When the donkey saw the Angel of the LORD*, she crouched down under* Balaam. So he became furious and beat the donkey with his stick.
28 Then the LORD opened the donkey’s mouth, and she asked Balaam, “What have I done to you that you have beaten me these three times? ” [e] 29 Balaam answered the donkey, “You made me look like a fool. If I had a sword in my hand, I’d kill you now! ” 30 But the donkey said, “Am I not the donkey you’ve ridden all your life until today? Have I ever treated you this way before? ” “No,” he replied.
31 Then the LORD opened Balaam’s eyes, and he saw the Angel of the LORD standing in the path with a drawn sword in His hand. Balaam knelt and bowed with his face to the ground. 32 The Angel of the LORD asked him, “Why have you beaten your donkey these three times? Look, I came out to oppose you, because what you are doing is evil in My sight. 33 The donkey saw Me and turned away from Me these three times. If she had not turned away from Me, I would have killed you by now and let her live.” 34 Balaam said to the Angel of the LORD, “I have sinned, for I did not know that You were standing in the path to confront me. And now, if it is evil in Your sight, I will go back.”
35 Then the Angel of the LORD said to Balaam, “Go with the men, but you are to say only what I tell you.” So Balaam went with Balak’s officials.
36 When Balak heard that Balaam was coming, he went out to meet him at the Moabite city [B] on the Arnon border at the edge of his territory. 37 Balak asked Balaam, “Did I not send you an urgent summons? Why didn’t you come to me? Am I really not able to reward you? ”

38 Balaam said to him, “Look, I have come to you, but can I say anything I want? I must speak only the message God puts in my mouth.” 39 So Balaam went with Balak, and they came to Kiriath-huzoth. [f] 40 Balak sacrificed cattle and sheep, and sent for Balaam and the officials who were with him.

41 In the morning, Balak took Balaam and brought him to Bamoth-baal. [g] From there he saw the outskirts of the people’s camp.

Balaam's Oracles

23 Then Balaam said to Balak, “Build me seven altars here and prepare seven bulls and seven rams for me.” 2 So Balak did as Balaam directed, and they offered a bull and a ram on each altar. 3 Balaam said to Balak, “Stay here by your •burnt offering while I am gone. Maybe the Lord [a] will meet with me. I will tell you whatever He reveals to me.” So he went to a barren hill.
4 God [b] met with him and Balaam said to Him, “I have arranged seven altars and offered a bull and a ram on each altar.” 5 Then the Lord put a message in Balaam’s mouth and said, “Return to Balak and say what I tell you.”
6 So he returned to Balak, who was standing there by his burnt offering with all the officials of Moab.

Balaam’s First Oracle

7 Balaam proclaimed his poem:
Balak brought me from Aram; [c]
the king of Moab, from the eastern mountains:
“Come, put a curse on Jacob for me;
come, denounce Israel! ” [d]
8 How can I curse someone God has not cursed?
How can I denounce someone the Lord has not denounced?
9 I see them from the top of rocky cliffs,
and I watch them from the hills.
There is a people living alone; [e]
it does not consider itself among the nations.
10 Who has counted the dust of Jacob or numbered the dust clouds [A] of Israel?
Let me die the death of the upright;
let the end of my life be like theirs.
11 “What have you done to me? ” Balak asked Balaam. “I brought you to curse my enemies, but look, you have only blessed them! ” 12 He answered, “Shouldn’t I say exactly what the Lord puts in my mouth? ” [f]

Balaam’s Second Oracle

13 Then Balak said to him, “Please come with me to another place where you can see them. You will only see the outskirts of their camp; you won’t see all of them. From there, put a curse on them for me.” 14 So Balak took him to Lookout Field [B] on top of Pisgah, built seven altars, and offered a bull and a ram on each altar.
15 Balaam said to Balak, “Stay here by your burnt offering while I seek the LORD over there.”

16 The LORD met with Balaam and put a message in his mouth. Then He said, “Return to Balak and say what I tell you.”
17 So he returned to Balak, who was standing there by his burnt offering with the officials of Moab. Balak asked him, “What did the LORD say? ” 18 Balaam proclaimed his poem:
Balak, get up and listen;
son of Zippor, pay attention to what I say!
19 God is not a man who lies,
or a son of man who changes His mind.
Does He speak and not act, or promise and not fulfill? g 20 I have indeed received a command to bless;
since He has blessed, h I cannot change it.
21 He considers no disaster for Jacob;
He sees no trouble for Israel. C
The LORD their God is with them, i and there is rejoicing over the King among them.
22 God brought them out of Egypt;
He is like the horns of a wild ox for them. D, j 23 There is no magic curse against Jacob and no •divination against Israel.
It will now be said about Jacob and Israel,
“What great things God has done! ”
24 A people rise up like a lioness;
They rouse themselves like a lion. k
They will not lie down until they devour the prey and drink the blood of the slain.
25 Then Balak told Balaam, “Don’t curse them and don’t bless them! ”
26 But Balaam answered him, “Didn’t I tell you: Whatever the LORD says, I must do? ” l

Balaam’s Third Oracle

27 Again Balak said to Balaam, “Please come. I will take you to another place.
Maybe it will be agreeable to God that you can put a curse on them for me there.” 28 So Balak took Balaam to the top of Peor, which overlooks the wasteland. E, m

29 Balaam told Balak, “Build me seven altars here and prepare seven bulls and seven rams for me.” n 30 So Balak did as Balaam said and offered a bull and a ram on each altar.

24 Since Balaam saw that it pleased the LORD to bless Israel, he did not go to seek omens as on previous occasions, but turned [A] toward the wilderness.
2 When Balaam looked up and saw Israel encamped tribe by tribe, the Spirit of God [a] came on him, 3 and he proclaimed his poem:

The •oracle of Balaam son of Beor,
the oracle of the man whose eyes are opened, [b]
4 the oracle of one who hears the sayings of God, who sees a vision from the •Almighty , [c]
who falls into a trance with his eyes uncovered:
5 How beautiful are your tents, Jacob,
your dwellings, Israel.
6 They stretch out like river valleys, [B]
like gardens beside a stream, like aloes the LORD has planted,
like cedars beside the water.
7 Water will flow from his buckets,
and his seed will be by abundant water.
His king will be greater than Agag, [d, e]
and his kingdom will be exalted.
8 God brought him out of Egypt;
He is like [C] the horns of a wild ox for them. [f]
He will feed on enemy nations and gnaw their bones;
he will strike them with his arrows.
9 He crouches, he lies down like a lion
or a lioness — who dares to rouse him? [g]
Those who bless you will be blessed,
and those who curse you will be cursed. [h]

10 Then Balak became furious with Balaam, struck his hands together, and said to him, “I summoned you to put a curse on my enemies, but instead, you have blessed them these three times. 11 Now go to your home! I said I would reward you richly, [i] but look, the LORD has denied you a reward.”

12 Balaam answered Balak, “Didn’t I previously tell the messengers you sent me: 13 If Balak were to give me his house full of silver and gold, I could not go against the LORD’s command, to do anything good or bad of my own will? I will say whatever the LORD says. [j] 14 Now I am going back to my people, but first, let me warn you what these people will do to your people in the future.”

Balaam's Fourth Oracle

15 Then he proclaimed his poem:

The oracle of Balaam son of Beor,
the oracle of the man whose eyes are opened; [k]
16 the oracle of one who hears the sayings of God and has knowledge from the •Most High, who sees a vision from the Almighty,
who falls into a trance with his eyes uncovered: [l]
17 I see him, [D] but not now;
I perceive him, [E] but not near.
A star will come from Jacob,
and a scepter will arise from Israel. [m]
He will smash the forehead [F] of Moab and strike down [n] all the Shethites. [G] 18 Edom will become a possession;
Seir [o] will become a possession of its enemies,
but Israel will be triumphant.
19 One who comes from Jacob will rule;
he will destroy the city's survivors.

20 Then Balaam saw Amalek and proclaimed his poem:
Amalek was first among the nations, [p]
but his future is destruction.
21 Next he saw the Kenites and proclaimed his poem:
Your dwelling place is enduring;
your nest is set in the cliffs.
22 Kain will be destroyed
when Asshur takes you captive.
23 Once more he proclaimed his poem:
Ah, who can live when God does this?
24 Ships will come from the coast of Kittim; [q]
they will afflict Asshur and Eber, [r]
but they too will come to destruction.

25 Balaam then arose and went back to his homeland, and Balak also went his way.

Israel Worships Baal

25 While Israel was staying in the Acacia Grove, [A,] [a] the people began to have sexual relations with the women of Moab. [2] The women invited them to the sacrifices for their gods, and the people ate and bowed in worship to their gods. [b] [3] So Israel aligned itself with •Baal of Peor, [c] and the LORD's anger burned against Israel. [d] [4] The LORD said to Moses, "Take all the leaders of the people and execute [B] them in broad daylight before the LORD so that His burning anger may turn away from Israel."

[5] So Moses told Israel's judges, "Kill each of the men who aligned themselves with Baal of Peor."

Phinehas Intervenes

6 An Israelite man came bringing a Midianite woman to his relatives in the sight of Moses and the whole Israelite community while they were weeping at the entrance to the tent of meeting. 7 When Phinehas son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, saw this, he got up from the assembly, took a spear in his hand, 8 followed the Israelite man into the tent, [e] and drove it through both the Israelite man and the woman — through her belly. Then the plague on the Israelites was stopped, 9 but those who died in the plague numbered 24,000. [f]

10 The LORD spoke to Moses, 11 "Phinehas son of Eleazar, son of Aaron the priest, has turned back My wrath from the Israelites because he was zealous among them with My zeal, [C, g] so that I did not destroy the Israelites in My zeal.
12 Therefore declare: I grant him My covenant of peace. [h] 13 It will be a covenant of perpetual priesthood for him and his future descendants, [i] because he was zealous for his God and made •atonement for the Israelites."

14 The name of the slain Israelite man, who was struck dead with the Midianite woman, was Zimri son of Salu, the leader of a Simeonite ancestral house. 15 The name of the slain Midianite woman was Cozbi, the daughter of Zur, a tribal head of an ancestral house in Midian.

Vengeance against the Midianites 16 The LORD told Moses: 17 "Attack the Midianites and strike them dead. 18 For they attacked you with the treachery that they used against you in the Peor incident. They did the same in the case involving their sister Cozbi, daughter of the Midianite leader who was killed the day the plague came at Peor."

The Second Census

26 After the plague, the LORD said to Moses and Eleazar son of Aaron the priest, 2 “Take a census of the entire Israelite community by their ancestral houses of those 20 years old or more who can serve in Israel’s army.” [a] 3 So Moses and Eleazar the priest said to them in the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho, 4 “Take a census of those 20 years old or more, as the LORD had commanded Moses and the Israelites who came out of the land of Egypt.” [b]

5 Reuben [c] was the firstborn of Israel.
Reuben’s descendants:
the Hanochite clan from Hanoch;
the Palluite clan from Pallu;
6 the Hezronite clan from Hezron;
the Carmite clan from Carmi.
7 These were the Reubenite clans, and their registered men numbered 43,730.
8 The son of Pallu was Eliab.
9 The sons of Eliab were Nemuel, Dathan, and Abiram.
(It was Dathan and Abiram, chosen by the community, who fought against Moses and Aaron; they and Korah’s followers fought against the LORD. [d] 10 The earth opened its mouth and swallowed them with Korah, when his followers died and the fire consumed 250 men. [e] They serve as a warning sign. 11 The sons of Korah, however, did not die.)

12 Simeon’s descendants by their clans:
the Nemuelite clan from Nemuel; [f, g]
the Jaminite clan from Jamin;
the Jachinite clan from Jachin;
13 the Zerahite clan from Zerah;
the Shaulite clan from Shaul.
14 These were the Simeonite clans, numbering 22,200 men.

15 Gad’s descendants by their clans:
the Zephonite clan from Zephon;
the Haggite clan from Haggi;
the Shunite clan from Shuni;

16 the Oznite clan from Ozni;
the Erite clan from Eri;
17 the Arodite clan from Arod;
the Arelite clan from Areli.
18 These were the Gadite clans numbered by their registered men: 40,500.

19 Judah's sons included Er and Onan, but they died in the land of Canaan. [h]
20 Judah's descendants by their clans:
the Shelanite clan from Shelah;
the Perezite clan from Perez;
the Zerahite clan from Zerah.
21 The descendants of Perez:
the Hezronite clan from Hezron;
the Hamulite clan from Hamul.
22 These were Judah's clans numbered by their registered men: 76,500.

23 Issachar's descendants by their clans:
the Tolaite clan from Tola;
the Punite clan from Puvah; [i, j] 24 the Jashubite clan from Jashub;
the Shimronite clan from Shimron.
25 These were Issachar's clans numbered by their registered men: 64,300.

26 Zebulun's descendants by their clans:
the Seredite clan from Sered;
the Elonite clan from Elon;
the Jahleelite clan from Jahleel.
27 These were the Zebulunite clans numbered by their registered men: 60,500.

28 Joseph's descendants by their clans from Manasseh and Ephraim:
29 Manasseh's descendants:
the Machirite clan from Machir.
Machir fathered Gilead;
the Gileadite clan from Gilead.
30 These were Gilead's descendants:
the Iezerite clan from Iezer;
the Helekite clan from Helek;

31 the Asrielite clan from Asriel;
the Shechemite clan from Shechem; 32 the Shemidaite clan from Shemida;
the Hepherite clan from Hepher;
33 Zelophehad son of Hepher had no sons — only daughters. The names of Zelophehad's daughters were Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. [k]
34 These were Manasseh's clans, numbered by their registered men: 52,700.
35 These were Ephraim's descendants by their clans:
the Shuthelahite clan from Shuthelah;
the Becherite clan from Becher;
the Tahanite clan from Tahan.
36 These were Shuthelah's descendants:
the Eranite clan from Eran.
37 These were the Ephraimite clans numbered by their registered men: 32,500.
These were Joseph's descendants by their clans.

38 Benjamin's descendants by their clans:
the Belaite clan from Bela;
the Ashbelite clan from Ashbel;
the Ahiramite clan from Ahiram;
39 the Shuphamite clan from Shupham; [l]
the Huphamite clan from Hupham.
40 Bela's descendants from Ard and Naaman:
the Ardite clan from Ard;
the Naamite clan from Naaman.
41 These were the Benjaminite clans numbered by their registered men: 45,600.

42 These were Dan's descendants by their clans:
the Shuhamite clan from Shuham.
These were the clans of Dan by their clans.
43 All the Shuhamite clans numbered by their registered men: 64,400.

44 Asher's descendants by their clans:
the Imnite clan from Imnah;
the Ishvite clan from Ishvi;
the Beriite clan from Beriah.

45 From Beriah’s descendants:
the Heberite clan from Heber;
the Malchielite clan from Malchiel.
46 And the name of Asher’s daughter was Serah.
47 These were the Asherite clans numbered by their registered men: 53,400.

48 Naphtali’s descendants by their clans:
the Jahzeelite clan from Jahzeel;
the Gunite clan from Guni; 49 the Jezerite clan from Jezer;
the Shillemite clan from Shillem.
50 These were the Naphtali clans numbered by their registered men: 45,400.

51 These registered Israelite men numbered 601,730.

52 The LORD spoke to Moses, 53 “The land is to be divided among them as an inheritance based on the number of names. 54 Increase the inheritance for a large tribe and decrease it for a small one. Each is to be given its inheritance according to those who were registered in it. 55 The land must be divided by lot; they will receive an inheritance according to the names of their ancestral tribes. 56 Each inheritance will be divided by lot among the larger and smaller tribes.” m

57 These were the Levites registered by their clans:
the Gershonite clan from Gershon;
the Kohathite clan from Kohath;
the Merarite clan from Merari.
58 These were the Levite family groups:
the Libnite clan,
the Hebronite clan,
the Mahlite clan,
the Mushite clan,
and the Korahite clan. n

Kohath was the ancestor of Amram. 59 The name of Amram’s wife was Jochebed, a descendant of Levi, born to Levi in Egypt. She bore to Amram: Aaron, Moses, and their sister Miriam. 60 Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar were born to Aaron, 61 but Nadab and Abihu died when they presented unauthorized fire before the LORD. o 62 Those registered were 23,000, every male one month old or more; they were not registered among the other Israelites, because no inheritance was given to them among the Israelites.

63 These were the ones registered by Moses and Eleazar the priest when they registered the Israelites on the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho.
64 But among them there was not one of those who had been registered by Moses and Aaron the priest when they registered the Israelites in the Wilderness of Sinai. p 65 For the LORD had said to them that they would all die in the wilderness. None of them was left except Caleb son of Jephunneh and Joshua son of Nun.

A Case of Daughters' Inheritance

27 The daughters of Zelophehad approached; Zelophehad was the son of Hepher, son of Gilead, son of Machir, son of Manasseh from the clans of Manasseh, the son of Joseph. These were the names of his daughters: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. 2 They stood before Moses, Eleazar the priest, the leaders, and the entire community at the entrance to the tent of meeting and said, 3 "Our father died in the wilderness, but he was not among Korah's followers, who gathered together against the LORD. [a] Instead, he died because of his own sin, and he had no sons. 4 Why should the name of our father be taken away from his clan? Since he had no son, give us property among our father's brothers."

5 Moses brought their case before the LORD, 6 and the LORD answered him, 7 "What Zelophehad's daughters say is correct. You are to give them hereditary property among their father's brothers and transfer their father's inheritance to them. [b] 8 Tell the Israelites: When a man dies without having a son, transfer his inheritance to his daughter. 9 If he has no daughter, give his inheritance to his brothers. 10 If he has no brothers, give his inheritance to his father's brothers.
11 If his father has no brothers, give his inheritance to the nearest relative of his clan, and he will take possession of it. This is to be a statutory ordinance for the Israelites as the LORD commanded Moses."

Joshua Commissioned to Succeed Moses 12 Then the LORD said to Moses, [c] "Go up this mountain of the Abarim range [d] and see the land that I have given the Israelites. 13 After you have seen it, you will also be gathered to your people, as Aaron your brother was. [e] 14 When the community quarreled in the Wilderness of Zin, both of you rebelled against My command to show My holiness in their sight at the waters." Those were the waters of Meribah [f] of Kadesh in the Wilderness of Zin. [g]

15 So Moses appealed to the LORD, 16 "May the LORD, the God of the spirits of all flesh, [h] appoint a man over the community 17 who will go out before them and come back in before them, [i] and who will bring them out and bring them in, so that the LORD's community won't be like sheep without a shepherd." [j]

18 The LORD replied to Moses, "Take Joshua son of Nun, a man who has the Spirit in him, and lay your hands on him. [k] 19 Have him stand before Eleazar the priest and the whole community, and commission [l] him in their sight. 20 Confer some of your authority on him so that the entire Israelite community will obey him. 21 He will stand before Eleazar who will consult the LORD for him with the decision of the •Urim . [m] He and all the Israelites with him, even the entire community, will go out and come back in at his command.”

22 Moses did as the LORD commanded him. He took Joshua, had him stand before Eleazar the priest and the entire community, 23 laid his hands on him, and commissioned him, as the LORD had spoken through Moses.

Prescribed Offerings

28 The LORD spoke to Moses, 2 “Command the Israelites and say to them: Be sure to present to Me at its appointed time My offering and My food [a] as My fire offering, a pleasing aroma to Me. 3 And say to them: This is the fire offering you are to present to the LORD: [b]

Daily Offerings

"Each day present two unblemished year-old male lambs as a regular •burnt offering. [4] Offer one lamb in the morning and the other lamb at twilight, [5] along with two quarts [A] of fine flour for a •grain offering mixed with a quart [B] of olive oil from crushed olives. [c 6] It is a regular burnt offering established at Mount Sinai for a pleasing aroma, a fire offering to the LORD. [7] The •drink offering is to be a quart [C] with each lamb. Pour out the offering of beer to the LORD in the sanctuary area. [8] Offer the second lamb at twilight, along with the same kind of grain offering and drink offering as in the morning. It is a fire offering, a pleasing aroma to the LORD.

Sabbath Offerings

9 “On the Sabbath day present two unblemished year-old male lambs, four quarts D of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering, and its drink offering.
10 It is the burnt offering for every Sabbath, in addition to the regular burnt offering and its drink offering.

Monthly Offerings

11 “At the beginning of each of your months present a burnt offering to the LORD: two young bulls, one ram, seven male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 12 with six quarts [E] of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering for each bull, four quarts [F] of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering for the ram, 13 and two quarts [G] of fine flour mixed with oil as a grain offering for each lamb. It is a burnt offering, a pleasing aroma, a fire offering to the LORD. 14 Their drink offerings are to be two quarts [H] of wine with each bull, one and a third quarts [I] with the ram, and one quart [J] with each male lamb. This is the monthly burnt offering for all the months of the year. 15 And one male goat is to be offered as a •sin offering to the LORD, in addition to the regular burnt offering with its drink offering.

Offerings for Passover

16 "The •Passover [d] to the LORD comes in the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month. 17 On the fifteenth day of this month there will be a festival; unleavened bread is to be eaten for seven days. 18 On the first day there is to be a sacred assembly; you are not to do any daily work. [e] 19 Present a fire offering, a burnt offering to the LORD: two young bulls, one ram, and seven male lambs a year old. Your animals are to be unblemished. 20 The grain offering with them is to be of fine flour mixed with oil; offer six quarts [K] with each bull and four quarts [L] with the ram. 21 Offer two quarts [M] with each of the seven lambs 22 and one male goat for a sin offering to make •atonement for yourselves. 23 Offer these with the morning burnt offering that is part of the regular burnt offering.
24 You are to offer the same food each day for seven days as a fire offering, [f] a pleasing aroma to the LORD. It is to be offered with its drink offering and the regular burnt offering. 25 On the seventh day you are to hold a sacred assembly;
you are not to do any daily work.

Offerings for the Festival of Weeks 26 "On the day of •firstfruits , you are to hold a sacred assembly when you present an offering of new grain to the LORD at your Festival of Weeks; [g] you are not to do any daily work. 27 Present a burnt offering for a pleasing aroma to the LORD: two young bulls, one ram, and seven male lambs a year old, 28 with their grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, six quarts [N] with each bull, four quarts [O] with the ram, 29 and two quarts [P] with each of the seven lambs, 30 and one male goat to make atonement for yourselves.
31 Offer them with their drink offerings in addition to the regular burnt offering and its grain offering. Your animals are to be unblemished.

Festival of Trumpets Offerings

29 “You are to hold a sacred assembly in the seventh month, on the first day of the month, and you are not to do any daily work. [a] This will be a day of joyful shouting [A] for you. [b] 2 Offer a •burnt offering as a pleasing aroma to the LORD: one young bull, one ram, seven male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 3 with their •grain offering of fine flour mixed with oil, six quarts [B] with the bull, four quarts [C] with the ram, 4 and two quarts [D] with each of the seven male lambs. 5 Also offer one male goat as a •sin offering to make •atonement for yourselves. 6 These are in addition to the monthly and regular burnt offerings with their prescribed grain offerings and •drink offerings. They are a pleasing aroma, a fire offering to the LORD.

Offerings for the Day of Atonement 7 “You are to hold a sacred assembly on the tenth day of this seventh month and practice self-denial; [c, d] you must not do any work. 8 Present a burnt offering to the LORD, a pleasing aroma: one young bull, one ram, and seven male lambs a year old. All your animals are to be unblemished. 9 Their grain offering is to be of fine flour mixed with oil, six quarts [E] with the bull, four quarts [F] with the ram, 10 and two quarts [G] with each of the seven lambs. 11 Offer one male goat for a sin offering. The regular burnt offering with its grain offering and drink offerings are in addition to the sin offering of atonement.

Offerings for the Festival of Booths 12 “You are to hold a sacred assembly on the fifteenth day of the seventh month; [e] you must not do any daily work. You are to celebrate a seven-day festival for the LORD. 13 Present a burnt offering, a fire offering as a pleasing aroma to the LORD: 13 young bulls, two rams, and 14 male lambs a year old. They are to be unblemished. 14 Their grain offering is to be of fine flour mixed with oil, six quarts [H] with each of the 13 bulls, four quarts [I] with each of the two rams, 15 and two quarts [J] with each of the 14 lambs. 16 Also offer one male goat as a sin offering. These are in addition to the regular burnt offering with its grain and drink offerings.

17 “On the second day present 12 young bulls, two rams, and 14 male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 18 with their grain and drink offerings [f] for the bulls, rams, and lambs, in proportion to their number. 19 Also offer one male goat as a sin offering. These are in addition to the regular burnt offering with its grain and drink [g] offerings.

20 “On the third day present 11 bulls, two rams, 14 male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 21 with their grain and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs, in proportion to their number. 22 Also offer one male goat as a sin offering. These are in addition to the regular burnt offering with its grain and drink offerings.

23 “On the fourth day present 10 bulls, two rams, 14 male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 24 with their grain and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs, in proportion to their number. 25 Also offer one male goat as a sin offering. These are in addition to the regular burnt offering with its grain and drink offerings.
26 “On the fifth day present nine bulls, two rams, 14 male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 27 with their grain and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs, in proportion to their number. 28 Also offer one male goat as a sin offering. These are in addition to the regular burnt offering with its grain and drink offerings.
29 “On the sixth day present eight bulls, two rams, 14 male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 30 with their grain and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs, in proportion to their number. 31 Also offer one male goat as a sin offering. These are in addition to the regular burnt offering with its grain and drink [h] offerings.
32 “On the seventh day present seven bulls, two rams, and 14 male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 33 with their grain and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs, in proportion to their number. 34 Also offer one male goat as a sin offering. These are in addition to the regular burnt offering with its grain and drink offerings.
35 “On the eighth day you are to hold a solemn assembly; you are not to do any daily work. [i] 36 Present a burnt offering, a fire offering as a pleasing aroma to the LORD: one bull, one ram, seven male lambs a year old — all unblemished — 37 with their grain and drink offerings for the bulls, rams, and lambs, in proportion to their number. 38 Also offer one male goat as a sin offering. These are in addition to the regular burnt offering with its grain and drink offerings.
39 “You must offer these to the LORD at your appointed times in addition to your vow and freewill offerings, whether burnt, grain, drink, or •fellowship offerings.” 40 [j] So Moses told the Israelites everything the LORD had commanded him.

Regulations about Vows

30 Moses told the leaders of the Israelite tribes, “This is what the Lord has commanded: 2 When a man makes a vow to the Lord or swears an oath to put himself under an obligation, he must not break his word; he must do whatever he has promised. [a]

3 “When a woman in her father’s house during her youth makes a vow to the Lord or puts herself under an obligation, 4 and her father hears about her vow or the obligation she put herself under, and he says nothing to her, all her vows and every obligation she put herself under are binding. 5 But if her father prohibits her on the day he hears about it, none of her vows and none of the obligations she put herself under are binding. The Lord will absolve her because her father has prohibited her.

6 “If a woman marries while her vows or the rash commitment she herself made are binding, 7 and her husband hears about it and says nothing to her when he finds out, her vows are binding, and the obligations she put herself under are binding. 8 But if her husband prohibits her when he hears about it, he will cancel her vow that is binding or the rash commitment she herself made, and the Lord will forgive her.

9 “Every vow a widow or divorced woman puts herself under is binding on her.

10 “If a woman in her husband’s house has made a vow or put herself under an obligation with an oath, 11 and her husband hears about it, says nothing to her, and does not prohibit her, all her vows are binding, and every obligation she put herself under is binding. 12 But if her husband cancels them on the day he hears about it, nothing that came from her lips, whether her vows or her obligation, is binding. Her husband has canceled them, and the Lord will absolve her. 13 Her husband may confirm or cancel any vow or any sworn obligation to deny herself.
14 If her husband says nothing at all to her from day to day, he confirms all her vows and obligations, which are binding. He has confirmed them because he said nothing to her when he heard about them. 15 But if he cancels them after he hears about them, he will be responsible for her [b] commitment.” [A]

16 These are the statutes that the Lord commanded Moses concerning the relationship between a man and his wife, or between a father and his daughter in his house during her youth.

War with Midian

31 The LORD spoke to Moses, 2 “Execute vengeance for the Israelites against the Midianites. After that, you will be gathered to your people.” 3 So Moses spoke to the people, “Equip some of your men for war. They will go against Midian to inflict the LORD’s vengeance [a] on them. 4 Send 1,000 men to war from each Israelite tribe.” 5 So 1,000 were recruited from each Israelite tribe out of the thousands [A] in Israel — 12,000 equipped for war. 6 Moses sent 1,000 from each tribe to war. They went with Phinehas son of Eleazar the priest, in whose care were the holy objects and signal trumpets.
7 They waged war against Midian, as the LORD had commanded Moses, and killed every male. 8 Along with the others slain by them, they killed the Midianite kings — Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba, the five kings of Midian. [b]
They also killed Balaam son of Beor [c] with the sword. 9 The Israelites took the Midianite women and their children captive, and they plundered all their cattle, flocks, and property. [d] 10 Then they burned all the cities where the Midianites lived, as well as all their encampments, 11 and took away all the spoils of war and the captives, both man and beast. 12 They brought the prisoners, animals, and spoils of war to Moses, Eleazar the priest, and the Israelite community at the camp on the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho.
13 Moses, Eleazar the priest, and all the leaders of the community went to meet them outside the camp. 14 But Moses became furious with the officers, the commanders of thousands and commanders of hundreds, who were returning from the military campaign. 15 “Have [e] you let every female live? ” he asked them. 16 “Yet they are the ones who, at Balaam’s advice, incited the Israelites to unfaithfulness against the LORD in the Peor incident, so that the plague came against the LORD’s community. [f] 17 So now, kill all the male children and kill every woman who has had sexual relations with a man, 18 but keep alive for yourselves all the young females who have not had sexual relations.
19 “You are to remain outside the camp for seven days. All of you and your prisoners who have killed a person or touched the dead are to purify yourselves on the third day and the seventh day. 20 Also purify everything: garments, leather goods, things made of goat hair, and every article of wood.” [g] 21 Then Eleazar the priest said to the soldiers who had gone to battle, “This is the legal statute the LORD commanded Moses: 22 Only the gold, silver, bronze, iron, tin, and lead — 23 everything that can withstand fire — you are to pass through fire, and it will be •clean . It must still be purified with the purification water. [h] Anything that cannot withstand fire, pass through the water. 24 On the seventh day wash your clothes, and you will be clean. After that you may enter the camp."

25 The LORD told Moses, 26 "You, Eleazar the priest, and the family leaders of the community are to take a count of what was captured, man and beast. 27 Then divide the captives between the troops who went out to war and the entire community. 28 Set aside a tribute for the LORD from what belongs to the fighting men who went out to war: one out of every 500 humans, cattle, donkeys, sheep, and goats. 29 Take the tribute from their half and give it to Eleazar the priest as a contribution to the LORD. 30 From the Israelites' half, take one out of every 50 from the people, cattle, donkeys, sheep, and goats, all the livestock, and give them to the Levites who perform the duties of [B] the LORD's tabernacle."

31 So Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the LORD commanded Moses. 32 The captives remaining from the plunder the army had taken totaled:

675,000 sheep and goats,
33 72,000 cattle,
34 61,000 donkeys,
35 and 32,000 people, all the females who had not had sexual relations with a man.
36 The half portion for those who went out to war numbered:

337,500 sheep and goats,
37 and the tribute to the LORD was 675
from the sheep and goats;
38 from the 36,000 cattle,
the tribute to the LORD was 72;
39 from the 30,500 donkeys,
the tribute to the LORD was 61;
40 and from the 16,000 people,
the tribute to the LORD was 32 people.
41 Moses gave the tribute to Eleazar the priest as a contribution for the LORD, as the LORD had commanded Moses.

42 From the Israelites' half, which Moses separated from the men who fought, 43 the community's half was:

337,500 sheep and goats,
44 36,000 cattle,

45 30,500 donkeys,
46 and 16,000 people.
47 Moses took one out of every 50, selected from the people and the livestock of the Israelites' half. He gave them to the Levites who perform the duties of the LORD's tabernacle, as the LORD had commanded him.
48 The officers who were over the thousands of the army, the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, approached Moses 49 and told him, "Your servants have taken a census of the fighting men under our command, and not one of us is missing. 50 So we have presented to the LORD an offering of the gold articles each man found — armlets, bracelets, rings, earrings, and necklaces — to make •atonement for ourselves before the LORD." i 51 Moses and Eleazar the priest received from them all the articles made out of gold. 52 All the gold of the contribution they offered to the LORD, from the commanders of thousands and of hundreds, was 420 pounds. C 53 Each of the soldiers had taken plunder for himself. 54 Moses and Eleazar the priest received the gold from the commanders of thousands and of hundreds and brought it into the tent of meeting as a memorial for the Israelites before the LORD.

Transjordan Settlements

32 The Reubenites and Gadites had a very large number of livestock. When they surveyed the lands of Jazer and Gilead, they saw that the region was a good one for livestock. 2 So the Gadites and Reubenites came to Moses, Eleazar the priest, and the leaders of the community and said: 3 "The territory of Ataroth, Dibon, Jazer, Nimrah, Heshbon, Elealeh, Sebam, [a] Nebo, and Beon, 4 which the LORD struck down [b] before the community of Israel, is good land for livestock, and your servants own livestock." 5 They said, "If we have found favor in your sight, let this land be given to your servants as a possession. Don't make us cross the Jordan."

6 But Moses asked the Gadites and Reubenites, "Should your brothers go to war while you stay here? 7 Why are you discouraging [A] the Israelites from crossing into the land the LORD has given them? 8 That's what your fathers did when I sent them from Kadesh-barnea to see the land. [c] 9 After they went up as far as Eshcol Valley and saw the land, they discouraged the Israelites from entering the land the LORD had given them. 10 So the LORD's anger burned that day, and He swore an oath: 11 'Because they did not follow Me completely, [d] none of the men 20 years old or more who came up from Egypt will see the land
I swore to give Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob — 12 none except Caleb [e] son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite and Joshua [f] son of Nun, because they did follow the LORD completely.' 13 The LORD's anger burned against Israel, and He made them wander in the wilderness 40 years until the whole generation that had done what was evil in the LORD's sight was gone. 14 And here you, a brood of sinners, stand in your fathers' place adding even more to the LORD's burning anger against Israel. 15 If you turn back from following Him, He will once again leave this people in the wilderness, and you will destroy all of them."

16 Then they approached him and said, "We want to build sheepfolds here for our livestock and cities for our dependents. 17 But we will arm ourselves and be ready to go ahead of the Israelites until we have brought them into their place.
Meanwhile, our dependents will remain in the fortified cities because of the inhabitants of the land. 18 We will not return to our homes until each of the Israelites has taken possession of his inheritance. 19 Yet we will not have an inheritance with them across the Jordan and beyond, because our inheritance will be across the Jordan to the east."

20 Moses replied to them, "If you do this — if you arm yourselves for battle before the LORD, 21 and every one of your armed men crosses the Jordan before the LORD until He has driven His enemies from His presence, 22 and the land is subdued before the LORD — afterward you may return and be free from obligation to the LORD and to Israel. And this land will belong to you as a possession before the LORD. 23 But if you don't do this, you will certainly sin against the LORD; be sure your sin will catch up with you. 24 Build cities for your dependents and folds for your flocks, but do what you have promised." [g]

25 The Gadites and Reubenites answered Moses, "Your servants will do just as my lord commands. 26 Our little children, wives, livestock, and all our animals will remain here in the cities of Gilead, 27 but your servants are equipped for war before the LORD and will go across to the battle as my lord orders."

28 So Moses gave orders about them to Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the family leaders of the Israelite tribes. 29 Moses told them, "If the Gadites and Reubenites cross the Jordan with you, every man in battle formation before the LORD, and the land is subdued before you, you are to give them the land of Gilead as a possession. [h] 30 But if they don't go across with you in battle formation, they must accept land in Canaan with you."

31 The Gadites and Reubenites replied, "What the LORD has spoken to your servants is what we will do. 32 We will cross over in battle formation before the LORD into the land of Canaan, but we will keep our hereditary possession across the Jordan."

33 So Moses gave them — the Gadites, Reubenites, and half the tribe of Manasseh son of Joseph — the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites and the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, the land including its cities with the territories surrounding them. 34 The Gadites rebuilt Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, 35 Atroth-shophan, Jazer, Jogbehah, 36 Beth-nimrah, and Beth-haran [i] as fortified cities, and built sheepfolds. 37 The Reubenites rebuilt Heshbon, Elealeh, Kiriathaim, 38 as well as Nebo and Baal-meon (whose names were changed), and Sibmah. They gave names to the cities they rebuilt.

39 The descendants of Machir [j] son of Manasseh went to Gilead, captured it, and drove out the Amorites who were there. 40 So Moses gave Gilead to the clan of Machir son of Manasseh, and they settled in it. 41 Jair, a descendant of Manasseh, went and captured their villages, which he renamed Jair's Villages. [B, k] 42 Nobah went and captured Kenath with its villages and called it Nobah after his own name.

Wilderness Travels Reviewed

33 These were the stages of the Israelites' journey when they went out of the land of Egypt by their military divisions under the leadership of Moses and Aaron. 2 At the Lord*'s command, Moses wrote down the starting points for the stages of their journey; these are the stages listed by their starting points:*

3 They departed from Rameses [a] in the first month, on the fifteenth day of the month. On the day after the •Passover [b] the Israelites went out triumphantly [A,] [c] in the sight of all the Egyptians. 4 Meanwhile, the Egyptians were burying every firstborn male the Lord had struck down among them, for the Lord had executed judgment against their gods. [d] 5 The Israelites departed from Rameses and camped at Succoth. [e]
6 They departed from Succoth and camped at Etham, [f] which is on the edge of the wilderness.
7 They departed from Etham and turned back to Pi-hahiroth, which faces Baal-zephon, and they camped before Migdol. [g]
8 They departed from Pi-hahiroth [h] and crossed through the middle of the sea [i] into the wilderness. They took a three-day journey into the Wilderness of Etham and camped at Marah. [j]
9 They departed from Marah and came to Elim. [k] There were 12 springs of water and 70 date palms at Elim, so they camped there.
10 They departed from Elim and camped by the •Red Sea.
11 They departed from the Red Sea and camped in the Wilderness of Sin. [l]
12 They departed from the Wilderness of Sin and camped in Dophkah.
13 They departed from Dophkah and camped at Alush.
14 They departed from Alush and camped at Rephidim, [m] where there was no water for the people to drink. [n]
15 They departed from Rephidim and camped in the Wilderness of Sinai. [o]
16 They departed from the Wilderness of Sinai and camped at Kibroth-hattaavah. [p]
17 They departed from Kibroth-hattaavah and camped at Hazeroth. [q]
18 They departed from Hazeroth and camped at Rithmah.
19 They departed from Rithmah and camped at Rimmon-perez.
20 They departed from Rimmon-perez and camped at Libnah.
21 They departed from Libnah and camped at Rissah.
22 They departed from Rissah and camped at Kehelathah.

23 They departed from Kehelathah and camped at Mount Shepher.
24 They departed from Mount Shepher and camped at Haradah.
25 They departed from Haradah and camped at Makheloth.
26 They departed from Makheloth and camped at Tahath.
27 They departed from Tahath and camped at Terah.
28 They departed from Terah and camped at Mithkah.
29 They departed from Mithkah and camped at Hashmonah.
30 They departed from Hashmonah and camped at Moseroth.
31 They departed from Moseroth and camped at Bene-jaakan. [r]
32 They departed from Bene-jaakan and camped at Hor-haggidgad.
33 They departed from Hor-haggidgad and camped at Jotbathah.
34 They departed from Jotbathah and camped at Abronah.
35 They departed from Abronah and camped at Ezion-geber. [s]
36 They departed from Ezion-geber and camped in the Wilderness of Zin [t] (that is, Kadesh).
37 They departed from Kadesh and camped at Mount Hor [u] on the edge of the land of Edom. 38 At the LORD's command, Aaron the priest climbed Mount Hor and died there on the first day of the fifth month in the fortieth year after the Israelites went out of the land of Egypt. [v] 39 Aaron was 123 years old when he died on Mount Hor. 40 At that time the Canaanite king of Arad, who lived in the •Negev in the land of Canaan, [w] heard the Israelites were coming.
41 They departed from Mount Hor and camped at Zalmonah.
42 They departed from Zalmonah and camped at Punon.
43 They departed from Punon and camped at Oboth. [x]
44 They departed from Oboth and camped at Iye-abarim on the border of Moab. [y]
45 They departed from Iyim [z] and camped at Dibon-gad. [a] 46 They departed from Dibon-gad and camped at Almon-diblathaim. [b]
47 They departed from Almon-diblathaim and camped in the Abarim [c] range facing Nebo. [d]
48 They departed from the Abarim range and camped on the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho. [e] 49 They camped by the Jordan from Beth-jeshimoth [f] to the Acacia Meadow [B, g] on the plains of Moab.

Instructions for Occupying Canaan 50 The LORD spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho, 51 "Tell the Israelites: When you cross the Jordan into the land of Canaan, 52 you must drive out all the inhabitants of the land before you, destroy all their stone images [h] and cast images, [i] and demolish all their •high places. 53 You are to take possession of the land and settle in it because I have given you the land [j] to possess. 54 You are to receive the land as an inheritance by lot according to your clans. Increase the inheritance for a large clan and decrease it for a small one. Whatever place the lot indicates for someone will be his. You will receive an inheritance according to your ancestral tribes. 55 But if you don't drive out the inhabitants of the land before you, those you allow to remain will become thorns in your eyes and in your sides; they will harass you in the land where you will live. 56 And what I had planned to do to them, I will do to you." [k]

Boundaries of the Promised Land

34 The Lord spoke to Moses, 2 “Command the Israelites and say to them:
When you enter the land of Canaan, it will be allotted to you as an inheritance [A] with these borders:

3 Your southern side will be from the Wilderness of Zin along the boundary of Edom. Your southern border on the east will begin at the east end of the Dead Sea. 4 Your border will turn south of the Ascent of Akrabbim, [B] proceed to Zin, and end south of Kadesh-barnea. It will go to Hazar-addar and proceed to Azmon. [a] 5 The border will turn from Azmon [b] to the Brook of Egypt, [c] where it will end at the Mediterranean Sea.

6 Your western border will be the coastline of the Mediterranean Sea;
this will be your western border.

7 This will be your northern border: From the Mediterranean Sea draw a line to Mount Hor; [d, e] 8 from Mount Hor draw a line to the entrance of Hamath, [C, f] and the border will reach Zedad. [g] 9 Then the border will go to Ziphron and end at Hazar-enan. [h] This will be your northern border.

10 For your eastern border, draw a line from Hazar-enan to Shepham.
11 The border will go down from Shepham to Riblah east of Ain. [i] It will continue down and reach the eastern slope of the Sea of Chinnereth. [j, k] 12 Then the border will go down to the Jordan and end at the Dead Sea. This will be your land defined by its borders on all sides.”

13 So Moses commanded the Israelites, “This is the land you are to receive by lot as an inheritance, which the Lord commanded to be given to the nine and a half tribes. 14 For the tribe of the Reubenites and the tribe of the Gadites have received their inheritance according to their ancestral houses, and half the tribe of Manasseh has received its inheritance. 15 The two and a half tribes have received their inheritance [l] across the Jordan from Jericho, eastward toward the sunrise.”

Leaders for Distributing the Land 16 The Lord spoke to Moses, 17 “These are the names of the men who are to distribute the land as an inheritance for you:
Eleazar the priest and Joshua son of Nun. 18 Take one leader from each tribe to distribute the land. [19] These are the names of the men:

Caleb [m] son of Jephunneh from the tribe of Judah;
[20] Shemuel son of Ammihud from the tribe of Simeon;
[21] Elidad son of Chislon from the tribe of Benjamin;
[22] Bukki son of Jogli, a leader from the tribe of Dan;
[23] from the sons of Joseph:
Hanniel son of Ephod, a leader from the tribe of Manasseh, [24] Kemuel son of Shiphtan, a leader from the tribe of Ephraim; [25] Eli-zaphan son of Parnach, a leader from the tribe of Zebulun;
[26] Paltiel son of Azzan, a leader from the tribe of Issachar;
[27] Ahihud son of Shelomi, a leader from the tribe of Asher;
[28] Pedahel son of Ammihud, a leader from the tribe of Naphtali.”

[29] These are the ones the LORD commanded to distribute the inheritance to the Israelites in the land of Canaan.

Cities for the Levites

35 The LORD again spoke to Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho: 2 “Command the Israelites to give cities out of their hereditary property for the Levites to live in and pastureland around the cities. [a] 3 The cities will be for them to live in, and their pasturelands will be for their herds, flocks, and all their other animals. 4 The pasturelands of the cities you are to give the Levites will extend from the city wall 500 yards [A] on every side.
5 Measure 1,000 yards [B] outside the city for the east side, 1,000 yards [C] for the south side, 1,000 yards [D] for the west side, and 1,000 yards [E] for the north side, with the city in the center. This will belong to them as pasturelands for the cities.
6 “The cities you give the Levites will include six cities of refuge, [b] which you must provide so that the one who kills someone may flee there; in addition to these, give 42 other cities. [c] 7 The total number of cities you give the Levites will be 48, along with their pasturelands. 8 Of the cities that you give from the Israelites’ territory, you should take more from a larger tribe and less from a smaller one. Each tribe is to give some of its cities to the Levites in proportion to the inheritance it receives.”

Cities of Refuge

9 The LORD said to Moses, 10 “Speak to the Israelites and tell them: When you cross the Jordan into the land of Canaan, 11 designate cities to serve as cities of refuge for you, so that a person who kills someone unintentionally may flee there. d 12 You will have the cities as a refuge from the avenger, so that the one who kills someone will not die until he stands trial before the assembly. 13 The cities you select will be your six cities of refuge. 14 Select three cities across the Jordan and three cities in the land of Canaan to be cities of refuge. 15 These six cities will serve as a refuge for the Israelites and for the foreigner or temporary resident among them, so that anyone who kills a person unintentionally may flee there.

16 “If anyone strikes a person with an iron object and death results, he is a murderer; the murderer must be put to death. 17 If a man has in his hand a stone capable of causing death and strikes another person and he dies, the murderer must be put to death. 18 If a man has in his hand a wooden object capable of causing death and strikes another person and he dies, the murderer must be put to death. 19 The avenger of blood himself is to kill the murderer; when he finds him, he is to kill him. 20 Likewise, if anyone in hatred pushes a person or throws an object at him with malicious intent and he dies, 21 or if in hostility he strikes him with his hand and he dies, the one who struck him must be put to death; he is a murderer. The avenger of blood is to kill the murderer when he finds him.

22 “But if anyone suddenly pushes a person without hostility or throws any object at him without malicious intent 23 or without looking drops a stone that could kill a person and he dies, but he was not his enemy and wasn’t trying to harm him, 24 the assembly is to judge between the slayer and the avenger of blood according to these ordinances. 25 The assembly is to protect the one who kills someone from the hand of the avenger of blood. Then the assembly will return him to the city of refuge he fled to, and he must live there until the death of the high priest who was anointed with the holy oil. e

26 “If the one who kills someone ever goes outside the border of the city of refuge he fled to, 27 and the avenger of blood finds him outside the border of his city of refuge and kills him, the avenger will not be •guilty of bloodshed, 28 for the one who killed a person was supposed to live in his city of refuge until the death of the high priest. Only after the death of the high priest may the one who has killed a person return to the land he possesses. 29 These instructions will be a statutory ordinance for you throughout your generations wherever you live.

30 “If anyone kills a person, the murderer is to be put to death based on the word of witnesses. But no one is to be put to death based on the testimony of one witness. [f] 31 You are not to accept a ransom for the life of a murderer who is guilty of killing someone; he must be put to death. 32 Neither should you accept a ransom for the person who flees to his city of refuge, allowing him to return and live in the land before the death of the high priest. [g]

33 “Do not defile the land where you are, [h] for bloodshed defiles the land, [i] and there can be no •atonement for the land because of the blood that is shed on it, except by the blood of the person who shed it. 34 Do not make the land •unclean where you live and where I reside; for I, •Yahweh , reside among the Israelites.”

The Inheritance of Zelophehad's Daughters

36 The family leaders from the clan of the descendants of Gilead — the son of Machir, son of Manasseh — who were from the clans of the sons of Joseph, approached and addressed Moses and the leaders who were over the Israelite families. 2 They said, "•Yahweh commanded my lord to give the land as an inheritance by lot to the Israelites. My lord was further commanded by Yahweh to give our brother Zelophehad's inheritance to his daughters. [a] 3 If they marry any of the men from the other Israelite tribes, their inheritance will be taken away from our fathers' inheritance and added to that of the tribe into which they marry. Therefore, part of our allotted inheritance would be taken away. 4 When the Jubilee [b] comes for the Israelites, their inheritance will be added to that of the tribe into which they marry, and their inheritance will be taken away from the inheritance of our ancestral tribe."

5 So Moses commanded the Israelites at the word of the LORD, "What the tribe of Joseph's descendants says is right. 6 This is what the LORD has commanded concerning Zelophehad's daughters: They may marry anyone they like provided they marry within a clan of their ancestral tribe. 7 An inheritance belonging to the Israelites must not transfer from tribe to tribe, because each of the Israelites is to retain the inheritance of his ancestral tribe. 8 Any daughter who possesses an inheritance from an Israelite tribe must marry someone from the clan of her ancestral tribe, so that each of the Israelites will possess the inheritance of his fathers. 9 No inheritance is to transfer from one tribe to another, because each of the Israelite tribes is to retain its inheritance."

10 The daughters of Zelophehad did as the LORD commanded Moses. 11 Mahlah, Tirzah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Noah, the daughters of Zelophehad, married cousins on their father's side. 12 They married men from the clans of the descendants of Manasseh son of Joseph, and their inheritance remained within the tribe of their father's clan.

13 These are the commands and ordinances the LORD commanded the Israelites through Moses in the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho.

NUMBERS

Introduction | Outline | Timeline | Study Notes | Word Studies

Introduction

The Book of Numbers opens at Mount Sinai and ends at Mount Nebo. Here is a view of the promised land as seen from Mount Nebo about 12 miles east of the mouth of the Jordan River. Nebo rises over 4,000 feet above the Dead Sea and gives an excellent view of the southwest, west, and as far north as Mount Hermon. Israel captured the area around Mount Nebo as they marched toward Canaan. They camped in the area of Mount Nebo opposite Jericho when the Balaam incident occurred (Nm 22-24).

The English title "Numbers" derives from the Septuagint name "Arithmoi," based on the two military censuses in chapters 1 and 26. The Hebrew title, Bemidbar, "In the Wilderness," describes the geographical setting of much of the book—from the Wilderness of Sinai to the arid Plains of Moab, across the Jordan River from Jericho.

Circumstances of Writing Author: Christian scholars have traditionally held that Moses was the author of the Pentateuch, which includes the book of Numbers. As with the other books in the Pentateuch, Numbers is anonymous, but Moses is a central character throughout. Moses kept a journal (33:2), and the phrase "The Lord spoke to Moses" is used 31 times. It is possible that a few portions were later added by scribes, such as the reference to Moses' humility (12:3) and the reference to the "Book of the Lord*'s Wars" (21:14). Moses remains the primary writer.*

Background: Numbers continues the historical narrative begun in Exodus. It picks up one month after the close of Exodus (Ex 40:2; Nm 1:1), which is about one year after the Israelites' departure from Egypt. Numbers covers the remaining 39 years of the Israelites' stay in the wilderness, from Sinai to Kadesh, and finally to the plains on the eastern side of the Jordan River.

Message and Purpose Sovereignty of God: The principal character in the book of Numbers is Yahweh, the God of Israel. He is sovereign over the affairs of all peoples from all nations. Even Balaam, a sorcerer opposed to the ways of God, could be made into an instrument for accomplishing His purposes. God would accomplish His will even when His people rebelled, as in the rejection of the promised land in chapters 13-14; in the end He kept His promise to Abraham by achieving this goal in the next generation of Israelites.

Presence of God: God's presence is exemplified in the pillar of fire by night and the pillar of cloud by day, by the ark of the covenant that represents the throne of His presence among humanity, and by the mobile sanctuary which demonstrates that the God of Israel cannot be confined to a territory, region, or city, much less a sanctuary of any kind.

Purity and Holiness of God: God is holy and pure, and He requires such behavior from those who claim Him as their God. This is a central theme of the Pentateuch and the book of Numbers.

God and Revelation: The revelatory terminology of "the LORD spoke to Moses" provides the framework for the structure of the book. Moses is the primary human agent of revelation. Numbers presents God as One who is able to accomplish His revelatory will even through a donkey or a reluctant pagan diviner.

Promise and Fulfillment: God promised Abram that He would produce a great nation through him (Gn 12:2) and give his descendants the land of the Canaanites and Amorites (Gn 15:1,8-21; 17:8). The two censuses show God's fulfillment of the first promise. The granting of territory to two and one-half tribes in Transjordan is the beginning of the land fulfillment. God proved Himself faithful to that second promise by bringing it to fruition for the second generation (Nm 15:1-21; 27:1-23; 36:1-12).

Uniqueness and Exclusivity of God: The God of Israel is the one true God, and therefore He is worthy of humanity's exclusive devotion. He cannot tolerate the worship of other deities, the elements, and forces of His creation. He is beyond human reason to comprehend and incomparable to human character (23:19). All images of deity were forbidden by Israelite law along with unauthorized worship centers, cultic instruments, and certain worship styles. All such forms of idolatry were to be removed from the land, lest Israel lapse into such transgression and suffer punishment.

Celebration in Worship: The dual themes of celebration and worship are delineated from the initial chapters of Numbers, which depict Israel in harmonious devotion to Yahweh (chaps. 1-7), to the promise of an abundance of crops in the land, which would be brought to Yahweh in sacrifices and offerings when the people inherited their tribal territories (15:1-21; 28:1-29:40). Interspersed throughout the book are several songs, including the "Song of the Cloud" (9:17-23) and the "Battle Song of the Ark" (10:35-36). The parameters of faithful worship for the sojourning Israelites are also delineated through several negative circumstances, including their failure to keep the Passover (9:13), the breaking of the Sabbath (15:32-41), and the judgment against unfaithful priests or their supporters (chaps. 16-17). Worship and celebration of the God of Israel are not limited to Israelites. Several passages state that there is one law for the Israelites and foreigners. Foreigners could celebrate the Passover if they wanted to identify with Israel in its devotion to Yahweh, the one true God, but they had to abide by His instructions and precepts (9:14).

Contribution to the Bible Numbers shows us how God responded to the unbelief of the Israelites. There are consequences to our disobedience, but God's grace remains and His redemptive plan and desire for us will not be stopped. The book of Numbers underscores for us the importance of obedience in the life of a Christian, and Paul reminded us of the value of learning from the way God has worked in the past (Rm 15:4; 1Co 10:6,11).

Structure Numbers reflects the challenging message of faithfulness. The book consists of seven cycles of material, with the repetition of the following types of material: (1) a statement of the historical setting, (2) reference to the 12 tribes of Israel and their respective leaders, (3) matters related to the priests and Levites, and (4) laws for defining the nature of the faithful community.

This book of the Law is primarily narrative with portions of case law interwoven into a vibrant literary fabric.

Study Notes 1:1 The LORD spoke to Moses is a key phrase in the book of Numbers. It is best understood as a statement of divine revelation and instruction. Many of the approximately 65 uses of this phrase are complemented by a statement that the recipient of the instruction did exactly what the Lord commanded. Church tradition from the fourth century A.D. places Mount Sinai in the south central mountains of the Sinai Peninsula at Jebel Musa ("Mount of Moses"). Other mountains suggested included Jebel Sin Bisher in west central Sinai, and Jebel Helal in northeast Sinai. The tent of meeting was the place of divine disclosure that housed the ark of the covenant and other cultic and historical items. The mobile shrine (tabernacle) had just been constructed one month before (7:1, Ex 40:17). First day of the second month indicates that the first 10 chapters of Numbers are not set forth chronologically but theologically. The military conscription census took place two weeks after the Passover described in 9:1-14.

1:2 Take a census translates the phrase "lift up the heads" ("skulls"), a phrase used in ancient Near Eastern military conscription texts. The patriarchal leaders of the 12 tribes of Israel were enlisted to stand and report to Moses and Aaron the count of the able-bodied militia of age 20 and upward.

1:5-15 The names of the leaders of the 12 tribes are listed with their lineage by tribe and by their fathers. Through Nahshon of Judah came the lineage of Boaz, who married Ruth and fathered the Davidic ancestry (Ru 4:20-22), and hence the messianic line of Jesus Christ (Mt 1:4-16; Lk 3:23-33). Elishama's grandson was Joshua son of Nun, the successor to Moses and leader of the Israelites in the conquest account.

1:17-19 The central theme of the book of Numbers is indicated here by the leaders who followed the Lord's instructions in taking the census in verses 1-4: they did just as the LORD commanded Moses. This phraseology occurs more than 20 times in the book.

1:20-43 The census of the militia of Israel was taken by patriarchal tribe, according to their family records. Here is a comparative list of the censuses taken in chapters 1 and 26. The latter was taken of the second generation after the first had refused to enter the promised land.

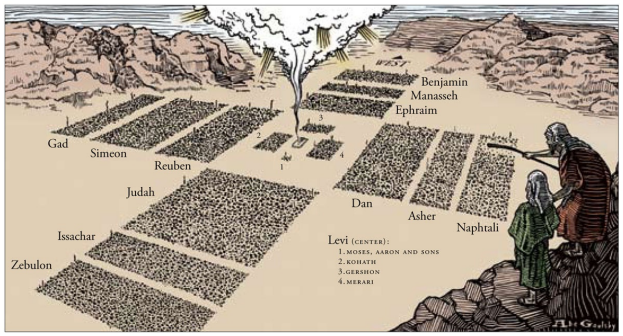
Tribe - First Census - Second Census Reuben - 46,500 - 43,730
Simeon - 59,300 - 22,200
Gad - 45,650 - 40,500
Judah - 74,600 - 76,500
Issachar - 54,400 - 64,300
Zebulun - 57,400 - 60,500
Ephraim - 40,500 - 32,500
Manasseh - 32,200 - 52,700
Benjamin - 35,400 - 45,600
Dan - 62,700 - 64,400
Asher - 41,500 - 53,400
Naphtali - 53,400 - 45,400
TOTAL 603,550 - 601,730

1:44-46 The total of 603,550 is consistent with the round number 600,000 in 11:21 and Ex 12:37. Some scholars reduce this number by reinterpreting the Hebrew word 'eleph to mean "clan" instead of "thousand," but the way the 12 subtotals add up to the grand total does not support that interpretation. Some suggest that the actual numbers were multiplied by 10 as a rhetorical device to bring glory to God, which may have been acceptable in that culture but does not sit well with modern notions of accurate reporting (see note at 3:43). According to the second census in chapter 26, the total militia prospects decreased by only 1,820 (three percent) during 40 years in the wilderness (see note at 26:51).

1:47-53 Based on the Levites' zealous actions in defense of the faith in the golden calf incident (Ex 32:26-29), this tribe was granted the privilege of servicing the tabernacle and assisting the Aaronic priests. Though the Levites were not technically priests—that position was restricted to descendants of Aaron of the tribe of Levi—they performed duties similar to those in the priestly circles of ancient Ugarit, Mari, Emar, Assyria, and Babylon.

2:1-2 The members of each tribe were given a designated area to pitch their tents around the tabernacle. The Hebrew terms degel ("standard") and 'ototh ("banners, signs") refer to a flag or placard with an insignia or color scheme to represent the given tribe. At a distance describes the safety zone around the tabernacle. The Levites served as guardians to prevent defilement of the sacred space and to keep anyone from experiencing God's punishment for coming too close to the tabernacle.



The Lord prescribed a specific arrangement for the Israelites to camp in the wilderness around the tent of meeting (2:1-34).

2:3-31 Just as wonder and beauty are reflected in the order of creation in Genesis 1, so the unity and symmetry of the sacred assembly of Israel evoke splendor and awe.

2:3 Judah's military divisions were given a positional priority, leading the camps of Issachar and Zebulun on the east side of the camp. The inner circle contained Aaronic priests. This was the place to which all Israelites brought their sacrifices and offerings for presentation to the priests. Typically in the ancient Near East, the firstborn offspring were given special privileges, but in Israelite history the supplanting of the firstborn is a prominent theme (e.g., Jacob over Esau; Gn 25:23,29-34).

2:32-33 The total of 603,550 equals that of 1:46, and the exclusion of the Levites is likewise repeated. Repetition is a common practice in Hebrew narrative, showing consistency and development in the broader narrative.

3:1-3 Within the cultural framework of the ancient Near East, genealogical records (Hb toledoth ; see note at Gn 5:1) served several purposes: (1) to provide historical connection to a pivotal point in the past; (2) to preserve familial community and organization within the larger societal structure; (3) to justify one's position within the societal structure by providing a historical precedent from within one's family line; and (4) to provide future generations with a source of pride. Moses used his records of the census to substantiate his and Aaron's authority.

3:4 Nadab and Abihu suffered the judgment of death (Lv 10:1-2) by offering an unholy censer of incense (by fire). No improper or innovative cultic acts were allowed in the service of the tabernacle. This reminder of their death warned future generations of priests against attempting improper ritual. Eleazar would succeed his father in the high priest position following Aaron's death in the region of Moab, across the Jordan River from the promised land (20:23-29; 33:38-39).

3:5-6 The language of God's instruction to Moses is that of an animal sacrifice formally brought before a priest. Hence the Levites were brought and set apart before the high priest Aaron to serve God's people.

3:7-8 The duties of the Levites on behalf of the entire community included daily maintenance to ensure the ceremonial purity of the sacrificial implements and curtains of the tabernacle furnishings that only they were allowed to touch.

3:10 The presence of God was symbolized by the ark of the covenant within the holy of holies. This area was protected by the priests on one level and by the Levites on the next. The Levites functioned as a lightning rod for the fiery wrath of God against potential encroachment of the holy place. Improper service by priests or their assistants was punishable by death.

3:11-12 In place of every firstborn of the Israelite families, the Levites served as a substitutionary living sacrifice before God for sacred service on behalf of the people of the other 12 tribes. The firstborn males of the Israelite families were to be presented to God through the agency of the priests (Ex 13:2,11-16; 22:29-30; 34:19-20). The firstborn were God's sole possession based on the redemption-of-the-firstborn principle. "Redemption" finds a parallel in the Babylonian term padu, a form of monetary payment to transfer property from one party to another. An indentured servant could gain his freedom through monetary or property transfer, performance of a period of servitude, or a general cancellation of the debt by the owner.

3:13 The price of the Israelite redemption in the exodus was the death of the firstborn of Egypt, from Pharaoh to the slave, as well as the firstborn of all Egyptian animals.

3:14-16 The census of the Levites was separated from the militia (1:17-46). They were exempt from military service. They served as support personnel who carried the sacred vessels and sounded the trumpets during the various stages of the battle. Note the role of Phinehas in the Midianite campaign (31:6). The census of the militia numbered those 20 years of age and older, but the Levites were counted for the purpose of the firstborn redemption beginning at age one month. This ensured that there were enough Levites to approximate the number of the firstborn of the other 12 tribes.

3:21-26 The tabernacle was composed of 10 curtains of finely twisted blue, purple, and scarlet linen, each 42 ft. x 6 ft., with cherubim symbols woven into them (Ex 26:1-6). The tent was made from 11 curtains of goat hair, 45 ft. x 6 ft., with additional coverings of dyed red ram skins and hides of manatees (Ex 26:7-14).

3:27-32 The Kohathite clan was assigned the tasks of guarding and transporting the sacred tabernacle furnishings, including the ark of the covenant. They did not actually handle these items; this was done by the priests, who wrapped the implements and then handed them over to the Kohathites for transport.

3:33-36 The clan of Merari were the caretakers and transporters of the equipment needed to erect and dismantle the tabernacle. By the time of the Davidic monarchy, the three clans of Levites also served as musicians for the sanctuary service (1Ch 6:31-48).

3:39 The Levite total of 22,000 does not match the sum of the clans at 22,300, which would have made the five-shekel ransom price unnecessary. Most scholars emend the Kohathite total to 8,300 in line with the Lucianic recension of the Septuagint Greek translation, resulting in the 22,000 total.

3:40-51 The excess number of Israelite males was to be redeemed by five shekels, which amounted to 2.1 ounces of silver according to the 20-gerah sanctuary shekel. The redemption price for each man in the Israelite militia was one-half shekel (Ex 30:11-16). These funds provided support for the service of the tent of meeting. Five shekels was the standard price of a slave, and six months of wages for the average day laborer. In Leviticus the redemption rate was five shekels for a small male child, and 50 shekels for an adult male (Lv 27:1-8). The substitutionary aspect of the ransom price theme in the Pentateuch has its ultimate fulfillment in the work of Jesus Christ as the paschal lamb and the final sacrifice for sin—a lamb without blemish (1Pt 1:18-19).

3:43 The census figure of 22,273 presents a practical problem. If there were only that many firstborn among the 603,550 males, then each firstborn had an average of 26 brothers—an incredible birthrate not substantiated in the Bible or elsewhere. R. B. Allen attempts to solve the problem by contending that the author employed hyperbolic language, exaggerating the actual number of 60,355 by a factor of ten, yielding 603,550. Such tactics were common in ancient literature and were considered a meaningful use of symbolic or sacred numbers (e.g., seven, ten, etc.). Another solution is to identify the 22,273 as only those firstborn males who were born during the year and a half between the exodus and the census since the total number of firstborn among the 603,550 would have been much higher.

4:4 The most holy objects were the ark of the covenant, the bronze laver, the seven-tiered menorah, and other implements of the tabernacle.

4:5-6 When the pillar of cloud moved out from one campsite to the next, the Aaronic priests would dismantle the tabernacle and prepare each part for the journey. The screening veil of scarlet, blue, and purple that separated the holy of holies from the outer court was used in the covering of the ark of the testimony. It was then wrapped in yellow-orange skins of the manatee (aka dugong, sea cow) for protection during the transport from one camp to the next. A final covering of royal purple cloth completed the preparation process.

4:7-8 The 12 loaves, representing the 12 tribes of Israel, were replaced weekly on the Sabbath and were symbolic of God's presence and constant provision for His people (Ex 24:5-9).

4:20 Violation of the Holiness Code, even for the Kohathites, was punishable by death.

4:21-28 See Ex 26:1-14,36-37 for a detailed description of the tabernacle curtains and other items.

4:34-49 This section summarizes the census of the three clans of the Levites.

Levite Clan	Age 1 Month+	Age 30-50
Kohathite	8,300	2,750
Gershon	7,500	2,630
Merari	6,200	3,200
TOTAL	22,000	8,580

5:2 These people were not banished, but sent outside the sacred area so the holy place would not be defiled. The unclean were quarantined on the outer perimeter of the camp. Leviticus 13-14 describes the process of purification by which people could be restored to the camp of the holy. Skin diseases ranged from abscesses or eczema to perhaps Hansen's disease (leprosy), though some scholars reject the inclusion of Hansen's disease in the OT restrictions. Bodily discharges refer to those emitted by male and female sexual organs (cp. Lv 15). Contact with a dead animal rendered a person impure for a day, but pollution by contact with a human corpse made him unclean for a week.

5:3 As with most OT laws, both male or female were on equal status regarding ritual purity, except for those things which were unique to one gender.

5:5-10 When a man or woman commits any sin against another addressed purity in interpersonal relationships as part of the Hebrew 'asham ("restitution offering") legislation of Lv 6:1-7. Damage to property, fraud, or false statements affected the well-being of the community of faith and had to be dealt with forthrightly. Human relationship and a restitution of value were essential for maintaining harmony and holiness in the community.

5:12-14 Probably no case study in pentateuchal law has so many conditional clauses. If any man's wife was apprehended in the act of adultery, her act was punishable by death along with the adulterous male partner (Lv 20:10). The ritual outlined here put the matter in the hands of God (who sees and knows all) when adultery was suspected but not proven by human witnesses. The woman would not be stoned if the community followed this legislation. Throughout the book of Numbers special attention is given to matters related to women, including women's property rights (Nm 27:1-11; 36:1-12) and women's vows

(30:3-16; including female Nazirites in 6:2).

5:15-16 The woman suspected of adultery would be brought before the priest at the entrance of the tabernacle. The woman was to stand before the LORD, who would act as her judge.

5:18 To let down her hair was a sign of mourning or disgrace (Lv 10:6, 13:45; 21:10).

5:19-22 The extended oath of imprecation took place at the entrance to the sanctuary before God and the priest. The mixture of holy water and dust from the tabernacle floor (v. 16) became either a purification tonic if the woman was innocent or a curse that left her barren for life.

5:23-28 In the solemn ceremony, the woman drank the potion and the results were left to God. Perhaps there was only a slight possibility that the punishment would happen. A jealous husband, having no more than a hunch of evidence against his wife, subjected her to a test in which the prospects of punishment were very limited. God is the only infallible judge.

6:1 After two chapters of Levitical and priestly instructions (chaps. 3-4), and a series of community purity laws in chapter 5, the Nazirite legislation defines an additional level of service for the laity in the community of faith.

6:2 Unlike the priestly and Levitical service, which was limited to males of a certain age and ancestral heritage, the Nazirite vow was a special dedicatory service for the Lord that was open to females. Though only Aaronic priests were permitted to conduct cultic ritual in the tabernacle, any person could dedicate his or her life in service to the Lord for a specific period of time. Samson was dedicated as a Nazirite for the purpose of delivering Israel from Philistine oppression (Jdg 13:2-4). The mothers of Samson and Samuel took Nazirite vows during their time of barrenness.

6:3-4 The Nazirite vow involved total restriction from the vineyard and any of its products. This was more stringent than the restriction of priests from consuming wine during their time of ritual service. The vineyard denoted a sedentary lifestyle that often lost its perspective of total devotion to the Lord. Note the example of the Rechabites in Jeremiah 35 (see notes at Jr 35:2 and Jr 35:6-11). Beer translates a Hebrew term traditionally translated “strong drink,” derived from the verb shakar, “to be drunk.” The distillation process, which leads to a higher alcoholic content than can be achieved via mere fermentation, was unknown until the ninth century A.D. Thus the ancients were unable to make beverages that are as potent as the “strong drinks” that have been available since medieval times. For this reason the HCSB translators reason that “beer” is a more accurate translation since it has a lower alcohol percentage than the “strong drink” that results from distillation.

6:5-6 The uncut hair would be an outward symbol to others of the Nazirite dedication. Refraining from coming near the dead or participating in the burial ritual would be a reminder to that person's family that he had been totally dedicated to the Lord.

6:9-12 Closeness to a dead body, a major contaminant mentioned in 5:2, could happen accidentally while a person was sleeping in his tent when an elderly relative died. If the vineyard and razor restrictions were deliberately broken, the vow was automatically ended. See chapter 19 for detailed legislation on cleansing from contamination by a corpse.

6:13-20 The concluding ceremony of the Nazirite vow involved each of these sacrificial offerings: (1) a burnt offering (Hb 'olah) for consecration, (2) a sin offering (Hb chatta'ath) for purification, and (3) a fellowship offering (Hb shelomim) for celebration.

6:22-27 The priestly blessing concludes the first section of the book of Numbers.

6:23 Blessing was invoking the power of God on behalf of the people of God (bless the Israelites). This blessing would bring such things as numerous descendants, a fruitful land, good health, long life, deliverance from danger and oppression, protection from one's enemies, and God's abiding presence. As the recipient of God's blessing, Israel was to bless the nations (Gn 12:3) as His instrument, serving as a light to the entire world and pointing the nations to the one true God.

6:24 God's protection of Israel had been demonstrated by their deliverance from Egypt. The prayer calls for that protection to continue.

6:25 The face reflected the righteous character of God. Be gracious to you evoked God's favor, which was beyond measure. God's grace would be exemplified when God brought the second generation into the promised land after the rejection of that gift by the generation delivered from Egypt.

6:26 Look with favor on you and give you peace expresses God's grace and beneficence. Favor is the directing of one's full attention toward the needs and desires of another person. The smile of God on the community of faith would bring peace as His covenant mercy came to fruition in the life of the community.

6:27 The name of God is a reflection of the fullness of His character. When Jesus spoke of coming in the name of the Father (Jn 5:43; 10:25), He was evoking the fullness of God's character upon His public ministry.

7:1 The historical setting of the construction of the tabernacle (Ex 40:17) is the first day of the first month of the second year, nearly a year after the exodus from Egypt.

7:12-83 Each of the 12 tribal representatives presented the given number of items for use in the Israelite celebration. The repetition in this passage highlights the fact that every tribe participated in the ritual celebrations and had an equal role in the religious practices. A people in communion with God were ready to worship together and experience His abiding presence. The order of the offerings from each of the tribal representatives follows an administrative-list pattern of the ancient Near East. The normal sequence for Israelite relations with God is: (1) consecration/whole burnt offering for sanctification, (2) purification/sin offering to atone for a broken relationship with God, and (3) peace/thanksgiving offering for the celebration of the relationship with God. Only the restitution offering is not mentioned in this context of consecration and celebration.

7:84-89 This passage fulfills the promise of Ex 25:22. The tent of meeting, where Moses had sought revelation from God, had formerly been located outside the camp, but with the tabernacle construction completed, it was placed within the area of the ark of the covenant. Moses could not enter the tent immediately after its construction because of the smoke from the cloud of the Lord that had descended (Ex 40:34-38), but now with the dedication of the tabernacle implements and sacrifices, he could once more seek counsel from God.

8:1-4 The lampstand, or menorah, mentioned in 3:31 and 4:9, was a symbol of God's presence and glory. Instructions for construction of the tabernacle were provided in Ex 25:31-40; 37:17-24. The verses are included here as part of the celebration and dedication of the tabernacle and its implements for worship.

8:5-7 The purification process involved three steps: (1)sprinkling the Levites with special purification water, probably taken from the bronze basin in the outer court of the tabernacle; (2) shaving their entire bodies, as the Nazirite would do if the vow were broken (6:9,18); and (3) washing their clothes (19:8; Lv 16:26,28).

8:8-12 Two bulls were sacrificed in the ceremony after the Levites had laid their hands on the bulls' heads as a symbol of substitutionary identification in the atonement process. The order of sin offering and then burnt offering follows the delineation in Leviticus, the first for ceremonial purification and the second for consecration.

8:13-14 The Levites were to stand before the Aaronic priests and the congregation of Israelites as an offering for sanctuary service. This presentation offering is sometimes called a "wave" or "elevation" offering, but here it functioned as a communion offering of celebration for the dedication of the Levites for tabernacle service.

8:15-19 The Levites served as assistants to the Aaronic priests, transporting and maintaining sanctuary structures and implements. They also served as guardians against encroachment upon the holiness of the sanctuary. The substitutionary role of the Levites for the firstborn of Israel is reiterated here (3:40-45; Ex 13:11-16), with emphasis on the exodus event as the historical precedent for this legislation.

8:23-26 The addendum to the dedication of the Levites cites their retirement age as 50 and their minimum age of service as 25 years, whereas 4:3 suggests a minimum age of 30. Some scholars attempt to resolve the inconsistency by suggesting that the Levites may have served a five-year apprenticeship beginning at age 25. Others suggest that the age minimum was raised as a result of the deaths of Nadab and Abihu (Lv 10:1-3). During the latter part of David's reign two different censuses were taken of the Levites who were 30 and above and those who were 20 and above (1Ch 23:2-5,24-27). Later, in the days of Hezekiah, another Levitical census was taken for those at least 20 years of age (2Ch 31:17).

9:1 In the first month of the second year after the exodus, the Israelites celebrated their second Passover at Mount Sinai, just two days after the receiving of the tribal offerings (7:12-88), and two weeks before the first military census (1:2-44).

9:2-4 The Israelites were instructed to observe the Passover at its appointed time as outlined in Ex 12:12-40. The original Passover lasted only one evening as the Israelites departed from Egypt in haste, but later guidelines dictated that this celebration last for one week, beginning on 14 Abib (later called Nisan). Participants were required to be in a state of ceremonial purity in order to join in the celebration.

9:5-7 Biblical case law arose out of circumstances experienced by the community of faith. Questions of obedience to the commands of God were posed to the leading interpreter of the law, such as the high priest, another priest, or a Levite, who would then seek God's will in the matter.

9:8-13 The legislation of verses 10-13 probably served as the historical precedent for the second month Passover in the late eighth century B.C., during the reign of King Hezekiah (2Ch 30:1-27), after the king had led the people to destroy pagan worship centers in and around Jerusalem. That celebration lasted the full week in accordance with the normal Passover, or unleavened bread sequence (Ex 12:14-20; 23:15), although chapter 9 does not contain stipulations for the week-long celebration of the Festival of Unleavened Bread in the second month. That legislation probably arose in the planning of the great celebration of King Hezekiah's era.

9:14 Israelite law gave considerable attention to the status of resident aliens who identified with the Israelite religion. The same law applied to the native Israelite and to the foreigner. Note the cases in 15:14-16 and Ex 12:49. Second

Chronicles 30:25 also notes that sojourners came to celebrate Passover in the days of King Hezekiah from all the former tribal territories of Israel as well as Judah. This would have included many people who had been deported by the Assyrians from Babylon, Cuthah, and other countries (2Kg 17:24). Anyone who wanted to identify with the Israelite community of faith and who was willing to submit to the Lord's laws and statues was permitted to do so.

9:15 The chronological sequence returns to that of 7:1 and Ex 40:17, the day when the tabernacle construction was completed—on the first day of the first month of year two. See note at Nm 7:1.

9:17-23 The poetic structure of verse 17 hints that this section was originally a song that was sung during the wilderness journey. The song's refrain occurs in verse 18, perhaps to be translated, At the word of the Lord they set out, the children of Israel, and at the word of the Lord they camped; all the days that it dwelt, the cloud upon the tabernacle, they camped.

This "Song of the Journey" set the stage for the actual departure from Mount Sinai in 10:11-36. The same sequence of marching and camping recurs in chapter 33. The NT also depicts God's presence in the imagery of the cloud, as in the transfiguration of Jesus (Mk 9:7; Lk 9:34) and at His ascension (Ac 1:9).

9:19-22 The periodic movement of God's presence from one campsite to the next varied from a day to several months—perhaps a year or more at Kadesh-barnea after the people refused to enter the promised land (13:25-14:38).

10:2 The two trumpets of hammered silver were different from the ram's horn (Hb shofar). The shofar announced the Day of Atonement (Lv 25:9), and it was used in the march around Jericho at the beginning of the conquest of the promised land (Jos 6:2-21). The distinctive pitch of the silver trumpets summoned the people to march through the wilderness. It was also blown by the priest Phinehas in the battle against Midian (Nm 31:6).

10:5-6 After the Lord moved His presence in the cloud, the priests would sound the trumpets in sequence and at varying duration, and possibly differing pitch, to signal the people of Israel to follow the Lord's leading.

10:11-13 The twentieth of the month was less than a week after the unclean persons were able to celebrate Passover on the fourteenth of the second month (cp. 9:8-13). This was also about a month after the week-long Passover described in 9:1-14 (cp. Ex 13:6). After spending 11 months in the Sinai Wilderness, the Lord would now begin to lead the people to His intended destination—the promised land. Again the Israelites are described as faithfully following the Lord's command through Moses, in the language of the "Song of the Journey" (Nm 9:17-23).

10:12 The geographical parameters of this initial movement are the Sinai and Paran deserts. The Israelites camped at Taberah (11:3), Kibroth-hattavah (11:34-35), and Hazeroth (12:16) on their way to the Wilderness of Paran. Paran was west of Midian, east of Egypt, extending northward from some point north or northeast of Mount Sinai, northward toward Kadesh-barnea, and eastward to the Arabah. The text shifts from the Paran Wilderness region (13:26) to a more specific context, in a literary style similar to the listing of the itinerary of the spies (13:21) and later the rebellion of Moses (20:1-13; 27:14). Paran's relationship to Midian is confirmed later in history when the Edomite king Hadad fled from Solomon to Egypt through Midian and Paran (1Kg 11:18).

10:14-28 The orderly departure from Mount Sinai of the priests, Levites, and 12 tribes follows the pattern of the encampment detailed in 2:1-3:38, with Judah led by Nahshon setting out first (v. 14). The tribal leaders who assisted Moses and Aaron in taking the military census (1:5-15) are those who led their respective groups at the beginning of the victory march to the promised land. Order, harmony, and faithfulness marked the beginning of the wilderness journey.

10:29-32 Moses noted twice that the LORD has promised good things to Israel, and twice Moses promised Hobab that the goodness would be apportioned to him as well if he would help guide them through the wilderness. Who was this Hobab son of Reuel? The dual names Reuel (Ex 2:18) and Jethro (Ex 3:1) in reference to Moses' in-laws are perhaps references to two generation of this Midianite clan, since the Hebrew term can mean "father-in-law," "brother-in-law," or just "in-law." Thus the patriarchal clan leader was probably named "Reuel" (taking "father" as "grandfather" which is common in the Hebrew Bible) and the actual father-in-law of Moses was named Jethro. Others suggest Jethro and Reuel are the same person, since dual names are commonly reflected in Bronze Age texts. The blessing of God was fulfilled for Hobab and his Kenite clan in Jdg 1:16.

Did Moses show a lack of faith by asking his brother-in-law to serve as a guide in the wilderness? The text does not even hint at this suggestion, since the focus is on the involvement of Hobab as a potential recipient of the covenant blessings of Israel. Instead, the idea of shared leadership is emphasized in which Moses was the interpreter of God's direction as revealed through the cloud in the wilderness. Hobab would provide valuable support in the desert setting known by the Midianites.

10:33-36 The "Battle Song of the Ark" (vv. 35-36) is preceded by a dual chronological marker about the first stage in the movement of the Lord's cloud. A three-day journey would mean a distance of about 35 to 45 miles, based on travel rates mentioned in military annals of the pharaohs of Egypt. On the journey the cloud, symbolizing God's presence and leadership (9:15-23), preceded them at a distance though still covering them for protection. The ark of the LORD's covenant, the symbolic throne of God in king-to-servant relationship with Israel, led the way for the people. The three-day journey is reminiscent of Moses' request to Pharaoh to allow the Israelites to journey three days into the wilderness to worship the Lord.

11:1-3 These verses establish the complaint pattern of later narratives (chaps. 11-25): (1) complaint, (2) divine punishment, and (3) naming the place after some aspect of the event. Hence, the "fiery" judgment of God led to the place being named Taberah, or "blaze."

11:1 The complaining Israelites and others were literally grumbling evil (Hb ra') in the ears of God. In his dialogue with Hobab, Moses had spoken three times about the promise of God's goodness (Hb tov, yatav), but the people began a continuous protest against God. Good and evil are purposefully contrasted in these two chapters to begin the cycles of rebellion that dominate chapters 11-25. This form of judgment parallels what was meted out against Nadab and Abihu (Lv 10:1-3), though that fire came from the midst of the tabernacle.

11:4 Contemptible people were a mixed crowd of Israelites who were descendants of Jacob and others who had left Egypt in the exodus. The text contrasts with two parallel events in Ex 16:1-36 and 18:13-27, drawing new perspectives on the themes of God's provision for the people and the matter of leadership on the human level. The human response factor has deteriorated in the current context. In Exodus 16 God supplied needed food, but in Numbers 11 the people complained about God's provision.

11:5 The people's complaint is summarized in the words, We remember the free fish we ate in Egypt. This amounted to calling the evil of the Egyptian oppression "good" and God's good provision in the wilderness "evil." Insatiable human lust, whatever the object of desire, will lead to a life of bondage.

11:7 The phrase the manna resembled coriander seed is one of the few descriptions of the wilderness diet. This description was inserted to refute the people's complaints. Precise identification of manna is somewhat tentative. But manna's association with coriander seed is probably an indicator of its taste, since the seed was used for flavoring. The comparison of manna to bdellium indicates a yellow-white aromatic resin similar to a by-product of the tamarisk tree found in northern Arabia.

11:10-15 The effect of the discontentment throughout the camp drew the attention of Moses and God. Though he was angry with the people, Moses approached God with respect, asserting that he could not carry all these people by myself. Moses also declared, If You are going to treat me like this, please kill me right now. The words of his misery-filled complaint bordered on rebellion, as this section prepares the reader for the rebellion of Moses and Aaron in chapter 20. Moses is the focal person in the first cycle of rebellion (chaps. 11-15); Aaron is the main leader in the second cycle; and in the third cycle, both men rebel, leaving God to raise up a new temporary spokesman, Balaam.

11:16 The term for "officers" (Hb shoterim) also denotes scribes, whom R. K. Harrison has suggested were responsible for the writing and collecting of documents that would eventually become the Pentateuch. The tent of meeting was the place of revelation and mediation, two aspects of the relationship between God and His people.

11:17 The possession of the Spirit of God that had been exclusively on Moses would now be distributed to the 70 elders, giving them a spiritual dimension that would set them apart from the administrative and judicial appointees of Ex 18:25-26. The work of the Spirit of God would enable the elders and officers to carry out the tasks of teaching, judging, and leading the Israelites through the wilderness. God ratified the 70 registered elders by placing His Spirit on them, even two who had remained in the camp. Later in Numbers, Balaam also received the Spirit of prophecy from God (24:2).

11:18 Purify yourselves refers to the process of consecration through the bathing of body and clothes that was used to prepare people to receive a theophany—a manifestation of God's presence.

11:19-20 God declared to the Israelites that they would eat . . . for a whole month. The supply of quail in Ex 16:13 was in response to a need for food in the first wilderness journey before reaching Mount Sinai. This request arose out of rebellious discontentment with the continuous provision of manna that God had made.

11:25 That God took some of the Spirit that was on Moses and placed it on the Israelite elders did not diminish the Spirit that was on Moses. This miracle provided the necessary power and wisdom to those who functioned on behalf of God and under the direction of Moses.

11:26 Two elders, Eldad and Medad, who had not attended the presentation ceremony, prophesied in the same manner as the other elders, demonstrating that God's Spirit cannot be confined to any space or time.

11:31-32 In a manner similar to the wind that blew back the waters of the Red Sea in the exodus event, a divinely driven wind brought a large quantity of quail across the camp. Arabs in the early twentieth century are known to have captured between one and two million quail during the autumn bird migration. The extraordinary quantity of quail was swept in from the sea, probably from the Gulf of Aqaba (Elath) if the wind were from the east, and then downward toward the encampment of Israel.

11:33 The severe plague sent upon the people might have been food poisoning due to the time the quail meat remained in the sun without proper processing and drying. Even if there are natural explanations, the ultimate cause was the LORD's anger.

11:34 The blessing turned to craving, and the craving to disease and death, leading to the naming of the location Kibroth-hattaavah ("Graves of Craving").

12:1 The supposed reason for the complaint of Miriam and Aaron against Moses was his marriage to a Cushite woman, though the real reason was Moses' authority as God's primary spokesman. Explanations for the Cushite identity include: (1) she was Moses' second wife of Cushite origin (Nubian = modern Ethiopian or Sudanese), whom Moses perhaps had married while Zipporah was back in Midian visiting her father Jethro; (2) perhaps Zipporah (a Midianite) had died and Moses had recently remarried; and (3) Zipporah and the Cushite woman are one and the same.

12:2 The terminology and the context suggest that Aaron and Miriam were challenging Moses' prophetic position as the primary recipient of revelation from God. The ethnic issue was a smokescreen for the real challenge—Moses' divinely appointed position of leadership. Miriam and Aaron are both spoken of in a prophetic sense in the OT (Ex 4:14-15; 15:20-21; Mc 6:4).

12:4-5 The pillar of cloud descended to provide the personal encounter for divine disclosure.

12:7 Being called My servant by the Lord and a faithful prophet placed Moses in the category of Abraham (Gn 26:24) and the "servant" in the Servant Songs of Isaiah (Is 42-53).

12:8 God declared of Moses, I speak with him directly, openly. Some translations have "face to face" (Hb peh 'el peh), but Moses could not look upon God's face (Ex 33:11,20-23). Only Jesus Christ could truly look upon the face of the Father (Jn 6:44-51). The expression denotes the direct method by which the will of God was communicated through the words of Moses, which could legitimately be translated "mouth to mouth," since out of the mouth of a person echoes his character (Mt 12:34).

12:9-13 The description of Miriam's disease as white as snow like a stillborn baby suggests a variety of ailments ranging from skin cancer to psoriasis, or perhaps even modern leprosy, Hansen's disease. All of these would render her unclean according to Levitical law (Lv 13-14). Both Aaron and Moses expressed their love and concern for their sister in their desperate pleas on her behalf.

12:14-15 The seven days of separation after healing follows the Levitical law consistently, and the purification process described in Lv 14:1-32 is assumed here.

12:16 The location of Hazeroth in the Wilderness of Paran is viewed in the context of the summary statement in 10:12—that the people journeyed from Sinai to the Paran Wilderness in the first phase of the journey to the promised land. The Paran Wilderness is a broad area of northeastern Sinai, bordered on the northeast by the Zin Wilderness within which Kadesh-barnea is located (cp. 33:15-37).

13:1-14:45 The climax to the first cycle of rebellions is the refusal of the people to enter the promised land. The people adopted the majority report of 10 of 12 spies—that the inhabitants of the land and their fortified cities were too strong for them to conquer. The rejection of the land was a rejection of God and His blessings.

13:1 The book of Numbers says the LORD instructed Moses to send out the spies, but Dt 1:22-23 suggests that Moses sent the scouts at the request of the people. As with many OT historical events, the human and the divine involvements go hand in hand.

13:2 The mission of these spies was to scout out the land. The list of scouts from the 12 tribes (vv. 4-15) introduces a different, presumably younger, group from the elder patriarchal leaders who had led in taking the military census in chapter 1.

13:3 The geographical designations in the chapter move from the broader context of the Wilderness of Paran to the more specific citation of Kadesh (-barnea) in the Zin Wilderness (33:36-37), the starting point of their exploration (v. 21). The Zin Wilderness is defined by the desert drainage basin of the Nahal Zin, a subsection of the Paran Wilderness. The Nahal Zin today is viewed as portions of Sinai and the Negev in modern Israel.

13:4-14 The list of these scouts contains a number of unusual names, rarely appearing again in the OT, with the exception of Joshua and Caleb. This gives an indication of the early date of the composition of Numbers, contrary to critics who propose that it was written in the postexilic period, 539-332 B.C.

13:17-20 Moses' question Is the land . . . good or bad? builds upon the good-versus-evil theme presented in 10:29-33 and 11:1. The parenthetic note about the season of the first ripe grapes places the exploration of Canaan in August or early September, several months after the departure from Mount Sinai in early spring.

13:17 The Negev in the OT refers to the region south of Hebron, but north of the Zin Wilderness. In modern Israel "Negev" refers to the region from the Beersheba-Arad line southward to Eilat on the Gulf of Aqaba.

13:21 The scouts explored the land from the Wilderness of Zin as far as Rehob near the entrance to Hamath. Parallel to the later description of the land as extending from Dan (in the north) to Beersheba (in the south), these parameters reverse the order and extend the distance from south of Beersheba to Rehob of Lebo-Hamath in southeastern Lebanon, somewhat north of Tel Dan. Lebo is recounted as a city on the northern border of the promised land (34:7-8) and later of the Israelite kingdom of David and Solomon (1Kg 8:65).

13:22 Hebron is said to have been fortified seven years before Zoan, which was in the eastern Nile Delta, about 100 miles northeast of Cairo. The Egyptian name for Zoan is Dja'net, which was pronounced by the Greeks as Tanis. It is associated with the site known as Tel el-Daba. The names of the three clans of the Anakim reflect Semitic background for these giant individuals.

13:23 The Hebrew word 'eshcol means "a cluster of grapes," and hence Valley of Eshcol reflects the productivity of the vineyards in the valley, which is located west of Hebron. Ripe pomegranates and figs suggest a date of late August or early September for this exploration of Canaan.

13:25 The scouts' 40 days of exploring the land matches the approximate time it would have taken for the 350 to 400-mile journey on foot, based upon the 12 to 15 miles per day average recounted in the annals of the Egyptian military campaigns of Thutmose III (1504-1450 B.C.) and Ramesses II (1290-1225 B.C.).

13:26 The Israelite scouts had departed from the Paran Desert area and had worked their way north into the Negev and through what would later be Judah and Israel. The Israelites meanwhile continued their journey to the oasis of Kadesh-barnea, presumed to be the area of Quseima, at the headwaters of the wilderness basin of the Nahal Zin.

13:27 The report of the scouts began on the positive side with the demonstration of the fruitfulness of the promised land. Milk and honey became the classic description of the abundance of natural flora and fauna of the land of Canaan (Ex 3:8,17; 13:5; 33:3; Lv 20:24; Dt 6:3; 11:9). This assessment is echoed in the Egyptian travel account "The Story of Sinuhe" in which the princely emissary described the land of Yaa and its abundant produce.

13:28-29 The tenor of the report quickly changed to a negative assessment of the possibility of conquering the heavily fortified cities and the numerous inhabitants, which they claimed included giants. The problem was that the people focused on their own strength rather than the power of God. The point of the later victories over the Midianites, Amorites, and Canaanites was to demonstrate God's strength. The power of Israel was never in her armies. Victory came at the hands of the Lord of Hosts. Recent discoveries that confirm the biblical data suggest a complex composite of ethnic groups living in the land of Canaan during the Late Bronze (1550-1200 B.C.) and Iron 1 (1200-1000 B.C.) ages.

The Amalekites were a seminomadic tribe from the region of Edom that ranged throughout the southern Levant, from northern Sinai to the hill country of Samaria. Hormah (Tel Masos in the Negev) may have been one of their cities (14:45).

The Hittites, known from the patriarchal period (Gn 23:3-20), were from the central highlands; they originated in eastern Anatolia around the third millennium B.C. The Hittite Empire flourished in the late Bronze Age (1550-1200 B.C.). Centered in Hattusa, it extended from central Anatolia to the upper Euphrates River and to the northern Levant.

The Jebusites were a non-Semitic clan who lived in Jerusalem during the middle Bronze through Iron 1 periods (2000-1000 B.C.), and who remained in control of the city until the time of the Davidic conquests (2Sm 5:6-9). They are unknown outside the Bible, though the city of Jerusalem is mentioned in the cuneiform documents from Tel Amarna from the late Bronze Age (1550-1200 B.C.). Scholars have suggested they may have been a subclan of the Perizzites or related to the Hurrians. The Table of Nations lists the Jebusites as descendants of Canaan (Gn 10:16).

The Semitic Amorites lived in the hill country of the central and southern Levant. The term “Amorite” can refer to a number of inhabitants of areas known today as Syria, Lebanon, Jordan, Israel, and Palestine. It may also refer more specifically to ethnic descendants of Canaan as delineated in Gn 10:16. They were referred to as the Amurru (“Amorites” or “westerners”) in Akkadian records at Mari and the Martu in Sumerian texts of the third and second millennia B.C. Egyptian records describe their territory as extending from the Negev to the heights of Lebanon.

The Canaanites emerged in the middle Bronze Age (2000-1550 B.C.) in the southern Levant (Gn 12:6) and continued to be a significant percentage of the population into the late Bronze Age (1550-1200 B.C.) and Iron 1 Age (1200-1000 B.C.). The land of Canaan was controlled by Egypt under the Eighteenth (Empire Kingdom, 1570-1400 B.C.) and Nineteenth (Ramesside, 1302-1175 B.C.) dynasties. The region extended along the Mediterranean Sea from the Wadi el-‘Arish to Lebo-hamath in Lebanon, and inland to the Jordan Valley region. The designation of “Canaan” may derive from the Akkadian word meaning “red purple,” based on the production of red-to-purple dyes produced from the abundant murex shells along the Lebanese coast. Other scholars point to the Semitic root k-n-‘ meaning “to bend, be subdued.” The earliest reference to “Canaan” comes from the eighteenth century B.C. in Mari.

13:30 Caleb was the first to counter the objections of the majority of the scouts. The name Caleb means “dog,” and it serves as an example of the danger of reading too much into the meaning of biblical names.

13:32 The negative report was circulated by word of mouth. The grumbling grew into greater discontent as the scouts exaggerated the stature and strength of their enemies.

13:33 The reference to the descendants of Anak as Nephilim was designed to instill fear in the hearts of the Israelites. The Nephilim, “fallen ones” (“giants” in the LXX), are noted in Gn 6:4 as the offspring of the “sons of God” (“angelic beings” or “divine warriors”) and the “daughters of men.” The Nephilim were of large stature, but they all would have been destroyed in Noah’s flood (Gn 6:11ff), so it is best to conclude that the frightened spies gave an exaggerated report. Grasshoppers were the smallest of edible creatures permitted for Israelite consumption (Lv 11:22).

14:1-4 The grumbling rebellion against God and His gift of the land reached a climax when the Israelite congregation moaned, If only we had died in the land of Egypt. Persons in fear and depression focus on the negative side of events and circumstances rather than turn their hearts and minds to God, the source of hope and deliverance.

14:3 The outcry of the people turned to the potential loss of their wives and little children. This heightened the drastic nature of the complaint.

14:4 The rebellion turned to the rejection of God's chosen and faithful leaders: Moses, Aaron, Caleb, and later Joshua.

14:5-9 Moses and Aaron fell down with their faces to the ground in humble submission before God at the entrance to the tabernacle where the people had gathered. At the same time they were bowing before the rebellious Israelites, propitiating God on their behalf. The faithful scouts Joshua and Caleb tore their clothes as a symbol of mourning and disdain for the defiant Israelites and their humiliated leaders. The tearing of one's garments was a gesture of mourning for the dead, for expressing lament over disease or plague, and for introducing a prophetic lament of judgment against an individual or nation.

14:10 God's dramatic intervention in the history of His people is integral to fulfilling His promise to bless His people. Here, as in 12:5; 16:19; Ex 14:19, the dynamic work of God demonstrates how He will intervene in history when the survival of His people is at stake. The theophany of the cloud/fiery pillar became even clearer to the Israelites as they grumbled against God.

14:11-12 The miraculous signs the Israelites had experienced in their deliverance from Egypt and their wandering in the wilderness were all forgotten. God threatened to destroy the Israelites and start over with a new people through Moses.

14:13-16 Moses intervened on behalf of a rebellious nation with an appeal to God's reputation among the nations (the Egyptians will hear about it) and to the power of God to fulfill His promises. God's glory was at stake in this crisis.

14:14 Most translations have face to face (lit "eye to eye,"), but neither Israel nor Moses could look upon God's face (Ex 33:11,20-23). The expression denotes the method by which the will of God was communicated directly through the words of Moses. The "face" of God was His continual presence in the pillar of cloud by day and the pillar of fire by night.

14:17-18 Slow to anger describes God's longsuffering character. He was willing to endure the rebellion of the people for an extended period of time and to respond to their waywardness with grace and faithfulness. Later in Israelite history, the prophets responded to Israel's idolatrous practices of adopting Canaanite gods and goddesses in worship and practicing injustice against their own people by declaring that God's longsuffering would soon come to an end. His judgment was imminent and came to pass in the Assyrian and Babylonian invasions of Israel and Judah in the eighth and sixth centuries B.C.

Rich in faithful love describes God's lovingkindness and covenant loyalty to the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. But in spite of His love, His justice and righteousness would not allow him to leave the guilty unpunished. Moses' understanding of the balance between the love of God and His righteous judgment came through his close relationship with God.

The phrase bringing the consequences of the fathers' wrongdoing on the children meant that stemming the tide of sinfulness within the family structure often took many generations. God does not cause one's descendants to suffer because of the sins of their fathers (Dt 24:16; Ezk 18; see note at Ex 20:4-6), but He does punish children who keep doing the same sorts of sins as their parents. This passage set the stage for the words of the Shema (Dt 6:4-9), which instructed parents to set an example in the worship of God in the context of the family.

14:19 Please pardon was Moses' way of asking God to show the Israelites His merciful love instead of His righteous judgment.

14:20-23 God's reputation would be preserved through the meting out of His judgment against the disobedient first-generation leaders, and His mercy would be extended to the generation that followed. In refusing to enter the promised land, the older generation had rejected an essential part of their covenant relationship with God that was set forth in the Abrahamic covenant (Gn 12:1-3,7; 13:14-18; 15:18-21; 17:7-8).

14:24 Caleb, the faithful scout from the tribe of Judah, would join Hoshea (Joshua) of Ephraim as one of only two exceptions to God's judgment against the 10 scouts who had issued the majority report (v. 30). Thus the passage echoes the theme of the book of Numbers—that those who followed God's instructions faithfully would experience the fullness of God's blessing in the promised land.

14:25 The wilderness in the direction of the Red Sea was the line of the trade route that connected to Ezion-geber on the Gulf of Aqaba/Elath from Kadesh-barnea through the Zin Wilderness and the southern Arabah. Though Red Sea can be translated "Reed Sea," the terminology refers to the eastern arm of the Red Sea known as the Gulf of Aqaba (1Kg 9:26-28).

14:28 As surely as I live is the language of the court as Yahweh, God of Israel, took an oath on His own honor and announced the verdict against the guilty spies. Punishment would be dispensed in a slow and methodical manner. See the similar statement in verse 35.

14:34 A form of talionic justice (judgment equal to the crime, "an eye for an eye") was announced: 40 days of spying, which led to the negative report, would be matched by 40 years of wandering, with an effective death sentence on the first generation of Israelite leaders and militia.

14:43 Any attempt to launch out in conquest of the land without the Lord's blessing would be futile. Deliberate disobedience to God's command not to attack the Canaanites would meet with resounding defeat.

14:45 The city of Hormah has been identified tentatively with Tel Masos in the Beersheba Valley region. Hormah is also mentioned in the Execration Texts of middle Bronze Age Egypt.

15:1-41 This chapter consists of three units that address important matters issuing from the rebellious acts in chapters 11-14: land, sinfulness, and the need to remember God and His revelation.

15:2 When you enter the land clearly implies that God would bring the second generation into the land He had promised Abraham and Moses.

15:3-9 A fire offering presented in celebration stands in contrast to the destructive fire of God depicted in 11:1-4. The book of Leviticus focuses on the animal sacrifices and the manner in which they were offered, while Numbers 15 and 28-29 emphasize the produce of the land—grain, oil, and wine—that the Lord would provide for faithful Israel. The consecration offering described in Leviticus 1 in which the entire offering was consumed by fire on the altar is the burnt offering. This form of dedication typically followed the sin offering that was given to restore one's relationship with God through atonement and purification. The sacrifice, to fulfill a vow and the fellowship offering were forms of communion offering, designed to celebrate the relationship with God among the community of faith. Out of those blessings the people would bring offerings from the produce of the land in celebration of the Lord's goodness and miraculous works in history, commemorated in the appointed festivals: Passover, Pentecost, and Booths. Numbers 15:1-21 complements Leviticus 1-3 with details about the amounts and proportions of grain, oil, and wine that were supplements to the normal offerings.

15:14-16 Sacrificial requirements were the same for native Israelites and foreign residents who wanted to identify with the Israelite faith and submit to the authority of the Torah. Faith for Israel was not limited to the descendants of the sons of Jacob. This issue complements the mixed multitude who complained about the food supply in chapter 11, and it also follows the tradition of 9:14 with regard to the foreigner who resides with you celebrating Passover; see verses 29-30.

15:17-21 The first batch of dough, a form of firstfruits offering, was dedicated to the Lord in celebration of the abundant produce from the land. During the harvest of barley and wheat in the spring—the season of Passover, Unleavened Bread, and Pentecost—the firstfruit grain offering was presented to God. Even the mundane daily practice of kneading dough for making bread was to be a time of worship and celebration of God's goodness (1Co 10:31). According to Nm

18:11-16, all firstfruits and products offered in devotion to the Lord were given to the priests to support their services to the community.

15:22 Unintentional sins included matters in which the individual or community acted unknowingly in breaking a legal stipulation or in failing to perform certain ritual requirements.

15:24 If someone or a group of people sinned unintentionally without the community's awareness, the priest was obligated to make a sin offering and a burnt offering on behalf of the entire congregation. The requirement for an individual was a year-old female goat for such offenses. Leviticus 4:1-5:19 provides several examples of these unintentional sins.

15:30-31 In the textual backdrop of Israel's rejection of God and the promised land, the matter of willful defiance of God's word is raised. When a person acted defiantly in breaking the covenant relationship, that person blasphemed the Lord and defamed His righteous reputation. The penalty was either capital punishment or permanent banishment from the community of faith.

15:32-36 The defiant breaking of the law of God is exemplified by an Israelite who performed work on the Sabbath by gathering wood. No work was permitted on the Sabbath. The Sabbath was called the sign of the covenant, so the breaking of the Sabbath law was considered a rejection of the covenant relationship with God. Capital punishment by stoning for breaking this law seems harsh by modern standards. But at this crucial juncture in Israelite history, a case precedent would be set for dealing with a person who deliberately broke the covenant.

15:38 The instructions in this verse were about the outward symbol for reminding the people of their covenant faith—the blue corded tassels attached to the corners of their garments (Dt 22:12). This practice was followed in the time of Jesus and remains a tradition among orthodox Jews today.

15:40 The words This way you will remember and obey all My commands provide a parallel to the phraseology of chapters 1-10: that the people or Moses did according to all that the Lord commanded.

15:41 The declaration I am Yahweh your God resonates with covenant overtones, calling to mind the initial words of Moses' encounter with God in Ex 6:2-8 and the introduction to the Ten Commandments in Ex 20:2.

16:1-19:22 The second cycle of rebellion focuses on a challenge to the Aaronic priesthood. The insurrection resulted in the deaths of the 250 followers of Korah and an additional 14,700 from the plague that followed. This section warns against violation of the holiness of the sanctuary.

16:1 In patriarchal tribal societies in the ancient Near East, the firstborn son often carried on the religious traditions for the family. This could be why

Dathan and Abiram, who were from the tribe of Reuben, the firstborn of Jacob, decided to join the rebellion. But the leader of the insurrection was Korah, a Levite from the Kohathite clan. The Kohathites had been granted responsibilities in 3:27-32; 4:1-20, but Korah wanted a higher status (16:8-10).

16:3 Korah's claim that Everyone in the entire community is holy, and the LORD is among them had an element of truth, since God had called Israel to be "My kingdom of priests and My holy nation" (Ex 19:6). But that role was based on Israel's faithful obedience to God's revelation. God had ordained Moses and Aaron's exalted positions; they had not assigned themselves these roles.

16:6-7 The firepans were pans or shallow bowls with long handles (Lv 10:1) in which the priests carried hot coals upon which incense was sprinkled. Incense enhanced the sweet-smelling aroma of burning sacrifices that ascended into the heavens, symbolically entering into the nostrils of God (Lv 1:9,13,17; 2:2,9; 3:5,16). Moses' words the man the LORD chooses will be the one who is set apart set the challenge in the court of God to defend the truly faithful servant.

16:9-10 Korah and the Kohathites had a favored status among the three Levite clans in handling the holy things of the tabernacle (3:27-32), but they desired greater glory for themselves.

16:11-14 The rebels claimed Moses had failed to bring the people to a place of rest and abundance. They would not admit that it was their rebellion that had led to the wilderness judgment.

16:19 The glory of the LORD , probably manifest as a cloud (v. 42), dramatically intervened in sight of the entire Israelite congregation.

16:22 Only the true servants of God—Moses and Aaron—fell facedown and, risking their own lives, appealed to His graciousness so the whole community might not suffer His wrath. The true servant of God puts the needs of the people before his own welfare.

16:23-33 By God's grace, in response to Moses' and Aaron's plea, only the instigators of the insurrection were consumed.

16:26 The tents, families, and property of the rebellious leaders had effectively been dedicated to destruction (Hb cherem ), and anyone who touched any of these things would be swallowed up in the devastation.

16:33-35 The grave (Sheol) at this point in Israel's history was perceived to be a shadowy, unknowable realm of the dead, the netherworld of both good and evil where a person was gathered among ancestors at death. In this incident the bodies of the leading rebels, their families, and their possessions plummeted into the gaping abyss. A judgmental fire . . . consumed the other 250 insurrectionists. The second census informs us that Korah's fate was the same as that of Dathan and Abiram (26:10). Sheol is described as opening its mouth to receive the dead (Pr 1:12; Is 5:14; Hab 2:5). A similar description is found in the creation myth of Ugarit, where the god Mot received Baal into his mouth like a lamb in the jaws of a lion. In the Pentateuch the realm of Sheol and the dead is under the sovereign power of the God of Israel. Since Moses pronounced the curse before it happened, no one could mistake the judgment as accidental.

16:36-40 Divine instruction (Then the LORD spoke to Moses) came to the faithful recipient who had followed the Lord's commands throughout this miraculous event. Death can have both contaminating and cleansing effects. Touching and even being in close proximity to the dead could render a person unclean. Yet in the conclusion to this section in chapter 19, impurity from the dead was cleansed with a mixture of holy water and the ashes of a burned red cow. God commanded Moses to remove the firepans from the burning debris, because they are holy . . . They will be a sign to the Israelites. The fiery death of the 250 rebellious collaborators brought purification to the bronze censers. Now the raw materials could be used to produce an additional bronze covering for the sacrificial altar.

16:41-50 The lesson of the previous day was soon forgotten as the entire Israelite community complained about Moses and Aaron, citing them as the reason for the judgment against the rebellious Korah and his conspirators. God's reaction followed the judgment sequence of the previous day with a call for the people to separate themselves from the insurgents as God's glory descended, lest they be consumed in the judgment. Aaron's atonement for the people portrays the concept of propitiatory atonement as he literally stood as the mediator between the dead and the living to ward off the wrath of God.

17:2-3 The staff was the official symbol of the tribal chieftain, which in Babylonia and Egypt often was designed to represent its owner. One word (Hb matteh) means both "tribe" and "staff/scepter," and each carried some signification of tribal identity. In this context the names were inscribed for identification. Perhaps the names were those of the patriarchal leaders who took the census of the military in chapter 1. Aaron's name was inscribed on the staff of the tribe of Levi, though Moses was the elder brother.

17:4 The solemnity of the test of leadership was evidenced by the placement of the inscribed staffs in the tent of meeting in front of the testimony, where the high priest went once a year on the Day of Atonement to cleanse the holy place because of the sins of the people.

17:8 The fourfold statement of the miraculous produce from Aaron's staff (sprouted, formed buds, blossomed, and produced almonds) heightened the drama, with God demonstrating the priority of the Aaronic priesthood. In Jeremiah's call to ministry (Jr 1:4ff), his vision of the budding almond branch demonstrated God's concern that His word and His will be accomplished in the life of the prophet and the nation (Jr 1:11-12). The white blossoms of the budding almond tree were a symbol of holiness and purity that God expected from His faithful priestly servants. The Aaronic priests were to serve as mediators between God and Israel. Holiness and purity were to permeate their words as they taught the people of God the statutes and precepts of the Lord (Lv 10:11).

17:10 After Moses showed the other tribal leaders the collection of tribal staffs, they were able to see God's blessing upon Aaron's staff. Then God told Moses to put Aaron's staff back in front of the testimony to be kept as a sign. Moses placed the staff in front of the ark of the covenant as a sign against the rebels that God had indeed chosen the Aaronic line for priestly service. Aaron's priestly line prefigured the high priesthood of Jesus Christ, who exemplified the qualities of purity and holiness in His earthly ministry, who as a priest of a higher order—of Melchizedek—offered Himself as the unblemished paschal lamb for our sins. In light of the priesthood of the believer in Christ, the need for purity and holiness in Christian service is duly emphasized.

17:11 Moses the faithful and humble servant of God carried out the Lord's instructions, even though the opposition again had placed a heavy burden on his shoulders. In the manner of Paul's words in Rm 12:1, Moses offered himself as a living and holy sacrifice in service to God.

18:3-5 The Aaronic priests were camped in front of the entrance to the tabernacle on the east side of the sanctuary. The three clans of the Levites—Kohathites, Gershonites, and Merarites—were camped on the other three sides. This arrangement provided a physical and spiritual barrier against violation of the holy place. The Levites performed various maintenance and transportation duties for the tabernacle, but only the priests could actually touch the holy furnishings.

18:7 The prohibition against violation of the sanctity of the tabernacle is expressed in verses 3,4,5,7,22, along with the consequences for infringement. Trespassers and irreverent persons would be put to death, so that God's wrath might not bring widespread destruction on the nation.

18:8-13 The priests and Levites would not be given territory in the promised land like the other tribes, but their provisions were gifts of tithes and offerings from the people. Portions of all sacrifices but the burnt offerings, which were to be totally consumed by the fire on the altar, were dedicated to the Lord and then provided as gifts for the priests and Levites. Even the priests and Levites were required to tithe their gifts to the Lord (v. 26). This section complements similar allocations described in chapters 3; 4; 8; 35; and Leviticus 8-9.

18:14-20 Based on the principle of Ex 11:1-10 and 13:2-16, Israel was redeemed through the firstborn of Egypt, both human and animal. As the Levites provided redemption for the firstborn of Israel's families (Nm 3:40-51), so the firstborn of every living thing was to be presented to the Levites as provisions for them and their families. Since unclean animals could not be consumed, their redemption price was paid in shekels.

18:21-24 The gift of the tenth to the Levites was new legislation, whereas much of verses 1-20 is a review of existing legislation. This highlights the role of the priests and Levites within the community after the threat to their positions in the Korah rebellion. Tithing one-tenth of one's produce as a gift to the temple and its priesthood was a common practice among various cultures of the ancient Near East. These requirements are anticipatory in that they assumed God's blessing in the land after the conquest.

18:25-31 The Levites in turn were required to present to the Lord a tenth of the tenth, and thus participate in the full cycle of blessings. The best part of the tenth, the highest quality from the produce of the flocks and fields, was to be presented to the Aaronic priesthood.

The cycle of blessing begins and ends with the Lord: (1) The Lord instructs His people in the proper sowing and reaping principles. (2) As the people obediently sow and reap, He blesses the community of faith with an abundant harvest of flocks and fields. (3) The firstborn, firstfruits, and first ripe produce are consumed by the priests after portions have been sacrificed to God. (4) Tithes and offerings are also presented to the holy and faithful Levites for their provision, as additional portions are rendered to God. (5) Then the Levites present a best-of-the-best tithe of their received tithes to support the Aaronic priesthood, who then offer additional portions to God in thanksgiving and praise.

19:2-6 The original historical context of the red cow ritual was under the auspices of the priesthood of Eleazar, while his father Aaron was still alive (his death is cited in 20:22-29). The sprinkling of the blood of the slaughtered cow is consistent with other blood rituals in the Pentateuch (Lv 4:6,17; 8:11; 16:14,19). The unblemished cow was entirely red—not spotted or mottled.

Since the cow had never been yoked, it was probably young and strong. Elsewhere it was a bull that was sacrificed as a sin offering for the high priest and his family (Lv 4:3-12; 16:6,11), or on behalf of the entire community (Lv 4:13-21). Thus the female is specified here so there would be no confusion of purification agents or rituals. The cow would also offer the maximum yield of purification ashes so the ritual need not be repeated as often. The redness of the cow reflected the color of blood, as did the other sacrificial elements burned with the cow.

The plant species translated hyssop was probably not the Greek hussopos, but marjoram, sage, or thyme, the leaves of which are very absorbent. Other reddish or colored elements in ritual sanctification included cypress wood, roses, red wine, and cedar sap.

19:7-10 The priest, the assistant who burned the cow, and the one who gathered and stored the ashes, were each made unclean by touching this purification (sin) offering—the red cow ashes—but this was a lesser state of uncleanness than what was generated by touching a dead body. The ashes alone caused uncleanness, but when mixed with water they became a purifying agent. This seeming paradox is similar to that of blood that was used for the ultimate purification of the holy place on the Day of Atonement, yet rendered a person unclean if improperly used or eaten.

19:11-22 Ritual impurity from exposure to the dead required a "sin offering" that was actually a purification. Failure to perform the symbolic cleansings on the third and seventh days resulted in banishment from the community or death. Contamination could result from several situations: (1) being in or entering a tent where someone had just died, (2) contact with the dead in battle or by accidental proximity, or (3) contact with a grave or its remains. The seven-day period of the impurity was the maximum length for persons who had become unclean through a variety of serious diseases. Other forms of impurity, such as contact with the red cow, rendered a person impure only until sundown.

19:13 The severity of the impurity resulting from touching a corpse is evidenced in the ritual washings administered on the third and seventh days, the potential of defiling the sanctuary from a distance if left unpurified, and the potential penalty of (Hb) karath —being cut off from the community.

19:21 In future generations (This is a permanent statute for them) this purification offering and ritual would be a common purification offering, not only because of the exposure to corpses, but because it was considered acceptable for cleansing other forms of impurity. It often functioned as an instant sin offering in the second temple rituals. In his presentation of the person and work of Jesus Christ as superior to OT ceremonies, the writer of the book of Hebrews combined the ritual of the ashes of the red cow with that of the Day of Atonement in demonstrating the once-and-for-all sufficiency of the blood of Christ in cleansing us from all our sins (Heb 9:11-14).

20:1 The first month, Abib (Nisan), in the spring of the fortieth year, brought the conclusion of the punishment of Israel in the wilderness. The chapter begins with the death of Miriam and concludes with Aaron's death on the first day of the fifth month of the fortieth year after the exodus (33:38-39). This was the month of the deliverance from Egypt, in which the people should have been celebrating the Passover and the Festival of Unleavened Bread in the promised land. Instead they found themselves back at Kadesh after 40 years. Once more they grumbled about their water supply just as the first generation had done soon after they crossed the Red Sea (Ex 15:23-26; 17:1-7). On Kadesh and the Zin Wilderness, see note at Nm 13:26. Miriam's death is recounted briefly. Its inclusion here provides a clue about the coming sin of Moses and Aaron.

20:2 The grumbling Israelites were now back where they had first received the scouts' report assessing the promised land (13:25-26). Their 10-person majority report had produced a rebellious rejection of the land by the Israelites and the 40-year judgment in the wilderness. Miriam had just died, and Moses and Aaron were aging leaders suffering the loss of their beloved sister, who had rescued the infant Moses from death at the hands of the Egyptians.

20:3-5 The shortage of water led to an insurrection of the Israelites against their leaders. Once more the people claimed that it would have been better to die in Egypt than to suffer such hardship in that barren wilderness. They preferred bondage, oppression, and death in captivity over their miraculous deliverance, freedom, and provision from the Lord.

20:5 The wilderness around Kadesh was a difficult environment, but the people were responsible for their own predicament because they had refused to enter the land “flowing with milk and honey.”

20:8 The staff mentioned here was probably the staff of Aaron that had budded, blossomed, and produced almonds to confirm Aaron’s priestly authority (see note at 17:8). It was kept before the ark of the testimony as a warning to any future grumbling rebels (17:10). The water the Lord promised to Moses and Aaron would be more than enough for the people and their animals.

20:9-11 Moses fell into unfaithfulness by unleashing a verbal attack on the rebels and declaring that he and Aaron were about to bring forth water from a rock. Then he struck the rock twice instead of speaking to it. He presumed upon the presence of God to respond faithfully and graciously to his rebellious acts.

20:11 When Moses struck the rock, a great amount of water gushed out. Geographers and biblical interpreters have written for years of the aquifers beneath portions of the Sinai Peninsula. The several oases such as at Serabit al-Khadem, Ain Hawarah, Ain Khadra, and Ain el-Qudeirat (Kadesh-barnea) provide examples of such abundant water. Nevertheless, provision of water where none had been before was a miracle displaying the grace of God.

20:12 Moses’ actions were similar to those of an idolatrous pagan magician who claimed to have god-like powers. Holiness and purity, parallel themes of the book of Numbers, had been violated by Moses and Aaron. The cycles of rebellion now had reached from the general population to its most noble leaders. God punished Moses by declaring that he would not bring this assembly into the land.

20:14-17 Moses’ message to the king of Edom followed classical Hebrew epistolary form and customary protocol of the Bronze and Iron ages. The content had all the earmarks of ancient Near Eastern diplomatic correspondence between nobles delivered by royal messengers.

The mention of the point of origin for the letter at Kadesh, a city on the border of your territory, made the king of Edom aware of Israel’s immediate need for passage. If this Kadesh is taken to be Kadesh-barnea, and if it lay near the border of Edomite territory, this implies that some of the early tribal Edomites had settled or controlled some areas west of the Arabah. Others believe the phrase means that Israel under Moses was simply approaching the Edomite region. If Edom was transitioning from a seminomadic society to a sedentary culture, “outskirts of your border” would have been rather fluid. Like Israel, the Edomites did not become a formal state in the modern sense until the Iron II period (1000-550 B.C.).

20:17 Moses’ request included specifics about how the Israelites would respect Edomite domain if they would grant passage. The seasonal description indicates spring, when grain fields were at or near harvest time and vine dressing for the summer and fall crops had just begun. Thus it was important to assure the Edomites that their crops would not be trampled or scavenged. Water rights also were of great concern, even as they are among the Israelis, Palestinians, and Jordanians today. The Israelites would presumably bring their own water supply from Kadesh during their brief passage of perhaps two days through the Edomite highlands.

The King's Highway was a famous trade route connecting Damascus with Arabia, Sinai, and Egypt through the Transjordan tablelands (Golan, Bashan, Gilead, Ammon, Moab, and Edom) and the southern mountains, paralleling the Arabah on the eastern side. Caravans brought highly prized incense, spices, perfumes, precious jewels, and copper from the Sinai and Paran wilderness sources.

20:19-21 Moses' attempt at diplomatic correspondence carried alternative stipulations, some of which is preserved in the text of verse 19. The suggestion of payment for safe passage was in keeping with ancient Near Eastern protocol, as tolls or tribute were often exacted from trade caravans. The harsh Edomite answer caused bitter feelings between Israel and Edom for centuries.

20:22 The location of Mount Hor depends on the route followed by the Israelites. As with Kadesh (v. 16), Mount Hor was on the border with Edom, according to 33:37. The Israelites skirted around the boundaries of the militant Edomites. Suggested mountains have included the traditional Islamic identity of Jebel Nebi Harun ("Mount of the Prophet Aaron") near Petra; Jebel Medra about six miles northeast of Kadesh; 'Imaret el-Khurisheh about eight miles north of Kadesh; or Jebel Madurah about 15 miles northeast of Kadesh-barnea.

20:25-26 Aaron's death, like the death and burial of Abraham (Gn 25:8), Ishmael (Gn 25:17), Isaac (Gn 35:29), Jacob (Gn 49:29, 33), and then later Moses (Nm 27:13; Dt 32:50), is described as being gathered to his people. The phrase conveys the idea of being reunited with one's ancestral families in Sheol, the place of the dead. A person was not to be left unburied or "ungathered" since this was viewed as a disgraceful end of life.

21:1-3 After the death of Aaron, the Israelites set out from Mount Hor to go around Edom along the Atharim road. The city of Arad, ruled by the king of Arad, cannot be Tel Arad in the eastern Negev since it was unoccupied until the early Israelite monarchy. The Atharim was another trade route leading from Kadesh-barnea to Arad along which the fortresses of Bir Hafir, Oboda, and Aroer were built during the Israelite monarchy.

21:4 The trade route referred to as the way of the Red Sea extended from Elath on the eastern finger of the Red Sea in the Gulf of Aqaba northward through the Arabah to the Dead Sea. Hence the desert route would have the Israelites approaching the northern end of the Arabah from the southwest, and then crossing the Arabah between Tamar and Zalmonah.

21:5 For the seventh time, the people spoke against God and Moses. Their words were the same monotonous complaint about food and water.

21:6-7 God's judgment against the people came in the form of poisonous snakes, likely the carpet viper (Echis carinatus or E. coleratus).

21:8-9 The Lord directed Moses to make a snake image and mount it on a pole as an antidote for those who had been bitten by these snakes. Those who looked at this snake image would be healed—by faith in God's provision, not by faith in the graven serpent. Because it was God who graciously did the healing, it was neither idolatry nor magic. John's Gospel cited Jesus' use of this imagery as a metaphor for His crucifixion. Just as those in Moses' time looked upon this snake and were healed, those who look in faith to the Christ who was lifted up on the cross will be healed of their sins. Those who looked upon Him and believed in Him would have eternal life (Jn 3:14-16).

21:10-13 The pattern of the Israelites' journey was from south to north and around the area occupied by the Edomites. They departed from Mount Hor, through Zalmon and Punon, which are not mentioned here but are in Moses' recording of the stages of the journey (33:42). They continued through Oboth in the upper Arabah, south of the Dead Sea, to Iye-abarim, located near the edge of the Moabite region.

21:14-15 The Book of the LORD's Wars was apparently an early source of Israelite documentation of God's victories on behalf of His people, perhaps in poetic form. This source is otherwise unknown in the OT, though paralleled by the Book of Jashar, cited in Jos 10:13 and 2Sm 1:18. This quotation implies that the original composition was longer. Waheb in Suphah is probably the source of the Arnon River. The mention of ravines is indicative of the Arnon River gorge. Ar of Moab was a city, probably south of the Arnon River (v. 28; Dt 2:9; Is 15:1).

21:16-20 The epic narrative poem sung by Israel continues the journey motif from this well where the Israelites did not complain about a lack of water. They journeyed to the sites of Mattanah ("gift"), Nahaliel ("river of God"), Bamoth ("high places, cultic center"), a valley in the Moabite countryside, and the peak of the Pisgah mountains which overlooks the wasteland. Translators and commentators alike have faced the problem of whether these are genuine place names or just descriptive terms. The sequence does not contain the usual phraseology of the book of Numbers, "they departed from . . . they camped at . . ." Poised on top of Mount Nebo in the Pisgah mountains, Moses would be granted a glimpse of the promised land. Mattanah has not been identified, though Khirbet el-Medeiyineh (Madaynah) has been suggested. Y. Aharoni identified Iye-abarim (Iyyim) with Khirbet el-Medeiyineh, located about 11 miles northeast of Diban.

Nahaliel has not been located, though this could be a reference to the Wadi Zerqa-ma'in, which flows from the central highlands to the Dead Sea. Bamoth has not been identified, though it could have been preserved in the longer form Bamoth-baal (22:41) or Beth-bamoth of the Mesha Inscription. Bamoth was a common place name that was combined with names or titles of deities in the naming of important worship centers among the Canaanites and the Amorites. This Bamoth may have been somewhere near Mount Nebo in the Pisgah range. On a clear winter day from the traditional Mount Nebo, one can see where the Jordan River flows into the Dead Sea, the northern end of the Judean Wilderness and the Jericho oasis. The valley in verse 20 could be identified with the Wadi 'Ayun Musa, about two miles northeast of the corner of the Dead Sea.

Finally, Aharoni identified the wasteland as a place name with Beth-jeshimoth, part of the realm of Sihon of the Amorites that was conquered by Israel (Jos 12:3). The Way of Beth-jeshimoth descended from Heshbon westward toward the Jordan River.

21:21-22 Moses dispatched diplomatic envoys to Sihon king of the Amorites to negotiate rights of passage northward along the King's Highway in the Transjordan highlands and then westward down the hillsides to the shores of the Jordan River. The Amorites were a large ethnic group that formed in upper Mesopotamia near the end of the early Bronze Age, about 2300-2000 B.C. Sometimes the word "Amorite" is used generically in the Bible as a reference to the population of Canaan.

21:23-25 Just as the king of Edom had refused to grant the Israelites passage through his territory, so too Sihon, the recent usurper and conqueror of Moab, would not let Israel travel through his territory. Perhaps he had heard of the encounter with Edom and thought his response would be treated the same way. But his military's attempt to block the advance of Israel was met with a resounding defeat, a victory that would be remembered throughout Israel's history (Dt 2:26-31; Jos 12:2-5; 13:21; Jdg 11:19-21; 1Kg 4:19, Neh 9:22; Jr 48:45). Biblical and extrabiblical evidence locates Jahaz somewhere between Dibon and Madaba. The Amorite kingdom of Sihon seems to have spread from the Arnon to the Jabbok rivers, a north-south length of about 45 to 50 miles, flanked by the fortified towns of the Ammonites on the eastern and northern sides.

21:26-31 Heshbon was the major city of Sihon at the time of the Israelite conflicts. S. Horn suggested that the Heshbon of Sihon could have been located at Jalul, or another nearby site. The song declared about the rebuilding of Heshbon, let it be rebuilt. The Amorite woe oracle song, which the Israelites adapted for singing about their victory over the great conqueror Sihon, denounced the Moabites and their god Chemosh. Portions of this song would be recounted in the prophets' oracles against Moab in the eighth to the sixth centuries B.C., including Is 15:1-14 and Jr 48:1-47.

Chemosh was the patron deity of the Moabites. He is first mentioned among the deities at Ebla about 2600-2250 B.C. and was associated with mud brick production and then later with agricultural production. The worship of Chemosh of Moab was brought into Jerusalem in the tenth century B.C. by King Solomon, who built a temple to Chemosh on the hill opposite that upon which the temple of Yahweh was built early in his reign. Chemosh is mentioned 12 times in the Mesha Stele, including the appellation Ashtar-Chemosh, as the god who enabled Mesha to break the yoke of Israel's domination, recapturing and rebuilding a number of his cities, including Jahaz (v. 23) and Dibon (also Dibon-gad in 33:45-46), Almon-diblathaim (33:46-47), and Medeba (21:30). Heshbon is not preserved in the Mesha Inscription, though it remained a vital city during this period in Moab's history.

21:32 Jazer may have come under Amorite dominion in the expansion of Sihon or Og into the Ammonite region. Jazer was both the name of a region (32:1) and its principal city (32:3). The town of Jazer was located in the valley of the Wadi Kefrein, which flows down toward the Jordan River. The city was identified by J. Simons with Khirbet-Gazzir (Jazer), about 10 miles northwest of Amman.

21:33-35 The capital of Og king of Bashan was located at Ashtaroth, situated on a northern tributary of the Yarmuk River (Dt 1:4). The battle ensued at Edrei, generally associated with modern Der'a on the Syrian-Jordanian border, about 30 miles east of the Sea of Galilee. Later Edrei would be included in the tribal territorial allocation of the Machirites of the eastern half of the tribe of Manasseh (Jos 13:31). Though no other battles in this campaign are recounted in Numbers, 60 cities from the kingdom of Og of Bashan were subjected to the stipulations of holy war (Dt 3:4-6). The key to Israel's success in the battles in Transjordan and in the conquest of the promised land across the Jordan River was its dependence on Yahweh and not on its military might.

22:1-24:25 This passage contains the account of Balaam, a renowned pagan divination expert, and his oracles of blessing upon Israel. As the very antithesis of the great prophet Moses, this prophet sought Israel's demise at the bidding of the Moabite king Balak. Instead Balaam was used by God in a manner like Moses to pronounce future divine blessing for Israel. Moses is curiously absent from the story, probably because of his sin of rebellion and irreverence at Meribah (20:2-13). In this section God demonstrated that He can use even a pagan wizard to bring blessing to His people.

22:1 The setting of this story for Israel was the eastern side of the Jordan River. The leading characters Balak and Balaam were situated in the hills of Transjordan, overlooking the Israelite encampment from the southeast. The plains of Moab was the broad plain between the Transjordan highlands and the Jordan River, extending about 10 miles from just north of the Dead Sea.

According to an inscription in a temple at Deir ‘Alla, Balaam son of Beor, a “seer of the gods,” had a frightening night vision that he described while fasting and mourning. He foretold a period of drought and darkness, of mourning and death, in which the natural order of the world was reversed. The sparrow attacks the eagle, the deaf hear things from a distance, and fools have insightful visions. Balaam then implored the goddesses Ashtar (consort of Chemosh in Moab) and Sheger (known from Ugarit and Phoenicia) to bring light, rain, and fertility to the land. Thus the structure at Deir ‘Alla and its wall inscriptions may have been built to honor the gods Sheger and Ashtar who once heeded Balaam’s plea.

22:2-4 Balak is called Moab’s king, meaning he was the head of an emerging tribal confederation like similar groups in Transjordan, such as the Edomites and Ammonites. At various times Moabite territory stretched northward to Heshbon and the surrounding plains, and in this context, the plains just east of the Jordan River opposite the city of Jericho. The Midianites originated in northern Arabia and southern Transjordan. According to Gn 25:1-6, they were descendants of Abraham and his concubine Keturah. Their loose-knit seminomadic culture carried them from Arabia to Sinai and Egypt (Ex 2:15-22; Nm 10:29), and occasionally they made forays into Canaan as traders (Gn 37:25-36) or as marauding invaders (Jdg 6:1-6). A group of Midianite elders joined Balak’s emissaries in enlisting the services of Balaam to curse Israel.

22:5 Balaam was from the Mesopotamian town of Pethor, identified with Pitru, on the Sajur River tributary west of the Euphrates River. The distance from Pethor to Moab would have exceeded 400 miles, making each trip by the emissaries of Balak 25 days each way.

22:6 Balak asked Balaam to come and put a curse on these people, referring to the Israelites. Ancient Near Eastern texts recount the power of diviners, magicians, and sorcerers to manipulate the will of the gods through augury, special sacrificial rituals such as ritual dissection, and incantations aimed at blessing or cursing an individual or group, forecasting the future, and advising kings and other leaders.

22:7 Balaam was to be rewarded after fulfilling his cursing of Israel (v. 37;

24:11). Scholars have interpreted the phrase “divination in their hands” (Hb uqsamim beyadam) as indicating that they had divination equipment or fees for divination in their hands, or as saying that the emissaries of Balak were versed in divination. V. Hurowitz (“The Expression uqsamin beyadam”) suggests that certain “magical” objects were used in the negotiation process with the recipient of the divination, including clay models of intestinal entrails, livers, or other body parts used in the practice of extispicy, the art of ritual dissection. So what was “in their hands” may have been baked clay models of the entrails predicting Moab’s downfall and Israel’s ascendancy. These predictions may have alarmed Balak’s own trained diviners so much that they sought a person of great renown such as Balaam to curse Israel so Moab would be delivered.

22:9-11 Appearing to Balaam in a dream-like manner, God began a dialogue with the pagan diviner. In all ancient societies dreams were thought to be a major channel by which deity communicated with humanity.

22:12 God’s clear intent was to bless His people as He had promised to do since the call of Abram (Gn 12:1-3).

22:15-21 The attempt at procuring Balaam’s service by a second, higher-ranking group of emissaries from Balak was met with a cautious response. The words used in verse 18 indicate that Balaam would become God’s spokesman. The terminology of divine speech has now come full circle from Moses to Balaam; Balaam should only “do” (Hb ‘asah) what God “speaks” (Hb davar; v. 20). These terms are used together throughout the book of Numbers in the context of the faithful following of the Lord’s commands in the sequence of God speaking and Moses (or others) doing just what the Lord commanded.

22:22 The Angel of the LORD challenged the commitment of the prophet-diviner to fulfill the task that God had for him. That God would become angry and engage one of his servants on a journey directed by Him is consistent with the challenges presented to Jacob when he was traveling back to Canaan (Gn 32:22-32). This also reminds us of Moses when he was headed to Egypt to challenge the pharaoh (Ex 4:24-26). In both cases these men were reminded that a holy God was in control of the situation, and they were to be faithful in completing their assigned tasks.

22:23-27 The words when the donkey saw the Angel of the LORD are filled with irony, especially when used three times in this context. This renowned “seer of the gods” could not see what his lowly donkey saw. Furthermore, this donkey was a female, placing the animal in an even lower status when compared to the relative value and usefulness of male donkeys. Balaam beat her into submission, though she was ultimately more submissive to God than the one whom God was sending to pronounce blessing upon Israel.

22:28 Tales of talking animals were common in ancient literature, and were considered fables that often contained warning, irony, or satire. There are two general interpretations of this event: (1) God literally gave the donkey the power of speech (the LORD opened the donkey's mouth), or (2) the donkey's normal braying was heightened to such a degree that it was perceived and interpreted by Balaam in a human manner. R. K. Harrison has suggested, "As the donkey brayed, she conveyed a message of anger and resentment that the seer understood in his mind in a verbal form" (Harrison, Numbers, 300).

22:36-38 Balaam's repetition of the words of divine instruction—I must speak only the message God puts in my mouth (cp. vv. 20,35)—shows that what is about to come from him is divine revelation. Balaam's ability to influence the coming events was less than that of his donkey.

22:39 Kiriath-huzoth, the "city of plazas" as the name translates, may have been a central market area for the city of Ar in Moab, based on the suggestions of A. Biran, excavator of Tel Dan in northern Israel. Such buildings near the market plaza outside the gates of cities apparently served as offices for the oversight of commercial activity.

22:41 Balaam's sacrificial activity began at Bamoth-baal ("the high places of Baal"), a cultic center for the worship of the Semitic deity Baal, the champion of creation in the mythology of Ugarit.

23:1 The preference for performing seven rituals was widespread in the ancient Near East, though multiple altars are not mentioned elsewhere in the OT. The sacrificing of seven bulls and seven rams on seven altars parallels a well-known Babylonian text in which Ea, Shamash, and Marduk are worshiped with the ritual libation of blood of seven sheep poured out on seven altars.

23:3 In the ancient Near Eastern context of sacrificial cults, to "stand by one's offering" meant to have a proxy for the offerer. In some settings a high priest of the given deity would make a sacrifice on behalf of the king while the king stood by the offering. Balaam functioned as a priest and diviner in these narratives on behalf of Balak, who "stood by" the offering made on behalf of the Moabite people. Balaam was called to curse Israel to deliver the Moabites from potential enslavement and oppression.

23:7-8 God's hand was upon Israel and she could not be cursed, even by the best divination experts of that time. The God of Israel cannot be manipulated or cajoled into carrying out the desires of kings or diviners. God had promised Abraham that his descendants would become a great nation through which the other nations would be blessed—even Moab and Balaam (Gn 12:1-3; 22:17-18).

23:11-12 The prophet-diviner Balaam had become the mouth of God.

23:13-26 From another outpost overlooking the northeastern corner of the Dead Sea and the plains of Moab where Israel was camped, Balaam and Balak repeated the ritual sacrifices of the first encounter. Nothing Balaam could muster could bring any harm to God's people.

23:14 The Lookout Field on top of Pisgah was probably so named because of its strategic observation location. Several scholars interpret this location as a known place for observing heavenly omens and making astrological observations. At Pisgah, a prominent peak in the Abarim range, Moses would later commission Joshua (27:12-23), and God would give Moses an overview of the promised land from this spot (Dt 34:1-12).

23:19-20 Unlike the gods of Mesopotamia, who were depicted often as whimsical and easily manipulated through sorcery and divination, the God of Israel was not a man who lies . . . who changes His mind. Balaam could not change what God had instructed him to proclaim—blessing for Israel, God's chosen people.

23:22 Israel's strength was totally in her God, but by His power she was compared to a ravaging wild ox. Ancient Near Eastern deities such as El and Baal were often depicted as horned bulls or as humans with the head or horns of a bull.

23:23 Israel did not need augurs, diviners, or magicians; in fact these were condemned and prohibited. Augury included reading cloud patterns, bird movements, and other activities in the skies. Divination included extispicy, the ritual slaughter of animals and the reading of their entrails by hepatoscopy (liver dissection) and colonoscopy (viewing of the intestinal lining). Such practices were not the source of Israel's defense, nor could such powers be used against God's people. The Lord would use Balaam, a pagan diviner, to bless those he had been called to condemn.

23:25-24 : 9 After two failed attempts, Balak reeled from the words of Balaam and called for the prophet to refrain from pronouncing a blessing on them. Then Balaam and Balak resorted to a third cultic center, in the heights above Peor, overlooking Jeshimon, from which they could see Israel encamped tribe by tribe (24:2). The sevenfold ritual is repeated again, without resorting to divination as Balaam had previously done. An ecstatic encounter with the Spirit of God ensued, opening Balaam's eyes to a vision of God Almighty. Balaam's utterance forecast the Lord's blessing upon the land with abundance of water bringing productivity to the crops, and a powerful kingdom that would surpass that of the forces of Agag the Amalekite. But the strength of Israel was in the strength of her God. The Lord's blessing was so powerful that even the most renowned divination expert of the day could not turn it back.

24:15-19 In a visionary encounter similar to that of the third oracle, Balaam uttered predictive prophecy about the distant future of Israel. The star and scepter are symbols of a glorious and powerful kingdom that would subdue the enemies of Israel, typified as Moab and Edom. In the early Israelite monarchy, David fulfilled this prophecy by defeating and subjugating both Moab and Edom (2Sm 8:1-12). But as later Israelite kings failed to obey God's instructions and as oppression and exile followed, this passage would be interpreted messianically to refer to a coming glorious king. The model of a just and righteous king was brought to ultimate fulfillment in Jesus' establishment of the kingdom of God.

24:20-24 Three brief oracles about the destiny of other nations conclude the account of Balaam. Critics ascribe these texts to late authors or sources because of their brevity and language. Yet their collective theme is that God would subdue all peoples like Moab who opposed His will and His people. The Amalekite people would be subdued under Saul, Samuel, and David. The Kenites would be subdued by their neighbors, the northern Sinai tribe of Asshur (Gn 25:3,18—not the same as the later Assyrians). The Kenites were a nomadic clan from the eastern Sinai region whose roots are traced biblically to the descendants of Cain and who are associated with metallurgical craftsmanship (Gn 4:17-24). In Jdg 1:16 the association is made between the Kenites and Moses' Midianite in-laws, Jethro, Reuel, and Hobab, whose descendants settled in the Negev near Arad. Later Kenites lived as far north as the territory of Naphtali. The present text notes a group of Kenites who, like some Midianites, had become enemies of Israel and would eventually be subdued. Then the Asshurite people would in turn be conquered by the Kittim, a reference to the Mediterranean peoples such as the Philistines. They too would then see their demise.

The reference to Asshur is probably not to the later Assyrian empire of the ninth to seventh centuries B.C., or even the Middle Assyrian peoples of the late Bronze Age, who seldom ventured west of the Euphrates River. Most associate this citation with the relatively unknown Asshurites, a nomadic group of the Negev region, mentioned in Gn 25:3,18 and Ps 83:8. They were descendants of Abraham and his concubine Keturah. Kittim is one of the ancient terms for Cyprus (Gn 10:4), derived from its major city Kition (thus Kitionites). In several OT passages, the term was used generically for the islands of the Mediterranean and their inhabitants (Jr 2:10; Dn 11:30). The (Hb) kittiyim mentioned in the Arad inscriptions were probably Greek and Cypriot mercenaries serving in the Judean army in border fortresses. During the Hellenistic period "Kittim" became a byword for the archenemies of God, a prominent motif in the Qumran scrolls in reference to the Greeks and then the Romans. In the eschatological climax of history, all rebellious nations will bow to the judgment of God.

24:25 Balaam began his trek homeward, but as 31:8 suggests, he was killed in the Midianite campaign, having been instrumental in instigating the idolatrous enticement of Israelites in chapter 25.

25:1 The scene moves back from the mountains of Moab to the Israelite camp at Acacia Grove in the lower Jordan River Valley. The tenor of the narrative immediately reverts back to rebellious Israel. The placement of the two scenes back-to-back was designed to contrast Balaam's obedience with Israel's sinfulness.

25:2 The chief deity of the Moabites was known as Chemosh (21:29). Worship of Chemosh, Asherah, and others involved sacrificial rituals along with sacrificial meals (communal offerings) celebrating the goodness of the gods. The final step was bowing in worship, demonstrating their submission to the gods as servants. In doing this, the idolatrous Israelites were rejecting their exclusive allegiance to the one true God, who could not be portrayed by figurines or other symbols.

25:3 This is the first reference in the OT to the god Baal (Baal of Peor), who would become the primary competitor with Yahweh for the devotion of the people of Israel. The historical setting is the late Bronze Age (1550-1200 B.C. ), when Baal was emerging as one of the chief deities in Canaan. Numerous cuneiform texts from the excavations of Ugarit reveal that Baal was the agent of the creative order who, with his consort Anath, defeated the forces of evil. The father-god was El, who with his consort Asherah was said to rule the heavens and the earth. The final words of the verse, and the LORD 's anger burned against Israel, echo the refrain of the first rebellion at Taberah (11:1). God's judgment was about to fall, implying the onset of a plague (25:9).

25:4-5 The Lord instructed Moses, who delegated authority to the righteous judges of Israel to execute (lit "impale") the leaders of this rebellion immediately to avert any further judgment against the people. These judges were probably those appointed by Moses at the suggestion of his father-in-law Jethro (Ex 18:13-27). The guilty parties were to be executed before the LORD, meaning that they were to be rendered unto the Lord to expiate the divine wrath demonstrated in the plague. This was harsh punishment, but the holiness of the community of faith was at stake. If the nation did not remain holy, she would fail like the previous generation that had died in the wilderness.

25:6-7 Phinehas son of Eleazar was Aaron's grandson. He executed a rebellious Israelite who dared to present his Midianite seductress to his family near the entrance of the tabernacle, the place reserved for sacred presentation of offerings to God.

25:8 Phinehas, with his executioner's spear in hand, impaled the man and his mistress together, quite possibly while they were beginning to have sexual relations (v. 1). Like Aaron did in the judgment scene against Korah and his rebellious followers (16:46-50), Phinehas stood in the gap between the living and the dying.

25:10 A shift in the language of divine instruction (the LORD spoke to Moses) goes almost unnoticed in the English translation. After Moses and Aaron had rebelled against God in the striking of the rock at Meribah (20:9-13), God merely "said" various things to Moses (Hb 'amar; 20:12,23; 21:8,16,34; 25:4), but now at the conclusion of the rebellion cycles of Numbers, and in the backdrop of Moses and Phinehas faithfully following the Lord's commands, the Lord restored communication with Moses by "speaking" or "instructing" (Hb dibber; over 30 times in the first 19 chaps.). Moses was restored to full fellowship with God.

25:11-13 The zeal of Phinehas in defending the faith was rewarded with a divinely ordained relationship. His descendants would serve continuously as high priests (covenant of perpetual priesthood) over the nation of Israel. A covenant of peace is also mentioned in Is 54:10; Ezk 34:25; 37:26; and Mal 2:5. The recipients of this covenant were assured of God's presence, protection, and provision in times of trouble.

25:14-15 The people killed by Phinehas were from prominent families, the man being a son of a Simeonite leader and the woman being the daughter of Zur, a Midianite tribal leader. Sinfulness and its judgment are no respecters of persons, whether from the lower classes or the elite.

26:1-2 The Hebrew Bible includes a half verse at 25:19, after the plague, as a transition. The Baal-peor incident reminded future Israelite generations of the dangers of intermarriage with those from idolatrous backgrounds who might lead the nation into judgment. This incident served as a case study in God's holiness and righteousness; He would allow no other gods to replace Him in the hearts and minds of His people. The rest of 26:1-2 is very similar to God's command in 1:1-2 mandating the first census.

26:3 The first census took place at the foot of Mount Sinai in the wilderness, the second at the doorway of the promised land, in the plains of Moab by the Jordan across from Jericho.

26:5-50 More than 38 years had passed since the first census, but that first generation, which had seen the miraculous power of God in Egypt and in the wilderness, had rejected God by refusing to enter the land, and had suffered the consequences. Yet a connection is made with the first generation through genealogical accounting for each of the 12 tribes—beginning with the descendants of Reuben—plus the Levites, in a manner not found in chapter 1.

Both oral and written genealogies were maintained during this historical period to connect the past with the present, to trace particular lines of development, and to justify claims to inheritance or leadership. Recounting one's genealogy was commonplace at the dedication of a newborn child or in the crowning of a king.

The tribes of Simeon (declined by 37,100; v. 12) and Naphtali (declined by 8,000; v. 48) had suffered the greatest losses in their militias during the wilderness era, and the tribe of Simeon would eventually dissipate into Judah within whose territory they were given an allotment. Manasseh (increased by 20,500; v. 29), Asher (increased by 11,900; v. 44), and Issachar (increased by 9,900; v. 23) reaped the most significant increases.

26:51 The number of registered Israelite men in the second census came to 601,730. The net decrease from the first census was 1,820 warriors (see note at 1:44-46).

26:53-56 In 33:54 instructions are given for deciding the territorial location for each of the tribes in the midst of a warning about potential idolatry. In 34:1-29 the boundaries of the whole inheritance are outlined. The case of Zelophehad's daughters adds the potential of women's inheritance to the matter of tribal allocations (26:33; 27:1-11; 36:1-12). The allotment would take into consideration tribal populations and the amount of land within a given region (Jos 17:17-18).

26:55 Divided by lot refers to a second principle governing land allocation—providential probability as expressed through a game of chance. The Lord was presumed to oversee the casting of the lots, thereby bringing His decision to pass (Pr 16:33). The casting of lots was a common means of determining the will of God. It was used to choose between the two goats on the Day of Atonement (Lv 16:8), to divide the spoils of war (Ob 11), and to settle political issues (1Sm 10:21).

26:57-62 In a manner similar to the first census, the second numbering of the Levites separately from the militia follows the genealogical pattern of verses 5-52. Mention of the deaths of Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron who offered unauthorized fire on the altar, served as a reminder of the dangerous task the Levites and priests had in maintaining the holiness of God in the heart of a community with a history of rebellion.

26:65 The census of the second generation militia concludes with a reminder to the people of the consequences of rebellion. The OT theme of the remnant is set forth in the survival of two faithful men—Caleb and Joshua—out of thousands who died over the 40-year wilderness experience. The Numbers theme of the challenge to be faithful in following the Lord's instructions is repeated.

27:1 Only male descendants were registered by patriarchal lineage in the census. According to levirate law, in a case where a man died without a male heir, a male relative would redeem the land to keep it within the clan. This account is an example of case law development early in Israelite history: (1) the specific case was presented to the leaders at the entrance of the tabernacle (vv. 1-4); (2) an appeal was made by the leader to divine legislative authority (v. 5); and (3) a precedent-setting decision was issued, accompanied by principles derived from the case (vv. 6-11).

27:2-3 The daughters of Zelophehad were concerned that their family, lacking a male heir, would be passed over and their patriarchal ancestral name would be forgotten. The disappearance of one's family name was a matter of grave concern, often associated with divine judgment that would lead to societal shunning and abandonment (Ru 4:10; Ps 83:4; Jr 11:19). The daughters of Zelophehad sought status and inheritance rights within the Machirite clan of Manasseh. Later the Machirites received an inheritance in the Gilead region of Transjordan (Nm 32:39-42). Similar laws about women's inheritance and property rights existed among various cultures of the ancient Near East.

27:6-11 The decision in the case (what Zelophehad's daughters say is correct) set forth in the days of Moses in the second millennium B.C., and fulfilled by Joshua in the land distribution (Jos 17:3-6), was still in force more than 500 years later. The names of two of Manasseh's descendants through Zelophehad, Hoglah and Noah, were preserved as the names of districts or towns in the region of Samaria (within the territory of Manasseh) in the Samaria Ostraca (inscribed potsherds) of the eighth century B.C., at least 200 years before the exile of Judah.

27:12 The Abarim range extended from an area northeast of the Dead Sea and then southward along the western edge of the Moabite plateau in Transjordan. The opportunity for Moses to see the land of promise from Dan to Zoar took place at Mount Nebo in the heights of Pisgah (Dt 32:49; 34:1).

27:13 Moses was to be gathered to his people, meaning he was to be buried properly, though not in the family burial site that was typical of this era. The phrase conveys the idea of being reunited with one's ancestral families in Sheol, the place of the dead. To be left unburied or "ungathered" was viewed as disgraceful.

27:14 The Lord had been dishonored at the waters of Meribah of Kadesh in the Wilderness of Zin when Moses struck the rock instead of speaking to it. God did provide the needed water for the people, but the action of Israel's leaders was reprimanded (20:9-11).

27:15-17 Moses' words the God of the spirits of all flesh speak of God's sovereignty over all humankind. He is the master of the universe who can thwart even the ways of a pagan diviner like Balaam and accomplish His desires for His people. Moses, the elder statesman of Israel, appealed to God the way a humble servant would appear before his master. Moses desired that the newly appointed leader would be just as concerned as he had been for the welfare of the nation (cp. Jesus' compassion in Mt 9:36). The language of going out and coming in has to do with successfully leading the people in battle. The shepherd can also be a military metaphor (1Kg 22:17).

27:18 The phrase Take Joshua son of Nun, a man who has the Spirit in him reflects the language of formal appointment. "Take" means to exert authority. It is similar in usage to the way the word is used in the introduction to the Korah rebellion, when the Kohathite leader attempted to usurp the authority of Aaron the high priest. Possession of the Holy Spirit in the OT was for the purpose of carrying out the specific tasks to which a person had been appointed by the Lord.

27:22-23 The formal transfer of leadership from Moses to Joshua begins with a statement about Moses faithfully following the Lord's instruction. The ceremony involved the oversight of the high priest Eleazar in the ritual ceremony, accompanied by the laying on of hands in symbolic transfer of blessing and authority. The parallel passage in Dt 31:1-8,14-29 highlights the placing of the book of the law next to the ark of the covenant. This emphasized the need for faithfulness to the Lord's commands by the Israelites.

28:1-2 The LORD spoke to Moses introduces the divine instruction about the special fire offering to be presented to the Lord on the various holy days of the Israelite calendar. God would bless the faithful Israelites with abundance in their fields and flocks in the promised land, so they in turn might celebrate His greatness and goodness in rendering the fruits of their labors.

28:3-8 Every day was holy and thus was to be dedicated to the Lord at the entrance of the tabernacle through the rendering of a burnt offering, a sacrifice for consecration of the day. Both in the morning and in the evening a lamb was sacrificed on behalf of the nation in a substitutionary identification ritual accomplished by the priest placing his hands on the head of the lamb. As the priest recited special blessings, the life blood of the animal was extracted as the animal was slaughtered. Then the blood was poured out to the Lord around the altar. The sacrifice would be accompanied by its appropriate portion of grain and oil, plus a prescribed amount of beer for the drink offering—a libation poured over the animal and grain elements as they were roasting on the fire of the sacrificial altar. For "beer" see note at 6:3-4.

28:6 The burnt offering legislation was established at Mount Sinai for a pleasing aroma (savory smell) to the LORD (Ex 20:24; 29:38-43). The vapors that rose up from the altar depicted God's acceptance of the offering. Only the highest quality, unblemished animals could be presented to the Lord.

28:9-10 The daily burnt offerings of lamb, grain, and liquid libation were doubled on the Sabbath.

28:11-15 At the beginning of each of your months additional burnt offerings of consecration were made, constituting a grand rite through which the nation paid homage to God as its Creator and Sustainer.

28:16-25 According to Ex 12:8, the foundational Passover foods were the Passover lamb, unleavened bread, and bitter herbs. These helped the people remember the events that brought about the redemption of Israel from Egypt. Passover lambs were offered as communal sacrifices, with portions consumed by both the priests and the offerers in the presence of God in the Israelite camp, or later in Jerusalem after the temple was built. Unleavened bread was consumed in imitation of the original setting, which Deuteronomy calls the "bread of affliction." The bitter herbs were a reminder of the bitterness of slavery in Egypt. In this passage some elements are added to the celebration: Sabbath designation (meaning no work) for the first and final days of the Festival of Unleavened Bread, complete with a sacred assembly at the sanctuary; and additional sacrifices equivalent to those offered on the New Moon (two bulls, one ram, and seven lambs, each accompanied by their appropriate grain/oil and libation offerings). The sacrificial list was completed with the offering of a goat for a sin offering on behalf of the people.

28:26-31 The first day of the Festival of Weeks (Hb shavuoth) was called the day of firstfruits. It was considered a Sabbath, with burnt and sin offerings essentially the same as the New Moon sacrifices. The firstfruits offering of the new grain harvest was included in the ritual practices for the day when the seven weeks after the first sheaf (Lv 23:10) were completed. Sheaves of new barley and wheat were elevated and waved before the Lord in celebration of the gift of the harvest. These were in addition to the prescribed offering of two loaves of leavened bread (Lv 23:15-22; Dt 16:3) given in thanksgiving for the abundance of God's blessing. In the NT, the Festival of Weeks is called Pentecost, based on the Greek pentekoste (fiftieth), since the day is the fiftieth day after the first sheaf.

29:1-38 The beginning of the agricultural year, in the seventh month, on the first day, was the beginning of the penitential season. The tenth day of the month was considered the holiest day of the year, the Day of Atonement. Five days later the Festival of Booths began and lasted for a week. In Early Israelite history, the seventh month was known as Ethanim, but when the Jews adopted the Babylonian calendar during the exile, the month was called Tishri.

29:1-6 The collective offerings presented on the day of joyful shouting were three bulls, two rams, 16 male lambs, 1.6 bushels of fine flour, and six gallons each of oil and wine. Traditionally, the first of Tishri was called the "day for blowing trumpets" in which the ram's horn (Hb shophar) was sounded rather than the silver trumpets of 10:1-10. The sounding of the ram's horn was a call to repentance. The designation of this day as Rosh Hashanah, "the head of the year," was a late postexilic development in emerging Judaism.

29:7-11 The holiest day of the year required a sacred assembly of self-denial, and Sabbath restrictions against work as described in Lv 23:16-32. A full description of the activities for the Day of Atonement (Hb yom kippur) is found in Lv 16:1-34, where the focus is upon the unique purification rituals required. The holy of holies was cleansed because of the sins of the people, and azazel (the scapegoat) was led into the wilderness, symbolically carrying the sins of the people away from the camp. Two sin offerings were sacrificed on this day, one parallel to the sin offering at the New Moon Festival, and the other on behalf of the people, the blood of which was then used to purify the holy place (Lv 16:15-20).

The acts of self-denial included fasting, leading to the day being called "The Fast" in later Judaism. Other restrictions included any activities that brought comfort and pleasure. The work of Christ on the cross brought fulfillment to the ritual of the Day of Atonement. Functioning as a high priest of a superior order —of Melchizedek (Heb 7:17-28)—Christ offered Himself as a once-for-all, eternal sacrifice (Heb 9:11-28). His work accomplished redemption from sin and cleansed our guilty consciences (Heb 10:19-22).

29:12-38 The longest section of these two chapters is devoted to a description of the daily offerings of the Festival of Booths (or Tabernacles; Hb sukkoth). The first day of the festival and the appended eighth day were considered Sabbaths for sacred assembly. The sukkah was a hut or tent constructed in imitation of the dwellings of early Israelites during the wilderness period, when God provided what was needed for protection. In Lv 23:39-43 the Israelites were instructed to erect huts in future generations as a reminder of God's protection and provision in the wilderness. First called the Festival of Ingathering (Ex 23:16), the celebration commemorated God's provision in the fall harvest of the vegetable crops, the vineyards, and finally the olive orchards. The association of Booths with the exodus from Egypt provided a continuation of the salvation/redemption/providence/preservation motifs of Passover, Unleavened Bread, and Pentecost.

29:40 Moses faithfully accomplished the task assigned to him by God as he instructed the Israelite priests on the proper procedure for commemorating and celebrating God's goodness in the holy days of the calendar.

30:1-16 In this section the legal force of vows and oaths is set forth for both men and women. A vow was a conditional promise, made in the context of petitionary prayer (T. W. Cartledge, Vows). The force of women's vows was limited by her male guardian, usually either her father or her husband. If the guardian was passive or assenting, the vows of the woman had the same legal force as a man's vow. The vows of widows and divorced women were also binding. This statute also applied to a woman who was taking a Nazirite vow (6:1-21).

30:1-2 Making vows was voluntary, but any man who made a vow or swore an oath to the Lord was required to fulfill his obligation. Vows involved a verbal act of commitment to a task, or to consecration of oneself or property to the Lord. Oral vows were just as binding as formal written documents. To break a vow in which God's name had been evoked was to profane God's name (Lv 27:28-29). Sacrificial offerings were part of the obligation ritual, especially in ancient Israel where oaths were to be made only to God. In the case of the Nazirite vow (Nm 6), the procedure included an oath of abstinence from wine and strong drink, from shaving of the head, and from contamination by a corpse.

30:3-5 If a woman in her father's house during her youth had made a vow, the patriarchal headship of her father became the controlling factor. A young female lived under her father's authority until she married (usually in the late teenage years), at which time her husband assumed this responsibility (vv. 6-8).

30:9 In the case of a widow or divorced woman, she no longer lived under the patriarchal authority of her father or husband, so she had the same status and responsibility as a man with regard to vows.

30:10-15 In the patriarchal society of ancient Israel, vows could be annulled by the husband if they were considered detrimental to the woman, to her husband, or to the husband-wife relationship. Special considerations were given to the circumstances under which the wife took a vow, when the husband was apprised of the commitment, and how he responded to the information. The cases of Hannah (1Sm 1:11) and the mother of Samson (Jdg 13:1-23) are good examples of vow-taking under the condition of childlessness.

31:1-36 : 13 The final cycle of Numbers completes the challenge to faithfulness as God was preparing Israel to enter the promised land.

31:2 The Midianites are an enigmatic people in biblical, historical, and archaeological research. According to Gn 25:1-4, Midian was one of the sons of Abraham through his concubine Keturah. Midianites were allied at times with the Moabites (Gn 36:35; Nm 22:7; 25:6,14-18), the Amalekites (Jdg 6:3; 7:12), and the Ishmaelites (Gn 37:28). The Midianites seem to have been a loosely connected confederation of nomadic and seminomadic tribes with origins in northern Saudi Arabia who traveled the regions of the western Sinai Peninsula, southern Jordan, and the Arabah (see notes at Nm 22:2-4 and 25:14).

31:3-5 Each of the seven cycles in the book of Numbers begins with a reference to the 12-tribe unity (or disunity in the case of the Korah rebellion, chaps. 16-17), and here 1,000 men . . . from each Israelite tribe are mustered for battle. Equal participation in the holy war by the tribes parallels their equal contribution of gifts for the tabernacle in chapter 7.

31:6 The model for holy war is presented with the priest Phinehas accompanying the 12,000-man army into battle. They carried with them the sanctuary vessels for needed purification rituals and the trumpets for sounding battle alerts (10:1-10).

31:8 The five Midianite kings defeated in the campaign are listed in the same order in the battle summary of Jos 13:21, where they are called "princes of Sihon." The nature of the political relationships among the Amorites, Moabites, and Midianites remains nebulous. One of these Midianite leaders, Zur, was the father of Cozbi, the Midianite woman who was killed by Phinehas along with her Israelite lover Zimri ben Salu (25:14-18).

31:13-24 The purpose of holy war was to eradicate impure elements, whether persons or property, from society. This battle followed on the heels of the idolatrous activity of Baal-peor (chap. 25) that began with unholy sexual relations and resulted in the death of thousands of Israelites. It also set the stage for the instructions in 33:50-56 for possessing the promised land by driving out the Canaanites and eradicating the sources of idolatry. Critics suggest this holy war mentality was a development among ancient peoples and not in keeping with God's purpose; but these instructions were specific in time and place at the critical point of the founding of the theocracy of Israel, where their survival as the holy community of faith was at stake.

Numbers 31 is consistent with the instructions given in other pentateuchal passages, including Dt 7:5,24-25; 12:1-12; and 20:16-19 (purging of idolatry) and Dt 21:10-14 (female captives). But the instructions for Israel in the era of Moses and Joshua have been superseded by the law of Christ and the law of love. God still abhors evil in society, and the people of God should be diligent in opposing every expression of evil, but not to the extent of conducting holy war.

31:25 The LORD told Moses is again the language of divine revelation and instruction that anticipates faithful obedience, summarized in verse 31.

31:27-46 These instructions for the distribution of the spoils of war among the community members set the standard for the coming campaigns in the promised land.

31:47 From the spoils of war Moses took one out of every 50 . . . of the Israelites' half and gave them to the Levites. The two percent here contrasts with the tradition in Abraham's day, where a tithe of 10 percent was presented to the temple priesthood.

31:50-54 The amount of gold offered by Israel's commanders exceeded the minimal requirement of one-half shekel per person by nearly threefold, with the armlets, bracelets, signet rings, earrings, and necklaces totaling 16,750 shekels (6,700 ounces, or nearly 420 pounds). The leaders gave sacrificially in the spirit of thanksgiving to God.

32:1-5 Having journeyed through the arid regions south of the Arnon River such as Edom and Moab, the Reubenites and Gadites observed that the region around Gilead was more fertile. The several rivers in the region such as the Yarmuk, Jabesh, and Jabbok, along with the numerous springs, would provide an ample water supply for their needs. The cities named were located in the highland plains of Transjordan on the eastern side of the Dead Sea. The request for territorial allocation east of the Jordan River was made in proper protocol: they presented themselves as servants seeking favor before Moses, Eleazar . . . and the leaders of the community (cp. 31:13). Their claim was that since the Lord had provided victory over the Amorites and others, and the land could provide ample pasturage for their livestock, they should be allowed to settle there. They added the stipulation that they not be required to cross the Jordan River—they did not want to go to war.

32:6 Moses called attention to the real reason why these tribes wanted to settle the Transjordan highlands—they were hesitant about going to war. This was a potentially treasonous act against God's plan for the nation. The promised land was across the Jordan River to the west (34:12) and not on the eastern side of the river. Moses realized that their request had all the hallmarks of the great rebellion in which Israel had rejected God's gift of the land. Note the words "discouraging" and "discouraged" in 32:7 and 9.

32:9 On the Eshcol Valley, see note at 13:23.

32:16-19 The Reubenites and Gadites pledged their full support for the conquest of the land west of the Jordan River—even to the point of leading the way for the remainder of the tribes (we will arm ourselves and be ready to go)—if Moses would allow them to take their inheritance in Transjordan and permit them to leave their families in the safekeeping of the local towns.

32:20-24 Moses consented to the request of these tribes under both positive (if you do this) and negative (if you don't do this) stipulations. The covenant between the Gad-Reuben alliance and the other ten tribes had Moses as the mediator, and Yahweh as the witness and guarantor of the commitment made by the two groups.

32:25 , 31 The Gadites and Reubenites ratified the agreement as servants of Moses, and ultimately of God.

32:28-32 All treaty arrangements were ratified in the context of the religious assembly and climaxed by rituals overseen by the priests.

32:33-36 The Gadites were granted land in the southern part of the territory formerly held by Sihon king of the Amorites. Gad shared its northern border with the half-tribe of Manasseh. The cities listed for Gad in the OT suggest that a narrow strip of land in the Jordan River plain, extending from the Jabbok River to the Sea of Galilee, was to be included in the allocation. Aroer (modern ‘Ara‘ir) was located on the Kings Highway, just north of the Arnon River. The Gadite cities are described in Jos 13:24-28. The allocation to half the tribe of Manasseh was generally to the north of the tribe of Gad, extending from the region of Gilead into Bashan and Golan.

32:37-38 The Reubenites were allocated lands and cities south of Gad, especially the cities of Heshbon (the former capital of Sihon’s Amorite kingdom), Elealeh, Kiriathaim . . . Nebo, and Baal-meon. Additional cities and territories are described in Jos 13:15-23, including Dibon and Aroer, which were located on the highland plateau just north of the Arnon River Valley.

32:39-42 The Machirite clan of the tribe of Manasseh apparently joined in the quest for Transjordan territory after gaining victory over the Amorites in the upper and northern Gilead region. The language here closely parallels that of 21:32 and 33:52-54, the model terminology for the conquest of the land. They were to take control of the given territory, drive out the inhabitants, and destroy all sources of false religion.

33:3-10 The pattern of “they departed / they camped” echoes the pattern of the journey song of 9:18-23, providing continuity in the literary style of these two sections of the book. The first cycle, from Rameses to the Red Sea, provides the date and setting of the miraculous and historic deliverance of Israel from bondage in Egypt—highlighting the death of the firstborn in Egypt, which provided redemption for the firstborn Israelites (3:13) and victory over the gods of Egypt.

33:11-17 From the Wilderness of Sin to Hazeroth, Mount Sinai is not mentioned, though the Sinai Wilderness is included. The details of the year-long stay in the vicinity of the mountain of God are found in Exodus 19-40 and Numbers 1-10. One of the key questions in attempting to locate the sites in the second through fifth cycles is the location of Mount Sinai. Through the centuries more than 20 different mountains have been suggested. These include Jebel Helal in the northeastern Sinai Peninsula near the Way of the Wilderness of Shur

(Ex 15:22), Jebel Sin Bisher in the west central region, Jebel Serbal and the traditional Jebel Musa in the southern Sinai region, and Har Karkom in the Paran Wilderness region. Several mountains in northwestern Saudi Arabia have also been proposed, including Jebel el-Lawra, southeast of Aqaba. If the request of Moses before Pharaoh to journey three days into the wilderness to celebrate a festival to the Lord (Ex 8:3) is to be applied to the quest for the mountain's locale, then the sacred summit must be closer to the Egyptian border fortresses than most of the mountains except Jebel Sin Bisher or perhaps another mountain in western Sinai. The clearest statement regarding this part of the itinerary is found in Dt 1:2, which states that the distance from Horeb (= Sinai) to Kadesh-barnea via Ezion-geber was an 11-day journey, or about 140 to 150 miles.

33:18-31 None of the sites in the third or fourth cycles can be accurately located. Most of them are unknown to the rest of Scripture, later history, and modern historical geographers.

33:32-41 From Hor-haggidgad to Zalmonah—the fifth cycle includes the death on Mount Hor of the first high priest Aaron, who like Moses was prohibited from entering the promised land because of his rebellion "at the waters of Meribah" (20:11-13,23-29). The reference to the king of Arad reminds the reader of the victory over the Canaanite armies (21:1-3) that had once defeated Israel soon after the Israelites refused to enter the promised land (14:39-45).

33:42-49 From Punon to the plains of Moab—the sites mentioned in the sixth cycle are located in the vicinity of the Arabah south of the Dead Sea and in the Transjordan regions of Edom, Moab, and Ammon.

33:50-56 The seventh and final cycle of victory-march stages would begin from the plains of Moab directly opposite the city of Jericho. This Canaanite city would become the initial victory for the Israelites when they faithfully followed the Lord's commands to march around the city on successive days (Jos 6).

33:52 These idols were representations of the pagan gods, a record of the perception of reality conceived of by a worshiper or craftsman. Cast images were molten forms (Hb massekoth) of deities from clay or molten metal such as copper or bronze. High places translates the Hebrew bamoth, referring to a cultic worship center, which may or may not indicate an elevated site or structure. All forms of local idolatrous worship were to be eradicated from the land, lest the Israelites be tempted to adopt them.

33:55-56 The statement of conditional judgment of Israel gives evidence of the literary and thematic unity of the Pentateuch, paralleling the message of judgment in Lv 26:14-33 and Dt 28:15-68. Just as God intended for Israel to displace (disinherit) the Canaanites, so He could drive the Israelites from the promised land if they did not obey His commands.

34:2 Not "if," but when the Israelites entered the land promised to Abraham (Gn 15:18-21), Isaac (Gn 26:4), and Jacob (Gn 28:13-14), they were to divide the territory among the 12 tribes according to the need dictated by each tribe's population (Nm 26:52-56). The borders of the promised land represented the limits of the land of Canaan during the late Bronze Age (1550-1200 B.C.) and were the ideal setting for the national boundaries.

34:3-5 The southern side of the border began with the Wilderness of Zin, from which the original scouts returned with their report (13:21). The line extended northeast to the southern end of the Dead Sea (Salt Sea), avoiding the Edomite territory on the west side of the Arabah, and then moved westward from the Wilderness of Zin, gradually turning more northwest. The border ran along the edge of Edomite territory in order to avoid any further conflicts with those who had prohibited passage for the Israelites when they moved into Transjordan. The description continues on a general line south of the Ascent of Akrabbim ("Scorpion Ascent") and on through the south side of Kadesh-barnea ('Ain Qedeis or 'Ain el-Qudeirat), and extending toward the Brook of Egypt (modern Wadi el-Arish) just south of Raphia and the Gaza Strip. The border then followed the brook northwest to the Mediterranean Sea (Hazar-addar and Azmon are unknown).

34:6 The western border was the natural barrier formed by the "Great Sea," the Mediterranean.

34:7-9 The northern border reached from the Mediterranean toward Mount Hor, perhaps today's Jebel Akkar. The northern border town of Hethlon mentioned in Ezk 47:15 is identified with modern Heitela on the lower slope of Jebel Akkar. The entrance of Hamath (or Lebo-hamath) is generally identified with modern Lebweh near one of the sources of the Orontes River. Hamath was the northernmost extent of the land surveyed by the 12 Israelite scouts, according to 13:21. It was also the northern boundary of the Israelite kingdom during the monarchy of David and Solomon (1Kg 8:65).

34:10-12 The eastern border began with the site of Hazar-enan, which has been associated with either the oasis of Qaryatein or modern Hadr in the vicinity of Mount Hermon. The border continued southeast toward Shepham (location unknown) and then south toward Riblah, then around the east side of Ain, and onward to the eastern edge of the Sea of Galilee (Chinnereth). The town of Ain ("spring") may be identified with one of the springs that serve as the sources of the Jordan River. The boundary extended to the eastern side of the Huleh (upper Jordan) Valley, descending toward the Sea of Galilee, including a narrow strip of land on the eastern side of the Jordan up to the lower slopes of the Golan

Heights. From the Sea of Galilee the eastern border then followed the Jordan River down to the Salt Sea (Dead Sea), a distance of about 60 miles, though the river itself meanders back and forth over a distance of more than 100 miles.

34:13-15 Moses fulfilled the task given to him, and the responsibility to carry out these instructions would fall on Joshua son of Nun, his successor. The distribution of the land by lot and according to the relative size of each of the tribes was completed under Joshua (Jos 13-19). This allotment applied to the nine and one-half tribes who lived on the west side of the Jordan River, whereas the other two and one-half tribes had already received their allotment, according to the description in Nm 32:33-42. The borders reflect the ideal territorial limits for the land of Israel as outlined by divine instruction, but this was not fully realized until the time of the united monarchy under David and Solomon (2Sm 8:1-18; 10:1-19; 2Ch 18:1-20:3).

34:19-29 Of the original spies sent to assess the land, only Caleb remained as a leader of a tribe for the territorial allotments. With the new leadership responsibilities placed on the shoulders of Joshua, his place as the representative for the tribe of Ephraim was assumed by Kemuel son of Shiphtan.

35:1 The statement of the geographical setting (in the plains of Moab) alerts the reader to the land theme of chapters 26-36.

35:2-3 This special allocation provided lands among the 12 Israelite tribes for the Levites to live in and pastureland around the cities for their flocks and herds acquired through the collection of tithes and offerings from the Israelites (18:21-32). From these settlements they and the priests could teach the people the laws of God, a vital concern if the nation was to learn the statutes and precepts of God’s law.

35:6-8 Parallel to the encampment of the priests and Levites around the tabernacle during the wilderness journey (chap. 2), the theocratic state organization was such that the Levites provided a visible presence among the 12 tribes to remind them of the need for holiness and righteousness as the people of God.

35:10-15 The six cities of refuge were needed in order to maintain purity and order in the community. Three of these cities are delineated later in Jos 20:7-9: Bezer in the Reubenite territory of southern Transjordan, Ramoth in Gilead in the Gadite highlands, and Golan in the Bashan region.

35:16-21 Those deaths involving deliberate use of lethal weapons or deliberate personal assaults were considered murder and therefore not under the guidelines of the cities of refuge. Murderers were to be executed by the avenger of blood, a designated kinsman to the deceased. The Hebrew word go'el here is the same term used of the family redeemer in Ru 2:20; 4:4,6. He was one who redeemed property or persons from another. The avenger of blood was a kinsman who redeemed the life of an individual by taking the life of the murderer.

35:22-29 The promised land was to be a holy land, free from the impurity of shed blood. The six cities of refuge provided a sanctuary to protect the lives of those convicted of manslaughter. It also served as the place of banishment for offenders. If a person was placed under the protection of a city of refuge but then decided to leave the city, he could be subject to execution by the blood avenger. City elders were responsible for assessing each case to determine the nature and cause of a person's death. Atonement was offered to the person who had committed manslaughter only through the time of the high priest's death. Thus that person was required to remain inside the city until that time. Murderers who sought refuge in these cities were not protected under the law. Capital punishment for willful death cases was to be carried out by the city after the elders had determined that the death penalty was justified.

36:1-3 Patriarchal leaders of the Machirites of the tribe of Manasseh feared that if the women married outside their clan, the land allotment might go to some other tribe or clan. This would upset the balanced distribution called for in 33:54.

36:4 The Year of Jubilee occurred every 50 years (Lv 25:13-55), after seven sabbatical years. During Jubilee, property that had been bought and sold among various tribes or clans reverted to its original tribal owner. This custom maintained the balance of land and wealth distribution among the 12 tribes. The law in Leviticus addressed matters of purchased property, but not that of inherited lands. During the Jubilee Year various debts, such as those of indentured slaves, were forgiven and individuals were freed of financial and other obligations in order to rebuild their lives. "Jubilee" is an anglicized word from the Hebrew word yovel ("ram's horn"), which was sounded to usher in the year of celebration, redemption, and restoration.

36:5-9 The adjudication of the case came through the Lord's instruction to Moses that would permit the women to marry the person of their choosing provided they marry within a clan of their ancestral tribe. Hence, a loophole from the earlier case was closed.

36:10-12 The faithful adherence to the instruction from the Lord is highlighted as the daughters of Zelophehad did as the LORD commanded Moses. These words remind the reader of the central theme of the book of Numbers—faithfulness to the Lord's instruction.

36:13 The conclusion to the book of Numbers summarizes the position of the Israelite nation as it was poised to inherit the promised land. Throughout the book, references to Israel's faithfulness to God have been defined by the phraseology, "[Moses, Israelites, etc.] did just as the Lord had commanded." The laws of Torah and the extensions of case law in various settings of life in the book of Numbers (and the subsequent book of Deuteronomy) must be the foundation of the community of faith as they enter the land of Canaan as the people of God. If they are faithful and obedient, the blessings of the covenant relationship in the inheritance and productivity of the land will be theirs, but if they do not follow the Lord's commands, their lives will be beset by opposition from without—foreign enemy attacks—and from within—plague, civil war, and natural disaster.

Uses in the OT 93
Focus Passage Numbers 11:1,10,33

Charah has 'ap ("anger, nose") as subject 55 times so that anger burns (Jb 19:11), and people become incensed (Nm 22:22), enraged (Ex 32:19), or infuriated (2Sm 12:5). God's anger burns and He sends literal fire (Nm 11:1). Charah alone denotes be angry or incensed (Gn 18:30; 31:36). This anger can be against someone (1Ch 13:10). Charah connotes burning with anxiety, being agitated (Ps 37:1) or worrying (Pr 24:19). People burn with zeal when competing or excelling (Jr 12:5; 22:15). Once charah appears as diligently to modify another verb (Neh 3:20). Charah in Scripture most often refers to God who is angry at human sins. Charon (41x) occurs 34 times with 'ap as burning anger (Nm 25:4). Charon suggests wrath (Ezk 7:12), burning (Ps 58:9), anger, fury, and burning wrath. Choriy (6x) with 'ap suggests outburst of (fierce, burning) anger (Dt 29:24; Is 7:4; Lm 2:3).

Focus Passage Numbers 26:7,18,22,25,27

Paqad, whose root occurs in all Semitic languages, has a variety of meanings that may stem from the concept of paying attention (Ex 4:31). Paqad describes taking note of (Jr 15:15) or taking care of (2Kg 9:34). Inspecting (Jb 7:18), checking (1Sm 17:18), or overseeing (2Kg 22:5) can determine that something is missing (Nm 31:49). Paqad involves counting (1Sm 11:8) or recording (Ex 38:21). One cares for by storing (2Kg 5:24) and depositing (Jr 36:20), or by entrusting (Lv 6:4) and committing (1Kg 14:27) something to another. Attention comes by visiting (Ps 17:3), or by going to someone (Is 26:16). Positively, people may come to the aid of (Gn 50:24), appoint (Nm 1:50), or put in charge (Gn 39:4). Negatively, they may accuse (2Sm 3:8) or punish (Ex 20:5). One may count by calling the roll (1Sm 14:17) and mobilizing troops (Jos 8:10).

DEUTERONOMY

Introduction

1 These are the words Moses spoke to all Israel across the Jordan in the wilderness, [a] in the •Arabah opposite Suph, [b] between Paran [c] and Tophel, Laban, Hazeroth, [d] and Di-zahab. 2 It is an eleven-day journey from Horeb to Kadesh-barnea by way of Mount Seir. 3 In the fortieth year, in the eleventh month, on the first of the month, Moses told the Israelites everything the LORD had commanded him to say to them. 4 This was after he had defeated Sihon king of the Amorites, who lived in Heshbon, and Og king of Bashan, who lived in Ashtaroth, at Edrei. [e] 5 Across the Jordan in the land of Moab, Moses began to explain this law, saying: Departure from Horeb

6 "The LORD our God spoke to us at Horeb: 'You have stayed at this mountain long enough. 7 Resume your journey and go to the hill country of the Amorites and their neighbors in the Arabah, the hill country, the Judean foothills, [A] the •Negev and the sea coast — to the land of the Canaanites and to Lebanon as far as the Euphrates River. [B] 8 See, I have set the land before you. Enter and take possession of the land the LORD swore to give to your fathers [f] Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and their future descendants.' [g]

Leaders for the Tribes 9 "I said to you at that time: I can't bear the responsibility for you on my own. 10 The LORD your God has so multiplied you that today you are as numerous as the stars of the sky. [h] 11 May •Yahweh , the God of your fathers, increase you a thousand times more, and bless you as He promised you. 12 But how can I bear your troubles, burdens, and disputes by myself? 13 Appoint for yourselves wise, understanding, and respected men from each of your tribes, and I will make them your leaders.

14 "You replied to me, 'What you propose to do is good.'

15 "So I took the leaders of your tribes, wise and respected men, and set them over you as leaders: officials for thousands, hundreds, fifties, and tens, and officers for your tribes. 16 I commanded your judges at that time: Hear the cases between your brothers, and judge rightly between a man and his brother or a foreign resident. 17 Do not show partiality when deciding a case; [i] listen to small and great alike. Do not be intimidated by anyone, for judgment belongs to God. [j] Bring me any case too difficult for you, and I will hear it. 18 At that time I commanded you about all the things you were to do. [k]

Israel's Disobedience at Kadesh-barnea 19 "We then set out from Horeb and went across all the great and terrible wilderness you saw on the way to the hill country of the Amorites, just as the LORD our God had commanded us. When we reached Kadesh-barnea, 20 I said to you: You have reached the hill country of the Amorites, which the LORD our God is giving us. 21 See, the LORD your God has set the land before you. Go up and take possession of it as Yahweh, the God of your fathers, has told you. Do not be afraid or discouraged.

22 "Then [l] all of you approached me and said, 'Let's send men ahead of us, so that they may explore the land for us and bring us back a report about the route we should go up and the cities we will come to.' 23 The plan seemed good to me, so I selected 12 men from among you, one man for each tribe. 24 They left and went up into the hill country and came to the Valley of Eshcol, scouting the land.
25 They took some of the fruit from the land in their hands, carried it down to us, and brought us back a report: 'The land the LORD our God is giving us is good.'
[m]

26 "But you were not willing to go up, rebelling against the command of the LORD your God. 27 You grumbled in your tents [n] and said, 'The LORD brought us out of the land of Egypt to deliver us into the hands of the Amorites so they would destroy us, because He hated us. 28 Where can we go? Our brothers have discouraged us, [o] saying: The people are larger and taller than we are; the cities are large, fortified to the heavens. [p] We also saw the descendants of the Anakim [q] there.'

29 "So I said to you: Don't be terrified or afraid of them! [r] 30 The LORD your God who goes before you [s] will fight for you, [t] just as you saw Him do for you in Egypt. 31 And you saw in the wilderness how the LORD your God carried you as a man carries his son all along the way you traveled until you reached this place. 32 But in spite of this you did not trust the LORD your God, 33 who went before you on the journey to seek out a place for you to camp. He went in the fire by night and in the cloud by day to guide you on the road you were to travel.

34 "When the LORD heard your [C] words, He grew angry and swore an oath:
35 'None of these men in this evil generation will see the good land I swore to give your fathers, [u] 36 except Caleb the son of Jephunneh. He will see it, and I will give him and his descendants the land on which he has set foot, because he followed the LORD completely.'

37 "The LORD was angry with me also because of you and said: 'You will not enter there either. [v] 38 Joshua son of Nun, who attends you, will enter it.
Encourage him, for he will enable Israel to inherit it. [w] 39 Your little children, whom you said would be plunder, your sons who [D] don't know good from evil, will enter there. I will give them the land, and they will take possession of it.
40 But you are to turn back and head for the wilderness by way of the •Red Sea.'

41 “You answered me, ‘We have sinned against the Lord. We will go up and fight just as the Lord our God commanded us.’ Then each of you put on his weapons of war and thought it would be easy to go up into the hill country.
42 “But the Lord said to me, ‘Tell them: Don’t go up and fight, for I am not with you to keep you from being defeated by your enemies.’ y 43 So I spoke to you, but you didn’t listen. You rebelled against the Lord’s command and defiantly went up into the hill country. 44 Then the Amorites who lived there came out against you and chased you like a swarm of bees. They routed you from Seir as far as Hormah. z 45 When you returned, you wept before the Lord, but He didn’t listen to your requests or pay attention to you. 46 For this reason you stayed in Kadesh as long as you did. E

Journey past Seir

2 “Then we turned back and headed for the wilderness by way of the •Red Sea, as the LORD had told me, and we traveled around the hill country of Seir for many days. 2 The LORD then said to me, 3 ‘You’ve been traveling around this hill country long enough; turn north. 4 Command the people: You are about to travel through the territory of your brothers, the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir. They will be afraid of you, so you must be very careful. 5 Don’t fight with them, for I will not give you any of their land, not even an inch of it, A because I have given Esau the hill country of Seir as his possession. 6 You may purchase food from them with silver, so that you may eat, and buy water from them to drink. a 7 For the LORD your God has blessed you in all the work of your hands.
b He has watched over your journey through this immense wilderness. The LORD your God has been with you this past 40 years, and you have lacked nothing.’

Journey past Moab

8 “So we bypassed our brothers, the descendants of Esau, who live in Seir. We turned away from the •Arabah road and from Elath and Ezion-geber. We traveled along the road to the Wilderness of Moab. 9 The LORD said to me, ‘Show no hostility toward Moab, and do not provoke them to battle, for I will not give you any of their land as a possession, since I have given Ar as a possession to the descendants of Lot.’ ” c

10 The Emim, a great and numerous people as tall as the Anakim, had previously lived there. 11 They were also regarded as Rephaim, d like the Anakim, though the Moabites called them Emim. e 12 The Horites had previously lived in Seir, but the descendants of Esau drove them out, destroying them completely B and settling in their place, just as Israel did in the land of its possession the LORD gave them.

13 “The LORD said, ‘Now get up and cross the Zered Valley.’ So we crossed the Zered Valley. f 14 The time we spent traveling from Kadesh-barnea until we crossed the Zered Valley was 38 years until the entire generation of fighting men had perished from the camp, as the LORD had sworn to them. 15 Indeed, the LORD’s hand was against them, to eliminate them from the camp until they had all perished.

Journey past Ammon

16 “When all the fighting men had died among the people, 17 the LORD spoke to me, 18 ‘Today you are going to cross the border of Moab at Ar. 19 When you get close to the Ammonites, don’t show any hostility to them or fight with them, for I will not give you any of the Ammonites’ land as a possession; I have given it as a possession to the descendants of Lot.’ ” [g]

20 This too used to be regarded as the land of the Rephaim. The Rephaim lived there previously, though the Ammonites called them Zamzummim, 21 a great and numerous people, tall as the Anakim. The LORD destroyed the Rephaim at the advance of the Ammonites, so that they drove them out and settled in their place. 22 This was just as He had done for the descendants of Esau who lived in Seir, when He destroyed the Horites before them; they drove them out and have lived in their place until now. 23 The Caphtorim, who came from Caphtor, [h] destroyed the Avvim, who lived in villages as far as Gaza, and settled in their place.

Defeat of Sihon the Amorite 24 *“The LORD also said, ‘Get up, move out, and cross the Arnon Valley. See, I have handed Sihon the Amorite, king of Heshbon, and his land over to you. Begin to take possession of it; engage him in battle.
25 Today I will begin to put the fear and dread of you on the peoples everywhere under heaven. They will hear the report about you, tremble, and be in anguish because of you.’*

26 “So I sent messengers with an offer of peace to Sihon king of Heshbon from the Wilderness of Kedemoth, saying, 27 ‘Let us travel through your land; we will keep strictly to the highway. We will not turn to the right or the left. [i] 28 You can sell us food in exchange for silver so we may eat, and give us water for silver so we may drink. Only let us travel through on foot, 29 just as the descendants of Esau who live in Seir did for us, and the Moabites who live in Ar, until we cross the Jordan into the land the LORD our God is giving us.’ 30 But Sihon king of Heshbon would not let us travel through his land, for the LORD your God had made his spirit stubborn and his heart obstinate in order to hand him over to you, as has now taken place.

31 “Then the LORD said to me, ‘See, I have begun to give Sihon and his land to you. Begin to take possession of it.’ 32 So Sihon and his whole army came out against us for battle at Jahaz. 33 The LORD our God handed him over to us, and we defeated him, his sons, and his whole army. 34 At that time we captured all his cities and •completely destroyed the people of every city, including the women and children. We left no survivors. 35 We took only the livestock and the spoil from the cities we captured as plunder for ourselves. 36 There was no city that was inaccessible to [C] us, from Aroer on the rim of the Arnon Valley, along with the city in the valley, even as far as Gilead. [j] The LORD our God gave everything to us. 37 But you did not go near the Ammonites' land, all along the bank of the Jabbok River, [k] the cities of the hill country, or any place that the LORD our God had forbidden. [l]

Defeat of Og of Bashan

3 “Then we turned and went up the road to Bashan, and Og king of Bashan [a] came out against us with his whole army to do battle at Edrei. [b] 2 But the Lord said to me, ‘Do not fear him, for I have handed him over to you along with his whole army and his land. Do to him as you did to Sihon king of the Amorites, [c] who lived in Heshbon.’ 3 So the Lord our God also handed over Og king of Bashan and his whole army to us. We struck him until there was no survivor left. 4 We captured all his cities at that time. There wasn’t a city that we didn’t take from them: 60 cities, the entire region of Argob, the kingdom of Og in Bashan. 5 All these were fortified with high walls, gates, and bars, besides a large number of rural villages. 6 We •completely destroyed them, as we had done to Sihon king of Heshbon, destroying the men, women, and children of every city. 7 But we took all the livestock and the spoil from the cities as plunder for ourselves. [d]

The Land of the Transjordan Tribes 8 “At that time we took the land from the two Amorite kings across the Jordan, from the Arnon Valley as far as Mount Hermon, 9 which the Sidonians call Sirion, but the Amorites call Senir, 10 all the cities of the plateau, Gilead, and Bashan as far as Salecah and Edrei, cities of Og’s kingdom in Bashan. [e] 11 (Only Og king of Bashan was left of the remnant of the Rephaim. His bed was made of iron. [A] Isn’t it in Rabbah of the Ammonites? It is 13 feet six inches long and six feet wide by a standard measure. [B] )

12 “At that time we took possession of this land. [f] I gave to the Reubenites and Gadites the area extending from Aroer by the Arnon Valley, and half the hill country of Gilead along with its cities. 13 I gave to half the tribe of Manasseh the rest of Gilead and all Bashan, the kingdom of Og. The entire region of Argob, the whole territory of Bashan, used to be called the land of the Rephaim. 14 Jair, a descendant of Manasseh, took over the entire region of Argob as far as the border of the Geshurites and Maacathites. He called Bashan by his own name, Jair’s Villages, [C] as it is today. 15 I gave Gilead to Machir, 16 and I gave to the Reubenites and Gadites the area extending from Gilead to the Arnon Valley (the middle of the valley was the border) and up to the Jabbok River, the border of the Ammonites. 17 The •Arabah and Jordan are also borders from Chinnereth [g] as far as the Sea of the Arabah, the Dead Sea, under the slopes of Pisgah on the east. [h]

18 “I commanded you at that time: The Lord your God has given you this land to possess. All your fighting men will cross over in battle formation ahead of your brothers the Israelites. 19 But your wives, young children, and livestock — I know that you have a lot of livestock — will remain in the cities I have given you 20 until the LORD gives rest to your brothers as He has to you, and they also take possession of the land the LORD your God is giving them across the Jordan. Then each of you may return to his possession that I have given you. [i]

The Transfer of Israel's Leadership 21 "I commanded Joshua at that time: Your own eyes have seen everything the LORD your God has done to these two kings. The LORD will do the same to all the kingdoms you are about to enter. 22 Don't be afraid of them, for the LORD your God fights for you.

23 "At that time I begged the LORD: 24 Lord GOD, You have begun to show Your greatness and power to Your servant, for what god is there in heaven or on earth who can perform deeds and mighty acts like Yours? 25 Please let me cross over and see the beautiful land [j] on the other side of the Jordan, that good hill country and Lebanon.

26 "But the LORD was angry with me on account of you and would not listen to me. The LORD said to me, 'That's enough! Do not speak to Me again about this matter. 27 Go to the top of Pisgah and look to the west, north, south, and east, and see it with your own eyes, for you will not cross this Jordan. [k] 28 But commission Joshua and encourage and strengthen him, for he will cross over ahead of the people and enable them to inherit this land that you will see.' [l] 29 So we stayed in the valley facing Beth-peor.

Call to Obedience

4 “Now, Israel, listen to the statutes and ordinances I am teaching you to follow, so that you may live, enter, and take possession of the land •Yahweh , the God of your fathers, is giving you. 2 You must not add anything to what I command you or take anything away from it, [a] so that you may keep the commands of the LORD your God I am giving you. 3 Your eyes have seen what the LORD did at Baal-peor, for the LORD your God destroyed every one of you who followed •Baal of Peor. [b] 4 But you who have remained faithful [A] to the LORD your God are all alive today. 5 Look, I have taught you statutes and ordinances as the LORD my God has commanded me, so that you may follow them in the land you are entering to possess. 6 Carefully follow them, for this will show your wisdom and understanding in the eyes of the peoples. When they hear about all these statutes, they will say, ‘This great nation is indeed a wise and understanding people.’ 7 For what great nation is there that has a god near to it as the LORD our God is to us whenever we call to Him? 8 And what great nation has righteous statutes and ordinances like this entire law I set before you today?

9 “Only be on your guard and diligently watch yourselves, so that you don’t forget the things your eyes have seen and so that they don’t slip from your mind as long as you live. Teach them to your children and your grandchildren. [c] 10 The day you stood before the LORD your God at Horeb, the LORD said to me, ‘Assemble the people before Me, and I will let them hear My words, so that they may learn to •fear Me all the days they live on the earth and may instruct their children.’ 11 You came near and stood at the base of the mountain, a mountain blazing with fire into the heavens and enveloped in a dense, black cloud. 12 Then the LORD spoke to you from the fire. You kept hearing the sound of the words, but didn’t see a form; there was only a voice. [d] 13 He declared His covenant [e] to you. He commanded you to follow the Ten Commandments, which He wrote on two stone tablets. 14 At that time the LORD commanded me to teach you statutes and ordinances for you to follow in the land you are about to cross into and possess.

Worshiping the True God [15] “For your own good, be extremely careful — because you did not see any form on the day the LORD spoke to you out of the fire at Horeb — [16] not to act corruptly and make an idol for yourselves in the shape of any figure: a male or female form, [17] or the form of any beast on the earth, any winged creature that flies in the sky, [18] any creature that crawls on the ground, or any fish in the waters under the earth. [19] When you look to the heavens and see the sun, moon, and stars — all the array of heaven — do not be led astray to bow down and worship them. The LORD your God has provided them for all people everywhere under heaven. 20 But the LORD selected you and brought you out of Egypt's iron furnace to be a people for His inheritance, as you are today.

21 "The LORD was angry with me on your account. He swore that I would not cross the Jordan and enter the good land [f] the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance. [g] 22 I won't be crossing the Jordan because I am going to die in this land. But you are about to cross over and take possession of this good land. 23 Be careful not to forget the covenant of the LORD your God that He made with you, and make an idol for yourselves in the shape of anything He has forbidden you. 24 For the LORD your God is a consuming fire, [h] a jealous God. [i]

25 "When you have children and grandchildren and have been in the land a long time, and if you act corruptly, make an idol in the form of anything, and do what is evil in the sight of the LORD your God, provoking Him to anger, 26 I call heaven and earth as witnesses against you today that you will quickly perish [j] from the land you are about to cross the Jordan to possess. You will not live long there, but you will certainly be destroyed. 27 The LORD will scatter you among the peoples, and you will be reduced to a few survivors [B] among the nations where the LORD your God will drive you. 28 There you will worship man-made gods of wood and stone, which cannot see, hear, eat, or smell. 29 But from there, you will search for the LORD your God, and you will find Him when you seek Him with all your heart and all your soul. [k] 30 When you are in distress and all these things have happened to you, you will return to the LORD your God in later days and obey Him. 31 He will not leave you, destroy you, or forget the covenant [l] with your fathers that He swore to them by oath, because the LORD your God is a compassionate God. [m]

32 "Indeed, ask about the earlier days that preceded you, from the day God created man on the earth and from one end of the heavens to the other: Has anything like this great event ever happened, or has anything like it been heard of? 33 Has a people heard God's voice speaking from the fire as you have, and lived? 34 Or has a god attempted to go and take a nation as his own out of another nation, by trials, signs, wonders, and war, by a strong hand and an outstretched arm, by great terrors, as the LORD your God did for you in Egypt before your eyes? 35 You were shown these things so that you would know that the LORD is God; there is no other besides Him. [n] 36 He let you hear His voice from heaven to instruct you. [o] He showed you His great fire on earth, and you heard His words from the fire. [p] [37] Because He loved [q] your fathers, He chose their descendants after them and brought you out of Egypt by His presence and great power, [38] to drive out before you nations greater and stronger than you and to bring you in and give you their land as an inheritance, [r] as is now taking place. [39] Today, recognize and keep in mind that the LORD is God in heaven above and on earth below; there is no other. [40] Keep His statutes and commands, which I am giving you today, so that you and your children after you may prosper and so that you may live long in the land the LORD your God is giving you for all time.”

Cities of Refuge

[41] Then Moses set apart three cities across the Jordan to the east. [42] Someone could flee there who committed manslaughter, killing his neighbor accidentally without previously hating him. He could flee to one of these cities and stay alive:
[43] Bezer in the wilderness on the plateau land, belonging to the Reubenites; Ramoth in Gilead, belonging to the Gadites; or Golan in Bashan, belonging to the Manassites. [s]

Introduction to the Law

[44] This is the law Moses gave the Israelites. [45] These are the decrees, statutes, and ordinances Moses proclaimed to them after they came out of Egypt, [46] across the Jordan in the valley facing Beth-peor in the land of Sihon king of the Amorites. He lived in Heshbon, and Moses and the Israelites defeated him after they came out of Egypt. [47] They took possession of his land and the land of Og king of Bashan, the two Amorite kings who were across the Jordan to the east, [48] from Aroer on the rim of the Arnon Valley as far as Mount Sion (that is, Hermon) [49] and all the •Arabah on the east side of the Jordan as far as the Dead Sea below the slopes of Pisgah.

The Ten Commandments

5 Moses summoned all Israel and said to them, “Israel, listen to the statutes and ordinances I am proclaiming as you hear them today. Learn and follow them carefully. 2 The Lord our God made a covenant [a] with us at Horeb. 3 He did not make this covenant with our fathers, [b] but with all of us who are alive here today. 4 The Lord spoke to you face to face from the fire on the mountain. 5 At that time I was standing between the Lord and you to report the word [c] of the Lord to you, because you were afraid of the fire and did not go up the mountain.
And He said:

6 I am the Lord your God, [d] who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the place of slavery. [e]
7 Do not have other gods besides Me.
8 Do not make an idol for yourself in the shape of anything in the heavens above or on the earth below or in the waters under the earth. 9 You must not bow down to them or worship them, because I, the Lord your God, am a jealous God, punishing the children for the fathers’ sin to the third and fourth generations of those who hate Me, [f] 10 but showing faithful love to a thousand generations of those who love Me and keep My commands.
11 Do not misuse the name [g] of the Lord your God, because the Lord will not leave anyone unpunished who misuses His name.
12 Be careful to remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy as the Lord your God has commanded you. 13 You are to labor six days and do all your work, 14 but the seventh day is a Sabbath to the Lord your God. You must not do any work — you, your son or daughter, your male or female slave, your ox or donkey, any of your livestock, or the foreigner who lives within your gates, so that your male and female slaves may rest as you do. 15 Remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt, and the Lord your God brought you out of there with a strong hand and an outstretched arm. That is why the Lord your God has commanded you to keep the Sabbath day.
16 Honor your father and your mother, [h] as the Lord your God has commanded you, so that you may live long and so that you may prosper in the land the Lord your God is giving you. [i] 17 Do not murder. [j]
18 Do not commit adultery. [k]
19 Do not steal.
20 Do not give dishonest testimony against your neighbor. [l] 21 Do not covet your neighbor’s wife or desire your neighbor’s house, his field, his male or female slave, his ox or donkey, or anything that belongs to your neighbor. [m]

The People's Response

22 "The LORD spoke these commands in a loud voice to your entire assembly from the fire, cloud, and thick darkness on the mountain; He added nothing more. He wrote them on two stone tablets and gave them to me. 23 All of you approached me with your tribal leaders and elders when you heard the voice from the darkness and while the mountain was blazing with fire. 24 You said, 'Look, the LORD our God has shown us His glory and greatness, and we have heard His voice from the fire. Today we have seen that God speaks with a person, yet he still lives. 25 But now, why should we die? This great fire will consume us and we will die if we hear the voice of the LORD our God any longer.
26 For who out of all mankind has heard the voice of the living God speaking from the fire, as we have, and lived? 27 Go near and listen to everything the LORD our God says. Then you can tell us everything the LORD our God tells you; we will listen and obey.' [n]

28 "The LORD heard your [A] words when you spoke to me. He said to me, 'I have heard the words that these people have spoken to you. Everything they have said is right. 29 If only they had such a heart to •fear Me and keep all My commands always, so that they and their children will prosper forever. 30 Go and tell them: Return to your tents. 31 But you stand here with Me, and I will tell you every command — the statutes and ordinances — you are to teach them, so that they may follow them in the land I am giving them to possess.'

32 "Be careful to do as the LORD your God has commanded you; you are not to turn aside to the right or the left. 33 Follow the whole instruction the LORD your God has commanded you, so that you may live, prosper, and have a long life in the land you will possess.

The Greatest Commandment

6 “This is the command — the statutes and ordinances — the Lord your God has instructed me to teach you, so that you may follow them in the land you are about to enter and possess. [a] 2 Do this so that you may •fear [b] the Lord your God all the days of your life by keeping all His statutes and commands I am giving you, your son, and your grandson, and so that you may have a long life. 3 Listen, Israel, and be careful to follow them, so that you may prosper and multiply greatly, because •Yahweh , the God of your fathers, has promised you a land flowing with milk and honey. [c]

4 “Listen, Israel: The Lord our God, the Lord is One. [A, d] 5 Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your strength. [e] 6 These words that I am giving you today are to be in your heart. [f] 7 Repeat them to your children. [g] Talk about them when you sit in your house and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up. 8 Bind them as a sign on your hand and let them be a symbol [B] on your forehead. [C, h] 9 Write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates.

Remembering God through Obedience 10 “When the Lord your God brings you into the land He swore to your fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob that He would give you — a land with large and beautiful cities that you did not build, 11 houses full of every good thing that you did not fill them with, wells dug that you did not dig, and vineyards and olive groves that you did not plant [i] — and when you eat and are satisfied, [j] 12 be careful not to forget the Lord who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the place of slavery. [k] 13 Fear Yahweh your God, worship Him, and take your oaths in His name. [l] 14 Do not follow other gods, the gods of the peoples around you, 15 for the Lord your God, who is among you, is a jealous God. [m] Otherwise, the Lord your God will become angry with you and wipe you off the face of the earth. 16 Do not test [n] the Lord your God as you tested Him at Massah. [o] 17 Carefully observe the commands of the Lord your God, the decrees and statutes He has commanded you. 18 Do what is right and good in the Lord*’s sight, so that you may prosper and so that you may enter and possess the good land* [p] the Lord your God swore to give your fathers, [q] 19 by driving out all your enemies before you, as the Lord has said. [r]

20 “When your son asks you in the future, ‘What is the meaning of the decrees, statutes, and ordinances, which the Lord our God has commanded you? ’ 21 tell him, ‘We were slaves of Pharaoh in Egypt, but the Lord brought us out of Egypt with a strong hand. 22 Before our eyes the LORD inflicted great and devastating signs and wonders on Egypt, on Pharaoh, and on all his household, 23 but He brought us from there in order to lead us in and give us the land that He swore to our fathers. 24 The LORD commanded us to follow all these statutes and to fear the LORD our God for our prosperity always and for our preservation, as it is today. 25 Righteousness will be ours if we are careful to follow every one of these commands before the LORD our God, as He has commanded us.’

Israel to Destroy Idolatrous Nations

7 "When the LORD your God brings you into the land [a] you are entering to possess, [b] and He drives out many nations before you — the Hittites, Girgashites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites and Jebusites, seven nations more numerous and powerful than you — [2] and when the LORD your God delivers them over to you and you defeat them, you must •completely destroy them. Make no treaty with them and show them no mercy. [3] Do not intermarry with them. Do not give your daughters to their sons or take their daughters for your sons, [c] [4] because they will turn your sons away from Me to worship other gods. Then the LORD's anger will burn against you, and He will swiftly destroy you. [5] Instead, this is what you are to do to them: tear down their altars, smash their sacred pillars, cut down their •Asherah poles, [d] and burn up their carved images. [6] For you are a holy people [e] belonging to the LORD your God. The LORD your God has chosen you to be His own possession [f] out of all the peoples on the face of the earth.

[7] "The LORD was devoted to you and chose you, not because you were more numerous than all peoples, for you were the fewest of all peoples. [8] But because the LORD loved [g] you and kept the oath He swore to your fathers, He brought you out with a strong hand and redeemed [h] you from the place of slavery, from the power of Pharaoh king of Egypt. [9] Know that •Yahweh your God is God, the faithful God who keeps His gracious covenant loyalty for a thousand generations with those who love Him and keep His commands. [i] [10] But He directly pays back [A] and destroys those who hate Him. [j] He will not hesitate to directly pay back [B] the one who hates Him. [11] So keep the command — the statutes and ordinances — that I am giving you to follow today.

[12] "If you listen to and are careful to keep these ordinances, the LORD your God will keep His covenant loyalty with you, as He swore to your fathers. [k] [13] He will love you, bless you, and multiply you. He will bless your descendants, [C, l] and the produce of your land — your grain, new wine, and oil — the young of your herds, and the newborn of your flocks, in the land He swore to your fathers that He would give you. [14] You will be blessed above all peoples; there will be no infertile male or female among you or your livestock. [15] The LORD will remove all sickness from you; He will not put on you [m] all the terrible diseases of Egypt that you know about, but He will inflict them on all who hate you. [16] You must destroy all the peoples the LORD your God is delivering over to you and not look on them with pity. Do not worship their gods, for that will be a snare to you.

17 “If you say to yourself, ‘These nations are greater than I; how can I drive them out? ’ 18 do not be afraid of them. Be sure to remember what the LORD your God did to Pharaoh and all Egypt: 19 the great trials that you saw, the signs and wonders, the strong hand and outstretched arm, by which the LORD your God brought you out. The LORD your God will do the same to all the peoples you fear. 20 The LORD your God will also send the hornet against them until all the survivors and those hiding from you perish. n 21 Don’t be terrified of them, for the LORD your God, a great and awesome God, is among you. 22 The LORD your God will drive out these nations before you little by little. You will not be able to destroy them all at once; otherwise, the wild animals will become too numerous for you. o 23 The LORD your God will give them over to you and throw them into great confusion until they are destroyed. 24 He will hand their kings over to you, and you will wipe out their names under heaven. No one will be able to stand against you; you will annihilate them. 25 You must burn up the carved images of their gods. Don’t covet the silver and gold on the images and take it for yourself, or else you will be ensnared by it, for it is abhorrent to the LORD your God.
26 You must not bring any abhorrent thing into your house, or you will be •set apart for destruction like it. You are to utterly detest and abhor it, because it is set apart for destruction.

Remember the LORD

8 “You must carefully follow every command I am giving you today, so that you may live and increase, and may enter and take possession of the land [a] the Lord swore to your fathers. 2 Remember that the Lord your God led you on the entire journey these 40 years in the wilderness, so that He might humble you and test you to know what was in your heart, whether or not you would keep His commands. 3 He humbled you by letting you go hungry; then He gave you manna to eat, which you and your fathers had not known, so that you might learn that man does not live on bread alone but on every word that comes from the mouth of the Lord. [b] 4 Your clothing did not wear out, and your feet did not swell these 40 years. [c] 5 Keep in mind that the Lord your God has been disciplining you just as a man disciplines his son. 6 So keep the commands of the Lord your God by walking in His ways and •fearing Him. 7 For the Lord your God is bringing you into a good land, [d] a land with streams of water, springs, and deep water sources, flowing in both valleys and hills; 8 a land of wheat, barley, vines, figs, and pomegranates; a land of olive oil and honey; 9 a land where you will eat food without shortage, where you will lack nothing; a land whose rocks are iron and from whose hills you will mine copper. 10 When you eat and are full, [e] you will praise the Lord your God for the good land [f] He has given you.

11 “Be careful that you don’t forget the Lord your God by failing to keep His command — the ordinances and statutes — I am giving you today. 12 When you eat and are full, and build beautiful houses to live in, 13 and your herds and flocks grow large, and your silver and gold multiply, and everything else you have increases, 14 be careful that your heart doesn’t become proud and you forget the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the place of slavery. [g] 15 He led you through the great and terrible wilderness with its poisonous [A] snakes and scorpions, a thirsty land where there was no water.
He brought water out of the flint-like rock for you. 16 He fed you in the wilderness with manna [h] that your fathers had not known, in order to humble and test you, so that in the end He might cause you to prosper. 17 You may say to yourself, ‘My power and my own ability have gained this wealth for me,’ 18 but remember that the Lord your God gives you the power to gain wealth, in order to confirm His covenant He swore to your fathers, [i] as it is today. 19 If you ever forget the Lord your God and go after other gods to worship and bow down to them, I testify against you today that you will perish. [j] 20 Like the nations the Lord is about to destroy before you, you will perish if you do not obey the Lord your God.

Warning against Self-Righteousness

9 “Listen, Israel: Today you are about to cross the Jordan to go and drive out nations greater and stronger than you, with large cities fortified to the heavens. [a] 2 The people are strong and tall, the descendants of the Anakim. [b]
You know about them and you have heard it said about them, ‘Who can stand up to the sons of Anak? ’ [c] 3 But understand that today the Lord your God will cross over ahead of you [d] as a consuming fire; He will devastate and subdue them before you. You will drive them out and destroy them swiftly, as the Lord has told you. 4 When the Lord your God drives them out before you, do not say to yourself, ‘The Lord brought me in to take possession of this land because of my righteousness.’ Instead, the Lord will drive out these nations before you because of their wickedness. 5 You are not going to take possession of their land because of your righteousness or your integrity. Instead, the Lord your God will drive out these nations before you because of their wickedness, in order to keep the promise He swore to your fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. 6 Understand that the Lord your God is not giving you this good land [e] to possess because of your righteousness, for you are a stiff-necked people.

Israel’s Rebellion and Moses’ Intercession 7 “Remember [f] and do not forget how you provoked the Lord your God in the wilderness. You have been rebelling against the Lord from the day you left the land of Egypt until you reached this place. 8 You provoked the Lord at Horeb, and He was angry enough with you to destroy you. 9 When I went up the mountain to receive the stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant the Lord made with you, I stayed on the mountain 40 days and 40 nights. I did not eat bread or drink water. 10 On the day of the assembly the Lord gave me the two stone tablets, inscribed by God’s finger. The exact words were on them, which the Lord spoke to you from the fire on the mountain. 11 The Lord gave me the two stone tablets, the tablets of the covenant, at the end of the 40 days and 40 nights.

12 “The Lord said to me, ‘Get up and go down immediately from here. For your people whom you brought out of Egypt have acted corruptly. They have quickly turned from the way that I commanded them; they have made a cast image for themselves.’ 13 The Lord also said to me, ‘I have seen this people, and indeed, they are a stiff-necked people. 14 Leave Me alone, and I will destroy them and blot out their name under heaven. Then I will make you into a nation stronger and more numerous than they.’

15 “So I went back down the mountain, while it was blazing with fire, and the two tablets of the covenant were in my hands. 16 I saw how you had sinned against the LORD your God; you had made a calf image for yourselves. You had quickly turned from the way the LORD had commanded for you. 17 So I took hold of the two tablets and threw them from my hands, shattering them before your eyes. 18 Then I fell down like the first time in the presence of the LORD for 40 days and 40 nights; I did not eat bread or drink water because of all the sin you committed, doing what was evil in the LORD's sight and provoking Him to anger. 19 I was afraid of the fierce anger the LORD had directed against you, [g] because He was about to destroy you. But again the LORD listened to me on that occasion. [h] 20 The LORD was angry enough with Aaron to destroy him. But I prayed for Aaron at that time also. 21 I took the sinful calf you had made, burned it up, and crushed it, thoroughly grinding it to powder as fine as dust. Then I threw it into the stream that came down from the mountain. [i]

22 "You continued to provoke the LORD at Taberah, Massah, and Kibroth-hattaavah. [j] 23 When the LORD sent you from Kadesh-barnea, He said, 'Go up and possess the land I have given you'; you rebelled against the command of the LORD your God. You did not believe or obey Him. [k] 24 You have been rebelling against the LORD ever since I have [l] known you. [m]

25 "I fell down in the presence of the LORD 40 days and 40 nights because the LORD had threatened to destroy you. 26 I prayed to the LORD:

> Lord GOD, do not annihilate Your people, Your inheritance, whom You redeemed [n] through Your greatness and brought out of Egypt with a strong hand. 27 Remember Your servants Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. Disregard this people's stubbornness, and their wickedness and sin. 28 Otherwise, those in the land you brought us from will say, 'Because the LORD wasn't able to bring them into the land He had promised them, and because He hated them, He brought them out to kill them in the wilderness.' [o] 29 But they are Your people, Your inheritance, whom You brought out by Your great power and outstretched arm. [p]

The Covenant Renewed

10 “The LORD said to me at that time, ‘Cut two stone tablets like the first ones and come to Me on the mountain and make a wooden ark. 2 I will write on the tablets the words that were on the first tablets you broke, and you are to place them in the ark.’ 3 So I made an ark of acacia wood, cut two stone tablets like the first ones, and climbed the mountain with the two tablets in my hand. 4 Then on the day of the assembly, the LORD wrote on the tablets what had been written previously, the Ten Commandments that He had spoken to you on the mountain from the fire. The LORD gave them to me, 5 and I went back down the mountain and placed the tablets in the ark I had made. And they have remained there, as the LORD commanded me.”

6 The Israelites traveled from Beeroth Bene-jaakan [A] to Moserah. Aaron died and was buried there, and Eleazar his son became priest in his place. [a] 7 They traveled from there to Gudgodah, and from Gudgodah to Jotbathah, a land with streams of water. [b]

8 “At that time the LORD set apart the tribe of Levi [c] to carry the ark of the LORD’s covenant, to stand before •Yahweh to serve Him, and to pronounce blessings in His name, as it is today. 9 For this reason, Levi does not have a portion or inheritance like his brothers; the LORD is his inheritance, as the LORD your God told him. [d]

10 “I stayed on the mountain 40 days and 40 nights like the first time. The LORD also listened to me on this occasion; [e] He agreed not to annihilate you.
11 Then the LORD said to me, ‘Get up. Continue your journey ahead of the people, so that they may enter and possess the land I swore to give their fathers.’
[f]

What God Requires

12 “And now, Israel, what does the LORD your God ask of you except to •fear g the LORD your God by walking in all His ways, to love Him, and to worship the LORD your God with all your heart and all your soul? 13 Keep the LORD’s commands and statutes I am giving you today, for your own good. 14 The heavens, indeed the highest heavens, belong to the LORD your God, as does the earth and everything in it. 15 Yet the LORD was devoted to your fathers and loved them. h He chose their descendants after them — He chose you out of all the peoples, as it is today. 16 Therefore, circumcise your hearts i and don’t be stiff-necked any longer. 17 For the LORD your God is the God of gods and Lord of lords, the great, mighty, and awesome God, showing no partiality and taking no bribe. 18 He executes justice for the fatherless and the widow, and loves the foreigner, giving him food and clothing. 19 You also must love the foreigner, since you were foreigners in the land of Egypt. j 20 You are to fear Yahweh your God and worship Him. Remain faithful B to Him and take oaths in His name. k 21 He is your praise and He is your God, who has done for you these great and awesome works your eyes have seen. 22 Your fathers went down to Egypt, 70 people in all, l and now the LORD your God has made you as numerous as the stars of the sky. m

Remember and Obey

11 “Therefore, love the LORD your God and always keep His mandate and His statutes, ordinances, and commands. 2 You must understand today that it is not your children who experienced or saw the discipline of the LORD your God:
His greatness, strong hand, and outstretched arm; 3 His signs and the works
He did in Egypt to Pharaoh king of Egypt and all his land; [a] 4 what He did to Egypt’s army, its horses and chariots, when He made the waters of the •Red Sea flow over them as they pursued you, and He destroyed them [b] completely; [A] 5 what He did to you in the wilderness until you reached this place; 6 and what He did to Dathan and Abiram, the sons of Eliab the Reubenite, when in the middle of the whole Israelite camp the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them, their households, their tents, and every living thing with them. [c]
7 Your own eyes have seen every great work the LORD has done.
8 “Keep every command I am giving you today, so that you may have the strength to cross into and possess the land you are to inherit, 9 and so that you may live long in the land the LORD swore to your fathers to give them and their descendants, a land flowing with milk and honey. [d] 10 For the land you are entering to possess is not like the land of Egypt, from which you have come, where you sowed your seed and irrigated by hand [B] as in a vegetable garden.
11 But the land you are entering to possess is a land of mountains and valleys, watered by rain from the sky. 12 It is a land the LORD your God cares for. He is always watching over it from the beginning to the end of the year.
13 “If you carefully obey my commands I am giving you today, to love the LORD your God and worship Him with all your heart and all your soul, 14 I [e] will provide rain for your land in the proper time, the autumn and spring rains, [f] and you will harvest your grain, new wine, and oil. [g] 15 I [h] will provide grass in your fields for your livestock. You will eat and be satisfied. [i] 16 Be careful that you are not enticed to turn aside, worship, and bow down to other gods. 17 Then the LORD’s anger will burn against you. He will close the sky, and there will be no rain; the land will not yield its produce, and you will perish quickly from the good land [j] the LORD is giving you.
18 “Imprint these words of mine on your hearts and minds, bind them as a sign on your hands, and let them be a symbol [C] on your foreheads. [D] 19 Teach them to your children, [k] talking about them when you sit in your house and when you walk along the road, when you lie down and when you get up. 20 Write them on the doorposts of your house and on your gates, [l] 21 so that as long as the heavens are above the earth, your days and those of your children may be many in the land the LORD swore to give your fathers. [m] 22 For if you carefully observe every one of these commands I am giving you to follow — to love the LORD your God, walk in all His ways, and remain faithful [E] to Him — 23 the LORD will drive out all these nations before you, and you will drive out nations greater and stronger than you are. 24 Every place the sole of your foot treads will be yours. [n] Your territory will extend from the wilderness to Lebanon and from the Euphrates River [o] to the Mediterranean Sea. [p] 25 No one will be able to stand against you; the LORD your God will put fear and dread of you in all the land where you set foot, as He has promised you. [q]

A Blessing and a Curse

26 “Look, today I set before you a blessing and a curse: [r] 27 there will be a blessing, if you obey the commands of the LORD your God I am giving you today, 28 and a curse, if you do not obey the commands of the LORD your God and you turn aside from the path I command you today by following other gods you have not known. 29 When the LORD your God brings you into the land you are entering to possess, you are to proclaim the blessing at Mount Gerizim and the curse at Mount Ebal. 30 Aren’t these mountains across the Jordan, beyond the western road in the land of the Canaanites, who live in the •Arabah , opposite Gilgal, near the oaks [s] of Moreh? 31 For you are about to cross the Jordan to enter and take possession of the land the LORD your God is giving you. When you possess it and settle in it, 32 be careful to follow all the statutes and ordinances I set before you today.

The Chosen Place of Worship

12 "Be careful to follow these statutes and ordinances in the land that •Yahweh , the God of your fathers, has given you to possess all the days you live on the earth. 2 Destroy completely all the places where the nations that you are driving out worship their gods [a] — on the high mountains, on the hills, and under every green tree. 3 Tear down their altars, smash their sacred pillars, burn up their •Asherah poles, cut down the carved images of their gods, and wipe out their names from every [A] place. 4 Don't worship the LORD your God this way. 5 Instead, you must turn to the place Yahweh your God chooses from all your tribes to put His name for His dwelling and go there. 6 You are to bring there your •burnt offerings and sacrifices, your tenths and personal contributions, [B] your vow offerings and freewill offerings, and the firstborn of your herds and flocks. 7 You will eat there in the presence of the LORD your God and rejoice with your household in everything you do, [C] because the LORD your God has blessed you.

8 "You are not to do as we are doing here today; everyone is doing whatever seems right in his own eyes. 9 Indeed, you have not yet come into the resting place [b] and the inheritance [c] the LORD your God is giving you. 10 When you cross the Jordan and live in the land the LORD your God is giving you to inherit, [d] and He gives you rest from all the enemies around you and you live in security, 11 then Yahweh your God will choose the place to have His name dwell. [e] Bring there everything I command you: your burnt offerings, sacrifices, offerings of the tenth, personal contributions, [D] and all your choice offerings you vow to the LORD. 12 You will rejoice [f] before the LORD your God — you, your sons and daughters, your male and female slaves, and the Levite who is within your gates, since he has no portion or inheritance among you. [g] 13 Be careful not to offer your burnt offerings in all the sacred places you see. 14 You must offer your burnt offerings only in the place the LORD chooses in one of your tribes, and there you must do everything I command you.

Slaughtering Animals to Eat 15 "But whenever you want, you may slaughter and eat meat within any of your gates, [h] according to the blessing the LORD your God has given you. Those who are •clean or •unclean may eat it, as they would a gazelle or deer, 16 but you must not eat the blood; pour it on the ground like water. [i] 17 Within your gates you may not eat: the tenth of your grain, new wine, or oil; the firstborn of your herd or flock; any of your vow offerings that you pledge; your freewill offerings; or your personal contributions. [E] 18 You must eat them in the presence of the LORD your God at the place the LORD your God chooses — you, your son and daughter, your male and female slave, and the Levite who is within your gates. Rejoice before the LORD your God in everything you do, [F 19] and be careful not to neglect the Levite, as long as you live in your land.

20 "When the LORD your God enlarges your territory as He has promised you, [j] and you say, 'I want to eat meat' because you have a strong desire to eat meat, you may eat it whenever you want. 21 If the place where Yahweh your God chooses to put His name is too far from you, you may slaughter any of your herd or flock He has given you, as I have commanded you, and you may eat it within your gates whenever you want. 22 Indeed, you may eat it as the gazelle and deer are eaten; both the clean and the unclean may eat it. 23 But don't eat the blood, since the blood is the life, and you must not eat the life with the meat. 24 Do not eat blood; pour it on the ground like water. 25 Do not eat it, so that you and your children after you will prosper, because you will be doing what is right in the LORD's sight.

26 "But you are to take the holy offerings you have and your vow offerings and go to the place the LORD chooses. 27 Present the meat and blood of your burnt offerings on the altar of the LORD your God. The blood of your other sacrifices is to be poured out beside the altar of the LORD your God, but you may eat the meat. 28 Be careful to obey all these things I command you, so that you and your children after you may prosper forever, because you will be doing what is good and right in the sight of the LORD your God.

29 "When the LORD your God annihilates the nations before you, [k] which you are entering to take possession of, [l] and you drive them out and live in their land, 30 be careful not to be ensnared by their ways after they have been destroyed before you. Do not inquire about their gods, asking, 'How did these nations worship their gods? I'll also do the same.' 31 You must not do the same to the LORD your God, because they practice every detestable thing, which the LORD hates, for their gods. They even burn their sons and daughters in the fire to their gods. 32 [m] You must be careful to do everything I command you; do not add anything to it or take anything away from it. [n]

The False Prophet

13 “If a prophet or someone who has dreams arises among you and proclaims a sign or wonder to you, 2 and that sign or wonder he has promised you comes about, but he says, ‘Let us follow other gods,’ which you have not known, ‘and let us worship them,’ 3 do not listen to that prophet’s words or to that dreamer. For the Lord your God is testing you to know whether you love the Lord your God with all your heart and all your soul. 4 You must follow the Lord your God and •fear Him. You must keep His commands and listen to His voice; you must worship Him and remain faithful A to Him. a 5 That prophet or dreamer must be put to death, because he has urged rebellion against the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt and redeemed you from the place of slavery, b to turn you from the way the Lord your God has commanded you to walk. You must purge the evil from you.

Don’t Tolerate Idolatry

6 “If your brother, the son of your mother, c or your son or daughter, or the wife you embrace, or your closest friend secretly entices you, saying, ‘Let us go and worship other gods’ — which neither you nor your fathers have known, 7 any of the gods of the peoples around you, near you or far from you, from one end of the earth to the other — 8 you must not yield to him or listen to him.
Show him no pity, B and do not spare him or shield him. 9 Instead, you must kill him. Your hand is to be the first against him to put him to death, and then the hands of all the people. d 10 Stone him to death for trying to turn you away from the Lord your God who brought you out of the land of Egypt, out of the place of slavery. 11 All Israel will hear and be afraid, and they will no longer do anything evil like this among you. e

12 “If f you hear it said about one of your cities the Lord your God is giving you to live in, 13 that •wicked men have sprung up among you, led the inhabitants of their city astray, and said, ‘Let us go and worship other gods,’ which you have not known, 14 you are to inquire, investigate, and interrogate thoroughly. If the report turns out to be true that this detestable thing has happened among you, 15 you must strike down the inhabitants of that city with the sword. •Completely destroy everyone in it as well as its livestock with the sword. 16 You are to gather all its spoil in the middle of the city square and completely burn up the city and all its spoil for the Lord your God. The city must remain a mound of ruins forever; it is not to be rebuilt. 17 Nothing •set apart for destruction is to remain in your hand, so that the Lord will turn from His burning anger and grant you mercy, show you compassion, and multiply you as

He swore to your fathers. 18 This will occur if you obey the LORD your God, keeping all His commands I am giving you today, doing what is right in the sight of the LORD your God.

Forbidden Practices

14 “You are sons of the LORD your God; [a] do not cut yourselves or make a bald spot on your head [A] on behalf of the dead, [b] [2] for you are a holy people belonging to the LORD your God. The LORD has chosen you to be His own possession [c] out of all the peoples on the face of the earth.

Clean and Unclean Foods

3 “You must not eat any detestable thing. 4 These are the animals you may eat:

the ox, the sheep, the goat,
5 the deer, the gazelle, the roe deer,
the wild goat, the ibex, the antelope,
and the mountain sheep.
6 You may eat any animal that has hooves divided in two and chews the cud. 7 But among the ones that chew the cud or have divided hooves, you are not to eat these:

the camel, the hare, and the hyrax, though they chew the cud, they do not have hooves —
they are •unclean for you;
8 and the pig, though it has hooves, it does not chew the cud — it is unclean for you.
You must not eat their meat or touch their carcasses. [d]

9 “You may eat everything from the water that has fins and scales, 10 but you may not eat anything that does not have fins and scales — it is unclean for you. [e]

11 “You may eat every •clean bird, 12 but these are the ones you may not eat:

the eagle, the bearded vulture,
the black vulture, 13 the kite,
any kind of falcon, [f] 14 every kind of raven, 15 the ostrich,
the short-eared owl, the gull,
any kind of hawk,
16 the little owl, the long-eared owl,
the white owl, 17 the desert owl,
the osprey, the cormorant, 18 the stork,
any kind of heron,
the hoopoe, and the bat. [g, h]
19 All winged insects are unclean for you; they may not be eaten. 20 But you may eat every clean flying creature. [i]

21 “You are not to eat any carcass; you may give it to a temporary resident living within your gates, and he may eat it, or you may sell it to a foreigner. For you are a holy people belonging to the LORD your God. You must not boil a young goat in its mother's milk.

A Tenth for the LORD 22 "Each year you are to set aside a tenth of all the produce grown in your fields. 23 You are to eat a tenth of your grain, new wine, and oil, and the firstborn of your herd and flock, in the presence of •Yahweh your God at the place where He chooses to have His name dwell, [j] so that you will always learn to •fear [k] the LORD your God. 24 But if the distance is too great for you to carry it, since the place where Yahweh your God chooses to put His name is too far away from you and since the LORD your God has blessed you, 25 then exchange it for money, take the money in your hand, and go to the place the LORD your God chooses. 26 You may spend the money on anything you want: cattle, sheep, wine, beer, or anything you desire. You are to feast there in the presence of the LORD your God and rejoice with your family. 27 Do not neglect the Levite within your gates, since he has no portion or inheritance among you. [l]

28 "At the end of every three years, bring a tenth of all your produce for that year and store it within your gates. 29 Then the Levite, who has no portion or inheritance among you, the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow within your gates may come, eat, and be satisfied. [m] And the LORD your God will bless you in all the work of your hands that you do. [n]

Debts Canceled

15 “At the end of every seven years you must cancel debts. [a] 2 This is how to cancel debt: Every creditor [A] is to cancel what he has lent his neighbor. He is not to collect anything from his neighbor or brother, because the LORD’s release of debts has been proclaimed. 3 You may collect something from a foreigner, but you must forgive whatever your brother owes you.

4 “There will be no poor among you, however, because the LORD is certain to bless you in the land the LORD your God is giving you to possess as an inheritance [b] — 5 if only you obey the LORD your God and are careful to follow every one of these commands I am giving you today. 6 When the LORD your God blesses you as He has promised you, you will lend to many nations but not borrow; you will rule over many nations, but they will not rule over you.

Lending to the Poor

7 “If there is a poor person among you, one of your brothers within any of your gates in the land the LORD your God is giving you, you must not be hardhearted or tightfisted toward your poor brother. 8 Instead, you are to open your hand to him and freely loan him enough for whatever need he has. 9 Be careful that there isn’t this wicked thought in your heart, ‘The seventh year, the year of canceling debts, is near,’ and you are stingy toward your poor brother and give him nothing. He will cry out to the LORD against you, and you will be •guilty . 10 Give to him, and don’t have a stingy heart B when you give, and because of this the LORD your God will bless you in all your work and in everything you do. C 11 For there will never cease to be poor people in the land;
c that is why I am commanding you, ‘You must willingly open your hand to your afflicted and poor brother in your land.’

Release of Slaves

12 “If your fellow Hebrew, a man or woman, is sold to you and serves you six years, you must set him free in the seventh year. [d] 13 When you set him free, do not send him away empty-handed. 14 Give generously to him from your flock, your threshing floor, and your winepress. You are to give him whatever the LORD your God has blessed you with. 15 Remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt and the LORD your God redeemed [e] you; that is why I am giving you this command today. [f] 16 But if your slave says to you, ‘I don’t want to leave you,’ because he loves you and your family, and is well off with you, 17 take an awl and pierce through his ear into the door, and he will become your slave for life. Also treat your female slave the same way. 18 Do not regard it as a hardship [D] when you set him free, because he worked for you six years — worth twice the wages of a hired hand. Then the LORD your God will bless you in everything you do. [g]

Consecration of Firstborn Animals 19 “You must consecrate to the LORD your God every firstborn male produced by your herd and flock. [h] You are not to put the firstborn of your oxen to work or shear the firstborn of your flock. 20 Each year you and your family are to eat it before the LORD your God in the place the LORD chooses. 21 But if there is a defect in the animal, if it is lame or blind or has any serious defect, you must not sacrifice it to the LORD your God. 22 Eat it within your gates; both the •unclean person and the •clean may eat it, as though it were a gazelle or deer. 23 But you must not eat its blood; pour it on the ground like water. [i]

The Festival of Passover

16 “Observe the month of Abib [a, b] and celebrate the •Passover to the LORD your God, because the LORD your God brought you out of Egypt by night in the month of Abib. 2 Sacrifice to •Yahweh your God a Passover animal from the herd or flock in the place where the LORD chooses to have His name dwell. [c] 3 You must not eat leavened bread with it. For seven days you are to eat unleavened bread with it, the bread of hardship — because you left the land of Egypt in a hurry — so that you may remember for the rest of your life the day you left the land of Egypt. 4 No yeast is to be found anywhere in your territory for seven days, and none of the meat you sacrifice in the evening of the first day is to remain until morning. 5 You are not to sacrifice the Passover animal in any of the towns the LORD your God is giving you. 6 You must only sacrifice the Passover animal at the place where Yahweh your God chooses to have His name dwell. Do this in the evening as the sun sets at the same time of day you departed from Egypt. 7 You are to cook and eat it in the place the LORD your God chooses, and you are to return to your tents in the morning. 8 You must eat unleavened bread for six days. On the seventh day there is to be a solemn assembly to the LORD your God, and you must not do any work.

The Festival of Weeks

9 “You are to count seven weeks, counting the weeks from the time the sickle is first put to the standing grain. [d] 10 You are to celebrate the Festival of Weeks to the LORD your God with a freewill offering that you give in proportion to how the LORD your God has blessed you. 11 Rejoice [e] before Yahweh your God in the place where He chooses to have His name dwell — you, your son and daughter, your male and female slave, the Levite within your gates, as well as the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow among you. 12 Remember that you were slaves in Egypt; carefully follow these statutes.

The Festival of Booths

13 “You are to celebrate the Festival of Booths for seven days when you have gathered in everything from your threshing floor and winepress. [f] 14 Rejoice during your festival — you, your son and daughter, your male and female slave, as well as the Levite, the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow within your gates. 15 You are to hold a seven-day festival for the LORD your God in the place
He chooses, because the LORD your God will bless you in all your produce and in all the work of your hands, [g] and you will have abundant joy.

16 “All your males are to appear three times a year [h] before the LORD your God in the place He chooses: at the Festival of •Unleavened Bread, the Festival of Weeks, and the Festival of Booths. No one is to appear before the LORD empty-handed. 17 Everyone must appear with a gift suited to his means, according to the blessing the LORD your God has given you.

Appointing Judges and Officials

18 “Appoint judges and officials for your tribes in all your towns the LORD your God is giving you. They are to judge the people with righteous judgment.
19 Do not deny justice or show partiality to anyone. Do not accept a bribe, for it blinds the eyes of the wise and twists the words of the righteous. 20 Pursue justice and justice alone, so that you will live and possess the land the LORD your God is giving you. [i]

Forbidden Worship

21 “Do not set up an •Asherah of any kind of wood next to the altar you will build for the LORD your God, 22 and do not set up a sacred pillar; the LORD your God hates them. j

17 “You must not sacrifice to the LORD your God an ox or sheep with a defect or any serious flaw, for that is detestable to the LORD your God. [a]

The Judicial Procedure for Idolatry 2 “If [b] a man or woman among you in one of your towns that the LORD your God will give you is discovered doing evil in the sight of the LORD your God and violating His covenant [c] 3 and has gone to worship other gods by bowing down to the sun, moon, or all the stars in the sky — which I have forbidden — 4 and if you are told or hear about it, you must investigate it thoroughly. If the report turns out to be true that this detestable thing has happened in Israel, 5 you must bring out to your •gates that man or woman who has done this evil thing and stone them to death. 6 The one condemned to die is to be executed on the testimony of two or three witnesses.
No one is to be executed on the testimony of a single witness. 7 The witnesses’ hands are to be the first in putting him to death, and after that, the hands of all the people. [d] You must purge the evil from you. [e]

Difficult Cases

8 “If a case is too difficult for you — concerning bloodshed, [f] lawsuits, [g] or assaults [h] — cases disputed at your gates, [i] you must go up to the place the LORD your God chooses. 9 You are to go to the Levitical priests and to the judge who presides at that time. Ask, and they will give you a verdict in the case. 10 You must abide by the verdict they give you at the place the LORD chooses. Be careful to do exactly as they instruct you. 11 You must abide by the instruction they give you and the verdict they announce to you. Do not turn to the right or the left from the decision they declare to you. 12 The person who acts arrogantly, refusing to listen either to the priest who stands there serving the LORD your God or to the judge, must die. You must purge the evil from Israel. 13 Then all the people will hear about it, be afraid, and no longer behave arrogantly.

Appointing a King

14 “When you enter the land the LORD your God is giving you, [j] take possession of it, live in it, and say, ‘I will set a king over me like all the nations around me,’ 15 you are to appoint over you the king the LORD your God chooses. [k] Appoint a king from your brothers. You are not to set a foreigner over you, or one who is not of your people. [l] 16 However, he must not acquire many horses for himself or send the people back to Egypt to acquire many horses, for the LORD has told you, ‘You are never to go back that way again.’ [m] 17 He must not acquire many wives for himself so that his heart won’t go astray. He must not acquire very large amounts of silver and gold for himself. 18 When he is seated on his royal throne, he is to write a copy of this instruction for himself on a scroll in the presence of the Levitical priests. 19 It is to remain with him, and he is to read from it all the days of his life, so that he may learn to •fear [n] the LORD his God, to observe all the words of this instruction, and to do these statutes. 20 Then his heart will not be exalted above his countrymen, he will not turn from this command to the right or the left, and he and his sons will continue ruling many years [A] over Israel.

Provisions for the Levites

18 “The Levitical priests, the whole tribe of Levi, will have no portion or inheritance with Israel. They will eat the LORD’s fire offerings; that is their a, A inheritance. 2 Although Levi has no inheritance among his brothers, the LORD is his inheritance, as He promised him. b 3 This is the priests’ share from the people who offer a sacrifice, whether it is an ox, a sheep, or a goat; the priests are to be given the shoulder, jaws, and stomach. 4 You are to give him the •firstfruits of your grain, new wine, and oil, and the first sheared wool of your flock. 5 For •Yahweh your God has chosen him and his sons from all your tribes to stand and minister in His name from now on. B 6 When a Levite leaves one of your towns where he lives in Israel and wants to go to the place the LORD chooses, 7 he may serve in the name of Yahweh his God like all his fellow Levites who minister there in the presence of the LORD. 8 They will eat equal portions besides what he has received from the sale of the family estate. C, c Occult Practices versus Prophetic Revelation 9 “When you enter the land the LORD your God is giving you, do not imitate the detestable customs of those nations. 10 No one among you is to make his son or daughter pass through the fire, d, e practice •divination , tell fortunes, interpret omens, practice sorcery, 11 cast spells, consult a medium or a familiar spirit, or inquire of the dead. f 12

Everyone who does these things is detestable to the LORD, and the LORD your God is driving out the nations before you because of these detestable things. 13
You must be blameless before the LORD your God. 14 Though these nations you are about to drive out listen to fortune-tellers and diviners, the LORD your God has not permitted you to do this.

15 “The LORD your God will raise up for you a prophet like me from among your own brothers. g You must listen to him. 16 This is what you requested from the LORD your God at Horeb on the day of the assembly when you said, ‘Let us not continue to hear the voice of the LORD our God or see this great fire any longer, so that we will not die! ’ h 17 Then the LORD said to me, ‘They have spoken well. 18 I will raise up for them a prophet like you from among their brothers. I will put My words in his mouth, and he will tell them everything I command him. 19 I will hold accountable whoever does not listen to My words that he speaks in My name. i 20 But the prophet who dares to speak a message in My name that I have not commanded him to speak, or who speaks in the name of other gods — that prophet must die.’ 21 You may say to yourself, ‘How can we recognize a message the LORD has not spoken? ’ 22 When a prophet speaks in the LORD’s name, and the message does not come true or is not fulfilled, that is a message the LORD has not spoken. The prophet has spoken it presumptuously. Do not be afraid of him.

Cities of Refuge

19 “When the LORD your God annihilates the nations whose land He is giving you, [a] so that you drive them out and live in their cities and houses, 2 you are to set apart three cities for yourselves within the land the LORD your God is giving you to possess. [b] 3 You are to determine the distances [A] and divide the land the LORD your God is granting you as an inheritance into three regions, so that anyone who commits manslaughter can flee to these cities. [B]

4 “Here is the law concerning a case of someone who kills a person and flees there to save his life, having killed his neighbor accidentally without previously hating him: 5 If he goes into the forest with his neighbor to cut timber, and his hand swings the ax to chop down a tree, but the blade flies off the handle and strikes his neighbor so that he dies, that person may flee to one of these cities and live. 6 Otherwise, the avenger of blood in the heat of his anger [C] might pursue the one who committed manslaughter, overtake him because the distance is great, and strike him dead. Yet he did not deserve to die, [D] since he did not previously hate his neighbor. 7 This is why I am commanding you to set apart three cities for yourselves. 8 If the LORD your God enlarges your territory as He swore to your fathers, and gives you all the land He promised to give them — 9 provided you keep every one of these commands I am giving you today and follow them, loving the LORD your God and walking in His ways at all times — you are to add three more cities to these three. 10 In this way, innocent blood will not be shed, and you will not become •guilty of bloodshed in the land the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance. [c] 11 But if someone hates his neighbor, lies in ambush for him, attacks him, and strikes him fatally, and flees to one of these cities, 12 the elders of his city must send for him, take him from there, and hand him over to the avenger of blood and he will die. 13 You must not look on him with pity but purge from Israel the guilt of shedding innocent blood, and you will prosper.

Boundary Markers

14 “You must not move your neighbor’s boundary marker, [d] established at the start in the inheritance you will receive in the land the LORD your God is giving you to possess.

Witnesses in Court

15 “One witness cannot establish any wrongdoing or sin against a person, whatever that person has done. [e] A fact must be established by the testimony of two or three witnesses. [f]

16 “If a malicious witness [g] testifies against someone accusing him of a crime, 17 the two people in the dispute must stand in the presence of the LORD before the priests and judges in authority at that time. 18 The judges are to make a careful investigation, and if the witness turns out to be a liar who has falsely accused his brother, 19 you must do to him as he intended to do to his brother. You must purge the evil from you. 20 Then everyone else will hear and be afraid, and they will never again do anything evil like this among you. [h] 21 You must not show pity: life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, and foot for foot. [i]

Rules for War

20 “When you go out to war against your enemies and see horses, chariots, and an army larger than yours, do not be afraid of them, for the Lord your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, [a] is with you. 2 When you are about to engage in battle, the priest is to come forward and address the army.
3 He is to say to them: ‘Listen, Israel: Today you are about to engage in battle with your enemies. Do not be cowardly. Do not be afraid, alarmed, or terrified because of them. 4 For the Lord your God is the One who goes with you to fight for you [b] against your enemies to give you victory.’

5 “The officers are to address the army, ‘Has any man built a new house and not dedicated it? Let him leave and return home. Otherwise, he may die in battle and another man dedicate it. 6 Has any man planted a vineyard and not begun to enjoy its fruit? [A] Let him leave and return home. Otherwise he may die in battle and another man enjoy its fruit. [B] 7 Has any man become •engaged to a woman and not married her? Let him leave and return home. Otherwise he may die in battle and another man marry her.’ 8 The officers will continue to address the army and say, ‘Is there any man who is afraid or cowardly? Let him leave and return home, so that his brothers’ hearts won’t melt like his own.’ 9 When the officers have finished addressing the army, they will appoint military commanders to lead it.

10 “When you approach a city to fight against it, you must make an offer of peace. 11 If it accepts your offer of peace and opens its gates to you, all the people found in it will become forced laborers for you and serve you. 12
However, if it does not make peace with you but wages war against you, lay siege to it. 13 When the Lord your God hands it over to you, you must strike down all its males with the sword. 14 But you may take the women, children, animals, and whatever else is in the city — all its spoil — as plunder. You may enjoy the spoil of your enemies that the Lord your God has given you. 15 This is how you are to treat all the cities that are far away from you and are not among the cities of these nations. 16 However, you must not let any living thing survive among the cities of these people the Lord your God is giving you as an inheritance. 17 You must •completely destroy them — the Hittite, Amorite, Canaanite, Perizzite, Hivite, and Jebusite — as the Lord your God has commanded you, 18 so that they won’t teach you to do all the detestable things they do for their gods, and you sin against the Lord your God. [c]

19 “When you lay siege to a city for a long time, fighting against it in order to capture it, you must not destroy its trees by putting an ax to them, because you can get food from them. You must not cut them down. Are trees of the field human, to come under siege by you? 20 But you may destroy the trees that you know do not produce food. You may cut them down to build siege works against the city that is waging war against you, until it falls.

Unsolved Murders

21 “If a murder victim is found lying in a field in the land the LORD your God is giving you to possess, and it is not known who killed him, 2 your elders and judges must come out and measure the distance from the victim to the nearby cities. 3 The elders of the city nearest to the victim are to get a young cow that has not been yoked or used for work. 4 The elders of that city will bring the cow down to a continually flowing stream, to a place not tilled or sown, and they will break its neck there by the stream. 5 Then the priests, the sons of Levi, will come forward, for •Yahweh your God has chosen them to serve Him and pronounce blessings in His name, and they are to give a ruling in A every dispute and case of assault. 6 All the elders of the city nearest to the victim will wash their hands by the stream over the young cow whose neck has been broken.
7 They will declare, ‘Our hands did not shed this blood; our eyes did not see it. 8
LORD, forgive Your people Israel You redeemed, and do not hold the shedding of innocent blood against them.’ Then they will be absolved of responsibility for bloodshed. 9 You must purge from yourselves the •guilt of shedding innocent blood, for you will be doing what is right in the LORD’s sight.

Fair Treatment of Captured Women 10 “When you go to war against your enemies and the LORD your God hands them over to you and you take some of them prisoner, and 11 if you see a beautiful woman among the captives, desire her, and want to take her as your wife, 12 you are to bring her into your house.
She must shave her head, trim her nails, 13 remove the clothes she was wearing when she was taken prisoner, live in your house, and mourn for her father and mother a full month. After that, you may have sexual relations with her and be her husband, and she will be your wife. 14 Then if you are not satisfied with her, you are to let her go where she wants, but you must not sell her for money or treat her as merchandise, B because you have humiliated her.

The Right of the Firstborn

15 “If a man has two wives, one loved and the other unloved, and both the loved and the unloved bear him sons, and if the unloved wife has the firstborn son, 16 when that man gives what he has to his sons as an inheritance, he is not to show favoritism to the son of the loved wife as his firstborn over the firstborn of the unloved wife. 17 He must acknowledge the firstborn, the son of the unloved wife, by giving him two shares C, a of his estate, for he is the firstfruits of his virility; he has the rights of the firstborn. b

A Rebellious Son

18 “If a man has a stubborn and rebellious son who does not obey his father or mother and doesn’t listen to them even after they discipline him, 19 his father and mother must take hold of him and bring him to the elders of his city, to the •gate c of his hometown. 20 They will say to the elders of his city, ‘This son of ours is stubborn and rebellious; he doesn’t obey us. He’s a glutton and a drunkard.’ 21 Then all the men of his city will stone him to death. d You must purge the evil from you, and all Israel will hear and be afraid.

Display of Executed People

22 “If anyone is found guilty of an offense deserving the death penalty and is executed, and you hang his body on a tree, 23 you are not to leave his corpse on the tree overnight but are to bury him that day, for anyone hung on a tree is under God’s curse. [e] You must not defile the land the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance. [f]

Caring for Your Brother's Property

22 “If you see your brother’s ox or sheep straying, you must not ignore it; make sure you return it to your brother. 2 If your brother does not live near you or you don’t know him, you are to bring the animal to your home to remain with you until your brother comes looking for it; then you can return it to him.
3 Do the same for his donkey, his garment, or anything your brother has lost and you have found. You must not ignore it. [a] 4 If you see your brother’s donkey or ox fallen down on the road, you must not ignore it; you must help him lift it up.

Preserving Natural Distinctions

5 “A woman is not to wear male clothing, and a man is not to put on a woman’s garment, for everyone who does these things is detestable to the Lord your God.

6 “If you come across a bird’s nest with chicks or eggs, either in a tree or on the ground along the road, and the mother is sitting on the chicks or eggs, you must not take the mother along with the young. 7 You may take the young for yourself, but be sure to let the mother go free, so that you may prosper and live long. 8 If you build a new house, make a railing around your roof, so that you don’t bring bloodguilt on your house if someone falls from it. 9 Do not plant your vineyard with two types of seed; otherwise, the entire harvest, both the crop you plant and the produce of the vineyard, will be defiled. 10 Do not plow with an ox and a donkey together. 11 Do not wear clothes made of both wool and linen. [b] 12 Make tassels on the four corners of the outer garment you wear. [c]

Violations of Proper Sexual Conduct 13 “If a man marries a woman, has sexual relations with her, and comes to hate her, 14 and accuses her of shameful conduct, and gives her a bad name, saying, ‘I married this woman and was intimate with her, but I didn’t find any evidence of her virginity,’ 15 the young woman’s father and mother will take the evidence of her virginity and bring it to the city elders at the •gate . [d] 16 The young woman’s father will say to the elders, ‘I gave my daughter to this man as a wife, but he hates her. 17 He has accused her of shameful conduct, saying: “I didn’t find any evidence of your daughter’s virginity,” but here is the evidence of my daughter’s virginity.’ They will spread out the cloth before the city elders. 18 Then the elders of that city will take the man and punish him. [e] 19 They will also fine him 100 silver shekels and give them to the young woman’s father, because that man gave an Israelite virgin a bad name. She will remain his wife; he cannot divorce her as long as he lives.
20 But if this accusation is true and no evidence of the young woman’s virginity is found, 21 they will bring the woman to the door of her father’s house, and the men of her city will stone her to death. For she has committed an outrage in Israel by being promiscuous in her father’s house. You must purge the evil from you.

22 “If a man is discovered having sexual relations with another man’s wife, both the man who had sex with the woman and the woman must die. You must purge the evil from Israel. 23 If there is a young woman who is a virgin •engaged to a man, and another man encounters her in the city and has sex with her, 24 you must take the two of them out to the gate of that city and stone them to death — the young woman because she did not cry out in the city and the man because he has violated his neighbor's fiancée. You must purge the evil from you. 25 But if the man encounters an engaged woman in the open country, and he seizes and rapes her, only the man who raped her must die. 26 Do nothing to the young woman, because she is not •guilty of an offense deserving death. This case is just like one in which a man attacks his neighbor and murders him. 27 When he found her in the field, the engaged woman cried out, but there was no one to rescue her. 28 If a man encounters a young woman, a virgin who is not engaged, takes hold of her and rapes her, and they are discovered, 29 the man who raped her must give the young woman's father 50 silver shekels, and she must become his wife because he violated her. [f] He cannot divorce her as long as he lives.

30 "A man is not to marry his father's wife; he must not violate his father's marriage bed. [g, A, h]

Exclusion and Inclusion

23 “No man whose testicles have been crushed [A] or whose penis has been cut off may enter the LORD’s assembly. 2 No one of illegitimate birth may enter the LORD’s assembly; none of his descendants, even to the tenth generation, may enter the LORD’s assembly. 3 No Ammonite or Moabite may enter the LORD’s assembly; [a] none of their descendants, even to the tenth generation, may ever enter the LORD’s assembly. 4 This is because they did not meet you with food and water on the journey after you came out of Egypt, and because Balaam son of Beor from Pethor in Aram-naharaim was hired to curse you. [b] 5 Yet the LORD your God would not listen to Balaam, but He turned the curse into a blessing for you because the LORD your God loves [c] you. [d] 6 Never seek their peace or prosperity as long as you live. 7 Do not despise an Edomite, because he is your brother. Do not despise an Egyptian, because you were a foreign resident in his land. 8 The children born to them in the third generation may enter the LORD’s assembly.

Cleanliness of the Camp 9 “When you are encamped against your enemies, be careful to avoid anything offensive. 10 If there is a man among you who is •unclean because of a bodily emission during the night, he must go outside the camp; he may not come anywhere inside the camp. 11 When evening approaches, he must wash with water, and when the sun sets he may come inside the camp. [e] 12 You must have a place outside the camp and go there to relieve yourself.
13 You must have a digging tool in your equipment; when you relieve yourself, dig a hole with it and cover up your excrement. 14 For the LORD your God walks throughout your camp to protect you and deliver your enemies to you; so your encampments must be holy. He must not see anything improper among you or He will turn away from you.

Fugitive Slaves

15 “Do not return a slave to his master when he has escaped from his master to you. 16 Let him live among you wherever he wants within your gates. Do not mistreat him.

Cult Prostitution Forbidden 17 “No Israelite woman is to be a cult prostitute, and no Israelite man is to be a cult prostitute. 18 Do not bring a female prostitute’s wages or a male prostitute’s B earnings into the house of the LORD your God to fulfill any vow, because both are detestable to the LORD your God.

Interest on Loans

19 “Do not charge your brother interest on money, food, or anything that can earn interest. 20 You may charge a foreigner interest, but you must not charge your brother interest, so that the LORD your God may bless you in everything you do [C] in the land you are entering to possess. [f]

Keeping Vows

21 “If you make a vow to the LORD your God, do not be slow to keep it, because He will require it of you, and it will be counted against you as sin.
22 But if you refrain from making a vow, it will not be counted against you as sin. 23 Be careful to do whatever comes from your lips, because you have freely vowed what you promised [D] to the LORD your God. [g]

Neighbor’s Crops

24 “When you enter your neighbor’s vineyard, you may eat as many grapes as you want until you are full, but you must not put any in your container. 25 When you enter your neighbor’s standing grain, you may pluck heads of grain with your hand, but you must not put a sickle to your neighbor’s grain.

Marriage and Divorce Laws

24 “If a man marries a woman, but she becomes displeasing to him because he finds something improper about her, he may write her a divorce certificate, hand it to her, and send her away from his house. [a] [2] If after leaving his house she goes and becomes another man’s wife, [3] and the second man hates her, writes her a divorce certificate, hands it to her, and sends her away from his house or if he [A] dies, [4] the first husband who sent her away may not marry her again after she has been defiled, because that would be detestable to the LORD.
You must not bring •guilt on the land the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance. [b]

5 “When a man takes a bride, he must not go out with the army or be liable for any duty. He is free to stay at home for one year, so that he can bring joy to the wife he has married.

Safeguarding Life

6 “Do not take a pair of millstones or an upper millstone as security for a debt, because that is like taking a life as security.

7 “If a man is discovered kidnapping [c] one of his Israelite brothers, whether he treats him as a slave or sells him, the kidnapper must die. You must purge the evil from you.

8 “Be careful in a case of infectious skin disease, following carefully everything the Levitical priests instruct you to do. Be careful to do as I have commanded them. 9 Remember what the LORD your God did to Miriam on the journey after you left Egypt. [d]

Consideration for People in Need 10 “When you make a loan of any kind to your neighbor, do not enter his house to collect what he offers as security. 11 You must stand outside while the man you are making the loan to brings the security out to you. 12 If he is a poor man, you must not sleep in the garment he has given as security. 13 Be sure to return it [B] to him at sunset. Then he will sleep in it and bless you, and this will be counted as righteousness to you before the LORD your God. [e]

14 “Do not oppress a hired hand who is poor and needy, whether one of your brothers or one of the foreigners residing within a town [C] in your land. 15 You are to pay him his wages each day before the sun sets, because he is poor and depends on them. [f] Otherwise he will cry out to the LORD against you, and you will be held guilty.

16 “Fathers are not to be put to death for their children or children for their fathers; each person will be put to death for his own sin. [g] 17 Do not deny justice to a foreigner or fatherless child, and do not take a widow’s garment as security.
18 Remember that you were a slave in Egypt, and the LORD your God redeemed [h] you from there. Therefore I am commanding you to do this. [i]

19 “When you reap the harvest in your field, and you forget a sheaf in the field, do not go back to get it. It is to be left for the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow, so that the LORD your God may bless you in all the work of your hands. [j] 20 When you knock down the fruit from your olive tree, you must not go over the branches again. What remains will be for the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow. 21 When you gather the grapes of your vineyard, you must not glean what is left. What remains will be for the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow. 22 Remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt. Therefore I am commanding you to do this. [k]

Fairness and Mercy

25 “If there is a dispute between men, they are to go to court, and the judges will hear their case. They will clear the innocent and condemn the •guilty .
2 If the guilty party deserves to be flogged, the judge will make him lie down and be flogged in his presence with the number of lashes appropriate for his crime. 3
He may be flogged with 40 lashes, but no more. Otherwise, if he is flogged with more lashes than these, your brother will be degraded in your sight.
4 “Do not muzzle an ox while it treads out grain. [a]

Preserving the Family Line 5 “When brothers live on the same property [A] and one of them dies without a son, the wife of the dead man may not marry a stranger outside the family. Her brother-in-law is to take her as his wife, have sexual relations with her, and perform the duty of a brother-in-law for her. 6 The first son she bears will carry on the name of the dead brother, so his name will not be blotted out from Israel. [b] 7 But if the man doesn’t want to marry his sister-in-law, she must go to the elders at the city •gate [c] and say, ‘My brother- in-law refuses to preserve his brother’s name in Israel. He isn’t willing to perform the duty of a brother-in-law for me.’ 8 The elders of his city will summon him and speak with him. If he persists and says, ‘I don’t want to marry her,’ 9 then his sister-in-law will go up to him in the sight of the elders, remove his sandal from his foot, and spit in his face. Then she will declare, ‘This is what is done to a man who will not build up his brother’s house.’ 10 And his family name in Israel will be called ‘The house of the man whose sandal was removed.’ [d]
11 “If two men are fighting with each other, and the wife of one steps in to rescue her husband from the one striking him, and she puts out her hand and grabs his genitals, 12 you are to cut off her hand. You must not show pity.

Honest Weights and Measures 13 “You must not have two different weights [B] in your bag, one heavy and one light. [e] 14 You must not have two differing dry measures in your house, a larger and a smaller. 15 You must have a full and honest weight, a full and honest dry measure, so that you may live long in the land the LORD your God is giving you. 16 For everyone who does such things and acts unfairly is detestable to the LORD your God. [f]

Revenge on the Amalekites 17 “Remember what the Amalekites did to you on the journey after you left Egypt. [g] 18 They met you along the way and attacked all your stragglers from behind when you were tired and weary. They did not •fear God. 19 When the LORD your God gives you rest [h] from all the enemies around you in the land the LORD your God is giving you to possess as an inheritance, [i] blot out the memory of Amalek under heaven. Do not forget. [j]

Giving the Firstfruits

26 “When you enter the land the LORD your God is giving you as an inheritance, [a] and you take possession of it and live in it, 2 you must take some of the first of all the land’s produce that you harvest from the land •Yahweh your God is giving you and put it in a container. Then go to the place where the LORD your God chooses to have His name dwell. [b] 3 When you come before the priest who is serving at that time, you must say to him, ‘Today I acknowledge to the LORD your [c] God that I have entered the land the LORD swore to our fathers to give us.’

4 “Then the priest will take the container from your hand and place it before the altar of the LORD your God. 5 You are to respond by saying in the presence of the LORD your God:

> My father was a wandering Aramean. [d] He went down to Egypt with a few > people and lived there. [e] There he became a great, powerful, and populous > nation. 6 But the Egyptians mistreated and afflicted us, and forced us to do > hard labor. 7 So we called out to Yahweh, the God of our fathers, and the LORD > heard our cry and saw our misery, hardship, and oppression. [f] 8 Then the LORD > brought us out of Egypt with a strong hand and an outstretched arm, with > terrifying power, and with signs and wonders. 9 He led us to this place and > gave us this land, a land flowing with milk and honey. [g] 10 I have now brought > the first of the land’s produce that You, LORD, have given me.

You will then place the container before the LORD your God and bow down to Him. 11 You, the Levite, and the foreign resident among you will rejoice [h] in all the good things the LORD your God has given you and your household.

The Tenth in the Third Year 12 “When you have finished paying all the tenth of your produce in the third year, [i] the year of the tenth, you are to give it to the Levite, the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow, so that they may eat in your towns and be satisfied. 13 Then you will say in the presence of the LORD your God:

> I have taken the consecrated portion out of my house; I have also given it to > the Levite, the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow, according to all the > commands You gave me. I have not violated or forgotten Your commands. 14 I > have not eaten any of it while in mourning, or removed any of it while > •unclean , or offered any of it for the dead. [j] I have obeyed the LORD my God; I > have done all You commanded me. 15 Look down from Your holy dwelling, > from heaven, and bless Your people Israel and the land You have given us as > You swore to our fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey.

Covenant Summary

16 “The LORD your God is commanding you this day to follow these statutes and ordinances. You must be careful to follow them with all your heart and all your soul. 17 Today you have affirmed that the LORD is your God and that you will walk in His ways, keep His statutes, commands, and ordinances, and obey Him. 18 And today the LORD has affirmed that you are His special people as He promised you, that you are to keep all His commands, 19 that He will elevate you to praise, fame, and glory above all the nations He has made, and that you will be a holy people [k] to the LORD your God as He promised.”

The Law Written on Stones

27 Moses and the elders of Israel commanded the people, “Keep every command I am giving you today. 2 At the time you cross the Jordan into the land the LORD your God is giving you, you must set up large stones and cover them with plaster. [a] 3 Write all the words of this law on the stones after you cross to enter the land the LORD your God is giving you, a land flowing with milk and honey, [b] as •Yahweh , the God of your fathers, has promised you. 4 When you have crossed the Jordan, you are to set up these stones on Mount Ebal, as I am commanding you today, and you are to cover them with plaster. 5 Build an altar of stones there to the LORD your God — you must not use any iron tool on them. [c] 6 Use uncut stones to build the altar of the LORD your God and offer •burnt offerings to the LORD your God on it. 7 There you are to sacrifice •fellowship offerings, eat, and rejoice in the presence of the LORD your God.
8 Write clearly all the words of this law on the plastered stones.”

The Covenant Curses

9 Moses and the Levitical priests spoke to all Israel, “Be silent, Israel, and listen! This day you have become the people of the LORD your God. 10 Obey the LORD your God and follow His commands and statutes I am giving you today.”

11 On that day Moses commanded the people, 12 “When you have crossed the Jordan, these tribes will stand on Mount Gerizim to bless the people: Simeon, Levi, Judah, Issachar, Joseph, and Benjamin. 13 And these tribes will stand on Mount Ebal to deliver the curse: Reuben, Gad, Asher, Zebulun, Dan, and Naphtali. d 14 The Levites will proclaim in a loud voice to every Israelite:

15 ‘The person who makes a carved idol or cast image, which is detestable to the LORD, the work of a craftsman, and sets it up in secret is cursed.’
And all the people will reply, ‘•Amen ! ’
16 ‘The one who dishonors his father or mother is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
17 ‘The one who moves his neighbor’s boundary marker is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
18 ‘The one who leads a blind person astray on the road is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
19 ‘The one who denies justice to a foreigner, a fatherless child, or a widow is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
20 ‘The one who sleeps with his father’s wife is cursed, for he has violated his father’s marriage bed.’ A
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
21 ‘The one who has sexual intercourse with any animal is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
22 ‘The one who sleeps with his sister, whether his father’s daughter or his mother’s daughter is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
23 ‘The one who sleeps with his mother-in-law is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
24 ‘The one who secretly kills his neighbor is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’
25 ‘The one who accepts a bribe to kill an innocent person is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’

26 ‘Anyone who does not put the words of this law into practice is cursed.’
And all the people will say, ‘Amen! ’

Blessings for Obedience

28 “Now if you faithfully obey the LORD your God and are careful to follow all His commands I am giving you today, the LORD your God will put you far above all the nations of the earth. [a] 2 All these blessings will come and overtake you, because you obey the LORD your God:
3 You will be blessed in the city and blessed in the country.
4 Your descendants [A] will be blessed,
and your land’s produce,
and the offspring of your livestock,
including the young of your herds
and the newborn of your flocks. [b]
5 Your basket and kneading bowl will be blessed.
6 You will be blessed when you come in and blessed when you go out.
7 “The LORD will cause the enemies who rise up against you to be defeated before you. They will march out against you from one direction but flee from you in seven directions. 8 The LORD will grant you a blessing on your storehouses and on everything you do; [B] He will bless you in the land the LORD your God is giving you. 9 The LORD will establish you as His holy people, [c] as He swore to you, if you obey the commands of the LORD your God and walk in His ways. 10 Then all the peoples of the earth will see that you are called by •Yahweh ’s name, and they will stand in awe of you. 11 The LORD will make you prosper abundantly with children, [C] the offspring of your livestock, and your land’s produce in the land the LORD swore to your fathers to give you. 12 The LORD will open for you His abundant storehouse, the sky, to give your land rain in its season and to bless all the work of your hands. [d] You will lend to many nations, but you will not borrow. 13 The LORD will make you the head and not the tail; you will only move upward and never downward if you listen to the LORD your God’s commands I am giving you today and are careful to follow them. 14 Do not turn aside to the right or the left from all the things I am commanding you today, and do not go after other gods to worship them.

Curses for Disobedience

15 “But if you do not obey the LORD your God by carefully following all His commands and statutes I am giving you today, all these curses will come and overtake you: [e]

16 You will be cursed in the city and cursed in the country.
17 Your basket and kneading bowl will be cursed.
18 Your descendants [D] will be cursed,
and your land’s produce,
the young of your herds,
and the newborn of your flocks.
19 You will be cursed when you come in and cursed when you go out.

20 The LORD will send against you curses, confusion, and rebuke in everything you do [E] until you are destroyed and quickly perish, because of the wickedness of your actions in abandoning Me. 21 The LORD will make pestilence cling to you until He has exterminated you from the land you are entering to possess.
22 The LORD will afflict you with wasting disease, fever, inflammation, burning heat, drought, [F] blight, and mildew; these will pursue you until you perish. 23
The sky above you will be bronze, and the earth beneath you iron. 24 The LORD will turn the rain of your land into falling [G] dust; it will descend on you from the sky until you are destroyed. 25 The LORD will cause you to be defeated before your enemies. You will march out against them from one direction but flee from them in seven directions. You will be an object of horror to all the kingdoms of the earth. 26 Your corpses will be food for all the birds of the sky and the wild animals of the land, with no one to scare them away. [f]

27 “The LORD will afflict you with the boils of Egypt, tumors, a festering rash, and scabies, from which you cannot be cured. 28 The LORD will afflict you with madness, blindness, and mental confusion, 29 so that at noon you will grope as a blind man gropes in the dark. [g] You will not be successful in anything you do.
You will only be oppressed and robbed continually, and no one will help you. 30
You will become •engaged to a woman, but another man will rape her. You will build a house but not live in it. You will plant a vineyard but not enjoy its fruit.
31 Your ox will be slaughtered before your eyes, but you will not eat any of it.
Your donkey will be taken away from you and not returned to you. Your flock will be given to your enemies, and no one will help you. 32 Your sons and daughters will be given to another people, while your eyes grow weary looking for them every day. But you will be powerless to do anything. H 33 A people you don't know will eat your land's produce and everything you have labored for. You will only be oppressed and crushed continually. 34 You will be driven mad by what you see. 35 The LORD will afflict you with painful and incurable boils on your knees and thighs — from the sole of your foot to the top of your head. h

36 "The LORD will bring you and your king that you have appointed to a nation neither you nor your fathers have known, and there you will worship other gods, of wood and stone. 37 You will become an object of horror, scorn, and ridicule among all the peoples where the LORD will drive you. i

38 "You will sow much seed in the field but harvest little, because locusts will devour it. 39 You will plant and cultivate vineyards but not drink the wine or gather the grapes, because worms will eat them. 40 You will have olive trees throughout your territory but not anoint yourself with oil, because your olives will drop off. 41 You will father sons and daughters, but they will not remain yours, because they will be taken prisoner. 42 Whirring insects will take possession of all your trees and your land's produce. 43 The foreign resident among you will rise higher and higher above you, while you sink lower and lower. 44 He will lend to you, but you won't lend to him. He will be the head, and you will be the tail.

45 "All these curses will come, pursue, and overtake you until you are destroyed, since you did not obey the LORD your God and keep the commands and statutes He gave you. 46 These curses will be a sign and a wonder against you and your descendants forever. 47 Because you didn't serve the LORD your God with joy and a cheerful heart, even though you had an abundance of everything, 48 you will serve your enemies the LORD will send against you, in famine, thirst, nakedness, and a lack of everything. He will place an iron yoke j on your neck until He has destroyed you. 49 The LORD will bring a nation from far away, from the ends of the earth, to swoop down on you like an eagle, a nation whose language you don't understand, 50 a ruthless nation, I showing no respect for the old and not sparing the young. 51 They will eat the offspring of your livestock and your land's produce until you are destroyed. They will leave you no grain, new wine, oil, young of your herds, or newborn of your flocks until they cause you to perish. 52 They will besiege you within all your gates until your high and fortified walls, that you trust in, come down throughout your land. They will besiege you within all your gates throughout the land the LORD your God has given you.

53 “You will eat your children, [J] the flesh of your sons and daughters the LORD your God has given you [k] during the siege and hardship your enemy imposes on you. 54 The most sensitive and refined man among you will look grudgingly [K] at his brother, the wife he embraces, [L] and the rest of his children, 55 refusing to share with any of them his children’s flesh that he will eat because he has nothing left during the siege and hardship your enemy imposes on you in all your towns. 56 The most sensitive and refined woman among you, who would not venture to set the sole of her foot on the ground because of her refinement and sensitivity, will begrudge the husband she embraces, her son, and her daughter, 57 the afterbirth that comes out from between her legs and the children she bears, because she will secretly eat them for lack of anything else during the siege and hardship your enemy imposes on you within your gates.

58 “If you are not careful to obey all the words of this law, which are written in this scroll, by •fearing this glorious and awesome name — Yahweh, your God — 59 He will bring extraordinary plagues on you and your descendants, severe and lasting plagues, and terrible and chronic sicknesses. 60 He will afflict you again with all the diseases of Egypt, which you dreaded, and they will cling to you. 61 The LORD will also afflict you with every sickness and plague not recorded in the book of this law, until you are destroyed. 62 Though you were as numerous as the stars of the sky, you will be left with only a few people, because you did not obey the LORD your God. 63 Just as the LORD was glad to cause you to prosper and to multiply you, so He will also be glad to cause you to perish and to destroy you. You will be deported from the land you are entering to possess. 64 Then the LORD will scatter you among all peoples from one end of the earth to the other, and there you will worship other gods, of wood and stone, which neither you nor your fathers have known. 65 You will find no peace among those nations, and there will be no resting place [l] for the sole of your foot. There the LORD will give you a trembling heart, failing eyes, and a despondent spirit. 66 Your life will hang in doubt before you. You will be in dread night and day, never certain of survival. 67 In the morning you will say, ‘If only it were evening! ’ and in the evening you will say, ‘If only it were morning! ’ — because of the dread you will have in your heart and because of what you will see. 68 The LORD will take you back in ships to Egypt by a route that I said you would never see again. [m] There you will sell yourselves to your enemies as male and female slaves, but no one will buy you.”

Chapter 29 [a] Renewing the Covenant [1]These are the words of the covenant [b] the LORD commanded Moses to make with the Israelites in the land of Moab, in addition to the covenant He had made with them at Horeb. [2] [c] Moses summoned all Israel and said to them, "You have seen with your own eyes everything the LORD did in Egypt to Pharaoh, to all his officials, and to his entire land. [3] You saw with your own eyes the great trials and those great signs and wonders. [d 4] Yet to this day the LORD has not given you a mind to understand, eyes to see, or ears to hear. [e 5] I led you 40 years in the wilderness; your clothes and the sandals on your feet did not wear out; [6] you did not eat bread or drink wine or beer — so that you might know that I am •Yahweh your God. [7] When you reached this place, Sihon king of Heshbon and Og king of Bashan came out against us in battle, but we defeated them. [8] We took their land and gave it as an inheritance to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh. [f 9] Therefore, observe the words of this covenant [g] and follow them, so that you will succeed in everything you do.

[10] "All of you are standing today before the LORD your God — your leaders, tribes, elders, officials, all the men of Israel, [11] your children, your wives, and the foreigners in your camps who cut your wood and draw your water — [12] so that you may enter into the covenant of the LORD your God, which He is making with you today, so that you may enter into His oath [13] and so that He may establish you today as His people and He may be your God as He promised you and as He swore to your fathers Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. [14] I am making this covenant and this oath not only with you, [15] but also with those who are standing here with us today in the presence of the LORD our God and with those who are not here today.

Abandoning the Covenant [16] "Indeed, you know how we lived in the land of Egypt and passed through the nations where you traveled. [17] You saw their detestable images and idols made of wood, stone, silver, and gold, which were among them. [18] Be sure there is no man, woman, clan, or tribe among you today whose heart turns away from the LORD our God to go and worship the gods of those nations. Be sure there is no root among you bearing poisonous and bitter fruit. [h 19] When someone hears the words of this oath, he may consider himself exempt, [A] thinking, 'I will have peace even though I follow my own stubborn heart.' This will lead to the destruction of the well-watered land as well as the dry land. [20] The LORD will not be willing to forgive him. Instead, His anger and jealousy will burn against that person, and every curse written in this scroll will descend on him. The LORD will blot out his name under heaven, 21 and single him out for harm from all the tribes of Israel, according to all the curses of the covenant written in this book of the law.

22 "Future generations of your children who follow you and the foreigner who comes from a distant country will see the plagues of the land and the sicknesses the LORD has inflicted on it. 23 All its soil will be a burning waste of sulfur and salt, unsown, producing nothing, with no plant growing on it, just like the fall of Sodom and Gomorrah, Admah and Zeboiim, which the LORD demolished in His fierce anger. i 24 All the nations will ask, 'Why has the LORD done this to this land? Why this great outburst of anger? ' 25 Then people will answer, 'It is because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh, the God of their fathers, which He had made with them when He brought them out of the land of Egypt. 26 They began to worship other gods, bowing down to gods they had not known — gods that the LORD had not permitted them to worship. j 27 Therefore the LORD's anger burned against this land, and He brought every curse written in this book on it. 28 The LORD uprooted them from their land in His anger, rage, and great wrath, and threw them into another land where they are today.' 29 The hidden things belong to the LORD our God, but the revealed things belong to us and our children forever, so that we may follow all the words of this law.

30 “When all these things happen to you — the blessings and curses I have set before you — and you come to your senses while you are in all the nations where the LORD your God has driven you, 2 and you and your children return to the LORD your God and obey Him with all your heart and all your soul by doing A everything I am giving you today, 3 then He will restore your fortunes, B have compassion on you, and gather you again from all the peoples where the LORD your God has scattered you. a 4 Even if your exiles are at the ends of the earth, C He will gather you and bring you back from there. b 5 The LORD your God will bring you into the land your fathers possessed, and you will take possession of it. c He will cause you to prosper and multiply you more than He did your fathers. 6 The LORD your God will circumcise your heart d and the hearts of your descendants, and you will love Him with all your heart and all your soul so that you will live. 7 The LORD your God will put all these curses on your enemies who hate and persecute you. 8 Then you will again obey Him and follow all His commands I am giving you today. 9 The LORD your God will make you prosper abundantly in all the work of your hands e with children, D the offspring of your livestock, and your land’s produce. Indeed, the LORD will again delight in your prosperity, as He delighted in that of your fathers, 10 when you obey the LORD your God by keeping His commands and statutes that are written in this book of the law and return to Him with all your heart and all your soul.

Choose Life

11 “This command that I give you today is certainly not too difficult or beyond your reach. 12 It is not in heaven so that you have to ask, ‘Who will go up to heaven, get it for us, and proclaim it to us so that we may follow it? ’ 13 And it is not across the sea so that you have to ask, ‘Who will cross the sea, get it for us, and proclaim it to us so that we may follow it? ’ 14 But the message is very near you, in your mouth and in your heart, so that you may follow it. [f] 15 See, today I have set before you life and prosperity, death and adversity. [g] 16 For [h] I am commanding you today to love the LORD your God, to walk in His ways, and to keep His commands, statutes, and ordinances, so that you may live [i] and multiply, and the LORD your God may bless you in the land you are entering to possess. 17 But if your heart turns away and you do not listen and you are led astray to bow down to other gods and worship them, 18 I tell you today that you will certainly perish and will not live long in the land you are entering to possess across the Jordan. 19 I call heaven and earth as witnesses against you today that I have set before you life and death, blessing and curse. Choose life [j] so that you and your descendants may live, 20 love the LORD your God, obey Him, and remain faithful [E] to Him. For He is your life, and He will prolong your life in the land the LORD swore to give to your fathers [k] Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.”

Joshua Takes Moses' Place

31 Then Moses continued to speak these [a] words to all Israel, 2 saying, "I am now 120 years old; I can no longer act as your leader. [A] The LORD has told me, 'You will not cross this Jordan.' [b] 3 The LORD your God is the One who will cross ahead of you. [c] He will destroy these nations before you, and you will drive them out. Joshua is the one who will cross ahead of you, as the LORD has said. [d] 4 The LORD will deal with them as He did Sihon and Og, the kings of the Amorites, and their land when He destroyed them. [e] 5 The LORD will deliver them over to you, and you must do to them exactly as I have commanded you. 6 Be strong and courageous; [f] don't be terrified or afraid of them. For it is the LORD your God who goes with you; [g] He will not leave you or forsake you." [h]

7 Moses then summoned Joshua and said to him in the sight of all Israel, "Be strong and courageous, for you will go with [i] this people into the land the LORD swore to give to their fathers. [j] You will enable them to take possession of it. 8 The LORD is the One who will go before you. [k] He will be with you; He will not leave you or forsake you. [l] Do not be afraid or discouraged."

9 Moses wrote down this law and gave it to the priests, the sons of Levi, who carried the ark of the LORD's covenant, and to all the elders of Israel. 10 Moses commanded them, "At the end of every seven years, at the appointed time in the year of debt cancellation, [m] during the Festival of Booths, [n] 11 when all Israel assembles [B] in the presence of the LORD your God at the place He chooses, you are to read this law aloud before all Israel. [o] 12 Gather the people — men, women, children, and foreigners living within your gates — so that they may listen and learn to •fear [p] the LORD your God and be careful to follow all the words of this law. 13 Then their children [q] who do not know the law will listen and learn to fear the LORD your God as long as you live in the land you are crossing the Jordan to possess."

14 The LORD said to Moses, "The time of your death is now approaching. Call Joshua and present yourselves at the tent of meeting so that I may commission him." When Moses and Joshua went and presented themselves at the tent of meeting, 15 the LORD appeared at the tent in a pillar of cloud, and the cloud stood at the entrance to the tent. [r]

16 The LORD said to Moses, "You are about to rest with your fathers, and these people will soon commit adultery with the foreign gods of the land they are entering. They will abandon Me and break the covenant [s] I have made with them. 17 My anger will burn against them on that day; I will abandon them and hide My face from them so that they will become easy prey. [C] Many troubles and afflictions will come to them. On that day they will say, ‘Haven’t these troubles come to us because our God is no longer with us? ’ 18 I will certainly hide My face on that day because of all the evil they have done by turning to other gods. 19 Therefore write down this song [t] for yourselves and teach it to the Israelites; have them recite it, [D] so that this song may be a witness for Me against the Israelites. 20 When I bring them into the land I swore to give their fathers, a land flowing with milk and honey, [u] they will eat their fill [v] and prosper. [E] They will turn to other gods and worship them, despising Me and breaking My covenant. [w] 21 And when many troubles and afflictions come to them, this song will testify against them, because [F] their descendants will not have forgotten it. For I know what they are prone to do, [G] even before I bring them into the land I swore to give them.” 22 So Moses wrote down this song on that day and taught it to the Israelites.

23 The LORD commissioned Joshua son of Nun, “Be strong and courageous, for you will bring the Israelites into the land I swore to them, and I will be with you.” [x]

Moses Warns the People

24 When Moses had finished writing down on a scroll every single word [H] of this law, 25 he commanded the Levites who carried the ark of the LORD's covenant, 26 "Take this book of the law and place it beside the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God so that it may remain there as a witness against you. 27 For I know how rebellious and stiff-necked you are. If you are rebelling against the LORD now, while I am still alive, how much more will you rebel after I am dead! 28 Assemble all your tribal elders and officers before me so that I may speak these words directly to them and call heaven and earth as witnesses against them. [y] 29 For I know that after my death you will become completely corrupt and turn from the path I have commanded you. Disaster will come to you in the future, because you will do what is evil in the LORD's sight, infuriating Him with what your hands have made." [z] 30 Then Moses recited aloud every single word [I] of this song to the entire assembly of Israel:

Song of Moses

32 Pay attention, heavens, and I will speak;
listen, earth, to the words of my mouth. [a] 2 Let my teaching fall like rain and my word settle like dew, like gentle rain on new grass
and showers on tender plants.
3 For I will proclaim •Yahweh 's name.
Declare the greatness of our God!
4 The Rock — His work is perfect;
all His ways are entirely just.
A faithful God, without prejudice,
He is righteous and true.

5 His people have acted corruptly toward Him;
this is their defect [A] — they are not His children
but a devious and crooked generation.
6 Is this how you repay the LORD,
you foolish and senseless people?
Isn't He your Father and Creator?
Didn't He make you and sustain you?
7 Remember the days of old;
consider the years long past.
Ask your father, and he will tell you,
your elders, and they will teach you.
8 When the •Most High gave the nations their inheritance [B] and divided the •human race, [b]
He set the boundaries of the peoples
according to the number of the people of Israel. [c] 9 But the LORD's portion is His people,
Jacob, His own inheritance.

10 He found him in a desolate land,
in a barren, howling wilderness;
He surrounded him, cared for him,
and protected him as the pupil of His eye. [d] 11 He watches over [C] His nest like an eagle and hovers over His young;
He spreads His wings, catches him,

and lifts him up on His pinions. [e] 12 The LORD alone led him, with no help from a foreign god. [D] 13 He made him ride on the heights of the land [f]
and eat the produce of the field.
He nourished him with honey from the rock
and oil from flint-like rock, 14 cream from the herd and milk from the flock,
with the fat of lambs,
rams from Bashan, and goats,
with the choicest grains of wheat;
you drank wine from the finest grapes. [E]

15 Then [g] Jeshurun [h, i] became fat and rebelled — you became fat, bloated, and gorged.
He abandoned the God who made him and scorned the Rock of his salvation.
16 They provoked His jealousy with foreign gods;
they enraged Him with detestable practices. [j] 17 They sacrificed to demons, not God,
to gods they had not known,
new gods that had just arrived,
which your fathers did not fear. [k] 18 You ignored the Rock who gave you birth;
you forgot the God who gave birth to you.

19 When the LORD saw this, He despised them, provoked to anger by His sons and daughters.
20 He said: “I will hide My face from them;
I will see what will become of them,
for they are a perverse generation — unfaithful children.
21 They have provoked My jealousy with their so-called gods; [F]
they have enraged Me with their worthless idols.
So I will provoke their jealousy with an inferior people; [G]
I will enrage them with a foolish nation. [l]

22 For fire has been kindled because of My anger and burns to the depths of •Sheol ;
it devours the land and its produce,
and scorches the foundations of the mountains.

23 “I will pile disasters on them;
I will use up My arrows against them.
24 They will be weak from hunger,
ravaged by pestilence and bitter plague;
I will unleash on them wild beasts with fangs,
as well as venomous snakes that slither in the dust.
25 Outside, the sword will take their children,
and inside, there will be terror;
the young man and the young woman will be killed,
the infant and the gray-haired man. [m]

26 “I would have said: I will cut them to pieces [n]
and blot out the memory of them from mankind, 27 if I had not feared insult from the enemy, or feared that these foes might misunderstand
and say: ‘Our own hand has prevailed;
it wasn’t the LORD who did all this.’ ”

28 Israel is a nation lacking sense with no understanding at all. [H] 29 If only they were wise, they would figure it out;
they would understand their fate.
30 How could one man pursue a thousand,
or two put ten thousand to flight,
unless their Rock had sold them,
unless the LORD had given them up?
31 But their “rock” is not like our Rock;
even our enemies concede.
32 For their vine is from the vine of Sodom and from the fields of Gomorrah.
Their grapes are poisonous;
their clusters are bitter.
33 Their wine is serpents’ venom,
the deadly poison of cobras.

34 “Is it not stored up with Me, sealed up in My vaults?
35 Vengeance [o] belongs to Me; I will repay. [p, q]
In time their foot will slip,
for their day of disaster is near,
and their doom is coming quickly.”
36 The LORD will indeed vindicate His people and have compassion on His servants [r]
when He sees that their strength is gone and no one is left — slave or free.
37 He will say: “Where are their gods,
the ‘rock’ they found refuge in?
38 Who ate the fat of their sacrifices and drank the wine of their •drink offerings?
Let them rise up and help you;
let it [s] be a shelter for you.
39 See now that I alone am He;
there is no God but Me. [t]
I bring death and I give life;
I wound and I heal.
No one can rescue anyone from My hand. [u]
40 I raise My hand to heaven and declare:
As surely as I live forever,
41 when I sharpen My flashing sword,
and My hand takes hold of judgment,
I will take vengeance on My adversaries and repay those who hate Me.
42 I will make My arrows drunk with blood while My sword devours flesh —
the blood of the slain and the captives,
the heads of the enemy leaders.” [I]

43 Rejoice, you nations, concerning His people, [v, w] for He will avenge the blood of His servants. [x]
He will take vengeance on His adversaries; [y, z]
He will purify His land and His people. [a]

44 Moses came with Joshua [b] son of Nun and recited all the words of this song in the presence of the people. 45 After Moses finished reciting all these words to all Israel, 46 he said to them, “Take to heart all these words I am giving as a warning to you today, so that you may command your children to carefully follow all the words of this law. 47 For they are not meaningless words to you but they are your life, and by them you will live long in the land you are crossing the Jordan to possess.”

Moses’ Impending Death

48 On that same day the LORD spoke to Moses, [c] 49 “Go up Mount Nebo in the Abarim range in the land of Moab, across from Jericho, and view the land of Canaan I am giving the Israelites as a possession. 50 Then you will die on the mountain that you go up, and you will be gathered to your people, just as your brother Aaron died on Mount Hor and was gathered to his people. [d] 51 For both of you broke faith with Me among the Israelites at the waters of Meribathkadesh in the Wilderness of Zin by failing to treat Me as holy in their presence.
52 Although from a distance you will view the land that I am giving the Israelites, you will not go there.” [e]

Moses' Blessings

33 This is the blessing that Moses, the man of God, gave the Israelites before his death. [a] 2 He said:

The LORD came from Sinai
and appeared to them from Seir;
He shone on them from Mount Paran and came with ten thousand holy ones, [b] with lightning [A] from His right hand [B] for them. [c] 3 Indeed He loves the people. [C, d]
All Your [D] holy ones [e] are in Your hand, and they assemble [E] at Your feet.
Each receives Your words.
4 Moses gave us instruction,
a possession for the assembly of Jacob.
5 So He became King in Jeshurun [f]
when the leaders of the people gathered with the tribes of Israel.

6 Let Reuben live and not die
though his people become few. [g]

7 He said this about Judah:
LORD, hear Judah's cry and bring him to his people.
He fights for his cause [F] with his own hands,
but may You be a help against his foes.
8 He said about Levi:

Your •Thummim and Urim belong to Your faithful one; [h]
You tested him at Massah and contended with him at the waters of Meribah. [i] 9 He said about his father and mother,
"I do not regard them."
He disregarded his brothers and didn't acknowledge his sons,
for they kept Your word and maintained Your covenant. [j] 10 They will teach Your ordinances to Jacob and Your instruction to Israel; [k]
they will set incense before You and whole •burnt offerings on Your altar.

11 LORD, bless his possessions, [G]
and accept the work of his hands.
Smash the loins of his adversaries and enemies,
so that they cannot rise again.

12 He said about Benjamin:

The LORD's beloved rests [H] securely on Him.
He [l] shields him all day long,
and he rests on His shoulders. [I]

13 He said about Joseph:

May his land be blessed by the LORD with the dew of heaven's bounty and the watery depths that lie beneath; [m] 14 with the bountiful harvest from the sun and the abundant yield of the seasons;
15 with the best products of the ancient mountains and the bounty of the eternal hills; 16 with the choice gifts of the land and everything in it;
and with the favor of Him who appeared [J] in the burning bush. [n]
May these rest on the head of Joseph,
on the crown of the prince of his brothers. [o] 17 His firstborn bull has [p] splendor, and horns like [K] those of a wild ox;
he gores all the peoples with them to the ends of the earth.
Such are the ten thousands of Ephraim,
and such are the thousands of Manasseh.

18 He said about Zebulun:

Rejoice, Zebulun, in your journeys,
and Issachar, in your tents.
19 They summon the peoples to a mountain;
there they offer acceptable sacrifices.
For they draw from the wealth of the seas

and the hidden treasures of the sand. [q]

20 He said about Gad:

The one who enlarges Gad's territory
will be blessed.
He lies down like a lion
and tears off an arm or even a head. [r] 21 He chose the best part for himself, because a ruler's portion was assigned there for him.
He came with the leaders of the people;
he carried out the LORD's justice and His ordinances for Israel. [s]

22 He said about Dan:

Dan is a young lion,
leaping out of Bashan. [t]

23 He said about Naphtali:

Naphtali, enjoying approval,
full of the LORD's blessing,
take [u] possession to the west and the south.

24 He said about Asher:

May Asher [v] be the most blessed of the sons;
may he be the most favored among his brothers and dip his foot in olive oil. [w, x] 25 May the bolts of your gate be iron and bronze, and your strength last as long as you live.

26 There is none like the God of Jeshurun, [y] who rides the heavens to your aid,
the clouds in His majesty. [z] 27 The God of old is your dwelling place, [a]
and underneath are the everlasting arms.
He drives out the enemy before you and commands, "Destroy! " 28 So Israel dwells securely;
Jacob lives untroubled [b, c]

in a land of grain and new wine;
even his skies drip with dew. [d]
29 How happy you are, Israel!
Who is like you,
a people saved by the LORD?
He is the shield that protects you,
the sword you boast in.
Your enemies will cringe before you, [e]
and you will tread on their backs. [L, f]

Moses' Death

34 Then Moses went up from the plains of Moab to Mount Nebo, to the top of Pisgah, [a] which faces Jericho, and the LORD showed him all the land:
Gilead as far as Dan, 2 all of Naphtali, the land of Ephraim and Manasseh, all the land of Judah as far as the Mediterranean [A] Sea, 3 the •Negev , and the region from the Valley of Jericho, the City of Palms, as far as Zoar. 4 The LORD then said to him, “This is the land I promised Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, ‘I will give it to your descendants.’ [b] I have let you see it with your own eyes, but you will not cross into it.”

5 So Moses the servant of the LORD died there in the land of Moab, as the LORD had said. 6 He buried him [B] in the valley [c] in the land of Moab facing Beth-peor, and no one to this day knows where his grave is. [d] 7 Moses was 120 years old when he died; his eyes were not weak, and his vitality had not left him. 8 The Israelites wept for Moses in the plains of Moab 30 days. Then the days of weeping and mourning for Moses came to an end.

9 Joshua son of Nun was filled with the spirit of wisdom because Moses had laid his hands on him. So the Israelites obeyed him and did as the LORD had commanded Moses. 10 No prophet has arisen again in Israel like Moses, whom the LORD knew face to face. [e] 11 He was unparalleled for all the signs and wonders the LORD sent him to do against the land of Egypt — to Pharaoh, to all his officials, and to all his land, 12 and for all the mighty acts of power and terrifying deeds that Moses performed in the sight of all Israel.

DEUTERONOMY

Introduction

Deuteronomy records Moses' last messages to Israel. He delivered them while in the Plains of Moab at the northern end of the Dead Sea. The flanks of Mount Nebo are shown on the left. Moses died on Mount Nebo, still full of vitality. God buried him and "no one to this day knows where his grave is" (34:6).

The title of this book of the Pentateuch, Deuteronomy, comes from the Septuagint (the Greek translation of the Old Testament) and means "second law" or "repetition of the law." The phrase is actually a mistranslation of 17:18, which reads "a copy of this instruction." It is still a fitting title since much of the book contains repetitions of the laws found in Exodus, Leviticus, and Numbers.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The book itself asserts that Moses is the principle source and author for the material (1:1), as do subsequent OT texts (Jos 1:7-8; 1Kg 2:3; Ezr 3:2) and NT texts (Mt 19:7; Ac 3:22; Rm 10:19). This attribution remained virtually unchallenged until the advent of modern rationalism in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, but no arguments advanced by this school of thought have successfully overcome the ancient Mosaic tradition.

Background: The exodus probably occurred in 1446 B.C., whereupon Israel set out for Canaan, the inheritance God had promised His people. Because of their rebellious spirit, the Israelites were forced to wander in the desert for 40 years

(2:7) until at last they arrived in Moab, just opposite Jericho (32:49). It was there that Moses put pen to parchment to compose this farewell treatise (31:9,24).

Message and Purpose Though the initial covenant between the Lord and Israel was made at Sinai, the generation that received it had largely died out in the 38 years since that event. Now the younger generation needed to affirm their commitment to the covenant (4:1-8). Moreover, the transition from a largely nomadic existence in the desert to a sedentary lifestyle in Canaan required a covenant revision and expansion suitable to these new conditions. The purpose of Deuteronomy is to provide guidelines for the new covenant community to enable them to live obediently before God and to carry out His intentions for them. Several themes appear through Deuteronomy: Nature and character of God: The chief attribute of God is His holiness. With the Shema (6:4), Israel's confession of faith, the holiness and uniqueness of God is emphasized. There is no God but Yahweh. His holiness and righteousness are reflected throughout the moral nature of His law.

Because He is the only God, He is also completely sovereign. God's sovereignty is especially stressed in light of the covenant relationship. Yahweh is Israel's sovereign Lord, and He will not share His sovereignty with another, whether a person or a false god.

Another key attribute of God is His love. His love for His people is seen repeatedly as Deuteronomy recounts the miraculous acts God performed on behalf of His chosen people. God has a purpose for His people, and His loving acts were designed to bring His people in line with His purpose for them. Closely akin to God's love is His graciousness. God did not have to choose Israel. Even when they complained or were disobedient, God exhibited grace though they didn't deserve it.

Covenant relationship: God had entered into a covenant relationship with Israel out of love (7:8). In that covenant as God's people, the Israelites were to reflect their relationship with God by reflecting His character to the nations around them. God's election of them and the gift of land were parts of God's side of the covenant, and obedience and service were the Israelites' part of the covenant. Deuteronomy gives strong words regarding the blessings of living in that covenant.

Faith response of God's people: The Israelites' response to the covenant relationship with God was to live lives—both individually and as a nation—in total commitment to the Lord God. There is no area of life that does not fall under God's sovereign rule. No distinction is made between the religious and the secular, and God expects the highest standards of ethical conduct from His people.

How God's people reflected this would be expressed in obedience to the law. All of the law might be summed up in one command: "Love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your strength" (6:5). God's people are to respond not with fearful obedience but with loving obedience. "If you love Me, you will keep My commands" (Jn 14:15). The command to love is grounded in God's love that He demonstrated to them; therefore loving obedience is the natural faith response to a loving God: "We love because He first loved us" (1Jn 4:19).

Sin and its consequences: In Deuteronomy, sin is presented in the context of the covenant. Failure to follow God's commands would disrupt the covenant relationship, affecting its purity, unity, and witness. Disobedience would lead to cursing. Deuteronomy 27-28 gives strong words about what would happen if the people failed to keep their part of the covenant. The consequences included the loss of the gift of land. Idolatry would lead to death. The nation as a whole would suffer for their disobedience and apostasy. Their history shows that God carried through with the consequences about which He warned Israel.

Contribution to the Bible Next to the books of Psalms and Isaiah, the NT alludes to Deuteronomy more than any other book in the OT. This is true not only in terms of the sheer number of instances but especially in the passages where theological truth seems most to be at issue. Jesus and the apostles considered Deuteronomy of paramount importance to their own teaching about God and His dealings with His chosen people and humanity at large. Jesus in His temptation quoted the book of Deuteronomy three times against Satan (Mt 4:4-10).

Structure The style of the book of Deuteronomy appears as a series of repetitious, reminiscent, and even irregular exhortations, which is fitting for a collection of Moses' sermons preparing the people for their move into the promised land. The style is also reflective of the typical suzerain-vassal treaties, which could contain a preamble, historical prologue, main provisions, blessings and curses, and plans for continuing the covenant relationship. The book of Deuteronomy could be considered the constitution for the nation of Israel once it was established in the promised land.

Study Notes 1:1 The reference to Moses being across the Jordan is from the perspective of one standing in Canaan to the west. The east side of the river was called Transjordan even by those living there.

1:3 Forty years had passed since Israel's exodus from Egypt. Though the journey from Horeb (Sinai) to Kadesh-barnea was normally 11 days (v. 2), Israel, because of its sin, had spent 40 years on the not-much-longer route from Egypt to Moab (2:7; 8:2,4; Nm 14:33).

1:4 Sihon and Og were rulers of kingdoms in Transjordan whose defeat permitted Israel to occupy most of the region, which was later settled by the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and part of Manasseh (Nm 32; Jos 22).

1:7 The Amorites and their neighbors is a way of speaking of all the peoples of Canaan. "Arabah" more technically describes the Great Rift Valley of the Jordan River and the Dead Sea.

1:8 The land the LORD swore to give was part of the covenant in which the Lord called Abraham out of paganism to found a people whom He would use to bless the whole earth (Gn 12:1-3; 15:12-21; 17:8). Israel's impending conquest would be the inheritance God had already allotted to Abraham's descendants.

1:10 Abraham had been promised that his offspring would eventually be innumerable (Gn 15:5). Through the gospel age and the proliferation of the church, this promise now extends to the spiritual descendants of Abraham as well (Rm 4:16-18).

1:15 The adjective respected means literally "known." These leaders must have been thoroughly scrutinized and found to be all that they professed to be.

1:17 Do not show partiality is a translation of a phrase that can be rendered, "Do not recognize faces." A judge must not be swayed by friendship or high rank.

1:19 Kadesh-barnea was Israel's main staging area throughout the 40 years of desert sojourn. Known today as 'Ain Qedeis, this large oasis would have been adequate for hundreds of thousands of Hebrews.

1:24 The Valley of Eshcol was in southern Canaan near Hebron. Its name means "bunch of grapes," from the abundance of this fruit that grew there. Canaan had already been called a "land flowing with milk and honey" (6:3; 11:9; 26:9; cp. Nm 13:27), so this display of grapes reinforced the lushness of the land the Lord had bequeathed to His people Israel (Dt 1:25).

1:28 The description of the cities of Canaan as fortified to the heavens came from spies who were afraid to trust God for victory and therefore exaggerated the difficulties involved. Jesus taught that a person of true faith could command mountains (Mk 11:23). The Anakim, named for Anak, a descendant of the founder of Hebron (Jos 21:11), were a gigantic people (Nm 13:33), some of whom moved to Philistia and may have been related to Goliath and other giant Philistines (Jos 11:21-22; cp. 1Ch 20:4-8).

1:31 The imagery of God carrying Israel as a man carries his son brings to mind Israel's special relationship to the Lord through His covenant with Abraham. Moses demanded Israel's release from Pharaoh because, in God's words, "Israel is My firstborn son" (Ex 4:22; cp. Ex 2:24-25).

1:33 The fire by night and the cloud by day are expressions of the presence of God as He led His people through the wilderness. The fire of God's presence speaks of His visible glory and holiness and recalls His judgment against those who fail to revere Him (4:9-14,24; Nm 11:1-3). The cloud symbolized God's mysteriousness, occasionally overshadowing His brilliance lest it destroy the curious who might try to become too familiar (Ex 19:9-13,16-25; Dt 31:15).

1:37 This curious statement is not Moses' attempt to deflect guilt from himself to the nation. The point was that he as well as the older generation of Israelites would fail to enter the land of promise because all alike were guilty. When the people sinned with regard to their demand for water (the incident in view here; cp. Nm 20:1-8), Moses became angry; this undermined his credibility as a leader (Dt 20:12).

1:39 The sons who don't know good from evil were not morally deficient but too young to form moral values (Is 7:16; 8:4). They were innocent and therefore not disqualified from entering the land of promise.

1:44 From Seir as far as Hormah refers to an area just south of the Dead Sea and about 50 miles across. Its residents expelled the Israelites because Israel had attempted to penetrate the area despite God's command not to do so (v. 42).

2:1 The Red Sea mentioned here is not the body of water at the Gulf of Suez crossed by Israel during the exodus, but another arm of that sea between the Sinai Peninsula and Arabia.

2:3 The Israelites had tried to avoid the difficult route through the hill country by penetrating Canaan from the south. When that failed they had to go south to the Red Sea, skirt the hill country by hugging the coast, then turn north through Edom's interior.

2:4-5 When Israel encountered the Edomites (the descendants of Esau), they did not attack them because the Lord had given . . . the hill country of Seir as his possession. Thus, Israel was not the only people given a promised land (vv. 9,19; cp. Gn 33:16; 36:1-8). It was Israel's task that was unique and not the fact that God gave them a special place of habitation.

2:8 The Arabah road linked the Dead Sea with the Gulf of Aqaba and took its name from the valley that is part of the Great Rift geological fault (1:1).

2:9 The descendants of Lot were the Moabites and Ammonites, named for the sons whom Lot fathered by his own daughters following the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah (Gn 19:30-38). Lot was Abraham's nephew, and it was this kinship that permitted Moab and Ammon to be treated with such favor. Ar was a city just south of the Arnon gorge, but the name here is synonymous with all of Moab.

2:11 The Rephaim (and Anakim) were a giant race associated not only with Moab (as here) but with Bashan (Jos 12:4) and Ammon (Dt 2:20). Their identification as Anakim locates them also in Canaan, particularly in Philistine areas (Jos 11:21-22; 14:12,15; 15:13-14).

2:12 Esau's clan drove the Horites out of Edom, their ancestral land, and settled Edom in their place (cp. v. 22; Gn 36:8). This statement was probably added by a later inspired writer, since it speaks of Israel's conquest in the past tense.

2:13 The Zered Valley, now known as Wadi el-Hesa, flows from the Edomite hill country into the southeast corner of the Dead Sea.

2:19 Ammon, the brother of Moab—born as the result of incest between Lot and his daughters (v. 9)—was the ancestor of the Ammonites.

2:22 See note at verses 4-5.

2:23 The Caphtorim appear to be equivalent to the earlier Philistines of the patriarchal era (Gn 21:32,34; 26:1,8). They are said to have settled in the vicinity of Gaza (Jos 13:3), and elsewhere they are said to have originated in Caphtor, likely the island of Crete (Jr 47:4; Am 9:7; cp. Gn 10:14). Thus, the common argument that considers Philistines in Genesis as anachronistic has no real substance.

2:24 Heshbon, the capital city of King Sihon the Amorite, is identified by many scholars with Tell Hesban, near Amman, Jordan. However, this seems unlikely because Hesban is too small to have been a capital and it did not exist as early as the biblical date of the conquest.

2:30 The LORD making Sihon's spirit stubborn and his heart obstinate is similar to God's hardening of Pharaoh's heart before the exodus (Ex 9:12; 10:1,20)—an act of God that followed Pharaoh's consistent hardening of his own heart (Ex 8:15,32; 9:34). The hardening in both cases was so God's deliverance could be seen as a miracle on behalf of His people (Dt 2:30; Ex 7:3-5).

2:34 Sihon's destruction sanctioned by the Lord must be viewed not as a cruel act but as a means of eliminating a hopelessly unrepentant people who, if left alive, would corrupt the Israelites through intermarriage and religious syncretism (7:1-6). In fact, Israel's failure to obey God in this respect brought about precisely this result (1Kg 11:1-6; 2Kg 17:7-17).

3:4 The name Bashan (cp. v. 1) is a general term for the whole region north of the Yarmuk River, now the border between Jordan and Syria. Argob appears to have been the technical name for the political entity in Bashan over which Og was ruler.

3:8-9 Mount Hermon, over 9,000 feet high, is the tallest peak of the Anti-Lebanon range. In a psalm thought to have strong literary and conceptual associations with Phoenicia, Hermon is called Sirion (Ps 29:6).

3:11 The iron . . . bed of Og may in fact have been his sarcophagus. The Hebrew term describing it (‘eres) should likely be taken figuratively of Og’s resting place in death.

3:14-15 The conquest of the region of Bashan and part of Gilead was accomplished not by Manasseh per se but by Manassite clans, namely Jair and Machir (cp. Nm 32:39-42). Jair seems to have been a descendant of Machir (1Ch 2:21-23). In any case, they were not contemporaneous, suggesting that the conquest took a number of years.

3:24 Moses’ question was not implying that other gods existed. His point was that the Lord is superior to all gods, real or imaginary, in the polytheistic culture of the time (Is 44:6-20; 45:20-25; Jr 10:11-16).

3:27 Pisgah is the name of a summit in the range of hills in Transjordan called Abarim overlooking the Arabah and the Dead Sea. It lies just north of Mount Nebo, the traditional setting of Moses’ vantage point from which he could see the land of Canaan (32:49). Pisgah (now identified as Ras Siyaghah) and Nebo were twin peaks of the same mountain, but it was from Pisgah that the great lawgiver viewed the land he was forbidden to enter (34:1).

4:1 Statutes and ordinances are technical terms referring to elements common to covenant texts. They occur together regularly in Deuteronomy (vv. 5,8,14,45; 5:1,31; 6:1,20; 7:11; 11:1; 12:1) and always to describe the Lord’s requirement of His people Israel with whom He had entered into covenant fellowship.

4:3 Baal-peor was the place in Transjordan where Israel was first seduced into the licentious worship of the fertility deity Baal of Peor (Nm 25:1-9). As a result the Lord commanded Moses to kill all the men who had participated in this sexually perverse paganism.

4:7 The reference to the gods of the nations suggests only that the nations believed that those gods existed, though, of course, they did not exist (3:24).

4:13 The Ten Commandments were the foundational principles upon which the covenant between the Lord and Israel was based. As with legal texts in general, there must be two copies. Exodus 32:15 points out that each of the two stone tablets was written on both sides.

4:15-18 To conceptualize God in a manufactured form was to limit His power and glory. To worship idols of other gods was to deny God’s uniqueness and sovereignty.

4:20 Egypt's description as an iron furnace is a metaphor for a smelter or crucible whose function was to melt down metals under such intense heat that all the dross and other impurities were separated from them, leaving them pure and usable (Pr 17:3). The Lord had allowed Israel to suffer in Egypt so they would be better prepared to be a people for His inheritance (cp. 1Kg 8:51; Jr 11:4-5; Zch 13:9; Mal 3:3).

4:23-24 God is never envious of anyone or anything, but He emphatically states and defends His right to exclusive worship by His people (6:14-15).

4:26 Since human beings are not qualified to certify the durability and reliability of God's promises, and since no other gods exist to serve as witnesses, Moses invoked heaven and earth to serve that function (30:19; 31:28; cp. note at Gn 22:15-18).

4:27 The peoples and nations most immediately in view are the Assyrians and Babylonians, who took Israel and Judah captive in 722 and 586 B.C. , respectively. Since then, Greece, Rome, and other world powers have successively uprooted the Jewish people for various reasons, including their violation of the covenant the Lord made with them (vv. 23,25; cp. 2Kg 17:7-41; 2Ch 36:15-19).

4:29-31 When Israel went into exile they would find the Lord when they sought Him with all their heart and soul. Yet the promise is clear that this would happen, because they would in fact return to the Lord in later days. The Lord's promises to His chosen people must come to pass because He has sworn by His own reputation to make it so (30:6-10; Gn 17:3-8; Jr 31:31-34; Ezk 36:24-30; Rm 11:1-2,25-26). He thus provides the grace by which Israel can believe, repent, and return (Rm 11:28-32).

4:32-34 The event in view is the whole complex of God's election of Abraham to establish a nation, the deliverance of that nation from Egyptian bondage (v. 34), His gracious act of making covenant with them (v. 33), and His care for them ever since. This event was unique in the history of the world (cp. 32:9; 33:29).

4:41 Before Moses' death and the conquest of Canaan, he selected three cities as places of refuge for people accused but not convicted of manslaughter (19:2-13): one in the territory of Reuben, one in the territory of Gad, and the third in the allotment of Manasseh (4:43).

4:42 Manslaughter is qualified here as the killing of a person accidentally without previously hating him. If the accused hated the victim, there might be cause to suspect him of premeditated murder, in which case no refuge could suffice. Manslaughter today is defined similarly as accidental or "without malice aforethought."

5:2-3 Though revealed again now in a new, expanded form in Moab, this covenant was essentially a restatement of the covenant given 40 years earlier. Fathers refer to the patriarchal ancestors beginning with Abram with whom God had made a covenant centuries earlier (Gn 12:1-3; 15:1-21; 17:1-21).

5:7 The phrase other gods does not admit their existence but only the fact that the polytheistic worldview was rife in the surrounding cultures of OT Israel (4:7; 1Co 8:4-6).

5:8 The Hebrew term translated idol (pesel) means "a carved thing." It could, in this context, refer not just to likenesses of pagan gods but to that of the Lord Himself (4:15-16).

5:9-10 To hate God in a covenant context means not so much to detest Him with strong emotional overtones as it does to reject Him as a covenant partner. For Israel to love God was to choose Him and agree to obey Him (6:4-5; Jn 14:15). Conversely, to hate Him was to disobey Him. When God is the subject, He is said to have loved Israel in the sense that He chose Israel to be His special people (Dt 7:8). The best illustration of love and hate with these nuances is the statement of the Lord, "I loved Jacob, but I hated Esau" (Mal 1:2-3). What clearly is meant is that God had chosen Jacob to inherit the covenant privileges but had not chosen Esau (cp. Gn 25:23; 27:29).

5:11 The Hebrew word behind the term misuse bears the literal idea of using the name of the LORD in an empty, flippant, or purposeless way. To make light of His name is to denigrate God Himself (12:5).

5:12 To remember the Sabbath day is, literally, to set it apart for a special purpose. The emphasis is not so much on remaining inactive on the Sabbath as it is on making it a time of reflection, praise, worship, and service.

5:14 The seventh day calls to mind the seventh day of creation by which time all of God's creation work had been accomplished (Gn 2:1-2). The verb used in Genesis is (Hb) shavath ("to cease") which lends the nuance of stopping from one thing with the possibility of doing something else, not necessarily an absolute cessation from activity.

5:15 To remember in Hebrew idiom carries the sense of deep reflection and meditation on the past, particularly with regard to God's mighty acts of love and grace (7:18; 8:2; 9:7; 15:15; Ps 42:4,6; 77:11; 137:6; Is 46:8; 1Co 11:24-25). In the exodus account, the motive for remembering the Sabbath was that God had ceased His creation work on the seventh day (Ex 20:11). In Deuteronomy, Israel was called on to remember a more recent event, God's mightiest work on their behalf—their redemption from cruel bondage.

5:16 As those created in the image of God and most immediately representing

His glory and His authority over them, children must honor their father and their mother. The word "honor" translates a verb meaning literally "regard as weighty." It is associated with the notion that important people are "heavyweights," loaded down with glory and honor. Parents were to be considered as such, heavy with responsibility and privilege of which children must be aware and to which they must submit if they are to be obedient and pleasing to God. The opposite is to dishonor parents by considering them to be nobodies. Exodus 21:17 states that "whoever curses his father or his mother must be put to death." The word "curses" here translates a verb meaning "be light" or "esteem to be light." To honor one's parents is to accord them the highest esteem; to dishonor them is to curse them and regard them with contempt.

5:17 Though a generic term for killing is used here, the intent clearly is to speak of premeditated murder. Manslaughter as accidental homicide has already been considered (4:42), and killing by government and other constituted authority was permitted as capital punishment (13:5,9; Ex 21:12,14-17) and in times of war (Dt 7:2; 20:13,17). Murder is heinous because human beings are created in the image of God and their murder, in effect, is a blow against God Himself (Gn 9:5-6).

5:18 Adultery is described in a number of ancient Near Eastern texts as "the great sin," suggesting that even pagans were aware of its seriousness. A common biblical image is marriage as a metaphor for God's relationship to Israel (Ezk 16:8,32; Hs 2:14-16) and for Christ's relationship to the church (Rv 19:7; 21:2,9). In both cases, unfaithfulness on the part of God's people is identical to adultery.

5:20 The Ninth Commandment is most at home in a legal setting where testimony is required of witnesses or other knowledgeable persons. Since a person accused of a crime could suffer serious penalties or death for his violation of the law, it was essential that the evidence be truthful (cp. 17:6; 19:15-21).

5:21 To covet and to desire are essentially the same thing, as is seen in Ex 20:17 where the same Hebrew verb is used of both houses and wives. Here the same verb occurs for wife and a different verb for everything else. A possible explanation is that in the land of Canaan families would live in close quarters where desire for a neighbor's property might be a more serious temptation.

5:22 The fire, cloud, and thick darkness indicated the Lord's transcendent glory. The fire suggested its openness and the cloud and darkness its hiddenness. Were the glory of the Lord to appear in all its brightness, no human could look upon it and live (vv. 25-26; Ex 19:20-22). The two stone tablets reflect the ancient Near Eastern custom of making a copy of the covenant texts for each party. One of these was for the Lord and the other for Israel.

5:28-29 Upon receiving the terms of the covenant, the people had said, "We will do all that the Lord has spoken" (Ex 19:8). However, the Lord would not be impressed with their verbal commitment but with a heart to fear Him and keep all His commands.

6:1 The term translated command is a generic word synonymous with the covenant as a whole, including within it statutes and ordinances.

6:2 The fear of the Lord is not a condition of terror or foreboding. Rather, it is a profound reverence for God that may, indeed, have overtones or manifestations of fear in the usual sense (5:5,24-26; Ex 3:6), though that is not the intent here (see word study on yare' at Dt 10:12).

6:3 Milk and honey were products of the comparatively rich soils of Canaan, but are also metaphorical of the best the land had to offer from human labor (milk) and nature (honey). The phrase became a cliché that is likely also a merism, a figure of speech intended to include all things by mentioning two of its parts (11:9; Ex 3:8,17; Nm 13:27).

A Jewish man praying at the Western Wall in Jerusalem. He wears phylacteries that come from a Jewish tradition dating to the 2nd century B.C. They were required to be worn at morning prayers and festivals but not on Sabbaths. A phylactery, or frontlet, is a small black leather (or parchment) case containing four OT Scriptures which is attached to a long single leather strap by a loop, forming two long straps on either side of the loop.

6:4-5 These two verses are commonly known as the Shema (shuh MAH), after the first word of verse 4 in Hebrew. This was considered the greatest commandment; Jesus Christ, when asked which commandment was greatest, cited this passage (Mk 12:28-30). The Shema is the foundational principle for the Ten Commandments, and they in turn contain the essence of God's covenant with Israel. It is divided between a statement asserting the nature of God and one enjoining a certain response to that understanding. He is described as being One —of a single essence. Other interpretations are that the LORD alone is our God or the Lord our God is one Lord.

6:6 The Shema must be more than a mere abstraction: it must first be deeply ingrained in the heart (that is, the mind; v. 5) and then put into action.

6:7 The old adage that "repetition aids learning" is an ancient one as this verse attests. Parents must repeat the words of the Shema and the rest of God's instruction to their children and not in a hit-or-miss manner. There must be strong intentionality that issues in constant instruction by word and deed about devotion to God. By a figure of speech (merism) Moses described the unremitting process of education by speaking in terms of opposites. To sit and to walk suggest being at rest and being active, that is, in any situation. To lie down and to get up naturally call to mind nighttime and daytime, that is, all the time. The kind of love God requires is one that is full time and under every circumstance. Children must therefore be taught to love Him in the same way.

6:8 Though the command to bind the commandments is most likely figurative language, such practices were taken literally in postbiblical Judaism and remain part of contemporary conservative Jewish custom.

6:9 The doorposts of Israel's houses and their gates must be identified as those dedicated to covenant compliance by the affixing of the law to them as well. Small metal boxes known as (Hb) mezuzah are to this day attached to doorways of Jewish homes to signify the commitment of their inhabitants to Judaism. These also contain Scripture portions (vv. 4-9; 11:13-21).

6:10-11 The reference to cities Israel did not build, houses they did not fill . . . wells they did not dig, and vineyards and olive groves they did not plant is significant in terms of the nature of Israel's conquest of Canaan. With few exceptions, physical structures and agricultural assets were left intact precisely so Israel could take them over and thus more quickly and easily settle the land (Jos 11:13; 24:13). On the other hand, the wicked Canaanite populations were to be destroyed because they would become a stumbling block to Israel, an influence drawing them away from the Lord and toward idolatry (Dt 7:1-6).

6:16 Massah means "testing" and refers to an episode in Exodus in which Israel, fresh from deliverance from Egypt, demanded that Moses provide them water to drink (Ex 17:1-7). At the Lord's instruction, Moses struck a rock from which water gushed forth. The real issue was not water, however, but Israel's unbelief. The people were testing the Lord to see if He was really among them (Ex 17:7).

6:20 With the passing of time it is difficult to keep fresh the ideas and principles that give birth to movements and institutions. Moses was keenly aware that Israel must never forget its history.

6:24 The reason for remembering the history of God's dealings with His people was so that future generations might understand them (v. 20) and fear the LORD. This would ensure prosperity from the Lord as well as their preservation.

6:25 Absolute righteousness cannot be earned by good works but is imparted only by the grace of God through faith (Eph 2:8-9). This fundamental truth is rooted in God's covenant with Abraham, who "believed the Lord and He [God] credited it to him as righteousness" (Gn 15:6). Abraham did nothing but believe, and on that basis alone he was declared righteous (cp. Rm 4:1-3,9-12). In this verse righteousness is associated with obedience of the Lord's commands, suggesting, if read in isolation from the rest of Scripture, that righteousness can be earned. However, reading this verse in the larger context of Deuteronomy (7:7-11; 9:5-6) makes it clear that God's favor is a gift that can't be earned. Having received God's gift, the believer is called to live according to the standard expected of those to whom the covenant has been extended.

7:1 The seven nations were the inhabitants of Canaan who in some cases had lived there since the days of Abraham (Gn 12:6; 13:7; 15:21). Their long tenure there had not secured them any claim to the land, however, for in the plan of God Canaan had from ages past been allotted to Abraham and his descendants (Gn 12:1; 13:14-17; 15:18-21). The time had now come to dispossess these people so that Israel, the offspring of Abraham, could take their rightful place.

7:2 Completely destroy translates a Hebrew verb that has the technical meaning of placing someone or something under the ban (charam), an aspect of what may be described as "holy war" or "Yahweh war." This was warfare initiated by the LORD to annihilate its targets or bring them into His possession or under His dominion. The religious or theological nature of this kind of war is clear from the presence of the priests and of the ark of the covenant whenever God directed its use (20:1-4; Jos 6:1-5).

7:3-4 Prohibition against intermarriage between Israel and the nations was designed to protect Israel from the worship of other gods. Alluding to this text, Paul commanded, “Do not be mismatched with unbelievers,” and then he made a linkage with idolatry when he asked what agreement Christ can have with Belial or God’s sanctuary with idols (2Co 6:14-16).

7:5 Sacred pillars, usually of stone, marked places deemed to be holy because of the appearance there of deity. Sometimes they were erected by God’s people (Gn 28:18-22; 35:14; Ex 24:4), but usually they were associated with Baal worship (Ex 23:24; 34:13; 2Kg 18:4; 23:14). Asherah, the principal goddess of the Canaanite pantheon, was represented sometimes as a living tree (Dt 16:21; Mc 5:14) but most often as a wooden pole (1Kg 14:15,23; 16:33; 2Kg 17:10,16; Is 17:8). Both objects symbolized fertility rites and other rituals of the crudest kind.

7:6 The term possession translates a Hebrew noun (segullah) that describes an unusually precious treasure. It occurs also in Ex 19:5 upon the Lord’s offer of the Mosaic covenant to Israel at Mount Sinai. As Creator He has claim to all the peoples, but in line with His purposes to redeem them, He chose only the holy people Israel as the vehicle of His saving grace (Rm 9:1-5; 11:28-32).

7:8 God’s choice of Israel as “His own possession” (v. 6) was not based on any merit on Israel’s part but solely on His love for them (4:37). Their present position as imminent heirs of the land of promise was evidence of His love.

7:9 A thousand generations is a term denoting an immeasurable future and not a specific span of time. The point is that God’s covenant loyalty is boundless and unending. Though Israel (and mankind in general) might prove to be unfaithful to the Lord, the promises of God to the nation cannot fail to be fulfilled (30:1-10; Jr 31:31-34; Ezk 36:24-32; Rm 11:29).

7:12-15 These blessings do not include the fundamental covenant relationship with the LORD per se. God’s promises depended on heeding and being careful to keep the covenant ordinances (28:1-4; Lv 26:3-13).

7:19 Signs and wonders (words commonly joined in the OT; cp. 4:34; 6:22; 26:8; 29:3; Neh 9:10; Ps 135:9; Dn 6:27) were deeds done by the LORD to generate faith on the part of His people and to sustain them in times of doubt, such as the exodus deliverance referred to here (Ex 7:3; 8:23; 10:2; 11:9). Jesus also performed signs and wonders that only the Messiah could accomplish (Jn 2:11; 3:2; 4:54; 6:2,14; cp. Jn 20:30-31). Signs and wonders could also be performed by false prophets, however (Ex 7:11; Dt 13:1-2), so by themselves they did not attest to divine origination.

7:20 The hornet is likely a metaphor for military forces (1:44; Is 7:18-19) or other means, natural or otherwise, that the LORD would use to drive out the illegal residents of the land.

7:24 The threat to wipe out the names of Israel's enemies indicates their utter destruction. When the Lord threatened to destroy Israel for worshiping the golden calf, Moses said that if that threat were carried out he would want his name erased from the Lord's book. The Lord answered that only those who sinned against Him would suffer that fate (Ex 32:32-33; Rm 9:3).

7:25-26 The warning not to covet went unheeded by Achan, who, following the conquest of Jericho, buried stolen silver and gold in his tent (Jos 7:20-23). Because these things had been placed under the ban (the [Hb] cherem; cp. Dt 7:2), they should have been turned over as tribute to the Lord. Should any Israelites (like Achan) take such spoils into their houses, the annihilation that often accompanied cherem would fall on them. This is the meaning of the phrase set apart for destruction.

8:2 The 40-year journey . . . in the wilderness was partly a punishment of Israel for her unwillingness to occupy the land at first (Nm 14:26-35), but it also was a time for the Lord to humble and test His people to determine the quality of their character and their commitment to obedience. They had tested the Lord and found Him trustworthy (6:16; cp. Ex 17:5-7), but the older generation failed the test and thus were unable to enter the land of promise (Ex 20:20; Dt 1:34-40).

8:3 Manna (cp. Ex 16:31) was a bread-like substance that the Lord miraculously provided His people as a sign of His loving care and, more important, of the fact that Israel must recognize its dependence on Him. When Jesus was tempted by Satan to turn stones into bread, He cited this text to remind the enemy that physical bread lasts for a little while and has limited value (Mt 4:4). On another occasion He described Himself as the Bread of Life (Jn 6:35).

8:5-6 Israel as God's covenant son (cp. Ex 4:22-23) must, like all children, submit to His paternal leadership and care. In biblical imagery, walking is a metaphor for pursuing a course of life, while fearing suggests a sense of reverence, appreciating the holy and solemn awesomeness of God.

8:11 Forgetting the LORD is not simply failing to recall that God exists, but acting as though He does not. It does no good to call Him Lord and refuse to do what He says (Lk 6:46).

8:18 No matter how clever, intelligent, or hard-working a person might be, success flows only from the gracious hand of the Lord (Jms 4:13-16). Israel's prosperity must be interpreted as the fulfillment of ancient promises made to the patriarchal ancestors as part of the covenant blessing the Lord would lavish upon them (Gn 15:14; 17:6; Dt 28:1-6). By blessing them in this manner the Lord would confirm His covenant to Israel.

8:19-20 The threat that Israel would perish cannot mean utter annihilation because the promise God made to the ancestors was that they would endure forever (Gn 17:7; Ps 105:9-10; Jr 33:25-26; Rm 11:25-32). In light of future events, the perishing of Israel was her exile from the land and the cessation of her self-governance, which ended the dynasty of David. Even that was not complete because a remnant remained in the land (Jos 15:63; 16:10; Jdg 2:20-23).

9:1 The nations greater and stronger than Israel are the seven listed in 7:1, all of which were essentially Canaanite by that time. This description is probably hyperbolic to show the impossibility of their being overcome by Israel without God's help. It also recalls the account of the spies who, 40 years earlier, had reported that the cities of Canaan were large and fortified and the people were gigantic (Nm 13:28,33). Joshua and Caleb had said that Israel could still prevail because the Lord would be with them (Nm 13:30; 14:7-8).

9:2 The Anakim were a giant people so feared that a proverb arose comparing any difficult situation to that of facing the Anakim. Joshua defeated them later (Jos 11:21-23).

9:3 The depiction of God as a consuming fire reflects not only His awesome presence (Ex 19:12-13,18,21; 24:17) but also His role as a warrior leading His hosts in holy war (Ex 15:6-7; Ps 18:7-15; 21:9; 50:3-5; Rv 1:12-16).

9:4 God sometimes saves His own because of their righteousness and other times He condemns His enemies because of their wickedness. It is important to know the difference and to realize that often what is thought to be a reward for personal righteousness may be God's response to the unrighteousness of others.

9:6 Israel's possession of the land would take place not because of her righteousness, for, in fact, she was anything but righteous. She was a stiff-necked people, a nation like a stubborn ox that would not submit to the yoke and pull its load. Any good thing that came to her from the Lord—including the conquest of Canaan—issued only from the grace of God. The very definition of biblical grace is receiving what one does not deserve. God's bestowal of such grace was based on His election of Israel to be His people and the self-obligation under which He put Himself to fulfill the promises He had made to the patriarchs.

9:8 The provocation at Horeb concerned the fabrication of a golden calf by Aaron and many of the people while Moses was receiving the Ten Commandments (Ex 32:1-6). The Lord was so angered by their idolatry that He wanted to destroy His people, but He was so committed to them by virtue of the everlasting covenant He had made with Abraham that absolute destruction was unthinkable.

9:10 The reference to God's finger is an anthropomorphism, which is the attribution to God of human characteristics. As Jesus told the Samaritan woman: "God is spirit, and those who worship Him must worship in spirit and truth" (Jn 4:24). Having no physical body, "God's finger" must be construed as His direct involvement in the inscription on the stone tablets. Inasmuch as He ordinarily revealed Himself through dreams and visions (Nm 12:6), the more immediate process of inscripturation (the writing of Scripture) here is striking.

9:11 The commandments were engraved on two stone tablets because each party to a covenant must have a copy.

9:12 The cast image was in the form of a calf, but it likely was not a pagan deity but an attempt to represent the Lord Himself. Israel was no doubt familiar with the powerful Apis bull of Egyptian mythology and also with El (also called "Bull"), chief of the Canaanite pantheon.

9:14 The Lord could carry out His threat and still be true to the Abrahamic promise that his seed would never end by preserving Moses. The Exodus narrative records Moses' intercession in response to the threat.

9:17 Moses' shattering of the tablets was more than an act of justifiable rage. Just as the commandments now lay in a thousand pieces, so Israel had smashed the covenant seemingly beyond repair. It also anticipated the shattering of the calf image to signify the removal of idolatry from the nation (v. 21).

9:19 Moses' acknowledgement that the LORD listened to him and averted His intended wrath teaches not only that Moses was a faithful advocate but that God hears the prayers of those who earnestly intercede with Him for others (Jms 5:13-18).

9:21 The disposition of the sinful calf revealed the impotence of idols and dramatized how anything that competes for the worship of the true God is to be dealt with. Moses' example had to be repeated many times in Israel's history (1Kg 15:13; 2Kg 11:18; 18:4; 23:4).

9:27 Moses' prayer that the Lord would remember His servants rose not out of any fear that He would no longer retain them in His consciousness but out of a desire that He would act to keep His covenant promises to them. "Remember" when in reference to God always carries with it an implicit response or action.

9:29 For Israel to be God's inheritance meant that they belonged to Him (7:6) and also that He belonged to them, a unique relationship that gave each of them exclusive claims on the other.

10:2 The fact that the new tablets had the same words as the first suggests that Moses was not free to improvise and capture just the essence of their wording. This attention to precise detail lays the foundation for a verbal plenary view of inspiration. God's Word may have come through human instruments, but it was done so without error of the slightest kind (2Tm 3:16-17; 2Pt 1:20-21). The commandments were engraved on two tablets because each party to a covenant must have a copy. Both copies were deposited in the ark of the covenant (Ex 25:16), probably because it was a location held in common by both parties.

10:6 Like the office of king, that of the priesthood was hereditary. Aaron and his sons were selected first, as members of the priestly tribe of Levi (Nm 17:3,8). Two of Aaron's four sons died because of an act of sacrilege (Lv 10:1-5). Of his two surviving sons, Eleazar was next in line for the office of chief priest (Nm 20:25-26).

10:8-9 All the tribes of Israel except Levi received allotments of territory; the LORD was Levi's inheritance. Levi was to devote itself fully to the service of the Lord, at first in the tabernacle in the wilderness and then in the temple in Jerusalem. This was because of Israel's redemption from Egypt, which demanded in turn that Israel dedicate to the Lord the firstborn son of every family in lieu of the firstborn who were spared in the tenth plague (Ex 13:1-2,14-16).

10:14-15 The Lord's choice of Israel is a mark of inexplicable and discretionary grace, because Israel had no moral or theological claim to the Lord's favor (7:7-11; Ex 19:5).

10:16 Circumcision was the sign of the Abrahamic covenant, a rite to be followed by all succeeding generations of the faithful (Gn 17:9-14). This symbolized a cutting off of the previous life and a willingness to propagate sons and daughters who would also enter into covenant with the Lord. Circumcision of the flesh alone could not guarantee a right relationship to the Lord because that relationship was one of faith springing from the heart. Moses therefore commanded Israel, Circumcise your hearts and don't be stiff-necked any longer, an exhortation picked up in the NT as well (Rm 2:25-29; Col 2:8-15).

10:18-19 The OT is clear that those who take advantage of defenseless people can expect the Lord's swift and severe judgment (24:17-18; Ex 22:21-24; Ps 146:9; Jr 7:3-8). The Israelites were foreigners themselves in the land of Egypt; those delivered from difficult and oppressive situations should be the first to deal kindly with others in the same circumstances.

10:22 Israel's explosive growth was an overwhelming sign of the Lord's faithfulness to His promises to Abraham (Gn 15:5; Ex 1:1-5). Though comparison to the stars of the sky is hyperbolic, so large a population growth within 430 years is miraculous (Ex 12:37,40).

11:1 -2 The people had seen and experienced the Lord's discipline and were therefore without excuse for their waywardness. Their children, on the other hand, were not so culpable for they had not seen these things for themselves.

11:3-4 The signs and works are the plagues the Lord inflicted on Pharaoh and Egypt and the miracle of drowning their armies in the Red Sea. Seeing these proofs of God's power and glory should have instilled such a sense of awe in His people that they could not help but love and serve Him unreservedly, but that was not the case (9:7-24).

11:6 Dathan and Abiram, along with Korah the Levite, led a rebellion against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness (Nm 16:1-3). Their sin was more against the Lord than against human authority because they questioned His selection of leaders (Nm 16:8-11). Their rebellion resulted in their destruction and that of their families and properties as well.

11:9-11 The description of Canaan is especially meaningful in comparison to Egypt, where rain was scarce and agriculture depended on the annual overflow of the Nile River and irrigation by hand. The fact that Canaan was watered by rain from the sky insinuates that the rain came from God Himself so that it was He who did the backbreaking work for them. For "hand" (v. 10) the Hebrew has "foot," which may refer to a primitive foot-operated irrigation pump called in Arabic shaduf.

11:13-14 The rainy season in Israel, or early rains, begins in the autumn, while spring is the time of the late rains. This provision of the Lord for the land indicated His care in "watching over it from the beginning to the end of the year" (v. 12). So important was this agricultural cycle that the Israelites celebrated the new year in the fall.

11:16 The warning not to turn aside, worship, and bow down to other gods must be understood in the context of the agricultural motifs just described. Baal, Asherah, Astarte, and other gods and goddesses were thought to generate and sustain life in soil, livestock, and even human beings by their own sexual activity, and they became objects of worship, often through various fertility rites. Moses and the prophets constantly condemned such incursions into paganism (2Kg 17:7-15).

11:17 The LORD's closing of the sky would prove that the gods of the heathen did not exist and that He was the One who created and sustained life.

11:18-20 God's command is a repetition of the instruction given when introducing the Shema (6:4-9; see note at 6:4-5), here clearly showing that all of God's instruction is to be learned and passed along, not just the Shema. Hearts is a metaphor for the intellect, and minds represents the person as a whole being. Together, they are the internalizing of the word of God.

11:21 The phrase as long as the heavens are above the earth is a biblical way of expressing the idea of forever. The Lord promised this land to the patriarchs on the condition of their obedience and the obedience of their descendants (28:36-37; Gn 17:9-14; Lv 26:14-33).

11:24 Every place the sole of your foot treads is a way of describing conquest and occupation of a territory, usually (but not always) by military might. The image occurs in Gn 13:17 where Abraham was told to "walk around the land, through its length and width," a sign that it would become his as a gift from the Lord. God also told Joshua on the eve of the conquest of Canaan, "I have given you every place where the sole of your foot treads" (Jos 1:3). The area described here is essentially the territory controlled by David (2Sm 8:1-3) and promised in ancient times to Abraham (Gn 15:18-19).

11:26-28 Blessing and curse were essential elements in ancient Near Eastern covenant or treaty texts. Moses, as covenant mediator, set before the people a blessing and a curse, the full texts of which he elaborates later on (27:15-28:58). The disobedience mentioned was covenant disloyalty, defined as following other gods.

11:29 Mount Gerizim and Mount Ebal were twin peaks overshadowing a wide valley in which ancient Shechem (and modern Nablus) was located. This is where Jacob bought property and dug a well (Gn 33:19-20; Jn 4:6), the very well where Jesus encountered the Samaritan woman and from which she directed His attention to Mount Gerizim, the site of the Samaritan temple (Jn 4:20).

12:2 The high mountains, the hills, and the green tree were sites of pagan worship where the peoples of Canaan built their altars and shrines, though at times they were located even in the valleys (2Kg 23:10; 2Ch 28:3). Groves of trees or even single trees also marked sacred places because their luxuriant growth, surrounded by sparse vegetation, symbolized the gods' fertility (1Kg 14:23; 2Kg 16:4; Jr 2:20).

12:3 The sacred pillars and Asherah poles were stone and wooden columns that represented, respectively, Baal and Asherah, the principal Canaanite fertility deities (7:5).

12:5 Israel must seek Yahweh at the place He chooses to put His name. In the wilderness this was at various altars (Ex 20:24), but once in the land only one central sanctuary would qualify. At first this was Gilgal, then Shechem, then for many years at Shiloh, and finally Jerusalem, the location of Solomon's temple. This place alone came to be recognized as the Lord's dwelling, though Solomon himself realized that it could only symbolically be such because in reality even heaven cannot contain the omnipresent God (1Kg 8:27).

12:6 Tenths and personal contributions are essentially synonymous, the former being a generic term for mandatory gifts to the Lord and the latter a subset of offerings designated to religious personnel, especially the priests and Levites (Lv

7:32,34). A traditional term for tenths is “tithes.” All such gifts must be given to the Lord at the central sanctuary and then redistributed to meet the needs of those who served Him there.

12:7 Those who worship at the central sanctuary must share their freewill offerings (v. 6) with one another in the presence of the LORD . Sometimes the Lord Himself was perceived as participating in a common meal with His worshipers. This would, of course, be symbolized by the offerings to Him (Ex 24:5-8,11).

12:8 An individual Israelite doing whatever seems right in his own eyes does not mean that religious anarchy prevailed as in the days of the judges (Jdg 21:25). In this context it speaks to the lack of a single central sanctuary site in the wilderness.

12:10-11 The first permanent central place of worship was Shiloh, in the center of the land (Jr 7:12). The tabernacle remained there nearly 300 years, from the latter days of Joshua until the early years of the prophet Samuel.

12:13-14 The sacred places were pagan shrines as well as local worship centers that at times were perfectly appropriate. The former were taboo under any circumstances (vv. 2-3). The prohibition against the others must be understood as distinguishing between private worship and the corporate worship of all Israel. The principle behind this whole section of Deuteronomy is the recognition of Israel as a single entity, God’s covenant people.

12:15-16 When the community as a whole was not in pilgrimage at the three annual festivals, slaughter at a local level for profane purposes was acceptable. Certain other restrictions were lifted when slaughtering for food, including the need for ritual purification and the avoidance of clean game animals (Lv 1:2).

12:17-18 Animals and produce intended for sacrifice only must be offered only in a place set apart by the Lord for worship (Ex 20:24). This is clear because the place mentioned here is not described as the place where His name dwells (Dt 12:5). The OT has many examples of local shrines that coexisted with either the tabernacle or the temple and were yet considered legitimate places of worship of the true God (Jdg 6:26; 1Sm 7:17; 1Kg 18:30).

12:21 Religious rites could be carried out apart from the central sanctuary, provided certain requirements, such as the proper disposal of the blood, were carried out (vv. 22-25).

12:23 Blood must not be eaten because blood is the life. Since life is regarded as sacred in the Bible (Gn 9:4; Lv 17:11), blood—the most eloquent metaphor for life itself—was also sacred and therefore could not be eaten.

12:24 The rationale for pouring blood on the ground seems to be that just as man was created from the ground and returns to the ground at death, so blood, the ultimate symbol of life, should also be returned to the earth.

12:27 Burnt offerings is a generic term for sin and trespass offerings and others required to restore fellowship with God. Other sacrifices indicate nonexpiatory or propitiatory sacrifices such as fellowship or peace offerings.

12:30 The residual effects of the wicked nations of Canaan would be so powerful that even after their expulsion from the land, the Israelites would be tempted to inquire about their gods. The human heart is fickle, always in danger of yielding to a downward pull (Jr 17:9).

12:31 Human sacrifice was part of the ritual of many ancient religions, including those of Canaan and surrounding nations. They believed it had the persuasive power to coerce the gods to a course of action on one's behalf or to avert calamity; therefore the more precious the victim, the more likely the desired response. The unthinkable act of burning sons and daughters was associated especially with the Moabite god, Chemosh, and the Ammonite god, Molech (Lv 18:21; 2Kg 3:27). Worse still, Israel at various times permitted or even authorized human sacrifice (Jr 32:35).

13:1 The person who arises among you refers to a fellow Israelite. Being the chosen people did not guarantee that none who violated the covenant would ever turn up.

13:2 The genuineness of prophets and dreamers cannot be determined by their ability to perform a sign or wonder (cp. 4:34), but by their commitment to the Lord and their faithfulness in proclaiming His word. The message must validate the works of signs and wonders, and not the reverse.

13:3 The dreamer's remarkable ability may originate with the Lord Himself to know whether you love the LORD your God with all your heart and all your soul. Not all such manifestations are from Satan (though surely some can be; cp. Rv 13:2), for the Lord desires to reveal who truly knows and loves Him that others might know the true character of those whom they are called to follow. The greatest commandment, the Shema (Dt 6:4-9), instructs God's people to "love the Lord your God with all your heart and all your soul," exactly the demand made here. A person can profess that kind of love, but sometimes only severe testing can authenticate the testimony.

13:4 To love the Lord is to fear Him, to fear Him is to love Him, and the proof of both is obedience. Jesus linked these together when He said, "If you love Me, you will keep My commands" (Jn 14:15).

13:5 The death sentence for false prophets within Israel reflects the severity of their offense. Acts of treason against human rulers and their governments are commonly capital offenses, how much more when seditious disloyalty is displayed against the King of kings? The first of the Ten Commandments states,

“Do not have other gods besides Me” (5:7). Only by such drastic measures would the nation be able to purge the evil from its midst.

13:6-8 Loyalty to the Lord outweighs loyalty to any other person, family members included. Jesus made this matter clear when He taught His disciples “the person who loves father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me” (Mt 10:37).

13:9 Being the first to undertake retribution would likely deter someone from making false accusation and would also underscore the seriousness of the offence. Silence in the face of such egregious violation of covenant would in and of itself suggest implication on the part of the one who refused to testify. Sometimes the cost of loving the Lord might be a willingness to forfeit family in pursuit of a higher good.

13:10-11 The deterrent effect of stoning a covenant traitor to death was to make all Israel . . . afraid so that they would no longer do such evil again. If not immediately and consistently applied, such measures are unlikely to have any good effect.

13:12-13 Unpunished individual apostasy is likely to spread near and far like a disease. If wicked men lead the inhabitants of their city astray, other individuals or households will become contaminated. Though Israel was God’s elect covenant nation, the salvation of a chosen people is no guarantee of the salvation of all its members. As Paul put it, “For not all who are descended from Israel are Israel . . . That is, it is not the children by physical descent who are God’s children, but the children of the promise are considered to be the offspring” (Rm 9:6,8).

13:15-16 An Israelite city that tolerated apostasy must be burned to the ground like a pagan city (cp. 3:6; 7:2). The point is that rebellion against the Lord is rebellion, no matter its source. To be the chosen nation did not exempt Israel from God’s judgment should they violate His covenant requirements. The same was true of a single individual or a family (cp. 13:6-11) such as in the case of Achan, who stole goods from the ruins of Jericho that should have been devoted to the Lord (Jos 7). Furthermore, a city once destroyed as an effect of the ban was under a curse and often was never to be rebuilt. This was true of Jericho (Jos 6:26) and Ai (Jos 8:28).

14:1 -2 The Canaanites and other heathen lamented their dead in all kinds of physical ways, including pulling out the hair and lacerating the body, perhaps to gain sympathy from the gods and thus a renewed sense of peace and equilibrium (1Kg 18:28; Jr 47:5; Hs 7:14). Israel, however, must not imitate these pagan practices (Lv 19:27-28). Having been chosen by God above all nations, they must live to reflect His glory and their own uniqueness as bearers of the covenant.

14:3 A detestable thing is anything that the Lord declares to be such, regardless of its nature or character. Whatever God deems to be holy (or acceptable) is, by virtue of His decision, to be viewed as holy. Likewise, what He states to be unholy is unholy because of His having said so.

14:7 The hare (similar to rabbits) and hyrax (similar to badgers) are not technically ruminants, but the way they chew their food makes it appear that they chew the cud. In this and other cases the Bible reflects the prescientific custom of describing or classifying things by their everyday appearance and not according to exhaustive testing and observation. Rather than seeking to convey to the Hebrews scientific knowledge that would not be discovered until many centuries later, God simply accommodated their commonplace observations (i.e., that hares seemingly "chew the cud"). Such accommodation is an act of grace and love on God's part, making His revelations comprehensible to the original audience.

14:21 Carcass means any animal that had died naturally. The reason for the prohibition has to do again with the principle of holiness. God's people were strictly forbidden to come in contact with the dead lest they become ritually impure (Lv 11:24-40). By eating a carcass they would compromise their status as a holy people belonging to the LORD .

14:22 Paying the tenth is not a practice first instituted in the Mosaic law, but one adopted by that law and mandated as part of the regular worship of the Lord. When Abraham returned from his battle with the kings of the east, he paid Melchizedek a tenth of all he had (Gn 14:20). Likewise, Jacob, having encountered God at Bethel, promised Him that if he returned safely from his journey to Haran, he would render to the Lord a tenth of his possessions (Gn 28:18-22). In the context of the Mosaic covenant, the Lord is viewed as the great King to whom tribute is due (Nm 23:21; 31:28).

14:24-25 Grace even in the midst of apparent legalism in the OT is clearly displayed in this concession to allow certain tithes-givers to offer money instead of animals or produce.

14:26 The practice of buying offerings continued into NT times but came to be abused by money changers who bought low and sold high, turning the sacred precincts of the temple into what Jesus called a "marketplace" (Jn 2:16).

14:28-29 In the absence of a "paid clergy" in ancient Israel, priests and Levites depended on the offerings of the people for their livelihood. Thus, every third year a tenth of all the produce must be stored up for distribution not only to the Levite, but to the foreigner, the fatherless, and the widow. The more the people cared for the less fortunate, the more they could expect the blessing of the Lord.

15:1-3 The principle of the Sabbath—that all creation should rest and be rejuvenated on the seventh day—was extended to the seventh year as well. Canceling debts on the sabbatical year meant that (1) the borrower who was unable to pay his debt could walk away free of obligation following the seventh year or (2) repayment could not be demanded on the seventh year. On the other hand, a foreigner must pay back his loan entirely. The reason for the sabbatical release was likely related to the remission of Israel's debt to Egypt by the Lord's gracious deliverance in the exodus. Jesus spoke of such grace in His parable of the unforgiving slave who, though having been forgiven of a great debt to his creditor, refused to forgive a small debt owed to him (Mt 18:32-33).

15:4-5 The declaration that there will be no poor among you is neither an unqualified assertion nor a prediction. There should be no poor because the Lord would abundantly bless them in the land He was giving them. Due to sin this ideal was never achieved throughout Israel's history and, indeed, Jesus Himself affirmed, "You always have the poor with you" (Mt 26:11; cp. Dt 15:11).

15:9 A stingy creditor might be tempted not to lend to his poor brother when the seventh year was near because he would then have less chance of being repaid (cp. v. 2). Such an attitude, however, is a sin against the Lord.

15:12-14 Not only a debtor but a bondservant must also be relieved of encumbrances in the seventh year. According to the Mosaic law, a poor person could indenture himself to a more affluent Israelite in order to work off any indebtedness (Ex 21:2-11). Unlike the repayment of a monetary debt, which was cancelled after a fixed period (Dt 15:1), a bond servant must work a full six years and then be set . . . free with a generous spirit and with provisions proportionate to the blessing of the Lord upon the benefactor.

15:15 Referring to the exodus deliverance, Moses provided the motivation or justification for beneficent treatment of the poor debtor. The least a creditor could do was to release his Hebrew brother from his financial bondage and supply him with provisions sufficient for a new start in life. Even the Egyptians had done this much for their departed Hebrew slaves (Ex 12:35-36).

15:17 Release from bondage was not mandatory for bond slaves. Should they love their masters and find life more pleasant and secure in their relationship with them, they were entitled to stay with them (v. 16). Such a commitment was for a lifetime, however, and must be carefully thought out ahead of time. Once the decision was made, the slave submitted to an ordeal in which the master took an awl and pierced through his ear into the door, thus indicating the slave's desire to become the master's slave for life. Besides testifying publicly by this act that the slave was committing himself wholly and permanently to his master, the scar he bore would be a reminder to him and others from that time forward that he was no longer his own. Paul may have had this in mind when he said, "I bear on my body scars for the cause of Jesus" (Gl 6:17). That is, his wounds marked him as a slave of Christ for life.

The female slave was treated in exactly the same way. The same law in Ex 21:6 states that the slave under these circumstances had to go before the judges to formalize the arrangement and then her ear would be bored against the doorpost. The word for judges (Hb elohim) usually means "God," so that the doorpost where the ear was pierced may have been at the tabernacle, making the ceremony a religious act.

15:18 A hired hand would normally work for hourly wages, while a bond slave could be called upon day and night. For this reason, his or her service was worth twice the wages of a hired hand. This fact lends significance to Paul's description of himself as "a slave of Christ Jesus" (Rm 1:1; cp. Php 1:1; Ti 1:1), and it should also enhance the meaning of Christian discipleship. We are not mere hirelings or temporary servants, but slaves with a lifetime commitment.

15:19 In gratitude to the Lord for His preservation of their firstborn in Egypt (Ex 12:12-13,29), the Israelites must dedicate them to Him in lifetime service (Ex 13:2). However, they could be redeemed from this service by the payment of a firstborn sacrificial animal (Ex 13:13-16) and, later, by the substitution of a Levite for each firstborn son of Israel (Nm 3:11-13,40-51). Firstborn animals could therefore not be put to the service of the Israelites, but they belonged to the Lord.

15:21 The Lord demands our best in tribute and service. The NT enjoins believers to "present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and pleasing to God" (Rm 12:1). This implies the giving of one's total self and all he possesses to serving the Lord.

16:1 The month of Abib (meaning "ears of grain"), early in the spring, must be celebrated as the month when the liberating event of the exodus took place. Passover, the festival commemorating the deliverance of Israel from the tenth plague, began on the fourteenth day of Abib and continued through the twenty-first as the Festival of Unleavened Bread (Ex 12:17-20).

16:3 The bread of hardship symbolized the duress under which Israel lived as slaves in Egypt and also the hurry in which they escaped, with the Egyptian army hard on their heels (Ex 12:11,34,39). The people of Israel must eat the unleavened bread as a means of remembering the cost of their redemption. The church also is commanded by the Lord to eat the communion bread and drink the cup "in remembrance" of Him (1Co 11:24-25). This helps the believer to recall the great acts of salvation history and even to reenact and participate in them.

16:5-6 Whereas sacrifice in general was permitted at local sites (Ex 20:24-26), three times a year the community—at least males 20 years and older—had to assemble at the place where Yahweh chose to have His name dwell—the central sanctuary (12:5). When the community as a whole presented the Passover sacrifice, they commemorated God's gracious act of redemption and offered their tribute to Him as a response of worship and thanksgiving.

16:7 To cook and eat the Passover sacrifice not only brought the nation together but it also depicted the Lord as the table host. The setting is much the same as the Christian gathering known as the Lord's Supper. Christ is there not as a participant but as an observer and in anticipation of a literal participation in the consummation of the kingdom of God (Lk 22:15-18).

16:10 The Festival of Weeks—known to Judaism as (Hb) Shabuoth ("weeks") or Qatsir ("harvest") and to Christians as Pentecost—was the second of the great pilgrimage festivals at the central sanctuary. It celebrated the harvest of the ripened grain 50 days after gathering the firstfruits (v. 9). The selection of the day of Pentecost for the coming of the Holy Spirit on the gathered church at Jerusalem probably was to inaugurate the birth of the church and also to view the firstfruits as having become a ripened body ready for harvest as God's redeemed community (Ac 2:1,36,41).

16:13 After the Israelites left Egypt, for 40 years thereafter they lived in temporary shelters described as "booths," underscoring the transient nature of their journey and their dependence on the Lord for sustenance. Exodus 23:16 refers to this time as the Festival of Ingathering but makes no allusion to the wilderness experience nor does Deuteronomy. Leviticus, however, draws attention to the fact that the Lord "made the Israelites live in booths when [He] brought them out of the land of Egypt" (Lv 23:43). The Festival of Booths thus served to remind Israel of its fragile history in the wilderness and to celebrate God's goodness to them in the land and the joy that would result in the crops from the work of their hands.

16:14 The list of persons here characterizes the Festival of Booths not only as a time of feasting and worship, but also an annual opportunity to attend to the needs of some of the lowliest and most neglected of Israel's population.

16:16-17 No one is too poor to give something, and no one is expected to give more than he can. The OT tenth adheres to this standard and is therefore a measure for NT giving. Jesus illustrated this principle when He drew attention to a poor widow who dropped only two tiny coins into the temple treasury. She had done better than the rich, He said, "for they all gave out of their surplus, but she out of her poverty" (Mk 12:44).

16:18-19 Righteous judgment is the application of the law so as to conform to a set standard determined either by fiat or precedent. In the covenant law, the standard is Torah itself, so any judgment is righteous only to the extent that it conforms to Torah, which itself reflects the just and righteous character of the Lord.

16:21-22 The Asherah and sacred pillar were cult objects representing the chief goddess and god (Baal) respectively. A hint of syncretism is evident here in that Israel was told not to erect these pagan symbols next to the altar of the LORD. Recent discoveries in the Negev have confirmed that the Lord was sometimes worshiped along with Asherah, who is even described as His wife.

17:5 To worship false gods was an act of high treason, punishable by death. The covenant was founded on the first two commandments—that only the Lord could be worshiped and that images of Him or other gods could not be tolerated.

17:6-7 The stoning of an idolater must take place only after adequate testimony by credible witnesses. A single witness might have a personal agenda or might have misread what the accused had done. The two or three witnesses required must back up their charges by being the first in putting the evildoer to death, something they would not be likely to do if they harbored any questions about his guilt.

17:8-9 The presence of priests and a judge makes clear that there was no separation between the secular and the sacred and that every violation of the law was a violation of the covenant between the Lord and His people. In the theocracy of OT Israel, sin and crime were one and the same.

17:12 Inasmuch as the judge and the priest were serving the LORD , their judgment was final. This suggests that the verdict was achieved by both wise assessment of the evidence and divine revelation. A "too difficult" case, therefore, was one beyond human capacity to resolve (v. 8). The person acting arrogantly against the judgment of the court was in fact acting arrogantly against the Lord and was therefore guilty of a capital offense.

17:14 Israel had lived for more than 400 years under the Egyptian king. Though God Himself was now their King, they would want a human king as a means of establishing peace and stability at a time when anarchy might otherwise prevail (cp. Jdg 21:25). The desire for a king would not in itself be wrong, because the Lord had promised Abraham and Sarah that they would produce a line of kings (Gn 17:6,16), and Jacob prophesied that a messianic King would spring from the tribe of Judah (Gn 49:10). At stake here were guidelines by which such future rulers must govern themselves and their people.

17:15 A future king of Israel must be a man whom the LORD . . . chooses, and he must not be a foreigner. The Lord must make the choice because "man does not see what the Lord sees, for man sees what is visible, but the Lord sees the heart" (1Sm 16:7).

17:16-17 Having been chosen, the future ruler of Israel must adhere to certain standards to assure the success of his reign, placing his confidence in the Lord rather than in many horses and armaments (Is 31:1; cp. Ps 20:7). He must also not participate in polygamy because it would lead him into idolatry when he tried to satisfy all his wives' religious preferences (cp. Solomon; 1Kg 11:1-3). Finally, he must resist the urge to accumulate riches because these would likely cause him to depend on his own resources rather than on the Lord (Pr 11:28).

17:18 This instruction refers at least to the book of Deuteronomy and possibly to the entire Pentateuch. Having a copy and also writing a copy in the presence of the Levitical priests would ingrain the word of God deep within the heart and mind of the king and certify before witnesses that he had made the copy himself.

17:19-20 This admonition to consistent Bible reading is designed to help the reader to fear the LORD and to obey all that He commands. Rulers of the OT theocracy (meaning Israel's rulers) in particular needed to be careful to do this so as not to think of themselves as overly exalted above their countrymen and to protect themselves against deviating from their covenantal obligations to God. Many of Israel's kings fell short of this ideal, with the result that the Davidic line came to an end and would resume only with the reign of Christ, the son of David (Zch 9:9-10; cp. Mt 21:9).

18:1 Part of the promise of the Lord to Abraham was that he and his descendants would inherit a land within which they could discharge their ministry as a people chosen to represent Him to the nations (Gn 12:1-3; 13:14-17). However, the Levitical priests would have no such portion or inheritance except for the fire offerings to be shared with the Lord. In addition, the Levites would be assigned 48 cities throughout the land where they would minister to the local people (v. 6; Nm 35:1-7).

18:2-4 The Lord bestowed an inheritance among the other tribes but was Himself the inheritance of Levi. Their office was considered so holy that they could partake of the parts of the sacrifices that otherwise belonged to the Lord but that could not be consumed by the laity. In addition, the people gave them the firstfruits of their produce and livestock since they had no farm lands (Nm 18:1-32).

18:6 Should a Levite decide to leave his own town, one of 48 set aside for Levites (cp. v. 1), he could go to the place the LORD chooses—the central sanctuary (12:5). This actually happened on a wide scale in late Israelite history but only because many of the Levitical towns had been destroyed in the reformation of King Josiah because of their idolatry (2Kg 23:4-20).

18:8 This passage is somewhat obscure but seems to suggest that Levites did own private properties handed down from father to son. These could be sold, but these added assets should not be used against a Levite to deny him his fair share of the benefits of his office (Nm 5:9-10). One important principle that emerges is that persons in ministry must not be saddled by material things but, at the same time, must be provided for out of the generosity of God's people.

18:9 Detestable customs refers to anything, especially of a religious nature, that is offensive to the Lord. Israel must not imitate these practices that were characteristic of paganism because they had been chosen from among the nations to show a better way (Ex 19:5-6; cp. Lv 18:1-5; Dt 7:6).

18:10-11 To pass through the fire was to offer human sacrifice. Divination, the consulting of natural phenomena such as animal entrails, smoke formations, oil slicks, and the like, was undertaken to determine the plans and purposes of the gods before they happened. A familiar spirit is another way of referring to necromancy, the "science" of inquiring of the dead (1Sm 28:3,9; Is 8:19). All such things are essential to religious systems that have no concept of divine revelation. Having no other means of knowing the future, they attempt to elicit this knowledge by forbidden means.

18:12 A major reason for the expulsion and destruction of the Canaanite nations is that they practiced these detestable things and were therefore likely to infect God's people with their abominable customs (7:4).

18:13 In the context of this verse, to be blameless before the LORD was to avoid all the pagan practices outlined in verses 10 and 11. "Blameless" refers not to sinless perfection but to the avoidance of all that the Lord detests.

18:15 In stark contrast to the pagan prophets stood the office of the prophet of the LORD called and equipped by Him alone. Such spokesmen of God had appeared sporadically throughout Israel's history, including Abraham (Gn 20:7), Miriam the sister of Moses (Ex 15:20), and most prominently, Moses himself (Nm 12:6-8; Dt 34:10).

18:18 The prophet like Moses would resemble him in that he would be an Israelite. He would not conjure up his own message or resort to pagan manipulations but would be a vehicle of divine revelation, speaking only what God put into his mouth (Ex 4:15-16; 7:1-2).

18:19-20 Though this passage has clear messianic overtones (Jn 1:21,25), the admonition about the prophet-to-come suggests an order of prophets, primarily the "canonical" prophets, the authors of the various OT Prophetic Books.

18:21-22 The question arises as to how to tell a false prophet from a prophet of the Lord. A fundamental test presented here is that any prophet whose message does not come true or is not fulfilled has spoken . . . presumptuously.

He must not be feared because he has no capacity to do harm except as he misleads God's people into error. A classic OT example is Hananiah, who predicted that the Babylonian exile would end in two years rather than the 70 Jeremiah had prophesied (Jr 25:11-12; 28:1-4; 29:10; Dn 9:1-2). Jeremiah confronted him with the truth that the exile would last as long as he had predicted and that Hananiah would never live to see its fulfillment. In fact, Hananiah died the very year of his false message (Jr 28:12-17).

19:1-3 The Israelites must set apart three cities of sanctuary or refuge for persons accused of manslaughter. These were to be strategically located so that they would be accessible to anyone anywhere in the land. Three cities had already been allotted east of the Jordan River (4:41-43), and there would be a need for three more in Canaan proper. In the event of population growth, three more cities would be added, making nine in all (19:8-9).

19:4-5 Homicide in the OT took many forms, ranging from killing an enemy in war, executing a criminal, and accidental death by manslaughter on one hand, to deliberate and premeditated murder on the other. The first two examples were carried out by the state and obviously were not only permitted but commanded. The present law had to do with an act of homicide whose intentions and circumstances must be determined by a court of law.

19:6 Revenge for murder was not only permitted by the law but fully authorized (Nm 35:16-21). However, it was for malicious murder only and not for accidental homicide as in the present passage. Life is so precious that OT law and custom mandates that its violent destruction must be avenged, especially by the next of kin of the deceased (2Sm 14:1-11).

19:10 The establishment of strategically located cities of refuge would allow accused parties to find safety before unwarranted vengeance could be inflicted. They would preclude bloodshed in the land the LORD was giving them. Innocent blood defiled the land so that the land figuratively became hostile toward the guilty person and resisted his attempts to make use of it. When Cain killed Abel, Abel's blood cried out to the Lord from the ground. It would thereafter withhold its yield from Cain (Gn 4:10-12). The soil of Israel would likewise become polluted by the blood of innocent victims (Nm 35:33-34; Dt 19:13).

19:11-12 For the murderer there could be no refuge or safety. Indeed, from the very beginning of human history the penalty for murder was capital punishment by the state. A major stipulation of the covenant with Noah following the flood was, "Whoever sheds man's blood, his blood will be shed by man, for God made man in His image" (Gn 9:6; cp. Dt 5:17).

19:15 To help prevent a miscarriage of justice, the law required the testimony of two or three witnesses (cp. 17:6-7).

19:16-20 Should a malicious witness turn out to be guilty of perjury, he must suffer the fate intended for the accused. Strict enforcement acts as a deterrent.

19:21 This principle is called (Lat) lex talionis, the law of retaliation. An example is the case described in verses 16-19 where a lying witness receives the punishment the accused would have received had he been guilty. There is disagreement as to whether life for life, eye for eye, and the rest were to be taken literally or whether the principle was simply that the punishment must fit the crime. The latter seems more likely given other biblical laws that indicate that tit for tat was not always followed (Ex 22:21; Nm 35:31).

20:1-4 War is an unfortunate result of human depravity and in certain forms was sanctioned and even commanded by the Lord in the OT. Deuteronomy pays special attention to the kind traditionally called "holy war" (7:1-6). Primarily conducted against the Canaanite nations, certain forms of war could also be waged against more distant nations and still be viewed as holy war. The enemies referred to here were distant ones as verse 15 makes clear. Reference to the LORD as the leader in battle is probably an allusion to the ark of the covenant, the symbol of God's presence with His people, since the priests would have carried it with them (Jos 3:1-4,8,11; 1Sm 4:3; Ps 132:6-10).

20:5-7 Israel had a conscripted army, but there were a number of reasons for deferment, as listed here. The draft law clearly was not rigid and inflexible but revealed sensitivity to human feelings and needs.

20:8 The last reason for deferment affected not just the individual himself but the entire army and is thus separated from the others. Anyone afraid of going to war must be excused because his cowardice would undermine the morale of his fellow soldiers.

20:10-11 Cities outside the areas promised to Israel as an inheritance (cp. v. 15) may be approached with an offer of peace, by which is meant terms of surrender, though other cities could not (v. 16). However, even the cities that surrendered peacefully must be reduced to servitude, as illustrated later by Joshua's defeat of the Gibeonites, who professed to be from a distant land (Jos 9:26-27), and by David's treatment of enemies outside Israel (2Sm 8:2,6,14).

20:12-14 Any city that would not surrender could be plundered and its citizens either killed or taken as prisoners of war. The treatment accorded these distant cities presupposes some kind of provocation against Israel and not likely a desire for Israelite imperialism. David's famous campaign against the Ammonite city of Rabbah is a case in point (2Sm 10:1-19).

20:16-18 Every living thing in the cities of Israel's inheritance must be put under the cherem (Hb; "the ban") and utterly destroyed. This was in line with what the Lord had commanded (7:1-6) and with what had already been carried out in Transjordan (Nm 21:24,33-35; cp. Dt 2:31-3:7). Such harsh measures precluded the possibility that these irredeemable inhabitants of Canaan might teach Israel detestable things, and Israel might thereby sin against the LORD.

20:19-20 Trees which produce food must not be cut down, or "killed," during a siege because they are "innocent." The major point in all this is that human beings are different from and privileged beyond all other living things, but this imposes upon them a responsibility to know and serve the Lord with all their being. Failure to do so will result in grievous consequences.

21:1-3 The sense of solidarity among God's people comes to the fore in the case of an anonymous individual who has committed murder without witnesses. The city closest to the site will be assumed to have harbored the criminal. This may seem unfair, but the likelihood of the perpetrator being from the closest city in that day of difficult travel was very high.

21:3-7 The ritual that follows was for absolving the community from the sin of only one of its members. A cow that had not been . . . used for work suggests purity and vitality. The uncultivated field, like the animal, was full of potential, unlike the victim whose potential had been snuffed out. Next the elders must break the cow's neck and the priests must wash their hands, thus symbolizing their innocence and that of the community. This was no sin offering since no blood was shed, but it was similar to the rite of breaking the neck of a donkey to be presented as an offering (Ex 13:13), possibly suggesting the fate of the criminal should he ever be apprehended and also of witnesses who failed to come forward.

21:8-9 The testimony of the elders that the people of their city had neither committed the murder nor witnessed it (v. 7) was followed by an urgent appeal to the Lord that He would not impute to the people collectively the guilt for what only one of them had done.

21:10-14 The fact that female prisoners of war would be taken as wives by Israel does not sanction the practice. The law here was designed to protect the woman in such a case. She must be considered as an equal, permitted to display her humiliation by shaving her head and trimming her nails, and allowed to mourn for her father and mother a full month. Only then could her Israelite husband make full claim on her as his wife. Further protection was accorded her in the case of divorce.

21:15-17 This law (and perhaps the previous one) regulated the practice of polygamy while, as in the previous example, not endorsing it. Though Israel was the people of God and should have lived out its special relationship reflecting His glory and righteousness, this was often not the case. The law in some cases was thus designed to insure that an imperfect people were kept within certain moral and social boundaries. The present law mandated that a firstborn son of an unloved wife must receive a double portion of the inheritance according to what appears to be long-standing custom (Gn 25:31-34; 48:8-22).

21:18-21 Capital punishment for a rebellious and drunken son may seem unduly harsh, but this behavior was a violation of the commandment to honor one's father and mother (cp. 5:16). In God's structure of sovereignty, parents represented His authority and therefore showing disobedience to one's parents was showing disobedience of the Lord.

21:22-23 A further humiliation attached to capital punishment was hanging the criminal's corpse from a tree (1Sm 31:10; 2Sm 21:5-6). However, to leave the body on display too long would spread God's curse beyond the criminal. The body must therefore be buried before sundown, a practice that continued until the time of Jesus (Gl 3:13).

22:1-4 Brotherly responsibility in Israel was a further application of the principle of oneness inherent in a covenant community. If a person saw a fellow citizen's ox or sheep straying, he was obligated to return it if the owner was known. Otherwise he must keep it as one of his own until the owner came to claim it. The principle here is that all lands and properties in a sense belonged to all the people collectively as the inheritance of the Lord. The early church adopted this spirit, at least for a time (Ac 4:32).

22:5 For a woman to wear male clothing and a man a woman's garment (cross-dressing or transvestitism) is wrong because, among other things, it violates the principle of separation that God has built into the created order.

22:6-7 The principle here seems to be that of not mixing life with death. Thus, a mother bird, the source of life, must not be taken along with her chicks and eggs because she would no longer be able to generate new life.

22:9 To plant a vineyard with two types of seed makes the point even more clearly that the mixture of unlike things is harmful. Similarly, Israel would be defiled if she mingled with the pagan nations (7:3-4).

22:10 To hitch an ox and a donkey up as a team was to invite all kinds of difficulty because of their different natures and habits. Paul chose this law to illustrate how Christians must not marry outside the faith (2Co 6:14-18).

22:13-20 Nowhere was purity of life expected more in ancient Israel than in the realm of sex and marriage, not only because of its inherent rightness but because Israel's relationship to the Lord was often described with the metaphor of marriage (Hs 2:2). The breaking of the covenant that secured marriage was tantamount to divorce brought about by spiritual adultery (Hs 2:3-13). One hundred shekels was a considerable amount of money, indicating that damage to the reputation of the girl and her family by false accusations was not to be taken lightly.

22:21-22 The harsh penalty of stoning to death underscores the principle of purity and separation addressed in this section of the book. Israel collectively must be pure before God, with every member of the community responsible for maintaining that holy standard.

22:23-29 If an engaged . . . virgin had sex with a man in the city, it was presumed that she had done so willingly since no one heard her cry out in protest. The community must stone him for adultery and her for complicity. If the act took place in the open country, however, the presumption was that the young woman screamed but there was no one to rescue her. She must be exonerated in such a case.

22:30 Father's wife refers to a foster mother. For a man to do such a thing is to be intimate with a woman with whom the father himself has been intimate, thus "exposing his father's nakedness" (a literal rendering; cp. 27:20; Ru 3:9).

23:1-8 Because Israel was to be a pure, undefiled people, certain types of people could not enter the LORD's assembly. Such discrimination had nothing to do with inherent worth but served metaphorically to draw attention to the Lord's demand for Israel to be separated from the corrupted and imperfect world around her. In Christ, such disqualifications no longer exist (Gl 3:27-29).

23:9-14 The laws of purity were particularly applicable to holy war in which God led His people into battle (7:1-6). Since God is pure and holy, He cannot tolerate acts and conditions that are impure, especially in the context of a religious setting like holy war.

23:15-16 In the context of holy war and Israel's uniqueness, the slave here must have escaped from a foreign master. Contrary to the ordinary practice of repatriating such persons, Israel must show a superior moral code by letting such a slave live among you wherever he wants.

23:17-18 A cult prostitute was a man or woman engaged in fertility temple rites. This Canaanite practice was taboo to Israel as was the payment of even an ordinary prostitute's wages to fulfill a vow made to God. He is not honored by illegitimate expressions of worship but only by obedience (1Sm 15:22-23).

23:21-23 A person could make a vow to the LORD in the form of a service to be rendered to Him (Nm 6:2,5,21) or a sacrifice to be offered as an act of worship (Nm 15:8; Dt 12:6; Ps 66:13-14). Though the vow was entered into voluntarily, refusing to pay it once it was made was to steal from the Lord what was rightfully His.

23:24-25 A person who crossed through a neighbor's vineyard or grain field could harvest as much as he could gather and hold in his hand. To exceed that would be to take advantage of the neighbor's generosity, and it would be a form of theft. Jesus and His disciples practiced this on the Sabbath with no criticism from the Pharisees except that they were violating the Sabbath (Mk 2:23-28).

24:1-4 The issue here is not divorce per se but remarriage following divorce. What the man found improper is neither clear nor relevant. The point is that if she marries another man and he finds occasion to divorce her, she may not return to her first husband. The issue seems to be that marriage to a second husband was a form of adultery. Another consideration is that the prohibition of the first husband taking the woman back would cause husbands to think carefully before enacting a divorce.

24:6 The poor could not be required to promise as collateral items essential to life and well-being. A pair of millstones for grinding food must not be demanded as security because human life depended on them. Taking just the upper millstone similarly rendered the pair unusable. There must be mercy as well as justice in applying the law (cp. vv. 12-13).

24:9 The reference to Miriam recalls the incident when Aaron and Miriam challenged the God-ordained leadership of Moses. As a result Miriam was struck with a loathsome skin disease (Nm 12:10-12).

24:14-15 An employer must pay wages to the poor and needy every day. Otherwise, he would be answerable not to a mere human higher power but to the Lord Himself.

24:16 Though Israelite families were tight knit (Jos 7:24-26), each family member must be put to death for his own sin. Jeremiah expanded on this principle when he observed that "In those days, it will never again be said: 'The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge.' Rather, each will die for his own wrongdoing" (Jr 31:29-30; cp. Ezk 18).

24:19 In the absence of governmental welfare programs in ancient Israel, the wealthy took responsibility for the less fortunate. As an example, if a farmer should forget a sheaf in the field he must leave it for the poor and landless to gather (cp. vv. 20-21). A famous illustration of this occurred in the story of Boaz and Ruth. Boaz, realizing he was next of kin to the unsuspecting Ruth, purposefully left scatterings of grain in his fields for her (Ru 2:15-18).

25:3 Limiting the number of lashes addresses the fine balance between justice and mercy. The first-century practice of inflicting 39 lashes was to ensure that no more than 40 would accidentally be applied (2Co 11:24).

25:4 Mercy in the application of the law extended even to the treatment of animals, which were to share the fruits of their labor. Paul applied this principle to paying a fair wage to those engaged in ministry (1Co 9:9-14; cp. 1Tm 5:17-18).

25:5-10 Passing a man's name to future generations was so important that should a man die without a son, his widow must attempt to have a son by one of her brothers-in-law. This was called the levirate custom (from Latin levir, "brother-in-law").

25:11-12 Interpreters differ over the meaning of this passage. One possibility is that the woman who forcefully grabbed her husband's opponent by his genitals during a fight was to be punished so severely because her act risked emasculating the assailant to the point that he might be unable to sire children.

25:13-16 Differing weights and measures in this case would constitute theft, the violation of one of the Ten Commandments (5:19).

25:17-19 The Amalekites had attacked Israel in the Sinai Desert and consequently had come under God's judgment (Ex 17:8-16). There would be a time of reckoning when Amalek, like all of the Lord's unrepentant enemies, would come under the destruction of holy war (1Sm 15; cp. Dt 7:1-6).

26:2 The first . . . produce is most likely a reference to the Festival of Firstfruits (Gk Pentecost), 50 days after the Festival of Passover and Unleavened Bread (cp. Ex 34:26; Lv 23:10). While Israel was in the wilderness they subsisted largely on heavenly manna, but in Canaan they would settle down, plant crops, and live off the produce of the land (Jos 5:10-12). It was fitting then that the people should acknowledge God's goodness by offering Him the first and best of their crops.

26:5-10 Like later church creeds, these verses encapsulate Israel's core beliefs in the form of a resumé of God's mighty acts in history on her behalf (cp. Gn 12:1; 13:14-17; Ex 13:11).

26:12 In the absence of governmental welfare and a paid clergy in OT Israel (cp. 24:19-22), these needy groups must be cared for with the tenth of the produce given every third year. In the other two years, it would be fully given to the Lord.

26:15 To give to poor and dependent persons is to give to the Lord Himself. Having done that, the Israelites could with good cause invoke God's blessing upon the nation.

26:16-19 The bilateral character of the covenant of these statutes and ordinances is apparent from the fact that Israel had affirmed that the Lord was their God and the Lord had affirmed in turn that they were His special people (Ex 19:5; cp. Dt 7:6).

27:6 The burnt offerings provided a means of dealing with sins and trespasses, thus opening the way to fellowship with the Lord. The fellowship offerings were essential to the making and reaffirmation of the covenant relationship (Ex 24:3-8).

27:9 The statement that this day you have become the people of the LORD your God does not mean that just now Israel had entered into that relationship for the first time. It represents a renewal of the covenant by which Israel, in a sense, was becoming the people of the Lord all over again.

27:11-13 Referring again to the upcoming covenant renewal conclave at Shechem (v. 4), Moses instructed the people upon their arrival there to divide into two groups by tribes, half on Mount Gerizim and half on Mount Ebal. Like a great antiphonal chorus, the tribes on Mount Gerizim would shout out the blessings and the tribes on Mount Ebal would shout the curses of the covenant commitments in the hearing of the Levites in the valley below (v. 14).

27:15 The list of curses began with a word of judgment against anyone who made a carved idol or cast image, a violation of the Second Commandment (5:8-10). The other curses flowed out of this, though all of them pertained to interpersonal relationships and not directly to a person's relationship to the Lord.

27:16 The word dishonors is a translation of a Hebrew verb meaning "to make light of" (5:16). The person who underestimates the role of parents disrespects the honor and glory of God, whom parents represent.

27:17 The sin of moving a neighbor's boundary marker was a kind of theft, a violation of the Eighth Commandment, and also it betrayed a lack of satisfaction with what God had allotted a person in life.

27:19 Social justice must be rooted in God's care for vulnerable people in society. The person who denies justice to such helpless people goes against the nature of the Lord, who inspired law to regulate such matters (24:17) and who, in the person of Christ, identified with those most in need of justice (Php 2:5-11; cp. 2Co 8:9).

27:20 Father's wife has in mind either one's stepmother or a second wife of one's father (22:30; cp. Lv 18:7-8; 20:11). The father's own shame was at risk when a son had sexual relations with a woman known so intimately by his father.

27:21 Bestiality—sexual intercourse with an animal—is not only reprehensible, but it goes against God's creation order in which humankind, made in the image of God, is to rule over all other created beings, not to be on the same level with them.

27:22 The sister here is a sibling related through polygamy. A father's daughter or a mother's daughter would thus be a daughter by one's stepmother or stepfather.

27:26 The list of curses is summarized by the warning that covenant violation consisted not only of committing certain misdeeds but failing to observe others. The law quoted is the entire book of Deuteronomy and not just this list.

28:2 In an interesting figure of speech, Moses promised that the blessings for covenant obedience would not merely lie at hand passively, but with dynamic life and power would overtake the obedient person. There is no escaping the blessings and favor of the Lord when a person is careful to obey Him.

28:3 The promise to be blessed in the city and in the country uses a figure of speech called a "merism," in this case indicating blessing with no geographical limitations. Wherever the obedient person went, God's favor would follow.

28:6 To be blessed when you come in and when you go out is another merism (v. 3) suggesting no temporal limitation (cp. 6:7). God would bless the obedient all their lives.

28:7 An oncoming enemy moves as a solid phalanx, confident in its own power, but if Israel stayed true to the Lord, that concentrated force would flee from her in disgrace.

28:9 The promise of the Lord here to establish Israel does not mean that they had not previously enjoyed that status. They were already His people by virtue of the Abrahamic covenant and its ratification at Sinai (Gn 17:3-8; cp. Ex 19:4-6). The verb translated establish bears the idea of confirming or reaffirming. Holy means that Israel was a people set apart from all others (Ex 19:6), but it also carries the idea of moral and spiritual purity.

28:10 If Israel obeyed the terms of the covenant, they would then indeed be the kingdom of priests and the holy nation that God created them to be, the means by which God would bless all the nations, as He had promised Abraham (Gn 12:3; 22:18; 26:4).

28:13 The head determines in which direction the whole animal moves while the tail just follows along. Israel was brought into being as God's channel of blessing and hope to the world, to be the head of all the nations (Jr 31:7). Should they fail, however, they would become the tail (cp. Dt 28:44).

28:14 The Lord's fundamental requirement was that the Israelites acknowledge only Him as God (5:6-7; cp. 6:4). The greatest possible sin was that they would worship other gods. It is fitting that the list of blessings should be climaxed by the injunction to remain faithful to the Lord.

28:15 The curses for disobedience were as certain to come as were the blessings for obedience.

28:21 The term translated pestilence refers to sickness in general and not to a particular disease. Literal disease did, indeed, afflict Israel from time to time (2Sm 24:13; 1Kg 8:37), but the allusion here to expulsion from the land suggests that pestilence is a metaphor or a means for deportation by enemies (Lv 26:25).

28:23-24 The metaphors of a bronze sky and an iron earth underscore the severity of the drought referred to in verse 22 (cp. Lv 26:19). The scene is one of absolute hopelessness.

28:25 Disobeying God's covenant would bring such devastation to Israel that the nations would no longer be in awe of her. What should have been a focus of others' admiration and praise would become so disfigured as to elicit nothing but disgust and revulsion (Jr 15:4; 29:18; 34:17).

28:27 Just as the exodus of Israel from Egypt was the sign of God's favor, their covenant failures would initiate a kind of reverse exodus. They would experience the boils of Egypt along with a host of other afflictions reminiscent of the ten plagues.

28:29 Continuing the exodus theme, Moses contrasted Israel's experience in Egypt where the Lord was present, with future judgment when the Lord would be absent and no one would help them. Unfaithful Israel would be on her own.

28:30 Ordinarily, young men were exempt from military service under certain circumstances (20:5-7). Such gracious provision would someday be taken away in another reversal of fortune, and other calamities listed here would take place as well. The life of disobedience stands in opposition and reversal to life lived in obedience to God's will.

28:33 Oppression by a people you don't know was fulfilled a number of times throughout Israel's history, notably in the days of the judges when foreigners wreaked havoc in Israel and even settled there (Jdg 6:1-6; 8:22).

28:36-37 Foreign occupation was followed by deportation. Moses prophesied that rebellious Israel would be uprooted by the Lord Himself and they and their king would worship other gods in a strange nation neither they nor their fathers had known. This rules out Egypt, of course, which their fathers knew well. History discloses that they ended up in Assyria (2Kg 17:6) and Babylonia (2Kg 24:10-17).

28:44 Rather than being the influential head of the nations, as God had intended for Israel to be (v. 13), they would become a powerless tail because of their unfaithfulness.

28:46 Usually a sign and a wonder indicated the presence and blessing of God (4:34; 7:19; 26:8; Jr 32:21). He performed them to display His incomparable power and glory, especially in the eyes of a doubting world. Jesus performed signs and wonders to validate His ministry and to demonstrate His divine nature (Jn 20:30-31). On the day of Israel's judgment, however, the curses listed in this passage would become signs and wonders not in support of the Lord and His power but as testimony against Israel. When the nations saw His wrath poured out against His own chosen people, they would stand in awe at the fall of a people who had been greatly blessed. Israel through all the generations to come would be reminded by their disastrous end that disobedience of the Lord's covenant carries a heavy cost.

28:48 An iron yoke speaks metaphorically of bondage so severe that it is inescapable. Prisoners of war wore yokes to secure them against escape and to humiliate them. Jeremiah described the Babylonian captivity of Judah as one in which the people would bear the yoke of oppression (Jr 27:7-8) until the Lord broke it (Jr 28:14; 30:8; Ezk 34:27).

28:49-52 The nation from far away turned out to be Assyria, as is made clear in light of later biblical events and descriptions. Assyria besieged Samaria, Israel's capital city, for three years until the city was forced to surrender (2Kg 17:5).

28:53-57 The siege of Samaria would be so severe that the people would be forced to resort to cannibalism. Though the horrific behavior described here does not reference the Assyrian siege, an earlier siege under the Arameans resulted in precisely these events (2Kg 6:24-31). Jeremiah also predicted that the citizens of Jerusalem would become just as desperate to survive the siege of that city by the Babylonians in his own time (Jr 19:9), and in fact he lived to see it with his own eyes (Lm 4:10; Ezk 5:10).

28:58 Moses reiterated that all the curses he had listed—concluding with cannibalism, the worst of them all—would come to pass if the people of Israel were not careful to obey all the words of this law, specifically those written in this scroll—the book of Deuteronomy. It was covenant violation, then, that would be the cause of all of Israel's future judgment should she refuse to repent.

28:60 Reference to the covenant law calls to mind Israel's gracious deliverance from Egypt and all its diseases. In an ironic twist, Moses declared that Israel's coming judgment would bring the very diseases they had avoided in Egypt.

28:62 Reaching still further back into sacred history, Moses recalled the promise of the Abrahamic covenant that Israel would be as numerous as the stars of the sky (cp. 1:10; Gn 15:5; 22:17). That promise too would become inverted, leaving Israel with only a few people because they would not obey the Lord.

28:64 The Lord's threat to scatter Israel clearly refers to the many times in Israel's future when the people would undergo exile, whether under the Assyrians, Babylonians, Greeks, Romans, or even in the Middle Ages and in modern times. One result of such dislocation would be the tendency to worship foreign gods that neither they nor their fathers had ever known (4:25-31).

28:68 The fact that the Lord would return disobedient Israel to Egypt suggests that a reverse of the exodus would take place. Many Israelites did indeed end up in Egypt (Jr 44:11-14,24-30). But the reference to ships and to other deportations

(Dt 28:63) leads to the conclusion that Egypt was also a figure of speech—a "synecdoche"—to describe all manner of places of deportation and exile.

29:4 Despite Israel's seeing everything the Lord did in Egypt and in the wilderness (vv. 2-3), He had not given them a mind to understand. He had not forced them to believe against their will, but He had given them every opportunity and inducement to believe. It is at this point that divine sovereignty and human choices intersect. God makes His truth available to all people, but they can choose to harden themselves against it and thus deny themselves its blessings (Is 6:9-10; Rm 11:8).

29:9 In light of all of God's mighty acts on Israel's behalf (vv. 5-8), He had every right to expect them to observe the Deuteronomic covenant and thus ensure their success, but human nature being what it is, even miraculous displays of power did not always lead to faith and repentance (Jn 12:37).

29:12 Deuteronomy is a covenant renewal document founded on the covenant first made at Mount Sinai. The idea that Israel was now about to enter into the covenant of the LORD means, then, that they were renewing the covenant commitment their fathers had made nearly 40 years earlier, assuming its privileges and responsibilities.

29:13 Once Israel had pledged its covenant fidelity, the Lord would reciprocate by establishing Israel as His people and Himself as their God as promised to their forefathers (cp. Gn 17:7; Lv 11:45; 26:12). The verb translated establish is a technical term referring to the ratification of an already existing agreement such as this one (8:18; 9:5; Gn 6:18; 9:9; 17:19,21; Ex 6:4;). God had not just introduced a new covenant arrangement with this generation, but had also confirmed one made with the patriarchs and their fathers at Sinai.

29:15 The covenant was being reaffirmed by the Lord not only with Israelites of that generation (v. 14) but with those who are standing here—non-Israelite proselytes who had also embraced the God of Israel (cp. v. 11; Ex 12:38). Beyond that, it was being made with those who are not here today—the unborn generations who would also need to affirm their commitment to God (4:9).

29:17 The detestable images and idols of the nations through which Israel had just traveled (v. 16; Nm 25:1-5) would continue to be a snare to Israel. Sinful human beings prefer gods of their own creation to the living God.

29:18 Because Israel would be attracted to gods they could see, they had to avoid the temptation to idolatry. The first two commandments—the heart of covenant confession—called for Israel to acknowledge the existence of the LORD as the only god and forbade representing Him or any other deity in visual form. The root that Moses warns against here no doubt refers to the concept of idolatry which, if allowed to grow in the human mind and heart, would produce the fruit of idolatrous practice.

29:19 The well-watered land as well as the dry land is a proverbial statement suggesting that no person who sins willfully against the covenant can expect to escape the judgment of the Lord, no matter how pious his confessions of faith.

29:20 The fate of a person who sins willfully (lit "with a high hand"; Nm 15:30) is serious indeed—the LORD will blot out his name under heaven (cp. 9:14; 25:19; Ex 32:32-33), implying that he would be forgotten by future generations.

29:24-26 When future generations saw the awful destruction of the land and inquired about its cause, the answer would be immediate and clear: because they abandoned the covenant of Yahweh. This most egregious of sins violated the foundational element of the relationship between the Lord and His people—the first two commandments (5:7-8).

29:29 How could the nation continue to exist in light of its promised destruction? The best solution to this apparent contradiction between hidden things belonging to God and revealed things belonging to Israel is to view it as the perception of the other nations. They would observe Israel's outcome and conclude that the covenant relationship had been terminated, but they would be unable to understand that God's word to His people could never be canceled. God would bring His people to repentance so they could enjoy unending fellowship with Him (30:1-10; cp. Jr 31:31-34; Ezk 36:24-38; Rm 11:1-32).

30:1-3 The grammatical structure of this passage suggests that Israel's repentance and return to the Lord would be at His initiative, an act of His grace wherein God's promises and Israel's need to be obedient to the conditions of the covenant would be reconciled—one of the hidden mysteries of the mind of God (29:29).

30:6 The image of circumcising the heart derives from the occasion of Abraham's having been physically circumcised, along with his household, as a sign of his covenant relationship with the Lord (Gn 17:9-14). Jeremiah also spoke of this mark of covenant reality in terms of spiritual circumcision (Jr 4:4; cp. Jr 31:33; Ezk 36:26), and Paul compared it to the new life and relationship to God to be found in Christ (Col 2:11).

30:9 Israel's return to the Lord would bring about a reversal of the curses they had suffered, and they would enjoy the blessings of covenant obedience rather than suffer the consequences of disobedience (28:4).

30:11-14 Lest Israel should protest that the demands of the covenant were too difficult to obey, Moses reminded them that the power to do so resided within them (v. 14). This refers to the revelation of the Lord's mind and purposes to the Israelites at Sinai and now in the plains of Moab. Moses had instructed them about these matters (6:1), and they were to impress them upon their own hearts and souls as well as those of their children (11:18-19). Paul cited this text with reference to the proximity of the gospel and the ease with which it could be understood and appropriated; like the words of the OT covenant, those of the NT message of salvation are ready at hand and made available to all who will believe (Rm 10:6-10).

30:19 In a setting similar to a courtroom, the Lord summoned witnesses to His offer to Israel of life and death. Since these witnesses must be enduring and objective, He called not on human beings or even angels, but on heaven and earth (cp. 4:26; 31:28; 32:1; Is 1:2; Mc 1:2). He appealed for Israel to choose a life of blessed obedience so they and their descendants might live.

31:1-6 The narrative of Moses' imminent death and the succession of Joshua to leadership is reminiscent of an earlier part of Deuteronomy (3:21-28). It also anticipates the formal call and commissioning of Joshua following Moses' departure (Jos 1:1-9). Human leaders are only God's surrogates and therefore are to be followed only if they are obedient to Him.

31:9 This law is clearly the bulk of the book of Deuteronomy, since chapters 5-28 make up the body of covenant stipulations. Having been written, it must now be preserved for future generations since the covenant was to be kept not only with Moses' immediate hearers but also with their descendants (17:18; 29:10-15).

31:10-11 Because there was only one copy of the law at the beginning and in light of the limited literacy of the population of Israel at large, Israel had to assemble to hear it read at the end of every seven years . . . during the Festival of Booths in the fall of the year at the central sanctuary (12:5,11).

31:12-13 The instruction to the assembly to follow all the words of His covenant law and to teach the children formalized the exhortation given previously to obey the stipulations of the covenant and to teach them to their children (6:1-3,6-9).

31:14 The significance of the tent of meeting, as the name implies, is that the Lord met there with His servants, especially Moses, on important occasions (Lv 1:1; Nm 7:89; 11:16; 12:4). Joshua's succession to the office held by Moses would be such an occasion, requiring an encounter with the Lord Himself.

31:16 The marriage/adultery metaphor describes the covenant relationship between the Lord and Israel (Ezk 16:8, 23:36-39; Hs 2:2-13). The worst sin Israel could commit against Him was to acknowledge and worship the foreign gods of the pagan nations. Such behavior was a violation of the marriage vows enshrined in the covenant text (27:11-26; Ex 19:8).

31:19 Covenant ceremonies and their reaffirmations required a witness who could testify to the legality of what was done and who could bear testimony for or against the covenant partners in the event of a breach of contract by either one (30:19; Ex 24:3-8).

31:20 The need for a song of witness (v. 19) is apparent. The question is not whether Israel would sin but when and what should be done about their sinful behavior. Sadly, Israel's future behavior mirrored that of her past. The song of witness was forever a nagging reminder of her lack of gratitude to God.

31:24 The statement that Moses wrote every single word of this law attests to the ancient tradition of his authorship of the book of Deuteronomy, the "law" clearly intended here.

31:26 The stone tablets of the Decalogue had already been placed inside the ark of the covenant (Ex 25:16) and now the book of the law—no doubt Deuteronomy—must be housed in the most holy place beside the ark (cp. Ex 26:33), which represented the earthly dwelling place of the Lord.

31:28 The Lord now, at the point of covenant renewal, would call heaven and earth as witnesses against them (cp. 4:26; 30:19). This is in line with the principle that formal legal matters must be addressed in the presence of at least two witnesses in order for them to be valid (17:6; 19:15).

32:1 Using a figure of speech by which inanimate objects are addressed —"apostrophe"—Moses appealed to the heavens and the earth to listen to the words of his mouth—to serve as witnesses to what the Lord was about to say through the song of Moses and to the tacit response of commitment by the nation (31:28).

32:2 Moses' prayer was that Israel would not be like the hardened and thorny soils of Jesus' parable (Mk 4:1-9). Rather, he wanted them to be like new grass and tender plants.

32:4 The epithet The Rock describes the Lord as both (1) a firm and secure foundation upon whom one can build and in whom one can trust for salvation (vv. 15,18,30), and (2) a companion who is able to lead one through the trackless deserts of life (1Co 10:4).

32:6 The description of the Lord as Father (cp. Ps 2:7; 89:26; Is 63:16; 64:8; Jr 3:19) and Creator (Gn 14:22; Ec 12:1; Is 27:11; 40:28; 43:15) is rare in the OT, and the two are placed together only here. This combination reminded Israel that He was the God of all creation but also the special Father of His people.

32:8 Israel's special place in the redemptive program of the Lord is clear from the fact that when He gave the nations their inheritance and divided the human race, He did so with Israel especially in mind. Their size and location were the fixed points according to which He set the boundaries of the peoples. The Table of Nations of Genesis 10 focuses on Shem and his descendants (vv. 21-31), drawing particular attention to Eber, for whom the Hebrews were named (vv. 21,25; cp. 11:14-26). Abram, the ultimate father of Israel, was an Eberite (Hebrew), thus establishing the connection between Israel and Eber, the central individual of the Table of Nations. Israel's role as the nation chosen out of all the others is a major OT theme (7:6-8; Gn 12:1-3; 15:4-5; 17:3-8; Ex 19:4-6).

32:9 What is only hinted at in verse 8 is clear here: Israel is the LORD's chosen people.

32:10-14 Israel's position as the chosen nation is confirmed by the special care the Lord accorded her, especially in the desert journey out of Egypt. Moses described the Lord's watchcare over Israel as that of an eagle protecting his young one in the nest and teaching him to fly. He alone was capable of leading them through the desert until at last they reached the land He had promised to give them (v. 12).

32:15-18 Looking into the future, Moses saw a time when Israel would rebel against the Lord and break the covenant with Him. When they became fat, bloated, and gorged with all the blessings of the land (cp. vv. 13-14), they would attribute their prosperity to the foreign gods, abandoning the God who made them and the Rock of their salvation (cp. 8:11-20). By their idolatry they would provoke God to jealousy (cp. 5:9). This would include their sacrifice to demons and gods they had not known. This description of demons provides the theological insight that the pagan gods were in fact fallen angels used by Satan to lead people away from the true God (cp. 1Co 10:20; Rv 9:20). The long history of Israel in the land bears sorrowful testimony to the bleak prospects outlined here by Moses (cp. 2Kg 17:7-17).

32:19-21 Once Israel had lapsed into the idolatry described in verses 15-18, the LORD would begin to exert judgment. He threatened to hide His face from His people, a response reminiscent of His reaction to the worship of the golden calf at Sinai (Ex 32:10,34-35). Like that incident, the sin was rebellion epitomized by the violation of the first two commandments. The NT makes clear that these inferior people are the Gentiles whom God would call to Himself through the gospel. Paul quoted this text to say it was God's favor to the nations that would finally awaken Israel to their own disobedience, impelling them to see in Christ their promised Messiah (Rm 10:19-21).

32:22 Sheol refers to the grave, the netherworld, or the place of the departed dead in general. Here it suggests only that there is no place that the burning wrath of God cannot reach.

32:26-27 The Lord declared that if not for His reputation, He would cut Israel to pieces and blot out the memory of them from mankind. To do this,

however, would allow the enemy to take credit for Israel's failure and punishment rather than attributing it to the Lord. The threat to blot out their memory recalls Ex 32:32 where Moses said that if the Lord would not forgive His wicked people, he would gladly have his name erased from the book God had written.

32:30 Moses predicted a time when Israel's sin would be so blatant that they would be delivered over to incredibly powerful armies. Though hyperbole is used to describe the future defeat of Israel by a foreign foe (one man pursue a thousand), the fact remains that when God no longer fights for His people and, in fact, fights against them, there is no chance of victory.

32:31 In contrast to the previous scenario, when the Lord fights for His people, they are certain to prevail because the "rock" on which the pagans rely does not exist and therefore has no real power.

32:32-33 The vine, the grapes, and the wine are the products of the enemies' "rock" (v. 31)—the pagan fertility gods. The Lord, however, linked these imaginary gods to Sodom and Gomorrah, the epitome of corruption (Gn 18:20; 19:4-28; Is 1:10; 3:9; Mt 10:15; 11:23-24).

32:34-35 The vaults is a figurative image conveying the idea that all judgment originates with God and is stored up until the proper time of its administration. Vengeance belongs to God. Only He knows all the facts and only He is absolutely just and righteous (Rm 12:19; Heb 10:30).

32:36 The other side of vengeance on the wicked is vindication of the righteous. The pledge here is that the Lord will be true to His everlasting covenant promises.

32:37-38 At the same time the Lord rescues them, He will taunt His people by asking where their gods, their supposed 'rock' of refuge, have gone. The prophets also taunted idolaters and the gods they worshiped by sarcastically exposing their nonexistence (Is 40:18-20; 44:6-20; Jr 10:1-10).

32:39 The bottom line is that the Lord alone is God. Surely this puts an end to speculation about other gods and ought to render foolish the devotion that people —especially His own people Israel—pay to them.

32:40-42 Using a figure of speech—"anthropomorphism"—the Lord swears as heaven is His witness and as surely as He lives forever that He will execute judgment and vengeance on His adversaries and the heads of the enemy leaders who hate Him. The familiar language of the courtroom is used here so Israel can better understand the legal and forensic nature of God's relationship to them and to the nations at large. A second figure of speech—personification—describes the sword of the Lord as it devours flesh and His arrows that are drunk with blood. This gruesome scene reflects the other side of the coin of divine love and grace—holiness and justice.

32:43 When the Lord administers judgment to His adversaries, He will also avenge . . . His servants who have been abused. By judging His foes and vindicating Israel, the Lord will purify His land and His people.

32:46 The instruction to the people to take to heart all the words of Moses' song and to command their children to carefully follow all the words of this law (i.e., the book of Deuteronomy) calls to mind the admonitions following the giving of the Ten Commandments (5:32-33) and the Shema (6:4-9). These commands of the Lord must be handed down from one generation to the next.

32:47 Because Israel failed to heed these words of admonition, they were eventually uprooted from the land and forced into exile (2Kg 17:7-17; 2Ch 36:15-19).

32:51 The reason Aaron and Moses were unable to enter the land of promise is that they broke faith with the Lord. The verb translated "broke faith" has at its core in this context the idea of covenant treachery or disloyalty. Moses should have served as a model of kingdom citizenship in a time of stress, but he failed to do so (Nm 20:1-13).

33:2 The listing of Sinai . . . Seir, and Mount Paran is an abbreviated itinerary along which the Lord had led His people on their journey from Egypt to the land of promise. The holy ones are the angelic hosts that make up His heavenly armies (Ps 68:17). Lightning (lit "fiery law") might better be understood as synonymous with holy ones and thus rendered "angels."

33:3 Here holy ones is a reference to the people of Israel. The Lord led them to the land of promise because He loved them—a key indicator of their covenant relationship with Him (cp. 7:7-11).

33:4 The term instruction translates the Hebrew word torah. The point is that Israel out of all the nations had been entrusted with God's covenant blessings (14:2,21; Ex 19:4-6).

33:5 Jeshurun is a poetic term for Israel (v. 26; 32:15; Is 44:2). Moses' reference to the Lord as King in Jeshurun provides a basis for the march of conquest of verse 2. The Lord can exercise such power and glory precisely because He is King (29:10; Ex 19:7-8; 34:31-32).

33:6 Turning to the blessing of the individual tribes, Moses first wished for Reuben, the eldest son of Jacob, that he might live and not die though his people become few. This partially offsets Jacob's curse against him because of Reuben's sin involving Jacob's concubine (Gn 49:3-4; cp. Gn 35:22).

33:8 Levi, the head of the priestly tribe, was responsible for spiritual leadership. This included determining God's will for them by casting the sacred lots of Urim and Thummim (Ex 28:15-30; cp. 1Sm 28:6; Ezr 2:63; Neh 7:65).

The testing probably refers to the Lord testing Moses the Levite, since otherwise it was the Lord who was being tested by Israel and not the other way around (6:16; Ex 17:7; Nm 20:13,24; Ps 95:8-9; 106:32).

33:9 Levi's statement about his father and mother probably refers to the impartial attitude of that tribe in punishing Israel for their worship of the golden calf at Sinai (Ex 32:25-29). Thus Levi kept the Lord's word and maintained His covenant.

33:10 Two other privileges reserved only for the Levites were teaching the Lord's ordinances (31:9-13; Lv 10:11) and conducting worship.

33:12 The blessing of Benjamin also somewhat offsets the last words of Jacob to his sons where he described Benjamin as a wolf who tore his prey (Gn 49:27). Here Benjamin rests on the Lord's shoulders much as a shepherd might carry his helpless lambs (Nm 11:12; Ru 4:16; Is 40:11; Jn 10:7-18).

33:13-17 Moses' desire for Joseph (the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, Joseph's sons) was primarily for agricultural (vv. 13-16) and military (v. 17) success. The allusion to Him who appeared in the burning bush is to place Joseph back at the setting of the covenant God made with Israel and all the promises of His abundant grace associated with it (Ex 3:2-4,16-18).

33:18-19 Zebulun and Issachar are linked together as the last two sons of Jacob's wife Leah (Gn 30:18,20) and as neighboring tribes in the area north of the valley of Jezreel. The mountain is probably Mount Tabor, the only prominent mountain in their territory. The only reference to Tabor as a place of sacrifice occurs in Hs 5:1; by Hosea's time it was regarded as illegitimate. However, in an earlier time Tabor may have been a place of local worship. Zebulun's border extended as far west as the Mediterranean Sea, and thus its people could draw from the wealth of the seas and . . . the sand.

33:20-21 Gad had been described by Jacob as a ferocious warrior who, though attacked by others, would strike back with vengeance (Gn 49:19). Moses viewed the tribe of Gad as one that would seek to enlarge its territory, and he blessed anyone who could make that happen. Already in Moses' day Gad had chosen the fertile land of the northern Transjordan (Nm 32:1-5). Once there, Gad had carved out the largest territory of all the eastern tribes, gaining a ruler's portion.

33:22 Jacob depicted Dan as a vicious viper that bites horses' heels, throwing their riders to the ground (Gn 49:16-17). Moses compared him to a young lion, leaping out of Bashan. Besides affirming the aggressive nature of Dan, the geographical reference to Bashan suggests that the tribe of Dan's occupation of its far northern territory may have originated in Bashan. Dan had been allotted a region near Philistine territory which it was unable to occupy and from which it moved north for more suitable prospects (Jos 19:40-48; Jdg 18:1-29).

33:23 Naphtali settled on the western side of the Sea of Galilee. Jacob said of this son that he "is a doe set free that bears beautiful fawns" (Gn 49:21). Because of the fertile and fruitful nature of the lower Galilee region, Naphtali, Moses said, would enjoy divine approval. The spiritual blessing may be seen most fully when Messiah came and spent most of His life and ministry in and about the territory held by Naphtali.

33:24-25 Jacob promised his son Asher that his "food will be rich, and he will produce royal delicacies" (Gn 49:20). When Moses prayed, May Asher be the most blessed of the sons, he was probably referring also to material blessings, particularly to food supplies. This is clear from the desire of Moses that Asher might dip his foot in olive oil. Asher's location on the upper Mediterranean coast, the region of the modern city of Haifa, accounted for its access to products of the sea, but the surrounding hills, including Mount Carmel, also yielded vast quantities of olive oil, as is the case to this very day. To "dip the foot in olive oil" is a figure of speech suggesting a luxurious lifestyle.

33:26 Moses concluded the blessing of the tribes by extolling the God of Jeshurun (cp. v. 5; 32:15) as the One who rides the heavens on the clouds in His majesty. This same image occurs in ancient Canaanite poetic texts where Baal is said to ride the clouds, but Moses put to rest the pagan notions of their God by asserting that it is the God of Israel who, in fact, is sovereign (Ps 68:4,33; Hab 3:3-15).

33:27-28 The God of history is the God of the present and of the ages to come, giving Israel security and prosperity.

33:29 In a grand finale, Moses called on Israel to recognize how happy they were—or ought to be. Of all the nations of the earth, the Lord had saved only them in the sense of having called them to be His special possession (7:6; Ex 19:4-6). They enjoyed His protection as their shield and sword, metaphors descriptive of His power and glory (Gn 15:1; Ps 7:10; 18:2; 28:7).

34:1 The Abarim mountain range, east of the Jordan River just opposite Jericho, includes Mount Nebo on the western slope of Pisgah. From there it is possible on a clear day to view all the land of Canaan, including its northernmost borders at Gilead and Dan.

34:2 The tribes of Naphtali . . . Ephraim . . . Manasseh, and Judah later occupied the central hill country. Their territories and even beyond, as far west as the Mediterranean Sea, could be seen from Nebo.

A panoramic view from atop Mount Nebo looking toward the Dead Sea. From here Moses looked over into the promised land.

34:3 The rest of the land of Canaan to the south was also visible from Moses' vantage point. The Negev is the vast desert area south of Judah extending to the Gulf of Aqaba arm of the Red Sea. The Valley of Jericho is another name for the portion of the Great Rift Valley that includes the Dead Sea, the southernmost city of which was Zoar (cp. Gn 19:18-26).

34:4 What Moses saw was the land God had promised Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob hundreds of years earlier as part of the covenant blessing (Gn 12:1; 13:14-17; 15:18-21). Though Moses could see the land with his own eyes, he was forbidden access to it because of his sin of dishonoring the Lord in the eyes of the people of Israel (32:51).

34:6 Moses' burial place is unknown today. That was even true "to this day," that is, at the time of the final composition of the book of Deuteronomy. Jude referred to the mystery surrounding Moses' burial place, alluding to the dispute of Michael the archangel with the devil about the matter (Jd 9).

34:7 Moses' remarkable vitality at the age of 120 years is mentioned to make the point that he died not of "natural" causes but because he had finished the task of leadership to which God had called him. A person is immortal until God pleases to let his life come to an end.

34:9 Joshua had been well schooled to succeed Moses (3:28; 31:7-8; Nm 27:18-21), but all the training in the world was insufficient without his being filled with the spirit of wisdom (cp. Nm 11:17,24-30). When it was apparent to the people that Joshua was adequately prepared for leadership, they obeyed him . . . as the LORD had commanded Moses.

34:10 It is impossible to know when the last words of Deuteronomy were penned, but whoever did so remarked that until his day no prophet . . . like Moses had arisen again in Israel. What set him apart was that he was the only one God communicated with face to face (Ex 33:19-23; Nm 12:6-8).

34:11-12 Moses was unique among the prophets also in the number and nature of the signs and wonders the LORD sent him to do against the land of Egypt (cp. Ex 4-12). These had the effect of convincing the Egyptians of the mighty power of Israel's God (Ex 8:19; 9:27-28; 10:16-17). They were also performed in the sight of all Israel to persuade the Lord's own people of His mighty power and glory (Ex 14:31).

Word Studies berith Hebrew Pronunciation [beh REET]

HCSB Translation covenant Uses in Deuteronomy 27
Uses in the OT 287
Focus Passage Deuteronomy 4:13,23,31

Berith probably relates to an Akkadian word pointing to covenants (Gn 6:18) as bonds, a fundamental implication being obligation. Berith also denotes treaty (Jos 9:15) or agreement (Is 33:8). People confirmed covenants by oath (Gn 21:22-27); word, testimony, counsel, agreement, and law are associated terms. Covenants initiated relationships implying love, friendship, loyalty, goodness, peace, and brotherhood. People entered covenants by "cutting" (making) them, originally cutting apart animals (Gn 15:9-10; Jr 34:18). "Cut a covenant" appears as form an alliance (Ps 83:5) or cut a deal (Is 28:15). Other ceremonies were sacrifices (Ex 24:3-8), meals (Gn 26:26-31), sharing salt (Lv 2:13), and shaking hands (Ezk 17:18). Covenants were between men, with God, and figuratively with animals (Hs 2:18). God dealt with mankind through two important kinds of covenant, an obligatory one modeled after suzerain-vassal treaties (e.g., Mosaic), and a promissory one comparable to royal grants (e.g., Davidic).

yare'
Hebrew Pronunciation [yah RAY]
HCSB Translation be afraid, fear, revere Uses in Deuteronomy 37
Uses in the OT 317
Focus Passage Deuteronomy 10:12,17,20-21

Yare' denotes be afraid (Gn 3:10) or fear (Ex 1:17). People are cautious (Pr 14:16), intimidated (Neh 6:16), alarmed (Jos 10:2), or fearful (Jr 51:46). They tremble (Ps 33:8) or panic (1Sm 4:7). Combined with the intensive "very," yare' means be terrified (Gn 20:8). Yare' often takes God as object, implying be or stand in awe (Mc 7:17) and be awed (Ps 65:8). People revere (Lv 19:30), are reverent (Ec 8:12), or worship (2Kg 17:7). Children respect parents (Lv 19:3).

Passive participles signify remarkable (Ps 139:14), awesome (Dt 7:21), awe-inspiring (Ex 34:10), and revered (Ex 15:11), but can also denote dreadful (Jl 2:11), terrible (Dt 1:19), feared (Is 18:2), and terrifying (Hab 1:7). The intensive verb means make afraid (2Sm 14:15), frighten (2Ch 32:18), or intimidate (Neh 6:9).

padah Hebrew Pronunciation [pah DHAH]
HCSB Translation redeem, ransom Uses in Deuteronomy 6
Uses in the OT 60
Focus Passage Deuteronomy 21:8

Prebiblical Semitic legal use of this root allowed connotations of religion and "setting free." Padah indicates change of ownership through payment or substitution. People redeemed slave girls to marry them (Lv 19:20). Israel's firstborn had to be redeemed (Ex 34:19-20) because God redeemed Israel from Egyptian slavery at the cost of Egypt's firstborn (Ex 13:15). God and Israel later recalled this redemption (Dt 15:15; 2Sm 7:23). God redeemed David from all trouble (2Sm 4:9), and David prayed God would do likewise for Israel (Ps 25:22). Psalmists sought redemption from threats like death (Ps 49:7-8,15). Padah once describes redemption from sin (Ps 130:7-8). Especially when parallel with ga'al (also meaning redeem), padah is translated ransom (Hs 13:14).

shamar Hebrew Pronunciation [shah MAR]
HCSB Translation keep, watch, guard Uses in Deuteronomy 73
Uses in the OT 469
Focus passage Deuteronomy 27:1

Shamar means keep (Gn 17:9), maintain, tend, preserve, continue, or guarantee. It is watch, observe (Ezk 43:11), take note, or notice. It denotes stand watch, guard (Gn 3:24), restrain, safeguard, protect, watch over, care for (Ex 22:10), take care of, look after, be in charge of, or be responsible for. People do, obey, carry out (Jos 22:3), fulfill, or perform duties. Shamar means besiege (2Sm 11:16), avoid (Ps 17:4), or appoint (2Sm 22:44). One is devoted to or clings to (Jnh 2:8). Participles signify watchman, guardian, keeper, spy (Jdg 1:24), or sentry. Passive participles indicate secured (2Sm 23:5) or saved. Passive-reflexive verbs convey make/be sure (Gn 24:6), pay attention (Ex 23:13), calm down, and be careful, on guard, or kept safe (Ps 37:28). With other verbs shamar implies carefully or exactly (Nm 23:12). People spare life, follow instruction, uphold justice, remain faithful, harbor rage, and accept rebuke.

JOSHUA

Encouragement of Joshua

1 After the death of Moses [a] the LORD's servant, the LORD spoke to Joshua [b] son of Nun, [c] who had served Moses: [2] "Moses My servant is dead. [d] Now you and all the people prepare to cross over the Jordan [e] to the land I am giving the Israelites. [3] I have given you every place where the sole of your foot treads, [f] just as I promised Moses. [4] Your territory will be from the wilderness and Lebanon [g] to the great Euphrates River — all the land of the Hittites [h] — and west to the Mediterranean Sea. [A, i] 5 No one will be able to stand against you as long as you live. [j] I will be with you, just as I was with Moses. I will not leave you or forsake you. [k]

6 "Be strong and courageous, [l] for you will distribute the land I swore to their fathers to give them as an inheritance. [m] 7 Above all, be strong and very courageous to carefully observe the whole instruction My servant Moses commanded you. [n] Do not turn from it to the right or the left, so that you will have success wherever you go. 8 This book of instruction must not depart from your mouth; [o] you are to recite [B] it day and night so that you may carefully observe everything written in it. For then you will prosper and succeed in whatever you do. [p] 9 Haven't I commanded you: be strong and courageous? [q] Do not be afraid or discouraged, for the LORD your God is with you wherever you go."

Joshua Prepares the People [10] Then Joshua commanded the officers of the people: [11] "Go through the camp and tell the people, 'Get provisions ready for yourselves, for within three days you will be crossing the Jordan to go in and take possession of the land the LORD your God is giving you to inherit.' " [r]

12 Joshua said to the Reubenites, the Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh: [s] 13 "Remember what Moses the LORD's servant commanded you when he said, 'The LORD your God will give you rest, and He will give you this land.' [t] 14 Your wives, young children, and livestock may remain in the land Moses gave you on this side of the Jordan. [u] But your fighting men must cross over in battle formation [C] ahead of your brothers [v] and help them 15 until the LORD gives your brothers rest, as He has given you, and they too possess the land the LORD your God is giving them. You may then return to the land of your inheritance [w] and take possession of what Moses the LORD's servant [x] gave you on the east side of the Jordan."

16 They answered Joshua, "Everything you have commanded us we will do, and everywhere you send us we will go. 17 We will obey you, just as we obeyed

Moses in everything. And may the LORD your God be with you, as He was with Moses. [y] 18 Anyone who rebels against your order and does not obey your words in all that you command him, will be put to death. Above all, be strong and courageous! ” [z]

Spies Sent to Jericho

2 Joshua son of Nun secretly sent two men as spies [a] from the Acacia Grove, [A] saying, “Go and scout the land, especially Jericho.” So they left, and they came to the house of a woman, a prostitute named Rahab, [b] and stayed there.

2 The king of Jericho was told, “Look, some of the Israelite men have come here tonight to investigate the land.” 3 Then the king of Jericho sent word to Rahab and said, “Bring out the men who came to you and entered your house, for they came to investigate the entire land.”

4 But the woman had taken the two men and hidden them. [c] So she said, “Yes, the men did come to me, but I didn’t know where they were from. 5 At nightfall, when the gate was about to close, the men went out, and I don’t know where they were going. Chase after them quickly, and you can catch up with them! ” 6 But she had taken them up to the roof and hidden them [d] among the stalks of flax that she had arranged on the roof. 7 The men pursued them along the road to the fords of the Jordan, and as soon as they left to pursue them, the gate was shut.

The Promise to Rahab

8 Before the men fell asleep, she went up on the roof 9 and said to them, “I know that the Lord has given you this land [e] and that the terror of you has fallen on us, and everyone who lives in the land is panicking because of you. [B] 10 For we have heard how the Lord dried up the waters of the •Red Sea before you when you came out of Egypt, [f] and what you did to Sihon and Og, the two Amorite kings you •completely destroyed [g] across the Jordan. 11 When we heard this, we lost heart, and everyone’s courage failed [C] because of you, [h] for the Lord your God is God in heaven above and on earth below. 12 Now please swear to me by the Lord that you will also show kindness to my family, because I showed kindness to you. [D] Give me a sure sign [E] 13 that you will spare the lives of my father, mother, brothers, sisters, and all who belong to them, and save us from death.”

14 The men answered her, “We will give our lives for yours. If you don’t report our mission, we will show kindness and faithfulness to you when the Lord gives us the land.”

15 Then she let them down by a rope through the window, since she lived in a house that was built into the wall of the city. 16 “Go to the hill country so that the men pursuing you won’t find you,” she said to them. “Hide yourselves there for three days until they return; afterward, go on your way.”

17 The men said to her, “We will be free from this oath you made us swear, 18 unless, when we enter the land, you tie this scarlet cord to the window through which you let us down. Bring your father, mother, brothers, and all your father’s family into your house. 19 If anyone goes out the doors of your house, his blood will be on his own head, [i] and we will be innocent. But if anyone with you in the house should be harmed, [F] his blood will be on our heads. 20 And if you report our mission, we are free from the oath you made us swear.”

21 “Let it be as you say,” she replied, and she sent them away. After they had gone, she tied the scarlet cord to the window.

22 So the two men went into the hill country and stayed there three days until the pursuers had returned. They searched all along the way, but did not find them. 23 Then the men returned, came down from the hill country, and crossed the Jordan. They went to Joshua son of Nun and reported everything that had happened to them. 24 They told Joshua, “The Lord has handed over the entire land to us. Everyone who lives in the land is also panicking because of us.” [G]

Crossing the Jordan

3 Joshua started early the next morning and left the Acacia Grove [A] with all the Israelites. They went as far as the Jordan and stayed there before crossing. 2 After three days the officers went through the camp [a] 3 and commanded the people: “When you see the ark of the covenant of the LORD your God carried by the Levitical priests, [b] you must break camp and follow it. 4 But keep a distance of about 1,000 yards [B] between yourselves and the ark. Don’t go near it, so that you can see the way to go, for you haven’t traveled this way before.” [C]

5 Joshua told the people, “Consecrate yourselves, [c] because the LORD will do wonders among you tomorrow.” 6 Then he said to the priests, “Take the ark of the covenant and go on ahead of the people.” So they carried the ark of the covenant and went ahead of them.

7 The LORD spoke to Joshua: “Today I will begin to exalt you in the sight of all Israel, [d] so they will know that I will be with you just as I was with Moses. 8 Command the priests carrying the ark of the covenant: When you reach the edge of the waters, [D] stand in the Jordan.”

9 Then Joshua told the Israelites, “Come closer and listen to the words of the LORD your God.” 10 He said: “You will know that the living God is among you [e] and that He will certainly dispossess before you the Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Amorites, and Jebusites [f] 11 when the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth [g] goes ahead of you into the Jordan. 12 Now choose 12 men from the tribes of Israel, one man for each tribe. [h] 13 When the feet [E] of the priests who carry the ark of the LORD, the Lord of all the earth, come to rest in the Jordan’s waters, its waters will be cut off. The water flowing downstream will stand up in a mass.” [i]

14 When the people broke camp to cross the Jordan, the priests carried the ark of the covenant [j] ahead of the people. 15 Now the Jordan overflows its banks throughout the harvest season. [k] But as soon as the priests carrying the ark reached the Jordan, their feet touched the water at its edge 16 and the water flowing downstream stood still, rising up in a mass that extended as far as [l] Adam, a city next to Zarethan. The water flowing downstream into the Sea of the •Arabah [m] (the Dead Sea) was completely cut off, and the people crossed opposite Jericho. 17 The priests carrying the ark of the LORD’s covenant stood firmly on dry ground in the middle of the Jordan, [n] while all Israel crossed on dry ground until the entire nation had finished crossing the Jordan.

The Memorial Stones

4 After the entire nation had finished crossing the Jordan, [a] the LORD spoke to Joshua: 2 “Choose 12 men from the people, one man for each tribe, [b] 3 and command them: Take 12 stones from this place in the middle of the Jordan where the priests [A] are standing, carry them with you, and set them down at the place where you spend the night.”

4 So Joshua summoned the 12 men he had selected from the Israelites, one man for each tribe, 5 and said to them, “Go across to the ark of the LORD your God in the middle of the Jordan. Each of you lift a stone onto his shoulder, one for each [B] of the Israelite tribes, 6 so that this will be a sign among you. In the future, when your children ask you, ‘What do these stones mean to you? ’ [c] 7 you should tell them, ‘The waters of the Jordan were cut off in front of the ark of the LORD’s covenant. When it crossed the Jordan, the Jordan’s waters were cut off.’ Therefore these stones will always be a memorial for the Israelites.” [d]

8 The Israelites did just as Joshua had commanded them. The 12 men took stones from the middle of the Jordan, one for each [C] of the Israelite tribes, just as the LORD had told Joshua. They carried them to the camp and set them down there. 9 Joshua also set up 12 stones in the middle [D] of the Jordan where the priests [E] who carried the ark of the covenant were standing. The stones are there to this day. [e]

10 The priests carrying the ark continued standing in the middle of the Jordan until everything was completed that the LORD had commanded Joshua to tell the people, in keeping with all that Moses had commanded Joshua. The people hurried across, 11 and after everyone had finished crossing, the priests with the ark of the LORD crossed in the sight of the people. 12 The Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh went in battle formation in front of the Israelites, [f] as Moses had instructed them. 13 About 40,000 equipped for war crossed to the plains of Jericho in the LORD’s presence.

14 On that day the LORD exalted Joshua in the sight of all Israel, and they revered him throughout his life, as they had revered Moses. [g] 15 The LORD told Joshua, 16 “Command the priests who carry the ark of the •testimony [h, i] to come up from the Jordan.”

17 So Joshua commanded the priests, “Come up from the Jordan.” 18 When the priests carrying the ark of the LORD’s covenant came up from the middle of the Jordan, and their feet [F] stepped out on solid ground, the waters of the Jordan resumed their course, flowing over all the banks as before.

19 The people came up from the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month, [j] and camped at Gilgal on the eastern limits of Jericho. 20 Then Joshua set up in Gilgal the 12 stones they had taken from the Jordan, 21 and he said to the Israelites, “In the future, when your children ask their fathers, ‘What is the meaning of these stones? ’ 22 you should tell your children, ‘Israel crossed the Jordan on dry ground.’ k 23 For the LORD your God dried up the waters of the Jordan before you until you had crossed over, l just as the LORD your God did to the •Red Sea, which He dried up before us until we had crossed over. 24 This is so that all the people of the earth may know m that the LORD’s hand is mighty, n and so that you may always •fear the LORD your God.” o

Circumcision of the Israelites

5 When all the Amorite kings across the Jordan to the west and all the Canaanite kings near the sea [a] heard how the LORD had dried up the waters of the Jordan before the Israelites until they had crossed over, [b] they lost heart and their courage failed [A] because of the Israelites.

2 At that time the LORD said to Joshua, “Make flint knives and circumcise the Israelite men again.” [c] 3 So Joshua made flint knives and circumcised the Israelite men at Gibeath-haaraloth. [B] 4 This is the reason Joshua circumcised them: All the people who came out of Egypt who were males — all the men of war — had died in the wilderness along the way after they had come out of Egypt. 5 Though all the people who came out were circumcised, none of the people born in the wilderness along the way were circumcised after they had come out of Egypt. 6 For the Israelites wandered in the wilderness 40 years until all the nation’s men of war who came out of Egypt had died off because they did not obey the LORD. [d] So the LORD vowed never to let them see the land He had sworn to their fathers to give us, a land flowing with milk and honey. [e] 7 Joshua raised up their sons in their place; it was these he circumcised. They were still uncircumcised, since they had not been circumcised along the way. 8 After the entire nation had been circumcised, they stayed where they were in the camp until they recovered. [f] 9 The LORD then said to Joshua, “Today I have rolled away the disgrace of Egypt from you.” Therefore, that place is called Gilgal [g] to this day. [h]

Food from the Land

10 While the Israelites camped at Gilgal on the plains of Jericho, they kept the •Passover on the evening of the fourteenth day of the month. [i] 11 The day after Passover they ate unleavened bread and roasted grain from the produce of the land. 12 And the day after they ate from the produce of the land, the manna ceased. [j] Since there was no more manna for the Israelites, they ate from the crops of the land of Canaan that year.

Commander of the LORD's Army 13 When Joshua was near Jericho, he looked up and saw a man standing in front of him with a drawn sword in His hand. [k] Joshua approached Him and asked, "Are You for us or for our enemies? "

14 "Neither," He replied. "I have now come as commander of the LORD's army."

Then Joshua bowed with his face to the ground in worship [l] and asked Him, "What does my Lord want to say to His servant? "

15 The commander of the LORD's army said to Joshua, "Remove the sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy." [m] And Joshua did so.

The Conquest of Jericho

6 Now Jericho was strongly fortified because of the Israelites — no one leaving or entering. 2 The LORD said to Joshua, “Look, I have handed Jericho, its king, and its fighting men over to you. [a] 3 March around the city with all the men of war, circling the city one time. Do this for six days. 4 Have seven priests carry seven ram’s-horn trumpets in front of the ark. But on the seventh day, march around the city seven times, while the priests blow the trumpets. [b] 5 When there is a prolonged blast of the horn and you hear its sound, have all the people give a mighty shout. Then the city wall will collapse, and the people will advance, each man straight ahead.”

6 So Joshua son of Nun summoned the priests and said to them, “Take up the ark of the covenant and have seven priests carry seven trumpets in front of the ark of the LORD.” 7 He said to the people, “Move forward, march around the city, and have the armed troops go ahead of the ark of the LORD.”

8 After Joshua had spoken to the people, seven priests carrying seven trumpets before the LORD moved forward and blew the trumpets; the ark of the LORD’s covenant followed them. 9 While the trumpets were blowing, the armed troops went in front of the priests who blew the trumpets, and the rear guard went behind the ark. [c] 10 But Joshua had commanded the people: “Do not shout or let your voice be heard. Don’t let one word come out of your mouth until the time I say, ‘Shout! ’ Then you are to shout.” 11 So the ark of the LORD was carried around the city, circling it once. They returned to the camp and spent the night there. [A]

12 Joshua got up early the next morning. The priests took the ark of the LORD, 13 and the seven priests carrying seven trumpets marched in front of the ark of the LORD. While the trumpets were blowing, the armed troops went in front of them, and the rear guard went behind the ark of the LORD. 14 On the second day they marched around the city once and returned to the camp. They did this for six days.

15 Early on the seventh day, they started at dawn and marched around the city seven times in the same way. That was the only day they marched around the city seven times. 16 After the seventh time, the priests blew the trumpets, and Joshua said to the people, “Shout! For the LORD has given you the city. 17 But the city and everything in it are •set apart to the LORD for destruction. Only Rahab the prostitute and everyone with her in the house will live, [d] because she hid the men [B] we sent. 18 But keep yourselves from the things set apart, or you will be set apart for destruction. If you [e] take any of those things, you will set apart the camp of Israel for destruction and bring disaster on it. 19 For all the silver and gold, and the articles of bronze and iron, are dedicated to the LORD and must go into the LORD's treasury."

20 So the people shouted, and the trumpets sounded. When they heard the blast of the trumpet, the people gave a great shout, and the wall collapsed. [f] The people advanced into the city, each man straight ahead, and they captured the city. 21 They •completely destroyed [g] everything in the city with the sword — every man and woman, both young and old, and every ox, sheep, and donkey.

Rahab and Her Family Spared 22 Joshua said to the two men who had scouted the land, "Go to the prostitute's house and bring the woman out of there, and all who are with her, just as you promised her." [h] 23 So the young men who had scouted went in and brought out Rahab and her father, mother, brothers, and all who belonged to her. They brought out her whole family and settled them outside the camp of Israel.

24 They burned up the city and everything in it, but they put the silver and gold and the articles of bronze and iron into the treasury of the LORD's house. 25 However, Joshua spared Rahab the prostitute, her father's household, and all who belonged to her, because she hid the men Joshua had sent to spy on Jericho, and she lives in Israel [i] to this day. [j]

26 At that time Joshua imposed this curse:

The man who undertakes
the rebuilding of this city, Jericho, is cursed before the LORD.
He will lay its foundation
at the cost of his firstborn;
he will set up its gates
at the cost of his youngest. [k]

27 And the LORD was with Joshua, and his fame spread throughout the land.

Defeat at Ai

7 The Israelites, however, were unfaithful [a] regarding the things •set apart for destruction. Achan son of Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, took some of what was set apart, and the LORD's anger burned against the Israelites.
2 Joshua sent men from Jericho to Ai, which is near Beth-aven, [b] east of Bethel, and told them, "Go up and scout the land." So the men went up and scouted Ai.
3 After returning to Joshua they reported to him, "Don't send all the people, but send about 2,000 or 3,000 [A] men to attack Ai. Since the people of Ai are so few, don't wear out all our people there." 4 So about 3,000 men [B] went up there, but they fled from the men of Ai. [c] 5 The men of Ai struck down about 36 of them and chased them from outside the gate to the quarries, [C] striking them down on the descent. As a result, the people's hearts melted and became like water. [d]
6 Then Joshua tore his clothes and fell before the ark of the LORD with his face to the ground until evening, as did the elders of Israel; they all put dust on their heads. 7 "Oh, Lord GOD," Joshua said, "why did You ever bring these people across the Jordan to hand us over to the Amorites for our destruction? If only we had been content to remain on the other side of the Jordan! 8 What can I say, Lord, now that Israel has turned its back and run from its enemies? 9 When the Canaanites and all who live in the land hear about this, they will surround us and wipe out our name from the earth. Then what will You do about Your great name? "
10 The LORD then said to Joshua, "Stand up! Why are you on the ground? [D] 11
Israel has sinned. They have violated My covenant that I appointed for them.
They have taken some of what was set apart. They have stolen, deceived, and put the things with their own belongings. [e] 12 This is why the Israelites cannot stand against their enemies. They will turn their backs and run from their enemies, because they have been set apart for destruction. [f] I will no longer be with you unless you remove from you what is set apart.
13 "Go and consecrate the people. Tell them to consecrate themselves for tomorrow, [g] for this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: There are things that are set apart among you, Israel. You will not be able to stand against your enemies until you remove what is set apart. 14 In the morning you must present yourselves tribe by tribe. The tribe the LORD selects is to come forward clan by clan. The clan the LORD selects is to come forward family by family. The family the LORD selects is to come forward man by man. 15 The one who is caught with the things set apart must be burned, [E] along with everything he has, because he has violated the LORD's covenant and committed an outrage in Israel." [h]

Achan Judged

16 Joshua got up early the next morning. He had Israel come forward tribe by tribe, and the tribe of Judah was selected. 17 He had the clans of Judah come forward, and the Zerahite clan was selected. He had the Zerahite clan come forward by heads of families, [F] and Zabdi was selected. 18 He then had Zabdi's family come forward man by man, and Achan son of Carmi, son of Zabdi, son of Zerah, of the tribe of Judah, was selected.

19 So Joshua said to Achan, "My son, give glory to the LORD, the God of Israel, [i] and make a confession to Him. [G] I urge you, tell me what you have done. Don't hide anything from me."

20 Achan replied to Joshua, "It is true. I have sinned against the LORD, the God of Israel. This is what I did: 21 When I saw among the spoils a beautiful cloak from Babylon, [H] 200 silver •shekels , [j] and a bar of gold weighing 50 shekels, [k] I coveted them and took them. [l] You can see for yourself. They are concealed in the ground inside my tent, with the money under the cloak." 22 So Joshua sent messengers who ran to the tent, and there was the cloak, concealed in his tent, with the money underneath. 23 They took the things from inside the tent, brought them to Joshua and all the Israelites, and spread them out in the LORD's presence.

24 Then Joshua and all Israel with him took Achan son of Zerah, the silver, the cloak, and the bar of gold, his sons and daughters, his ox, donkey, and sheep, his tent, and all that he had, and brought them up to the Valley of Achor. [m] 25
Joshua said, "Why have you troubled us? [n] Today the LORD will trouble you! "
So all Israel stoned them [I] to death. They burned their bodies, [J] threw stones on them, 26 and raised over him a large pile of rocks that remains to this day. [o]
Then the LORD turned from His burning anger. Therefore that place is called the Valley of Achor [K] to this day.

Conquest of Ai

8 The Lord said to Joshua, “Do not be afraid or discouraged. [a] Take the whole military force with you and go attack Ai. Look, I have handed over to you the king of Ai, his people, city, and land. [b] 2 Treat Ai and its king as you did Jericho and its king; [c] you may plunder its spoil and livestock for yourselves. Set an ambush behind the city.”
3 So Joshua and the whole military force set out to attack Ai. Joshua selected 30,000 fighting men and sent them out at night. 4 He commanded them: “Pay attention. Lie in ambush behind the city, not too far from it, and all of you be ready. [d] 5 Then I and all the people who are with me will approach the city.
When they come out against us as they did the first time, we will flee from them.
6 They will come after us until we have drawn them away from the city, for they will say, ‘They are fleeing from us as before.’ While we are fleeing from them, 7 you are to come out of your ambush and seize the city, for the Lord your God has handed it over to you. 8 After taking the city, set it on fire. Follow the Lord’s command — see that you do as I have ordered you.” 9 So Joshua sent them out, and they went to the ambush site and waited between Bethel and Ai, to the west of Ai. But he spent that night with the troops.
10 Joshua started early the next morning and mobilized them. Then he and the elders of Israel led the troops up to Ai. 11 All those [A] who were with him went up and approached the city, arriving opposite Ai, and camped to the north of it, with a valley between them and the city. 12 Now Joshua had taken about 5,000 men and set them in ambush between Bethel and Ai, to the west of the city. 13
The military force was stationed in this way: the main [B] camp to the north of the city and its rear guard to the west of the city. And that night Joshua went into the valley.
14 When the king of Ai saw the Israelites, the men of the city hurried and went out early in the morning so that he and all his people could engage Israel in battle at a suitable place facing the •Arabah . But he did not know there was an ambush waiting for him behind the city. 15 Joshua and all Israel pretended to be beaten back by them and fled toward the wilderness. 16 Then all the troops of Ai were summoned to pursue them, and they pursued Joshua and were drawn away from the city. 17 Not a man was left in Ai or Bethel who did not go out after Israel, leaving the city exposed while they pursued Israel.
18 Then the Lord said to Joshua, “Hold out the sword in your hand toward Ai, for I will hand the city over to you.” So Joshua held out his sword toward it.
19 When he held out his hand, the men in ambush rose quickly from their position. They ran, entered the city, captured it, and immediately set it on fire.

20 The men of Ai turned and looked back, and smoke from the city was rising to the sky! They could not escape in any direction, and the troops who had fled to the wilderness now became the pursuers. 21 When Joshua and all Israel saw that the men in ambush had captured the city and that smoke was rising from it, they turned back and struck down the men of Ai. 22 Then men in ambush came out of the city against them, and the men of Ai were trapped between the Israelite forces, some on one side and some on the other. They struck them down until no survivor or fugitive remained, 23 but they captured the king of Ai alive and brought him to Joshua.
24 When Israel had finished killing everyone living in Ai who had pursued them into the open country, and when every last one of them had fallen by the sword, all Israel returned to Ai and struck it down with the sword. 25 The total of those who fell that day, both men and women, was 12,000 — all the people of Ai. 26 Joshua did not draw back his hand that was holding the sword until all the inhabitants of Ai were •completely destroyed. [e] 27 Israel plundered only the cattle and spoil of that city for themselves, according to the LORD's command that He had given Joshua.
28 Joshua burned Ai and left it a permanent ruin, desolate to this day. [f] 29 He hung [C] the body of the king of Ai on a tree [D] until evening, and at sunset Joshua commanded that they take his body down from the tree. [g] They threw it down at the entrance of the city gate and put a large pile of rocks over it, which remains to this day.

Renewed Commitment to the Law 30 At that time Joshua built an altar on Mount Ebal [h] to the LORD, the God of Israel, 31 just as Moses the LORD's servant had commanded the Israelites. He built it according to what is written in the book of the law of Moses: an altar of uncut stones on which no iron tool has been used. [i] Then they offered •burnt offerings to the LORD and sacrificed •fellowship offerings on it. 32 There on the stones, Joshua copied the law of Moses, which he had written in the presence of the Israelites. [j] 33 All Israel, foreigner and citizen alike, with their elders, officers, and judges, stood on either side of the ark of the LORD's covenant facing the Levitical priests who carried it. As Moses the LORD's servant had commanded earlier, half of them were in front of Mount Gerizim and half in front of Mount Ebal, [k] to bless the people of Israel. [l] 34 Afterward, Joshua read aloud all the words of the law — the blessings as well as the curses — according to all that is written in the book of the law. 35 There was not a word of all that Moses had commanded that Joshua did not read before the entire assembly of Israel, including the women, the little children, and the foreigners who were with them. [m]

Deception by Gibeon

9 When all the kings heard about Jericho and Ai, those who were west of the Jordan in the hill country, [a] in the Judean foothills, [A] and all along the coast of the Mediterranean Sea [b] toward Lebanon — the Hittites, Amorites, Canaanites, Perizzites, Hivites, and Jebusites — 2 they formed a unified alliance to fight against Joshua and Israel.
3 When the inhabitants of Gibeon heard what Joshua had done to Jericho and Ai, [c] 4 they acted deceptively. They gathered provisions [d] and took worn-out sacks on their donkeys and old wineskins, cracked and mended. 5 They wore old, patched sandals on their feet and threadbare clothing on their bodies. Their entire provision of bread was dry and crumbly. 6 They went to Joshua in the camp at Gilgal and said to him and the men of Israel, “We have come from a distant land.
Please make a treaty with us.” [e] 7 The men of Israel replied to the Hivites, [f] “Perhaps you live among us. How can we make a treaty with you? ” [g]
8 They said to Joshua, “We are your servants.”
Then Joshua asked them, “Who are you and where do you come from? ” 9 They replied to him, “Your servants have come from a far away land because of the reputation of the LORD your God. For we have heard of His fame, and all that He did in Egypt, 10 and all that He did to the two Amorite kings beyond the Jordan — Sihon king of Heshbon and Og king of Bashan, who was in Ashtaroth. 11 So our elders and all the inhabitants of our land told us, ‘Take provisions with you for the journey; go and meet them and say, “We are your servants. Please make a treaty with us.” ’ 12 This bread of ours was warm when we took it from our houses as food on the day we left to come to you. But take a look, it is now dry and crumbly. 13 These wineskins were new when we filled them, but look, they are cracked. And these clothes and sandals of ours are worn out from the extremely long journey.” 14 Then the men of Israel took some of their provisions, but did not seek the LORD’s counsel. [h] 15 So Joshua established peace with them and made a treaty to let them live, and the leaders of the community swore an oath to them. [i]

Gibeon’s Deception Discovered 16 Three days after making the treaty with them, they heard that the Gibeonites were their neighbors, living among them. 17 So the Israelites set out and reached the Gibeonite cities on the third day. Now their cities were Gibeon, Chephirah, Beeroth, and Kiriath-jearim. [j] 18 But the Israelites did not attack them, because the leaders of the community had sworn an oath [k] to them by the LORD, the God of Israel. Then the whole community grumbled against the leaders.

19 All the leaders answered them, “We have sworn an oath to them by the LORD, the God of Israel, and now we cannot touch them. 20 This is how we will treat them: we will let them live, so that no wrath will fall on us because of the oath we swore to them.” 21 They also said, “Let them live.” So the Gibeonites became woodcutters and water carriers [l] for the whole community, as the leaders had promised them.

22 Joshua summoned the Gibeonites and said to them, “Why did you deceive us by telling us you live far away from us, when in fact you live among us?
23 Therefore you are cursed and will always be slaves — woodcutters and water carriers for the house of my God.”

24 The Gibeonites answered him, “It was clearly communicated to your servants that the LORD your God had commanded His servant Moses to give you all the land and to destroy all the inhabitants of the land before you. We greatly feared for our lives because of you, and that is why we did this. 25 Now we are in your hands. Do to us whatever you think is right.” B 26 This is what Joshua did to them: he delivered them from the hands of the Israelites, and they did not kill them. 27 On that day he made them woodcutters and water carriers — as they are today — for the community and for the LORD’s altar at the place He would choose. [m]

The Day the Sun Stood Still

10 Now Adoni-zedek king of Jerusalem heard that Joshua had captured Ai and •completely destroyed [a] it, treating Ai and its king as he had Jericho and its king, and that the inhabitants of Gibeon [b] had made peace with Israel and were living among them. [c] 2 So Adoni-zedek and his people were [d] greatly alarmed because Gibeon was a large city like one of the royal cities; it was larger than Ai, and all its men were warriors. 3 Therefore Adoni-zedek king of Jerusalem sent word to Hoham king of Hebron, Piram king of Jarmuth, Japhia king of Lachish, and Debir king of Eglon, saying, 4 "Come up and help me. We will attack Gibeon, because they have made peace with Joshua and the Israelites." 5 So the five Amorite kings — the kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon — joined forces, advanced with all their armies, besieged Gibeon, and fought against it.

6 Then the men of Gibeon sent word to Joshua in the camp at Gilgal: "Don't abandon [A] your servants. Come quickly and save us! Help us, for all the Amorite kings living in the hill country have joined forces against us." 7 So Joshua and his whole military force, including all the fighting men, came from Gilgal. [e]

8 The LORD said to Joshua, "Do not be afraid of them, [f] for I have handed them over to you. Not one of them will be able to stand against you."

9 So Joshua caught them by surprise, after marching all night from Gilgal. 10
The LORD threw them into confusion [g] before Israel. He defeated them in a great slaughter at Gibeon, chased them through the ascent of Beth-horon, and struck them down as far as Azekah and Makkedah. 11 As they fled before Israel, the LORD threw large hailstones on them [h] from the sky along the descent of Bethhoron all the way to Azekah, and they died. More of them died from the hail than the Israelites killed with the sword.

12 On the day the LORD gave the Amorites over to the Israelites, Joshua spoke to the LORD in the presence of Israel:

"Sun, [i] stand still over Gibeon, and moon, over the Valley of Aijalon." 13 And the sun stood still and the moon stopped
until the nation took vengeance on its enemies.

Isn't this written in the Book of Jashar? [B]

So the sun stopped in the middle of the sky

and delayed its setting almost a full day.

14 There has been no day like it before or since, when the LORD listened to the voice of a man, because the LORD fought for Israel. [j] 15 Then Joshua and all Israel with him returned to the camp at Gilgal.

Execution of the Five Kings 16 Now the five defeated kings had fled and hidden themselves in the cave at Makkedah. 17 It was reported to Joshua: "The five kings have been found; they are hiding in the cave at Makkedah."

18 Joshua said, "Roll large stones against the mouth of the cave, and station men by it to guard the kings. 19 But as for the rest of you, don't stay there.
Pursue your enemies and attack them from behind. Don't let them enter their cities, for the LORD your God has handed them over to you." 20 So Joshua and the Israelites finished inflicting a terrible slaughter on them until they were destroyed, although a few survivors ran away to the fortified cities. 21 The people returned safely to Joshua in the camp at Makkedah. And no one dared to threaten [C] the Israelites.

22 Then Joshua said, "Open the mouth of the cave, and bring those five kings to me out of there." 23 That is what they did. They brought the five kings of Jerusalem, Hebron, Jarmuth, Lachish, and Eglon to Joshua out of the cave. 24
When they had brought the kings to him, Joshua summoned all the men of Israel and said to the military commanders who had accompanied him, "Come here and put your feet on the necks of these kings." So the commanders came forward and put their feet on their necks. 25 Joshua said to them, "Do not be afraid or discouraged. Be strong and courageous, [k] for the LORD will do this to all the enemies you fight."

26 After this, Joshua struck them down and executed them. He hung [D] their bodies on five trees [E] and they were there until evening. [l] 27 At sunset Joshua commanded that they be taken down from the trees [F, m] and thrown into the cave where they had hidden. Then large stones were placed against the mouth of the cave, and the stones are there to this day. [n]

Conquest of Southern Cities 28 On that day Joshua captured Makkedah and struck it down with the sword, including its king. He completely destroyed it [o] and everyone in it, leaving no survivors. So he treated the king of Makkedah as he had the king of Jericho. [p]

29 Joshua and all Israel with him crossed from Makkedah to Libnah and fought against Libnah. [q] 30 The LORD also handed it and its king over to Israel. He struck it down, putting everyone in it to the sword, and left no survivors in it. He treated Libnah's king as he had the king of Jericho.

31 From Libnah, Joshua and all Israel with him crossed to Lachish. They laid siege to it and attacked it. 32 The LORD handed Lachish over to Israel, and Joshua captured it on the second day. He struck it down, putting everyone in it to the sword, just as he had done to Libnah. 33 At that time Horam king of Gezer went to help Lachish, [r] but Joshua struck him down along with his people, leaving no survivors in it.

34 Then Joshua crossed from Lachish to Eglon and all Israel with him. They laid siege to it and attacked it. 35 On that day they captured it and struck it down, putting everyone in it to the sword. He completely destroyed it that day, just as he had done to Lachish.

36 Next, Joshua and all Israel with him went up from Eglon to Hebron [s] and attacked it. 37 They captured it and struck down its king, all its villages, and everyone in it with the sword. He left no survivors, just as he had done at Eglon. He completely destroyed Hebron and everyone in it.

38 Finally, Joshua turned toward Debir [t] and attacked it. And all Israel was with him. 39 He captured it — its king and all its villages. They struck them down with the sword and completely destroyed everyone in it, leaving no survivors. He treated Debir and its king as he had treated Hebron and as he had treated Libnah and its king.

40 So Joshua conquered the whole region — the hill country, the •Negev , the Judean foothills, [G] and the slopes — with all their kings, leaving no survivors. He completely destroyed every living being, as the LORD, the God of Israel, had commanded. [u] 41 Joshua conquered everyone from Kadesh-barnea to Gaza, and all the land of Goshen [v] as far as Gibeon. 42 Joshua captured all these kings and their land in one campaign, [H] because the LORD, the God of Israel, fought for Israel. 43 Then Joshua returned with all Israel to the camp at Gilgal.

Conquest of Northern Cities

11 When Jabin king of Hazor heard this news, he sent a message to:

Jobab king of Madon,
the kings of Shimron and Achshaph, 2 and the kings of the north in the hill country, the •Arabah south of Chinnereth, [a]
the Judean foothills, [A]
and the Slopes of Dor [B] to the west, 3 the Canaanites in the east and west,
the Amorites, Hittites, Perizzites, and Jebusites in the hill country, and the Hivites at the foot of Hermon
in the land of Mizpah. [b]

4 They went out with all their armies — a multitude as numerous as the sand on the seashore — along with a vast number of horses and chariots. 5 All these kings joined forces; they came together and camped at the waters of Merom to attack Israel. [c]

6 The LORD said to Joshua, “Do not be afraid of them, for at this time tomorrow I will cause all of them to be killed before Israel. [d] You are to hamstring their horses and burn up their chariots.” [e] 7 So Joshua and his whole military force surprised them at the waters of Merom and attacked them. 8 The LORD handed them over to Israel, and they struck them down, pursuing them as far as Great Sidon and Misrephoth-maim, and to the east as far as the Valley of Mizpeh. [f, g] They struck them down, leaving no survivors. 9 Joshua treated them as the LORD had told him; he hamstrung their horses and burned up their chariots.

10 At that time Joshua turned back, captured Hazor, and struck down its king with the sword, because Hazor had formerly been the leader of all these kingdoms. 11 They struck down everyone in it with the sword, •completely destroying [h] them; he left no one alive. Then he burned down Hazor.

12 Joshua captured all these kings and their cities and struck them down with the sword. He completely destroyed them, as Moses the LORD’s servant [i] had commanded. 13 However, Israel did not burn any of the cities that stood on their mounds except Hazor, which Joshua burned. 14 The Israelites plundered all the spoils and cattle of these cities for themselves. But they struck down every person with the sword until they had annihilated them, leaving no one alive. 15 Just as the LORD had commanded His servant Moses, Moses commanded Joshua. That is what Joshua did, leaving nothing undone of all that the LORD had commanded Moses.

Summary of Conquests

16 So Joshua took all this land — the hill country, all the •Negev , all the land of Goshen, [j] the foothills, [C] the Arabah, and the hill country of Israel with its foothills [D] — 17 from Mount Halak, [k] which ascends to Seir, as far as Baal-gad in the Valley of Lebanon at the foot of Mount Hermon. He captured all their kings and struck them down, putting them to death. [l] 18 Joshua waged war with all these kings for a long time. 19 No city made peace with the Israelites except the Hivites who inhabited Gibeon; [m] all of them were taken in battle. 20 For it was the LORD's intention to harden their hearts, so that they would engage Israel in battle, be completely destroyed without mercy, and be annihilated, just as the LORD had commanded Moses.

21 At that time Joshua proceeded to exterminate the Anakim [n] from the hill country — Hebron, Debir, Anab — all the hill country of Judah and of Israel.
Joshua completely destroyed them with their cities. 22 No Anakim were left in the land of the Israelites, except for some remaining in Gaza, Gath, [o] and Ashdod.

23 So Joshua took the entire land, in keeping with all that the LORD had told Moses. Joshua then gave it as an inheritance to Israel according to their tribal allotments. After this, the land had rest from war. [p]

Territory East of the Jordan

12 The Israelites struck down the following kings of the land and took possession of their land beyond the Jordan to the east and from the Arnon Valley to Mount Hermon, including all the •Arabah eastward: [a]

2 Sihon king of the Amorites lived in Heshbon. He ruled over the territory from Aroer [b] on the rim of the Arnon Valley, along the middle of the valley, and half of Gilead up to the Jabbok River (the border of the Ammonites [c]), 3 the Arabah east of the Sea of Chinnereth [d] to the Sea of the Arabah (that is, the Dead Sea), eastward through Beth-jeshimoth [e] and southward [A] below the slopes of Pisgah. [f]

4 Og [g] king of Bashan, of the remnant of the Rephaim, lived in Ashtaroth and Edrei. [h] 5 He ruled over Mount Hermon, Salecah, all Bashan up to the Geshurite and Maacathite border, and half of Gilead to the border of Sihon, king of Heshbon. [i]

6 Moses the LORD's servant [j] and the Israelites struck them [k] down. And Moses the LORD's servant gave their land as an inheritance to the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh. [l]

Territory West of the Jordan

7 Joshua and the Israelites struck down the following kings of the land beyond the Jordan to the west, from Baal-gad in the Valley of Lebanon to Mount Halak, [m] which ascends toward Seir (Joshua gave their land as an inheritance to the tribes of Israel according to their allotments: 8 the hill country, the Judean

Unconquered Lands

13 Joshua was now old, getting on in years, [a] and the LORD said to him, “You have become old, getting on in years, but a great deal of the land remains to be possessed. [b] 2 This is the land that remains:

> All the districts of the Philistines and the Geshurites: 3 from the Shihor > east of Egypt to the border of Ekron on the north (considered to be > Canaanite territory) — the five Philistine rulers of Gaza, Ashdod, > Ashkelon, Gath, and Ekron, as well as the Avvites 4 in the south; all > the land of the Canaanites: from Arah of the Sidonians to Aphek and as > far as the border of the Amorites; 5 the land of the Gebalites; [c] and all > Lebanon east from Baal-gad below Mount Hermon to the entrance of > Hamath [A, d] — 6 all the inhabitants of the hill country from Lebanon > to Misrephoth-maim, [e] all the Sidonians.

I will drive them out before the Israelites, only distribute the land as an inheritance for Israel, as I have commanded you. 7 Therefore, divide this land as an inheritance to the nine tribes and half the tribe of Manasseh.”

The Inheritance East of the Jordan

8 With the other half of the tribe, the Reubenites and Gadites had received the inheritance Moses gave them beyond the Jordan to the east, just as Moses the LORD’s servant had given them: [f]

> 9 From Aroer on the rim of the Arnon Valley, along with the city in > the middle of the valley, [g] all the Medeba plateau as far as Dibon, 10 > and all the cities of Sihon king of the Amorites, who reigned in > Heshbon, to the border of the Ammonites; 11 also Gilead [h] and the > territory of the Geshurites and Maacathites, all Mount Hermon, and all > Bashan to Salecah — 12 the whole kingdom of Og in Bashan, who > reigned in Ashtaroth and Edrei; he was one of the remaining Rephaim.

Moses struck them down and drove them out, [i] 13 but the Israelites did not drive out the Geshurites and Maacathites. [j] So Geshur and Maacath live in Israel to this day. [k]

14 He did not give any inheritance to the tribe of Levi. This was its inheritance, just as He had promised: the offerings made by fire to the LORD, the God of Israel. [l]

Reuben’s Inheritance

15 To the tribe of the Reubenites by their clans, Moses gave 16 this as their territory:

> From Aroer on the rim of the Arnon Valley, along with the city in the middle of the valley, to the whole plateau as far as [m] Medeba, 17 with Heshbon and all its cities on the plateau — Dibon, Bamoth-baal, Beth-baal-meon, 18 Jahaz, Kedemoth, Mephaath, [n] 19 Kiriathaim, Sibmah, Zereth-shahar on the hill in the valley, [o] 20 Beth-peor, the slopes of Pisgah, and Beth-jeshimoth — 21 all the cities of the plateau, and all the kingdom of Sihon king of the Amorites, who reigned in Heshbon. Moses had killed him and the chiefs of Midian — Evi, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba — the princes of Sihon who lived in the land. [p] 22 Along with those the Israelites put to death, they also killed the diviner, Balaam son of Beor, with the sword.

23 The border of the Reubenites was the Jordan and its plain. This was the inheritance of the Reubenites by their clans, with the cities and their villages.

Gad's Inheritance

24 To the tribe of the Gadites by their clans, Moses gave 25 this as their territory:

> Jazer and all the cities of Gilead, and half the land of the Ammonites to Aroer, near Rabbah; 26 from Heshbon to Ramath-mizpeh and Betonim, and from Mahanaim to the border of Debir; B 27 in the valley: [q] Beth-haram, Beth-nimrah, Succoth, and Zaphon — the rest of the kingdom of Sihon king of Heshbon. Their land also included the Jordan and its territory as far as the edge of the Sea of Chinnereth [r] on the east side of the Jordan. C

28 This was the inheritance of the Gadites by their clans, with the cities and their villages.

East Manasseh's Inheritance

29 And to half the tribe of Manasseh, that is, to half the tribe of Manasseh's descendants by their clans, Moses gave 30 this as their territory:

> From Mahanaim through all Bashan — all the kingdom of Og king of Bashan, including all of Jair's Villages D, [s] that are in Bashan — 60 cities. 31 But half of Gilead, and Og's royal cities in Bashan — Ashtaroth and Edrei — are for the descendants of Machir son of Manasseh, that is, half the descendants of Machir by their clans.

32 These were the portions Moses gave them on the plains of Moab beyond the Jordan east of Jericho. 33 But Moses did not give a portion to the tribe of Levi.
The LORD, the God of Israel, was their inheritance, just as He had promised them. t

Israel's Inheritance in Canaan

14 The Israelites received these portions that Eleazar the priest, [a] Joshua son of Nun, and the heads of the families of the Israelite tribes gave them in the land of Canaan. [b] 2 Their inheritance was by lot [c] as the LORD commanded through Moses for the nine and a half tribes, 3 because Moses had given the inheritance to the two and a half tribes beyond the Jordan. [d] But he gave no inheritance among them to the Levites. 4 The descendants of Joseph became two tribes, Manasseh and Ephraim. No portion of the land was given to the Levites except cities to live in, along with pasturelands for their cattle and livestock. 5 So the Israelites did as the LORD commanded Moses, [e] and they divided the land.

Caleb's Inheritance

6 The descendants of Judah approached Joshua at Gilgal, and Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite said to him, "You know what the LORD promised Moses the man of God at Kadesh-barnea about you and me. [f] 7 I was 40 years old when Moses the LORD's servant sent me from Kadesh-barnea to scout the land, and I brought back an honest report. [g] 8 My brothers who went with me caused the people's hearts to melt with fear, but I remained loyal to the LORD my God. [h] 9
On that day Moses promised me: 'The land where you have set foot will be an inheritance for you and your descendants forever, because you have remained loyal to the LORD my God.' [i]

10 "As you see, the LORD has kept me alive these 45 years as He promised, [j] since the LORD spoke this word to Moses while Israel was journeying in the wilderness. Here I am today, 85 years old. 11 I am still as strong today as I was the day Moses sent me out. My strength for battle and for daily tasks [A] is now as it was then. [k] 12 Now give me this hill country the LORD promised me on that day, because you heard then that the Anakim are there, as well as large fortified cities. [l] Perhaps the LORD will be with me and I will drive them out as the LORD promised."

13 Then Joshua blessed Caleb son of Jephunneh and gave him Hebron as an inheritance. [m] 14 Therefore, Hebron belongs to Caleb son of Jephunneh the Kenizzite as an inheritance to this day, [n] because he remained loyal to the LORD, the God of Israel. 15 Hebron's name used to be Kiriath-arba; Arba was the greatest man among the Anakim. [o] After this, the land had rest from war.

Judah’s Inheritance

15 Now the allotment for the tribe of the descendants of Judah by their clans [a] was in the southernmost region, south to the Wilderness of Zin and over to the border of Edom.

2 Their southern border began at the tip of the Dead Sea on the south bay [A] 3 and went south of the Ascent of Akrabbim, [B] proceeded to Zin, ascended to the south of Kadesh-barnea, passed Hezron, ascended to Addar, and turned to Karka. 4 It proceeded to Azmon and to the Brook of Egypt and so the border ended at the Mediterranean Sea. This is your [b] southern border.

5 Now the eastern border was along the Dead Sea to the mouth of the Jordan. [c]

The border on the north side was from the bay of the sea at the mouth of the Jordan. 6 It ascended to Beth-hoglah, proceeded north of Beth-arabah, and ascended to the Stone of Bohan son of Reuben. 7 Then the border ascended to Debir from the Valley of Achor, turning north to the Gilgal that is opposite the Ascent of Adummim, which is south of the ravine. The border proceeded to the waters of En-shemesh and ended at En-rogel. 8 From there the border ascended the Valley of Hinnom to the southern Jebusite slope (that is, Jerusalem) and ascended to the top of the hill that faces the Valley of Hinnom on the west, at the northern end of the Valley of Rephaim. 9 From the top of the hill the border curved to the spring of the Waters of Nephtoah, went to the cities of Mount Ephron, and then curved to Baalah (that is, Kiriath-jearim [d]). 10 The border turned westward from Baalah to Mount Seir, went to the northern slope of Mount Jearim (that is, Chesalon), descended to Beth-shemesh, and proceeded to Timnah. [e] 11 Then the border reached to the slope north of Ekron, curved to Shikkeron, proceeded to Mount Baalah, went to Jabneel, and ended at the Mediterranean Sea.

12 Now the western border was the coastline of the Mediterranean Sea.

This was the boundary of the descendants of Judah around their clans.

Caleb and Othniel

13 He gave Caleb son of Jephunneh the following portion among the descendants of Judah based on the LORD's instruction to Joshua: Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron; Arba was the father of Anak). 14 Caleb drove out from there the three sons of Anak: Sheshai, Ahiman, and Talmai, descendants of Anak. 15 From there he marched against the inhabitants of Debir whose name used to be Kiriath-sepher, [f] 16 and Caleb said, "I will give my daughter Achsah as a wife to the one who strikes down and captures Kiriath-sepher." 17 So Othniel [g] son of Caleb's brother, Kenaz, captured it, and Caleb gave his daughter Achsah to him as a wife. [h] 18 When she arrived, she persuaded Othniel to ask her father for a field. As she got off her donkey, Caleb asked her, "What do you want? " 19 She replied, "Give me a blessing. Since you have given me land in the •Negev , give me the springs of water also." So he gave her the upper and lower springs.

Judah's Cities

20 This was the inheritance of the tribe of the descendants of Judah by their clans.

21 These were the outermost cities of the tribe of the descendants of Judah toward the border of Edom in the Negev: Kabzeel, Eder, Jagur, [i] 22 Kinah, Dimonah, Adadah, 23 Kedesh, Hazor, Ithnan, 24 Ziph, Telem, Bealoth, 25 Hazor-hadattah, Kerioth-hezron (that is, Hazor), 26 Amam, Shema, Moladah, 27 Hazar-gaddah, Heshmon, Beth-pelet, 28 Hazar-shual, Beer-sheba, Biziothiah, [j] 29 Baalah, Iim, Ezem, 30 Eltolad, Chesil, Hormah, 31 Ziklag, Madmannah, Sansannah, [k] 32 Lebaoth, Shilhim, Ain, and Rimmon — 29 cities in all, with their villages.

33 In the Judean foothills: [C] Eshtaol, Zorah, Ashnah, 34 Zanoah, En-gannim, Tappuah, [D] Enam, 35 Jarmuth, Adullam, [l] Socoh, [E] Azekah, 36 Shaaraim, Adithaim, Gederah, and Gederothaim — 14 cities, with their villages; 37 Zenan, Hadashah, Migdal-gad, 38 Dilan, Mizpeh, Jokthe-el, 39 Lachish, Bozkath, Eglon, 40 Cabbon, Lahmam, Chitlish, 41 Gederoth, Beth-dagon, Naamah, and Makkedah — 16 cities, with their villages; 42 Libnah, Ether, Ashan, 43 Iphtah, Ashnah, Nezib, 44 Keilah, Achzib, and Mareshah — nine cities, with their villages; 45 Ekron, with its towns and villages; 46 from Ekron to the sea, all the cities near Ashdod, with their villages; 47 Ashdod, with its towns and villages; Gaza, with its towns and villages, to the Brook of Egypt and the coastline of the Mediterranean Sea.

48 In the hill country: Shamir, Jattir, Socoh, 49 Dannah, Kiriath-sannah (that is, Debir), 50 Anab, Eshtemoh, Anim, 51 Goshen, Holon, and Giloh — 11 cities, with their villages; 52 Arab, Dumah, [m] Eshan, 53 Janim, Beth-tappuah, Aphekah, 54 Humtah, Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron), and Zior — nine cities, with their villages; 55 Maon, Carmel, Ziph, Juttah, 56 Jezreel, Jokdeam, Zanoah, 57 Kain, Gibeah, and Timnah — 10 cities, with their villages; 58 Halhul, Beth-zur, Gedor, 59 Maarath, Beth-anoth, and Eltekon — six cities, with their villages; [n] 60 Kiriath-baal (that is, Kiriath-jearim), and Rabbah — two cities, with their villages.

61 In the wilderness: Beth-arabah, Middin, Secacah, 62 Nibshan, the City of Salt, [F] and En-gedi — six cities, with their villages.

63 But the descendants of Judah could not drive out the Jebusites who lived in Jerusalem. [o] So the Jebusites live in Jerusalem among the descendants of Judah to this day. [p]

Joseph's Inheritance

16 The allotment for the descendants of Joseph [a] went from the Jordan at Jericho to the waters of Jericho on the east, through the wilderness [b] ascending from Jericho into the hill country of Bethel. 2
From Bethel it went to Luz and proceeded to the border of the Archites by Ataroth. [c] 3 It then descended westward to the border of the Japhletites as far as the border of lower Beth-horon, then to Gezer, [d] and ended at the Mediterranean Sea. 4 So Ephraim and Manasseh, the sons of Joseph, [e] received their inheritance. [f]

Ephraim's Inheritance

5 This was the territory of the descendants of Ephraim by their clans:

The border of their inheritance went from Ataroth-addar [g] on the east of Upper Beth-horon. 6 In the north the border went westward from Michmethath; [h] it turned eastward from Taanath-shiloh and passed it east of Janoah. 7 From Janoah it descended to Ataroth and Naarah, [i] and then reached Jericho and went to the Jordan. 8 From Tappuah the border [j] went westward along the Brook of Kanah and ended at the Mediterranean Sea. [k]

This was the inheritance of the tribe of the descendants of Ephraim by their clans, together with 9 the cities set apart for the descendants of Ephraim within the inheritance of the descendants of Manasseh — all these cities with their villages. 10 But, they did not drive out the Canaanites who lived in Gezer. [l] So the Canaanites live in Ephraim to this day, [m] but they are forced laborers.

West Manasseh’s Inheritance

17 This was the allotment for the tribe of Manasseh [a] as Joseph's firstborn.
Gilead and Bashan came to Machir, the firstborn of Manasseh and the father of Gilead, who was a man of war. [b] 2 So the allotment was for the rest of Manasseh's descendants by their clans, for the sons of Abiezer, Helek, Asriel, Shechem, Hepher, and Shemida. These are the male descendants of Manasseh son of Joseph, by their clans.

3 Now Zelophehad son of Hepher, son of Gilead, son of Machir, son of Manasseh, had no sons, only daughters. These are the names of his daughters: Mahlah, Noah, Hoglah, Milcah, and Tirzah. [c] 4 They came before Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the leaders, saying, "The LORD commanded Moses to give us an inheritance among our male relatives." [A] So they gave them an inheritance among their father's brothers, in keeping with the LORD's instruction. [d] 5 As a result, 10 tracts fell to Manasseh, besides the land of Gilead and Bashan, which are beyond the Jordan, [e] 6 because Manasseh's daughters received an inheritance among his sons. The land of Gilead belonged to the rest of Manasseh's sons.

7 The border of Manasseh went from Asher to Michmethath near Shechem. It then went southward toward the inhabitants of En-tappuah. 8 The region of Tappuah belonged to Manasseh, but Tappuah itself on Manasseh's border [f] belonged to the descendants of Ephraim. 9 From there the border descended to the Brook of Kanah; south of the brook, cities belonged to Ephraim among Manasseh's cities. Manasseh's border was on the north side of the brook and ended at the Mediterranean Sea. 10 Ephraim's territory was to the south and Manasseh's to the north, with the Sea as its border. They [g] reached Asher on the north and Issachar on the east. 11 Within Issachar and Asher, Manasseh had Beth-shean with its towns, Ibleam with its towns, and the inhabitants of Dor with its towns; [h] the inhabitants of En-dor with its towns, the inhabitants of Taanach with its towns, and the inhabitants of Megiddo with its towns — the three cities of [i] Naphath. [j]

12 The descendants of Manasseh could not possess these cities, because the Canaanites were determined to stay in this land. 13 However, when the Israelites grew stronger, they imposed forced labor on the Canaanites but did not drive them out completely. [k]

Joseph's Additional Inheritance [14] Joseph's descendants said to Joshua, "Why did you give us only one tribal allotment [B] as an inheritance? We have many people, because the LORD has been blessing us greatly."

15 "If you have so many people," Joshua replied to them, "go to the forest and clear an area for yourselves there in the land of the Perizzites and the Rephaim, because Ephraim's hill country is too small for you."

16 But the descendants of Joseph said, "The hill country is not enough for us, and all the Canaanites who inhabit the valley area have iron chariots, both at Beth-shean with its towns and in the Jezreel Valley."

17 So Joshua replied to Joseph's family (that is, Ephraim and Manasseh), "You have many people and great strength. You will not have just one allotment, 18 because the hill country will be yours also. It is a forest; clear it and its outlying areas will be yours. You can also drive out the Canaanites, even though they have iron chariots and are strong."

Land Distribution at Shiloh

18 The entire Israelite community assembled at Shiloh [a] where it set up the tent of meeting there; the land had been subdued by them. 2 Seven tribes among the Israelites were left who had not divided up their inheritance. 3 So Joshua said to the Israelites, "How long will you delay going out to take possession of the land that the LORD, the God of your fathers, gave you? [b] 4 Appoint for yourselves three men from each tribe, and I will send them out.
They are to go and survey the land, write a description of it for the purpose of their inheritance, and return to me. 5 Then they are to divide it into seven portions. Judah is to remain in its territory in the south and Joseph's family in their [c] territory in the north. [d] 6 When you have written a description of the seven portions of land and brought it to me, I will cast lots for you here in the presence of the LORD our God. [e] 7 But the Levites among you do not get a portion, because their inheritance is the priesthood of the LORD. [f] Gad, Reuben, and half the tribe of Manasseh have taken their inheritance beyond the Jordan to the east, which Moses the LORD's servant gave them."

8 As the men prepared to go, Joshua commanded them [A] to write down a description of the land, saying, "Go and survey the land, write a description of it, and return to me. I will then cast lots for you here in Shiloh in the presence of the LORD." 9 So the men left, went through the land, and described it by towns in a document of seven sections. They returned to Joshua at the camp in Shiloh. 10 Joshua cast lots for them at Shiloh in the presence of the LORD where he distributed the land to the Israelites according to their divisions.

Benjamin's Inheritance

11 The lot came up for the tribe of Benjamin's descendants by their clans, and their allotted territory lay between Judah's descendants and Joseph's descendants.

> 12 Their border on the north side began at the Jordan, ascended to the slope of Jericho on the north, through the hill country westward, and ended at the wilderness of Beth-aven. [g] 13 From there the border went toward Luz, to the southern slope of Luz (that is, Bethel); it then went down by Ataroth-addar, over the hill south of Lower Beth-horon. [h]
> 14 On the west side, from the hill facing Beth-horon on the south, the border curved, turning southward, and ended at Kiriath-baal (that is, Kiriath-jearim), a city of the descendants of Judah. This was the west side of their border.

15 The south side began at the edge of Kiriath-jearim, and the border extended westward; it went to the spring at the Waters of Nephtoah.
16 The border descended to the foot of the hill that faces the Valley of Hinnom at the northern end of the Valley of Rephaim. It ran down the Valley of Hinnom toward the south Jebusite slope and downward to En-rogel. 17 It curved northward and went to En-shemesh and on to
down to the Stone of Bohan [i] son of Reuben. 18 Then it went north to the slope opposite the Jordan Valley [j,] [B] and proceeded into the valley. [C] 19 The border continued to the north slope of Beth-hoglah and ended at the northern bay of the Dead Sea, at the southern end of the Jordan. This was the southern border.

20 The Jordan formed the border on the east side.

This was the inheritance of Benjamin's descendants, by their clans, according to its surrounding borders.

Benjamin's Cities

21 These were the cities of the tribe of Benjamin's descendants by their clans:
Jericho, Beth-hoglah, Emek-keziz, 22 Beth-arabah, Zemaraim, Bethel, 23 Avvim, Parah, Ophrah, 24 Chephar-ammoni, Ophni, and Geba — 12 cities, with their villages; 25 Gibeon, Ramah, Beeroth, 26 Mizpeh, [k] Chephirah, Mozah, 27 Rekem, Irpeel, Taralah, 28 Zela, Haeleph, Jebus [D] (that is, Jerusalem), Gibeah, and Kiriath [l] — 14 cities, with their villages.

This was the inheritance for Benjamin's descendants by their clans.

Simeon’s Inheritance

19 The second lot came out for Simeon, for the tribe of his descendants by their clans, but their inheritance was within the portion of Judah's descendants. 2 Their inheritance included:
Beer-sheba (or Sheba [a]), Moladah, 3 Hazar-shual, Balah, Ezem, 4 Eltolad, Bethul, Hormah, 5 Ziklag, Beth-marcaboth, Hazar-susah, 6 Beth-lebaoth, and Sharuhen — 13 cities, with their villages; 7 Ain, Rimmon, Ether, and Ashan — four cities, with their villages; 8 and all the villages surrounding these cities as far as Baalath-beer (Ramah of the south [A]).
This was the inheritance of the tribe of Simeon's descendants by their clans.
9 The inheritance of Simeon's descendants was within the territory of Judah's descendants, because the share for Judah's descendants was too large for them.
So Simeon's descendants received an inheritance within Judah's portion.

Zebulun's Inheritance

10 The third lot came up for Zebulun's descendants by their clans.

The territory of their inheritance stretched as far as Sarid; 11 their border went up westward to Maralah, reached Dabbesheth, and met the brook east of Jokneam. 12 From Sarid, it turned east toward the sunrise along the border of Chisloth-tabor, went to Daberath, and went up to Japhia. 13 From there, it went east toward the sunrise to Gath-hepher and to Eth-kazin; it extended to Rimmon, curving around to Neah.
14 The border then circled around Neah on the north to Hannathon and ended at the Valley of Iphtah-el, 15 along with Kattath, Nahalal, Shimron, Idalah, and Bethlehem — 12 cities, with their villages.

16 This was the inheritance of Zebulun's descendants by their clans, these cities, with their villages.

Issachar's Inheritance

17 The fourth lot came out for the tribe of Issachar's descendants by their clans.

18 Their territory went to Jezreel, and included Chesulloth, Shunem, [b]
19 Hapharaim, Shion, Anaharath, 20 Rabbith, Kishion, Ebez, 21 Remeth, En-gannim, En-haddah, Beth-pazzez. 22 The border reached Tabor, Shahazumah, and Beth-shemesh, and ended at the Jordan — 16 cities, with their villages.

23 This was the inheritance of the tribe of Issachar's descendants by their clans, the cities, with their villages.

Asher's Inheritance

24 The fifth lot came out for the tribe of Asher's descendants by their clans.

25 Their boundary included Helkath, Hali, Beten, Achshaph, 26 Allammelech, Amad, and Mishal and reached westward to Carmel and Shihor-libnath. 27 It turned eastward to Beth-dagon, passed Zebulun and the Valley of Iphtah-el, north toward Beth-emek and Neiel, and went north to Cabul, [c] 28 Ebron, Rehob, Hammon, and Kanah, as far as Great Sidon. 29 The boundary then turned to Ramah as far as the fortified city of Tyre; it turned back to Hosah and ended at the sea, including Mahalab, Achzib, [B] 30 Ummah, Aphek, and Rehob — 22 cities, with their villages.

31 This was the inheritance of the tribe of Asher's descendants by their clans, these cities with their villages.

Naphtali's Inheritance

32 The sixth lot came out for Naphtali's descendants by their clans.

33 Their boundary went from Heleph and from the oak in Zaanannim, including Adami-nekeb and Jabneel, as far as Lakkum, and ended at the Jordan. 34 To the west, the boundary turned to Aznoth-tabor and went from there to Hukkok, reaching Zebulun on the south, Asher on the west, and Judah [d] at the Jordan on the east. 35 The fortified cities were Ziddim, Zer, Hammath, Rakkath, Chinnereth, [e] 36 Adamah, Ramah, Hazor, 37 Kedesh, Edrei, En-hazor, 38 Iron, Migdal-el, Horem, Beth-anath, and Beth-shemesh — 19 cities, with their villages.

39 This was the inheritance of the tribe of Naphtali's descendants by their clans, the cities with their villages.

Dan's Inheritance

40 The seventh lot came out for the Danite tribe by its clans.

41 The territory of their inheritance included Zorah, Eshtaol, Ir-shemesh, 42 Shaalabbin, Aijalon, Ithlah, 43 Elon, Timnah, Ekron, 44 Eltekeh, Gibbethon, Baalath, 45 Jehud, Bene-berak, Gath-rimmon, 46 Me-jarkon, and Rakkon, with the territory facing Joppa.

47 When the territory of the Danites slipped out of their control, [C] they went up and fought against Leshem, captured it, and struck it down with the sword. So they took possession of it, lived there, and renamed Leshem after [D] their ancestor Dan. 48 This was the inheritance of the Danite tribe by its clans, these cities with their villages.

Joshua's Inheritance

49 When they had finished distributing the land into its territories, the Israelites gave Joshua son of Nun an inheritance among them. 50 By the LORD's command, they gave him the city Timnath-serah in the hill country of Ephraim, [f] which he requested. He rebuilt the city and lived in it.

51 These were the portions that Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the heads of the families distributed to the Israelite tribes by lot at Shiloh in the LORD's presence at the entrance to the tent of meeting. [g] So they finished dividing up the land.

Cities of Refuge

20 Then the LORD spoke to Joshua, 2 “Tell the Israelites: Select your cities of refuge, as I instructed you through Moses, [a] 3 so that a person who kills someone unintentionally or accidentally may flee there. These will be your refuge from the avenger of blood. [b] 4 When someone flees to one of these cities, stands at the entrance of the city •gate , and states his case before [A] the elders of that city, they are to bring him into the city and give him a place to live among them. [c] 5 And if the avenger of blood pursues him, they must not hand the one who committed manslaughter over to him, for he killed his neighbor accidentally and did not hate him beforehand. 6 He is to stay in that city until he stands trial before the assembly and until the death of the high priest serving at that time. [d]
Then the one who committed manslaughter may return home to his own city from which he fled.”

7 So they designated Kedesh in the hill country of Naphtali in Galilee, [e] Shechem in the hill country of Ephraim, and Kiriath-arba (that is, Hebron) in the hill country of Judah. [f] 8 Across the Jordan east of Jericho, they selected Bezer on the wilderness plateau from Reuben’s tribe, Ramoth in Gilead from Gad’s tribe, and Golan in Bashan from Manasseh’s tribe.

9 These are the cities appointed for all the Israelites and foreigners among them, [g] so that anyone who kills a person unintentionally may flee there and not die at the hand of the avenger of blood until he stands before the assembly.

Cities of the Levites

21 The heads of the Levite families approached Eleazar the priest, Joshua son of Nun, and the heads of the families of the Israelite tribes. 2 At Shiloh, in the land of Canaan, they told them, “The LORD commanded through Moses that we be given cities to live in, with their pasturelands for our livestock.” [a] 3 So the Israelites, by the LORD’s command, gave the Levites these cities with their pasturelands from their inheritance.

4 The lot came out for the Kohathite clans: The Levites who were the descendants of Aaron the priest received 13 cities by lot from the tribes of Judah, Simeon, and Benjamin. 5 The remaining descendants of Kohath [b] received 10 cities by lot from the clans of the tribes of Ephraim, Dan, and half the tribe of Manasseh.

6 Gershon’s descendants received 13 cities by lot from the clans of the tribes of Issachar, Asher, Naphtali, and half the tribe of Manasseh in Bashan.

7 Merari’s descendants received 12 cities for their clans from the tribes of Reuben, Gad, and Zebulun.

8 The Israelites gave these cities with their pasturelands around them to the Levites by lot, as the LORD had commanded through Moses.

Cities of Aaron’s Descendants

9 The Israelites gave these cities by name from the tribes of the descendants of Judah and Simeon 10 to the descendants of Aaron from the Kohathite clans of the Levites, because they received the first lot. 11 They gave them Kiriath-arba [c] (that is, Hebron) with its surrounding pasturelands in the hill country of Judah.
Arba was the father of Anak. 12 But they gave the fields and villages of the city to Caleb son of Jephunneh as his possession.

13 They gave to the descendants of Aaron the priest:

Hebron, the city of refuge for the one who commits manslaughter, with its pasturelands, Libnah with its pasturelands, 14 Jattir with its pasturelands, Eshtemoa with its pasturelands, 15 Holon with its pasturelands, Debir with its pasturelands, 16 Ain with its pasturelands, Juttah with its pasturelands, and Beth-shemesh with its pasturelands — nine cities from these two tribes.

17 From the tribe of Benjamin they gave:

Gibeon with its pasturelands, Geba with its pasturelands, 18 Anathoth with its pasturelands, and Almon with its pasturelands — four cities.

19 All 13 cities with their pasturelands were for the priests, the descendants of Aaron.

Cities of Kohath's Other Descendants

20 The allotted cities to the remaining clans of Kohath's descendants, who were Levites, came from the tribe of Ephraim. 21 The Israelites gave them:

Shechem, [d] the city of refuge for the one who commits manslaughter, with its pasturelands in the hill country of Ephraim, Gezer with its pasturelands, 22 Kibzaim with its pasturelands, and Beth-horon with its pasturelands — four cities.

23 From the tribe of Dan they gave:

Elteke with its pasturelands, Gibbethon with its pasturelands, 24 Aijalon with its pasturelands, and Gath-rimmon with its pasturelands — four cities.

25 From half the tribe of Manasseh they gave:

Taanach with its pasturelands and Gath-rimmon [A] with its pasturelands — two cities.

26 All 10 cities with their pasturelands were for the clans of Kohath's other descendants.

Cities of Gershon's Descendants

27 From half the tribe of Manasseh, they gave to the descendants of Gershon, [e] who were one of the Levite clans:

Golan, the city of refuge for the one who commits manslaughter, with its pasturelands in Bashan, and Beeshterah with its pasturelands — two cities.

28 From the tribe of Issachar they gave:

Kishion with its pasturelands, Daberath with its pasturelands, 29 Jarmuth with its pasturelands, and En-gannim with its pasturelands — four cities.

30 From the tribe of Asher they gave:

Mishal with its pasturelands, Abdon with its pasturelands, 31 Helkath with its pasturelands, and Rehob with its pasturelands — four cities.

32 From the tribe of Naphtali they gave:

Kedesh in Galilee, the city of refuge for the one who commits manslaughter, with its pasturelands, Hammoth-dor with its pasturelands, and Kartan with its pasturelands — three cities.

33 All 13 cities with their pasturelands were for the Gershonites by their clans.

Cities of Merari's Descendants

34 From the tribe of Zebulun, they gave to the clans of the descendants of Merari, [f] who were the remaining Levites:

Jokneam with its pasturelands, Kartah with its pasturelands, 35 Dimnah with its pasturelands, and Nahalal with its pasturelands — four cities.

36 From the tribe of Reuben they gave:

Bezer [g] with its pasturelands, Jahzah [B] with its pasturelands, 37 Kedemoth with its pasturelands, and Mephaath with its pasturelands — four cities. [h]

38 From the tribe of Gad they gave:

Ramoth in Gilead, the city of refuge for the one who commits manslaughter, with its pasturelands, Mahanaim with its pasturelands, 39 Heshbon with its pasturelands, and Jazer with its pasturelands — four cities in all. 40 All 12 cities were allotted to the clans of Merari's descendants, the remaining Levite clans.

41 Within the Israelite possession there were 48 cities in all with their pasturelands for the Levites. [i] 42 Each of these cities had its own surrounding pasturelands; this was true for all the cities.

The LORD's Promises Fulfilled 43 So the LORD gave Israel all the land He had sworn to give their fathers, and they took possession of it and settled there. 44 The LORD gave them rest on every side according to all He had sworn to their fathers. None of their enemies were able to stand against them, for the LORD handed over all their enemies to them. 45 None of the good promises the LORD had made to the house of Israel failed. Everything was fulfilled. [j]

Eastern Tribes Return Home

22 Joshua summoned the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh
2 and told them, “You have done everything Moses the Lord’s servant commanded you [a] and have obeyed me in everything I commanded you. 3 You have not deserted your brothers even once this whole time but have carried out the requirement of the command of the Lord your God. 4 Now that He has given your brothers rest, just as He promised them, return to your homes in your own land that Moses the Lord’s servant gave you across the Jordan. 5 Only carefully obey the command and instruction that Moses the Lord’s servant gave you: to love the Lord your God, walk in all His ways, keep His commands, remain faithful [A] to Him, and serve Him with all your heart and all your soul.” [b]

6 Joshua blessed them and sent them on their way, [c] and they went to their homes. 7 Moses had given territory to half the tribe of Manasseh in Bashan, but Joshua had given territory to the other half, [B] with their brothers, on the west side of the Jordan. [d] When Joshua sent them to their homes and blessed them, 8 he said, “Return to your homes with great wealth: a huge number of cattle, and silver, gold, bronze, iron, and a large quantity of clothing. Share the spoil of your enemies with your brothers.” [e]

Eastern Tribes Build an Altar

9 The Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh left the Israelites at Shiloh in the land of Canaan to return to their own land of Gilead, [f] which they took possession of according to the LORD's command through Moses. 10 When they came to the region of [C] the Jordan in the land of Canaan, the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh built a large, impressive altar there by the Jordan.

11 Then the Israelites heard it said, "Look, the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh have built an altar on the frontier of the land of Canaan at the region of [D] the Jordan, on the Israelite side." 12 When the Israelites heard this, the entire Israelite community assembled at Shiloh to go to war against them. [g]

Explanation of the Altar

13 The Israelites sent Phinehas son of Eleazar the priest to the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh, in the land of Gilead. [h] 14 They sent 10 leaders with him — one family leader for each tribe of Israel. All of them were heads of their families among the clans of Israel. [i] 15 They went to the Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh, in the land of Gilead, and told them, 16 "This is what the LORD's entire community says: 'What is this treachery you have committed today against the God of Israel by turning away from the LORD and building an altar for yourselves, so that you are in rebellion against the LORD today? 17 Wasn't the sin of Peor, which brought a plague on the LORD's community, enough for us, so that we have not cleansed ourselves from it even to this day, [j] 18 and now, you would turn away from the LORD? If you rebel against the LORD today, tomorrow He will be angry with the entire community of Israel. [k] 19 But if the land you possess is defiled, cross over to the land the LORD possesses where the LORD's tabernacle stands, and take possession of it among us. But don't rebel against the LORD or against us by building for yourselves an altar other than the altar of the LORD our God. 20 Wasn't Achan son of Zerah unfaithful regarding what was •set apart for destruction, bringing wrath on the entire community of Israel? He was not the only one who perished because of his sin.' " [l]

21 The Reubenites, Gadites, and half the tribe of Manasseh answered the leaders of the Israelite clans, 22 "•Yahweh is the God of gods! Yahweh is the God of gods! [E] He knows, [m] and may Israel also know. Do not spare us today, if it was in rebellion or treachery against the LORD 23 that we have built for ourselves an altar to turn away from Him. May the LORD Himself hold us accountable if we intended to offer •burnt offerings and •grain offerings on it, or to sacrifice •fellowship offerings on it. 24 We actually did this from a specific concern that in the future your descendants might say to our descendants, 'What relationship do you have with the LORD, the God of Israel? 25 For the LORD has made the Jordan a border between us and you descendants of Reuben and Gad.
You have no share in the LORD! ' So your descendants may cause our descendants to stop fearing the LORD.

26 "Therefore we said: Let us take action and build an altar for ourselves, but not for burnt offering or sacrifice. 27 Instead, it is to be a witness between us and you, [n] and between the generations after us, so that we may carry out the worship of the LORD in His presence with our burnt offerings, sacrifices, and fellowship offerings. [o] Then in the future, your descendants will not be able to say to our descendants, ‘You have no share in the LORD! ’ [28] We thought that if they said this to us or to our generations in the future, we would reply: Look at the replica of the LORD’s altar that our fathers made, not for burnt offering or sacrifice, but as a witness between us and you. [29] We would never rebel against the LORD or turn away from Him today by building an altar for burnt offering, grain offering, or sacrifice, other than the altar of the LORD our God, which is in front of His tabernacle.”

Conflict Resolved

30 When Phinehas the priest and the community leaders, the heads of Israel's clans who were with him, heard what the descendants of Reuben, Gad, and Manasseh had to say, they were pleased. 31 Phinehas son of Eleazar the priest said to the descendants of Reuben, Gad, and Manasseh, "Today we know that the LORD is among us, because you have not committed this treachery against Him. [p] As a result, you have delivered the Israelites from the LORD's power."

32 Then Phinehas son of Eleazar the priest and the leaders returned from the Reubenites and Gadites in the land of Gilead to the Israelites in the land of Canaan and brought back a report to them. 33 The Israelites were pleased with the report, and they praised God. [q] They spoke no more about going to war against them to ravage the land where the Reubenites and Gadites lived. 34 So the Reubenites and Gadites named the altar: It [r] is a witness between us that the LORD is God.

Joshua's Farewell Address

23 A long time after the LORD had given Israel rest from all the enemies around them, Joshua was old, getting on in years. 2 So Joshua summoned all Israel, including its elders, leaders, judges, and officers, [a] and said to them, "I am old, getting on in years, 3 and you have seen for yourselves everything the LORD your God did to all these nations on your account, because it was the LORD your God who was fighting for you. [b] 4 See, I have allotted these remaining nations to you as an inheritance for your tribes, including all the nations I have destroyed, from the Jordan westward to the Mediterranean Sea. 5 The LORD your God will force them back on your account and drive them out before you so that you can take possession of their land, [c] as the LORD your God promised you.

6 "Be very strong [d] and continue obeying all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, so that you do not turn from it to the right or left 7 and so that you do not associate with these nations remaining among you. Do not call on the names of their gods or make an oath to them; [e] do not worship them or bow down to them. 8 Instead, remain faithful to the LORD your God, as you have done to this day. [f]

9 "The LORD has driven out great and powerful nations before you, [g] and no one is able to stand against you to this day. [h] 10 One of you routed a thousand [i] because the LORD your God was fighting for you, as He promised. [A, j] 11 So be very diligent to love the LORD your God for your own well-being. 12 For if you turn away and cling to the rest of these nations remaining among you, [k] and if you intermarry or associate with them [l] and they with you, 13 know for certain that the LORD your God will not continue to drive these nations out before you. They will become a snare and a trap for you, [m] a scourge for your sides and thorns in your eyes, until you disappear from this good land the LORD your God has given you.

14 "I am now going the way of all the earth, [n, o] and you know with all your heart and all your soul that none of the good promises the LORD your God made to you has failed. Everything was fulfilled for you; not one promise has failed. [p] 15 Since every good thing the LORD your God promised you has come about, so He will bring on you every bad thing until He has annihilated you from this good land the LORD your God has given you. [q] 16 If you break the covenant of the LORD your God, which He commanded you, and go and worship other gods, and bow down to them, the LORD's anger will burn against you, and you will quickly disappear from this good land He has given you."

Review of Israel's History

24 Joshua assembled all the tribes of Israel at Shechem [a] and summoned Israel's elders, leaders, judges, and officers, and they presented themselves before God. [b] 2 Joshua said to all the people, "This is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: 'Long ago your ancestors, including Terah, [c] the father of Abraham and Nahor, lived beyond the Euphrates River and worshiped other gods. 3 But I took your father Abraham from the region beyond the Euphrates River, led him throughout the land of Canaan, and multiplied his descendants. [d] I gave him Isaac, [e] 4 and to Isaac I gave Jacob and Esau. [f] I gave the hill country of Seir to Esau as a possession, [g] but Jacob and his sons went down to Egypt. [h] 5 " 'Then I sent Moses and Aaron; [i] I plagued Egypt by what I did there and afterward I brought you out. 6 When I brought your fathers out of Egypt and you reached the •Red Sea, [j] the Egyptians pursued your fathers with chariots and horsemen as far as the sea. 7 Your fathers cried out to the LORD, so He put darkness between you and the Egyptians, and brought the sea over them, engulfing them. Your own eyes saw what I did to Egypt. After that, you lived in the wilderness a long time.
8 " 'Later, I brought you to the land of the Amorites who lived beyond the Jordan. [k] They fought against you, but I handed them over to you. You possessed their land, and I annihilated them before you. 9 Balak son of Zippor, king of Moab, [l] set out to fight against Israel. He sent for Balaam son of Beor to curse you, 10 but I would not listen to Balaam. Instead, he repeatedly blessed you, and I delivered you from his hand.
11 " 'You then crossed the Jordan and came to Jericho. [m] The people of Jericho — as well as the Amorites, Perizzites, Canaanites, Hittites, Girgashites, Hivites, and Jebusites — fought against you, but I handed them over to you. 12 I sent the hornet [A, n] ahead of you, and it drove out the two Amorite kings [o] before you. It was not by your sword or bow. 13 I gave you a land you did not labor for, and cities you did not build, [p] though you live in them; you are eating from vineyards and olive groves you did not plant.'

The Covenant Renewal

14 “Therefore, •fear the Lord and worship Him in sincerity and truth. [q] Get rid of the gods your fathers worshiped [r] beyond the Euphrates River and in Egypt, and worship •Yahweh . 15 But if it doesn’t please you to worship Yahweh, choose for yourselves today the one you will worship: the gods your fathers worshiped beyond the Euphrates River or the gods of the Amorites in whose land you are living. [s] As for me and my family, we will worship Yahweh.”

16 The people replied, “We will certainly not abandon the Lord to worship other gods! 17 For the Lord our God brought us and our fathers out of the land of Egypt, out of the place of slavery, [t] and performed these great signs before our eyes. He also protected us all along the way we went and among all the peoples whose lands we traveled through. 18 The Lord drove out before us all the peoples, including the Amorites who lived in the land. We too will worship the Lord, because He is our God.”

19 But Joshua told the people, “You will not be able to worship Yahweh, because He is a holy God. He is a jealous God; [u] He will not remove your transgressions and sins. [v] 20 If you abandon the Lord and worship foreign gods, He will turn against you, harm you, and completely destroy [w] you, after He has been good to you.”

21 “No! ” the people answered Joshua. “We will worship the Lord.”

22 Joshua then told the people, “You are witnesses against yourselves that you yourselves have chosen to worship Yahweh.”

“We are witnesses,” they said.

23 “Then get rid of the foreign gods that are among you and offer your hearts to the Lord, the God of Israel.”

24 So the people said to Joshua, “We will worship the Lord our God and obey Him.”

25 On that day Joshua made a covenant for the people at Shechem and established a statute and ordinance for them. 26 Joshua recorded these things in the book of the law of God; [x] he also took a large stone and set it up there under the oak next to the sanctuary of the Lord. 27 And Joshua said to all the people, “You see this stone — it will be a witness against us, [y] for it has heard all the words the Lord said to us, and it will be a witness against you, so that you will not deny your God.” 28 Then Joshua sent the people away, each to his own inheritance.

Burial of Three Leaders

29 After these things, the LORD's servant, Joshua son of Nun, died at the age of 110. 30 They buried him in his allotted territory at Timnath-serah, in the hill country of Ephraim [z] north of Mount Gaash. 31 Israel worshiped Yahweh throughout Joshua's lifetime and during the lifetimes of the elders who outlived Joshua [a] and who had experienced all the works Yahweh had done for Israel.

32 Joseph's bones, which the Israelites had brought up from Egypt, [b] were buried at Shechem in the parcel of land Jacob had purchased from the sons of Hamor, Shechem's father, for 100 qesitahs. [c, d] It was an inheritance for Joseph's descendants.

33 And Eleazar son of Aaron died, and they buried him at Gibeah, [e] which had been given to his son Phinehas [f] in the hill country of Ephraim.

Introduction

The Jordan River was at flood stage when God commanded Joshua to lead the people across. Just as when God opened the Red Sea, He provided a dry path through the Jordan when the priests, bearing the ark of the covenant, touched the edge of the river. This photo of the Jordan was taken north of the Sea of Galilee but gives some idea of what the Jordan would have been like facing Jericho. Up until the 1950s, more than 3 billion cubic feet flowed through the southern Jordan annually. With construction of a number of dams on the Jordan north of the Sea of Galilee and on rivers that feed the Jordan, that volume of water has been reduced to 300 million cubic feet a year.

The book of Joshua is named for the most famous member of the Israelites in the generation after the death of Moses. The book describes the history of that generation of Israel who crossed the Jordan River and entered the promised land of Canaan. Their battles and faithfulness have a place among the greatest stories of faith in the Old Testament. Joshua led the people to defeat the adversaries who opposed God's people. He then oversaw the division of the land into the tribal allotments. Finally, Joshua renewed the covenant between the people and God.

Circumstances of Writing Author: The author of the book of Joshua is not identified in the Bible and otherwise remains anonymous. If Joshua himself did not originally compose the book that bears his name, then it may be presumed that someone who knew him and his exploits recorded the work. There are numerous references throughout Joshua that suggest a final formation of the book after his lifetime. These include the death of Joshua and descriptions of memorials or names that are said to remain "to this day" (4:9; 5:9; 6:25; 7:26; 8:28-29; 10:27; 13:13; 14:14; 15:63; 16:10; 22:17; 23:8).

Background: The accounts in the book of Joshua occur in the period immediately after Moses' death. This was a new generation, not the one that had left Egypt. The story of Joshua is thus set when the nation of Israel first appeared in the land west of the Jordan River—the land that would bear their name. First Kings 6:1 states that the exodus occurred 480 years before Solomon's fourth year as king (966 B.C.). In Judges 11:26, Jephthah said that Israel had been living in regions of Palestine for 300 years. Jephthah lived around 1100 B.C., thus dating the end of the wilderness journey and the beginning of the conquest around 1400 B.C.

Message and Purpose Commission of a new leader: Chapter 1 establishes Joshua as divinely appointed leader and as the successor to Moses. God addressed Joshua directly, promising both the land that He promised to Moses (Dt 34:4) and His divine presence (Jos 1:3-5). The commands to be strong and courageous (1:6,7,9) define the mission of Joshua. The miraculous crossing of the Jordan River was God's means of exalting Joshua in the eyes of all Israel (4:14).

Holy War: Joshua's military leadership recurs throughout the first 12 chapters of the book. Its theological dimensions raise questions about the extermination of all people from the land. How could a loving God allow such a slaughter? Appeals to the sovereignty of God and His wrathful judgment may be made. A complementary explanation focuses on the exceptions of Rahab's family and of the Gibeonites, who escaped divine wrath through their confession of faith in Israel's God (2:8-13; 9:9-10,24-25).

Land as an inheritance: Joshua's allocation of the land in chapters 13 -21 continued the process already begun by Moses in Transjordan. Insofar as God was giving this land to His people as an inheritance, the tribal allotments take on a covenantal character. This land inheritance formed the material wealth of the families of Israel.

The covenant between God and Israel: The covenant making over which Joshua presided dominates the book. It is explicitly detailed in 8:30-35 and 24:1-28. In both of these sections, Joshua's leadership established Israel in a close relationship with God. God's grace enabled the nation to occupy its land and to worship God alone. The circumcision and Passover celebration in chapter 5, as well as the theological role of the tribal allotments as part of Israel's covenantal inheritance from God, suggest that fulfillment of the covenant is an integral part of the book.

God as holy and as deliverer: The character of God is evident throughout the book, especially in terms of His holiness and His saving acts. Divine holiness occurs in the ceremonies where God separated Israel from the other nations (4:19-24; 5:1-3,13-15; 22:26-27; 24:26-27). The saving acts of God are clearly represented in the military victories of the people.

Contribution to the Bible Just as Joshua's leadership begins with the death of Moses, so the book of Joshua follows and completes the book of Deuteronomy. Deuteronomy serves as a means by which the new generation of Israelites renewed their covenant with God. The book of Joshua provides the means by which God fulfilled His part of the covenant. God gave them victories, but each victory required a step of faith. God's provision for the people as their leader and guide bore witness to later generations of the divinely willed leadership for Israel, and His gracious gift of the land showed how the people's faithful fulfillment of the covenant could result in abundant blessing.

Structure The book of Joshua should be seen as a land grant, similar to the land grants and suzerain treaties of the ancient Near East. The suzerain, who was Israel's God, gave to His people the land that they were meant to receive. There are three major parts to the structure of the land grant.

First is a review of the history and events leading up to the gift of the land. This occurs in chapter 1 and its discussion of what has brought Joshua to this point—the death of Moses. Chapters 2-5 detail the preparation for the acquisition of the gift of the land. Chapters 6-12 describe the battles that were fought as background to the receipt of the land. The second section considers the allotment of the territories to the tribes and families of Israel. The many specific names and towns of this part of the text provide a particularity to the gift that affirms it was an authentic fulfillment of God's promise to His people. The third section is a renewal of the covenant. Here the key parts are the stipulations of the covenant that require loyalty to God alone (24:14-15) and the response of the people that they agree to these demands.

Outline I. Preparation for the Land (1:1-5:12) A. Joshua assumes leadership (1:1-18) B. Rahab's faith (2:1-24) C. Across the Jordan River (3:1-

4:24) D. Circumcision and Passover (5:1-12) II. Victories in the Land (5:13-12:24) A. Success against Jericho (5:13-6:27) B. Failure of Achan (7:1-26) C. Success against Ai (8:1-29) D. Covenant renewal (8:30-35) E. Failure of Israel and Gibeon (9:1-27) F. Victories in the land (10:1-12:24) III. Allotment of the Land (13:1-21:45) A. Remaining lands (13:1-7) B. Transjordan's allotment (13:8-14:5) C. Judah's allotment (14:6 -15:63) D. Joseph's allotment (16:1-17:18) E. Mapping the remaining land (18:1-10) F. Tribal allotments (18:11-19:51) G. Cities of refuge (20:1-9) H. Cities of the Levites (21:1-42) I. God's promises fulfilled (21:43-45) IV. Worship of God (22:1-24:33) A. Transjordan and the altar of controversy (22:1-34) B. Joshua's farewell address (23:1-16) C. Israel's covenant at Shechem (24:1-28) D. Joshua and his generation die (24:29-33) Timeline

Study Notes 1:1 The death of Moses created a leadership vacuum. Moses' epithet, LORD's servant, was first applied at his death (Dt 34:5) as this epithet would first be applied to Joshua at his death (Jos 24:29). Used rarely in the earlier part of the Bible as an evaluation of a person's life, it became more common and was enhanced by Jesus (Jn 15:15), although Paul retained the title (Rm 1:1). Joshua son of Nun, who had served Moses, identifies Joshua as the one who had been with Moses since Exodus 17. That he "served Moses" (cp. Ex 24:13) uses a different term than " LORD's servant."

1:2 God commanded Joshua to prepare the people to cross over the Jordan. The key word "cross over" (Hb 'avar) ties this section together. The fact that all the people were involved emphasizes the importance of unity among the people of God. God emphasized that the land was something He was giving the Israelites; it was God's grace, not the efforts of the Israelites, that provided the land.

1:3 Repeating the emphasis on the land as God's gift, it now included every place where the sole of your foot treads. Although the "promised land" is normally understood as something that God promised Abram, Isaac, and Jacob (Gn 12:1-3), here God attached the promise to Moses. Deuteronomy 34:4 refers to this promise made to Moses (cp. Ex 3). The extension of Moses' promise to Joshua further establishes him as successor.

1:4 This wilderness is not the land of wandering. The term is used in 8:15,20 and 12:8 to describe the area east of Ai and the "desert" region of Judah in the south. It thus designates the southern part of the promised land. Lebanon ("white") refers to the mountains north of Israel in the modern land of that name. The land of the Hittites seems not to refer to the Hittite Empire of modern

Turkey but the Egyptian and later Assyrian usage of this term to describe the region controlled by the Hittites in the western part of modern Syria. These lands and boundaries identify Canaan as it was known both to the Bible (Gn 10:19; Nm 13:17,21-22; 34:3-12) and to Egyptian writers of the second millennium B.C.

1:5 The reference to as long as you live looks to the end of Joshua's life, concluding this "Table of Contents" in verses 2-5. The promise I will not leave you anticipates the plea of Gibeon in 10:6, "Don't abandon your servants," using the same expression. Likewise the verb forsake occurs again in Joshua, in Israel's promise of loyalty to God ("abandon" in 24:16,20). This verse forms a hinge, concluding the previous sections of promises and introducing the next section of responsibilities. God's promise of His presence occurs again in 1:9 and thus provides an "envelope" to 1:6-9. All the responsibilities of these verses depend on God's presence that guarantees the mission's success, just as Christ's presence enables His disciples to achieve their mission (Mt 28:18-20; Mk 16:15,20; Ac 1:8).

1:6 God's command, Be strong and courageous, already spoken by Moses to Israel (Dt 31:6), appears three times here (Jos 1:7,9). The expression is used before great undertakings, like David's charge to Solomon to build the temple (1Ch 28:20), King Hezekiah's encouragement to his subjects to withstand the enemy's siege (2Ch 32:7), and Joshua's own charge to Israel to fight (Jos 10:25).

1:7 The word success (Hb sakal ; cp. "succeed" in v. 8) is found frequently in the Wisdom literature to describe one's mastery of the world and insight into its challenges ("wise" in Pr 1:3). The whole instruction (Hb torah) describes God's revelation in the form of the previous books of the law of Moses.

1:8 Two more references to the instruction affirm the key importance of God's revelation. Study and learning of it are to form so much a part of one's life that the words are fully obeyed as in Dt 6:6-9. The "frame" of God's promised presence in Jos 1:5,9 indicates that Joshua's success will come because God is with him, enabling him to read and observe God's word (Eph 2:8-10).

1:10 Joshua assumed leadership of the people. These officers were equivalent to "foremen" in Egypt (Ex 5:6-19). The title was used for judges and those with other responsibilities (Dt 1:15-18; 20:5-9). They formed a secular or civil counterpart to the priests.

1:11 The expression go through uses the key word "cross over" from verse 2. Thus passing through the camp serves as further preparation for crossing the Jordan. The provisions and the three days recall the previous generation's crossing of the Red Sea where the people had no time for preparation and took unleavened bread (Ex 12-15). This time there will be sufficient time to prepare. The three days may also anticipate the length of time that the spies stayed west of the Jordan River (Jos 2:22).

1:12-18 This latter section seems out of place in the first chapter. Why are the two and one-half tribes singled out for this attention? Joshua needed to be recognized as the leader by all Israel, not just part of it, if he was to fulfill God's plan (v. 2). Reuben, Gad, and the eastern part of Manasseh had already received their land allotment from Moses. They had no incentive to follow Joshua across the Jordan River and risk their lives, unlike their fellow tribes who had yet to take possession of their land. Joshua must persuade these two and one-half tribes to follow him, or Israel would be divided and the mission compromised.

1:13-15 Joshua quoted Moses' word from Dt 3:18-20. The authority who gave these tribes their land east of the Jordan River did so on the condition that they would follow their fellow tribes across the Jordan River and fight with them. Joshua emphasized the theme of rest and how, by crossing over ahead of your brothers, these warriors would be in a position to help them. These points emphasized the goal of rest for the land and people (11:23; 14:15) and the importance of all Israel working together to achieve the common goal.

1:16-18 This entire statement takes the form of an oath in which promises are made and a curse is invoked upon any who do not carry out their promises.

1:16 - 17 The affirmation includes three phrases that begin with the words for everything/everywhere emphasizing the totality of obedience. The blessing they offered recognized that Joshua had indeed succeeded Moses.

1:18 Rebels is used of Israel's rebellion at Kadesh-barnea (Dt 1:26; 9:23), of the nation's history (Dt 9:7,24; 31:27), and of the rebellious son (Dt 21:18-21). All these end in death, as here. The expression will be put to death was a legal formula for capital punishment, as found in Ex 21:12 and throughout the Law.

2:1 The term for spies comes from the same word as "foot." These "footers" did not always work as spies. In 2Sm 15:10 they announced Absalom as king. Thus they could disseminate information as well as gather it. Acacia Grove translates Hebrew Shittim, probably a site some miles east of the Jordan River opposite Jericho, and Israel's camp since Nm 25:1. The Hebrew root for Joshua's command, Go, is identical to they left. Such a response indicates the spies' obedience. Nevertheless, they did not look over the land but went directly to Jericho. Rahab was an innkeeper and prostitute—occupations that are recognized in ancient Near Eastern literature such as the Code of Hammurabi. The presence of an inn at Jericho (Lk 10:30-35) may be explained by its location on the north-south and east-west trade routes. Here the spies could learn about the land and also discover anyone who might be sympathetic.

2:2-3 The story is punctuated by repetitions that emphasize the key points. The first of these is the mission to investigate the land. This was told to the king of Jericho who sent his agents to Rahab's house where they repeated the charge. Known at the highest levels, her actions were high treason in the eyes of the rulers of Jericho.

2:4-5 Rahab's hiding of the spies is mentioned again in verse 6. Rahab denied knowledge about the origin and the destination of the spies. Thus she risked her life, but she also lied. Despite this, Heb 11:31 and Jms 2:25 admire her faith. The text does not condone her act, although there was no other way to save the spies from death. Forgiveness was available with God. The point here is that her words kept the king's men from looking in the house. Repeating information about the gate (v. 7) is important because it explains how Rahab's ruse could make sense (the gates were not yet shut when the spies left). Its second mention explains why the spies could no longer leave as they had entered. The shut gates represent the defiance of Jericho, resistant to the movement of God and His people.

2:6 Rahab's hiding of the spies is repeated here from verse 4, delaying explanation of what the spies would actually do, and so heightening the tension.

2:7 The phrase the road to the fords of the Jordan informs the reader of how Rahab's ruse worked.

2:9-11 Rahab's I know contrasts with her "I didn't know" in verses 4-5. There follows a true confession in place of the former deceit. The phrases terror of you has fallen on us and the land is panicking repeat the same expressions from Ex 15:15-16. Those predictions looked forward to reactions that Rahab describes having been fulfilled. Confessions of God's gift and sovereignty over heaven and earth begin and end the confession (Jos 2:9a,11b). Situated within these confessions are statements about the fear that has come upon the Canaanites (vv. 9b,11a). All these expressions provide an "envelope" for the central confession of Rahab in verse 10. This confession is based upon the historic acts of God's redemption of Israel at the Red Sea and against Sihon and Og. As with God's historic act of redemption in the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, so Rahab's confession of His gracious work in redeeming Israel from Egypt and beyond forms the basis for the salvation faith that she speaks with her mouth and believes in her heart (Rm 10:9).

2:12 Now please introduces Rahab's request with an identical form of words as in 1Sm 24:21 where Saul described God's will for David and then, as here, requested David to spare his family. Show kindness is a key expression that also appears when Abraham's servant requested from God direction to find a wife for Isaac (Gn 24:12). In the Decalogue God shows kindness to a thousand generations of those who are faithful to him (Ex 20:6). Here as well the concern is for the preservation of Rahab's family and her descendants. The sure sign is the spies' oath to protect Rahab's family.

2:13 Rahab did not ask for her own salvation, but for that of her family.

2:14 The spies acted to guarantee their own protection and thereby ensure the success of their mission. The spies were vulnerable and dependent on Rahab.

2:15 The actions described did not occur immediately. How secret would a mission be with the spies on the ground below shouting up to Rahab the negotiations of verses 17-20? That she let them down by a rope through the window is a summary that introduces a more detailed description in verses 16-21—a common technique in OT accounts.

2:16 The Jordan River was east of Jericho, but the steep hills that ascended from the Jordan Valley were to the west. The spies could hide there among the many caves and nooks. On the three days, see note at 1:11.

2:17-20 The scarlet cord at the opening of her house with the family gathered inside is clearly symbolic of the Passover and its placement of blood on the door frames of the house in which the family was preserved from death (Ex 12:3-13). At the same time that Israel celebrated the Passover in the new land (Jos 5:10-11), Rahab would be joining them in similar actions that would bring about her salvation from Jericho's destruction.

2:24 The spies' report is a summary of what Rahab said, using her words (v. 9). This reiterates the fulfillment of prophecy (Ex 15:15) and the power of God to bring success to Israel. Contrast the majority report of the earlier generation of spies who focused on the obstacles of the land's inhabitants (Nm 13:26-33). The spies here emphasized what God had done. Rahab, though not a leader like Joshua, was able to contribute to the success of Israel. Christians can do the same wherever they are by confessing their faith and acting on it (Jms 2:25-26).

3:1-4 : 24 These two chapters outline the ceremony of Israel's crossing of the Jordan River. This was not a casual activity but something specifically commanded by God. They illustrate the importance of hearing God's word and responding in faithful obedience (Mt 17:20; Lk 17:6).

3:1 Acacia Grove is the place where Israel had been since Balaam's failed attempt to curse them (Nm 22:1; 25:1). This was some miles from the actual place where they crossed the Jordan River. In the south opposite Jericho, this meandering river was at that time surrounded by thickets, so it was not a place suitable for a stay of any length (Jr 12:5). The key word crossing again occurs here (see note at 1:2).

3:2-5 On the officers, see note at 1:10. The ark of the covenant was the symbol of the presence of God among His people. The considerable distance of 1,000 yards may suggest the need to remain away from the presence of God, especially as a miracle was happening. This separation of a holy God from His people occurred at Mount Sinai (Ex 19:10-25). The command to consecrate yourselves recalls Ex 19:10-15 where consecration was defined as the washing of clothes and as abstinence from sexual relations. This would allow God to work through the people to accomplish His wonders—a term that describes the plagues of Egypt in Ex 3:20 and more general acts in Ex 34:10.

3:6 Joshua's first instructions to the priests appear here. Note that the verse describes their precise obedience to his words.

3:7 God's promise of His presence with Joshua accompanied a promise to exalt Joshua (as also Abram in Gn 12:2) as a seal on his leadership over Israel.

3:8 Here is the first example of the Jordan River being used as a place where God chose to cleanse and redeem believers. Others included Naaman in 2Kg 5:10-15 and those baptized by John the Baptist (Mt 3:1-6).

3:9 This is Joshua's first speech to the Israelites. His concern that they come closer and listen suggests the importance of attention to God and His word.

3:10 The phrase living God appears elsewhere only three times in the OT. In Hs 1:10 it is used in the context of the fulfillment of God's promises of an innumerable people who belong to Him. In Ps 42:2 and 84:2 it describes the deepest yearnings of the psalmist, who longed for the presence of God and intimacy with Him. The concern for the presence of God and His fulfillment of His promises for His people are both present here. The Canaanites, Hittites, Hivites, Perizzites, Girgashites, Amorites, and Jebusites describe the pre-Israelite inhabitants of the land. "Canaanites" is a general term referring to those living in the land of Canaan, although it may also describe the indigenous peoples of the land.

3:11 The ark's passage, using the key word "cross over" (1:2), demonstrates God's leadership of His people, His presence with them, and His fulfillment of His promises. The Lord of all the earth uses a phrase identical to that charged against the spies in 2:3 ("the entire land"). While God is indeed Lord of all the earth, the expression in chapters 2 and 3 focuses on "the whole land" of Canaan.

3:12 The 12 men introduces a third group in addition to the people who will follow the ark and the priests who will carry it. The purpose of these men is explained in 4:2-3.

3:13 The mass of the water is the same term as that used of the waters of the Red Sea in Ex 15:8 and Ps 78:13. God would act for His people when they crossed the Jordan River just as He did with the previous generation at the exodus.

3:15 At spring flood, after the winter rains and during the barley harvest, the Jordan River could reach a width in excess of 100 feet and a depth of 10 feet. The priests as the leaders of the people were the first to step down into the water.

Doing so was a risky activity with the river at flood stage. Carrying the ark could easily have caused them to be swept away by the current unless the promised miracle took place.

3:16-17 The town of Adam is modern Tell ed-Damiye, about 17 miles north of Jericho. Zarethan may be either three or 11 miles north of Adam, depending on which site it is identified with (Tell Umm Hamid or Tell es-Sa'idiyeh). Taking into account the distance from Adam to the Dead Sea, this means that approximately 29 percent of the Jordan Valley was affected (R. Hess, Joshua, p. 105). Wordplay ties together the actions of the priests and people with God's miracle of the waters. Thus the same verb (Hb 'amad) describes how the waters stood still and how the priests stood firmly. The priests stood on dry ground while the people crossed on dry ground. The water was completely cut off (Hb tammu) until all Israel had finished (Hb tammu) crossing the river.

4:1 The emphasis on the entire nation crossing suggests the importance of the unity pictured here. The term had finished could also be interpreted as "were finishing," meaning the crossing and the events of verses 1-5 overlapped. The key word crossing (Hb 'avar) occurs four times in this section. See note at 1:2.

4:2 These are the 12 men selected at 3:12.

4:3 The 12 stones represent the point of the crossing of the whole nation of Israel, all 12 tribes. This would enable future generations to understand and participate spiritually in the crossing that Joshua and the 12 tribes experienced.

4:6-7 The word sign occurs only here in Joshua. In the Pentateuch it is associated with Israel's religious festivals and events, such as Passover (Ex 12:14; 13:9). The explanation given to future generations takes a chiastic form. The outermost phrases designate a sign or memorial. Within that are lines referring to these stones and then how the waters of the Jordan were cut off. The central focus is that this occurred when the ark of the LORD's covenant, the presence of God, crossed the Jordan.

4:8-9 There are three possibilities here. First, Joshua may have set up a separate pile of stones in the middle of the river, which was probably visible during the dry season. Second, Joshua, as leader, was credited with taking the 12 stones out of the river by means of the 12 men in his employ. The phrase in verse 9 means that Joshua commanded the men to set up 12 stones from the middle of the Jordan. Third, verse 9 might be retrospective—Joshua had set up 12 stones in the middle of the Jordan—and the 12 men subsequently picked up those same stones and set them down in the camp.

4:12 On these tribes, see note at 1:12-18.

4:13 The troops that crossed entered enemy territory, but they also had established a foothold in the promised land when they arrived west of the Jordan

River. This 40,000 represented the best portion of the Transjordanian fighting force that crossed with their kinsmen. According to Nm 26:7,18,34 the total of these two and a half tribes would have been over a hundred thousand (see note at Nm 1:44-46). Perhaps the rest were protecting their land and families.

4:14 That the LORD exalted Joshua indicates the fulfillment of 3:8. The connection with Moses is reaffirmed.

4:15-17 The time of the exit from the Jordan River, like the time of the entrance into the river, is determined by God.

4:18 The priests' ascent from the river bed brings the miracle to an end. They reversed the procedure by which they began the parting of the waters (3:13-16).

4:19 The tenth day of the first month was the day that preparations for the Passover were to be made (Ex 12:2-3). This signals the celebration of chapter 5. Gilgal, meaning "circle," could describe any of a variety of sites.

4:20-23 The purpose of the 12 stones is found in the questions that the children would ask. The question and the instruction of the next generation about the divine miracles resembles Dt 6:6-9. Questions asked by sons about the significance of the Passover and the exodus are found in the Jewish Passover Seder or liturgy. Their mention here connects this Passover with the events of the crossing of the Jordan just as the earlier Passover remembered the crossing of the Red Sea.

4:24 The purpose of this miracle is to declare God's might to all the people of the earth and to encourage Israel to always fear the LORD. Faith and commitment to God is the goal, just as with the miracles of Jesus (Jn 20:30-31).

5:1 The Amorite kings dominated the hill country whereas the Canaanite kings lived near the Mediterranean Sea. The message that these kings heard concerns how the LORD had dried up the waters of the Jordan, and it links 4:24 and the statement there. While the effect in chapter 4 was to increase faith, here it had the opposite effect on the enemies. The key word, crossed over, again occurs (1:2). That they lost heart is literally "their heart melted." This repeats Rahab's description of the Canaanites upon hearing of Israel's victory over Egypt (2:9-11, which also includes the same verb for drying up the Red Sea).

5:2 The command to circumcise implies that this generation had not been circumcised (vv. 4-7) and revives again this act of covenant making that God began with Abraham (Gn 17). Thus Israel would once again become children of Abraham and heirs of the promised land.

5:3 Gibeath-haaraloth means "the hill of foreskins," an unknown site.

5:4-9 Words and phrases are repeated and interwoven to explain the necessity of this act. A contrast is made repeating the verb "to end, to finish" in verses 6 and 8. Thus the previous generation died off (v. 6) while the present generation “finished” being circumcised.

5:5 The generation coming from Egypt had been united in their circumcision. Egyptians also circumcised their males, but as Genesis 17 suggests, the Israelite practice precedes their time in Egypt.

5:9 The wordplay on Gilgal, which means “circle” as a noun and “roll” as a verb, refers to rolling away the disgrace of Egypt. This was the rebellion of the previous generation of Israel that caused them to die in the desert. Because this current generation had followed the covenant and had been circumcised, they could now enter the promised land and leave behind forever the disgrace of their parents.

5:10 Israel was explicitly commanded to celebrate the Passover when the people arrived in the promised land (Ex 13:5). Israel thereby inherited the covenantal promises and blessings that the earlier generation had received when it left Egypt.

5:11 The days of unleavened bread follow the Passover (Ex 12:17,20; 23:15; 34:18). The basic food of Canaan was barley that ripened at this time. Manna had been all that the present generation of Israel knew. Now they would begin to eat from the food of the new land. Israel enjoyed the fruits of the land where they had arrived as a token of the greater abundance they were to enjoy when the entire land was taken.

5:12 The cessation of the manna signaled a new phase in Israel’s history. The people were no longer in the wilderness but in their homeland. They began a new life in keeping with the celebration of God’s historic acts of redemption. Today this occurs with the new life in Jesus Christ whose death and resurrection bring it about.

5:13 God had promised His presence to Joshua (1:7-9), and here He began to fulfill it. Joshua encountered a man with a drawn sword. In Nm 22:23 Balaam’s donkey stopped before such a figure.

5:14-15 The man’s title commander of the LORD’s army suggests someone of importance. The relevant question was not whether he was for or against Joshua, but how Joshua regarded him. Joshua bowed to worship. The man’s command to remove his sandals evokes God’s encounter with Moses at the burning bush (Ex 3:5). God appeared to Joshua before this great challenge to encourage him and to provide directions for what he should do.

6:1 As the gates of Jericho were shut in 2:7, so here the place is similarly described as strongly fortified, literally “very much shut.” This describes the physical defense, but it also represents a resistance to the plans of God.

6:2 The king, as the term is used in contemporary texts, was a military leader responsible to higher authorities such as the leaders of Bethel and Jerusalem.

Jericho was situated at the entrance to the roads that ran westward to these towns. God spoke in the past tense as though the victory had already been decided.

Step trench cut by archaeologists into the tel of (OT) Jericho to uncover levels of destruction.

6:3-5 These instructions picture a unique ceremony. The ark symbolized the presence of God. The ram's-horn trumpets were used for going to war and for the ark (2Sm 6:15; Jr 4:19). The mighty shout was used for victory in war and for announcing the ark's journey (1Sm 4:5; 2Ch 13:15). The command to march around the city uses the same verb as appears in Ps 48:12 where a pilgrimage was made around Jerusalem to inspect its defenses. In 2Kg 6:14 the king of Aram surrounded Dothan to capture the prophet Elisha. Here at Jericho the march involved a ceremonial inspection of the fort's defenses to note the obstinacy of Jericho and to provide an opportunity for those inside to surrender and open the gates.

The emphasis on seven times and seven days coincides with the Feast of Unleavened Bread celebrating God's defeat of the enemies of His people. At the first Passover, Israel marched out of Egypt during this feast. In Numbers 9-10 the nation marched away from Mount Sinai during this feast. Here they would march into the promised land, and then around and through Jericho, straight ahead.

6:6-14 The verbs and phrases correspond to those commanded by God in verses 2-5. This suggests a perfect obedience by Joshua. The reference to crossing over (move forward) occurs three times, using the same verb as the key term for crossing the Jordan River (1:2).

6:15 The seventh day was the number of perfection, and it signaled the conclusion of the Feast of Unleavened Bread.

6:16 The shout was a war cry (see note at vv. 3-5).

6:17-25 This account of the destruction of Jericho is interwoven with that of the salvation of Rahab and her household (chap. 2). In this section there are 86 Hebrew words devoted to the salvation of Rahab and 102 words to describe Jericho's destruction (R. Hess, Joshua, p. 134). For the author of the book of Joshua, Rahab's salvation is as important as the account of Jericho's fall.

6:17 The city being set apart to the LORD for destruction was the complete destruction spoken of by Rahab in 2:10 and commanded by God for the inhabitants of Canaan in Dt 20:16-18. There the reason given was so no one in Israel would worship other gods. Elsewhere God's mercy and forgiveness were available up to the moment of judgment (2Ch 7:14; Jr 18:5-10; Jnh 4:11), but after that there was no turning back. Salvation is offered to everyone, but the offer can be rejected and there comes a time when it is too late (2Co 6:2).

6:19 The precious metals were assigned to the Lord's tabernacle treasury because these could not be destroyed by fire.

6:21 The list of people and animals here is not to provide an inventory of who was killed, but to emphasize the obedience of Joshua and the people. Verse 2 may suggest that, with the exception of Rahab and her family, the inhabitants of Jericho were military personnel.

6:25 The salvation of Rahab was defined as avoidance of death and as life among the people of God, Israel (cp. Jdg 1:22-26).

6:26 The curse imposed by Joshua required that no construction take place on the mound of Jericho. It must remain in ruins as a witness to God's judgment upon the site for its resistance to God. The references to foundation and gates, and the warning about the loss of the eldest (firstborn) and the youngest was fulfilled in 1Kg 16:34 when Hiel of Bethel rebuilt Jericho in the ninth century B.C. This is not a curse against those who would disturb burials, which was common in those days, but a consideration of Jericho's symbolism for God's judgment and power.

6:27 God's presence with Joshua fulfilled the divine promises of 1:5-9. The fame of Joshua describes his renown at the victory over Jericho. Joshua's success at Jericho, his first battle, demonstrated that he was a powerful figure to be reckoned with.

7:1-26 The story of Achan demonstrates the first breach of purity and wholehearted dedication to God in the Israel of the new generation. When the previous generation of Israel accepted the covenant, and before they sinned, their representatives were able to feast with God (Ex 24:9-11). Their sin with the gold calf compromised that fellowship (Ex 32). This new generation of Israel had just been circumcised and were again enjoying the special blessing of God. Now the people of Israel would again taste the first sin and know its terrible consequences.

7:1 Achan's unfaithfulness (in partaking of what was set apart—devoted to destruction at Jericho) resulted in God's anger against the entire nation. The genealogy of five generations, from Achan back to the tribe of Judah, is the longest in the book of Joshua and emphasizes the connection of Achan with one of the 12 tribes and therefore with the entire tribal nation. As much as Israel benefited by Joshua, it would suffer by Achan (cp. Rm 5:12-21).

7:2 Joshua again sent spies before an assault, as in 2:1. Again there was no condemnation of this move. Ai, like Jericho, may have been an outpost guarding Beth-aven, Bethel, and other towns in the central hill country. It lay on the central road from Jericho westward into the hill country and therefore formed an obstacle to Israel's advance. Most scholars associate Ai with modern et-Tell and Bethel with Beitin. If so, Ai, like Jericho, lacks evidence of occupation during the time of Israel's entry into the land. This supports the interpretation of a makeshift fort for the site at this time. Materials were gathered from earlier walls to build the Ai that Joshua's spies encountered. These associations place Ai one mile southeast of Bethel.

7:3 The report of these spies contrasts with that of chapter 2 and resembles that of Numbers 13. Instead of confessing the promises and acts of God, these spies focused on the strategic details of what appeared to be an easy target. The 2,000 or 3,000 men may refer to two or three squads, as the same word for "thousand" in Hebrew ('elef) also can mean a squad or company of soldiers. The particular form of the verb wear out occurs elsewhere only in Ec 3:10, where it describes a fool who doesn't know the way to town—an apt comment on Joshua 7.

7:5 The 36 who died from the 3,000 or three squads (see note at v. 3) may reflect 12 from each squad and thus prefigure the 12 thousand inhabitants of Ai who would die (8:25). The quarries designate some of the steep ravines that break into the eastern hill country as it descends sharply into the Jordan Valley. In 2:11 and 5:1, the hearts of the Canaanites melted in fear before the accomplishments of Israel and its God. Here the Israelites' hearts melted.

7:6 Joshua's actions were those of one in mourning. Only then was the ark of the LORD mentioned. Its absence in the opening part of the chapter signifies the absence of God's presence and blessing on what happened.

7:7-8 The wish to remain east of the Jordan resembles the report of the first spies sent to Canaan in Nm 14:2-4. In Numbers it was a wish for death or a return to Egypt. Contrast God's promise that Israel's enemies would turn their backs and flee in Ex 23:27 with the fact that Israel had now turned its back (lit "the back of its neck") and fled.

7:9 The challenge to God's great name recalls Moses' intercession for Israel with the same argument in Nm 14:13-19.

7:11 The key word "cross" of chapters 1-5 (see note at 1:2) recurs here with the meaning, they have violated My covenant. Israel had "crossed" God and so could not "cross" over against its enemies as it did at Jericho. Someone had taken what was set apart. This violated the general command of Dt 20:16-18 and the specific command of Jos 6:17. By putting these things with their own belongings, they had made it impossible to determine the guilty person without divine guidance.

7:12 Joshua was commanded to "stand" in verse 10 as the beginning of Israel's means to overcome the problem that they could not stand against their enemies. Here God suggested that, so long as the things devoted for destruction remained in Israel's camp, Israel would be set apart for destruction. God would not fight for them or be present with them as He had in 1:5-9.

7:13 For Israel to consecrate themselves suggests either that they would examine themselves and their families to learn who was responsible for the sin, or that they would prepare themselves for an encounter with God the next day.

7:14 The tribe . . . clan, and family were the basic elements of Israelite society, which can be understood in terms of a greatly extended family. Each larger group would come before God, and He would select the subgroup of the larger component.

7:15 The verdict that the guilty one must be burned recalls the burning of the devoted things at Jericho (and the town itself) in 6:24, and it fulfills the command to devote the guilty one to God (Dt 13:15-16).

7:16-18 The text does not describe how each group was selected, but the use of the Urim and Thummim (Ex 28:30; Nm 27:21) by the high priest seems a possibility. This may be the same as the casting of lots used in Jos 18:6,8,10.

7:21 Achan's confession, with the emphasis on what he saw and how it was beautiful, recalls Eve's temptation where she also saw something that was pleasing. Achan coveted them and thus violated the Tenth Commandment of the Decalogue (Ex 20:17; Dt 5:21). The words of Achan's admission are recorded because this was necessary for the sin to be dealt with, as in 1Jn 1:9.

7:22 Joshua sent messengers to resolve the problem that had begun with his act of sending spies in verse 2.

7:24-26 The destruction of Achan with all his family and possessions contrasts with the salvation of Rahab and all her family in chapter 6. The connection of the family with its representative, for good or for ill, illustrates the key value of the family in the OT. Burning someone to death was rare in Israel (Lv 20:14; 21:9), but it was known as a punishment for this type of wrongdoing in neighboring cultures.

7:25 The references to trouble are a wordplay on the name of the Valley of Achor. The same root word is used for this verb and for the name of the valley. The description suggests that first all Israel stoned Achan and his family and then they burned the corpses, thereby fulfilling the law.

7:26 The large pile of rocks raised over Achan uses the Hebrew word gal, which recalls Gilgal where a pile of rocks had also been raised as a memorial (4:20). God's burning anger appeared at the worship of the golden calf (Ex 32:11-12) and at the sin of Baal-peor (Nm 25:4).

8:1 God's words do not be afraid or discouraged recall His first charge to Joshua, where they set the stage for His promise of presence and for the miracles that followed (1:9). With the whole military force, Israel would again be united (unlike 7:3) and thus their victory was more likely. As with the promise about Jericho (6:2), God's instructions to Joshua began with the promise that victory was already assured.

8:2 As with Jericho (6:21), all the people of Ai were to be destroyed. However, here it was possible for Israel to keep the livestock for their own use. The change demonstrates that flexibility in the matter of devoting things to God was possible. The use of an ambush is a strategy known in the ancient Near East and used more than once in Israel's history (Jdg 9; 20). Its deceptive nature recalls the ruse of Rahab in Jos 2:4-5. The references to the king of Ai and the city might suggest that Ai was not a fort. However, as with Jericho, a "king" could be a military leader rather than an independent sovereign (6:2), and the word for "city" refers to any population center, including a fort (2Sm 5:7).

8:3 Joshua sent the army out at night so they would not be detected.

8:4 , 9 Given the traditional locations of Ai and Bethel (7:2), there is a ravine between them, west of Ai, in which it would be possible for troops to hide and escape notice from either town.

8:8 After capturing Ai, they were to set it on fire as they did to Jericho (6:24). Joshua understood this as the LORD's command, a message he had received directly from God.

8:13 The positions of Joshua's forces were far from the road they would be expected to approach from, southeast of Ai, providing an additional element of surprise.

8:14-17 The ruse worked as Ai was emptied of its inhabitants. The attack took place early in the morning when the advantage would be with Israel's main force because the rising sun would blind the army of Ai as they pursued Joshua's forces eastward.

8:18-19 The sword in Joshua's hand symbolized war so that Joshua's action declared the beginning of the hostilities. The sword is also an offensive weapon, indicating the turning point in the battle. Israel moved from the defensive to the offensive when Ai's army experienced the reverse. The ambush accomplished its task without resistance.

8:20-22 As the main body of Israel turned west toward the pursuing army of Ai, the warriors of the city were driven back. At that point they saw Ai ablaze and found the ambush moving east out of the city and blocking their retreat. Caught between the two forces and despairing at the destruction of their defenses, they were easily defeated and their army was destroyed.
